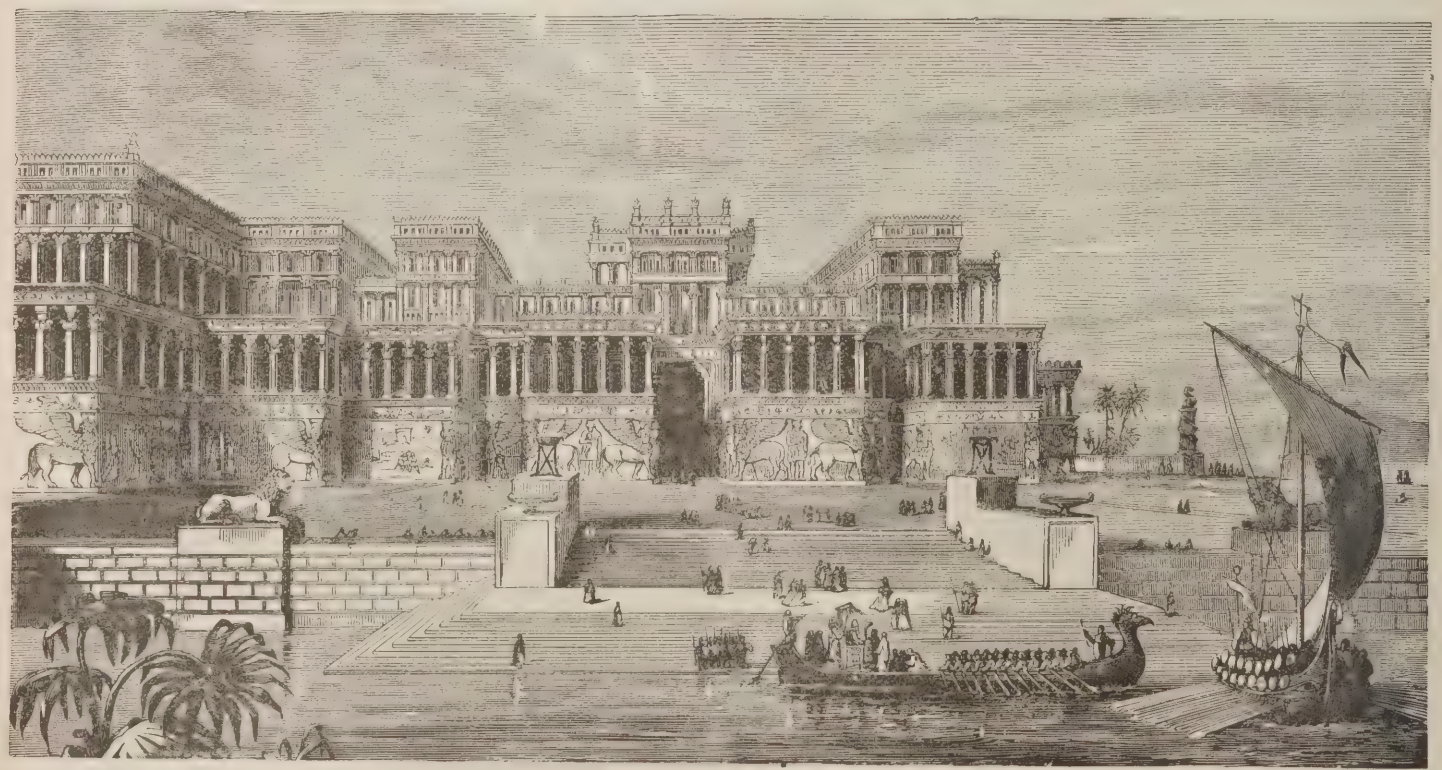
MELITA (Acts 28: 1).—This island is now called Malta, and is twelve miles in breadth and twenty in length, lying between Sicily and Africa, about two hundred miles east of Tunis, and in that part of the Mediterranean which in the apostle's day was often called Adria, including the Ionian and Sicilian seas, according to the testimony of Strabo and Ptolemy. Here St Paul and his company were shipwrecked on the passage to Rome, and were very kindly treated by the inhabitants, especially by Publius the governor. This island was settled by a Phœnician colony about B. C. 1500. Since the Christian era it has successively belonged to the Goths, Vandals, Saracens, Normans, Germans and French, until Charles V. surrendered it to the Knights of St John of Jerusalem, who were dispossessed by Bonaparte; and by the treaty of 1814 it was allotted to England. At present it is the centre of extensive missionary operations. Publications in the modern Greek, Armenian, Turkish and Arabic languages are widely circulated, and it is also a depository for Bibles in various languages. It is a naval station of importance, having immense fortifications around its capital, Valetta, and a fine harbor.

SHEPHERDS' FIELD, EAST OF BETHLEHEM.—"And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flocks by night. And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them and the glory of the Lord shone round about them; and they were sore afraid." Luke 2: 8, 9. We are told that here to the shepherds was announced the birth of the infant Saviour in Bethlehem.

The field slopes in an easterly direction from an ancient and dilapidated convent; it is a fertile district, and the hills are terraced, some of which are planted with choice orchards and vines. It is quite probable that here David in his early years watched and fed the sheep. "Wherefore Saul sent messengers unto Jesse, and said, Send me David thy son, which is with the sheep." 1 Sam. 17: 19. Sheep often constituted the chief wealth of a man in patriarchal times, and hence with the Jews the care of sheep was among the earliest and most respectable employments.



SINAI, a mountain in the peninsula of Arabia Petræa, from the summit of which God published his law to the Israelites. In the book of Deuteronomy the place where Israel received the law is uniformly called Horeb, but in the preceding parts of the Pentateuch it is, with three exceptions, denominated Sinai. A careful examination of all the passages in the inspired volume where the names occur leads us to the conclusion that Horeb is employed to denote the group of mountains of which Sinai is a particular summit. The Sinaitic range of mountains—of which Horeb is thus seen to be the name of the group, and Sinai the name of the particular summit—lies in the centre of the peninsula of Arabia. These mountains are composed of limestone rock, and run in long ranges inclining to the north-west, with rocky, sandy valleys between them. They spread over a field of about forty miles in diameter. A few stunted shrubs and trees are occasionally found in the valleys, where springs and rain supply the requisite moisture, and there are besides some favored spots where patches of lovely verdure and fruitfulness relieve the mind in the midst of prevailing solitude and death. But these few spots of greenness and fertility are wholly unobserved in the general view, and the eye wanders over nothing but a sea of a "great and terrible wilderness."

SEA OF GALILEE, SEA OF CHINNEROTH, LAKE OF GENNESARET or SEA OF TIBERIAS, which last is its present name.—The associations connected with this ample sheet of water are very hallowed and interesting to the zealous disciple. The scenes of our Lord's early life lay not far distant from it, and Capernaum, so often visited by him, was upon its margin. Four at least of Christ's apostles gained a subsistence upon its waters; they were fishermen, and from their laborious craft they were summoned away by the Redeemer of the world to become "fishers of men." In the time of Christ, Palestine was 'ivided into three parts, of which the northern was Galilee, bounded on the north by Anti-Libanus, east by Jordan and the Sea of Galilee, south by Samaria, and west by Phœnicia, which occupied the coast north from Carmel to Tyre. It was distinguished into Upper and Lower, the former lying north, and inhabited partly by Syrians, Phœnicians and Arabians, whence it was called "Galilee of the Gentiles."

A striking peculiarity of the Sea of Galilee is its sudden transition from a placid, unruffled surface to a turbulent and rolling sea. This is accounted for by its peculiar geographical situation: "And the sea arose, by reason of a great win that blew." John 6: 18.

NINEVEH ("dwelling of Ninus") was the capital of ancient Assyria. To Nimrod is ascribed, by the sacred historians, the building of Nineveh. Its early history is wrapt in obscurity. The labors of learned antiquarians are fast filling up the chasm in the ancient history of Assyria and its capital. Nineveh, like many Oriental cities, was of vast dimensions. Its circumference was about sixty miles, affording ample space for the "three days' journey" of the prophet Jonah. London does not, indeed, occupy more than the fourth part of such an area, but Nineveh had within its boundaries gardens, parks, vineyards, orchards, corn-fields and royal demesnes. The whole surface of the country is now covered with fragments of brick and pottery, the wreck and remnant of past and fallen magnificence. Modern research, however, has been able to identify it and exhume many of its wonders. The records of Nineveh have been strangely preserved, and they are of great variety. Several of these bas-reliefs have been exhumed and carefully examined, the cuneiform writing has been deciphered, and the result has been a wonderful confirmation of the inspired annals contained in the Hebrew Scriptures. Our amazement is equal to our gratification when we find a veritable history parallel to that of ancient Israel, and see the actual Assyrian account of events recorded in Kings and Chronicles.

MODERN CORINTH.—Of all the Greek cities, Corinth was perhaps the most celebrated for its luxury, splendour, and licentiousness. It joined the Achaean league against the Romans; and for this its unforgiving conquerors doomed it to destruction. This was about the year B. C. 146. A century or more afterward it was partly rebuilt by Julius Cæsar. There are but few remains of antiquity in modern Corinth. The ruins of two buildings of the Roman town still exist, viz.: a large mass of brickwork on the northern side of the modern bazaar, probably a part of one of Hadrian's baths; and an amphitheatre, cut out of the rock, on the eastern side of the modern town, not far from the bank of the torrent which separates the Acro-Corinthus from the heights to the eastward. The seven Doric columns, mentioned by travelers in all ages, are still erect in the midst of surrounding desolation. Modern Corinth occupies the site of the ancient city, which is the table-land at the foot of the Acro-Corinthus, a huge citadel standing at an elevation of 1,886 feet above the level of the sea, and much more imposing than any other of the celebrated fortresses of Western Europe.

THE LAND OF MOAB.—The prophet Balaam, hired by Moab to curse, is forced by the Holy Spirit to bless, Israel, and Moab finds his curses return upon himself and his people. It is announced that a mighty hero shall arise in Israel, for the future destruction of Moab. This is a magnificent poem, this prophecy, worthy of the greatest bard of any age; and the later prophets take up the strain. Isaiah, Jeremiah, Amos, Ezekiel, and the royal Psalmist, all sing the subjection of Moab, and the dominion of Israel. The land of Moab comprises three divisions, called the "field of Moab," lying south of the Arnon; the "land of Moab" the country opposite Jericho; and the "plains of Moab." All through the land travelers come upon the sites of long ruined towns; the soil is capable of cultivation, and there are proofs that the country was once equal to the support of teeming populations. Here and there the outlines of ancient fields may be traced; and Roman roads have been discovered, on which are mile stones of the times of Trajan, Marcus Aurelius, and Severus, with the numbers of the miles still legible

SIEGE OF JERUSALEM.—"And I will camp against thee round about, and I will lay siege against thee with a mount, and I will raise forts against thee." So runs the prophecy in Isaiah against the Holy city; and the picture which the Jewish historian gives us of this siege is one painted in the very gloomiest colours. It makes the heart sick and the head faint to gaze upon it. The wasting away by disease and famine, the dying outright by cruel slaughter—one knows not which is the more horrible. The city was crowded with the Jews, come up from all quarters to celebrate the passover. The three great evils fell upon them in succession, pestilence, famine and the sword. Josephus estimates that in the siege there perished not less than eleven hundred thousand persons, while ninety-seven thousand more were made captives. Though the number is unquestionably exaggerated, yet the slaughter was terrific, the devastation complete. Flames enveloped the magnificent temple, and its walls, with those of the city, were levelled with the ground.

CRETE.—The modern name of Crete is Candia, though its inhabitants call it only by its ancient Greek name. It is an island nearly equi-distant from Europe, Asia, and Africa, but has always been reckoned as belonging to Europe. It is about 160 miles long from east to west; and in breadth is very unequal, the widest part being 40 miles, and the narrowest 6 miles. The Grecian islands having been from earliest times the stepping-stones by which the migratory populations of Europe and Asia have crossed to either continent, it has been supposed that Phœnician and other colonies settled in Crete, and were the parents of early civilization in the island. In the most ancient times there was a want of careful training and rigid discipline, though the old Cretan warriors were somewhat distinguished as light troops and archers, and served as mercenaries both in Greek and Barbarian armies. In still later ages the people became degenerate in morals and character. The chief town is Candia. It is exclusively Turkish in character, and its bazaars are filled with articles of eastern luxury.

SOLOMON'S TEMPLE.—David wished to erect a temple to God's glory, but it was not permitted him, so he could only bequeath the duty to his son. Hiram, the king of Tyre, had loved David, and when messengers came to him from Solomon asking for men, and timber, and stone, to carry on the sacred work, he rejoiced greatly and said, "Blessed be the Lord this day, which hath given unto David a wise son over this great people." For seven years the workmen ply their tasks, and almost noiselessly the building grows under their willing hands, "neither hammer, nor axe, nor any tool of iron being heard in the house, while it was in building" (1 Kings vi. 7); Our illustration represents the construction of the porch, the most startling novelty of the building, and the one in which the foreign architects, from their more exquisite taste, were allowed freest play. The highest skill of Tyrian sculptors was displayed on the two elaborate pillars, which stood immediately under the porch within, not supporting it. Their pedestals of gold, their glittering brazen shafts, their light festoons, and rich capitals —one of which is shown in our engraving —were thought to be so wonderfully beautiful that the Israelites were never weary of praising them.

SIDON.—The modern name of this city is Saida, and it is situated on a small promontory jutting out into the Mediterranean Sea. Like most oriental towns, its streets are very narrow, crooked and dirty; but, in contrast to those of Tyre, a neighboring seaport town, its houses are large and well built of stone. Surrounding the town are lovely gardens and orchards, kept in a high state of cultivation, pomegranates, figs, apricots, almonds, oranges, lemons, plums, grow in the richest abundance. Sidon was the oldest of the three cities of Phœnicia. Both in the Pentateuch, and in the poems of Homer, we find the place mentioned. Though in later years Tyre outstripped Sidon in prosperity, they were both famous for their commerce, manufactures, and devotion to the fine arts. During the time of our Lord's visits to these coasts Sidon was under the power of the Romans. Since that time its rulers have varied from pagan to Christian, and from Christian to pagan again.

DEPARTURE OF THE ISRAELITES.

When the king arose in Egypt "who knew not Joseph," the Hebrew people were in sad plight. The long-subdued hatred of the Egyptians broke out against them, and cruel task-masters forced them to labor like slaves. But God sent them deliverance by the hand of Moses. Pharaoh was loth to let them go; and not till successive plagues had been sent upon the land, and the first-born in every Egyptian home had been destroyed, did Moses prevail over the king, and secure the right to depart from the land of bondage. Joyful, indeed, were the afflicted people. With their wives and their little ones, their flocks and their herds, and the jewels and raiment of which they had spoiled their oppressors, the Hebrews go forth in eager haste. The temples and the monuments of the hated land are behind them, while before them the Red Sea rolls back its waves, and the inhospitable wilderness stretches its long wastes. For forty years they tread those weary paths, many falling by the way, till at last they enter the Promised Land. But why did they not reach it before? Why this long journey, and these terrible privations of so many years? Was there no shorter and easier path to Canaan? Yes, but they were not fit to travel it, till they had learned by severe discipline the true character of the God whom they had forgotten in Egypt, and had acquired a better knowledge of themselves and their duties. And so with every Christian soul God has a method of discipline. We are called forth from our "land of Egypt and house of bondage," the world and its temptations. And that we may better appreciate the promised rest, we have to be disciplined for it. If we could all remember this, that with every fresh conquest over difficulties a new strength is added, a diviner life imparted, we might almost ask God to rain afflictions upon us, and, looking up through our tears, we should see Him watching how we bear our trials. To bear, is to conquer; to suffer, is to be strong. All nature, even apart from Scripture, teaches us that rough training is needed to bring anything to perfection, and that things thus perfected are the best. Labor and hunger give a tonic to the body such as nothing else can produce. Every rough experience cultivates. You may be finished off in the parlor, but firmness and fiber must be implanted elsewhere. The house is covered before it is painted and it must be strongly framed by hard labor before it is covered. The statue stands kingly in its perfected beauty, but hidden fires upheaved and veined the marble, rough hands tore it from the quarry, and stern blows struck from the rude block the encumbering fragments, before the sculptor chiseled it into pure and polished grace. And so must the Christian's character be wrought out Long the journey may be through the wilderness The waters of Marah may be there with their bitterness; but there are also the springs and the palms of Elim, whose taste is more refreshing, and whose shade more cooling for the drought and barrenness which have preceded; till at last we reach the eternal, heavenly city, and drink of that river which proceedeth out of the throne of God and of the Lamb.

NATIONS MENTIONED IN EZEKIEL xxx. 5.

When the destruction about to come upon Eygpt is foretold by the prophet Ezekiel, four other nations are joined with her in the impending doom. "Ethiopia, and Libya, and Lydia, and all the mingled people, and Chub, and the men of the land that are in league, shall fall with them by the sword" (Ezekiel xxx. 5). The physical characteristics of the several peoples are tolerably well defined in our illustration. The Egyptians were nearer the Caucasian than the negro type; with faces rather oval-shaped, but narrower in the men than in the women; forehead small and retiring but well-shaped, hair long, crisp, and generally black; skin of the men dark brown, chiefly from exposure; of the women, olive-colored, or lighter. The Ethiopian was the Cushite of the Bible, and this was equivalent to a Negro, the characteristics of which are too well-known to need description. At the present day Ethiopia is inhabited by many other tribes who are not negroes. The Libyans were also an African people, the descendants of Ham, and called Phut frequently in the Scriptures. The best and most recent critics regard the Lydians as a Shemitic tribe, and consequently the descendants of Lud; they were skilled warriors, excelling especially in horsemanship, and accustomed to serve as mercenaries under foreign princes. In Ezekiel xxvii. 10, the prophet says of Tyre, "They of Persia, and of Lud, and of Phut, were in thine army." The name Chub does not occur elsewhere in the Bible, and many have been the conjectures as to the people so designated, and their locality. The German commentators, especially, have given great attention to this point, but have not been able to come to any conclusion which a majority would be willing to adopt. The most plausible conjecture, on linguistic grounds, is that of Fürst, who supposes the name "to be connected with Coba, the existing name of an Ethiopian port, and which, perhaps, was formerly the name of a district." The remarkable prophecies in Ezekiel against Egypt, refer, for the most part, to the invasion of Cambyses, who was the head of twenty-seventh dynasty of the Persians, and turned Egypt into a Persian province, under the government of satraps. After this, Egypt revolted and regained her old right; but about the year B. C. 350 she again became a Persian province, and since that day, a period of twenty-two centuries, no native ruler has sat upon the throne. What a striking fulfilment of the prophecy, "There shall be no more a prince of the land of Egypt." (Ezekiel xxx. 13.) Thus it always is with the nations and the people that forget God. We are told in this Holy Book that "Righteousness exalteth a nation, and in the history of the human race we find the proverb often proved to be true; and on the other hand, when any people have despised God, and broken his commandment, then comes the word, "Ephraim is joined to his idols: Let him alone!" And to be let alone of God is often more terrible than to fall into his hands.

GOLD FROM OPHIR.

From ancient days down to the present times one commodity has been coveted and earnestly sought for by man. He has sacrificed time, labor, life itself, to obtain his desire. The auri sacra fames, the accursed lust for gold, of which the Latin poet speaks, has been a great impelling power in the world. And even King Solomon, though the wisest of men, was not without this longing for perishable riches. We read (I. Kings x. 22, and II. Chronicles viii. 18), that Solomon had two fleets, one of which brought to him from Tarshish "gold and silver, ivory and apes, and peacocks," while the other came from Ophir, bringing principally "gold," to the amount of four hundred and fifty talents. And again we read, (I. Kings x. 11, 14). "And the navy also of Hiram, that brought gold from Ophir, brought in from Ophir great plenty of almug trees, and precious stones . . . . Now the weight of gold that came to Solomon in one year was six hundred three score and six talents of gold." The amount of a talent of gold is variously estimated, as can be seen by referring to the tables. Whatever it may really have been in those times, there is no doubt that King Solomon was the wealthiest man of whom we have any account. "He exceeded all the kings of the earth for riches and wisdom."

But where was the Land of Ophir? This is a much vexed question, and it would savor of rashness and dogmatism to try to decide it positively. Ophir has been variously placed in the Burmese peninsula, in Hindustan, in Arabia, in Ceylon, in Armenia, in Phrygia, in Spain, on the east coast of Africa, in South America, where it has been identified with Peru, and even in California. Authorities seem to waver, however, between the three places, Hindustan, Arabia, and the east African coast. Still, the evidence for the three places cannot be said to be equal. The Ophir fleet is, both in Kings and Chronicles, connected with the visit of the queen of Sheba to Solomon; and it would give us the impression that the visit of the queen was in some way brought about by hearing of this fleet. Sheba is undoubtedly Saba in Arabia. We have (Psalm xlv. 9, and xlxxii. 15,) the "gold of Sheba" spoken of in the same familiar way as the "gold of Ophir. Above all in the passage where Ophir first occurs, it holds a place in a list of undoubtedly Arabian names (Gen. x. 26–29), so that there must have been an Ophir in Arabia, whether the Ophir of Solomon or not. Recently the claims of India to be regarded as the country where Ophir was, have been much pressed—especially by the distinguished Professor Max Müller, chiefly on linguistic grounds; but Professor Rawlinson, a scientific man of great celebrity, thinks it most reasonable to conclude that the Ophir visited by Solomon's Red Sea fleet was on the south-east coast of Arabia. On that coast was a city called Aphar; the Arabians in ancient times had a very considerable trade, in which it is certain the Sabaeans largely shared. Aphar, or Ophir, was probably in Solomon's time the great emporium of the east, as Tartessus (Tarshish) was of the west. Arabia itself may at that time have produced gold; at any rate, its wealth enabled it to accumulate gold to such an extent, that the "gold of Ophir" or the "gold of Sheba" became proverbial. The researches of modern travelers in Africa are being prosecuted with such vigor, and the discoveries of these days are often such wonderful confirmations of the truths of Scripture, that it would not be surprising if, in a short time, this vexed question of the "Land of Ophir" should be settled beyond a doubt

TIMOTHY INSTRUCTED IN THE HOLY SCRIPTURES.

The picture here presented is one which will commend itself to every Christian mother's heart. Paul, in writing to Timothy, speaks of the "unfeigned faith" which dwelt in the young man, as it had before in his grandmother Lois and his mother Eunice (2 Tim. i. 5). The same apostle also calls to mind the fact that Timothy, from a child, had known the Holy Scriptures—referring, of course, to the Old Testament. Careful home-training had fitted Timothy for the work which the Lord had given him to do. Who can measure the effect of a mother's teaching, for good or for evil? Who can estimate the benefit of a mother's prayers? The influence of such teaching and such prayers has gone like a golden thread with many a prodigal, and tied his heart to that which is holy and good when every other link had been broken; yes, even when the mother's lips were silent in death, and the grass upon her grave had been green for many a year. If the lives of the greatest and best of men could be fully known, it might be seen that the "precious seed," sown by weeping mothers, had sprung up and borne abundant fruit, both for this life and the one which is to come.

It is narrated of Augustine, a bishop and learned writer in the church twelve hundred years ago, that in early life he was heedless, and hated the truth of God. But his mother never ceased to pray for him. For nine long years when her son was grown to manhood, and was rolling in the slime of sin, she still pleaded for him in prayer. She visited a godly man, and entreated him to reason with her son. "But your son," said he, "is too much lifted up with pride to listen to anything I might say. Let him alone, only continue praying to the Lord for him." With many tears she repeated her request, but without avail; all she could do was to pray. And that praying mother lived to see her wayward son a holy, Christian man. "I would have been an infidel," said John Randolph, "had it not been for one recollection, and that was when my mother used to take my little hands in hers, and cause me on my knees to say, 'Our Father, which art in Heaven.'"

Mothers, an influence radiates from you which will follow your children wherever they go; an influence for time and for eternity. If, amid trials and temptations, they keep themselves unspotted from the world, they may, under God, be able to trace it to your consistent example. But how if it should turn out the opposite! The child's heart lies open to the mother's influence, as the prepared photographer's plate lies open to the sun's rays—ready to receive the image placed before it. See that the image is pure and fair and good. And that you may show the Saviour to the children, be sure first that you know Him yourselves. It is to those who believe, that He is precious. "Mother," said a little child, "I like Christiana better than Christian in the Pilgrim's Progress." "Why do you like her best?" said her mother. "Because, when Christian set off to the Heavenly City he went alone, but when Christiana went she took the children with her." Christian parents, do you see the application?

MUSIC AND ANCIENT MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

Music and Musical Instruments.—There can hardly be any question that music is the oldest of the arts, springing as it does immediately from nature; for among nations which have no other arts we yet find music cultivated to a certain degree. We know that before the deluge Jubal, one of Cain's desendants, had been a manufacturer of organs—whatever that instrument may have been; and after the flood those instruments continued in use, as may be proved from many passages in the Scriptures. In considering the style of music now cultivated among ourselves, we can form hardly any idea of ancient Egyptian or Hebrew music, so totally have manners and customs changed. Our information is obtained almost entirely from the remains of Egyptian monuments, upon which are inscribed pictures of the stringed, wind, and other instruments used in those earlier times. In the sculptures, also, of Greece and Rome we find evidences that these nations owed many of their musical ideas to the eastern nations. Among the chief musical instruments mentioned in the Bible we must place the "harp," as the most prominent one. Our readers need not be told how frequent are the references made to it, nor that it was employed on occasions of the highest, most religious joy, such as jubilees and festivals. It was made probably of the best part of resonant wood, furnished with ten strings, played upon with a plectrum, and sometimes with the simple hand. There was a large species of the harp used by the Egyptians to which our modern harp bears a very striking resemblance. So strong was the similarity between the different kinds of stringed instruments, that in describing one we have found the general principle which enters into all of them. The wind instrument were ordinarily divided into trumpets and pipes. As natural horns were probably first used an imitation in metal would be likely to follow. Ram's horns are mentioned as having been used at the famous siege of Jericho. The trumpet was a horn of a straighter kind in very common use for calling together religious assemblies, making proclamations, and praising God. The "pipe," or "flute," an instrument furnished with holes for the finger to play upon, is found pictured upon the ancient Egyptian monuments, and other nations seem to have borrowed its use from Egypt. It was chiefly consecrated to mirth and pleasure by the Hebrews, but sometimes used on mournful occasions, for there was a law of the Jews that every one, no matter how poor he might be, should have at least two pipes on the death of his wife.

Other instruments were such as gave forth sounds on being struck or shaken. Chief among these was the tambourine or trimbrel. Miriam is mentioned as using this to lead the dances of the daughters of Israel when they celebrated their victory over Pharaoh and his host. In Egypt the tambourine was a favorite instrument on sacred and festive occasions, and also in mournings for the dead A species of drum is also represented upon the ancient monuments, made of parchment stretched over the top of a case of metal or wood; and our modern kettle-drum is undoubtedly derived from this. It is probable that the Egyptians had also instruments in the shape of bells or cymbals, some struck violently together like our modern cymbals, and some played partly with the fingers like Spanish the ceastanets. These were made of mixed metal, a compound of brass and silver.

THE OPENING OF THE SIXTH SEAL.—Rev. vi. 12-17.

About mysteries so great as those contained in the Book of the Revelation, it is unavoidable that there should be differences of opinion, and varieties of interpretation. Yet, if we adopt the Apostles' method of "comparing spiritual things with spiritual" it would seem a comparatively easy thing to arrive at the meaning of the portents attending the opening of the Sixth Seal. The magnificent language employed by St. John is such as is frequently used in Scripture to describe great changes or revolutions ther in the civil or religious world. Haggai (ii. 6, 7,) denotes by the earthquake, the commotions attendant on the coming of the desire of all nations. The darkening of the sun, and the moon turning blood-red, and the falling of the stars, and the rolling up of the heavens, and the removal of the mountains, are bold, graphic figures used by the prophets, and especially Isaiah, to predict and signify mighty changes in rulers and governments. But here the interpretation closely follows the symbols (ver. 15, 16, 17); and evidently refers, not to the judgment of the last day, but to temporal judgments, as will be seen by observation of similar language in Hosea and Jeremiah. The changes which were to concern kings and captains, and peoples, bond and free, were to be the result of the triumph of Christian principles. And surely, when we look back to the old Roman world, and notice how its idols were overthrown, and its mighty Emperor, Constantine, became a follower of the Crucified One, here are indeed commotions and revolutions, judgments and triumphs. Enslaved Christianity threw off her fetters. The mighty ones of heathendom fell from their lofty heights, like stars hurled from their spheres. Persecuted believers now dared to hold up their heads and confess their faith before the whole world.

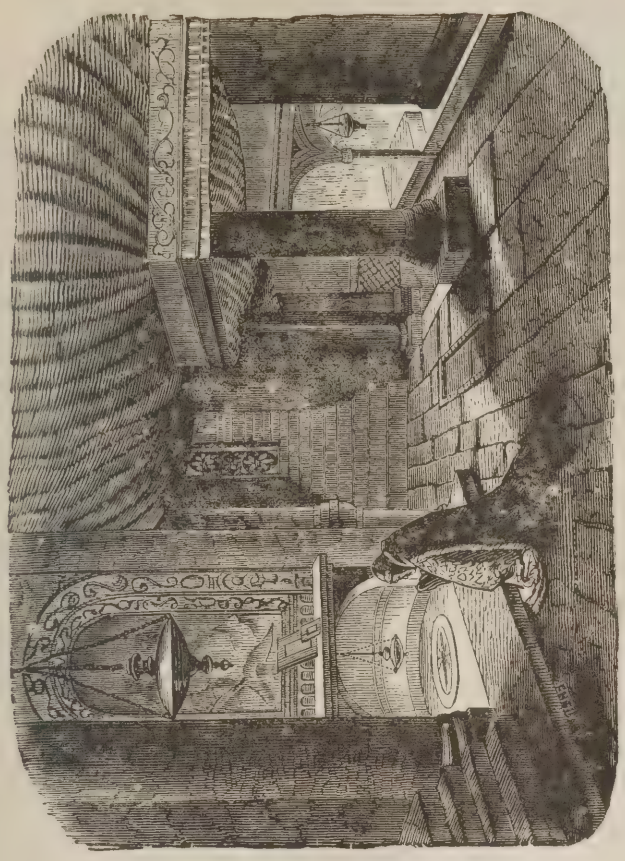
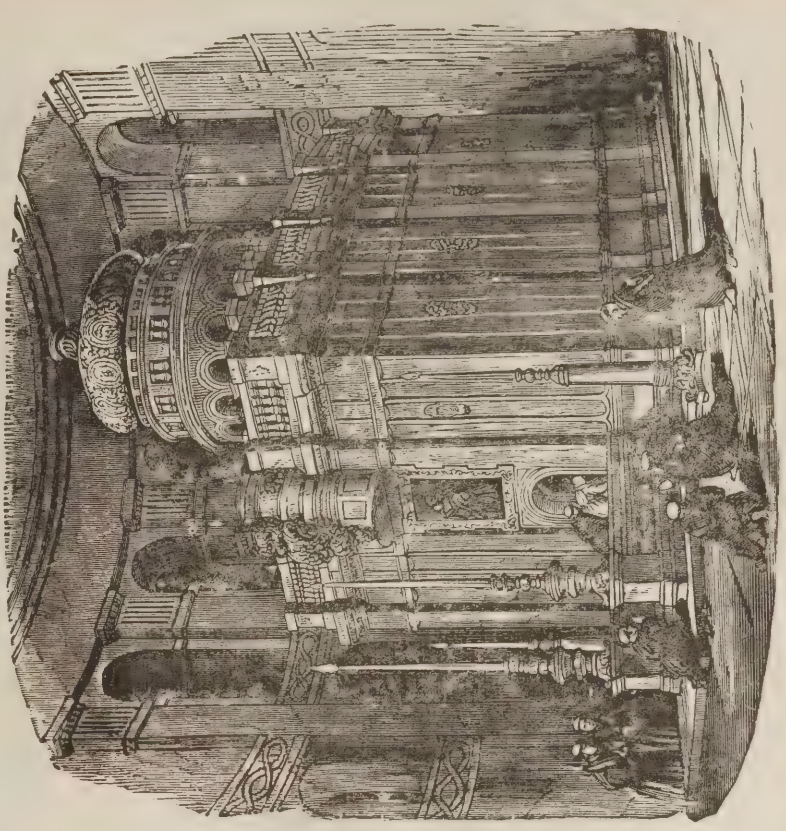
THE COLISEUM, ROME.

THE COLISEUM.—The most wonderful building in Rome, to many minds, is the grand old Coliseum, still noble though in ruins. The mind can hardly grasp the idea of its vastness; for centuries, since it began to decay, materials have been quarried out of it for the erection of palaces and churches, without seeming to diminish aught of size; it would appear to be imperishable, and thus to fulfil the proud boast of the ancient proverb. Its form is an oval, 620 feet in length, externally, by 513 feet in breadth; and its vertical height is 157 feet. Early Christianity is associated in a peculiarly affecting manner with Vespasian's great building. Here, during the times of martyrdom, the cry arose, "Christianos ad leones," "fling the Christians to the lions," and it was obeyed with alacrity; one of the first victims was Ignatius, bishop of Antioch, during the reign of the Emperor Trajan. But this vast arena, so often drenched with the blood of martyrs, is now consecrated as a Church, though, sadly must it be confessed, much of superstition mingles in the devotions which are here offered.



ARCH OF TITUS.



ARCH OF TITUS.—This celebrated structure, though far less impressive, architecturally, than the Coliseum, is little inferior in interest. It was erected by the Senate and the people of Rome in estimation of the services of Titus in conquering the Jews. It is probable that the monument was completed after the death of Titus. It consists of a single arch of Grecian marble of exquisite proportions, with fluted columns on each side. The frieze, which gives it special interest and value, is on the right-hand side passing under the arch going towards the Coliseum. It represents the triumphal procession of captive Jews, the silver trumpets, the tables of shew-bread, and the golden candle-stick, with its seven branches. The candle-stick itself is said to have been thrown into the Tiber from the Milvina Bridge, on the occasion of the battle between Maxentius and Constantine. Should the proposal to turn the course of the Tiber be carried into effect, it is not impossible that this precious relic may yet be recovered. Amongst the many indignities inflicted upon the Jews in Rome, was this, that, on the accession of each new Pope, they were compelled to await him at the Arch of Titus, on his way to be installed at the Lateran, and present to him a copy of the Pentateuch

BIBLICAL NATURAL HISTORY.

ANIMALS, BIRDS, INSECTS AND REPTILES

Found in the HOLY LAND and mentioned in the BIBLE.

By the Rev. W. Houghton, M. A.

Before introducing to the reader the particular names of the different animals mentioned in the Bible, it will be well to make a few prefatory remarks on the zoology of the sacred volume. The importance of natural history in its bearing on the Bible—that book containing so many allusions to various animals—will be apparent to all. Who, for instance, has not often had his curiosity excited, but, perhaps, not always satisfied, as to the particular creatures designated by the terms "unicorn," "behemoth," "leviathan" and "coney"? Although very many books have been written on the subject of biblical zoology, and a vast amount of learning has been expended on elucidating, it is only recently that we have been made acquainted with the actual animal inhabitants of Palestine. It is from residents that we must expect anything like complete information, and we shall look forward to new records with great interest. The animals of which mention is made in the Bible belong principally to the countries of Palestine and Egypt; we have also notices of some that occur in the peninsula of Sinai, as well as of a few foreign importations. The allusions are various: sometimes there is mention made merely of the name of an animal, as in the list of clean and unclean animals; at other times the descriptions are graphic, grand and poetical, as in the case of behemoth and leviathan.

The zoology of Palestine has been influenced to a very great extent by the physical character of the country, for that, it has been well remarked, presents on a small scale an epitome of the natural features of all regions, mountainous and desert, northern and tropical, maritime and inland, pastoral, arable and volcanic. In no other district, not even on the southern slopes of the Himalaya, are the typical fauna of so many distinct regions and zones brought into such close juxtaposition. The bear of the snowy heights of Lebanon and the gazelle of the desert may be hunted within two days' journey of each other; sometimes even the ostrich approaches the southern borders of the land, the wolf of the north and the leopard of the tropics howl within hearing of the same bivouac, while the falcons, the linnets and the buntings recall the familiar inhabitants of our fields, and the sparkling little sun-bird and the grackle of the glen introduce us at once to the most brilliant types of the bird-life of Asia and South Africa. We are told that as many as eighty species of mammals are known to occur in Palestine—a number which, considering the size of the country, is very large.

Some animals once found in Palestine are now extinct. The lion, once far from uncommon, is no longer found there; the auroch or wild bull, the reem of the Hebrew Bible (translated "unicorn" in our version), has long since disappeared, and no species of urus or bisons now roams on the hills of Bashan and Lebanon; wolves, jackals and hyænas are often heard around the villages or in the burying-places, but none of the large Carnivora will venture, unprovoked, to attack the traveller. "The leopard skulks only in the densest coverts on the sides of Carmel and Gilead, or in the few forests of Galilee, while the bear has retired to the fastnesses of Hermon and Lebanon."

Wild goats and gazelles occur on the cliffs and valleys, the latter in great numbers in some districts, while the dreaded wild boar is still, as in biblical times, the terror and scourge of the husbandmen. The hyrax or shâphan of the Hebrew Bible, the "coney" of our version, still finds refuge amongst the "stony rocks." Several kinds of hares occur, while mice, rats, jerboas, marmots and other rodents are numerous. Bats are seen in the clefts and ravines of almost every valley.

We now proceed to notice the animals mentioned in the Bible, beginning with the quadrumanous order of the Mammalia.

Apes.—Of the Quadrumana not a single representative occurs in Palestine. Apes are mentioned in 1 Kings 10 : 22 and 2 Chron. 9 : 21 as amongst the commodities imported by Solomon from some foreign country: "Once in three years came the navy of Tharshish, bringing gold, and silver, ivory, and apes, and peacocks." In the passage in the Chronicles it is said that the ships "went to Tharshish," bringing gold, etc.

Where Ophir was has long been a question, but it seems almost certain it was somewhere in India, for the peacock is not indigenous to any other country. The gold, ivory, apes and peacocks were no doubt Indian exports, and this is confirmed by the fact that none of the Hebrew words for these commodities are of Semitic origin; all come from the Sanskrit. Thus koph is the Sanskrit kapi; shem habbim (ivory) means "the tooth of the elephant"—habbim is almost certainly a corruption of the Sanskrit ibha (an elephant); tukhi-im (peacocks) is even at this day represented by togēi, the name used for this bird on the Malabar coast. Of course it would be impossible to say what species of monkey was imported by Solomon, but as "algum" (sandal) wood in great abundance was also brought by Solomon's ships from Ophir, and sandal-wood is a native of the mountainous parts of Malabar, there is reason to believe that the apes were imported from some part of Southern India or Ceylon. It is not improbable that the species imported by Solomon would belong to that family.

The baboon, whose figure is so frequently depicted on the Egyptian monuments, would most likely have been known to the Hebrews during their sojourn in Egypt. This creature held a conspicuous place among the sacred animals of that ancient land. It was particularly sacred to Thoth, the lord of letters. No other species of quadrumanous animal has been found represented on the Egyptian monuments. The cynocephalus is not now a native of Egypt; it is found among the mountains of Arabia and Abyssinia.

Lion.—Among the larger Carnivora the lion will first claim our attention. To this animal frequent allusion is made in the Old and New Testaments. It had several Hebrew names: the most common were ari or aryeh, a lion in general; kepheer, a strong and fierce lion, from a root meaning "to be strongly bound together" (very expressive of the great muscular animal); laish, a strong lion; lâbi, a roaring lion. It appears probable that the short-maned Persian lion was the variety most commonly found in Palestine, though the long-maned lion might also have occurred. The lion so frequently represented in the hunting-scenes on the Assyrian monuments is evidently the short curly-maned variety. The Persian lion, it is said, has not the courage of his African relative. According to Olivier, when he would seize his prey, "he has recourse to cunning rather than force; he crouches among the reeds which border the Tigris and Euphrates, and springs upon all the feeble animals which come there to quench their thirst; but he dares not to attack the boar, which is very common there, and flies as soon as he perceives a man or woman." The Persian lion is, no doubt, a less dangerous animal than the African variety, and this will help us to understand easily those passages in the Bible which record instances of shepherds attacking lions single-handed.

The lions of Palestine had their lairs in forests, which have now long since disappeared with the animals themselves, in the brushwood of the Jordan banks, their favorite haunts, in thickets and caves of the mountains: "Behold, he shall come up like a lion from the swelling of Jordan" (Jer. 49 : 19), driven out from his lair by the overflow of the river. "The lion is come up from his thicket." Jer. 4 : 7. "A lion out of the forest shall slay them." Jer. 5 : 6. "The lion did tear in pieces enough for his whelps, and strangled for his lionesses, and filled his holes with prey, and his dens with ravins." Nah. 2 : 12.

In the brushwood and reedy coverts of the Jordan banks lions were found as late as the end of the twelfth century, at least if the words of Phocas, who travelled in Palestine at that time, are reliable. He particularly mentions the reedy coverts "which numbers of lions are accustomed to inhabit." That lions were once common in Palestine is evident from the numerous allusions in the Bible, while recently lions' bones have been found by Dr. Roth in the gravel of the Jordan. Lions are seldom or never found now west of the Euphrates, although they occasionally cross the river. Tristram tells us that not many years ago a lion's carcase was brought into Damascus, and that between the lower Tigris and Euphrates these animals still abound. While Layard was making his excavations below Babylon, he frequently saw marks of their footsteps among the ruins at Niffer. Lions are found far higher up in the jungle of the Khabour or Chebar, on the Upper Tigris, above Mosul and Nineveh. The numerous hunting-scenes on the monuments from Assyria and Babylon testify to the abundance of lions in these countries in ancient times. "From the earliest period the lion was considered the noblest of game, and was included among the wild beasts preserved in the paradises or parks attached to royal residences. On the monuments of Nineveh the triumphs of the king over this formidable animal are deemed no less worthy of record than his victories over his enemies. History and tradition, too, have celebrated the prowess of Ninus and Semiramis in their encounters with the lion, and paintings representing their feats adorned the palaces of Babylon." The lion was a formidable foe to the flocks of Palestine, sometimes attacking them in spite of the assembled shepherds: "Like as the lion and the young lion roaring on his prey, when a multitude of shepherds is called forth against him, he will not be afraid of their voice, nor abase himself for the noise of them." Isa. 31 : 4. Amos of Tekoah, himself a herdsman, gives a graphic description of a shepherd taking out of the "mouth of a lion two legs or a piece of an ear." Not only did the lion lay waste towns and villages (2 Kings 17 : 25, 26; Prov. 22 : 13), but it sometimes attacked and devoured men. 1 Kings 13 : 24; 20 : 36. Lions were captured either in pitfalls or by nets. In the former case deep pits were dug, and their mouths covered over with reeds and branches of trees. A number of men would start the lion from his hiding-place by shouts and loud noises, and drive him in the direction of the pitfalls; when taken, he was killed by spears or arrows. Frequent allusion to the use of pitfalls in hunting is made in the Bible, especially in the Psalms. Ezekiel refers to the lion being taken alive by the net and pitfall: "Then the nations set against him on every side from the provinces, and spread their net over him: he was taken in their pit; and they put him in ward in chains, and brought him to Babylon" (Ezek. 19 : 8, 9); or as some translate this latter passage, "they put him in a cage with nose-rings." The roar of the lion is very frequently mentioned in the Bible, and there are four different Hebrew words which express it. One term, it is said, alludes to the loud roaring of the lion when seeking his prey, another expresses his cry when he has caught it, another his growl when disturbed at his meal, another refers to the noise of the young lions. Among the ancient Jews, as among all Oriental nations, the lion was the symbol of power, strength and royalty. In the Old Testament the lion was the achievement of the tribe of Judah, while in the book of Revelation it was the emblem of Christ, who "prevailed to open the book and to close the seven seals thereof." Rev. 5 : 5. On account of the lion's fierceness it was regarded as an appropriate metaphor for a cruel enemy. Ps. 7 : 2; 22 : 21; 2 Tim. 4 : 17. In 1 Peter 5 : 8 the lion is represented as a fit emblem of the great spiritual adversary. Lions are subject to great variation, and it is probable that the so-called maneless lion of Guzerat is merely, as it were, an accidental variety. It is probable, therefore, that lions with long shaggy manes, as well as short-maned varieties, occur in Syria and Mesopotamia. The ancient Egyptians used to tame lions and employ them for hunting purposes, and their monarchs are said to have been accompanied in battle by a favorite lion.

Mr. George Smith visited the Louvre and examined the Assyrian collection there. He writes: "In the Assyrian hall, guarded by the great winged bulls at either entrance, are also some sculptures of Assur-bani-pal, the Sardanapalus of the Greeks. One of them exhibits an adventure which happened to him when hunting. This monarch and his attendants had gone forth in chase of the king of beasts, when—probably while they were beating for their game—a lion rushed out of the cover and sprang toward the king. Assur-bani-pal, who had dismounted, met the enraged animal single-handed, and taking hold of him by the ear, ran his spear through the body and despatched him. The scene is depicted with great spirit, and the inscription over it reads as follows: 'I, Assur-bani-pal, by my courage on my feet, a powerful lion of the desert by his ears grasped, and in the service of Assur and Ishtar, the goddess of war, with my spear I pierced through his body.'"

Leopard.—The leopard is frequently mentioned in the Old Testament. Its cunning and insidious habit of concealing itself until some favorable opportunity for plunder presents itself is alluded to by both Jeremiah—"A leopard shall watch over their cities" (5 : 6)—and by Hosea: "As a leopard by the way will I observe them." 13 : 7. Its beautifully marked skin is alluded to in the well-known text, "Can the Ethiopian change his skin, or the leopard his spots?" Its extraordinary swiftness and activity are referred to by Habakkuk, who, speaking of the Chaldean cavalry, says, "Their horses also are swifter than the leopards." 1 : 8. Daniel in his vision takes the leopard as a fit emblem of the rapid conquests of Alexander. 7 : 6.

Leopards still exist in Palestine, though it is probable they were far more abundant formerly. The Hebrew name of the leopard is nâmer, and the modern Arabic nimr, which means "spotted," the same word being found in all the cognate languages. From the resorts of these animals in certain localities places derived their names, as Beth-nimrah, or Nimrah, a fenced city near the Jordan built by the children of Gad. Num. 32 : 36. The "Nimrim" spoken of by Isaiah (15 : 6) and Jeremiah (48 : 34) was in the land of Moab. "This is a rich verdant spot at the south-east end of the Dead Sea, which still bears the Arabic name of Nimeirah, and where too we found traces enough of the leopard." Of the other Nimrah or Beth-nimrah Tristram remarks: "It is curious to trace the change of names in the history of this place—'the house of leopards' of old; as the country became more densely peopled, and the leopards disappeared, it had changed to the Beth-abara, or 'house of the ford' of the Septuagint and the New Testament, when John the Baptist baptized beyond Jordan. With the present desolation of the land the leopard has resumed its sway, and roams undisturbed; the ford has become disused and almost forgotten, and the Beth-abara of the Roman period has to-day regained its old appellation, 'the stream of the leopards' of the modern Arabs. Deservedly is it so named, for in its thickets the leopards lurk; their fresh footprints were clear and unmistakable on the moist ooze." The leopard is still so numerous in the forests of Gilead "as to be a pest to the herdsmen, who, with their inferior weapons, are somewhat loath to encounter it in the chase, for a wounded leopard is the most terrible and cruel of beasts." Tristram observed their traces about the Dead Sea, and on Mount Tabor and throughout Galilee.

The cheetah, or hunting leopard of India, is also found, though sparingly, in different parts of Palestine; a few, we are told, still haunt Mount Tabor and the hills of Galilee; they are more common in Gilead.

Cat.—It is curious that there is not one single reference to this animal, now so widely distributed and so familiar, in any of the canonical books of the Bible. The cat is mentioned only in Baruch (6 : 22) as one of the animals that sat on the idols of Babylon: "Upon their bodies and heads sat bats, swallows and birds, and the cats also." The tame cat is now quite common in Palestine, but whether it was kept as a domestic animal in the times of the ancient Jews must remain uncertain. It is well known that the cat was a favorite amongst the Egyptians, and that they paid it absurd reverence. It was deemed a capital offence to kill one; and when one died, it was at once embalmed and conveyed to Bubastis, the city sacred to the moon, of which divinity the cat was a symbol. The Jews, there cannot be a doubt, must have been acquainted with this animal when they were in Egypt.

It is supposed that the domesticated cat of the ancient Egyptians was identical with the Felis maniculata of Nubia, to which also our cat is by some supposed to be closely related. It is most curious to observe that no mention of the domesticated cats occurs in the writings of the ancient Greeks or Romans; in vain have we sought for any reference. Our English word cat, the French le chat, the German katze, kat of the Danes, cath of the Welsh, gatto of the Italians, are all evidently akin to the Latin cattus. It seems, therefore, probable that Northern and Western Europe received the domestic cat through Roman civilization, the Romans themselves having obtained it from Egypt, just as there is every reason to believe the Romans first imported rabbits from Spain or its outlying islands, not earlier than A. D. 230. Had the domestic cat been known to the classical writers, mention must have been frequently made of an animal which plays so large a part in fable.

Dog.—Leaving the cat tribe, we will next come to the Canidæ, a family represented in the Bible by dogs, hyænas, wolves, foxes and jackals. The dog, as is well known, always has had, and up to this time still has, a bad reputation in Palestine. The scriptural references to the dog are very numerous, and in not one is the animal spoken of without some degree of aversion. The Hebrew name is keleb, with which the modern Arabic kelb is identical. Some writers have thought that the word keleb is onomatopoetic, akin to our word "to yelp," but the term is evidently derived from a Semitic root, meaning "to be furious," "to lay hold with violence." Hence in the Semitic mind the idea of the dog as a furious attacking beast was implied by his very name. Similarly the Arabic kelb is used for a lion as well as a dog. Thus the animal which, amongst the ancient Egyptians, Greeks, Romans and most other nations, has been treated as a faithful friend and companion to man, was by the ancient Jews regarded as merely a wild, greedy animal, running about wherever he would, without a master, and eating even human corpses: "In the place where dogs licked the blood of Naboth shall dogs lick thy blood." 1 Kings 21 : 19. "The dogs shall eat Jezebel by the wall of Jezreel. Him that dieth of Ahab in the city the dogs shall eat." vs. 23, 24. This is also their present character. "Every Oriental city and village abounds with troops of hungry and half-savage dogs, which owe allegiance rather to the place than to the persons, and which wander about the streets and fields, howling dismally at night, and devouring even the dead bodies of men when they can reach them." To this the Psalmist alludes in graphic language: "At evening let them return, and let them make a noise like a dog, and go round about the city. Let them wander up and down for meat, and grudge (grumble) if they be not satisfied." Ps. 59 : 14, 15. Hence the dog is used as an emblem of furious enemies: "For dogs have compassed me; the assembly of the wicked have enclosed me." Ps. 22 : 16. "The Philistine said unto David, Am I a dog that thou comest to me with staves?" 1 Sam. 17 : 43. "Then Abner was wroth for the words of Ish-bosheth, and said, Am I a dog's head . . . that thou chargest me to-day with a fault concerning this woman?" 2 Sam. 3 : 8. It does not appear that the ancient Hebrews ever employed the dog as a watch-dog to guard the house. The passage in Isa. 56 : 10 which has been adduced in favor of the idea—"His watchmen are blind: they are all ignorant, they are all dumb dogs, they cannot bark; sleeping, lying down, loving to slumber"—clearly from the context refers to dogs that guarded, or rather in this instance neglected to guard, the flocks. "All ye beasts of the field, come to devour, yea, all ye beasts in the forest." "Yea, they are greedy dogs which can never have enough, and they are shepherds that cannot understand." vs. 9, 11. To watch the flocks and to protect them against wild animals was the essential and only duty of the dogs of Palestine in biblical times. See Job 30 : 1: "But now they that are younger than I have me in derision, whose fathers I would have disdained to have set with the dogs of my flock." But no doubt they were then, as they are now, very useful in towns and villages as common scavengers, eating offal and dead carcases, which, if left, would probably produce pestilence. It is very curious to observe that although the Jews must have been acquainted with the use of the dog for hunting purposes when they were in Egypt, and could not, one would suppose, be ignorant of the hunting-dogs of their neighbors, the Assyrians, considerably later on in their history, the Jews never cared about hunting, and never employed the dog for that purpose. The Egyptians were very fond of hunting, and had several breeds of dogs, as the figures on the monuments testify. Lion-hunting with dogs was a favorite sport; the chase of the rîm or wild ox was much followed, and for both purposes a large and powerful dog was necessary; the figures on the monuments represent a large kind of mastiff. A number of hounds modeled in clay were found at Kouyunjik, one of the two principal mounds of the ancient Nineveh, whereon in former times the temples and palaces of the Assyrian kings once stood, and from whence a great number of marble slabs have been procured. On each of these models the name of the dog is inscribed.

Of the dogs now found in Palestine there are three distinct breeds. First, there is the familiar pariah dog of the towns and villages; secondly, the Syrian sheep-dog or Scotch sheep-dog, but larger: "It is bold, intelligent and faithful, and will rush on the wolf even to its own destruction sooner than desert the flock;" and thirdly, there is the Persian greyhound, "much prized by the Bedouin sheikhs, and used for the chase of the gazelle. With its long shape and the long silky hair of its ears and tail, it is perhaps the most beautiful of its kind." The dogs in the East we are told keep up an incessant howling and barking in the night, but like the jackal they are generally afraid of men. Rabies or canine madness is an unknown disease among them.

Wolf.—From the consideration of the dog the transition to his relative and enemy, the wolf, is natural. Although wolves were more abundant in Palestine formerly, they are not uncommon now, and may occasionally be seen in every part of the country. Frequent allusion to this pest of the shepherd is made both in the Old and New Testaments. Its ferocity is referred to in Gen. 49 : 27: "Benjamin shall raven as a wolf: in the morning he shall devour the prey, and at night he shall divide the spoil." This was spoken in reference to the bold and warlike character of that tribe. Ezekiel speaks of the corrupt princes of Jerusalem in these words: "Her princes in the midst thereof are like wolves ravening the prey, to shed blood, and to destroy souls, to get dishonest gain." Ezek. 22 : 27. The allusions to the wolf attacking sheep and lambs are numerous. See John 10 : 12; Matt. 10 : 16; Luke 10 : 3. Its habit of seeking its prey in the evening is referred to in Hab. 1 : 8, where the Chaldean horses are said to be "more fierce than the evening wolves." Compare also Zeph. 3 : 3: "Her judges are evening wolves: they gnaw not the bones till the morrow." The wolf of Palestine is the same species as the common wolf of Europe, though it is of a lighter color than it. Tristram thinks it is a larger and stronger animal. It is certainly a dreadful pest to the shepherds, for it is so excessively crafty, hiding itself somewhere near the folds till dark, that it often manages to run off with its victim unobserved by the dogs. The shepherds are therefore constantly in the habit of firing off their guns in the night to frighten away any would-be hungry invader. "A single wolf is far more destructive than a whole pack of jackals, who always betray their presence, and who can only carry off any silly straggler."

The Hebrew name of the wolf is zeêb, which appears to come from a root meaning to be of a tawny or golden color. The Arabic name dîb, though in sound apparently akin to the Hebrew, is connected with a root meaning to "terrify," in allusion, no doubt, to the alarm the wolf always causes to the flock. The common European wolf is widely distributed over the whole northern hemisphere.

Jackal.—There is no mention in our Bible of the jackal, but there cannot be a doubt that the Hebrew word shû'al, always translated "fox," in most instances denotes the jackal. There are two Hebrew words which almost certainly denote jackals, iyyîm and tannîm. The former word is translated in our Bible "wild beasts of the island," and occurs in Isa. 13 : 22: "The wild beasts of the islands (iyyîm) shall cry in their desolate houses, and dragons (tannîm) in their pleasant palaces;" in chapter 34 : 14, "The wild beasts of the desert (tsiyyîm) shall also meet with the wild beasts of the island;" and in Jer. 50 : 39, "The wild beasts of the desert, with the wild beasts of the islands, shall dwell there." The Hebrew word iyyim, which occurs only in the plural, and which our translators considered had some reference to islands, denotes howling animals, and no term can better express the character of jackals, which keep up all through the night a dismal howling and wailing. The Arabic ibn âwi, "sons of howling," is one of the names for jackals, and there can be no doubt that the Hebrew word denotes the same animals. The word tannîm also evidently means jackals, and occurs several times in the Bible, sometimes as a parallel with iyyîm as in the passage quoted above, "Howling wild beasts shall cry in their desolate houses, even wailing wild beasts in their pleasant palaces." The word occurs thirteen times in the Bible, and is always translated "dragons" in our version: "I am a brother to dragons, and a companion to ostriches." Job 30 : 29. "I will make a wailing like the dragons." Mic. 1 : 8. "Jerusalem heaps, and a den of dragons." Jer. 9 : 11. "Desolate, and a den of dragons." Jer. 10 : 22. "And the wild asses did stand in the high places; they snuffed up the wind like dragons." Jer. 14 : 6. The passage in Lam. 4 : 3, "Even the sea monsters (tannîm) draw out the breast, they give suck to their young ones: the daughter of my people is become cruel, like the ostriches in the wilderness," clearly points to jackals. In all the biblical allusions the tannîm are spoken of in connection with desolate places, ostriches and wild beasts. It is variously translated "whale," "serpent," "dragon." See more under the article on "Serpent." In a few instances the word tannîn occurs in the form of tannîm, as in Ezek. 29 : 3; 32 : 2, where it is evident some serpent or sea-creature, and not jackals, is intended. It is necessary to bear in mind this distinction between the singular form of tannîn and the plural form of tannîm.

The jackal is very common now, as in biblical times, in the Holy Land. Wherever the traveler bivouacs, the loud, wailing, melancholy cries of the jackal are heard. About the ruins of Baalbec packs of jackals secrete themselves by hundreds. Their sudden howl would break the dead stillness of the night, and, caught up from pack to pack, was echoed back from the cavernous temples below, till the air seemed filled as if with the wailing of a thousand infants, and the words of the prophet were brought vividly home: "The jackals shall cry in their desolate houses, even howlers in their pleasant palaces." Travelers tell us that jackals nightly visit the walls of Jerusalem and provoke a defiant chorus from the swarming pariah dogs, as intolerant of them as the hound is of the fox.

The three hundred animals which Samson is said to have made use of for the purpose of setting fire to the standing corn of the Philistines were doubtless jackals which went in packs; but of this we shall treat in the next article.

Fox.—It has been said that the Hebrew word shû'al, which in the Authorized Version is in every instance translated "fox," more frequently refers to the jackal, although the same term would, no doubt, be applied by the ancient Jews to the fox as well. Indeed, there is reason to believe they did not distinguish between the two animals, which are very similar in form and appearance, though different in habits. The term shû'al has been variously derived. Some Hebraists have referred it to a root shâ'al, "to excavate" or "to burrow," which etymology would answer both to the fox and the jackal—the former as a true earth-burrower, the latter as an inhabitant of caves and hollow places.

Samson caught three hundred shu'âlim, "and took firebrands, and turned tail to tail, and put a firebrand in the midst between two tails. And when he had set the brands on fire, he let them go into the standing corn of the Philistines." Judg. 15 : 4, 5. Jackals hunt in packs, and Samson might readily have captured as many as three hundred of these animals. There would have been great difficulty in procuring as many foxes. The animals denoted were clearly jackals. In the passage (Ps. 63 : 10) in which the psalmist speaks of his enemies, "They shall fall by the sword, they shall be a portion for foxes," the same animals are meant, for jackals are carrion feeders, and even attack graves for their favorite morsel, which cannot be said of foxes. In the passage of the Cant. 2 : 15, "Take us the foxes, the little foxes, that spoil the vines," the reference may be either to jackals or foxes, both animals being very fond of fruit. The prophet Ezekiel compares the false prophets of Israel to "shu'âlim in the deserts," no doubt in allusion to their selfishness and avarice, and their oppression of the poor of the land. In the New Testament our Lord more than once alludes to the fox. "Go ye, and tell that fox" (Luke 13 : 32), was spoken by him in relation to the duplicity of Herod. Allusion is made to this animal's burrowing habits in the memorable words, "Foxes have holes, and the birds have nests; but the Son of man hath not where to lay his head." Matt. 8 : 20. The fox of Palestine, of the south and central country, differs but little from the common fox of this country. It is extremely abundant in Judea and on the east side of Jordan.

Hyæna.—This animal is very common in all parts of Palestine, and quite indifferent as to the character of the country, making "a home alike in the deserts, in the woods or in the tombs; but its favorite haunts are the old rock-hewn tombs with which the Holy Land everywhere abounds." There is no direct mention of the hyæna in our Bible, and scarcely anything is said in the Hebrew. If we except one passage (1 Sam. 13 : 18), where mention is made of the "valley of Zeboim" (Gê hat-tseboim)—that is, "valley of hyænas"—there is no other positive allusion to this animal, for the verse in Jer. 12 : 9, "Mine heritage is unto me as a speckled bird" (ait tsâbûa), admits of various interpretations. The passage in Jeremiah has been translated variously, as, for instance, "Is my heritage become unto me as a bird of prey, stained with blood?" "My heritage is to me as a ravenous hyæna," "Mine inheritance is unto me as a hyæna and a bird of prey."

The passage in Jer. 12 : 7, 8, 9, is somewhat obscure. The meaning seems to be this: the prophet is complaining of the sins of his people, which cause him to exclaim, "I have forsaken my house, I have left mine heritage; I have given the dearly beloved of my soul into the hand of her enemies. Mine heritage is unto me as a lion in the forest; it roareth out against me: therefore have I hated it. Mine heritage is unto me as a ravenous hyena, therefore ravenous wild beasts all round are against her. Come, assemble all the wild beasts, come to devour." "As the roaring of a lion makes men shake from fear, so that they flee from that spot, so I flee from my people, once, indeed, beloved by me, but now, on account of their crimes, an object of horror. As my people are no better than ravenous hyænas, let all other ravenous wild beasts come to lay waste and to devour. Let the Chaldeans and the neighboring nations, the Syrians, Moabites and Ammonites, and other enemies haste to the spoil." This is Maurer's explanation, and it seems natural. We ought to add that the Hebrew tsâbûa' is identical with the Arabic dab', and that this latter name denotes "the hyæna."

Tristram says that next to the jackal, hyænas are the most numerous beasts of prey now found in the Holy Land, but that they are cowardly creatures, and are not dreaded by the natives, who regard them as the most abominable of all animals, prowling, as they do, about graveyards, endeavoring to exhume dead bodies. His party met with hyænas in the Jordan valley, at Jerusalem, Nazareth, Tabor and Mount Carmel. The spotted hyæna, which appears to be specifically distinct from its striped relative, is not found in Asia, being confined to South Africa, chiefly about the Cape of Good Hope. Figures of hyænas occur on the paintings of Thebes. The ancient Egyptians did not regard this animal as sacred, but hunted it and shot it with arrows, and caught it in traps, as an enemy to the flocks. The strength of the hyæna's jaw surpasses that of any other carnivorous animal.

Bear.—Mention is made of this animal several times in the Old Testament writings; its ferocity when robbed of its young is referred to in 2 Sam. 17 : 8: "For, said Hushai, thou knowest thy father and his men, that they be mighty men, and they be chafed in their minds, as a bear robbed of her whelps in the field." Again, in Prov. 17 : 12: "Let a bear robbed of her whelps meet a man, rather than a fool in his folly." Hosea (13 : 7, 8) represents God as threatening to punish Israel for having forsaken him, in these words: "I will be unto them as a lion: as a leopard by the way will I observe them: I will meet them as a bear that is bereaved of her whelps, and will rend the caul of their heart." Bears occasionally attacked the flocks; David tells Saul, just before he slew the Philistine giant with a sling and a stone, how he had killed a bear that attacked his flock: "David said unto Saul, Thy servant kept his father's sheep, and there came a lion and a bear, and took a lamb out of the flock. And I went out after him, and smote him, and delivered it out of his mouth: and when he arose against me, I caught him by his beard, and smote him, and slew him." 1 Sam. 17 : 34, 35. The prophet Amos tells us that, in his time, the bear was a dangerous animal for a man to meet: "As if a man did flee from a lion, and a bear met him." 5 : 19. The deep and monotonous groaning sound which the bear utters is referred to by Isaiah: "We roar like bears." 59 : 11. When the children of Bethel mocked Elisha, we are told "there came forth two she-bears out of the wood, and tare forty and two of them." 2 Kings 2 : 24. From these passages it is probable that bears were not at all uncommon in biblical times. At present they are comparatively rare in Palestine, occurring in some of the ravines of Galilee, and on Mounts Lebanon and Hermon, where they are said to be by no means uncommon. The Syrian bear seems to be merely a local variety of the common brown bear, differing from it chiefly in the light color of the hair; it is frugivorous more than carnivorous in its habits, and seldom attacks men or flocks unless pressed with hunger. Bears do much damage to the lentil crops and the chick-peas cultivated on the sides of Hermon. From the account given by the Rev. F. H. Holland, it would seem that bears are still common on Mount Hermon, and that they are not at all feared by the people. He says: "I slept on the top of Mount Hermon. Just as the sun was setting I saw two bears rolling each other over in the snow, about four hundred yards distant. We went to sleep, fully expecting a visit from them during the night; but they did not disturb us, though at daybreak we found them still near us. When the sun had risen, they left the snow and went down the mountain-side." The Hebrew name for the bear is dôb, being identical with the modern Arabic name dub, "a he-bear;" dubbé, "a she-bear." Some writers derive the word from a Hebrew root, dâbâb, "to walk slowly;" but others, with more probability, refer it to an Arabic root, meaning "to be hairy," dôb being thus "the shaggy animal." The name of the bear occurs on the Assyrian monuments; the word phonetically is read dâbu, evidently the Hebrew dôb. It was one of the animals hunted by the great Assyrian kings, Asshur-ni-zir-bal and Asshur-bani-pal, "mighty hunters" indeed, before Asshur and Ishtar their deities. Bears at the present day appear to be not uncommon in the neighborhood of Tiyari, a district north of Assyria. Layard tells us they are very mischievous, robbing the trees of their fruit and the fruit when laid out to dry; the inhabitants pretended to be in so much dread of the bears that they would not venture out alone after dark. These bears are probably the descendants of those hunted by the Assyrian monarch more than twenty-five hundred years ago.

Badger.—It is by no means certain what animal is intended by the Hebrew word tacash, which our translators render by "badger." The word occurs several times in the book of Exodus, as denoting some material used for the outer covering of the tabernacle, and for wrapping up sacred things when they were removed. Num. 4 : 8. "Thou shalt make a covering for the tent of rams' skins dyed red, and a covering above of badgers' skins." Ex. 26 : 14; see also Ex. 25 : 5; 35 : 7, 23; 36 : 19; Num. 4 : 6, 8, 10, 14. The prophet Ezekiel (16 : 10) also mentions the word: "I clothed thee with broidered work, and shod thee with badgers' skin." The word does not occur elsewhere. The Hebrew word bears a close resemblance to the Arabic tuchash, a general name, as it would seem, for dolphins, seals, dugongs, etc. The more definite Arabic word for a porpoise or dolphin is dolphin; sometimes a shoal of these creatures is called Banat-le-bahr, "daughters of the sea." Pliny tells us that tents were sometimes made of the skins of seals, as being the only marine animal never struck by lightning, and Suetonius says that Augustus Cæsar always wore a seal-skin as a safety in traveling. It is worthy of remark that Strabo mentions "an island of seals" near to the promontory of Ras Mahomet, which has its name from the abundance of the animals. This is the very spot where Niebuhr saw a great number of porpoises. There is, we think, fair reason for believing that the tachash skins for the tabernacle were those of some of the marine Mammalia, probably the dugong or the porpoise, which, being sewed together, would form an efficient tarpaulin, and that the skins for the ladies' sandals were those of seals.

Weasel.—The name of this little active creature occurs only once in the Bible—viz., in Lev. 11 : 29, in the list of "unclean creeping things that creep upon the earth." There is considerable doubt as to whether the animal denoted by the Hebrew word choled be a weasel or a mole-rat. It is certain that the kindred Arabic word khuld or khild denotes the mole and mole-rat, and the probable root from which the Hebrew name is derived, châlad, "to dig," is more truly applicable to the mole-rat than to the weasel. But the authority of the old versions is in favor of the weasel, also that of the Mishna and Talmud, which in several passages speak of the chuldah as a fierce carnivorous creature, and one of surprising cunning, killing other beasts of prey bigger than itself, as attacking men and horses, as being considered dangerous to sleeping children, as a little creature of wonderful agility, as gliding into small and narrow holes.

Ferret.—Here again is the Hebrew name (anâkah) of some animal that occurs only in the list of unclean creeping things mentioned in the book of Leviticus (11 : 30), and which it is not possible to identify. Some translations render anâkah by "shrew-mouse;" others give "hedgehog," "toad," "chameleon," "green lizard," "water-lizard." The Hebrew word is derived by some authors from a root meaning "to sigh" or "groan," and it has been thought that a kind of lizard called gecko, which utters a peculiar mournful sound, is the animal denoted.

Hedgehog and Porcupine.—There is a Hebrew word (kippôd) occurring three times in the Old Testament, and translated in the Authorized Version by "bittern," which has by some writers been supposed to denote not a bird, but a porcupine or hedgehog. The question as to the meaning of the Hebrew word in the passages where it occurs (Isa. 14 : 23; 34 : 11; Zeph. 2 : 14) will be discussed when we come to the article "bittern." Although we think the evidence rather against either the porcupine or hedgehog representing the Hebrew word, yet as these animals occur frequently in Palestine, and were no doubt known to the ancient Jews. The hedgehog is very common in the North of Palestine. The hedgehog of the South of Judea is smaller and lighter in color, and probably not a distinct species. This animal was known to the ancient Egyptians, but it does not appear to have been associated in their minds with any religious feeling. Small figures of the hedgehog made of earthenware were used as ornaments, and lamps of terra-cotta having the form of this animal have been met with in the tombs. The Arabic name of a hedgehog is kunfud, and it is supposed by some that the Hebrew word is identical with it. The porcupine is common in all the rocky districts and mountain glens of the Holy Land, and its flesh is esteemed a great delicacy. It is commonly believed by the natives to be a larger species of hedgehog, but is really an animal of a very different order, being a rodent, and placed by systematists not very far from the beaver on one side and the guinea-pig on the other. It lives on roots and bark, and conceals itself in holes and crevices of the rocks, where it remains dormant during the winter, and is at all times a nocturnal animal. It is so common in the neighborhood of the Dead Sea that a bundle of shed quills may be gathered among the rocks in a day without trouble. It is found in Europe, the whole of North Africa and Western Asia.

Mole.—No true mole has as yet been found in Palestine, but there is a small mole-like creature, the mole-rat, which is common in many parts of the country, and which there is much reason to identify with the Hebrew word chephôr pêrôth. There is another Hebrew name, tinshemeth, which occurs only in the list of unclean animals (Lev. 11 : 30), and which is rendered "mole." The Hebrew word clearly points to some "burrowing" or "digging" animal, from the root châphar, to "cut," "bore," "dig;" and the word, if read as one instead of two words, may be referred to "dig excessively" or "repeatedly," an idea very suitable both to moles and mole-rats. The mole-rat, although in general external form bearing a close resemblance to the true mole, is really a very distinct animal, and belongs to the order Rodentia, or gnawing animals, and not to the Insectivora, or insect-devourers, like the mole proper and other species of the same family. "The so-called mole of Syria is a very curious and interesting animal. It is the mole-rat, with much of the external appearance of our mole, but considerably larger, ten or eleven inches long, of a silver-gray color, without any external eyes or tail, but with a very large ear orifice, though not apparent through the fur. It is a rodent, with very powerful incisors, like the squirrel's, but much longer, and a broad naked muzzle. It lives in underground communities, making large subterranean chambers for its young and for store-houses, with many runs connected with them, and decidedly partial to the loose débris about ruins and stone-heaps, where it can form its chambers with the least trouble."

Mouse.—It is probable that by the Hebrew word 'akhbar is to be understood not only the common mouse of the field or of the house, but any small destructive rodent, the root of the name meaning "to bite in pieces" or "to gnaw." The mouse is mentioned in Lev. 11 : 29 as one of the unclean creeping things forbidden as food; in Isa. 66 : 17 it is said, "They that sanctify themselves and purify themselves, in the gardens behind one tree in the midst, eating swine's flesh, and the abomination, and the mouse, shall be consumed together." In 1 Sam. 6 : 4, 5, five golden mice, images of the mice that marred the land, are mentioned as part of the trespass-offering which the Philistines were ordered to send to the Israelites when they returned the ark. The mice that marred the land of the Philistines were probably some kind of field-mice, of which several kinds occur at the present day in the Holy Land. The short-tailed field-vole, commonly known as the field-mouse, is very common there, and perhaps there is not a more destructive little creature in existence than it. In our own country extensive injury both to newly-sown fields and to plantations has often been caused by this little agricultural pest.

Herodotus says that when Sennacherib invaded Egypt in the time of Sethôs, Vulcan sent a great multitude of field-mice, which devoured all the quivers and bows of the Assyrian army, as well as the thongs by which they managed their shields; thus were the Assyrians overthrown. "There stands to this day in the temple of Vulcan a stone statue of Sethôs, with a mouse in his hand, and this inscription, 'Look on me and learn to reverence the gods.'" "In Palestine they are confined to the sandy and desert districts, where they abound. As is well known, with extremely short fore-legs, their hind-legs are as long as the body, and the tail considerably longer, while the fur is as soft as that of the chinchilla. By this enormous tail the little creatures steer themselves in their leaps—we might almost say flights—as they bound over the plains. The Arabs consider the jerboa a dainty morsel." The hamster is eaten in Northern Syria, and may be included under the 'akhbar mentioned by Isaiah as the abominable thing some of the people ate. This creature is as destructive in Palestine as in the eastern parts of Europe, and commits great devastation among the corn. It is said that it lays up great stores of beans and other food for the winter's consumption, sometimes amounting to the weight of one hundred pounds. Sand-rats of several species burrow about the roots of bushes in the desert parts of the country, and among the rocks in the hilly districts. Three species were noticed, of a light sandy color above and white beneath, and covered all over the back with bristles like a hedgehog. In one species these bristles, which are enormous for the size of the animal, extend only halfway down the back. They are scarcely larger than a house-mouse. The jerboa, the sand-rat and the dormouse are to the present day all eaten by the Arabs, and probably this was the case in ancient times.

The hare is mentioned only in the list of animals not allowed to be eaten by the Israelites: "The hare, because he cheweth the cud, but divideth not the hoof, he is unclean unto you." Lev. 11 : 6; Deut. 14 : 7. Of course it is well known that the hare is no ruminant, and does not chew the cud; but as it is in the constant habit of twitching the lips, both when it is eating and at other times, it has been regarded as a ruminant. Goldsmith informs us that "the rhinoceros, the horse, the rabbit, the marmot, and the squirrel all chew the cud by intervals." The fact is that all ruminants are bisulcate—i. e., divide the hoof into two parts—and all bisulcates are ruminant. The hornless ruminants differ somewhat from other ruminants in the structure of the foot. The toes of the camel are conjoined nearly to the apex, and the feet are callous beneath; in the llama the sole is cloven as far as the middle of the fore part. In point of fact, all ruminants are bisulcate, but not to an equal extent. The Hebrew word for the hare is arnebeth, and is correctly rendered.

Two species of hare, Tristram writes, are common in the Holy Land; and two others, perhaps only varieties or races of one of the others, are occasionally met with. "In the northern regions and all the wooded and cultivated portions of the country, the only hare is the Lepus Syriacus, which is there very common. It is of the same size and color as the English hare, and extremely like it, but is rather shorter in the ear and broader in the head. The common hare of the southern region of Judea and of the Jordan valley is Lepus Ægyptiacus, a much smaller animal, scarcely larger than a full-grown rabbit, with very long ears and a light tawny fur. Neither the Turks nor other natives are fond of the flesh of the hare; the Arabs eat it, but the Armenian Christians from a religious scruple abstain from it. Aversion to hare's flesh is not confined to Orientals; to this day, we believe, the Laplanders and some other Europeans regard it with horror."

Bat.—The order known as Cheiroptera is well represented in Palestine, certain cavernous recesses being said to be literally swarming with these animals. The Hebrew word for "bat" is 'atalleph, which, according to some, is derived from two roots—'atal, "to be dark," and eph, "flying;" hence the "night-flyer." It is mentioned in the list of unclean birds forbidden as food to the Israelites. Lev. 11 : 19; Deut. 14 : 18. The ancient Hebrews, like the Arabs, regarded the bat as a bird on account of the membranous expansion, so characteristic of this mammal, which bestows upon it the power of flight. Bats are mentioned with moles (mole-rats) by the prophet Isaiah, as frequenting ruins and desolate places: "In that day a man shall cast his idols of silver and his idols of gold, which they made each one for himself to worship, to the moles and to the bats." 2 : 20. In the book of Baruch (6 : 22) it is said of the Babylonian idols: "Upon their bodies and heads sit bats, swallows and birds, and the cat also."

Of the bats of Palestine, one small species of short-tailed bat, well known in the South of Europe, swarms in the quarries under the temple at Jerusalem, and in the cave of Adullam, to such a degree that it is almost impossible to keep a torch alight while creeping through the caverns. Another small species, with a tail as long as its body, and a singular horse-shoe nose, characteristic of several genera, also found in Egypt, dwells in thousands in the caves by the Dead Sea and in the Jordan valley. In Galilee, especially near the Lake of Gennesaret, the caves are inhabited by clouds of a very large tawny-colored bat, an African species. In the wooded districts of the country we also found in caves a large fox-headed bat, measuring more than twenty inches across the wings. Besides these, several other species were collected; among others the greater horse-shoe bat; another horse-shoe bat; the European mouse-colored bat. The common long-eared bat flits constantly about the Sea of Galilee and harbors in the glens near it, and other South European and Egyptian species are met with. In Central Palestine bats are dormant during the winter, but in the neighborhood of the Dead Sea, owing to the warmth of the climate, we found them active throughout the year.

Layard also speaks of the abundance of bats in a cavern near the hill of Koukab: "We advanced cautiously, but not without setting in motion an avalanche of loose stones, which, increasing as it rolled onward, by its loud noise disturbed swarms of bats that hung to the sides and ceiling of the cavern. Flying toward the light, these noisome beasts almost compelled us to retreat. They clung to our clothes, and our hands could scarcely prevent them settling on our faces. The rustling of their wings was like the noise of a great wind, and an abominable stench arose from the recesses of the cave." Figures of bats occur in the tombs of Thebes and Beni Hassan. According to Horapollo, when the Egyptians would symbolize a man who is weak and audacious, they portray a bat, for she flies, though destitute of feathers; and again, when they wished to represent a woman suckling and bringing up her children well, they portray a bat with teeth and breasts, as being the only winged creature which has teeth and breasts.

Horse.—The Hebrew names for the horse occurring in the Bible are usually two, viz., sûs and pârâsh, and these are of frequent occurrence; but in addition to these terms there are two others, rechesh, rendered "dromedary" in our version (see 1 Kings 4 : 28; Esth. 8 : 10, 14), and rammâk (plural rammâkim), also rendered "dromedary" or camel (Esth. 8 : 10), a word which probably means "a mare." These two terms we may dismiss for the present without further discussion. The term sûs, generally denoting any war-horse, whether driven in a chariot or ridden, seems in a few instances to be restricted to a chariot-horse, and to be used in contradistinction to the pârâsh or "cavalry horse;" thus in 1 Kings 4 : 26 (Heb. 5 : 6), we read in our version: "Solomon had forty thousand stalls of horses for his chariots, and twelve thousand horsemen," where the Hebrew words clearly mean "so many horses for his chariots," and so many cavalry or "riding horses." So in Ezek. 27 : 14: "They of the house of Togarmah (Armenia) traded in thy fairs with chariot-horses, riding-horses and mules." Our translators have always rendered pârâsh and plural pârâshîm by "horseman" and "horsemen;" in some instances the word doubtless has that meaning, as in Ezek. 23 : 6, 12, where the Assyrians are spoken of as "desirable young men," "horsemen riding upon horses." In 2 Sam. 1 : 6 the word is accompanied by another: "Lo! the chariots and horsemen" ("masters of the horses," "riders") "followed hard after him." The passage in Isa. 21 : 7: "And he saw a chariot with a couple of horsemen, a chariot of asses, and a chariot of camels." It was not the custom of any of the Orientals to yoke asses or camels to war-chariots. All the allusions to horses that occur in the sacred writings have reference to their use in war with one exception, viz., in Isa. 28 : 28, where the prophet says: "Bread-corn is bruised, for he will not ever be threshing it, nor break it with the wheel of his cart, nor bruise it with his horses." From this it would appear that horses were employed in the time of Isaiah for treading out the corn. These nations continue to tread out their corn after the primitive custom of the East. Instead of beeves they frequently make use of mules and horses, by tying in like manner by the neck three or four of them together, and whipping them afterwards round about the nedders, as they call the threshing-floors, where the sheaves lie open and expanded in the same manner as they are placed by us for threshing." If under Jotham and Uzziah "the land was full of horses, and there was no end to their chariots" (Isa. 2 : 7), some of these animals might have been profitably employed by exercising them for "treading out the corn."

The first mention of horses in the Bible occurs in Gen. 47 : 17, where we are told that the movable effects of the Egyptians, with which they purchased corn from Pharaoh, consisted of horses, sheep, oxen and asses. At the time of the Exodus horses were very abundant in Egypt, though at what time and whence this animal was introduced into the ancient land of the Pharaohs will probably long remain a question undecided, though there is some reason for believing that it came from the East. The breed of horses was carefully attended to by the ancient Egyptians. They were used both in war, proving a formidable element in their armies, and in drawing private carriages (Gen. 41 : 43) and for riding: "Dan shall be a serpent by the way, an adder in the path, that biteth the horse-heels, so that his rider shall fall backward." In the time of Solomon, as we have said, horses for war purposes were extensively imported into Judea from Egypt. The king is said to have had 40,000 stalls of horses for his chariots, and 12,000 cavalry horses (1 Kings 4 : 26); but there is probably an error here, for in 1 Kings 10 : 26; 2 Chron. 1 : 14, the number of chariots is given as 1400, so that, allowing three horses for each chariot, two in use and one as a reserve, the number required would be about 4200, or in round numbers 4000, which is probably the correct reading: "The number 4000 is in due proportion to the 12,000 horses for cavalry, and is in accordance with all that we know of the military establishments of the time and country. Shishak, the Egyptian king, brought only 1200 chariots into the field (2 Chron. 12 : 3); Zerah, the Ethiopian, had but 300 (14 : 9); Hadadezer had 1000 (2 Sam. 8 : 4); the Syrians of Mesopotamia 700. 10 : 18."

In the time of Jehoahaz the cavalry and chariot forces of Israel were very much diminished, chiefly in consequence of their numerous defeats by Hazael and Benhadad, kings of Syria (2 Kings 13 : 3, 7), so that but fifty horses and ten chariots alone remained. As with the military forces of the northern kingdom in their wars with the Syrians, so it was, to a great extent at least, with those of the southern kingdom when invaded by the Assyrian armies. Horses had evidently become scarce; hence Rabshakeh's scornful taunts to Hezekiah about trusting to Egypt "for chariots and for horses;" hence Isaiah's vigorous and pathetic expostulations, "Woe to them that go down to Egypt for help; and stay on horses, and trust in chariots, because they are many; and in horsemen, because they are very strong. . . . For the Egyptians are men, not God; and their horses flesh, and not spirit." Isa. 31 : 1-3. And, in truth, good cause had the people of the kingdom of Judah to fear and to seek for extraneous help from other nations, for the Assyrians were at this time the most powerful nation in the then known world, while their horses were magnificent animals, combining great strength with speed. Hence the prophet Habakkuk exclaims, "their horses are swifter than the leopards, more fierce than evening wolves." 1: 8.

The spirited chariot-horses of Assyria, and the deadly effect of her warriors in the battle-field, are eloquently portrayed by Nahum (3 : 2, 3): "The noise of a whip, and the noise of the rattling of the wheels, and of the prancing horses, and of the jumping chariots. The horseman lifteth up both the bright sword and the glittering spear; and there is a multitude of slain, and a great number of carcases; there is none end of their corpses, they stumble upon their corpses."

Horses, it will be remembered, were offered to the Jews by the general of the Assyrian king, as an acceptable present (2 Kings 18 : 23), and in the statistical tablet of Karnak they are mentioned amongst the objects of tribute brought by the people of Naharaina (Mesopotamia) and the neighboring countries to the Egyptians. We may judge, therefore, that the Assyrian horses were celebrated at a very early period. The Egyptians, indeed, appear to have been chiefly indebted to the countries watered by the Tigris and Euphrates for their horses, no representation of this animal occurring, I believe, on Egyptian monuments earlier than the eighteenth dynasty.

Although for many years Arabia has been celebrated for its breed of horses, there is reason to think that in early biblical times the people of that country did not possess any. It is probable that later on in their history they obtained them from the Mesopotamian plains. The Jews, on their return from the Babylonish captivity, brought with them 736 horses and 245 mules (Neh. 7 : 68). In the wars of the Maccabees horses were constantly employed by the Greek kings of Syria. 1 Macc. 1 : 17; 3 : 39, etc.

In the New Testament little mention is made of horses; our Lord does not once mention them, though doubtless the Romans, then in possession of Judea, had horses in the country. Threescore and ten horsemen are mentioned in the Acts of the Apostles (23 : 23) as part of the escort Claudius Lysias ordered to be prepared to conduct St. Paul to Cæsarea. St. James (3 : 3) says, "Behold, we put bits in the horses' mouths that they may obey us, and we turn about their whole body;" and these animals are referred to in the book of the Revelation symbolically. See Rev. 9 : 7, 17; 19 : 14; 6 : 2. Horses of various colors are mentioned (Zech. 1 : 8; 6 : 2) in the prophet's vision of the four chariots; thus, we read of "red horses" in the first chariot; "black" in the second; "white" in the third; and in the fourth "grizzled and bay." About the black and white colors there can be no doubt; the same perhaps may be said of the "red," which may answer to our "bay." The "grizzled" horses, either spotted or roan, are represented by the word berudîm. The same word is applied to the skin of goats in Gen. 31 : 10; it is derived by Kimchi from a root (bârad) meaning "to have hail-like spots;" bârad, in fact, being the ordinary Hebrew word for "hail." Mention is also made of "red" horses in Zech. 1 : 8. The Hebrew word is derived from a root meaning "to be bright red," "foxy." In the magnificent description of a war-horse in the book of Job (39 : 19–25) which is so universally admired, we need only refer to an expression which has given rise to various explanations: "Hast thou given the horse strength? hast thou clothed his neck with thunder?" v. 19. The idea of an animal's neck being clothed with thunder no doubt, to our Western ideas, savors of false and unmeaning metaphor, but to the Eastern mind this would not appear so; indeed we think the very exaggeration of hyperbole is in favor of the expression as rendered in our version. Various explanations have been given, some rendering the Hebrew ramâh by "flowing mane;" others, "quivering motion," "thunder-flash," "fury," "flowing mane," etc. Perhaps the "rapid quivering" highly-bred war-horse, with waving mane, neck erect, and quivering muscles, exulting, challenging the battle with its loud neighings, and breathing forth fire, as it were, from its nostrils, may not inappropriately be said, in Oriental hyperbole, to be "clothed with thunder."

In 2 Kings 23 : 11, mention is made of certain horses which "the kings of Judah had given to the sun," and which Josiah took away; also of some "chariots of the sun," which he "burnt with fire." The association of chariot and horses with the sun, to denote his apparent progress in the heavens, is very ancient, and there can be no doubt that the myth of Phaethon, and his four fiery steeds which he was unable to control, had its source in the East, whence also originated the winged horse Pegasus of the Greeks. The horses of the Assyrians, as represented on the monuments, were generally richly caparisoned, with plumes on their heads, tassels of wool or silk, dyed many colors, suspended on the forehead or attached to parts of the harness. The early sculptures represent the horses as generally unprovided with saddles, the riders being seated on the naked back; but at a later period a kind of saddle-pad was used, but never stirrups. Assur-bani-pal in hunting used such a covering. The trappings were sometimes of gold and silver. Bits and bridles appear to be not very different from those in common use among ourselves.

Ass—Wild Ass.—The references to this animal, both in its domestic and wild state, are very numerous. Three distinct Hebrew names, chamôr, athôn, and 'ayir, occur to represent the domestic animal, and two, pere and 'ârôd, the wild ass. Chamôr appears to denote more particularly the male animal, and athôn the female. The young of the ass was usually denoted by the Hebrew 'ayir, according to Fürst, from a root signifying "to suck;" but the word was also applied to a young ass capable of bearing burdens. Jacob sent as a present to his brother Esau amongst other things "twenty she-asses and ten foals" (ayarîm). Gen. 32 : 15. See also the well-known verse, "Rejoice greatly, O daughter of Zion: . . . behold, thy king cometh unto thee, . . . lowly and riding upon an ass, even upon a colt the foal of an ass." Zech. 9 : 9. The word is also applied to the young of the wild ass, as in Job 11 : 12: "Vain man would be wise, though man be born like a wild ass's colt."

The domestic ass of the East is a very different animal from that of Western Europe in size, power of endurance, and spirit. Much attention is paid to the breed by crossing the finest specimens. They are much cared for, groomed, and well fed, attaining the height of thirteen or fourteen hands. They have often great vivacity, and exhibit both ingenuity and humor, sometimes decidedly mischievous. The Jews used the ass for riding, carrying burdens and baggage in war (2 Kings 7 : 7, 10), and for ploughing (Deut. 22 : 10); "Blessed are ye that sow beside all waters, that send forth thither the feet of the ox and the ass" (Isa. 32 : 20); "The oxen likewise and the young asses that ear the ground shall eat clean provender." Isa. 30 : 24. The word "ear," now obsolete, is derived from the Latin arare, "to plough," and has been introduced by our translators from the Anglo-Saxon. The ass was also not uncommonly used for turning a large kind of mill both by Eastern and Western nations. The Egyptians so employed the animal, and doubtless the Hebrews; for although in our version no definite mention is made of this duty, it is evidently implied in the expression of the Greek Testament in Matt. 18 : 6; Luke 17 : 2, "It were better for him that a millstone were hanged around his neck." And here it is worthy of note that (Matt. 18 : 6) our Lord referred to a large kind of millstone to distinguish it from that smaller kind used for grinding spices for the wound after circumcision, or for the delights of the Sabbath. We note our Lord's severity of condemnation against those who would "offend one of his little ones." He selects the largest millstone with which to sink such an offender in the depths of the sea. The same kind of mill, worked by an ass, was used by the ancient Romans.

The joining together under the same yoke of an ox and of an ass was forbidden by the law of Moses (see Deut. 22 : 10): "Thou shalt not plough with an ox and an ass together."

The ass, though not expressly mentioned as forbidden food to the Israelites, was of course so considered, being an animal that "did not divide the hoof and chew the cud." In extreme cases, as in the siege by Benhadad against Samaria, the flesh of the ass was eaten: "There was a great famine in Samaria: and, behold, they besieged it, until an ass's head was sold for fourscore pieces of silver." 2 Kings 6 : 25. Necessity knows no law. The head of the ass would be the worst part of the animal, and fourscore pieces of silver (or eighty shekels, equal to about $25) as the price thereof, will show what great straits the Jews were in.

The passage in Ezekiel (23 : 20), "Whose flesh is as the flesh of asses," clearly refers to the lustful properties.

Mention is made of a breed of white asses in Judg. 5 : 10: "Speak, ye that ride on white asses." The Hebrew word would, like the cognate Arabic, seem more especially to refer to a color of white mixed or tinged with red, and such animals would be esteemed of great beauty and value. The expression, therefore, "ye that sit on white asses," would thus denote the magistrates and nobles of the land. White animals—in cases where white was a departure from the general color of an animal—have long been, and still are, in great repute amongst Orientals. Note, for instance, the white elephant of the Burmese. Bagdad is celebrated for its breed of white asses.

Turning from biblical notices of the domestic ass, we come to those of the wild one. We find two distinct Hebrew words applied to wild asses, 'ârôd and pere, though there is much reason to believe that the names, being synonymous in etymology, are synonymous in signification. The name 'ârôd, from the root ârad, "to retreat timidly," "to flee swiftly," occurs only in Job 39 : 5, "Who hath sent out the pere free? or who hath loosed the bands of the 'ârôd?" and in its Aramaic form ('arâd), in Dan. 5 : 21, where it is said that Nebuchadnezzar's "dwelling was with the wild asses." The word pere, from pârâh, "to flee swiftly," occurs several times in the Hebrew Scriptures. In the account of the angel's promise to Hagar (Gen. 16 : 12), it is of Ishmael said, "He shall be a wild ('wild ass') man; his hand will be against every man, and every man's hand against him." Most of the allusions in the Bible refer to the wild and shy nature of the wild ass, its extraordinary swiftness, and its home amid barren and desolate deserts: "The forts and towers shall be for dens for ever—a joy of wild asses." Isa. 32 : 14. The prophet Jeremiah compares Israel to "a wild ass used to the wilderness, that snuffeth up the wind at her pleasure" (2 : 24); and in a very few forcible words draws a graphic picture of these animals during a season of drought: "The wild asses did stand in the high places, they snuffed up the wind like dragons (jackals); their eyes did fail because there was no grass." 14 : 6. The obstinate and refractory nature of the wild ass is referred to by the prophet Hosea: "For they are gone up to Assyria—a wild ass alone by himself." 8 : 9. The prophet complains of Ephraim seeking to form political alliances with idolatrous nations, such as Assyria, by offering presents, and compares his conduct to that of a wild ass roaming his own way, perverse and kicking at all restraint. But the fullest and most graphic account of the wild ass appears in the book of Job (39 : 5–8): "Who hath sent out the wild ass free? or who hath loosed the bands of the swift runner ('wild ass')? whose house I have made the wilderness, and the barren land his dwellings. He scorneth the multitude of the city, neither regardeth he the crying of the driver. The range of the mountains is his pasture, and he searcheth after every green thing."

Mule.—This well-known and useful animal, the cross between the ass and mare, is not mentioned as being used by the Hebrews before the time of David. The three following Hebrew words, pered, rekesh and yêmîm are rendered "mule" in our version, but the first name only denotes this animal. The meaning of the Hebrew word rekesh will be considered when we come to notice camels and dromedaries. The yêmîm of Gen. 36 : 24, "This was that Anah that found the mules (yêmîm) in the wilderness, as he fed the asses of Zibeon his father," denotes, there can scarcely be a doubt, "warm springs." The wilderness may be a part of Edom south of Moab, and here the warm springs rise in a tract south-east of the Dead Sea, and flow in Wady el-Achsa. The word is probably derived from yûm, "to shine," "to glow," "to be hot;" it does not occur elsewhere. Hot springs have long been celebrated for their real or supposed medicinal properties.

The mule became known to the Jews simultaneously with their employment of horses; the first mention of this animal occurs in the history of Absalom, "Then all the king's sons arose, and every man gat him up upon his mule and fled." 2 Sam. 13 : 29. It was when Absalom was riding upon a mule that he met with his death: "And Absalom rode upon a mule, and the mule went under the thick boughs of a great oak, and his head caught hold of the oak, and he was taken up between the heaven and the earth; and the mule that was under him went away." 2 Sam. 18 : 9. David appears to have been the first to introduce horses into the Israelitish army; after his victory over Hadadezer, king of Zobah, he reserved for his own use horses enough for one hundred chariots (2 Sam. 8 : 3, 4); and soon after we hear of mules. David himself rode on one; it was on one of his father's mules that Solomon rode from Jerusalem to Gihon when he was anointed king (1 Kings 1 : 33), and subsequently much attention appears to have been bestowed upon the breed and importation of mules. Solomon is said to have received, together with horses, vessels of silver and gold, armor, spices, etc., mules also from many nations as presents. 1 Kings 10 : 25. From Armenia, a country famous for its excellent horses, both mules and horses were exported to Tyre: "They of the house of Togarmah traded in thy fairs with chariot horses, cavalry horses and mules." Ezek. 27 : 14. Mules were not only used for riding, they were also employed as beasts of burden: "Naaman said, Shall there not then, I pray thee, be given to thy servant two mules' burden of earth?" 2 Kings 5 : 17. Provisions were also carried on the backs of mules (1 Chron. 12 : 40), and probably baggage in time of war. "At present mules are exclusively employed both by men of peace in riding, and for bearing burdens throughout Palestine. Though inferior to the horse in speed, their sure-footedness renders them more useful in riding over the hilly country, and their power of endurance is much greater. The Arabs never use them, but among the settled population and in the cities they are ridden by the mercantile and middle classes, horses being confined, for the most part, to the military and the Bedouin. For burdens mules are invaluable, as they carry a much heavier load than the camel, and on uneven ground can make a longer day's journey. They are much longer lived and hardier than horses, and consequently well-bred mules fetch in Syria a higher price than ordinary horses."

Behemoth.—Almost all authorities are now convinced that the animal denoted by the Hebrew word "behemoth" is none other than the hippopotamus. Behemoth has now been "the elephant," now "the mammoth," or "some extinct pachyderm," or "cattle" generally, as "the horse or wild ass, or wild bull," it being supposed that the account of behemoth in the book of Job (40 : 15–24) does not all belong to one and the same animal; that one part of the passage—vs. 15–20, for instance—describes "the elephant," the remaining verses having reference to the "hippopotamus."

In no other book in the Bible do we meet with so many and such grand pictures of animal life as in the book of Job. How sublime is the Hebrew poet in his representation of the war-horse on the field of battle! How graphic are those few words which portray the shyness and retired habits of the wild ass, swifter almost than horse or greyhound, and free as the very wind of heaven that sweeps the plains! Nor is the sacred poet less sublime in the picture which he draws of behemoth, the subject of our present notice.

The following is the description of the hippopotamus, as given in Job 40. We translate the passage thus:

"Behold now the river-horse, whom I made as well as thee; he eateth grass like cattle. Behold now his strength is in his loins, and his power in the muscles of his belly. He bendeth his tail like a cedar; the sinews of his thighs interweave one with another. His bones (leg-bones) are as tubes of copper, his solid bones (ribs) each one as a bar of forged iron. He is the chief of the works of God; his Maker hath furnished him with his scythe (tooth). For the hills bring him forth abundant food, and all the beasts of the field have their pastime there. Beneath the shady trees he lieth down in the covert of the reeds and fens. The shady trees cover him with their shadow, the willows of the stream surround him. Lo, the river swelleth proudly against him, yet he is not alarmed: he is securely confident, though a descending torrent bursts forth against his mouth. Will any one capture him when in his sight? Will any one bore his nostril in the snare?"

"He eateth grass like cattle." Here, no doubt, a contrast is intended. Though an amphibious creature, spending much of his time in the water like his neighbor the crocodile, yet his food is grass, which he seeks on the mountains; these, in some narrow parts of the Nile valley, approach within a few hundred yards of the river's bank. "He bendeth his tail like a cedar;" his strong stiff tail is as unbending as the trunk of a cedar-tree. "His Maker hath furnished him with his scythe" (tooth). This description exactly suits the hippopotamus. Both ancient and modern writers have been struck with the resemblance of the large teeth of this animal to sickles or scythes. Nicander speaks of the "horse which the Nile beyond fire-colored Sais nourishes, and which plies his destructive sickle against the corn-fields."

The chase of the hippopotamus was a favorite amusement of ancient Egyptian sportsmen in those parts of the upper country where it was generally found. "Though not so hostile to man as the voracious crocodile, it was looked upon as an enemy, which they willingly destroyed, since the ravages committed at night in the fields occasioned heavy losses to the farmer; and an additional inducement to kill it was the value attached to its hide, of which they made shields, whips, javelins, and helmets.

Swine, Wild Boar.—There is only one distinct allusion to the wild boar (Heb. chazir) in the Bible—viz., in Ps. 80 : 13: "The boar out of the wood doth waste it, and the wild beast of the field doth devour it." The psalmist is evidently writing at a time of great national calamity; he complains that the people are fed with "the bread of tears," and "are a strife unto their neighbors, so that their enemies laugh them to scorn." Calling to mind the former mercies and great things which God had done for his people—how he had brought them, as a transplanted vine, out of Egypt, had cast out the heathen before them, and increased them greatly, so that the vine had taken deep root and filled the land, until the hills were covered with the shadow of it—the psalmist now, in bitterness and heaviness of heart, complains that the hedges of the vineyard are broken down, "so that all they which pass by the way do pluck her; the boar out of the wood doth waste it, and the wild beast of the field doth devour it." In a country like Palestine, "a land of wheat, and barley, and vines," the damage which wild hogs would cause to crops and vineyards can hardly be imagined. "It is astonishing," says Mr. Hartley, in his Researches in Greece, "what havoc a wild boar is capable of effecting during a single night. What with eating and trampling under foot, he will destroy a vast quantity of grapes." "Not only does it devour any fruits within reach, but in a single night a party of wild boars will uproot a whole field, and destroy the husbandman's hope for the year."

The wild boar is a ferocious and dangerous animal when attacked or wounded, but never himself begins a fight unless provoked. With his long, sharp and strong tusks he is able to tear open the body of almost any enemy, though vastly his superior in size and strength. In solitary places and retired forests, among reedy marshes and thickets near rivers, he has his lair during the daytime, wandering forth at night in search of food. "They swarm in the thickets all along the banks of the Jordan, from Jericho to the Lake of Gennesaret. From these fastnesses, whence neither dog nor man can dislodge them, they make nightly forays upon the corn-fields and root-crops of the villagers, retiring at daybreak to their coverts. About Jericho they are especially destructive, and when the barley-crop is ripening, the husbandmen have to keep nightly watch to drive them away. Their presence can always be detected by the crashing noise they make in forcing their way through the thickets, when the men fire, guided by the sound."

These animals are nowhere so abundant as among the valleys of Moab and Gilead. "The many streams, of which the Jabbok and the Arnon are the most important, which furrow that long chain of mountains, and descend to the Jordan or Dead Sea, are for the most part thickly shaded by a rich fringe of oleander. Among them, close to the never-failing water, the wild boar multiplies rapidly. Were the country east of Jordan more cultivated, the wild boars would be a perfect pest until their numbers had been reduced. Even under Hermon, in the vineyard district, we heard grievous lamentations of the damage done to the vines by the boars, which devour not only the grapes, but also munch up the bearing shoots."

Swine are always spoken of in the Old and New Testament with horror and disgust. "He that offereth an oblation, as if he offered swine's blood." Isa. 66 : 3. "They that sanctify themselves, ... eating swine's flesh, and the abomination, and the mouse, shall be consumed together." v. 17. "As a jewel of gold in a swine's snout, so is a fair woman which is without discretion." Prov. 11 : 22. "Neither cast ye your pearls before swine." Matt. 7 : 6. "But it is happened unto them according to the true proverb, The dog is turned to his own vomit again; and the sow that was washed to her wallowing in the mire." 2 Peter 2 : 22. In the time of our Lord some of the people of Palestine, it appears, kept large herds of swine, as the Gergesenes. Matt. 8 : 28. The prodigal son went and joined himself to a citizen of a far country; "and he sent him into his fields to feed swine: and he would fain have filled his belly with the husks that the swine did eat; and no man gave unto him." Luke 15:15, 16.

Several reasons appear to have combined to render the pig hateful in the eyes of the ancient Jews; such as its dirty habits, the supposed unwholesomeness of its flesh, its occasional carnivorous ferocity, and, above all, its association with many forms of paganism. "The unclean habits of the swine struck the Hebrews so strongly that they gave rise to the saying, 'The snout of the pig resembles ambulant dirt.' Swine were considered as the fit habitations of 'unclean spirits or devils' driven out of possessed persons; a man wallowing in the last and most disgusting stage of drunkenness was compared with the swine. Pork was pronounced detestable by Mohammed; it was, and is still, abhorred by the Druses, by the Christian Copts—following, probably, the example of their Egyptian ancestors—though they eat the wild boar, by the Arabs and Turks, and most of the South American tribes."

Yet, on the other hand, the flesh of the pig was by some nations held in the greatest esteem as an article of diet. Every one is familiar with the fact that the ancient Greeks and Romans bred pigs largely and ate the flesh with gusto. "The Greeks," as Dr. Kalisch says, "heard without surprise of Homer's divine swineherd, although the transformation of Ulysses' friends into groveling swine was to them equally intelligible. The Romans paid the utmost attention to the rearing of pigs; among them pork was employed medicinally for very numerous purposes; it was dressed in a variety of ways as a delicious dainty, not only with care, but so expensively that sumptuary laws were enacted to check the extravagance. 'There is no animal,' says Pliny, 'that affords a greater variety to the palate of the epicure; all the others have their own peculiar flavor, but the flesh of the pig has nearly fifty different flavors. It was regarded with repugnance by the Egyptian priests, who contended that 'it engenders many superfluous humors.' Maimonides declared that 'pork is too juicy and too rich to be recommended as food;' and he enlarged this observation into the general rule that "all animals forbidden by the Lord are unwholesome nutriment,' whereas ruminants, because thoroughly masticating their food, and perfectly separating the good from the deleterious humors, yield healthful meat. This view occurs in many anterior and subsequent writers, variously, and often strangely, modified. Pork was pronounced injurious, not only to the health of the body, but to the vigor and clearness of the mind."

Camel, Dromedary.—Camels and llamas are placed by zoologists among the Tylopoda, or "cushion-footed" section, which group, indeed, these animals alone form. The llamas belong entirely to the New World, so with them we have no concern here. There are two species of camel, the Arabian or one-humped, and the Bactrian or two-humped, camel. The former is spread from Arabia into all the North of Africa, Syria, Persia; the latter, originally from Central Asia, descends much less to the south than the one-humped animal; it is the only one employed in Turkestan, Thibet and China, and sometimes is led as far north as Lake Baikal. The one-humped camel is the animal more especially known to and employed by the Jews, and alluded to so very frequently in the Bible, though perhaps the Bactrian species was known to the Jews later on in their history, when they came in contact with the Assyrians, who received it sometimes as tribute. The camel has been domesticated from the earliest times, and there is no satisfactory evidence of its existence in an originally wild state at any period. But it is probable that these so-called wild camels, like the wild horses of the American prairies, have descended from animals that had escaped from man's control. In America the llamas represent the camels of the Old World; but the true camels were introduced into Spanish America after its conquest by the Spaniards, they having received the animals from the Moors.

The camel is perhaps the most valuable of all animals to man in the East, being the only creature able to exist on scanty food and water for days together, as it traverses arid deserts and parched sandy plains. With feet admirably formed for journeying over dry and loose sandy soil; with a hump of fat ready on emergencies to supply it with carbon, when even the prickly thorns and mimosas of the burning desert cease to afford food; with nostrils which can close, valve-like, when the sandy storm fills the air; with a stomach so organized as to retain water in its cells, with which to quench its thirst "in barren and dry lands where no water is," the camel well deserves the significant title of the "ship of the desert." The power of the camel to preserve water untainted for some time in its stomach has by some writers been denied. There seems, however, to be no doubt that the power exists, and that in severe emergencies camels have been killed and the water obtained from one of the compartments of the stomach drunk by men perishing from thirst.

The humps on the camel's back are simply lumps of fat. There seems to be no doubt that they serve for supplying nourishment to the animal when exposed to privation of food; at any rate, under such circumstances the lumps are observed to diminish, being no doubt absorbed in the system; just as a fat man will live longer than a lean one without food, or a salmon that has been long without food in fresh water will be fed by the absorption of the fatty matter of its abdomen into the general system of the fish. The camel's hump is considered a great delicacy.

Every one who has seen a camel must have noticed some remarkable callosities or hard parts on those portions of the body and limbs which frequently come in contact with the ground. These are found on the breast and knees. They enable the animal to support its weight and that of its burden without injuring the skin. Their home is the desert, and they were made, in the wisdom of the Creator, to be the carriers of the desert. The coarse and prickly shrubs of the wastes are to them most delicious food, and even of them they eat but little. So few are the wants of their nature that their power of going without food as well as without water is wonderful. They never appear to tire, but commonly march as freshly at eventide as in the morning. If they once begin to fail, they soon lie down and die. As the carriers of the East, the "ships of the desert," another important quality of the camel is their sure-footedness. They travel with much ease and safety up and down the most rugged mountain-passes. They do not choose their way with the like sagacity as the mule, or even as the horse, but they tread much more surely and safely, and never either slip or stumble. . . . The sounds by which the Arabs govern their camels are very few and very guttural. The signal for kneeling is not unlike a gentle snore, and is made by throwing the breath strongly against the palate, but not through the nose. That for stopping is a sort of guttural clucking.

Mention is first made of camels in Gen. 12:16 among the presents which Pharaoh gave to Abraham when he was in Egypt; this shows that these animals were early known to the ancient Egyptians, although no figure of the camel has at present been met with in paintings or hieroglyphics, either in domestic scenes or in subjects relating to religion. The camels of the Egyptians suffered from the same "grievous murrain" which is said to have attacked their horses, asses, oxen and sheep. Ex. 9:3. The Ishmaelites carried on a traffic with the Egyptians, and used camels to carry their spices, balm and myrrh. Gen. 37:25. The Ethiopians had "camels in abundance" (2 Chron. 14:15); the Midianites and the Amalekites possessed immense numbers of these animals, "as the sand of the sea-side for multitude." Judg. 7:12. Job had three thousand camels before his losses, and six thousand afterward. Job 1:3; 42:12. We have testimony to the great number of camels which the Bible states as belonging either to tribes or private individuals. Thus he says, "Some of those who live in the upper parts of Asia possess as many as three thousand camels."

Camels were most numerous in the regions east and south of Canaan, and are so to this day. "The Reubenites, in their wars with the Hagarites, the Arabs of the Western Belka, took of their camels fifty thousand (1 Chron. 5:21); and the powerful tribe of the Beni Sakh'r, who now inhabit that region, boast of 100,000 camels." As a beast of burden generally there are numerous references to the camel (see Gen. 37:25; 1 Kings 10:2; 2 Kings 8:9); it was also used for riding. Rebekah rode on one when she met Isaac. Gen. 24:61–64. Four hundred Amalekites rode on camels and escaped destruction by David's army. 1 Sam. 30:17. In this passage we notice these animals were employed in war; see also Isa. 21:7, where, however, "a chariot of asses," "a chariot of camels," are faulty translations; the words mean either "teams of asses and teams of camels," or, perhaps, better still, "a troop of asses," "a troop of camels," as Mr. Cheyne translates the words. The employment of camels in wars is mentioned by various authors, and the monuments from Babylon and Assyria bear similar witness. When Cyrus made war against Crœsus, he adopted a device which a certain Mede suggested to him. He brought together all the camels that had come in the train of his army to carry provisions and baggage, and took off their loads and mounted riders dressed as horsemen upon them. These were to be put in the forefront of the army against Crœsus' cavalry, foot-soldiers next, and horses last. Cyrus conjectured that his enemy's horses would take flight at the sight of the camels. The two armies joined battle, and the Lydian war-horses, seeing and smelling the camels, turned round and fled. The result was that notwithstanding the bold resistance of the Lydians, who, leaping from their terrified steeds, fought hand to hand on foot with determined bravery, the Lydian army was driven within the walls of Sardis.

The dromedary, which is merely a finer breed of Arabian camel, used when despatch is necessary, is generally supposed to be intended by the Hebrew word kirkârah, occurring only in its plural form, kirkârôth, in Isa. 66:20: "They shall bring all your brethren for an offering unto the Lord out of all nations upon horses, and in chariots, and in litters, and upon mules, and upon 'swift beasts.'" It is supposed the name is derived from a root signifying "to run swiftly;" hence a "dromedary." A word of doubtful meaning, apparently in connection with two other Hebrew words, occurs in the book of Esther. 8:10. The dromedary, which in Arabia is called the heirie, and in the Sahara the maharik, is capable of going at the rate of eight or ten miles an hour for several hours together, and will even accomplish as much as one hundred to one hundred and twenty miles during the twenty-four hours. It is taller and longer in the leg than the other, and differs from the camel as the race-horse does from the wagon-horse. It is less endurant of change of temperature, and cannot bear the cold of the coast. The coarser breed, or baggage camel, is not a swift animal.

By the Jews the camel was not used as food, as an animal which "did not divide the hoof" to the same extent as the ox, sheep and goat. Lev. 11:4. The Persians eat the flesh of the camel, and the Mohammedans are allowed to do so by the Koran. All Eastern nations, however, do not eat the flesh of the camel. The milk of the camel is much esteemed, and is excellent. When fresh it is "rich and strong but not very sweet. It is usually curdled and drunk sour, in which state it is both nourishing and refreshing, and to many a traveling Arab supplies both food and drink. Butter and cheese are made from it, the new milk being churned for the former by being poured into a leathern bottle and then beaten with a stick. The cheese is usually eaten fresh, and is very salt." We read in the history of Jacob that he presented his brother Esau with thirty milch camels, the Jews doubtless using the milk, though they avoided the flesh.

John the Baptist wore a garment made of camel's hair (Matt. 3:4; Mark 1:6), and some have supposed that Elijah "was clad in a dress of the same stuff." In answer to the question that Ahaziah put to the messengers whom he had sent to Baal-zebub, "What manner of man was he which came up to meet you?" they said, "He was an hairy man, and girt with a girdle of leather about his loins." 2 Kings 1:7, 8. Expositors are generally agreed that the expression "hairy man" has not reference to the hair of the body, but to some hairy garment of camel's or goat's skin.

On two occasions Jesus employed proverbs relating to the camel: "It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God" (Matt. 19:24); "Ye blind guides, which strain at a gnat, and swallow a camel." Matt. 23:24. We have no doubt that the camel is denoted in both passages. In the first the objection has been made that the metaphor of an animal passing through a needle's eye is a bad one, and that the Greek word ought to be read a "cable," and then the metaphor is exact. Another explanation is that there is a small gate at Hebron through which a camel when deprived of its load can with difficulty be dragged, and that this is called the "Needle's Eye." Lord Nugent says: "Entering Hebron, we were proceeding through a double gateway such as is seen in so many of the old Eastern cities, even in some of the modern—one wide-arched road and another narrow one by the side, through the latter of which persons on foot generally pass to avoid the chance of being jostled or crushed by the beasts of burden coming through the main gateway. We met a caravan of loaded camels thronging this passage. The drivers cried out to my two companions and myself, desiring us to betake ourselves for safety to the gate with the smaller arch, calling it the hole or eye of the needle. If, as on inquiry since I am inclined to believe, the name is applied not to this gate in Hebron only, but generally in cities where there is a footway entrance by the side of the larger one, it may perhaps give an easy or simple solution of what in the text (Mark 20: 25) has appeared to some to be a strained metaphor, whereas that of the entrance gate, low and narrow, through which the sumpter-camel cannot be made to pass unless with great difficulty, and stripped of all the encumbrance of his load, his trappings and his merchandise, may seem to illustrate more clearly the foregoing verse, 'How hardly shall they that have riches enter into the kingdom of God!"

That the disciples understood the words of the Saviour in their literal sense seems clear from their expression of astonishment, "Who then can be saved?" The whole purport of our Lord's words is simply that a rich man who has many temptations to trust in riches cannot enter the kingdom of heaven without divine grace and assistance, a statement which few will be inclined to dispute. With respect to the other proverbial expression, "Straining at a gnat and swallowing a camel," it should be noted that the Greek words would be better rendered, "Straining out a gnat"—that is, straining wine lest little creatures as gnats should be swallowed.

Cattle.—We now come to the Pecora division of the "eventoed" Ungulates, and shall have to consider cattle, sheep, goats and antelopes, so far as they have directly or indirectly a biblical interest. There was no animal that was held in higher esteem by the Jews than the ox; upon this useful animal devolved all the ordinary operations of farming. Oxen were used for ploughing. Deut. 22 : 10; 1 Sam. 14 : 14. "Elisha the son of Shaphat was ploughing with twelve yoke of oxen before him, and he with the twelfth," when "Elijah passed by him, and cast his mantle upon him." 1 Kings 19 : 19. The oxen belonging to Job were ploughing when "the Sabeans fell upon them and took them away." Job 1 : 14, 15. Oxen trod out the corn, and there was a special command not to "muzzle the ox when he treadeth out the corn." Deut. 25 : 4. The prophet Hosea says, "Ephraim is an heifer that is taught, and loveth to tread out the corn." 10 : 11. Oxen were employed for draught purposes, when they were generally yoked in pairs. "And they brought their offerings before the Lord, six covered wagons, and twelve oxen." Num. 7 : 3. "Now therefore make a new cart, and take two milch kine, on which there hath come no yoke, and tie the kine to the cart." 1 Sam. 6 : 7. Sometimes cattle were used as beasts of burden: "They brought bread on asses, and on camels, and on mules, and on oxen" (1 Chron. 12 : 40); their flesh was eaten, they supplied butter and milk, and were much used in the sacrifices.

The ancient Jews generally pastured their cattle at large in the open country, or in the wooded districts, and the animals would roam about on the hills and plains for a great part of the year, many of them in a half-wild state, and often dangerous. Hence we have the laws with regard to "goring:" "If an ox gore a man or a woman, that they die: then the ox shall be surely stoned, and his flesh shall not be eaten. But if the ox were wont to push with his horns in times past, and it hath been testified to his owner, and he hath not kept him in, but that he hath killed a man or a woman; the ox shall be stoned, and his owner also shall be put to death." Ex. 21 : 28, 29. The Psalmist complains of the trouble his enemies cause him, and compares them to wild bulls: "Many bulls have compassed me: the strong ones of Bashan have beset me round" (Ps. 22 : 12)—words which very graphically describe half-wild cattle gathering together in a circle around some object which excites their suspicion or alarm. At this day the bulls of Palestine frequently become wild. The cattle in Gilead and in the wilderness will vigorously defend themselves against the attacks of wolves, hyænas and other wild beasts by forming themselves into a circle, with the cows and calves behind them. Though as a general rule the cattle were pastured in the plains, forests and hills of the country, they were sometimes stall fed. "Ten fat oxen and twenty oxen out of the pastures." 1 Kings 4 : 23; Heb. 5 : 3. The passage in Prov. 15 : 17 is more explicit: "Better is a dinner of herbs where love is, than a stalled ox and hatred therewith." Compare also Prov. 14 : 4: "Where no oxen are, the crib is clean;" and perhaps Amos, who was himself a herdsman, is more exact still, for the Hebrew word for "stall" which he uses shows that the cattle were "tied up" and fed. Speaking of the wantonness and self-indulgence of the people of Israel, the prophet says (6 : 4): "They lie upon beds of ivory . . . and eat the lambs out of the flock, and the calves out of the midst of the stall." The ancient Egyptians kept large herds of cattle of different breeds, of which three principal distinctions are most deserving of notice, the short, the long-horned cattle and the Indian or humped ox.

At present horned cattle are by no means universally spread over Palestine. They are only suited to districts where the water is easily accessible, and where fresh pasture can be obtained throughout the year. In the Sinaitic peninsula, even in those parts where there are not only camels, but horses, sheep and goats, neat cattle are unknown. Then, in the southern wilderness of Judah, on the downs and bare prairies to the south and east of Beer-sheba, and in all the plain of Philistia, they are very numerous, and their appearance is very striking to the traveler who has been for some time in the hill country of Hebron and the eastern wilderness adjoining the Dead Sea, where they are never seen. In the richer parts of Northern Syria and near Damascus these large cattle are more common. In the wild countries east of Jordan, Southern Bashan, Gilead and Moab, neat cattle form the principal wealth of the Arabs and of the few settled villagers, until we reach the desert itself. The breed is the same as that of Southern Judea, but of larger size, and generally black. Their milk and butter is very rich and abundant, for the forests preserve the verdure of the glades throughout the year, so that the milch-kine do not go dry, as in the south. There is no trace of the Indian humped cattle in Palestine.

The buffalo, so much used as a beast of draught in the East and West, was unknown to the Jews. Originally from India, it was introduced into Egypt, Greece and Italy, as Cuvier says, during the Middle Ages. The ancient Greeks and Romans make no mention of the buffalo. The animal which in the Ghor of Jordan valley takes the place of the ox is the bhainsa or tame buffalo of India. It is not known when it was introduced into Palestine. The wild buffalo of India, called the arnee, "is fully one-third larger than the largest tame breeds, measuring ten and a half feet from snout to vent, and six or six and a half feet high at the shoulders, and is of such power and vigor as by his charge frequently to prostrate a well-sized elephant." The arna, like the domestic buffalo, loves to wallow in swampy and muddy marshes, where it often lies buried up to the head. Mr. Hodgson says, "There is no animal upon which ages of domesticity have made so small an impression as upon the buffalo, the tame being still most clearly referable to the wild ones at present frequenting all the great swampy jungles of India. The domestic buffalo of the Jordan valley is described as "a huge ungainly creature, very ill-tempered, and frequently dangerous; always black, and with a rough short coat, which is often bare in places."

Amongst the ancient Egyptians the bull was sacred in an especial degree to Osiris, under the form of Apis, the sacred bull of Memphis, or under that of a human figure with a bull's head. The bull and cow were both considered sacred by the Egyptians.

From the people's long residence in Egypt, it was likely that the Jews should to some extent be inclined to adopt the religious practices of those amongst whom they sojourned. Accordingly we find that the bull-god of Egypt was set up by Aaron in the wilderness, as a symbol of Jehovah, under the figure of a golden calf (Ex. 32 : 4, 5); so, too, Jeroboam set up two golden calves at Dan and Bethel. 1 Kings 12 : 28.

It was probably on account of the great value of cattle and their pre-eminent importance that the ox was considered amongst animals the noblest sacrifice, not only by the Jews, but by many other nations. The ox ought to be held in higher esteem than other cattle, because it is the most hard-working companion of man. The Phœnicians and Carthaginians, the Egyptians, as we have seen, and the Persians, paid equal honor to this animal. They offered it on solemn opportunities to their principal deities, to Zeus, to Isis and Osiris, to Baal and the sun. "It formed the burnt-offering of the whole Jewish nation on the days of the new moon and on high festivals (Num. 28 : 11, 19, 27, etc.), and for inadvertent transgressions (Num. 15 : 24); of the chiefs of the people at the consecration of the tabernacle (Num. 8 : 12, etc.); of the Levites at their initiation (Num. 8 : 12); and of private individuals on all momentous emergencies. Lev. 1 : 3, etc. It was the sin-offering for the whole theocratic community, or for its representative, the high priest (Lev. 4 : 3, 14); for the priests at the inauguration in their solemn functions (Ex. 29 : 14, 36; Lev. 8 : 14–17); and for the high priest when, on the day of atonement, he implored the pardon of God for his sins and those of his house (Lev. 16 : 3, 6, 11); while Aaron, when actually entering upon his pontifical duties, offered a young calf, "a calf, son of the herd." It was even chosen for thank-offerings in cases of peculiar joyfulness.

The origin of our present breeds of domestic cattle has been a subject which has given rise to much difference of opinion. Cuvier and many other naturalists are inclined to believe that our domestic animals are the degenerate descendants of the great urus. When the Romans first penetrated the wilds of Western Europe, they found two large kinds of wild oxen, the one called bison, the other urus; this latter sub-genus has clearly a nearer affinity to the domestic ox than the former, but it is very doubtful whether it is the parent of our domestic race.

Wild Cattle.—Leaving the domestic cattle, we come to the wild cattle of Palestine that appear to have roamed among the forests and hills of the country in biblical times. In Deut. 14 : 5 and Isa. 51 : 20, where the Hebrew words teô or tô are represented by "wild ox" and "wild bull" respectively, it is probable that the animal denoted by the original word is rather some species of antelope than a bovine animal. There is another Hebrew word of frequent occurrence in the Bible, viz.: Rĕĕm, rĕeĭm or reim, which our translators always translate "unicorn," but which there can be no doubt means "wild bull."

All readers will remember the beautiful description of the reem in the book of Job. Now let us compare it with the account Cæsar gives of the fierce urus which in his time frequented the great Hercynian forest: "These uri are scarcely less than elephants in size, but in their nature, color and forms are bulls. Great is their strength and great their speed, nor do they spare man or beast when they once have caught sight of him. The hunters are most careful to kill those which they take in pitfalls, while the young men exercise themselves by this sort of hunting, and grow hardened by the toil. Those of them who kill most receive great praise when they exhibit in public the horns as trophies of their success. These uri, however, even when they are young, cannot be habituated to man and made tractable. The size and shape of their horns are very different from those of our oxen."

The indomitable nature ascribed to these wild uri exactly agrees with the description of the reem as given in chap. 39 of the book of Job, and the apparently implied contrast which is made between the domestic ox and the wild urus finds an analogue in the above extract from Cæsar. The same remark may be made with respect to the great size and strength of the scriptural reem when contrasted with the domestic oxen of Palestine, the ancient inhabitants of which land would naturally draw the same comparison between their domestic cattle and the mighty reem, as Cæsar's legions did between their cattle and the great Hercynian wild bulls, whose bones are now occasionally found, together with those of the elephant, hyæna, etc., in the Tertiary deposits of this country.

The bison has continued down to this day; it is still to be found in the forests of Lithuania, Moldavia and the Caucasus. It has never been domesticated, but herds are protected to the number of about eight hundred, in the forest of Bialowieza, under the direction of the emperor of Russia. Cæsar and Pliny say that the large horns of the urus were anxiously sought after for making into cups to be used at splendid entertainments or for ornaments, the tips being bound with silver. The ancient monarchs of Assyria also prized the horns of wild cattle for ornaments. Such sentences as the following occur on the monuments: "Silver, gold, lead, copper, iron, horns of wild oxen, without number I received them."

Sheep.—The following Hebrew words occur as the names of this useful animal: Tsōn, a collective noun to express a "flock of sheep or goats;" seh, "a single sheep or goat;" ayil, "a ram," so called from its strength, according to some authorities (others connect the word with a root having the sense of twisting or rolling, in allusion to the twisted horns of the ram); rāchēl, "a ewe;" kebes or kibsah, "a lamb," "yearling sheep," or "one from the first to the third year;" tāleh, "a young lamb." Compare 1 Sam. 7 : 9, teleh chālāb, "a suckling lamb;" in Arabic the word means any young animal, especially "a young gazelle;" tala, in Ethiopic, means "a kid;" the Syriac taleetha, "a young girl;" hence our Lord's words to the daughter of Jairus, Talitha cumi, "Young girl, arise!" Mark 5 : 41.

We give the principal biblical allusions to these well-known domestic animals which from the earliest periods of civilization have contributed so abundantly to the wants of mankind. Next in value and importance to cattle came sheep in the estimation of the ancient Hebrews. The ram, being the type of strength and boldness, was held in especial honor in the sacrifices: "It was presented as a holocaust or a thank-offering by the whole people (Lev. 9 : 4, 18; 16 : 5; Num. 28 : 11–14) or its chiefs (Num. 6 : 14, 17; 7 : 15, 21, 27, etc.); by the high priest or an ordinary priest (Lev. 8 : 18, 22; 9 : 2; 16 : 3), and by the God-devoted Nazarite (Num. 6 : 14), but never by a common Hebrew, and as it was primitively employed for a medium of exchange and barter it was the ordinary animal for the trespass-offering instituted to expiate violation of the rights of property. Lev. 5 : 15, 18; 19 : 21; Num. 5 : 8. The lamb (kebes), the usual animal food of Eastern tribes, was regularly employed for the daily public holocausts (Ex. 29 : 38–42; Num. 28 : 3–8), presented on festivals in increased numbers, and accompanied by bullocks and rams (Num. 28 : 11, 19, 27); and very often for private burnt and thank-offerings, for sin, trespass, and purification offerings. Lev. 1 : 10; 3 : 7; 4 : 32; 5 : 6; 12 : 6–8; 14 : 10; Num. 12 : 14. The gradation in the choice of the victims is plainly manifest from the precepts as to sin offerings: the high priest of the whole community required a bullock; a chief of the people a male kid of the goats or a female lamb. A lamb was not allowed to be sacrificed until it was eight days old. The same prohibition applied to cattle and goats. See Lev. 22 : 27. Neither was it lawful to kill cow and calf or ewe and lamb together in one day. v. 28.

Sheep as food were usually slaughtered only on great occasions and special festivities, and the Jews did not indulge in flesh meat at their ordinary meals, but like the Orientals at the present day, they always welcomed a friend or a stranger as guest with the kid or the lamb. There are not many allusions to sheep as used for food; but compare 1 Sam 25 : 18; 1 Kings 1 : 19; 4 : 23; Ps. 44 : 11; 2 Sam. 12 : 4; Amos 6 : 4.

The wool of the sheep is another most important product of the animal, and was much prized by the Hebrews. "Woollen garments" are mentioned in Lev. 13 : 47. See also Deut. 22 : 11, where it is ordered that no garment made of wool and linen should be worn. Job appeals to his kindness in having constantly clothed the poor in distress: "If I have seen any perish for want of clothing, or any poor without covering; if his loins have not blessed me, and if he were not warmed with the fleece of my sheep; then let mine arm fall," etc. Job 31 : 19, 20, 22. In the Proverbs we read, "Be thou diligent to know the state of thy flocks, and look well to thy herds. . . . The sheep are for thy clothing." 27 : 23, 26. The virtuous woman "seeketh wool and flax, and worketh willingly with her hands." 31 : 13. Mesha, king of Moab (whose record of his own exploits was a few years ago discovered in that land), was a great sheep-master, and had been in the habit of paying a large tribute of sheep and "rams with the wool" to some of the kings of Israel. 2 Kings 3 : 4. There is a very fine soft wool grown in the Belka and in Moab, and the fleeces of some of the short-wooled Lebanon sheep are choice, while the middle districts of Palestine produce a long-wooled but rather coarse fleece. The art of dyeing wool and other materials was understood by the Hebrews. The Tyrians were celebrated throughout the world for their purple and scarlet dyes. "Rams' skins dyed red" were used as one of the coverings for the tabernacle. Ex. 25 : 5.

Immense numbers of sheep were reared in Palestine in biblical times, as is the case to this day in some portions of the country. The patriarchs were very rich in cattle and sheep. Job possessed 7000 before and 14,000 after his troubles. The Reubenites conquered the Hagarites, and took from them 250,000 sheep. See 1 Chron. 5 : 21. Mesha, king of Moab, a country eminently adapted for sheep pasturing, possessed 100,000 sheep of the pasture, and 100,000 "rams with the wool." See 2 Kings 3 : 4. Tristram sat under the tent of a Beni Sakk'r sheikh, who pastured his sheep in the ancient plains of Moab, and boasted of counting 30,000 in his flock.

In the time of Asa the people gathered themselves together at Jerusalem to a great sacrifice, at which 7000 sheep were offered at one time. 2 Chron. 15 : 11. "Hezekiah, king of Judah, did give to the congregation a thousand bullocks and seven thousand sheep, and the princes gave to the congregation a thousand bullocks and ten thousand sheep." 2 Chron. 30 : 24. Solomon's consumption of sheep for the royal household is said to have been one hundred daily, besides numbers of other animals (1 Kings 4 : 23), while at the feast of the dedication of the temple sheep and oxen were sacrificed "that could not be told nor numbered for multitude." 1 Kings 8 : 5.

We read in Ezekiel that sheep and goats were imported into Tyre from Arabia. "Arabia, and all the princes of Kedar, they occupied (traded) with thee in sheep of the pastures (kārīm), rams and he-goats." 27 : 21. The prophet Isaiah mentions sheep of Arabia, which in some parts abounded in sheep and cattle: "All the flocks of Kedar shall be gathered together unto thee, the rams of Nebaioth shall minister unto thee." 60 : 7. In 2 Chron. 17 : 11 we read that the Arabians brought Jehoshaphat presents of flocks of sheep, "seven thousand and seven hundred rams, and seven thousand and seven hundred he-goats." Kedar and Nebaioth are mentioned as two sons of Ishmael that settled in Arabia. Gen. 25 : 13. In Isaiah they will represent two nomad pastoral tribes.

Shepherds in Palestine and other parts of the East do not drive their sheep, but always lead them without the aid of a dog. They also give names to their sheep, just as in this country we do to our cattle. This illustrates our Lord's parable of the good shepherd: "He that entereth not by the door into the sheepfold, but climbeth up some other way, the same is a thief and a robber; but he that entereth in by the door is the shepherd of the sheep. To him the porter openeth, and the sheep hear his voice; and he calleth his own sheep by name, and leadeth them out. And when he putteth forth his own sheep, he goeth before them, and the sheep follow him: for they know his voice. And a stranger will they not follow, but will flee from him: for they know not the voice of strangers." John 10 : 1–5. The old rams are often decorated with bells, and share the shepherd's confidence in a special degree. On the hillside he searches out the choicest morsels of herbage, and calls the sheep to partake of them. They have the attachment of a dog to their master. And when the thief and the robber come, the faithful shepherd has often to put his life in his hand to defend his flock. More than one case has occurred in which he had literally to lay it down in the contest. A poor faithful fellow between Tiberias and Tabor, instead of fleeing, actually fought three Bedawin robbers until he was hacked to pieces with their khanjars, and died among the sheep he was defending. All this beautifully and very strikingly illustrates the biblical allusions, "Thou leddest thy people like a flock by the hand of Moses and Aaron." "Give ear, O Shepherd of Israel, thou that leadest Joseph like a flock." Ps. 77 : 20 and 80 : 1. "I am the good Shepherd, and know my sheep, and am known of mine." John 10 : 14. "The thief cometh not, but for to steal, and to kill, and to destroy." v. 10. "I am the good Shepherd: the good Shepherd giveth his life for the sheep." v. 11.

Not only in Palestine was it the custom to give names to the sheep, it was also usual in Greece. "Passing by a flock of sheep, I asked the shepherd to call one of his sheep. He did so, and it instantly left its pasturage and companions, and ran up to the hand of the shepherd with signs of pleasure and with a prompt obedience."

Owing to the multitude of jackals and wolves, the shepherds are obliged to keep watch over their flocks by night. Thus the shepherds of Bethlehem were "abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night," when the angel of the Lord came and announced to them the "good tidings of great joy to all people." Luke 2 : 8, etc. The same practice continues to this day.

In our own country sheep do not as a general rule require water to drink, the succulent nature of their food being sufficient to prevent thirst; still, in droughty seasons, when the herbage is scorched from great and prolonged heat, sheep will drink with avidity. In the East watering the flocks is a necessary and common operation. When Jacob met his cousin Rachel for the first time in his eventful history, it was at the well-side. Jacob looked, "and behold a well in the field, and, lo, there were three flocks of sheep lying by it; for out of that well they watered the flocks: and a great stone was upon the well's mouth. And thither were all the flocks gathered: and they rolled the stone from the well's mouth, and watered the sheep, and put the stone again upon the well's mouth in his place." Gen. 29 : 2, 3. When Moses fled from Egypt into Midian, he sat down by a well there: "Now the priest of Midian had seven daughters: and they came and drew water, and filled the troughs to water their father's flock. And the shepherds came and drove them away: but Moses stood up and helped them, and watered their flock."

There appear to be two breeds of sheep in Palestine, each of them merely a variety of the common sheep of this country; one, which occurs in the northern hills, is said to be "not unlike the merino, with short, fine wool, well shaped, short and fine legs."

Sheep are subject to almost endless variations. The ordinary sheep of Palestine, which is the sheep of the southern parts of the country, and which probably was the sheep of the land in biblical times, is the fat-tailed sheep of the East.

Goats.—Next in importance and value to oxen and sheep come goats in the estimation of the ancient Hebrews. Numerous are the allusions in the Bible to the domestic animal, while references to the wild goat as inhabiting the rocks and the high hills of Palestine occasionally occur.

Goats were used as offerings in the sacrifices; their milk was, and still is, an important item of food: "Thou shalt have goats' milk enough for thy food, for the food of thy household, and for the maintenance of thy maidens." Prov. 27 : 27. The milk is used both in a fresh and curdled state, and is made into butter and cheese. Goats' hair was employed as a woven material for the curtains of the tabernacle (Ex. 26 : 7; 36 : 14), and, as we have seen, for a covering for a bolster, or, as some think, for a counterpane. Their flesh, especially that of the kid, was highly prized as food. "Go now to the flock," Rebekah said to Jacob, "and fetch me from thence two good kids of the goats, and I will make them savory meat for thy father, such as he loveth." Gen. 27 : 9. "Gideon went in and made ready a kid" on the occasion of an angel's visit (Judg. 6 : 19), and Manoah said to the angel that appeared to him, "I pray thee, let us detain thee until we shall have made ready a kid for thee." Gen. 13 : 15.

Lambs are not so often killed for food as kids; they are kept for the sake of the wool, while calves were considered too expensive a luxury except on some festive occasion. Hence we see the full force of the complaint which the prodigal's elder brother made to his father: "Thou never gavest me (even) a kid, that I might make merry with my friends: but as soon as this thy son was come . . . thou hast killed for him the fatted calf." Luke 15 : 29, 30. The ancient Jews kept large quantities of goats as well as sheep, and the present inhabitants of Palestine still rear a great number in some districts. "Goats are only adapted for hilly countries or pastures where there is much brushwood, and in such districts they supersede in Palestine the horned cattle of the plains."

The goat of Syria is a well-marked variety, with long, thick pendant ears often a foot long. The prophet Amos (3 : 12) speaks of a shepherd "taking out of the mouth of the lion two legs, or a piece of an ear." The Syrian goat is larger than the common goat, and has long black hair, thick recurved horns, but there is another variety, which is seen only in the North of Palestine, the mohair goat, which has long silky hair. The varieties of the breeds of goats are perhaps as numerous as those of sheep, and may be almost infinitely multiplied.

The skin of the goat supplies material out of which, in the East, bottles or vessels for carrying water, milk or other fluid are made. These skins were similarly employed by the ancient Hebrews. Nēbel is sometimes used for skin-bottles, which is also applied to any vessels made of earthenware. See Isa. 30 : 14: "He shall break it as the breaking of a potter's pitcher that is broken in pieces."

These goat-skin or sheep-skin bottles will help us to understand such biblical expressions as the following: "I am become like a bottle in the smoke, yet do I not forget thy commandments;" "I am become like a shriveled old wine-skin, black and dirty;" a very apt figure to denote the Psalmist's affliction.

Wild goats are mentioned in three places in the Bible. Saul and three thousand men "went to seek David and his men upon the rocks of the wild goats" (see 1 Sam. 24 : 2); "Knowest thou where the wild goats bring forth?" (Job 39 : 1); "The high hills are a refuge for the wild goats, and the rocks for the conies." Ps. 104 : 18. It will be noticed that the animal in question is always associated with rocks and hills. The Hebrew word is derived from a root meaning "to climb," "to ascend," and fitly describes the ibex, or wild goat, which is found in the peninsula of Sinai and in Palestine. This animal, which is a relative of the Swiss ibex or steinbock, is now called the beden or jaela, the former being the specific Arabic name, the latter the Hebrew. It is also found in the neighborhood of Engedi, "fountain of the kid," by the Dead Sea shore.

Chamois.—The rendering of the Hebrew zemer occurs only in the list of animals allowed for food. Deut. 14 : 5. The Septuagint and the Vulgate give "camelopard" as the animal intended. It certainly is not the camelopard, an animal of South and Central Africa; for though representations of the giraffe occur in the Egyptian monuments as tribute from Ethiopia, it is not possible that it should have been named as lawful food for the Israelites, whether in Palestine or the Sinaitic peninsula.

Hart and Hind.—The following are the scriptural allusions to deer, for which the Hebrew word is ayyâl, masc. "hart," and ayyâlâh, fem. "hind." They were allowed for food: "As the roebuck and the hart is eaten" (Deut. 12 : 22); "These are the beasts which ye shall eat, . . . the hart and the roebuck." Deut. 14 : 4, 5. Harts are mentioned amongst the fat oxen, sheep and other animals which were daily consumed by those who fed at King Solomon's royal board. See 1 Kings 4 : 23. In Psalms 42 : 1 we have a picture of a deer panting for thirst during a season of drought: "As the hart panteth after the water-brooks, so panteth my soul after thee, O God." Other Bible references to deer allude chiefly to their activity and surefootedness: "He maketh my feet like hinds' feet, and setteth me upon my high places." 2 Sam. 22 : 34; see also Ps. 18 : 33 and Hab. 3 : 19. The gentleness and affectionate disposition of the deer is alluded to in Prov. 5 : 19, where the hind is compared to a tender wife: "Let her be as the loving hind and pleasant roe." The deer tribe, or Cervidæ, often conceal their fawns after birth for a time. This has been noticed frequently in our own country; both the fallow-deer and the red deer conceal their young, the latter more carefully than the former. This habit appears to be referred to in Job 39 : 1: "Canst thou mark when the hinds do calve? . . . or knowest thou the bearing-time of the hinds?" The timidity of the deer in a thunder-storm is mentioned in Ps. 29, which contains a magnificent description of a storm, poetically called "Jehovah's voice" (Kôl Yehovah): "The voice of Jehovah causeth the hinds to be in travail pains." All these allusions are simple and require no explanation; but the passage in Genesis (49 : 21), "Naphtali is a hind let loose, he giveth goodly words," is not so clear, and has been commented upon in various ways.

Antelopes.—It remains for us to consider the biblical allusions to the antelopes, the last family of the Pecora division of even-toed ungulates. Of this group four distinct species at present occur either in Palestine or on the borders of the land; they are the gazelle, the oryx, the addax and the bubale. The following names of animals, all of which, it is probable, denote antelopes, occur in the Hebrew Bible: Tsebî, translated always in our version by "roe" or "roebuck;" tô or tô̂, occurring only twice, and translated "wild ox" or "wild bull;" dishôn, translated "pygarg" in Deut. 14 : 5 where alone it is named as a clean animal fit for food; and yachmûr, rendered "fallow-deer" in the only two places in which it occurs, Deut. 14 : 5, and 1 Kings 4 : 23, where the animal is mentioned as one fit for food, and as part of the provision supplied to King Solomon's table.

There is no doubt the animal denoted by tsebî is the beautiful little gazelle, and not the capreoline deer, the roebuck (which our translators have identified with the tsebî), an animal which, at present at least, is strictly confined to Europe. The little antelope is several times mentioned in the Bible; it was allowed as food: "The unclean and the clean may eat thereof, as of the gazelle, and as of the hart" (Deut. 12 : 15, 22; 15 : 22); see also 1 Kings 4 : 23, where it is named as one of the animals provided for Solomon's table: "Harts and gazelles (roebucks) and fallow-deer and fatted fowl." The swiftness of the gazelle is alluded to in 2 Sam. 2 : 18; Asahel, one of Zeruiah's sons, was "as light of foot as a gazelle." The gazelle is by far the most abundant of all the large game in Palestine; indeed, it is the only wild animal of the chase which an ordinary traveler has any chance of seeing.

Elephant.—Of the natural order Proboscidia, represented only by the two species of elephant, we have no distinct mention in the canonical books, if we except 1 Kings 10 : 22 and 2 Chron. 9 : 21, where our translators for "ivory" in the text read "elephants' teeth" in the margin. Frequent mention of elephants, however, is made in the apocryphal books of the Maccabees, where we read that Lysias, who had been entrusted with the government of Southern Syria by Antiochus Epiphanes, employed many of these animals in his wars against the Jews. At the celebrated siege of Bethsura, on the Idumean frontier, the royal force under the command of Lysias, in the temporary reign of Antiochus Eupator, consisted of "an hundred thousand footmen, and twenty thousand horsemen, and two and thirty elephants exercised in battle. These went through Idumea and pitched against Bethsura, which they assaulted many days, making engines of war; but they of Bethsura came out, and burned them with fire, and fought valiantly. Upon this Judas removed from the tower, and pitched in Bathzacharias, over against the king's camp. Then the king rising very early marched fiercely with his host toward Bathzacharias, where his armies made them ready for battle, and sounded the trumpets. And to the end they might provoke the elephants to fight, they showed them the blood of grapes and mulberries." 1 Macc. 6 : 30–44. It was on this occasion that Eleazar, "perceiving that one of the beasts, armed with royal harness, was higher than all the rest, and supposing that the king was upon him, put himself in jeopardy, to the end he might deliver his people, and get him a perpetual name: wherefore he ran upon him courageously through the midst of the battle, slaying on the right hand and on the left, so that they were divided from him on both sides. Which done, he crept under the elephant, and thrust him under, and slew him, whereupon the elephant fell down upon him, and there he died." 1 Macc. 6 : 43–46. We also read that Antiochus Epiphanes, the father of Antiochus Eupator, "entered Egypt with a great multitude, with chariots, and elephants, and horsemen, and a great navy, and made war against Ptolemy, king of Egypt." 1 Macc. 1 : 17, 18. Elephants are also mentioned in other passages in the books of the Maccabees. Though the name of the elephant is not found in the text of our version, the Hebrew—or rather Hebraized form of the Sanscrit—name occurs in 1 Kings 10 : 22 and 2 Chron. 9 : 21. King Solomon "had at sea a navy of Tharshish with the navy of Hiram: once in three years came the navy of Tharshish, bringing gold and silver, ivory, apes, and peacocks," the Hebrew word literally meaning "teeth of elephants," as in the marginal reading. Ivory, the valued product of the elephant, is frequently mentioned in the Bible; the Hebrew word which, excepting in the two passages quoted above, is always translated "ivory," is shên, "a tooth." It is, indeed, the name of the twenty-first letter of the Hebrew alphabet, from its tooth-like form. The first notice of ivory occurs in the passages which speak of its introduction into Palestine from Ophir together with apes, gold and peacocks, and almug trees in the time of Solomon. As all these products are Indian, and the Hebrew words almost certainly Hebraized forms of Sanscrit names, there can be no doubt that the ivory was imported from some part of Hindostan or Ceylon. As Solomon was the first Jewish king to introduce ivory into Judea, so he was the first to use it. In 2 Chron. 9 : 17 we are told that King Solomon "made a great throne of ivory, and overlaid it with pure gold." Later on, Ahab made for himself "a house of ivory" (1 Kings 22 : 39); it must not be supposed that the king's palace was actually made of ivory, but that ivory paneling and carving adorned the walls, roofs and rooms: "The ivory palaces whereby they have made thee glad." The forty-fifth Psalm is evidently a marriage-song celebrating the nuptials of a Jewish monarch and describing the magnificence of an Oriental court.

The luxurious Phœnicians ornamented the benches of their ships with ivory: "Of the oaks of Bashan have they made thine oars; the company of the Ashurites have made thy benches of ivory brought out of the isles of Chittim." Ezek. 27 : 6. The latter part of the verse is, "Thy benches have they made of boxwood inlaid with ivory, from the isles of Chittim." The literal rendering of the Hebrew is, "Thy benches have they made of ivory, daughters of box trees," or "cedar trees." Such expressions are not uncommon in Hebrew poetry. Compare, for instance, Ps. 17 : 8, "Keep me as the pupil, the daughter of the eye," as being that which gives beauty and brightness to the eye; so Lam. 3 : 13, "the arrows of the quiver" are the "sons of the quiver," because the quiver encloses them; similarly, the ivory is the daughter of the wood into which it is set.

Where did the Jews obtain their ivory from, and was it in all cases the teeth of the elephant? The elephant from South-western India most probably supplied Solomon and Hiram, king of Tyre, with ivory; but we read also that the market of the Tyrians obtained ivory from the neighborhood of the Persian Gulf. "The men of Dedan were thy merchants; many isles were the merchandise of thy hand; they brought thee for a present horns of ivory and ebony." Ezek. 27 : 15. The Dedanites were probably caravan-traders bringing foreign produce from the head of the Red Sea. This tribe seems to have dwelt in the North-west of Arabia. There also appears to have been another tribe of the same name, the Cushite Dedanim, who settled on the shores of the Persian Gulf and became traveling merchants across Mesopotamia into Palestine and Phœnicia. The Egyptians made use of the ivory of the African elephant; the art of inlaying various kinds of wood, such as boxes, tables and other pieces of furniture, was also practiced by the Egyptians. It also appears that ivory was used by the Hebrews, Assyrians and Phœnicians. At present not only do the two existing elephants afford ivory. The fossil mammoth of Siberia, an extinct kind of elephant, with tusks ten feet long, supplies ivory to the Russians; the teeth of the hippopotamus, wild boar and narwhal form ivory of various kinds, that of the first-named animal being of a superior quality. But the ivory known to the ancients was probably that of the Asian and African elephants alone; we can find no distinct allusion to hippopotamus ivory. The British Museum contains several Assyrian and Egyptian works in ivory, as seats of ebony wood inlaid with ivory, high-backed chairs and spoons of ivory. Some of the specimens of Egyptian ivory-work Dr. Birch considers to date back before the Persian invasion, and to be as old as the eighteenth dynasty. The most interesting of the ivory relics found by Layard at Nimroud were, he says, "a carved staff, perhaps a royal sceptre, part of which has been preserved, although in the last stage of decay, and several entire elephants' tusks, the largest being two feet five inches long."

We have seen that ivory was imported into Judea in the time of Solomon from some place in India; but Africa also produced ivory, and Ethiopia supplied Egypt with it. Amongst the ancient Egyptians the elephant, though it gave name to the island of Elephantine, was not considered sacred. It only occurs at Elephantine in the name of the place which in hieroglyphics is styled "the Land of the Elephant."

Coney.—Our English word coney or cony—for it is spelt both ways—is an old name for the rabbit. Though the word "coney" occurs in our Bible, it is certain that no rabbit is denoted by the Hebrew word shâphân, mentioned in Lev. 11 : 5; Deut. 14 : 7, where it is named amongst certain other animals which the Jewish law forbade as food: "And the shâphân, because he cheweth the cud, but divideth not the hoof, he is unclean unto you." In the one hundred and fourth Psalm, which has been well called "a bright and living picture of God's creative power pouring life and gladness through the universe," and which contains so many beautiful allusions to wild animals, the shâphân's habit of dwelling chiefly among the rocks is spoken of: "The high hills are a refuge for the wild goats, and the rocks for the shâphâns." v. 18. In the book of Proverbs, amongst the "four things little upon earth, but exceeding wise," are enumerated the shâphâns as being "but a feeble folk, yet having their houses in the rocks." 30 : 26. The Hebrew word is probably from an unused root meaning "to hide."

Hyrax.—The hyrax is the single genus constituting the order Hyracoidea; it is neither a rodent, nor, as represented in Leviticus, a ruminant. It has been seen in Palestine and Sinai by many travelers, but in the former country it is not so common as in the latter; it is extremely common in the gorge of the Kedron, from Marsaba eastward, and all down the west side of the Dead Sea.

In Arabia Petræa these little animals are called gannim Israel, "Israel's sheep." Prosper Alpinus has these words, "Animal quoddam humile, cuniculo non dis-simile quod agnum filiorum Israel nuncupant." Bruce tells us the same, and thinks the name was given from the hyrax frequenting the rocks of Horeb and Sinai, where the children of Israel wandered forty years. The South African hyrax is called Dasse by the Dutch settlers, being the same as the German "badger."

We have now noticed all the Mammalia except the "greyhound," mentioned only in Prov. 30 : 31 as one of the "four things comely in going."

Birds.—According to the account of the creation given in the first chapter of Genesis, birds are said to have made their appearance on the earth on the fifth day, together with creeping creatures that have life, sea-monsters, and other animals with which the waters teem; in verse 20 our Bible reads, "And God said, Let the waters bring forth abundantly the moving creature that hath life, and fowl that may fly above the earth in the open firmament of heaven." From this it would seem that the ancient Hebrews held that birds were produced from the waters, and not from the earth, like mammals (see verse 24), similarly the Septuagint, the Vulgate, the Targumim, Luther and some modern translators; but both the verbs in the Hebrew are imperative: "Let the waters swarm with living swarms, and let fowl fly above the earth," etc. Indeed, in chap 2 : 19, birds are expressly said to be produced from the earth.

Birds were used as food by the ancient Hebrews, though probably not to the extent which prevailed amongst the Egyptians; several birds were expressly disallowed as food by the Levitical law, which, indeed, does not differ much from modern custom. All birds of prey, whether diurnal or nocturnal in their habits, were forbidden, such as vultures, eagles, hawks, buzzards, owls. Hence the whole order of raptores was shunned as being repulsive and cruel, feeding upon other animals or upon carrion, though the flesh of the young eagles and hawks was by some nations recommended and eaten as a delicacy. The raven, and doubtless all the family of the Corvidæ, as represented in Palestine in biblical times, such as the jackdaw, hooded crow, rook, alpine chough, etc., were avoided. Some of the cursorial or "running" birds, as the ostrich, many of the grallatores or "waders," as the heron, bittern, stork and ibis, a few of the natatores or "swimmers," as the greedy pelican and the cormorant, were forbidden as food to the people of Israel. Domestic poultry, common and familiar enough in Palestine in our Lord's time, was almost, if not quite, unknown there before the Babylonish captivity. "Fatted fowl" are indeed mentioned in 1 Kings 4 : 23 (Heb. Bib. 5 : 3) as amongst the good things supplied for Solomon's table. A pair of turtle-doves or young pigeons was ordered as a substitute for a kid or a lamb as sin or trespass offering in the case of poor people (Lev. 12 : 6; Num. 6 : 10), and as early as the time of Abraham we read of a turtle-dove and a young pigeon. Gen. 15 : 9. A passage in Isaiah (60 : 8) points, somewhat indefinitely it is true, to the domestication of pigeons by the Hebrews: "Who are these that fly as a cloud, and as the doves to their windows?" like doves flying to their dovecots, alluding perhaps to the towers with latticed openings for the pigeons, which still fly, as of old, to their homes in the neighborhood of all Eastern villages and towns.

Reference to the wonderful migratory habits of some birds is occasionally met with in the Bible. Who will not call to mind with unceasing pleasure the poet's description of spring?—"Lo! the winter is past, the rain is over and gone; the flowers appear on the earth; the time of the singing of birds is come, and the voice of the turtle is heard in our land" (Cant. 2 : 11, 12), or the prophet's pathetic expostulations with unrepentant Judah?—"Yea, the stork in the heaven knoweth her appointed times; and the turtle and the crane and the swallow observe the time of their coming; but my people know not the judgment of the Lord." Jer. 8 : 7.

Song-birds as pets are very common now in the East both amongst Jews and Moslems, and it is probable that the ancient Jews tamed some kinds. That young birds were taken from their nests either for food or domestication is evident from Deut. 22 : 6, whilst the passage in Job (41 : 5), "Wilt thou play with him [leviathan] as with a bird?" looks very like a reference to tame song-birds. Birds resorting to sacred edifices, not only amongst the Jews and other Eastern nations, but amongst Europeans also, were regarded as deserving protection. A bird that built its nest on a temple was considered under the especial care of the Deity, and it was sacrilege to molest it. The quiet repose and security of the house of God is beautifully depicted in very familiar words: "Yea, the sparrow hath found an house, and the swallow a nest for herself, where she may lay her young, even thine altars, O Lord of hosts, my King, and my God." Ps. 84 : 3.

The rapid flight of a bird is employed as a figure to express the transient nature of earthly things: "As for Ephraim, their glory shall fly away like a bird." Hos. 9 : 11.

The singing of birds is alluded to in Cant. 2 : 12 as one of the harbingers of spring; also in Ps. 104 : 10, 12: "He sendeth the springs into the valleys. . . . By them shall the fowls of the heaven have their habitation, which sing among the branches." "In this passage, as the Psalmist is speaking of the trees which overhang the water-courses or wadies and rivers of the country, the singing of the different species of warblers is perhaps pointed to, and especially the bulbul and nightingale, both of which throng the trees that fringe the Jordan and abound in all the wooded valleys, filling the air in early spring with the rich cadence of their notes."

Birds were generally caught in snares or nets, and to this there is frequent allusion in the Bible, the references being for the most part metaphorical to express either the cunning devices of God's enemies (Ps. 9 : 15; 25 : 15; 31 : 4), or the anger of God upon the impenitent. Lam. 1 : 13; Hos. 7 : 12; Ezek. 12 : 13. Traps—but not iron spring-traps—clap-nets, gins or nooses were all employed in capturing birds, and there are many different Hebrew words to denote various kinds of traps. Decoy-birds were apparently sometimes used in catching wild ones: "They set a trap, they catch men; as a cage is full of birds, so are their houses full of deceit." Jer. 5 : 26, 27. The cage here probably denotes a wicker-work trap (chelûb) into which birds were enticed by means of a decoy. Compare also Ecclus. 11 : 30: "Like as a partridge taken and kept in a cage, so is the heart of the proud; and like as a spy watcheth he for thy fall." "The employment of decoy-birds is still very common, and much pains are taken to train the decoys for their treacherous office."

The belted kingfisher, sun-bird, etc., the traveler meets with in immense number, and varieties of the larger birds of prey, vultures, eagles and falcons, abound in every part of the Holy Land, being "at first sight its ornithological characteristic." Tristram and party collected 322 species of birds, and he says there are at least 30 other species which may be added to the list. The greater part of these are either the same as or very similar to the birds of our own country. "Of the 322 species of birds we obtained," he says, "26 are, as far as our present knowledge extends, peculiar to Palestine and the districts immediately adjacent; 8 are of Eastern Asia; 32 are common to Arabia or East Africa, being chiefly desert forms; while 260 are reckoned in the lists of European birds." In these favored spots occur birds of Indian and equatorial African type, besides some which are not known elsewhere. The large Indian turtle-dove is common all the year around the Dead Sea; "a night-jar, a sparrow and a grackle, not hitherto found elsewhere, reside permanently here; and a beautiful little sun-bird, sometimes mistaken for a humming-bird, flits among the shrubs in great numbers;" while the butterflies, like those of Nubia and Abyssinia, hover over the flowers in January. We will now proceed to consider the birds mentioned in sacred writ, and will begin with the order Raptores or birds of prey.

Vulture.—The Vulturidæ, a family of raptorial birds, is represented in Palestine by these three species, the griffon vulture, the lämmergeier and the Egyptian vulture, or Pharaoh's hen. Two other large kinds, according to Tristram, the Vultur nubicus of Smith, have been observed in the neighboring countries, and may probably occur in the south-east districts of Palestine.

Mention is made of the vulture in three passages, viz., in Job 28 : 7: "There is a path which . . . the vulture's eye hath not seen." The Hebrew word ayyâh, here rendered "vulture," is translated "kite" in Lev. 11 : 14 and Deut. 14 : 13. Two other Hebrew words, dââh (Lev. 11 : 14) and dayyâh (Deut. 14 : 13; Isa. 34 : 15), are also rendered "vulture."

There is little doubt that none of these Hebrew names denote any species of vulture, but rather some smaller bird of prey, as the kite or the buzzard.

The griffon vulture is frequently alluded to in the sacred writings under the Hebrew name of nesher, always rendered "eagle" in our version. The modern Arabic name for the griffon vulture is nesser or nasr (though this name also includes the eagle), evidently the Hebrew nesher, and in addition to the evidence afforded by the identity of the names there is that supplied by some of the passages where the bird is mentioned. Thus in Micah (1 : 16) it is said: "Make thee bald and poll thee for thy delicate children; enlarge thy baldness as the nesher" (eagle).

The vulture's rapidity of flight is referred to in Job 9 : 26; Deut. 28 : 49; 2 Sam. 1 : 23; Jer. 4 : 13, etc. The high-soaring habits of these birds seem to be referred to in Isa. 40 : 31: "They shall mount up with wings as eagles." See also Prov. 23 : 5; 30 : 19. The power of flight, the acuteness of vision, the habit of selecting craggy rocks whereon to make a nest, the feeding on the slain, are all graphically described in the book of Job: "Doth the nesher mount up at thy command, and make her nest on high? She dwelleth and abideth on the rock, upon the crag of the rock, and the strong place. From thence she seeketh the prey, and her eyes behold afar off. Her young ones suck up blood: and where the slain are, there is she." 39 : 27–30. See also Jer 49 : 16. "While the eagles and other birds are content with lower elevations, and sometimes even with trees, the griffon alone selects the stupendous gorges of Arabia Petræa and of the defiles of Palestine, and there in great communities rears its young, where the most intrepid climber can only with ropes and other appliances reach its nests."

Figures of the vulture occur on the Assyrian monuments, sometimes hovering in the air as an expectant sharer of the bodies that would fall in battle, sometimes resting on the bodies and picking out the eyes of the slain. The figures, however, are very badly drawn, the Assyrian artists being "not happy in their delineation of the feathered tribe." Vulture- or eagle-headed human figures occur on the early Assyrian monuments, often in colossal proportions. Some have supposed this figure to be the same as the god Nisroch (2 Kings 19 : 37), in whose temple Sennacherib was slain by his sons. The griffon vulture is a majestic bird, and by no means unamiable or disgusting in its habits. With his fellows he is good-tempered, and, voracious as he is, never grudges to share the feast with as many as choose to join him.

Vultures are most numerous in hot countries, and here they are immensely serviceable in removing putrefying remains which have rapidly decomposed under a high degree of temperature. Their services generally gain for these birds protection from injury. Vultures possess extraordinary powers of smell and vision; they will seldom attack living animals, and even the eagle prefers his food already slain. The Egyptian vulture is an admirable scavenger, feeding on the carrion thrown about towns, "and every kind of filth, offal and garbage; and though elegant in plumage and appearance on the wing, it is most disgusting not only in habits, but in odor and appearance on a close inspection." Unlike the griffons, these birds do not congregate in large numbers, but live in pairs, the male and female seldom separating. They build in cliffs, generally low down; the nest is described as being "an enormous collection of sticks, clods of turf, bullocks' ribs, pieces of sheep-skin, old rags, and whatever else the neighborhood of a camp or village affords." The eggs, generally two in number, are rich red in color or mottled with red. The Egyptian vulture is a migratory bird in Palestine, very common in spring everywhere, but never seen in the winter. It is widely distributed, being found in all the warmer parts of the Old World, from the Pyrenees to Southern India, and throughout the whole of Africa.

Falconidæ.—The falcon tribe is very numerously represented in Palestine, some of the species occurring more abundantly than others. Of the eagles the following kinds have been observed: The golden eagle, not common, being found for the most part in the northern mountain districts; the imperial eagle, not quite so uncommon as the last named, a noble bird, easily recognized by its dark plumage and white shoulders; the tawny eagle; the spotted or rough-footed eagle (A. nævia), an occasional visitor to our own country; and Bonelli's eagle. These last three species are said to be tolerably common in Palestine, but nowhere in great numbers together; but by far the most abundant of all the eagles is the short-toed eagle. This is a large and bold bird, with owl-like eyes, and feet and toes covered, chain-armor fashion, with hard reticulated scales, which serve to protect it against the bite of venomous snakes, upon which, with lizards and frogs, it feeds. There is no more magnificent-looking bird, as it sits with its great flat head bent down on its shoulders, its huge yellow eyes glaring around, and the bright spotting of its breast and abdomen as distinct as that of a missel-thrush. It is very noisy, and always betrays the neighborhood of its nest by the loud harsh scream with which the male and female pursue each other, rising into the air and making short circling flights, after which they suddenly drop down, one to the nest, the other to a neighboring post of observation. They will often dash down from the cliffs to the fields below, swoop for a few minutes like a harrier, and then, seizing a snake, sit down and occupy some minutes in killing the reptile, after which they carry the prize away in their claws, not, like most eagles, devouring it on the spot.

The various hawks or smaller birds of prey seem to be denoted by the Hebrew name nêts, occurring in the list of unclean birds (Lev. 11 : 16; Deut. 14 : 15), where again the expression "after its kind" clearly indicates that the term is generic. The passage in Job 39 : 26: "Doth the hawk fly by thy wisdom, and stretch her wings toward the south?" appears to refer to the migratory habits of the hawks, most of which in Palestine are migrants from the south, returning thither for their winter sojourn. The kestrel is one of the few that remain in the country all the year round.

The Owl Family.—The following species are inhabitants of Palestine: The great owl, the tawny owl, the little owl, the scops owl, the white or barn-owl, all of which are pretty common; the Indian fish owl, the long and short-horned owls of our own country. The grotesque expression produced by the arrangement of the feathers of the face, the peculiar voice, the habit of flying by night, their frequenting ivy-covered ruins and places of solitude, have all contributed to engender superstitious feelings in the minds of many people. Owls are in popular belief birds of darkness, death and ill-omen.

The following Hebrew words have been rendered owl in the Authorized Version: Bath-haya'anah, yanshuph or yanskoph, cós, kippóz and lilith. The first word designates, without doubt, an "ostrich," and will be considered when we come to treat of that bird. The last-named word, which, in the text of Isa. 34 : 14, is translated "screech-owl," is more correctly given in the margin as "night-monster." The remaining words, there is some reason to believe, denote some kinds of owls. But besides these, there is another Hebrew word, tachmâs, occurring in Lev. 11 : 16 and Deut. 14 : 15 as one of the birds that were to be held in abomination by the Israelites, and translated "night-hawk" in our version, which also, we think, denotes some owl.

Yanshûph occurs in Lev. 11 : 17; Deut. 14 : 16 as one of the unclean birds. It is rendered "great owl" by our version. It occurs once more (Isa. 34 : 11, where it is translated "owl") in the prophet's graphic description of desolate Edom: "The owl also and the raven shall dwell in it." The description is very similar to the one in Isa. 13 : 20-22; 14 : 23, and Zeph. 2 : 14, which Delitszch says is founded upon this one. It was a favorite idea of the Hebrew prophets to introduce into the picture of a waste desert-land pools or marshes here and there, to serve to add to the scene of desolation. Thus, of Babylon is is said: "I will make it a possession for bitterns and marshes of water." When a country is liable to inundation from a river, hollow places full of water would remain. Moreover, the prophet does not specially mention Petra. The judgments of Jehovah were to be directed against Bozrah and the land of Idumea. Isa. 34 : 6. The eagle-owl, a magnificent species, inhabits ruins and caves in every part of Palestine, "as in tombs in Carmel, robbers' caves near Gennesaret, the hermit caves above Jericho, among the ruined cities of Southern Judah, and in the desert wadys near Beersheba, among the temples of Rabbath Ammon; in fact, everywhere where man has been and is not." It occurs also very abundantly in the rock-tombs of Petra. Where there are no rocks, the eagle-owl burrows in the sand-banks and lays its eggs there.

The Hebrew word tachmâs, occurring only in the list of unclean birds (Lev. 11 : 16; Deut. 14 : 15), and translated "night-hawk" in our version, more probably denotes an owl of some kind. By "night-hawk" is probably meant the "night-jar" or "goat-sucker," of which three species are known in the Holy Land. This bird has been the subject of many superstitions, and absurd properties have been ascribed to it. It utters a strange dismal cry resembling the sound of a spinning-wheel, only heard at night; hence the name of the bird, "night-jar" or "night-churr." It is curious to note, in this connection, a popular belief in the East that there is some kind of owl which glides stealthily into bed-chambers at night and tears the flesh off sleeping children. The women are much afraid of this infant-killing owl, and carefully watch their houses lest the cruel bird should gain admittance through an open window. It is not improbable that tachmas may mean the screech-owl common in Palestine.

Perching Birds.—Of the Insessores or perching birds the following only are mentioned in our Bible: The raven, swallow, sparrow, lapwing and cuckoo. The first three are correct renderings of the Hebrew words. The lapwing we shall show to be the hoopoe; the cuckoo is probably some species of sea-gull. Palestine abounds in passerine birds. Tristram has enumerated one hundred and forty-four species (exclusive of the crow family, and taking no account of the many so-called fissirostral birds, as kingfishers, rollers, swifts, cuckoos, hoopoe and others) as collected in the Holy Land. The Hebrew word 'tsippôr is onomatopoetic and denotes any "chirping" or "singing bird." It is generally translated "bird," "fowl," and in two passages "sparrow." Hence the term is a very comprehensive one, and may be taken to represent finches, larks, warblers, etc., which are very numerous in Palestine, though of course not found altogether or in the same district. "Owing to the great varieties in elevation, temperature and degree of moisture in different parts of Palestine, there is far more difference between the ornithology of one district and another. Thus, the larks, pipits and chats abound in the hill-country and wilderness of Judea. On the maritime plains and in the north of the country we find chiefly the denizens of our own fields and woodland glades, while in the Jordan valley we have an entirely new group of birds, more like those of India or Abyssinia, the bulbul, bushbabbler, orange-winged grackle, and especially the beautiful little sun-bird, a tiny little creature of gorgeous plumage, rivaling the humming-birds of America in the metallic lustre of its feathers, green and purple, with brilliant red and orange plumes under its shoulders."

Distinct mention is made in the Bible of the raven, the "blackbird," as the Hebrew word 'oreb means. The term is doubtless generic, and includes all the members of the crow family found in Palestine besides the common raven. In the account of the deluge a raven was sent out by Noah from the ark at the end of forty days, "which went forth to and fro until the waters were dried up from off the earth." Gen. 8 : 7. The raven and other birds "after its kind" were to be held in abomination by the Israelites. Lev. 11 : 15. This bird's carnivorous habits and its readiness to pick out the eyes are mentioned in Prov. 30 : 17: "The eye that mocketh at his father, and despiseth to obey his mother, the ravens of the valley [Heb. "ravine" or "gorge"] shall pick it out." Ravens are in a few places singled out as instances of God's protecting goodness to the creatures he has made: "Who provideth for the raven his food? when his young ones cry unto God, they wander." Job 38 : 41. See also Ps. 147 : 9; Luke 12 : 24. The glossy blackness of the raven's plumage is referred to in the Canticles, chap. 5 : 11: "His locks are bushy, and black as a raven."

The passage in 1 Kings 17 relating to ravens bringing bread and flesh to the prophet Elijah has been variously explained. Talmudical writers record strange stories about the raven, as that it was originally white, and that it was turned black for its deceitful conduct. As an unclean bird, it was not allowed to perch on the temple, various devices being adopted to scare it away. "Of all the birds of Jerusalem, the raven tribe is the most characteristic and conspicuous, though the larger species are quite outnumbered by its small companions. They are present everywhere to eye and ear, and the odors that float about remind us of their use. The discordant jabber of their evening sittings around the temple area is deafening. The caw of the rook and the chatter of the jackdaw unite in attempting to drown the hoarse croak of the old raven, but clear above the tumult rings out the more musical call-note of the lesser species. Before retiring for the night, popular assemblies of the most uproarious character were held in the trees of Mount Olivet and the Kedron, and not till after sunset did they withdraw in silence."

Sparrow.—It has already been stated that the Hebrew word 'tsippôr is a general one to denote any kind of passerine bird. It is always translated "bird" or "fowl" in our version, except in two passages in the Psalms, where it is rendered "sparrow." The Psalmist complains: "I have watched" (sorrow having driven away sleep), "and am as a sparrow alone upon the house-top." 102 : 7. Again, in Ps. 84 : 3: "The sparrow hath found an house, and the swallow a nest for herself, where she may lay her young, even thine altars, O Lord of hosts, my King and my God." "Are not two sparrows sold for a farthing?" Matt. 10 : 29. See also Luke 12 : 6. Hence we infer that these small birds were commonly sold and used as food in ancient times, as they are at the present day. The lonely sparrow upon the house-top has been referred to the blue thrush of Southern Europe, common in Palestine.

The common house-sparrow is found in Palestine only in towns on the coast; a closely allied species occurs plentifully inland, but the most numerous species is the Spanish sparrow, which Tristram saw in countless myriads in the thorn trees of the Jordan valley. The tree-sparrow may also be seen abundantly on Mount Olivet, and also about the sacred enclosure of the mosque of Omar, and perhaps this is more especially the kind referred to in Ps. 84 : 3.

The Swallow Family is well represented in the Holy Land. Besides the English species, there is the Oriental chimney-swallow, which is common, and does not always migrate in the warmer parts of the country; the Hirundo rufula, abundant throughout the country, visiting it in March; the crag-swallow and the marsh-swallow, "the former a South European, the latter an Abyssinian bird, which resides all the year in the Jordan valley, round the Dead Sea and in the wadys of rivers." The alpine or white-bellied is common, returning from the south earlier than the other, large flocks being seen passing northward over Jerusalem as early as the 12th of February. "Its powers of flight are amazing, and it seeks its food at vast distances from its nightly roosting-places, being able to traverse the whole extent of Palestine in an hour or two." Then there is the Galilean swift, which resides in the Jordan valley all the year round, not being found elsewhere in Palestine. This species differs considerably from other swifts in its note, which consists "of a gentle and melodious wail," unlike the harsh scream of other swifts.

Hezekiah in his illness compares his sorrowful mourning to the "twittering" of a swallow. The modern vernacular Arabic for a swift is identical with the Hebrew word. In Palestine the swift is a regular migrant, the swallow only a partial one. The former returns "in myriads every spring, and so suddenly that, while one day not a swift can be seen in the country, on the next they have overspread the whole land and fill the air with their shrill cry."

Hoopoe.—There seems to be no doubt that the Hebrew word (dukîphath) translated in our version by "lapwing" denotes the hoopoe. The word occurs only in Lev. 11 : 19 and Deut. 14 : 18, in the list of birds forbidden to be used as food by the ancient Jews. The old versions and commentators generally are agreed on this point. The Coptic koukouphat, the Syriac kikupha, are allied to the Hebrew word, and both these terms signify the hoopoe.

The Arabs have a superstitious reverence for the hoopoe, which they believe to possess marvelous medicinal qualities; they call it "the doctor." Its head is an indispensable ingredient in all charms and in the practice of witchcraft. The Arabs say also the hoopoe betrays secrets, and that it can point out hidden underground springs of water. This idea has arisen from the grotesque movements of the bird. On settling on the ground it has a strange habit of bending the head slowly down till the point of the bill touches the ground, raising and depressing the crest ominously at the same time. Our word hoopoe is derived from the bird's voice, which resembles the words "hoop, hoop," softly and rapidly uttered.

The hoopoe is about the size of a missel-thrush; the plumage is of a light russet color, wings and tail black, with broad white bars. The long feathers of the crest are each tipped with black.

Cuckoo occurs only in the list of unclean birds (Lev. 11 : 16; Deut. 14 : 15)

as the translation of the Hebrew word shakhaph, but it is very improbable that the cuckoo is intended. There is some reason to think the "sea-gull" is the bird denoted by shakhaph, and this point will be considered when we come to treat of the swimming-birds. The cuckoo was doubtless well known to the ancient Hebrews, and its familiar voice must have gladdened many a heart when it was heard in the land proclaiming that the winter had gone and summer and flowers once more smiled on the earth. Both our own species and the great spotted cuckoo are now found in the Holy Land, the latter species being the most common of the two. The great spotted cuckoo is an inhabitant of North Africa. Like our own species, it is parasitic in its habits, depositing its eggs, which are of the same color and size as those of the magpie, in the nests of the magpie, raven, jackdaw, etc. So peculiarly characteristic is the note of this bird as to give the bird's name, "cuckoo," amongst many nations.

Dove, Pigeon.—The Columbidæ, pigeon and dove family, is represented in Palestine by the following species: The common wood-pigeon of this country, the rock-pigeon, also occurring in our own country near the sea-coast, the rock-pigeon of Egypt, to be seen in countless myriads in the Wady Haman ("ravine of pigeons," from the Arabic hamâmat, "a wild pigeon"), leading from the plain of Gennesaret, in the ravine of the Kelt near Jericho, in the recesses of cliffs which shut in the rivers Arnon and Zerka in the land of Moab, and the stock-dove, which visits Palestine in the summer. Of turtle-doves the following are inhabitants of the Holy Land: The common turtle-dove, the collared turtle, the largest species of the group, and the palm-turtle, numerous in the plains of Jericho and Shittim and round the Dead Sea.

There are many allusions to pigeons and turtle-doves in the Bible. Two Hebrew words express either a pigeon or a turtle-dove—viz., tôr, always translated "turtle-dove" or "turtle," and yônâh, "pigeon" or "dove." Another word, gôzâl, occurs in Gen. 15 : 9 as the name of "a young pigeon," from a root meaning "to chirp."

The first mention of a dove occurs in the biblical account of the deluge (Gen. 8 : 8), where we read that Noah sent forth from the ark one of these birds three times. On the first occasion it soon returned; on the second it came back with an olive-leaf in its mouth; on the third time it came back no more. A pair of turtle-doves or two young pigeons was by the Levitical law allowed as a substitute in some of the offerings for a lamb or a kid in the case of poor persons. See Lev. 1 : 14; 5 : 7; 12 : 6, 8; Luke 2 : 24. A Nazarite, in the case of accidental defilement from a dead body, was ordered to bring to the priest on the eighth day two turtles or young pigeons to be sacrificed, one for a burnt offering, the other for a sin offering, as an atonement. Num. 6 : 10. With a view to facilitate the purchase of these birds for offerings, the Jews in our Lord's time established a kind of market within the court of the temple—a proceeding emphatically condemned by Christ. Matt. 21 : 12; John 2 : 14–16.

The rapidity of a pigeon's flight is alluded to in Ps. 55 : 6: "Oh that I had wings like a dove! for then would I fly away, and be at rest." Also in Hos. 11 : 11: "They shall hasten trembling as a bird out of Egypt, and as a dove out of the land of Assyria." The plaintive voice of the dove is alluded to by Hezekiah in his sickness (Isa. 38 : 14): "I did mourn as a dove." See also 59 : 11 and Nah. 2 : 7, in which latter passage the maids of the city of Nineveh, personified as a queen, are represented mourning the fate of their mistress as with the voice of doves. The beautiful metallic lustre seen in certain angles of the light on the necks of some pigeons, notably on that of the stock-dove, is referred to by the Psalmist, though the passage has been variously translated.

The dove is alluded to by our Lord: "Be ye therefore wise as serpents, and harmless as doves." Matt. 10 : 16. Doves' eyes were considered very beautiful. Cant. 1 : 15; 4 : 1; 5 : 12. The wild rock-pigeon builds its nest in lofty cliffs and in deep gorges. This is referred to in Cant. 2 : 14: "O my dove, thou art in clefts of the rock, in the secret places of the cliffs;" "O ye that dwell in Moab, leave the cities, and dwell in the rock, and be like the dove that maketh her nest in the sides of the hole's mouth." Jer. 48 : 28.

The collared turtle occurs in great numbers near the springs and streams on the shores of the Dead Sea where trees grow; and here it resides throughout the year. In the summer it spreads northward up the Jordan valley, and may be seen in the woods of Mount Tabor and Gilead. This bird is a larger variety and darker in plumage than the dove so frequently kept in cages familiar to all.

The palm-turtle, like the preceding species, is non-migratory, being a permanent resident in those places it frequents, such as the plains of Jericho and Shittim, round the Dead Sea and other spots where palm trees flourish. But at Jericho, when the palm is no longer found, this turtle frequents the thorny jujube trees. It is a small bird of a ruddy chestnut color, with no collar on the neck, which is clothed with dark feathers having a slight metallic lustre.

The domestication of the pigeon dates from very early times. The prophet Isaiah probably refers to tame birds when he says, "Who are these that fly as a cloud, and as the doves to their windows?" Isa. 60 : 8. In Palestine at the present day the pigeon is "the invariable companion of man wherever he has a settled habitation. The village sheikh marks his wealth by the possession of a large separate dovecot built of mud or brick and roofed over, filled with earthen pots with a wide mouth, each of which is the home of a pair of pigeons. The poorer people rear them in their houses, and in the villages about Carmel there is a row of small square pigeon-holes formed in the wall just under the roof, opposite the door, each of which has a pair of tenants, who fly in and out over the heads of the family through the common door." The pigeon tribe is exceedingly abundant in Palestine. This is accounted for by the botanical character of the country, which is extremely rich in various kinds of clover, trefoil and other leguminous plants, on which the birds delight to feed.

Partridge.—Our common partridge does not occur in Palestine, but the Greek partridge is very common in all the hill-districts, whether woody or rocky. This species is very similar in plumage to the red-legged species, having its sides, flanks and thighs richly barred transversely with fawn-color, white, black and pearl-gray; the legs and bill are also red, but the Greek partridge is a much larger bird than either the red-legged or the common partridge. Large coveys are often seen in the autumn, but in the winter they disperse. The ringing call-note of the bird may be often heard in early mornings "echoing from cliff to cliff, alike amidst the barrenness of the wilderness of Judea and in the glens of the forest of Carmel. The male birds will stand erect on some boulder, sending their cheery challenge to some rival across the wady, till the moment they perceive themselves detected they drop down from their throne and send up the hill faster than any dog, screening themselves from sight by any projecting rock as they run." The Greek partridge is especially common in the wilder parts of Galilee. In Syria what is apparently a variety of the Greek partridge occurs; this is a very fine and large bird, resembling the red-leg of India and Persia. The Greek partridge has a wide geographical range from east to west, being found in West Spain, Greece, Asia Minor, Persia and Northern India. There is another partridge that occurs in Arabia Petræa, the basin of the Dead Sea and its wadys, and in the east of the wilderness of Judea. This is the sand or desert partridge, a small species with plumage delicately penciled, and bill and legs of a bright orange color. It is very plentiful near the cave of Adullam, and lays its beautiful cream-colored eggs in holes and caves and under the shelter of rock crevices, and runs with wonderful agility up and down the cliffs. The genus Francolinus is represented in the rich lowland plains of Gennesaret, Acre and Phœnicia by the F. vulgaris, a fine and handsome species, the plumage of the adult bird being very rich.

Several species of the extremely beautiful and interesting genus Pterocles, sand-grouse, occur in the more arid parts of Palestine and in the wilderness of Judea, as the pin-tailed sand-grouse, the Kata of the Arabs, which have been seen passing over the barer parts of the Jordan valley and the Eastern Desert by thousands at a time. The P. senegalensis and the P. exustus also abound in the wilderness of Judea and near the Dead Sea. Nothing can exceed the beauty of the delicately-marked plumage of this latter bird.

Probably the bird more specially and generally denoted by the Hebrew term Kôrê is the Greek partridge, though francolins and sand-grouse may also be included. The partridge is mentioned twice only in Scripture. David speaks of Saul's persecution of him: "The king of Israel is come out to seek a flea, as when one doth hunt a partridge in the mountains." 1 Sam. 26 : 20. In Jeremiah we read, "As the partridge sitteth on eggs and hatcheth them not, so he that getteth riches, and not by right, shall leave them in the midst of his days, and at his end shall be a fool." 17 : 11. In the former passage allusion is made to the mode practiced in the East of hunting down partridges and killing them by throw-sticks, the zerwattys of the Arabs. The Greek partridge, perhaps even more than the red-leg, prefers to escape by running or concealing itself under rocks, etc., seldom taking to the wing. Thus they are chased from place to place, and at length killed by a well-directed cast of the throw-stick.

Quails are mentioned only in the narratives giving the account of the enormous quantities of these birds which suddenly appeared on two occasions in the wilderness during the wanderings of the Israelites: on the first occasion the people were in the desert of Sin (Ex. 16 : 13), when "at even the quails came up, and covered the camp;" on the second they were at the station which, in consequence of the judgment which befell them, received the name of Kibroth-hattaavah—i. e., "graves of lust"—a place which has not yet been identified. Num. 11 : 31, 34: "And there went forth a wind from the Lord, and brought quails from the sea, and let them fall by the camp, as it were a day's journey on this side, and as it were a day's journey on the other side, round about the camp, and as it were two cubits high upon the face of the earth." The Psalmist (78 : 27) also refers to the appearance of countless multitudes of these birds: "He rained flesh upon them as dust, even feathered fowl as the sand of the sea." Compare also Ps. 105 : 40.

Domestic Fowls.—From the New Testament we learn that domestic poultry were kept by the Jews in the time of our Lord, who in familiar words called especial attention to the tender care of her offspring bestowed by the hen-bird: "How often would I have gathered thy children together as a hen doth gather her brood under her wings?" Luke 13 : 34; Matt. 23 : 37. The cock is mentioned in connection with Peter's denial of Jesus. Matt. 26 : 34; Mark 14 : 30.

The habit of the cock in the East of crowing during the night at regular times gave rise to the expression "cock-crowing" to indicate a definite portion of time: "Ye know not when the master of the house cometh, at even, or at midnight, or at the cock-crowing, or in the morning." Mark 13 : 35. Similarly the Romans expressed a period of time (the last watch of the night, the break of day, about three o'clock in the morning) by the Latin word gallicinium. The Hebrews designated the cock-crowing period by a phrase denoting "the singing of the cock." In Greek, as in Latin, the "cock-crowing time" generally meant the third watch of the night. But though three o'clock A. M. represents the cock-crowing period, midnight also is a season in which "the bird of dawn" not unfrequently crows. This explains very satisfactorily a seeming contradiction in the Gospels. St. Matthew states that our Lord said to Peter, "Before the cock crow thou shalt deny me thrice." 26 : 34. St. Mark (14 : 30) says, "Before the cock crow twice." The first-named evangelist gives the general sense, and alludes only to the period customarily denoted—viz., the three-o'clock crowing. Mark is more definite, and mentions both the midnight and early dawn crowing.

For the original home of domestic fowls we must look to India, the Indo-Chinese countries and the northern parts of the Malay Archipelago. There is no representation on the sculptures of Egypt of any kind of domestic fowl among the farm-yard stock, though geese often occur, being represented in the act of being counted in the presence of stewards. No notice of the domestic fowl occurs in the writings of Homer and Hesiod (B. C. 900), but it is mentioned by Theognis and Aristophanes (B. C. 400 and 500). The latter poet calls the cock "the Persian bird," the Greeks probably having obtained it from Persia. Figures of the fowl occur on Babylonian cylinders between the sixth and seventh centuries. When and whence the domestic fowl was introduced into Palestine is a question that has not hitherto received an answer. As no notice of it occurs before the possession of Judea by the Romans, it may have been introduced by these conquerors, who were very fond of poultry both for fighting purposes and for the table, though, as we have seen that the cock was known in Persia at least four or five hundred years before Christ, it might have been received by the Jews from the Persians, with whom, at the time of Cyrus, they were on very friendly terms. Or Solomon, who we know introduced the peacock into Palestine, might at the same time have imported the domestic fowl from the same country—viz., India. Whatever may be the date of their first introduction, fowls are now extremely common in the Holy Land, the modern Jews keeping poultry in large numbers for the sake of chickens and eggs, not only in their yards, but in their houses at Jerusalem, where they roost at night over their beds.

Peacocks are mentioned three times in our English Bible—viz., in 1 Kings 10 : 22 and 2 Chron. 9 : 21, where they are enumerated among the foreign natural products imported into Judea from Ophir by King Solomon. The other passage occurs in Job 39 : 13.

Ostrich.—There are two or three Hebrew words which denote the ostrich—namely, bath haya'anâh, yâ'ên and rânân—but they are not always correctly translated in our version. The bath haya'anâh is mentioned in the list of unclean birds (Lev. 11 : 16; Deut. 14 : 15), where, however, our translators read "owl;" and in Job 30 : 29; Isa. 34 : 13; 43 : 20, where "owl" is again given in the text, but "ostrich," correctly, in the margin. Some authorities derive the Hebrew word ya'anâh from a root meaning to "cry out," "to make a loud noise." The literal meaning with bath is "daughter of loud crying." Others derive the word from a root meaning "to be greedy;" hence, "daughter of greediness." Either definition would suit the ostrich, though the more probable etymology is that which refers to the loud crying which these birds utter in their natural haunts. The noise of the ostrich has been compared to that of the lion, for which it has been mistaken by the Hottentots in Africa; but Tristram says it sounds more like the hoarse lowing of an ox in pain: it is loud and dolorous, and in the stillness of the desert plains can be heard at a great distance. To this dismal cry reference is made in the book of Job (30 : 28, 29): "I went mourning without the sun: I stood up and cried in the congregation."

The word yâ'ên occurs only in the plural number, ye'ênim in Lam. 4 : 3: "The daughter of my people is become cruel, like the ostriches in the wilderness." The word is merely the masculine gender of ya'anah without the addition of bath, "daughter." Kânân, or renen, which latter term is still used in modern Hebrew, occurs only in Job 39 : 13, where our translators very incorrectly render renânim by "peacocks," and the Hebrew word for stork by "ostrich." The verse should be thus rendered: "The wing of the ostrich moveth joyously, but has she the plume and feather of the stork?" The latter bird is proverbially noted for its affection to its young. How unlike to the cruel ostrich, which leaveth her eggs in the earth, and is hardened against her young ones! The word has the same meaning as the other Hebrew one for ostrich, rânân—viz., to "howl and utter loud cries." Stupidity and want of affection to her offspring have long been attributed to the ostrich by the Orientals. The Arabs have a proverb, "Stupid as an ostrich," and they give several reasons for their belief, as—(1.) That the ostrich will swallow iron and stones; (2.) When it is hunted, it thrusts its head into a bush and thinks the hunter does not see it; (3.) It neglects its eggs; (4.) It has a small head and few brains. It is well known that the ostrich swallows stones and other hard substances to aid its digestion.

Crane.—Of the Grallatores, or wading-birds, the crane, heron, bittern and stork are mentioned in our Bible, though there is some doubt as to the real meaning of the Hebrew words translated "heron" and "bittern." The following are some of the principal grallatorial birds occurring in Palestine: The common heron; the buff-backed heron; the purple heron; the squacco heron; the bittern; the white and the black storks; and the purple gallinule.

The crane, there can be no doubt, is the correct translation of the Hebrew âgûr, which occurs in Isa. 38 : 14: "Like a crane or a swallow so did I chatter;" and in Jer. 8 : 7: "The turtle and the crane and the swallow observe the time of their coming." Our translators have in the first passage (Hezekiah's lament in his illness) rendered âgûr by "swallow" and sûs by "crane;" this has been noticed under "Swallow." The crane utters a loud trumpeting noise which could not properly be described as "chattering" or "twittering;" but the words of the complaint may be elliptical, as, "I did utter a loud noise as a crane, I did twitter as a swallow." Jeremiah refers to the migratory habits of the crane, which visits the cultivated region of Palestine at the time of its spring migration northward. It is a beautiful bird, and next to the ostrich the largest in the Holy Land. It is a rare visitor to this country now, but formerly it was frequently seen in the winter. These birds resort in immense flocks to their favorite roosting-places in the wilderness south of Beer-sheba during the winter. The structure of the crane's windpipe is singular, for the organ, after leaving the neck of the bird, passes downward and backward between the branches of the merry-thought toward the sternum or breastbone, where it makes several convolutions before it passes to the lungs.

The Bittern.—It cannot be determined with certainty what the Hebrew word kippôd, occurring three times in the Old Testament, and translated in our version by "bittern," really denotes. The animal is mentioned in company with the cormorant (Isa. 34 : 11) in the prophet's picture of the desolation of Edom: "The cormorant and the bittern shall possess it; the owl also and the raven shall dwell in it: and he shall stretch out upon it the line of confusion, and the stones of emptiness." The same prophet (14 : 23), speaking of the desolation of Babylon, says, "I will make it a possession for the bittern, and pools of water." Zephaniah (2 : 13, 14), telling of the judgments that were to come upon Assyria, says that Jehovah "will destroy Assyria, and will make Nineveh a desolation, and dry like a wilderness, and packs shall lie down in the midst of her, all the wild beasts of a multitude; the pelican and the bittern also shall lodge in the chapiters thereof; a voice shall sing in the windows."

The Heron.—The Hebrew word anâphah, the representative of the heron, occurs only in the list of unclean birds in Lev. 11 : 19; Deut. 14 : 18. Herons of various species are found in Palestine and Egypt, of which the most common is the buff-backed heron, often called erroneously the white ibis, immense flocks of which live and breed in the impenetrable swamps of the Hulch, the ancient Merom. The common heron of this country is frequent in the marshy grounds and by the river-banks in Palestine. From the carnivorous habits of the herons, whose food consists of fish, frogs and sometimes even rats, they would naturally be regarded as unclean birds and unfit for food. The food of the purple gallinules consists of various kinds of seeds, which they readily crack with their formidable bill, using their feet to convey their food to the mouth; they will also eat snails, frogs and other aquatic animals. The purple gallinule has a wide extent of range, being found over a great portion of Africa to the south, and as far as the mountains of the Himalaya to the east. Its figure, or what we take to be its figure, occurs on the Egyptian monuments. Although the herons and the porphyrio would doubtless be regarded unfit for food, it is not possible to say definitely what family of birds is denoted by the anâphah "after its kind."

The Swan.—It is not very probable that the swan, purely vegetarian in its food, should be included in the Levitical law (Lev. 11 : 18; Deut. 14 : 16) among the birds counted unclean and to be held in abomination. Neither, again, would the swan have been sufficiently familiar to the Israelites to have obtained a place in the list. At present swans are almost unknown in Palestine, and only occasionally found in Egypt.

The Ibis, so celebrated in its connection with the idolatry of the Egyptians, is a bird likely to be noticed in the laws relating to diet. It is frequently depicted on the Egyptian monuments and was sacred to Thoth, who was fabulously reported to have eluded the pursuit of Typho under the form of this bird. It was greatly revered in every part of Egypt, and was everywhere embalmed. Many of these ibis mummies may be seen in the British Museum. The bird is extinct on the Lower Nile, but may be seen by travelers in Abyssinia. It is carnivorous in its habits, feeding on mollusks.

Stork.—There is no doubt about the correctness of our version in the rendering of the Hebrew word khasîdâh, which literally signifies "the pious bird," from a root "to desire or love strongly." The stork has long been justly celebrated for its strong attachment to its young. From its carnivorous habits and the unclean nature of its food it was not allowed as food. See Lev. 11 : 19; Deut. 14 : 18. The Psalmist alludes to these birds often frequenting fir trees: "As for the stork, the fir trees are her house." Ps. 104 : 17. Jeremiah notices their migratory habits: "Yea, the stork in the heaven knoweth her appointed times; and the turtle, and the crane, and the swallow observe the time of their coming; but my people know not the judgment of the Lord." 8 : 7. Zechariah seems to refer to the power of the stork's wings in chap. 5 : 9. The stork is mentioned once more—viz., in the margin of Job 39 : 13. The utility of the stork to man in destroying serpents and reptiles and in clearing away noxious substances has secured for itself protection. Storks migrate sometimes in enormous numbers; Shaw noticed several flocks, half a mile in breadth, while he was journeying over Mount Carmel. These flocks were from Egypt, and each one occupied three hours in passing over.

Cormorant.—There are two Hebrew words for which our version gives "cormorant"—viz., kâath and shâlâk; the former word is with much reason assigned to the pelican; doubts have been expressed as to what bird the shâlâk denotes. The word occurs in the list of unclean or abominable birds (Lev. 11 : 17; Deut. 14 : 17), and is mentioned nowhere else. The Hebrew term points to some plunging bird. Shâlâk means "to throw" or "cast down;" hence a bird which plunges down from high rocks into the water.

The solan goose is not common on the shores of Palestine, and may not have been sufficiently known to the ancient Hebrews to obtain a place amongst the forbidden birds, but the cormorant, which answers very well to the requirements of the Hebrew root, is common on the coast, comes up the river Kishon, and visits the Galilean lake; it is also abundant on the Jordan. Another species, called, from its small size, the pigmy cormorant, is found on the Kishon and the Litany. There is no other bird that has an equal claim to represent the shâlâk of the Hebrew Scriptures, and we may conclude that the cormorant is the bird probably intended.

Pelican.—The word kâath, there can be but little doubt, if any, is rightly translated by "the pelican." It occurs in the list of unclean birds (Lev. 11 : 18; Deut. 14 : 17); in Ps. 102 : 6, where the suppliant exclaims, "I am like a pelican of the wilderness, an owl of ruined places;" in Isa. 34 : 11, where it is said of desolate Edom, "the kâath and the bittern shall possess it;" and in Zeph. 2 : 14, where the same is said of Nineveh. The Hebrew word is derived from a root meaning "to vomit," in allusion to the habit the pelican has of pressing its under mandibles against its breast and then disgorging the contents of its pouch to feed its young. It has been objected that the pelican is a water-bird, and cannot, therefore, be the kâath of the Scriptures—"the pelican of the wilderness"—as it must of necessity starve in the desert; but the midbar (wilderness) is often used to denote a wide open space, cultivated or uncultivated, and is not to be restricted to barren spots destitute of water; moreover, as a matter of fact, the pelican, after having filled its capacious pouch with fish, mollusks, etc., often does retire to places far inland, where it consumes what it has captured. Thus, too, it breeds in the great sandy wastes near the mouths of the Danube. The expression "pelican in the wilderness," in the Psalmist's pitiable complaint, is a true picture of the bird as it sits in apparent melancholy mood with its bill resting on its breast.

Two species of pelican are found on the coasts of Syria, the white pelican and the Dalmatian pelican. The mode of feeding its young with the contents of its pouch, the red tip being pressed against its breast, is by some supposed to be the origin of the fable about the pelican feeding its young with its own blood.

Reptiles.—The Reptilia embrace creatures such as crocodiles, turtles, tortoises, lizards and serpents. Frogs and toads are now commonly placed in a distinct class, the Amphibia, because either for longer or shorter periods or throughout the whole of their lives they are provided with gills for aquatic respiration in addition to lungs for aërial respiration. In the Reptilia the heart is generally composed of two auricles opening into a single ventricle, but in the Crocodilina the ventricular part of the heart is separated into two cavities. In all reptiles the venous blood is more or less intermingled with the arterial; the anterior limbs are sometimes absent; the caudal vertebræ frequently form a series equaling in length the rest of the body; the jaws usually possess teeth, and these are constantly reproduced during the life of the animal. But in the Chelonia (tortoises) the jaws are covered by a horny sheath as in birds; in the Crocodilina alone the teeth are provided with sockets; the tongue may be flat and immovable as in crocodiles, tortoises and some lizards, or it may be long, bifid and protrusible, as in serpents and other reptiles. In the Chelonia the body is enclosed in a bony case; in the Crocodilina the outer skeleton consists partly of horny scales developed by the outer layer of the skin, and partly of large bony plates produced by the inner layer of the skin. According as bony plates are combined with these scales, and constitute an osseous skeleton or not, the Reptilia are divided into two large groups, the Loricata and Squamata; the former group contains the Chelonia (tortoises, turtles) and the Crocodilina (crocodiles, gavials and alligators); the latter the Sauria (lizards) and Ophidia (serpents). The word "reptile" does not occur in our Bible; the creatures designated are usually called "creeping things," but the term is used in a much wider sense. There are two Hebrew words—viz., remes and sherets—rendered "creeping things" in our version, and both these terms include not only reptiles properly so called, but any crawling creatures, whether possessing feet or not, whether living on the land or in the water. Gen. 1:21, 26, 28, 30; 7:21; Lev. 11:41, etc. Reptiles are very numerous in Palestine, the nature and climate of the country being peculiarly suited to this class of animal life. "The limestone rocks and chalky hills afford the cover and the security, both in summer and winter, in which the serpent tribe delight. The sandy downs and wilderness of Judea are the natural home of the myriads of lizards which dart over the plains, and on the slightest alarm conceal themselves in the sand. The tropical heat and dry atmosphere of the Jordan valley are favorable to their reproduction to an extent only limited by the supply of food."

It is uncertain whether the Crocodilina are represented in Palestine at present. The Sauria are well represented; twenty-two species of lizards belonging to eighteen genera were collected in Palestine. The large fulvous skink, or sand-lizard, with body prettily spotted with orange and red, is found in the sandy and rocky districts near the Dead Sea. The family of Scincidæ, both in structure and habits, seems to establish a sort of connection with or transition to the great division of serpents by the intervention of certain species such as those of Anguis and Acontias. In shape they are serpent-like, and the legs are sometimes rudimentary and concealed beneath the skin; they do not climb like the true lizards, but confine themselves to dry sandy places. The sheltopusik, a snake-like lizard, with only two rudimentary hind legs and elongated body, is very common in Syria; and though generally regarded as dangerous, it is perfectly harmless, feeding on other small lizards and mice in the cultivated plains.

The Ophidia or serpents of Palestine are very numerous, the conditions of the country favoring their increase, as in the case of the Sauria. Eighteen species were secured by Tristram's party, but a much larger number, it is probable, remains to be described. Thirteen of these eighteen species belong to the colubrine sub-order of snakes. The horned viper, a small but very venomous snake, well known in the sandy deserts of Egypt and Arabia, has been repeatedly observed in Palestine, and is well known in the southern wilderness of Judea. The Amphibia are represented by the edible frog, which abounds in the marshy places of Palestine, and is equally common in Egypt; by the green tree-frog, a beautiful little creature which sits on trees and catches flies as they pass; and by one species of toad, a southern form, abundant in all parts of the country. Neither the common frog of this country nor the toad has been observed in Palestine.

We now proceed to notice the Reptilia and Amphibia which are mentioned in the sacred writings.

The Chelonia, the order of Reptiles, including the tortoises, turtles and terrapenes, characterized by the body being enclosed between a double shield, out of which they protrude the head, tail and extremities, are not definitely mentioned in the Hebrew Bible. Our version in Lev. 11:29 enumerates "the tortoise" amongst the "unclean creeping things" forbidden as food, but the Hebrew word tsâb probably denotes rather a large species of lizard than a tortoise. Land-tortoises and marsh-tortoises, as we have seen, are common in many parts of Palestine at the present day, and no doubt formerly existed in the country, and would have been known to the Jews, who would have included them amongst the "unclean creeping things." The Crocodilina, the other order of the Loricata, is represented by the common crocodile, which, under the name of livyâthan, is frequently alluded to in the Old Testament, though this word is used also in a generic sense to signify any huge monster of the deep or of the rivers. For instance, in the passage in Ps. 104:25, 26, "This great and wide sea, wherein are things creeping innumerable, both small and great beasts; there go the ships; there is that leviathan whom thou hast made to play therein," some large whale or other cetacean is intended, for "the great and wide sea" here must refer to the Mediterranean, and not to any river as the Nile. In the Authorized Version the Hebrew word is always left untranslated, with the exception of Job 3:8, where it is rendered "mourning." It occurs five times in the text of the Old Testament and once in the margin. Job 3:8. In Ps. 74:13, 14, "Thou didst divide the sea by thy strength; . . . thou brakest the heads of leviathan in pieces, and gavest him to be meat to the people inhabiting the wilderness," the Egyptian crocodile is clearly intended. The heads of leviathan symbolically represent the princes of Pharaoh (the great crocodile or "dragon that lieth in the midst of his rivers," Ezek. 29:3) and his army who were destroyed in the Red Sea, and whose dead bodies cast on shore were devoured by the jackals and other wild beasts of the desert, here poetically called "the people inhabiting the wilderness." A similar figure may be seen in Prov. 30:25, 26: "The ants are a people not strong;" "The conies are but a feeble folk;" and also in Isa. 27:1: "In that day the Lord with his sore and great and strong sword shall punish leviathan the piercing serpent, even leviathan that crooked serpent; and he shall slay the dragon that is in the sea." The most detailed account of leviathan is to be found in the forty-first chapter of Job.

The crocodile of the Nile, found also in the Senegal and other rivers of Africa, is a formidable animal, and often seizes men as they sleep on the shore. The vertebræ of the neck bear upon each other by means of small false ribs, so that lateral motion is difficult; hence a quick turn will serve to place a man out of immediate danger. Crocodiles lay eggs twenty or thirty in number. These eggs are about the size of those of a goose, and are deposited on the sand, where they are hatched by the heat of the sun. Numbers of them and the newly-hatched young ones are devoured by ichneumons, vultures and other predacious animals. The true crocodiles are found in Africa, Asia and America; there are none in Europe or in Australia. The alligators are peculiar to America, the gavials to India. Numerous remains of crocodilean reptiles are found in a fossil state.

The Amphibia, cold-blooded vertebrates, provided either temporarily or permanently with gills for aquatic respiration as well as lungs for aërial respiration, do not appear to be abundantly represented in Palestine, the edible frog, the tree-frog and one species of toad being the only recorded inhabitants. The edible frog is very common both in Egypt and the Holy Land, and so amazingly numerous in some of the lakes and pools of the latter country as "to cover the surface toward evening in one solid, unbroken mass. Its loud croaking at night is said to be perfectly deafening. Frogs are mentioned in the Old Testament only in connection with the account of the second plague of Egypt. Ex. 8 and Ps. 78:45; 105:30; compare also in the Apocrypha, Wisdom 19:10. In the New Testament frogs are mentioned only in Rev. 16:13: "I saw three unclean spirits like frogs come out of the mouth of the dragon, and out of the mouth of the beast, and out of the mouth of the false prophet." The green and elegant little tree-frog may be often seen sitting on a leaf of a tree both in Egypt and Palestine; its food consists of flies.

Fish.—The Bible allusions to fish, fisheries and modes of fishing are numerous. According to the account in the first chapter of Genesis, fishes were created on the fifth day, together with great sea-monsters (tannîm, "whales"). Gen. 1:21. The fishes of Egypt are more than once alluded to; they are especially mentioned in connection with the first plague: "The fish that is in the river shall die." Ex. 7:18, 21; Ps. 105:29. The Israelites complain bitterly of their want of flesh in the wilderness, and call to mind the days when they ate freely of fish in the land of Egypt. Num. 11:5. The ancient Egyptians consumed large quantities of fish both fresh and salted. The great abundance of fish produced in the Nile was an invaluable provision of nature in a country which had neither extensive pasture-lands nor large herds of cattle, and where corn was the principal production. When the Nile inundated the country and filled the lakes and canals with its overflowing waters, these precious gifts were extended to the most remote villages in the interior of the valley; and the plentiful supply of fish they then obtained was an additional benefit conferred upon them at this season of the year. We can, then, fully understand the force of Isaiah's denunciation in "the burden of Egypt:" "The river shall be wasted and dried up; . . . the reeds and flags shall wither; . . . the paper-reeds by the brooks; . . . the fishers also shall mourn, and all they that cast angle into the brooks shall lament, and they that spread nets upon the waters shall languish." 19:5–8. Fishes are specially mentioned as creatures over which man was to hold dominion (Gen. 1:26, 28; 9:2); their prolific nature is alluded to in Gen. 48:16. Of Ephraim and Manasseh the patriarch Jacob says: "Let them grow, as fishes increase, in the midst of the earth" (see margin); indeed, both the Hebrew word for a fish—viz., dâg—and the Chaldee nûn, are derived from roots each one meaning "to be prolific." The immense number of fishes that in apostolic times swam in the Lake of Galilee are often alluded to in the New Testament: "They enclosed a great multitude of fishes, and their net began to break." Luke 5:6; see also John 21:6, 11. The Galilean lake still swarms with fish: "The density of the shoals of fish in the Sea of Galilee can scarcely be conceived by those who have not witnessed them. Frequently these shoals cover an acre or more of the surface, and the fish, as they slowly move along in masses, are so crowded, with their back fins just appearing on the level of the water, that the appearance at a little distance is that of a violent shower of rain pattering on the surface."

There is no distinct mention of any particular kind of fish in the Bible. Several kinds are found in the Sea of Galilee. The similarity between the fishes of the Lake of Galilee, the Jordan and its affluents and those of the Nile is a curious fact, and that of the ichthyological fauna of Palestine with that of Africa helps geologically "to join Palestine very closely to that continent."

The sheat-fish, of which various species are known, have the character of being poor and unpalatable food. It has a rank taste, resembles coarse beef in color, and by the doctors is considered unwholesome, though it is much eaten by the Christians; and recently Tristram testifies from experience that these siluroids are most unsavory eating. This seems to us to throw some interesting light on one of our Lord's parables. In Matt. 13:47, 48, we read: "Again, the kingdom of heaven is like unto a net that was cast into the sea, and gathered of every kind; which, when it was full, they drew to shore, and sat down, and gathered the good into vessels, but cast the bad away."

The fishes of the Jordan and its affluents, which do not differ from those of the Lake of Gennesaret, being chiefly bream or barbel, are exceedingly numerous. The Jordan is "alive with fish to its very exit, and carries by the rapidity of its current into the poisonous waters of the Dead Sea millions of fry, chiefly of bream, which are soon stupefied, and become the easy prey of the birds which await them, while myriads of their carcases strew the shore near the mouth." But perhaps in none of the streams of Palestine are fish more abundant than in the river Jabbok. In a small stream among the ruins of Rabbath-ammon, Tristram noticed "one continuous line of fish coming and going," and mentions that with the simplest appliances, as by a shirt extemporized into a bag, his party were able to catch any number. The saline waters of the Dead Sea contain no animal life, but in the salt hot and sulphurous springs near the Dead Sea shoals of minute gudgeons and minnows are found. Those that enter the lake are soon stupefied and die. The fishes of the western streams which flow into the Mediterranean are not so numerous as those east of its watershed.

The ancient Jews do not appear to have paid much attention to fisheries, and there are few biblical allusions to them. The coast of Palestine had few localities suitable for carrying on extensive fisheries, and these fishing-stations were chiefly in the hands of the Phœnicians, as at Tyre and Sidon. Cæsarea was not built before the time of Herod the Great, who named the town in honor of the emperor Augustus. Joppa, on the south-west coast of Palestine, was a seaport-town in Solomon's time, and in the hands of the Jews, but they do not appear to have carried on any fishing-trade; it is probable, however, that the Phœnicians had a fishing-station at Joppa, for we read in Nehemiah (13:16) that at Jerusalem "there dwelt men of Tyre which brought fish and all manner of ware, and sold on the Sabbath unto the children of Judah." It is probable that from Joppa—the port of Jerusalem in ancient times as at present—that city was supplied with fish, as is the case now. But Tyre and Sidon were the chief and most important places where the Phœnicians carried on a fishing-trade; the very name of Sidon, according to Gesenius, signifies "a fishing-place," and Tyre is mentioned by Ezekiel in connection with fishing-nets: "It shall be a place for the spreading of nets in the midst of the sea." 26 : 5; comp. also verse 14. At this day the people of Tyre, now a poor village, subsist chiefly by fishing; "their boats are the only craft in the harbor of her whose merchants were princes; and the old wharves and the column-strewn promontory, whence all the palaces have been long since swept away, are covered with their nets, spread out to dry over the ruins."

The fishery of the Lake of Galilee in the time of our Lord was extensive and of considerable commercial importance, and the allusions in the New Testament are numerous. Did the ancient Jews carry on a fishing-trade here? There is no reference in the Old Testament Scriptures to any fishery of the Galilean lake, but it is not probable that none should have existed. The existence of a regular fish-market at Jerusalem is implied from the notice of one of the north-western gates of the city, the Fish-gate—the gate, that is, which opened on the fish-market. 2 Chron. 33 : 14; Neh. 3 : 3. The supply, probably, came chiefly from the Mediterranean coasts, and was brought, previously salted, to the market at Jerusalem by Phœnician dealers.

Modes of catching Fish.—Fish were caught by various methods, the most usual one being by nets, which may have been similar to our seine or drag-net. Jesus, walking by the Sea of Galilee, saw Simon Peter and Andrew "casting a net into the sea." The night was the usual time for net-fishing in apostolic times (see Luke 5 : 5): "Master, we have toiled all the night." The casting-net "was used either by a naked fisherman wading from the shore, and by a rapid motion throwing his net, and then drawing it in a circle, or from boats."

Fishing with hook and line was also practiced; it is alluded to by Isaiah (19 : 8): "They that cast angle into the brooks." See also Hab. 1 : 15; Job 41 : 1: "Canst thou draw out the crocodile with a hook?" Our Lord tells Peter "to go to the sea and cast an hook, and take up the fish that first cometh up." Matt. 17 : 27. The ancient Egyptians sometimes used a rod, which was short and of one piece, but they often used the line alone with ground-bait; they did not use a float; there is no mention in the Bible of any fishing-rod.

Fish-worship was prevalent among some ancient nations; hence in the Levitical law the worship of fish is expressly forbidden. Deut. 4 : 18. Dagon, a diminutive of dag, "fish," in the sense of endearment, was the national god of the Philistines; his temples were at Gaza and Ashdod. Dagon is represented with the face and hands of a man and the body of a fish. The Babylonians and Assyrians also had their fish-gods.

Mollusks.—The character of the molluscan fauna of Palestine partakes, as might have been expected, of the same variety which marks the other branches of its fauna and flora. There are, however, fewer exceptions to its general character as a part of the Mediterranean basin, and fewer traces of the admixture of African and Indian forms. Northern types, especially of the genus Clausilia, are frequent in the Lebanon and on its southern spurs in Galilee. The molluscan fauna of the maritime plains and the coast possesses no features distinct from those of Lower Egypt and Asia Minor. The shells of the central region are scarce and not generally interesting, while on the borders of the Jordan valley and in the southern wilderness we meet with very distinct groups of Helix and of Bulimus, chiefly of the species peculiar or common in some few cases to the Arabian desert. The fluviatile mollusca are of a type much more tropical in its character than that of the terrestrial shells. There are here but few species similar to those of the east of Europe. Most of the species are identical with or similar to those of the Nile and Euphrates, and some of the genus Melanopsis are peculiar to the Jordan and its feeders.

Bible references to molluscous animals are few; "the snail" is mentioned in Ps. 58 : 8: "As a snail which melteth, let every one of them pass away." Owing to the dry climate of Palestine, slugs are few and scarce, but snails (Helix) are very abundant. "God has created nothing without its use," says the Talmud; "he has created the snail to heal bruises, by laying it upon them." The snail is mentioned in our version in Lev. 11 : 30 amongst unclean animals.

Onycha—that is, the horny operculum attached to the foot of some gasteropodous mollusk of the Strombus family—occurs in Ex. 30 : 34 as one of the ingredients of the sacred perfume. It is also mentioned in Ecclus. (24 : 15), where wisdom is compared to the pleasant odor yielded by "galbanum, onyx and sweet storax."

Pearls are mentioned in the Old Testament only in Job 28 : 18: "No mention shall be made of coral, or of pearls; for the price of wisdom is above rubies." The Hebrew word gâbish occurs also with abnê, "stones," in Ezek. 13 : 11; 38 : 22, "stones of ice"—i.e., hailstones.

But although no definite allusion to pearls is made in the Old Testament, the New Testament contains several references to them. Pearls are especially mentioned by our Lord in one of his parables: "The kingdom of heaven is like unto a merchant-man, seeking goodly pearls; who, when he had found one pearl of great price, went and sold all that he had, and bought it." Matt. 13 : 45, 46. Pearls are mentioned amongst the jewelry worn by women. 1 Tim. 2 : 9; Rev. 17 : 4. "The twelve gates" of the heavenly Jerusalem "were twelve pearls" (Rev. 21 : 21), where perhaps mother-of-pearl may be more definitely intended. In the expression, "Neither cast ye your pearls before swine" (Matt. 7 : 6), our Lord uses pearls metaphorically for anything valuable, or more especially for wise and precious words, which in Arabic are figuratively called pearls.

Arthropoda.—The following insects are mentioned in the sacred writings: lice, fleas, beetles, locusts, ants, hornets, bees, moths, flies and the cochineal insect, rendered in our version by "crimson" or "scarlet."

Of the class Arachnida, the scorpion and spider are definitely mentioned.

Insecta.—Lice, under the Hebrew term kinnîm or kunnâm, are noticed only in reference to the third great plague of Egypt. See Ex. 8 : 16–18 and Ps. 105 : 31.

The flea is mentioned only in 1 Sam. 24 : 14: "After whom is the king of Israel come out? after whom dost thou pursue? after a dead dog, after a flea;" and in 26 : 20. There is no doubt about the Hebrew word par'ôsh, which is probably derived from a root meaning "to spring." Fleas are extremely common in Eastern countries, absolutely swarming in some localities.

Coleoptera.—Beetles. The beetle is mentioned in our version as one of the flying creeping things allowed for food; the Hebrew word is chargol, and clearly must denote some species of locust, and not a beetle, as is evident from the only passage (Lev. 11 : 21–23) where the word occurs. The expression "which have (upper joints) legs above their feet, to leap withal," refers to the saltatorial locusts, and not to any coleopterous insects, which, however, are well represented in Palestine, upward of four hundred species having been described. Some of the large flower-beetles with brilliant metallic coloring are very beautiful.

Locust. See "Biblical Antiquities," p. 12.

Homoptera.—Some species of homopterous insect is denoted by the Hebrew word tôlah', or tôlaath, rendered in our version by "scarlet" or "crimson;" it also denotes some vermiform creatures, as worms or larvæ. In most of the passages the dye obtained from the insect rather than the insect itself is spoken of. The terms by which scarlet or crimson are expressed in Hebrew vary; the full expression for the cochineal insect is tôluath shânî—i.e., "worm of crimson." Shânî is probably derived from shânâh, "to shine," alluding to the bright color of the dye. The expression shenî tolaath—i.e., "crimson of worm"—also occurs. See Ex. 25 : 4 and Lev. 14 : 4. The Coccus ilicis is very common in Palestine, and is still occasionally used as a dye, though it has been supplanted by the Coccus cacti of Mexico, which has been introduced into Palestine and other countries. In the Coccidæ family the male alone has wings, the female being apterous. The dye is produced from the female, which is much larger than the male insect. When alive the size of the female is about equal to a cherry-kernel, but when dry it shrivels up to the size of a grain of wheat. Its color is dark red. These insects attach themselves to the twigs and leaves of the Syrian holm oak, on the juices of which they feed. The color is far better described by crimson rather than by scarlet, the usual rendering. The Arabic name is kermez, the origin of our English "crimson." It was one of the dyes used in the drapery of the tabernacle (Ex. 26), and in the holy garments of the high priest. Ex. 28 : 5, 6, 8, 15, 33, etc. Crimson robes were worn by the rich and luxurious. See 2 Sam. 1 : 24; Prov. 31 : 21; Jer. 4 : 30; Rev. 17 : 4, etc. Isaiah (1 : 18) in a well-known passage compares heinous sins to crimson, and Nahum speaks of the soldiers in the army advancing toward Nineveh as wearing crimson dresses. 2 : 3. It was with a crimson robe that the Roman soldiers clothed the Saviour in mockery of his claims to royalty. Matt. 27 : 28.

Hymenoptera.—Of the hymenopterous order mention is made in the Bible of ants, bees and hornets. The ant is noticed in Prov. 6 : 6–8: "Go to the ant, thou sluggard; consider her ways and be wise: which having no guide, overseer, or ruler, provideth her meat in the summer, and gathereth her food in the harvest;" and again in 30 : 25: "The ants are a people not strong, yet they prepare their meat in the summer." Amongst the Arabs the ant was regarded as a symbol of wisdom, and it was once a custom to place one of these insects in the hand of a newly-born child, with the prayer, "May the boy turn out ingenious and skillful." Ants are common in Palestine, but not more than a dozen different species were collected by Tristram's party, "a very small proportion of the number that must exist there." They vary in habits, color and size, one species being about an inch in length.

Hornet.—Mention of this hymenopterous insect occurs in Ex. 23 : 28; Deut. 7 : 20; Josh. 24 : 12. In all these passages the hornet is referred to as one of the means employed by Jehovah for the extirpation of the Canaanites. There seems little reason to doubt that the word "hornet" (Hebrew, tsîr'ah) is used metaphorically in the Pentateuch, though understood in a literal sense by the author of the book of Wisdom. 12 : 8. No actual destruction of the Canaanitish tribes by hornets is mentioned in the biblical narrative; moreover, the word tsîr'ah ("wastes") in Ex. 23 : 28 seems to be clearly parallel to îmah, "fear," in the preceding verse; and a similar expression is used figuratively in Deut. 1 : 44: "The Amorites, which dwelt in that mountain, came out against you, and chased you, as bees do." See also Ps. 118 : 12: "They compassed me about like bees." Hence tsîr'ah, translated "hornet," must be understood metaphorically to designate any plague or punishment that God would inflict upon the enemies of Israel—the stings of terror and confusion—to help his own people to drive them out from before them. Hornets were probably common in Palestine in ancient times. In Josh. 15 : 33 mention is made "of the valley of Zoreah," or Zorah; compare also Judg. 13 : 2; 16 : 31. This place was the home of Samson, who was buried between Zoreah and Eshtaol; tsor'ah in Hebrew means "a place of hornets," and in this locality these insects may have been especially common. Hornets belong to the family of Vespidæ, or the "wasp family," none of which, except hornets, are mentioned in the Bible.

Bees are often alluded to in the sacred writings, either with reference to the way in which in great swarms they make their attacks on men or other animals that have excited their anger (compare Deut. 1 : 44; Ps. 118 : 12; Isa. 7 : 18), or in respect of the honey made by these insects. See Judg. 14 : 8: "Behold, there was a swarm of bees and honey in the carcase of the lion." The abundance of bees in the Holy Land in ancient times is shown by the frequency of the expression, "A land flowing with milk and honey." Bees are to this day very common in Palestine. Dr. Thomson speaks of immense swarms of bees which made their home in a gigantic cliff of Wady Kurn. "The people of Malia several years ago," he writes, "let a man down the face of the rock by ropes. He was entirely protected from the assaults of the bees, and extracted a large amount of honey; but he was so terrified by the prodigious swarms of bees that he could not be induced to repeat the exploit." With this we may compare the expression of the Psalmist, "Honey out of the stony rock." See also Deut. 32 : 13 and the passages which refer to the serious attacks made by bees when angry. Deut. 1 : 44; Ps. 118 : 12. In Isa. 7 : 18 we read, "And it shall come to pass in that day, that the Lord shall hiss for the fly that is in the uttermost part of the rivers of Egypt, and for the bee that is in the land of Assyria." It has been supposed that the expression, "shall hiss for the fly" or "the bee" alludes to the ancient custom of hissing or whistling to the bees to summon them from or to their hives. That the custom prevailed amongst the ancient Romans is evident from numerous passages in classical authors.

Lepidoptera.—Although about two hundred and eighty species of lepidopterous insects have been recorded as occurring in the Holy Land, there is no allusion to any butterfly or moth in Scripture, with the single exception of the clothes-moths (Tineidæ), many species of which are known to occur in Palestine. The destructive habits of the larvæ of the clothes-moth form the subject to which the Bible allusions refer: "They all shall wax old as a garment; the moth shall eat them up" (Isa. 50 : 9); "He consumeth as a garment that is moth-eaten" (Job 13 : 28); "Where moth and rust doth corrupt." Matt. 6 : 19. See also Job 4 : 19; Ps. 39 : 11; Isa. 51 : 8; Hos. 5 : 12; James 5 : 2. In Job 27 : 18 the house of the ungodly man, though a palace, is compared to the house which a moth builds; "it is as brittle and perishable a thing and can be as easily destroyed as the fine spinning of a moth, or even the small case which it makes from remnants of gnawed articles and drags about with it."

Arachnida.—Of the Arachnida, the third class of air-breathing Arthropoda, mention is made in the Bible only of the scorpion and the spider. The first-named animal is several times alluded to: "Who led thee through that great and terrible wilderness, wherein were fiery serpents, and scorpions, and drought." Deut. 8 : 15. Scorpions to this day are very common in the wilderness of Sinai, no less than five distinct species having been found there. The prophet Ezekiel (2 : 6) compares the rebellious house of Israel to scorpions. The apostles were to have power "to tread on serpents and scorpions," and nothing was to hurt them. Luke 10 : 19. In the book of Revelation (9 : 3, 10) St. John in a vision sees locusts coming out of the smoke of the bottomless pit, which "had tails like unto scorpions." The pain from the sting is especially alluded to in verse 5: "Their torment was as the torment of a scorpion when he striketh a man." A scorpion for an egg (Luke 11 : 12) was probably a proverbial expression; the Greeks used to say, "a scorpion for a perch."

The scorpions in the passage, "My father hath chastised you with whips, but I will chastise you with scorpions" (1 Kings 12 : 11), must signify some instrument of scourging; probably they were thongs set with sharp iron points or nails resembling the scorpion's sting.

Spider.—Two Hebrew words—viz., 'accâbîsh and semâmîth—are rendered by "spider" in our version. In Job 8 : 14 it is said of the ungodly ("hypocrite"), "His hope shall be cut off, and his house shall be the house of an 'accâbîsh." In Isa. 59 : 5 the Jews are said to hatch adders' ("cockatrice") eggs and weave the web of the 'accâbîsh. There is not the slightest doubt that 'accâbîsh signifies a spider; the modern Arabic is 'ankabut, another form of the same word. In both of the scriptural passages allusion is made to the fragile nature of the spider's web, which the slightest violence will rupture: "They weave spiders' webs, but their webs serve not for clothing, neither can men cover themselves with their works." See verse 6 of Isa. 59.

Leeches and Worms.—Of the sub-kingdom Vermes, biblical notices of the horseleech and worm only occur. The former is mentioned only in Prov. 30 : 15: "The horseleech hath two daughters, crying, Give, give." The horseleech is common in the stagnant waters of Palestine. It has small teeth and cannot pierce the skin; but when it gets into the mouth or nostrils of cattle or horses as they drink, it is productive of serious mischief, causing much pain and loss of blood; so tenaciously do these bloodsuckers cling that they are often torn asunder by efforts made to extract them. The leech of commerce, or the medicinal leech, is still more abundant in Palestine than the horseleech. Other genera of discophorous annelids belonging to the leech family, such as Trochelia and Bdelia, are common in the waters of Syria.

Worm.—Three Hebrew words are rendered "worm" in our version, sâs, rimmâh and tola'ah. The first-named term probably denotes the larva of the clothes-moth; it occurs in Isa. 51 : 8: "The moth shall eat them up like a garment, and the sâs (worm) shall eat them like wool." The manna that the Israelites kept till the morning of a week-day "bred worms (tôlâim) and stank;" but there was no rimmâh (worm) in the manna gathered the night before the Sabbath and kept over it. Job says, "My flesh is clothed with rimmâh." 7 : 5; see also 17 : 14. As a symbol of that which is vile and despicable the worm occurs in Ps. 22 : 6; Isa. 41 : 14; as a figure to express the stings of a guilty conscience in another world the worm is used by our Lord, "Their worm shall not die." Mark 9 : 44, etc.

Anthozoa.—The class Anthozoa is represented in Scripture by the coral. The Hebrew word râmôth etymologically means "that which grows upward," and is with good reason understood to mean "coral." "No mention shall be made of coral, . . . for the price of wisdom is above rubies." Job 28 : 18. "Syria was thy merchant; . . . they occupied in thy fairs with emeralds and coral." Ezek. 27 : 16. The coral brought to Tyre by the Syrians would have been that of the Red Sea, which is most valuable, although good coral is obtained from the Mediterranean also. The coral is broken off from the rocks to which it is fixed by long hooked poles, and then drawn out. It may be mentioned that the Hebrew word rendered "price" in verse 18 of Job 28 literally means "a drawing out:" "The drawing out of wisdom is above the drawing out of coral." The red coral of commerce is composed of a large quantity of calcareous matter mixed with horny matter. It is the product of multitudes of little creatures of microscopic size called polypes or zoophytes.

TREES, PLANTS AND FLOWERS OF THE BIBLE.

CEDARS, OAKS, HYSSOP, FLAX, THISTLES, FIGS, GRAPES, MUSTARD, LILIES AND THE ROSE.

By W. Carruthers, F.R.S.

Introduction.—The wild flowers which year after year adorn the face of Palestine in the early spring with colors so varied and glowing that they surprise the western traveler are in striking contrast to everything else around them. The red-flowered anemone, the white daisy and the yellow marigold, which cover the undulating downs of Hebron in the beginning of the year, are the lineal descendants and the exact counterparts of those which cheered the eye of Abraham when, an exile from his fatherland, he pitched his tents in the land of promise. The tulips, poppies and anemones which abound in the pastures of Bethlehem are similarly like and related to those which David saw when he watched his father's flocks there. The mountains around the Sea of Galilee are adorned with the same "lilies" which supplied the Saviour with such an apposite illustration when he addressed to the crowds his sermon on the mount. All around has changed. The inhabitants of the land have come and gone again and again, leaving traces behind them in the ruins which abound in mountain, plain and desert alike. Palestine is a land of ruins, and these ruins tell the story of the successive possessors of the soil, of the Canaanite and Israelite, the Roman, the Christian and the Mohammedan, yet the bright and beautiful plants of the mountains and the valleys have remained unchanged through all these changes. One or two intruders have established themselves among the native vegetation, but without affecting the general aspect, except in one case, that of the prickly pear, which is now very abundant in Palestine, as it is in all the countries surrounding the Mediterranean.

Confining attention to the indigenous plants of Palestine, and taking advantage of the fact that these plants have remained the same throughout all the changes that have taken place during the historic period, I propose, under the head of "Trees, Plants and Flowers of the Bible," to place before my readers short sketches of the existing vegetation of the Holy Land, directing special attention to and describing at greater length those plants mentioned in the sacred volume as they turn up in the order we follow. I shall proceed according to the natural system of classification adopted by botanists, and grouping the plants that are closely allied shall compare or contrast them with those familiar to us, and thus endeavor to give the non-scientific reader an intelligent acquaintance with them.

In this investigation it must be remembered that the names of plants employed in the Bible were those in use among the people, and that there is, consequently, the same want of precision as in the popular use of names at the present day, and the same difficulty in identifying the particular species of plants intended. Many of the terms are general, and the attempted correlation of such terms with particular plants is, of course, based on problematical grounds, and always more or less doubtful. To the general reader not a little obscurity was inevitably introduced into the Authorized Version of the Bible from the translators being ignorant of the plants of Palestine, and from the low state of botanical science at the beginning of the seventeenth century. One example will show the difficulties thus presented to the English reader. The various forms of the Hebrew el, which it is fair to suppose refer to the same plant, are rendered in different passages as "oak," "elm," "teil" and "plane," and simply in one place by the general word "tree."

The reference to the botanical knowledge of Solomon as an illustration of his wisdom implies a systematic acquaintance with the plants of Palestine, for "he spake of the trees, from the cedar tree that is in Lebanon, even unto the hyssop that springeth out of the wall." But no other record exists of this knowledge; indeed, no work has come down to us from the Jews which throws any light on the vegetation of their country during the long time it was in their possession. They could not fail to notice the plants which so remarkably changed the whole aspect of the country in spring, and we consequently find that many of the metaphors and illustrations which give a beauty to passages in the Old Testament and a power to the teaching of our Lord and his disciples are derived from phenomena connected with the life and organization of familiar plants. Coles, in his "Art of Simpling," says truly: "There are in Scripture several expressions and similitudes, either concerning plants or derived from them, which cannot thoroughly be understood without this art;" and he quaintly adds: "If a divine were a good herbarist, he might be much more accurate in the interpretation of Scripture than many in our days are." No change has taken place in the two centuries that have elapsed since Coles wrote to affect the general accuracy of his statements, nor, indeed, was it possible, for our precise knowledge of the plants of Palestine is but of recent date.

Geographical Distribution.—Palestine may be divided into three botanical provinces: The province of the shore plain, the plants of which belong to the flora of the Mediterranean basin. The mountains which run down from the Lebanon range to the sea reduce this plain to a mere shore-line to the north of the Ladder of Tyre. Southward from this headland the plain gradually expands, being eight miles wide at Cæsarea, twelve at Joppa, and twenty at Gaza. It is interrupted by Carmel, which rises so abruptly from the sea as to leave scarce room for a road round its base. The soil of this shore region is light and sandy; it is very fertile where it is well watered, as in the north, but it is generally bare and parched, and to the south of Carmel for some distance inland it is more or less covered with loose drifting sand, which sometimes rises into mounds from fifty to two hundred feet high. The vegetation of this littoral region is the same as that of the islands and of both shores of the Mediterranean from the Straits of Gibraltar eastward, but somewhat modified by the local conditions of a wet and moist winter and an almost tropical summer.

The mountainous table-land, which constitutes the greater part of Palestine. This region is an extension southward of the great mountain ranges of Lebanon and Anti-Lebanon. It is divided into two parallel tracts by the Jordan valley. That to the west of the Jordan, in Palestine proper, begins with the mountains of Galilee, whose summits are rounded and covered more or less completely with forests of oak, terebinth, maple, etc., and the intervening valleys are well watered and fertile. To the south of the Plain of Esdraelon, which intersects this tract of table-land, the hills are rocky and more barren; they gradually become lower, until beyond Hebron they at last melt away into the desert. This elevated region presents a continuous line when seen from the sea, but a nearer inspection shows the line to be broken by numerous valleys, the courses of which are filled with water only during the rainy season. The eastern boundary toward the Jordan is more continuous, and the valleys which penetrate it are short and steep. Beyond Jordan the table-land, comprising the mountainous regions of Bashan and Moab, has much the same characters as on this side. The Jordan boundary is well defined; eastward and southward the mountains gradually die out toward the desert. The plants of this mountainous table-land belong to what has been called the Oriental region, characterized by the presence of cedars, oaks and planes among the trees, and of spine-bearing species of Caryophyllaceæ Astragalus, Compositæ and Plumbagineæ among the herbs. This is a northern flora, finding its limits southward in Judea and Moab, and stretching northward into Russia and Middle Europe.

The valley of the Jordan is a singular depression in the great table-land of Palestine, about one hundred and fifty miles in length from Dan to the south of the Dead Sea, and with a tolerably uniform breadth of about twelve miles. It is bordered, as we have already seen, by high cliffs cut into by deep ravines. The unnatural depth of the valley gives it an almost tropical heat. The plants, unlike those of the mountain region, have a southern relationship, their affinities being with the vegetation of Arabia and Egypt.

The same picturesque variety characterizes the two great works of God, nature and revelation. The Bible is not a lesson-book of theology and morals; on the contrary, it consists of thrilling history and engaging biography, of stately argument and sacred song, of simple parable and friendly letter. So throughout nature and with that portion of the outer world with which we have specially to deal. The plants which cover the earth are not grouped together so as to exhibit their systematic classification, like what we find in the symmetrically-arranged plots of a botanic garden; they are scattered with apparent disorder, but with marvelous beauty, over the world—buttercups and daisies, oaks and pines, harebells and dandelions.

Classification.—The scientific investigator of the material world has similar work to undertake in his pursuits to that which occupies the scientific investigator of the written word. In elaborating his science the theologian has to select and classify the different doctrines scattered throughout the pages of the Bible, arranging them into a symmetrical whole where each has its true position and its proper importance.

All plants group themselves naturally into two great classes—those which have flowers and true seeds, called phænogams; and those without flowers and seeds, called cryptogams. Every true seed contains a minute plant, with a store of food laid up either within the plant or around it. The structure of this seed-plant divides the phænogams into two groups—the dicotyledons, in which the plant has two seed-leaves or cotyledons, and the monocotyledons, which have but a single seed-leaf. These differences, though somewhat recondite, are, however, very important, and are accompanied by others still more obvious, which pervade the whole aspect and structure of the two groups of plants characterized by them.

In the further division of the dicotyledonous phænogams the flower is of the first importance; its value does not, however, depend on the number of the parts, as Linnæus held, but on the individual structure and relative position of those parts. Consequently, the plants which are placed first in the systematic arrangement of the vegetable kingdom are those characterized by having all the parts of the flower free from each other; and because all these parts spring independently from the end of the flower-stalk, called the receptacle or thalamus, this group of plants is called the Thalamifloræ. The natural order generally placed at the head of the thalamifloral flowering-plants is the Ranunculaceæ, an order familiar to us from childhood, because some of the best-known and most common of our wild flowers are members of it.

Ranunculaceæ.—The pile-wort, which covers with its golden flowers the moist corners of our meadows and pastures in spring, and the yellow buttercup, which enlivens our woods and fields in the early summer with its brilliant yellow flowers, are familiar representatives of this family. Though not so obvious, yet no less beautiful, are the water forms of the same genus, the white flowers of which adorn our ditches and ponds throughout summer. With these and other species of Ranunculus are associated in this natural order many well-known herbs and some shrubs which agree in the general structure of the flower, though they differ greatly in appearance. Thus, besides the regular and complete flower of the buttercup, and the larger and gaudier ones of the peony, there are the spurred petals of the larkspur and columbine and the hooded calyx and hammer-like petals of the poisonous monk's-hood, and lastly the apetalous flowers of the clematis and anemone. The want of the petals, the parts which usually give its beauty to the flower, in the two last-named genera is fully compensated by their flowers being furnished with large and often brightly-colored sepals. The plants of this order grow all over the globe, but they are especially abundant in the temperate and arctic regions of the northern hemisphere. They all possess a colorless acrid juice, more or less poisonous; and though in some cases, like monk's-hood, the active principle of this juice is fixed and powerful, it is generally dissipated by heat, or even by the drying to which meadow-grasses are subjected when they are converted into hay.

This order is largely represented in the mountainous region of Palestine. Some generic forms which are unknown to us, or known only in our gardens, are added to those with which we are familiar. The species of buttercup are more numerous than with us, no less than twenty-three having been recorded from the pastures and hill-sides of the Holy Land, the most remarkable being Ranunculus Asiaticus, the brilliant scarlet flowers of which abound on the Mount of Olives and elsewhere in early spring. The common traveler's joy of our hedges, so often used in making rustic bowers, reaches Palestine, but it is not so abundant as three other species of the genus, which have large and brightly-colored flowers. The hoary appearance which the white feathery appendages to the fruit give to these plants has suggested the common name of "old man's beard." Some larkspurs, which delight in dry and sandy soils, occur in the desert regions on the south and east of Palestine, while others are found in the more fertile soils of the mountain ranges. The pheasant's eye, naturalized in many places in Europe, is a common plant in the Holy Land, and several other species of the same genus occur with it, some of which are cultivated in our gardens as border-plants.

Several plants of this order largely contribute to the brilliant spring vegetation of Palestine, and of these the most remarkable is a species of anemone. This is more nearly related to the pasque-flower of the English chalk downs, with its bright purple flowers and finely-cut leaves, than to the common anemone, which in early spring everywhere clothes our woods with its more entire leaves and white flowers. This Eastern anemone has a large bright-colored flower, purple, blue, white or more generally brilliant scarlet, often with a crown of a different hue in the centre, from which it has derived its specific name. So striking an object in the landscape of Palestine is this plant that Tristram suggests that it may be the "lily of the field" to which the Saviour referred in the sermon on the mount. "It is found," he says, "everywhere, on all soils and in all situations. It covers the Mount of Olives, it carpets all the plains; nowhere does it attain a more luxurious growth than by the shores of the Lake of Galilee. In the olive-yards of Ephraim, on the bare hills of Nazareth alike, there is no part of the country where it does not shine. Certainly if, in the wondrous richness of bloom which characterizes the land of Israel in spring, any one plant can claim pre-eminence, it is the anemone, the most natural flower for our Lord to pluck and seize upon as an illustration, whether walking in the fields or sitting on the hill-side." It is most probable that the phrase "lilies of the field" (Matt. 6 : 28) should be taken as a general term, for in the next sentence it is covered by the more general expression, "the grass of the field" (verse 30); and it is certain that among the floral treasures of Palestine none could more forcibly recall the royal scarlet of Solomon's robes than the richly-colored, velvet-like flower of this most abundant anemone. And the lesson of trust in God would be specially brought home to the Saviour's auditors when they realized how the fields that had been left dry, parched and lifeless by the autumn sun were now covered by a Father's hand with a wild flower whose dazzling color no royal dyer could equal. The use of dry weeds and grass for heating ovens is as common in the East at the present day as it was in the time of our Lord, so that the figure has lost none of its power to the Oriental, and would vividly suggest child-like confidence in a Father who so cared for what would thus speedily wither and be completely destroyed.

The prophet Isaiah refers to a plant of the order Ranunculaceæ (28 : 25–27) under the name ketzach, translated in our version "fitches"—that is, vetch, a small wild pea. The same interpretation is given also in Luther's German and in the generally used French translations. But there can be little doubt that the plant meant is the fennel-flower. Several species of the genus to which this plant belongs are indigenous to Palestine, and the one named is extensively cultivated not only in the Holy Land, but in other countries in the East, on account of its hot and aromatic seeds, which are used both as a condiment and as a medicine. The plant is an annual, about a foot high, with finely-cut fennel-like leaves and bluish flowers, in the centre of which are produced the fruits, consisting of five or six long capsules terminating in hard slender spines. Each capsule opens along the upper margin when ripe, and liberates numerous small black seeds, from which the plant has received the name Nigella, as it obtained that of fennel-flower from its leaves. These black seeds are sold on all the little provision-stalls in the bazaars of Palestine and Egypt, and are chiefly used to season bread by being sprinkled over it either before or after it is baked. The case with which the seeds are freed from the capsules exactly accords with the allusion made to them by the prophet: "The fitches are not threshed with a threshing instrument, neither is a cart-wheel turned about upon the cummin; but the fitches are beaten out with a staff, and the cummin with a rod." Isa. 28 : 27.

Berberideæ, Nymphæaceæ, Papaveraceæ and Fumariaceæ.—The plants belonging to these four orders, though they may be of little interest to the Bible student, must nevertheless be included in any notice of the plants of Palestine, as some of them supply important elements to the floral beauties of that land. The relation that they bear to the vegetation is nearly the same as that which we find them occupying in our flora; and ten out of the thirty species recorded from the Holy Land are plants which are indigenous also with us.

The berberids are represented among our native plants by the common barberry, a shrub not unfrequent in hedges and copses, and well known by its bunches of small yellow flowers and its yellow-colored bark and wood. It is a plant of interest in many ways. The school-boy amuses himself by exciting the fitful action of its irritable stamens, the botanist refers to its spines as examples of strangely-altered leaves, and the agriculturist finds that his suspicions as to its deleterious influence on his grain-crops are fully confirmed by the recent investigations of De Bary, which have established that the "smut," whose appearance is so much dreaded on the growing grain, is but another development of the "cluster-cup" of the barberry. The barberry of Palestine is found in the mountain-regions, and is a different but closely allied species to our plant, which it resembles in general appearance. Two humble weeds belonging to this order were noticed long ago by Rauwolf in his travels, the one called lion's leaf from a fancied resemblance of its leaf to the imprint of a lion's foot, and the other Bongardia. Both have tuberous roots; those of the latter plant are boiled or roasted and used as an article of food by the Persians; while those of the former, sometimes called lion's turnips, are bruised and employed instead of soap in washing woolen garments. Both plants have been collected by all recent botanical travelers. They occur in cultivated fields throughout the whole of Palestine.

The water-lilies are found only in Lake Merom, this being indeed almost the only locality in Palestine in which they could find the permanent water necessary to afford them a suitable habitat. The Nile was celebrated for its water-lilies, but the most remarkable of them, the nelumbium, has, like its companion the papyrus, disappeared from its ancient habitat. It is found in temperate and sub-tropical Asia, from Persia eastward to China and Japan. Herodotus describes two lilies in the Nile with sufficient accuracy to enable one to determine them as the nelumbium and the common white lotus. He says, "When the waters of the Nile have risen to their extremest height and all the fields are overflowed, there appears above the surface an immense quantity of plants of the lily species, which the Egyptians call the lotus; having cut down these, they dry them in the sun. The seed of the flowers, which resembles that of the poppy, they bake and make into a kind of bread; they also eat the root of this plant, which is round, of an agreeable flavor and about the size of an apple. There is a second species of the lotus, which grows in the Nile, and which is not unlike a rose. The fruit, which grows from the bottom of the root, resembles a wasps' nest; it is found to contain a number of kernels of the size of an olive-stone, which are very grateful either fresh or dried." Strabo also and Theophrastus mention the nelumbium as a native of Egypt. It was held in high esteem by the Egyptians, being used as an emblem of immortality, and often also made an object of worship. It was extensively employed as an architectural ornament, especially for the capitals of the pillars.

There are seven distinct species of poppy known in Palestine, and of these three are the same as plants that are familiar to us. These are the common red poppy (P. Rhœas) of our corn-fields, P. hybridum, with its globose bristly fruit, and P. Argemone, with long bristly fruit. The yellow-horned poppy ornaments the northern shores of Palestine as it does those of our country, and the blue-flowered Rœmeria Hybrida, which is very rare with us, is abundant in the corn-fields and cultivated grounds of the Holy Land.

The fumitories are a group of inconspicuous weeds, with irregular flowers and much-divided leaves, which are abundant in waste places and fields. Eleven species have been recorded from Palestine.

Cruciferæ.—The crucifers form a large and well-marked natural group of plants with a singularly uniform and easily recognizable type of flower. The cruciform arrangement of the four petals of which the flower is composed suggested the name of the order. The crucifers are most abundant in temperate and cold climates; they become mountain plants within the tropics. Europe and Asia Minor are their head-quarters, but they are scattered over the whole globe; they always form part of the scanty vegetation met with in the most distant boreal regions, and on the limits of the eternal snow on high mountains.

Whether as worthless weeds or beautiful garden flowers or valuable articles of food, they must have forced themselves on the attention of the most careless observers. The shepherd's purse, rockets and cresses are common wayside and hedge weeds; the small white flowers of the vernal whitlow-grass, the smallest of our land flowering-plants, brighten many a dreary waste in early spring; our meadows and pastures are adorned with the lady's smock, and our cultivated fields are too frequently overrun with rape, charlock and mustard. In the garden few plants surpass in fragrance the wallflower or the stock. But best known among the crucifers are the species which supply the important articles of food; the starch stored up in the roots of the turnip and radish, in the swollen stem of the kohl-rabi, in the leaves of the cabbage and in the inflorescence of the cauliflower make these plants valuable esculents, while the pungency of the horse-radish, water-cress, and especially of the mustard, secures for these an important place as accessories of our diet. The plants of this order bear very much the same relation to the vegetation of Palestine as they do to our flora. Though the actual number of species is nearly double those found here, the majority of them belong to the genera which include our species. The most curious crucifer in Palestine is one which finds its northern limit in the sub-tropical region in the lower valley of the Jordan.

The only cruciferous plant mentioned in Scripture is the mustard. It was referred to by our Lord on three different occasions, and occurs only in the Gospels where the narrative of these occasions are given. In the only instance when the apostles asked for a spiritual blessing from their Master, he replied, "If ye had faith as a grain of mustard-seed, ye might say unto this sycamine tree, Be thou plucked up by the root, and be thou planted in the sea; and it should obey you." Luke 17 : 6. Again, when teaching his disciples that no obstacle should be able to stand before a confiding faith in God, he said, "If ye have faith as a grain of mustard-seed, ye shall say unto this mountain, Remove hence to yonder place, and it shall remove." Matt. 17 : 20. And lastly, in the parable of the mustard-seed, the growth of the kingdom of heaven from the smallest beginnings to ultimate universality is compared to the growth of the mustard: "It is like a grain of mustard-seed, which, when it is sown in the earth, is less than all the seeds that be in the earth: but when it is sown, it groweth up, and becometh greater than all herbs, and shooteth out great branches; so that the fowls of the air may lodge under the shadow of it." Mark 4 : 31, 32.

In these passages the Saviour obviously refers to the smallness of the mustard-seed as a fact well known to his auditors. Indeed, the Jews used the phrase "small as a grain of mustard-seed" just as we similarly compare small things to a pepper-corn. The grain of mustard is not absolutely the smallest of all seeds, though it was popularly and proverbially so, and, moreover, the husbandman knew it as the smallest seed which passed through his hands. It is a small grain, producing a large result, the least of the husbandman's seeds becoming the greatest of the husbandman's herbs. This is the point of the parable, and gives the only sense in which the kingdom of heaven is like a grain of mustard-seed. "The mustard is a tiny seed which, sown in a favorable soil, shoots up and becomes to all intents a tree, so that there is no longer any proportion betwixt its 'shadowing ishroud' and the germ from which it sprang. Such is the kingdom of heaven; such is the history of real religion in an individual mind, in a community, in the world at large. Some word in season dropped into the ear or reverting to his memory, the desperado and blasphemer is converted; and that mustard-seed, that faithful saying, is developed into the Pilgrim's Progress or the Olney Hymns. The one copy of the Scriptures which had been brought away from the ship Bounty, and which at last changed into a Christian community the mutineers and their children, was a mustard-seed. The little text, 'The just by faith shall live,' in the mind of Martin Luther, was the mustard-seed from which shot up the glorious Reformation. The cradle of Bethlehem, the cross of Calvary—that cradle so obscure, that cross such a 'foolishness,' such a 'scandal'—were each of them a grain of mustard-seed, the little and unlikely germ from which a tree of life has risen, extending its branches over every continent and inviting beneath its canopy the millions of mankind."

Capperideæ.—Between three and four hundred plants scattered over the tropics and the countries bordering on them are known belonging to the caper family. Their northern limit in the Old World is reached on the European shores of the Mediterranean. The plants are herbs or shrubs, seldom trees, which agree in many essential characters with the crucifers, and not a few of them possess the acrid or pungent qualities common in that order. The best known plant of the family is Capparis spinosa, the unopened flower-buds of which, pickled in vinegar, are the common caper, so largely used as a condiment because of their agreeably pungent and slightly bitter taste. It is a trailing shrub with numerous slender stems armed with recurved or nearly straight spines, placed at the base of the leaves. The broadly ovate leaves are leathery and quite smooth. The flowers are white, with a loose bunch of many long purple anthers in the centre, and the fruit is pear-shaped and borne on a long stalk. It is found springing out of the face of rocks and walls. Sicily is the principal seat of its cultivation for pickling, but it is indigenous to the whole Mediterranean region, and is a common plant in Egypt and Palestine and in all the intervening desert. Three centuries ago Rauwolf found it around Jerusalem; and its patches of bright green, contrasting remarkably with the light-colored rocks on the face of which it grows, have arrested the attention of all travelers. On the face of the mount of temptation, overhanging Jericho, the caper was letting down its festoons of beautiful blossom in the month of January. I also found it in the gorge of the Litany or Leontes. On the sandy plain between Jericho and the Jordan, at the south-east end of the Dead Sea and the plains of Shittim, we found growing plentifully on the ground the variety which has been distinguished as Capparis Ægyptiaca, and the trailing branches were often three or four feet long. Three species of a second genus (Cleome) of the caper family occur in the desert to the south of Palestine, and one of these reaches north to the depressed region of the Dead Sea. These plants are small and unimportant annual herbs, somewhat resembling the long-podded cruciferous weeds of our fields. The special interest of the caper family here is that several authors have identified the hyssop of Scripture with Capparis spinosa. Sprengel first suggested this opinion, which has been exhaustively investigated by Dr. Forbes Royle, and has been adopted with more or less caution by the great majority of writers and travelers in recent times.

To enable us to appreciate the characters that the hyssop of the Bible possesses, we must recall the passages in which it is referred to. The expiatory sacrifices of the Old Testament economy, like the one Sacrifice of the New Testament, were God's appointed means of removing sin and reconciling the sinner to himself by the "shedding of blood." In some of these sacrifices the relation between the shed blood and the transgressor was made manifest by the sprinkling on him of part of the blood. This was done with a bunch of hyssop. The writer of the Epistle to the Hebrews thus refers to its frequent use in the Jewish services: "When Moses had spoken every precept to all the people according to the law, he took the blood of calves and of goats, with water, and scarlet wool, and hyssop, and sprinkled both the book, and all the people, saying, This is the blood of the testament which God hath enjoined unto you. Moreover he sprinkled with blood both the tabernacle, and all the vessels of the ministry. And almost all things are by the law purged with blood; and without shedding of blood is no remission." Heb. 9 : 19–22. The Psalmist, having in his view this frequent use of hyssop in the ceremonial law as the means by which the virtue of the sacrifice was transferred to the transgressor, applies it figuratively to the purification of the soul from guilt when he prays, "Purge me with hyssop, and I shall be clean." Ps. 51 : 7. The first recorded use of hyssop as a blood-sprinkler and the first reference to the plant in the Bible is on the eve of the Exodus, when the Israelites employed it to sprinkle the door-posts with the blood of the paschal lamb: "Ye shall take a bunch of hyssop, and dip it in the blood that is in the bason, and strike the lintel and the two side-posts with the blood." Ex. 12 : 22. Reference is made to hyssop in the gospel narrative in connection with the crucifixion of the Saviour: "After this, Jesus knowing that all things were now accomplished, that the scripture might be fulfilled, saith, I thirst. Now there was set a vessel full of vinegar: and they filled a sponge with vinegar, and put it upon hyssop, and put it to his mouth." John 19 : 28, 29. The cedar was the glory of Lebanon and the pride of every Jew, but it was not more familiar to him than the plant which was in such constant use in the purifying services of his religion. The tall cedar and the humble hyssop would at once suggest to him the most extensive range in the vegetable world.

Resedaceæ, Cistineæ, Violaceæ and Polygalaceæ.—The mignonette family consists of a small and unimportant group of plants confined to the Old World, and chiefly to the Mediterranean region, with the exception of two species—viz., Reseda luteola and R. lutea. The first is the dyer's weed, which was at one time extensively cultivated as a dye-stuff, supplying, according to the different mordaunts employed, a green, yellow or blue color. Both species are without odor, and in this respect they are in striking contrast to R. odorata, the remarkable fragrance of which has given it a foremost place in our gardens for more than a century. This plant is cultivated everywhere in Palestine as with us, and though met with as an outcast from gardens has not been observed in a wild state. It is said to be a native of Egypt. Four other species occur in Palestine, one of which, R. lutea, is a British species, and another, R. alba, is naturalized in maritime localities in England. Several other species of this family, belonging to the sub-tropical flora of the south, creep up from Arabia and Egypt to the desert borders of Palestine, and one with a berry fruit (Ochradenus baccatus) is found as far north as Jericho, as well as in the localities around the Dead Sea.

The plants of the rock-rose family are most abundant in the countries around the Mediterranean. They are small shrubs with simple leaves and large brightly-colored flowers, which open only once, and then perish. They consequently never last longer than a day, expanding under the influence of the bright sun in the morning, and perishing with the setting sun of the evening. They do not open in dull weather when there is no sunshine. The largest genus in the family receives its name, Helianthemum (sun-flower), from this obvious characteristic. Their large pink or yellow flowers make many of the species favorites in our gardens; but as they are southern plants, they are not quite hardy, and require protection in the winter. Our indigenous flora contains four species, all belonging to the genus Helianthemum. Three of these are rare and local plants, but the fourth adorns our dry pastures with its bright yellow flowers all through the summer months. Ten species are met with in Palestine; the large and beautiful flowers of several of them supply a more striking feature to the landscape than their humbler representatives at home. The large pink flowers of Cistus villosus are said to give a glow to Mount Carmel in April which is not inferior to that produced by the heather on the mountains of Scotland. Although the rock-rose is not referred to in the Bible, it is generally believed that this odoriferous product is the substance referred to under the name lot, rendered "myrrh" in our version.

Few plants are greater favorites in the garden or the field than the violets. Our native flora contains eight species, the best known of which is the sweet violet that in early spring scents our hedge-banks and finds a corner in almost every garden. The species extends through Europe to Asia Minor, but has not yet been seen nearer to Palestine than Aleppo. Four species are, however, included in the indigenous vegetation of the Holy Land, but they belong to that northern flora which finds its southern limits in the mountain regions of the country. They are small plants, and are only met with on the Lebanon and Anti-Lebanon ranges, and there high up among the cedars.

The milkworts belong also to the same northern type of flora as the violets. They are represented by three small plants, one of which (Polygala vulgaris) ornaments our grassy banks throughout the length and breadth of the land with its blue, white or pink blossoms. In Palestine there are two similar species, which occur in Lebanon, coming farther down the mountain-sides than the violets, and almost reaching the shore at Sidon.

Caryophylleæ, Frankeniaceæ, Paronychiaceæ and Molluginеæ.—The plants of the four orders here grouped together, while they exhibit many important points of difference, are yet related to each other by so many essential characters that they naturally arrange themselves in one great family. The position of the stamens and the presence or absence of the corolla, which generally supply valuable characters for classification, are of importance here only in relation to the minor groups in which the plants are arranged.

The pink family (Caryophylleæ) consists of rather more than a thousand species of, for the most part, inconspicuous annual or perennial herbs, found in the temperate and frigid regions of the world, chiefly in the northern hemisphere. Many species of Dianthus and Silene have handsome flowers, and the abundant star-like blossoms of some stitch-worts whiten our hedge-banks in early summer; but the majority of the plants of the order are small and have inconspicuous flowers. Our flora contains nearly sixty species, some being the most common weeds in cultivated grounds and waste places and by the waysides, such as the chickweeds, catch-flies, spurrys and stitch-worts. Boissier records eighty-five species from Palestine, the principal portion of which are found only on the high mountains of the north; a few are desert weeds which occur in the Dead Sea region, and the remainder are met with in stony places and cultivated fields over Palestine. Among these common plants are many that are familiar to us, such as the common chickweed, mouse-ear and soapwort.

The translators of our version have introduced into the text the name of a plant belonging to the pink family—the cockle—as their interpretation of the Hebrew baeshah in Job 31 : 40: "Let thistles grow instead of wheat, and cockle instead of barley." Various attempts have been made to connect this word with a special plant. The Seventy in their translation rendered it "bramble bush;" the Vulgate, Syriac and some other early versions have translated it vaguely as "thorn." Celsius considers it to be the aconite, while the hemlock and the nightshade have each been advocated by others. The best authors see no reason for giving up the authorized translation, and consequently consider that our pink-flowered cockle, a very troublesome weed to farmers, or one of its varieties, is the plant intended. The plant is indeed found within the Palestine area, but only as an advanced member of the northern flora, and it is not met with farther south than the mountain ranges of Lebanon and Anti-Lebanon, and consequently not in the cornfields of the country.

The sea-heath family (Frankeniaceæ) contains some thirty species of small plants chiefly found on the coasts of temperate or warm countries. They probably belong to a single genus. In our flora the family is represented by one species, a small plant spreading close on the ground, with wiry stems, numerous tufted leaves and inconspicuous rose-colored flowers, found chiefly in the salt marshes on the south-eastern coast of England. Two species of similar-looking plants are found in Palestine on the shores of the Levant.

The whitow-worts (Paronychiaceæ) are a larger family, consisting of somewhat over one hundred species of humble tufted plants with small leaves and minute flowers, occurring generally in sandy places. Six species are found with us, and about the same number in the sandy fields of Palestine. The family is more numerously represented in the Sinai region and in the deserts to the south of the Holy Land.

The carpet-weeds are a similar group of small inconspicuous weeds found in the warmer regions of the world and having but one species in Palestine—a glaucous plant with small white flowers, found in the northern parts of the country.

The tamarisks are shrubs or trees with erect slender branches, densely covered with very small scale-like leaves. They have somewhat the appearance of the cypress, and are often mistaken by hasty observers for coniferous plants. The numerous small flowers are borne in catkin-like spikes at or near the tips of the branches, and cover the plant, when the flowers are open, with a mass of white or rose color, which almost hides from view the bright green of the foliage. The plants of the order are exclusively confined to the temperate and warmer countries of the northern hemisphere, and usually grow by the sea-side, but are also met with on the margins of rivers and in arid plains. The basin of the Mediterranean is their headquarters. The tree and its products were much valued by the Arabs; their great physician, Avicenna, in his System of Medicine, repeatedly dilates upon it, and recommends its different parts, as well as the astringent galls which are often found on it, as valuable medicines. The wood is much esteemed for making vessels because of its compactness and durability, and the charcoal produced from it is so much prized that in some districts the Arabs have almost if not entirely extirpated the tree in order to convert its wood into charcoal. The young leaves are a favorite food of camels and sheep.

The tamarisk has still greater interest to the Bible student because of the connection which many maintain it had with the manna on which God fed the Jews during their wanderings in the desert. Six days after leaving Egypt they arrived at the Wilderness of Sin; here they murmured against Moses for bringing them from Egypt to die of hunger in the wilderness. God, through Moses, promised to rain bread from heaven for their use; and until they ate of the old corn at Gilgal forty years afterward, the wilderness around their camp was covered each morning, except that of the Sabbath, with this bread which the Lord gave them. When the morning sun had dispelled the dew, they found a substance on the ground small as the hoar-frost, round like coriander-seed and white like bdellium. Its taste was like that of oil newly expressed from the olive, or of wafers made with honey. It was gathered in the morning, for when the sun waxed hot it melted; an omer (about three quarts) was taken for each individual, but on the morning of the sixth day two omers were collected, and what remained over till the seventh day was good, while any that might have been kept over on the other days of the week bred worms and putrefied in the morning. It was treated like corn, being ground in mills or pounded in the mortar, and was boiled, baked in pans or made into cakes.

The substance now called manna is the saccharine juice of different plants which exudes through the bark when injured, and is produced generally in greatest abundance in very warm weather. In some cases the sweet juice escapes through a natural rupture in the bark of the plant, in others its production is induced by the punctures of an insect, while in others it flows through incisions made in the bark for the purpose of obtaining it. The manna of commerce is obtained by the last method from the flowering or manna ash, a tree belonging to the Mediterranean region, and cultivated in Calabria for the production of this substance.

The conditions under which "the bread of heaven" was found and the properties it possessed were very different from those of any of the known mannas. It was found covering the surface of the wilderness, wherever the Israelites went, as soon as the heavy night dews disappeared, and not on or under the two manna-producing plants of the wilderness, the tamarisk tree or the camel's thorn. It was supplied, not in small quantities, but in inexhaustible profusion. It was found every morning all the year round for forty years, except on the morning of each seventh day, when the supply was completely suspended. It was prepared for use by processes which could not be applied to saccharine substances, being ground in a mill and afterward boiled or baked. It was not used as a condiment, but formed the food of the hosts of Israel all through the wilderness. Mannas are preserved without difficulty, but this substance very speedily decayed, putrefying and breeding worms if kept more than twenty-four hours; and yet this property was suspended once every week in respect of the Sabbath supply. Every day, when the sun waxed hot, it melted and evaporated, leaving the face of the wilderness without any indication of its recent presence; but mannas do not evaporate. Wherever the manna is referred to in Scripture it is invariably regarded as a miraculous food sent directly from God. The Lord Jesus, when he accepted the manna as a type of himself—the living Bread which came down from heaven—corrects the error of those who, in seeking a sign from him, insinuated that the bread from heaven given by Moses by which he secured the confidence of their fathers was a greater miracle than the feeding of the five thousand, and says that it was the gift of God, and not of Moses.

An omer of manna was taken by Aaron in accordance with divine instruction, and placed in a golden pot, to be preserved as an abiding memorial of God's care of his people. The pot was placed with Aaron's rod inside the ark, which held the tables of the law. Heb. 9 : 4. It would seem, however, that when Solomon removed the ark of the covenant from Zion to the temple the pot of manna had been lost, for it is particularly specified that then there was nothing within the ark but the two tables of stone. 1 Kings 8 : 9.

Elatineæ, Hypericineæ, Malvaceæ, Tiliaceæ and Lineæ.—The water-peppers (Elatineæ) are a small order of marsh annuals scattered over the globe, and represented with us by two minute and somewhat rare plants which form a moss-like turf on the margins of lakes and ponds that often extends for some distance under the water. Their acrid properties have suggested for them our popular name of water-peppers, though they more resemble small chickweeds. A single species closely allied to one of our forms has been observed by Kotschy near Joppa.

The St. John's worts (Hypericineæ) are a group of plants, generally of a shrubby character, which are almost confined to the temperate regions of the earth, being found only on mountains in warmer climes. They have usually smooth leaves, with immersed pellucid glands and conspicuous yellow flowers. Their ornamental appearance has given them a favorite place in shrubberies. Our nine species, belonging to the large genus Hypericum, are chiefly found on dry situations in hedge-banks or in copses. A dozen species of the same genus occur in Palestine, chiefly in the Lebanon and Anti-Lebanon ranges. Only a single one (H. lanuginosum) has been observed in the lower country, and this has been detected in the neighborhood of Jerusalem and on Mount Carmel. The common species (H. perforatum), found in all our woods and hedge-banks, occurs on the shores of Syria and on Lebanon.

The mallows (Malvaceæ) form a considerable group of prominent plants found all over the world except in regions of extreme cold. They are generally shrubs, yet small herbs are found in the order as well as some of the largest trees, such as the enormous baobab of Africa and the scarcely smaller one of Northern Australia. The flowers are often large and brightly colored, and the style is always surrounded by numerous stamens united to form a tube around it. The leaves are large and more or less divided. The plants are furnished with a considerable amount of mucilage, but have no special virtues. They supply, however, a large quantity of textile materials, sometimes from the strong fibres of the bark, but chiefly from the fine soft filaments which cover the seeds of the cotton-plants.

Although represented by only five species of indigenous plants, the mallows form a somewhat conspicuous portion of our native flora, because two species with large lilac or purple flowers are everywhere common by roadsides and in waste places. The others are less common: one, the tree-mallow, is found on rocks by the sea-side; another, the marsh-mallow, occurs in maritime marshes.

Some eighteen species are known in Palestine, and three of these are found in our own country, two being the common wayside mallows (Malva rotundifolia and M. sylvestris), and the other the marsh-mallow (Athœa officinalis). The gay pink-flowered shrub which is so familiar an ornament of our shrubberies in autumn, called Althœa frutex, is a Syrian plant. It is the Hibiscus syriacus, a plant which, though it grows so freely with us, appears to have become extinct in the localities where it was formerly observed in Syria. The plants in this order which are of most importance to man are those belonging to the small genus Gossypium, which have their seeds covered with the long hairy filaments called cotton. One species (G. herbaceum) is a native of India, and its natural distribution westward extended probably to Southern Arabia. It has been always used for the manufacture of cloth in India. Four centuries before our era Herodotus refers to this plant in his account of the products of India, when he says that "the wild trees in that country bear fleeces as their fruit, surpassing those of sheep in beauty and excellence, which the Indians make garments of." The use of cotton in Persia and Southern Arabia is probably as ancient as in India. The date of its introduction into Egypt cannot be determined; there is reason to believe that it was known to the Egyptians before the time of the Greek conquest, B. C. 333.

The conquest of Alexander made the Greeks acquainted with cotton. The wool-bearing trees of India surprised his soldiers, and the accounts of these wonders by his admiral Nearchus, and by Aristobulus, one of his generals, have been preserved. "The trees from which the Indians make cloths have a leaf like the black mulberry, but the whole plant resembles the dog-rose. They plant them in the plains, arranged in rows, so that they look like vines at a distance. They bear no fruit, but the capsule containing the wool is, when closed, about the size of a quince; when ripe, it expands, so as to let the wool escape, which is woven into cloths." The Eastern name for cotton was introduced into the languages of Europe when the substance itself became known. The Sanskrit kurpasa is converted into karpas in Esth. 1 : 6 (a term certainly of foreign origin), into κάρπασος of Greek authors, and carbasus in the Latin language. The only reference to cotton in Scripture is in the passage just quoted, which contains an account of the decorations of the royal palace of Ahasuerus and its courts on the occasion of a great festival given to his people. The sense is obscured in our version by karpas being rendered "green" instead of cotton, the passage reading: "Where there were white, green and blue hangings," instead of hangings of white and blue cotton cloth. The translators have followed the Chaldee paraphrase, although the true meaning had been given both in the Septuagint and the Vulgate. Even if cotton were not at that time a product of Southern Persia, it is more than likely that when the Persian empire extended to India and its court possessed every luxury, the brightly-colored hangings of the neighboring country would form part of the furnishings of the palace.

At the present day cotton is somewhat extensively cultivated in Palestine, the species being Gossypium herbaceum. A small proportion of the produce is made into cloth, but the principal portion is exported to France. The Arab women are almost entirely clad in blue cotton that has been spun, woven and dyed by their own hands.

Cotton grows most luxuriantly in our Southern States; it is raised there more cheaply and in larger quantities than in any other part of the world, and is exported in immense quantities to Europe.

The flax family (Lineæ) consists of a small group of herbs found principally in temperate regions, in no way remarkable except for their valuable fibrous bark, which, when prepared, forms the flax of commerce. Besides the common flax, only known as a cultivated plant or as an escape from cultivation, our flora contains four indigenous species of this order. These are the all-seed (Radiola millegrana), one of our smallest flowering plants, found in damp sandy places, but often overlooked from its minute size, the white-flowered purging flax so common in pastures, and two blue-flowered species allied to the cultivated flax. Boissier records eleven species of Linum from Palestine besides the common flax (L. usitatissimum), which is there, as with us, extensively cultivated for its fibre. Flax was the most important of all the fibre-producing plants to the ancient inhabitants of Egypt and Syria. It is frequently referred to in the Bible, and various names are applied to the plant and its raw or manufactured products. The most general term is pishtah, the primary meaning of which is the plant itself, and then it was applied to the products, being used with the same latitude of meaning as we use the word "cotton" at the present day. It is applied to the plant itself in the account of the seventh plague sent by God on the land of Egypt. The flax-crop was ready to be harvested when it was completely destroyed by a terrible hail-storm. Ex. 9 : 31. The word is also applied to the plant in the narrative of Rahab's protection of the two spies, when she hid them under the bundle of flax which was drying on the house-top. Josh. 2 : 6. The flax, or raw material in the first stage of the manufacture, is designated by the same word when it is recorded that the new cords with which his brethren bound Samson, so as to deliver him to the Philistines, "became as flax that was burnt with fire" and fell from his hands. Judg. 15 : 14. It is further used to denote the flax when made into wicks for lamps: "The smoking flax shall he not quench" (Isa. 42 : 3); into measuring lines: "Behold a man with a line of flax in his hand, and a measuring reed" (Ezek. 40 : 3); and into the dresses of the priests: "They shall be clothed with linen garments." Ezek. 44 : 17. Of the less comprehensive words the first used is shesh, generally translated "fine linen." This word is probably of Egyptian origin, and was employed to characterize the yarn made from the flax. It has been thought that it may be the same word as the Hebrew numeral six, and that it was applied to the yarn because it was composed of six threads; others hold that it is derived from a root meaning white, and was appropriately applied to flax because of its color when prepared. When Pharaoh made Joseph ruler over Egypt, he "arrayed him in vestures of fine linen" (shesh) (Gen. 41 : 42); so also among the offerings for the tabernacle presented by the children of Israel from the materials they had brought out of Egypt were "fine linen" (Ex. 25 : 4); and of the same material were made the curtains of the tabernacle, with the door curtains, and the veil that enclosed the holy place. Ex. 26 : 1, 31, 36. Bad is a word employed in describing the linen dresses which were worn in religious ceremonies, and may refer to the cloth made from the shesh or yarn. The tunic, turban and drawers of the priests, which in Exodus (39 : 27, 28) are ordered to be made of shesh, are in Leviticus (6 : 10) to be made of bad, establishing that these were the same material, if the words were not precisely synonymous. In the preparation for the erection of the tabernacle the wise-hearted women are said to have spun "fine linen" with their hands; and this continued to be the occupation as well as the dress of women in the days of Solomon (Prov. 31 : 22, incorrectly rendered "silk") and afterward. Ezek. 16 : 10, 13. Butz is always translated "fine linen," and is employed to designate the robes worn by kings (1 Chron. 15 : 27) and rich men (Esth. 8 : 15), and the official dresses used by the Levite choir when the ark was brought into the temple (2 Chron. 5 : 12), as well as the veil of the temple. 2 Chron. 3 : 14. The word is probably of Assyrian origin, and is applied to "fine linen" obtained from the East (Ezek. 27 : 16) while shesh is employed to designate the "fine linen" brought to the market at Tyre from Egypt. v. 7. The βύσσος of the New Testament is obviously the Greek form of this word, and is similarly employed to designate costly dresses like that worn by Dives (Luke 16 : 19), and those in which the Lamb's wife and the armies in heaven are arrayed. Rev. 19 : 8, 14. The word is synonymous with the λίνον of Rev. 15 : 6, in which the angels were dressed who were the bearers of the seven last plagues. On the other hand the Greek λίνον is used as the equivalent of pishtah in the rendering of the prophetic account of our Saviour, "the smoking flax shall he not quench." Matt. 12 : 20. Sadin is applied to the cloth made from linen, and is used in speaking of the thirty sheets which Samson promised his companions at his marriage if they declared his riddle (Judg. 14 : 12, 13), as well as of the dresses made from this cloth. Isa. 3 : 23; Prov. 31 : 24. Etun occurs only once, where it is said to be a product of Egypt. Prov. 7 : 16. The ὀθόνη of the New Testament is the Greek form of this word. It is used to characterize the great sheet let down from heaven in Peter's vision at Joppa (Acts 10 : 11), which accords very well with the use of the word in the passage in the Proverbs. The diminutive form ὀθόνιον is employed by John to designate the linen clothes in which Joseph wrapped the body of Jesus. John 19 : 40; 20, 5, 6, 7. Matthew and Mark employ the word σινδών for the same linen cloth, while Luke uses both words in the same passage. He says, Joseph "went unto Pilate and begged the body of Jesus, and he took it down and wrapped it in linen" (σινδών); and afterward, in describing the visit of Peter to the empty grave, he writes that "stooping down he beheld the linen clothes (ὀθόνια) laid by themselves." Luke 23; 24. The only other reference in the New Testament to linen is in the account by the evangelist Mark of the remarkable incident that occurred in Gethsemane at the betrayal of the Lord, when a young man who was following him left his only covering, a linen garment, in the hands of his captors, and fled away naked. Mark 14 : 51, 52.

The use of flax as a textile material in Palestine and the neighboring countries dates from the earliest times. Joseph was arrayed in fine linen when he was elevated to be ruler over Egypt. The reference to the miraculous destruction of the flax crop establishes that the cultivation of flax was an important branch of agriculture in Egypt before the Israelites left that country. Egypt was, indeed, the great centre of the linen manufacture in ancient times. The principal part of the dress of the people was made of linen, and it was the only material used for the dress of the priests. The city of Panopolis was inhabited by linen-weavers. All the mummy-cloths are composed exclusively of linen; and though the finest specimens are coarse compared with what can be produced at the present day, they are fine considering the appliances for preparing and weaving which were in use at that time. There are several interesting representations of the cultivation and preparation of flax preserved in the sculptured tombs of Egypt. Roscellini figures one from the Shunmer tomb, and Hamilton another from the grotto of El Kab. In these the plant is seen to rise straight from the soil, and to reach about the middle of the body of the husbandmen. It is pulled up by the roots and bound into bundles or sheaves to be carried to the man who separates the seed from the stem by means of a simple rippling instrument. It is then exposed to the action of water and the sun, in order to separate the fibres from the rest of the stem. It was for this purpose that Rahab had placed the stalks of the flax on the house-top which she employed to hide the spies.

The early cultivation of flax in Palestine is testified to by this narrative of the spies' visit to Jericho, showing as it does that it was an important article of husbandry there before the Israelites got possession of the country. In comparatively modern times it has been superseded as the material for the ordinary dress of the inhabitants of Syria by the cotton-plant, which supplies, with less care in the cultivation and less trouble in preparation, an equally valuable substance.

Geraniaceæ, Zygophyllaceæ, Rutaceæ and Aurantiaceæ.—The geraniums (Geraniaceæ) are a group of strong-scented herbs, easily distinguished by the long beak rising through the centre of their fruits, to which the seed-capsules are attached by a long arm. This character suggested the name geranium to the Greeks because of its supposed resemblance to the bill of a crane, and the same notion is retained in our popular name crane's-bill. The plants of this order are found all over the world. Our flora contains fifteen species belonging to the two genera Geranium and Erodium. The rose, purple or red flowers of the twelve species of Geranium, chiefly adorn our hedgerows and waste places, a few being found in meadows, pastures or woods. The three species of Erodium occur on waste places near the sea. Twenty species of the order have been observed in Palestine. One of these (Biebersteinia multifida) belongs to a small anomalous group which has no beak to the fruit; it is found on the Lebanon mountains. A single species of the African Monsonia reaches the Wady el-Arish, in the valley of the River of Egypt.

The bean-capers (Zygophyllaceæ) are shrubs or herbs with jointed and generally spiny spreading branches, found in the warmer regions of the globe, especially of the northern hemisphere. Many are desert plants; they form one of the most striking features of the vegetation of the desert-region between Egypt and Palestine; a few are found in the depressed sub-tropical region of the Lower Jordan, and four species are frequent throughout Palestine. Caltrops, the most common of these, is a spreading spiny plant, producing a dry fruit, also covered with spines; it grows in dry and barren places, and is very annoying both to man and beast.

When our Lord warned the multitude against false prophets, he said, "Ye shall know them by their fruits. Do men gather grapes of thorns, or figs of thistles?" Matt. 7 : 16. A more appropriate illustration could not be found among the fruits of Palestine, as there does not exist a more remarkable contrast than that between the dry, shelly and spinous capsule of the caltrops and the fleshy, velvety compound fruit of the fig.

The rue family (Rutaceæ) comprises a large number of plants of very different external form—trees, shrubs, herbs—but all distinguished by having pellucid dots on their leaves. The dots are glands filled with a pungent, bitter, aromatic, volatile oil. The plants of the order are distributed over the world, except in cold regions. We have no representative among our wild flowers, but the common rue is a familiar plant, being cultivated in our gardens. It is a small shrub with much-divided bluish-green leaves and yellowish flowers. The volatile oil in the leaves gives it a powerful fetid odor and an acrid juice. Five species of rue are native to the Holy Land, and the common rue is cultivated there, as with us, on account of its odoriferous qualities. The indigenous rues of Palestine are found chiefly in the lower valley of the Jordan and on the desert to the south of Judea; they are the outliers of a tropical flora, reaching its northern limit in this region. The rue was highly prized by the ancients because of its supposed medicinal properties; it was long supposed to be efficacious in warding off contagion. It is only once mentioned in the Bible, on the occasion when our Lord upbraided the Pharisees for their punctilious observance of trifling matters, while they neglected the primary duties of morality and religion. Rigidly interpreting the law concerning tithes, which declared that "all the tithe of the land, whether of the seed of the land or of the fruit of the tree, is the Lord's" (Lev. 27 : 30), they scrupulously tithe "mint and rue, and all manner of herbs, and pass over judgment and the love of God." Luke 11 : 42.

No representative of the orange tribe (Aurantiaceæ) is found among the plants indigenous to Palestine, but some species are now, and have long been, cultivated there because of their refreshing fruits, and of the fragrance and beauty of their flowers. That the majority of writers have held the citron to be the apple of Scripture requires that we should include it in our notice of the plants of the Bible.

The allusions to the apple in the Song of Solomon imply that the fruit was yellow, fragrant and sweet, and that the tree bearing it afforded a grateful shade. It is mentioned by Joel (1 : 12) as a fruit tree sufficiently familiar and important to be reckoned with the vine, fig, pomegranate and date. That it was indigenous to Palestine is implied in the fact that several places were named after it in the time of Joshua—a city near Hebron (Josh. 15 : 53), a second city in Judah (v. 34), and a district between Ephraim and Manasseh (17 : 8); the king of one of these places was vanquished by Joshua when he took possession of the promised land. 12 : 17.

We must look among the indigenous fruit trees of Palestine for the "apple" of Scripture. Lady Calcott and others maintain the accuracy of our version. Thomson, in arguing for this view, apparently establishes the truth of his position, for he says, "The whole area around Askelon is planted over with orchards of various kinds of fruit which flourish on this coast. It is especially celebrated for its apples, which are the largest and best I have ever seen in this country. When I was here in June, quite a caravan started for Jerusalem loaded with them, and they would not have disgraced even an American orchard." Celsius argues in favor of the quince, which is a native of the Mediterranean basin and extends to India. Its ripe fruit has a fine golden-yellow color; and when the tree is laden with it, it forms a striking and ornamental object. Tristram has suggested the apricot: "In highlands and lowlands alike, by the shores of the Mediterranean and on the banks of the Jordan, in the nooks of Judea, under the heights of Lebanon, in the recesses of Galilee and in the glades of Gilead, the apricot flourishes, and yields a crop of prodigious abundance. Many times have we pitched our tents in its shade and spread our carpets secure from the rays of the sun: 'I sat under his shadow with great delight, and his fruit was sweet to my taste.' 'The smell of thy nose (shall be) like tappuach.' There can scarcely be a more deliciously-perfumed fruit than the apricot; and what fruit can better fit the epithet of Solomon, 'Apples of gold in pictures of silver,' than this golden fruit, as its branches bend under the weight in their setting of bright yet pale foliage?"

Simarubeæ, Sapindaceæ, Meliaceæ and Vitaceæ.—The small order of quassiads (Simarubeæ), consisting of bitter shrubs or trees, natives of tropical regions, is represented in the flora of Palestine by a single tree, which is found only in the depressed valley of the Dead Sea, reaching as far north as Jericho. This is the Balanites Ægyptiaca, a small scrubby thorn tree with a hard wood used for making walking-sticks at Jerusalem, and an oval fruit not unlike a walnut, from which is obtained an oil prepared by the Arabs of Jericho and sold to travelers under the erroneous name of Balm of Gilead.

The larger order of soapworts (Sapindaceæ) is represented in the Holy Land by two maples found on the Lebanon range, while a single species of the meliad order (Meliaceæ) is planted abundantly by the roadsides, but nowhere occurs in a wild state. This is the bead tree, or pride of India (Melia Azedarach), forming an agreeable shade to the travelers by its dense mass of compound winged leaves. The sweet-scented lilac flowers are collected into an erect spike, and are succeeded by a cluster of pale blue fruits about the size of currants, which are often used as beads.

The vines (Vitaceæ) form a small order of climbing plants widely distributed over the tropical and sub-tropical regions of the world. They have large simple leaves like the grape-vine or compound leaves like the Virginian creeper, which is, perhaps, not generically distinct from the true vines. The indigenous flora of Europe is without any representative of the order, though the well-known grape-vine has long been under cultivation in the southern countries of the continent. The Romans brought the vine to Britain. The different attempts that have been since made to bring it into cultivation have failed. It was found to be at best but a precarious crop, and it never produced a satisfactory wine, because the summer temperature is neither sufficiently great nor long continued to ripen the grape completely. Farther north than fifty degrees north latitude is too cold, and farther south than thirty-six degrees is too hot, for the vine to attain perfection. It, however, accommodates itself remarkably to artificial treatment, and is consequently extensively cultivated under glass in countries much beyond its northern limits.

The vine has been cultivated from the remotest antiquity on account of its fruit. Representations of it are to be found in the early sculptured monuments of Egypt and Assyria, while the Bible carries its history back to the days of Noah, who "began to be an husbandman, and he planted a vineyard." Gen. 9 : 20. Like other plants which have been from the earliest times associated with man, it is impossible to discover its native locality. It is generally believed that the mountainous region between the Euphrates and the Caspian Sea to the north-east of Palestine is its original country. Wild vines are frequently met with in the woods in this region, but these may be the evidence and the remains of a former cultivation rather than the spontaneous growth of the plant in its native locality. It is certainly not indigenous to Palestine, but is still under cultivation there. A wild vine (Vitis orientalis) having compound leaves like those of the Virginian creeper is sometimes met with on the low lands near the coast, and is indigenous to this region.

So numerous are the references to the vine and its products in the Bible that it would be impossible to notice them all. From them we learn that in the days of Abraham the Holy Land produced its grape-harvest, for Melchizedek, king of Salem, brought forth bread and wine for Abraham's refreshment when he was on his way back from delivering Lot out of the hands of his captors. Gen. 14 : 18. When Joseph was carried into Egypt, he found the vine cultivated there; and we learn from the dream of the royal butler that the sweet and unfermented juice of the grape was drunk by Pharaoh: "A vine was before me . . . and Pharaoh's cup was in my hand: and I took the grapes, and pressed them into Pharaoh's cup, and I gave the cup into Pharaoh's hand." Gen. 40 : 9-11. Some two hundred years later the captive Israelites were familiar with the vine in Egypt, where it must then have been extensively grown, seeing that the fig and it are specially mentioned as the crops which were destroyed by the plague of hail that the Lord rained on Egypt: "He destroyed their vines with hail, and their sycamore trees with great hailstones." Ps. 78 : 47, margin. In the wilderness the memories of the Israelites went back to these fruitful vineyards. In their murmurings against Moses their plaint was, "Wherefore have ye made us to come out of Egypt, to bring us into this evil place? it is no place of seed, or of figs, or of vines, or of pomegranates." Num. 20 : 5.

The terms in which the Lord described to his people while journeying in the wilderness the land which he had given to them shows that the vine had already been extensively cultivated there. It was "a land of wheat, and barley, and vines, and fig trees, and pomegranates" (Deut. 8 : 8), where they should possess vineyards and olive trees which they had not planted. Deut. 6 : 11. And the men whom Moses sent to spy the land, whether it was good or bad, confirmed this description when, having cut down from the valley of Eshcol "a branch with one cluster of grapes, they bare it between two upon a staff" into the camp (Num. 13 : 23), at once an earnest and an evidence to the people of the rich land they were going to possess. When at length, Israel having obtained possession of the land, Judah received as his portion the terraced hills of the south clad with vineyards, the blessing of Jacob was fully realized: "Binding his foal unto the vine, and his ass's colt unto the choice vine, he washed his garments in wine, and his clothes in the blood of grapes." Gen. 49 : 11. The extraordinary productiveness of the vineyards of Judah must have often recalled to the devout husbandman this prophetic blessing of his ancestor, just as the modern aspect of the whole region forcibly recalls to the traveler a later prophetic warning now singularly fulfilled: "I will destroy her vines and her fig trees, whereof she hath said, 'These are my rewards that my lovers have given me: and I will make them a forest, and the beasts of the field shall eat them." Hos. 2 : 12. The terraced hills are all bare; not a vine is to be seen in the valley of Eshcol, and there are no traces of Solomon's famous vineyards at Engedi save the terraces and the huge empty cisterns which supplied the vines with water. The Turks and Saracens, who have so long held the land, have been the chief means of bringing about this state of things, the use of wine being forbidden to them by their religion. But they will not always possess the land; and in the picture of restored Israel which the sure word of prophecy gives the vine occupies a prominent place. The few and scattered yet singularly productive vineyards of Judah which travelers see will yet spread until they again cover the terraced hills of that land, as it is said, "I will bring back the captivity of my people Israel, . . . and they shall plant vineyards, and drink the wine thereof." Amos 9 : 14. "The mountains shall drop sweet wine." Amos 9 : 13.

When the vine was planted in a garden or near a house, it was generally trained over trellis-work, so as to secure the shady arbor so coveted in the East. In the vineyard the vine was not carried to such a height; the branches were kept from the ground by short props. The vineyard was enclosed by a fence to protect it from the sheep and cattle, which are fond of the tender leaves, as well as from the wild animals, which made destructive inroads upon it. In the poetic figure of Israel represented as a vine brought out of Egypt, so exquisitely sustained and amplified in the eightieth Psalm, the writer deplores that through the broken-down hedges "the boar out of the wood doth waste it, and the wild beast of the field doth devour it." Ps. 80 : 13.

Jackals and foxes, both alike fond of grapes, are great enemies to the vine-growers. To one or other of these animals Solomon refers when he says, "Take us the foxes, the little foxes that destroy the vines: for our vines bear tender grapes." Cant. 2 : 15.

Besides the fence, each vineyard was provided with a watch-tower, which afforded protection to the cultivator and enabled him to detect the approach of any enemy. The vines require continual attention; they must be carefully pruned and purged that they may bring forth more and better fruit; they must be propped up and weeded; so that during the growth of the vines the tower was always occupied by some one discharging those duties.

Each vineyard had its wine-press, the practice being to express the juice from the grape in the field. The wine-presses were generally hewn out of the solid rock, and large numbers of them remain at the present day. They consisted of two vats or presses, the upper and larger one for treading the grapes, and a smaller one for receiving the juice or must.

Anacardiaceæ, Rhamneæ and Leguminosæ.—The terebinths (Anacardiaceæ) are an order of trees or shrubs with a resinous or milky acrid juice and inconspicuous flowers, found in the warm regions of the world. None of them reach so far north as to find a place among our native plants. In Palestine there are five species, belonging to the two genera Rhus and Pistacia. One of them, the tanning sumach, is a small tree some fifteen or twenty feet high. It is extensively grown for its leaves, which contain so much tannic acid that they are gathered for use in the preparation of leather. The pistacia tree is cultivated in Palestine for its edible fruits. These are probably the nuts which Israel sent with the balm, honey, etc., as a present to obtain favor for his sons from "the man" Joseph, in Egypt. Gen. 43 : 11. The mastick tree is found chiefly as a shrub along the shores, and is prized because of the resin which exudes from incisions in its bark. This is the gum-mastic used for varnishing pictures, and largely chewed by the Turks under the idea that it sweetens the breath and strengthens the gums. The terebinth is a larger tree, sometimes, indeed, attaining a considerable size; from it is obtained the aromatic resin called Chio turpentine.

The buckthorn family (Rhamneæ) is an order of spiny shrubs or trees found in warm or temperate regions, having two representatives in this country, the common buckthorn and the alder buckthorn, both common in hedges and thickets. Neither of these trees occurs in Palestine, but a species common in our gardens is found on the shores in the north, and Boissier describes no less than five new species from the Lebanon and Anti-Lebanon ranges. Besides these, there are belonging to this family two species of Zizyphus and one of Paliurus found in Palestine. The common jujube is everywhere cultivated because of its berry-like fleshy fruit, which is eaten both fresh and dried, being somewhat acid when fresh, but sweet and agreeable when dried. The Christ's-thorn is also a common plant especially abundant in the warmer regions of the south. It is a shrub or small tree with angular branches, small oval leaves and numerous long sharp and recurved thorns. Its bright yellow fruit, called nabquah, is edible. The Paliurus aculiatus is also called Christ's-thorn. It is a shrub with slender flexible branches; the base of its oval leaves is furnished with two sharp spines, one of which is straight and erect, while the other is curved like a hook. Either of these plants might have been employed to form the crown of thorns which in mockery the Roman soldiers placed on the Saviour's head before his crucifixion. Both were equally suited to the purpose and equally accessible to the soldiers.

Reference is no doubt made to the spiny bushes of this order in many passages in the Old Testament under the various terms "thorns," "thistles" and "briers" in our version.

The pea family (Leguminosæ) is one of the largest and most important orders of the vegetable kingdom. Its individual members are easily recognized by the generally compound leaves, the form and structure of their flowers and the pod or dry fruit. They are distributed over all the world, from the equator to the Arctic regions. We have nearly eighty indigenous species, while our gardens and pleasure-grounds abound with exotic forms, introduced for their graceful foliage and beautiful flowers. Boissier describes nearly two hundred species from Palestine, a quarter of which belong to the single genus Astragalus. Eleven species of leguminous plants occur both with us and in Palestine; among them is our common white clover, which has been found near the summit of Lebanon. Five other clovers found in our country grow on the sides or at the base of the same mountain. Three out of the seven of our medics also reach Palestine, one (Medicago sativa) being found on Lebanon and the others occurring on the shore. And, lastly, an alpine form of the bird's-foot trefoil has been gathered in Lebanon and Anti-Lebanon. These herbaceous plants, with a few other species, are the outliers of the northern flora, finding their southern limits in the high lands of Palestine; another group of leguminous plants, representing tropical vegetation, spreads over the country northward from the deserts and the depressed valley of the Dead Sea in the south. Six species of lupine occur in Palestine, several of which are old favorites in European gardens, though they are now being superseded by the more ornamental American species of the genus. Retama Rætam is very abundant in Palestine. This is the ratam of the Arabs, and no doubt the rothem of the Hebrew Scriptures—a word translated "juniper" in our version in the three passages in which it occurs. The prophet Elijah in his flight to Horeb to escape the persecutions of Jezebel "came and sat down under a juniper tree; and he requested for himself that he might die; . . . and as he lay and slept under a juniper tree, behold then an angel touched him, and said unto him, "Arise and eat." 1 Kings 19 : 4, 5.

Several leguminous plants were cultivated for food by the Jews. The red pottage for which Esau sold his birthright to Jacob (Gen. 25 : 34) was made from the small, dark-colored, disk-like seeds of the lentil. Dr. Robinson, having run short of provisions, was glad to get a supply of lentils at Akabah, which he found "very palatable." He could well conceive that to a weary hunter they might be quite a dainty. They were cultivated in the time of David in Palestine, for we read that one of his mighty men, Shammah, slew a troop of Philistines who were foraging in his field of lentils (2 Sam. 23 : 11); and beans, lentils and parched pulse were among the provisions supplied to David and his attendants by Barzillai, when he was seeking in the wilderness security from his rebel son Absalom. 2 Sam. 17 : 28. Beans and lentils were also part of the ingredients of the bread that Ezekiel was to eat for three hundred and ninety days during the siege of Jerusalem. Ezek. 4 : 9. The lentil is the smallest leguminous plant cultivated for food. It is somewhat like the vetch, but has its flowers generally in pairs, and they are followed by very short pods containing two or three of the small seeds. The farinaceous food sold under the name "Revalenta Arabica" is the flour of these seeds. The bean was cultivated from the earliest times. Representations of its cultivation figure on the sculptured stones of Egypt. It continues to be a favorite food of the Fellahs. The "parched pulse" included in the provision supplied to David was probably a leguminous seed, although this is not implied in the text. Nor is it certain what is the pulse in the only other passage where this word is used. Dan. 1 : 12, 16. The locust tree, or St. John's bread, is cultivated for feeding animals in Palestine and throughout the countries bordering on the Mediterranean. Its popular names have been given to it from the erroneous tradition that its pods, and not the locust insects, were the food of John in the wilderness. It is probable that the husks on which the swine fed (Luke 15 : 16) were the long dark pods of this tree, which contain a certain amount of saccharine and other nutritious substances. The locust tree is very common throughout Palestine, and its husks are to be met with on stalls in all Oriental towns.

Several acacias are found in the deserts to the south of Palestine, in the lower valley of the Jordan and in the ravines that open into it. The species found in Palestine yields from natural or artificial wounds on the bark the gum arabic of commerce. One of the species has been identified with the shittah tree of the Bible. It is mentioned only once, being included among the choice trees enumerated in Isaiah's prophecy with which the Lord would enrich and beautify the desert when his people turned to him: "I will plant in the wilderness the cedar, the shittah tree, and the myrtle, and the oil tree; I will set in the desert the fir tree, and the pine, and the box tree together." Isa. 41 : 19. A group of such noble trees, foreign to the wilderness, but flourishing by the side of the desert acacia, would force on Israel the conviction that "the hand of the Lord had done it." The wood of this tree, called "shittim-wood," was extensively used in the construction of the tabernacle and its furniture. The ark of the covenant, containing the two tables of the law written by the finger of God and occupying the most holy place in the sanctuary, was an oblong chest of shittim-wood four feet long by two and a half feet wide. The altar of incense and the table on which was placed the show-bread, as well as the staves by which they and the ark of the covenant were borne when the camp was moved, were made of shittim-wood, and all these objects were overlaid with precious gold. The altar of burnt offering placed in the outer court and the staves with which it was carried were made of the same wood overlaid with brass. And, finally, the boards which formed the walls of the tabernacle, with the transverse bars by which they were united into a solid wall when they were erected, were of shittim-wood, as well as the four pillars which supported the curtain that enclosed the most holy place. Ex. 25 and 27 passim. The shittah trees growing in the valley of the Dead Sea would supply planks four feet in diameter, so that there would be no difficulty in obtaining in the wilderness those required for the tabernacle, which were seventeen feet long and scarcely a foot broad.

Rosaceæ to Cucurbitaceæ.—The rose family (Rosaceæ) is one of the best-known orders of plants, as it includes many favorite flowers like the rose, meadow-sweet and cinque-foil, and numerous valuable fruits like the apple, cherry, plum and strawberry. The plants of the order are generally distributed over the world, but are most abundant in the temperate regions of the northern hemisphere. The indigenous flora of Palestine does not contain many representatives of the family, and the species that have been noticed are chiefly met with on the mountains of the north or on the shores of the Mediterranean. The translators of our version have rendered chabatzteleth "rose." The word occurs in only two places in the Bible, one where the bride in the Song replies, "I am the rose of Sharon and the lily of the valleys" (Cant. 2 : 1), and the other where the prophet, looking forward to the time of gospel blessings, says, "The desert shall rejoice and blossom as the rose." Isa. 35 : 1.

The "briars" with which Gideon threatened to tear the flesh of the men of Succoth who refused to supply his army with bread when pursuing the Midianites, and with which he "taught them" on his return from victory (Judg. 8 : 7, 16), were probably a bramble, perhaps Rubus discolor, a species common in our hedges and not rare in Palestine. The "thorn" which, according to the proverb, could pierce the hand of the drunkard (Prov. 26 : 9), and which is referred to in the description of leviathan in these words, "Canst thou bore his jaw through with a thorn?" must have been of some strength, and may have been the indurated spine of the sloe or the hawthorn, which occur in the hilly regions of Palestine.

The common almond, with two other species of the same genus, grows spontaneously on the Lebanon mountains, and they were no doubt extensively cultivated in ancient times in the gardens and the level districts of the Holy Land. In the strange experiments which Jacob performed with the flocks of Laban he used peeled rods of "green poplar, and of the hazel and chestnut tree." Gen. 30 : 37. Luz, here translated "hazel," is the same word as that employed by the Arabs for the almond tree, and should be thus rendered in this passage. Luz, the Canaanitish name for Bethel, was probably derived from the existence there of a famous almond tree, or from the extensive cultivation of the almond in that locality.

The word most frequently employed for the almond in the Hebrew Scriptures is shaked, a singularly expressive term for this tree, being derived from the verb "to wake," alluding to its being the first tree to wake out of the winter's sleep. In Palestine the tree is white with bloom in January. Both the verb and the name derived from it are used together when the Lord employs the tree as a figure to illustrate the speedy execution of his word: "Jeremiah, what seest thou? and I said, I see a rod of an almond [a wakener] tree. Then said the Lord unto me, Thou hast well seen, for I will hasten [early wake as to] my word to perform it." Jer. 1 : 11, 12. This early clothing of the tree with its white blossoms supplies Solomon with a beautiful metaphor of old age. It is the time when "the almond tree shall flourish." Eccl. 12 : 5. The fruit of the almond tree was amongst the precious productions of Canaan which Jacob sent to Egypt that his sons might obtain favor in the eyes of Egypt's ruler (Gen. 43 : 11), and its form supplied a suitable model for the bowls of the golden candlestick.

The only representative of the myrtle family (Myrtaceæ) found in the Holy Land is the common myrtle, a favorite everywhere from the sweet scent of its wild flowers and bruised leaves. It grows spontaneously in the hilly regions in the North of Palestine, but it is no longer found on the Mount of Olives, though Tristram has met with it in many of the glens near Jerusalem. The returned captives, when celebrating their first feast of tabernacles at Jerusalem, formed their booths of branches of the palm, olive, pine and myrtle cut from the Mount of Olives (Neh. 8 : 15), and the modern Jew of every land still uses it in his observance of this feast when he can obtain it. The myrtle will again abound in the Holy Land according to that promise of the Lord: "Instead of the thorn shall come up the fir tree, and instead of the briar shall come up the myrtle tree" (Isa. 55 : 13); even the desert shall be clothed with the "cedar, the acacia, the myrtle and the oil tree." Isa. 41 : 19. The man riding upon the red horse in the vision of Zechariah is represented as standing in a grove of myrtle trees. Zech. 1 : 8, etc.

Nearly related to the henna in a systematic arrangement is the pomegranate, so frequently mentioned in the Bible. It is a shrub or low tree, generally with many stems together, producing blood-red flowers, and globular fruit about the size of an apple. This fruit was highly prized by the children of Israel; in their complaint in the wilderness they longed for the pomegranates they knew in Egypt. Num. 20 : 5. With the vine and fig, this was one of the signs of the fruitful land promised by the Lord to his people (Deut. 8 : 8), and the spies found it in abundance in their excursion into the land. Num. 13 : 23. The frequent use of Rimmon for towns and villages indicates the abundance of pomegranate vineyards around them. The beautiful form of the fruit led to its being employed in the ornamentation of the high priest's robe (Ex. 28 : 33, 34), and to its use in the sculptured capitals of the pillars in the temple. 1 Kings 7 : 18.

The delicious and refreshing pulp in which the seeds are embedded makes the pomegranate a highly-prized fruit in all warm countries. The liquid ruby color of this pulp is alluded to in the figurative description of the beautiful complexion of the bride: "Thy temples are like a piece of a pomegranate within thy locks." Cant. 4 : 3. The "spiced wine of the juice of the pomegranate" (Cant. 8 : 2) is made at the present day in the East as it was in the days of Solomon.

The only representative of the gourd family (Cucurbitaceæ) native to our country is the wild bryony, whose long, creeping stem and shining heart-shaped leaves abound in our hedges. Two species of bryony are described by Boissier from the neighborhood of Jerusalem and other localities in Palestine. The bitter cucumber or colocynth, known to us from the familiar drug obtained from the spongy pulp in which its seeds are embedded, is an indigenous plant in Palestine. It grows on the shores of the Levant as well as in the neighborhood of the Dead Sea. The colocynth is probably the "vine of Sodom," which is mentioned in the song of Moses: "Their vine is of the vine of Sodom, and of the fields of Gomorrah; their grapes are grapes of gall, their clusters are bitter." Deut. 32 : 32. It "grows most abundantly on the barren sands near Gilgal, and all round the Dead Sea on the low flats, covering much ground with its tendrils, which reach a prodigious length and bear great quantities of fruit." The nauseous taste of the bitter pulp of the colocynth fruit—bitter as gall—agrees with the description of the "grapes" of this vine of Sodom. The gourd which covered the booth erected by Jonah on the east side of Nineveh was, there can be little doubt, one of the climbing gourds, whose large leaves would supply the angry prophet with a grateful shade. Jon. 4 : 5, 9. The sudden destruction of the plant would follow naturally the injury done to its stem by a herbivorous grub or worm.

Several species of the gourd family, though perhaps not indigenous to Palestine, have been long cultivated there. The cucumber and melon were well known in Egypt to the Israelites during their bondage, and they were among the good things mourned for in the wilderness. Num. 11 : 5. At the present day the melon, watermelon and cucumber are largely grown in Palestine and Egypt, and form important articles of food to the people.

Crassulaceæ and Umbelliferæ.—A few fleshy plants allied to our common stonecrop are indigenous to Palestine, flourishing in the most arid localities. These are, however, not referred to in the Bible, and need only a passing allusion here. They are species of Sedum, Umbilicus, etc., and with them may be mentioned two saxifrages and a Mesambryanthemum. This last plant (M. nodiflorum) De Saulcy found on the shores of the Dead Sea; and observing the hygrometric properties of its fruits, the dried capsules of which open when moistened by the rain or moisture and close again when dry, he to his own satisfaction established that it was the real rose of Jericho.

The Umbelliferæ are a large group of herbs easily recognized by their numerous small flowers arranged in umbels. In Palestine, as with us, they form a considerable proportion of the wild flowers of the pastures and waste places. Different kinds of the gray and spiny sea-holly grow on the shores of Syria and in arid localities in the interior, while species of Fœniculum, Pimpinella, Euplerum, Scandix, Daucus, etc., occur in the pastures, and Œnanthe and Helosciadium are found in wet places like the Sea of Galilee and the Jordan. Few of the plants of this order are remarkable either for their beauty or their economic value, and they are consequently, with the exception of a few cultivated species, not referred to in the Bible. These species are the cumin, dill and coriander, all of them extensively used as spices still, as they were by the Hebrews, because of the essential oil contained in the fruit. The cumin was as carefully cultivated by the Jews in ploughed fields as a crop of cereals, and the fruits were easily separated from their stalks by beating with a rod. Isa. 28 : 25, 27. The Saviour charges the hypocritical scribes and Pharisees with punctiliously tithing the cumin and dill, which are only inferentially included in the Levitical law, while they omitted judgment, mercy and faith. Matt. 23 : 23. The passage referred to contains the only reference to dill to be found in the Scriptures. The translators of our version correctly translated ἄνηθον by "dill," but placed the word in the margin, while they inserted the name of a different plant, "anise," in the text. The coriander is mentioned only in the description given of the manna miraculously provided for the Israelites during their wilderness wandering. This plant was cultivated in Egypt, the fruit being bruised to mix as a spice with bread; and thus being familiar to the Jews, they compared the unknown substance, as regards both its form and color, to the coriander seed. Ex. 16 : 31; Num. 11 : 7.

The milky gum-resin exuded from the stem of Galbanum officinale was one of the ingredients of the perfume for the tabernacle. Ex. 30 : 34. This plant is a native of Persia, and is not found in Palestine. It has been supposed that the rosh, occurring several times in the Bible, and generally translated "gall" or "bitterness," is a plant. In one passage it is rendered "hemlock:" "Judgment springeth up as hemlock in the furrows of the field." Hos. 10 : 4. It is thought to be derived from a root meaning poison, and to indicate, therefore, a poisonous plant.

Orders of Monopetalous Plants.—Plants belonging to the teazel-worts (Dipsaceæ) are abundant in Palestine; but as neither these nor the more frequent though less obvious species of the natural orders Rubiaceæ and Valerianaceæ are mentioned in Scripture, they require only a passing allusion.

The herbaceous plants of the composite order form a large proportion of our wild flowers. The daisy, hawkweed, thistle and many more are familiar to every one. Equally abundant are the plants of this order in Palestine; but instead of the soft-leaved and defenceless species best known to us, the predominant forms are spiny plants with but little foliage. They belong to the genera Centaurea, Notobasis, Scolymus, Echinops, Cirsium, etc. In early spring, Porter says, "the plain in Sharon is covered with forests of gigantic thistles;" they abound on hill as on plain, and some species are troublesome weeds in the fields, and are probably among the plants referred to in various places as "thorns" and "thistles."

The wormwood is employed in several passages in the Old Testament in a figurative sense to indicate, in harmony with the noxious qualities of the weed, the evils that sin brings on man. Several species of wormwood occur in Palestine, all of which may be included under the general term la'anâh. Wormwood is the name given to the star which John in his vision in Patmos saw fall upon the third part of the rivers, making them bitter. Rev. 8 : 11.

Several species of Campanula are common spring plants in Palestine. True heaths are absent except in the higher hills of the north.

The olive is perhaps the most abundant, as it is the most important, tree now growing in Palestine. Yet in former times it was much more abundant than it is now, for many long-unused oil-presses hewn out of the solid rock are met with far from any indications of the tree. The olive grows to a height of about twenty feet; it has oblong leaves, hoary on their under surface, and numerous clusters of small whitish, fragrant flowers. A large proportion of its numerous flowers fall off in the spring, frequently covering the ground with a white carpet. To this Eliphaz refers in speaking of the wicked man: "He shall cast off his flower as the olive." Job 15 : 33. The fruit, which is nevertheless produced in great abundance, consists of an oily and fleshy pericarp, violet in color when ripe, enclosing a stony kernel. The oil is obtained by placing the fruit in a stone vat, sometimes hewn out of the solid rock, and covering it with a flat stone fitting the cavity, to which pressure is applied by a wooden screw. The oil was, and still is, of great importance to the Oriental, being largely used at meals and in the preparation of food. Among the items in the large store of provisions supplied by Solomon to Hiram's workmen who were employed on Lebanon obtaining the wood for his temple and palace was included "twenty thousand baths of oil." 2 Chron. 2 : 10. Olive oil was the material burnt in house-lamps (Matt. 25 : 3); with it the people anointed their bodies (Ps. 23 : 5), and it was largely employed in the temple service, mixed with the sacrifices (Lev. 2 : 1, etc.), and for the lamp of the tabernacle (Ex. 27 : 20), as well as for the golden candlestick of the temple. The wood of the olive is yellowish, hard and fine-grained, and well fitted for cabinet-work. It was used by Solomon for the cherubim and for the doors and posts in his temple. 1 Kings 6.

The olive is often employed figuratively in the Bible to indicate prosperity and the possession of the favor of God. The land of promise was "a land of oil olive and honey." Deut. 8 : 8. David, in reference to the blessings God had conferred on him, says: "I am like a green olive tree in the house of God." Ps. 52 : 8. And when God blesses his returning people, it is promised that "his branches shall spread, and his beauty shall be as the olive tree." Hos. 14 : 6. The apostle Paul employs a figure drawn from the operation of the husbandman on the olive tree to illustrate the relation of Jew and Gentile to gospel blessing. It is the practice to propagate good varieties of olive, as we do roses and apples, by engrafting them on ordinary stems. So St. Paul says to the Gentile: "If some of the branches be broken off, and thou, being a wild olive tree, wert grafted in among them, and with them partakest of the root and fatness of the olive tree, boast not against the branches." Rom. 11 : 17.

Several species of the sea-lavenders (Statice) are found in Palestine; a large variety grows on the shores of the Dead Sea, and some small spiny species occur on the highest ridges of Lebanon. Among the Indian merchandise offered in Tyre by the men of Dedan were "ivory and ebony" (Ezek. 27 : 15), both obtained from Ceylon.

The storax tree is an abundant plant throughout the hilly regions of Palestine. The bark is smooth and pale, the leaves are small with a downy covering on the under surface, and the white flowers are like orange-blossoms both in appearance and odor. It has been suggested that the libneh, translated "poplar" in our version, is this pale-leaved shrub, but the reference in Hosea implies that the libneh was a tree of some height, for sacrifices were offered under its good shadow. 4 : 13. A balsamic resinous substance with an agreeable odor sometimes exudes in drops from the bark of the storax, and may be obtained in larger quantity by subjecting the bark to pressure. This is believed to be that substance which was employed in the preparation of the holy incense called nataf, a "drop." Ex. 30 : 34.

The periwinkle, familiar to us, is found also in Palestine; but the most important member of the family Apocynaceæ is the oleander, which grows abundantly on the banks of streams and lakes all over the country. Its profusion of pink blossoms in their setting of dark green leaves gives to the locality where it abounds a luxuriance and a beauty that arrests the attention of every traveler. No certain allusion is made in the Bible to a plant bulking thus largely in the landscape of Palestine.

Several species of the allied order of Asclepiads are found in Palestine; the only one deserving special notice is Calotropis procera, a tropical plant reaching the confines of the country in the valley of the Dead Sea. This is supposed to be the "apple of Sodom," referred to by Josephus and others. The fruit, about the size of an apple, consists of a loose bladdery skin surrounding a pod filled with small flat seeds, which are furnished with tufts of silky hair. Tempted by the promising fruit, the ignorant traveler would fill his mouth with an expanding mass of dry silky filament, instead of the juice of a fruit.

The box-thorn is widely distributed, being met with almost everywhere over the hilly country. It is clothed with numerous stiff, sharp spines, and is well adapted for hedges, for which it is used in Palestine, as in Italy and other countries. This is probably one of the plants included in the "brambles," "briars" and "thorns" of our Bible. The mandrake is common in Palestine. It ripens its fruit in April and May, during wheat-harvest, as in the days of Reuben. The mandrake is mentioned as having a pleasant odor. Cant. 7 : 13.

Numerous plants of the borage and labiate families contribute to the floral beauties of Palestine. In spring the marjoram, mint, rosemary, lavender, savory and thyme make the hills fragrant as well as beautiful. The mint is mentioned in the New Testament, and there only in the charge that the Saviour brings against the Pharisees of tithing mint and anise, while they neglected judgment, mercy and faith. Matt. 23 : 23. Our common horse-mint is probably the kind referred to, as it is extensively cultivated in the East. It is much used in cookery, and was one of the "bitter herbs" with which the paschal lamb was eaten. Not only the hills and plains of the table-land, but the barren and rocky districts of the south, and the desert region possess these labiate plants. Several species of speedwell, toad-flax and snap-dragon are found in the corn-fields of Palestine; and the prickly Acanthus spinosus is an abundant weed in all the plains. This plant may be included among the "brambles" of the Bible.

Apetalous Plants: Chenopodiaceæ to Euphorbiaceæ.—The chenopod order is represented in Palestine by a species prevailing as weeds in cultivated ground, as well as by forms that grow only on saline localities. Specimens of Salicornia, Anabasis, Atriplex and Chenopodium are found on the shores of the Dead Sea, as well as of the Levant. These plants abound in the vegetable alkali which is so important an ingredient in the manufacture of soap. Indeed, the word alkali, which was originally applied to the ashes of these plants, is derived from kali or el-kali, the Arabic name for the glass-wort, a prickly bushy herb common on our sandy shores, and found also in Palestine. The Arabs have long manufactured soap from olive oil and the alkaline ashes of this plant, and it is probable that it is to this material that reference is twice made in the Bible under the name "soap." Jer. 2 : 22; Mal. 3 : 2.

Several species of nettles occur in Palestine; that most frequently met with is the Roman nettle. This plant is also found with us, and is easily distinguished from the common nettle by the little balls of green female flowers. In Palestine it grows to a height of six feet, among ruins, where it specially flourishes. This is probably the kimmosh of the Hebrews, rendered, in the two passages in which it occurs, "nettle." It deserves notice that in both passages it is associated with its favorite habitat. Of Edom it is prophesied that "thorns shall come up in her palaces, nettles and brambles in the fortresses thereof" (Isa. 34 : 13), while of backsliding Israel it is said, "The pleasant places for their silver, nettles shall possess them, thorns shall be in their tabernacles." Hos. 9 : 6. The plural, kimmeshonim, of a scarcely altered form of this word is employed by Solomon in describing the vineyard of the sluggard; it is rendered "thorns" in our version: "It was all grown over with thorns, nettles had covered the face thereof, and the stone wall thereof was broken down." Prov. 24 : 31.

The fig and mulberry, though very different in appearance, belong both to the order Moraceæ. The fig is one of the native fruit trees of Palestine. It is found, wild or cultivated, everywhere throughout the country. Moses, in describing the land of promise, characterizes it as a land of "vines and fig trees and pomegranates" (Deut. 8 : 8), and the spies, when they returned, confirmed this description, for they brought figs and pomegranates, as well as grapes, from Eshcol. Num. 13 : 23. The tree often attains a great size, with widespreading branches, and its large leaves, forming a dense crown of foliage, produce a pleasant shadow, which was often preferred to the tent. The Scripture expression, "every man under his fig tree" (1 Kings 4 : 25, etc.), presents a vivid picture of peace, prosperity and security. To the grateful shade of some secluded fig tree Nathanael retired to pray. John 1 : 48. From the large leaves of this tree our first parents while yet in Paradise made aprons to cover the nakedness that their disobedience revealed. Gen. 3 : 7. Like the almond, the fig tree shows its blossom before its leaves are produced. But in the fig the blossom is scarcely discoverable, for it is enclosed in the hidden cavity of the enlarged hollow receptacle, and consists of an immense number of minute colorless flowers, densely covering the surface of the cavity. The whole mass of flowers, with the hollow stalk on which they are borne, is the edible fruit. In the true fig the fruit is borne on the younger portion of the branches in the axils of the leaves, but in the sycamore and some other figs the enlarged receptacle springs from the old parts of their branches, or even from the trunk itself. Some varieties of the fig tree in Palestine produce fruit in early summer, and such a tree was the specimen the Saviour cursed on account of its barrenness. Unusually early in its foliage, while its neighbors were yet leafless and bare, it professed to be a fruit-bearer, and should have had figs already somewhat ripe. But it was a mere pretender, and the Lord cursed it. With the Mount of Olives is associated a second allusion to the fig tree in the New Testament. Stanley thus refers to them both: "One is the parable not spoken, but acted, with regard to the fig tree, which, when all others around it were, as they are still, bare at the beginning of April, was alone clothed with its broad green leaves, though without the corresponding fruit. Fig trees may still be seen overhanging the ordinary road from Jerusalem to Bethany, growing out of the rocks of the solid 'mountain' (Matt. 21 : 21), which might by the prayer of faith be removed, and cast into the distant Mediterranean 'Sea.' On Olivet, too, the brief parable in the great prophecy was spoken when he pointed to the bursting buds of spring in the same trees as they grew around him: 'Behold the fig tree, and all the trees; when they now shoot forth,' when his branch is yet tender, and putteth forth leaves, 'ye see and know of your own selves that summer is now nigh at hand.'" Luke 21 : 29, 30.

The fruitfulness of the fig tree was considered a sign of divine favor, as in Joel we read, "The Lord will do great things; the fig tree and the vine do yield their strength." 2 : 22. On the other hand, the destruction of the fig tree or its crop was received as a judgment from the Lord: "I will surely consume them, saith the Lord: there shall be no grapes on the vine, nor figs on the fig tree; and the leaf shall fade." Jer. 8 : 13.

In Palestine the fig tree bears two or three crops in the year. The first ripe fruit was called bikkurah: "I found Israel like grapes in the wilderness; I saw your fathers as the first ripe fruit in the fig tree at her first time." Hos. 9 : 10. The green or unripe figs were called pag, a word which enters into the composition of Bethphage, the village near Bethany on the Mount of Olives. The name literally means "the house of unripe figs." The fig was an important food-substance to the Jew. Pressed together and dried, it was formed into cakes, which could be kept for any length of time, and were stored away for household use; they formed part of the provision of David's army. 1 Sam. 25 : 18; 30 : 12.

The sycamore of Scripture is a true fig, and a very different tree from the maple, which bears the same name in England. It is one of the largest and most important trees in Palestine. Some specimens are described as having immense gnarled trunks fifty feet in circumference. The tree has somewhat the appearance of our oak, having for the size of the tree a short trunk, but large widespreading and umbrageous branches. It was extensively planted in ancient times, as it is now, near houses and by the roadsides, on account of its shade. On one of the sturdy horizontal branches of a roadside sycamore Zaccheus would find a safe and suitable place for seeing Jesus passing beneath. The fruit is eaten, but it is smaller and less palatable than the common fig. The wood was used for furniture and for building; and the tree was of so much value that David took special pains to prevent its unnecessary destruction by appointing a royal commissioner to look after its conservation. 1 Chron. 27 : 28. It was not valued so highly as the cedar, the wood used in palaces. The contrast between these two woods is brought out in the boast of the presumptuous Israelites on whom the Lord threatened judgment: "The bricks are fallen down, but we will build with hewn stones: the sycamores are cut down, but we will change them into cedars." Isa. 9 : 10. They would more than repair their losses, for they would replace their common houses built of brick and sycamore by palaces of stone and cedar. The prosperity of Israel during the reign of Solomon is indicated among other ways by the contrast between those two trees: "The king made silver to be in Jerusalem as stones, and cedars made he to be as the sycamore trees that are in the vale, for abundance." 1 Kings 10 : 27.

The spice-bearing trees producing the cinnamon and cassia of the Bible belong to the laurel family; they did not grow in Palestine, as has already been stated under "Perfumes." The bay tree is considered by the translators of our version to be the equivalent of etzrah of Ps. 37 : 35: "I have seen the wicked in great power, and spreading himself like a green bay tree." This word is used in fifteen other places in the Bible, but in all these it is applied to man in order to distinguish a native from a foreigner.

The spiny sea-buckthorn growing on many of our sandy sea-shores is the only representative in our native flora of the Eleagnaceæ, to which the oleaster belongs. This is an abundant tree in Palestine, and is the "oil tree" in Isa. 41 : 19: "I will plant in the wilderness the cedar, the shittah tree, and the myrtle, and the oil tree." From its wood were made the two cherubim in Solomon's temple (1 Kings 6 : 23, "olive tree," in the margin "trees of oil").

The spurge-worts (Euphorbiaceæ) are represented by a larger number of species than is found with us. The box, another member of this family, is mentioned twice in our Bible, in both cases in connection with the predicted prosperity of Israel, when the Lord "will set in the desert the fir tree, the pine, and the box tree together" (Is. 41 : 19), and "the glory of Lebanon shall come unto thee, the fir tree, the pine tree, and the box together." Isa. 60 : 13. The box is found on the mountains of Lebanon, growing to a height of twenty feet or more, and forming a small compact evergreen tree. It is largely exported from the countries bordering the eastern portion of the Mediterranean for the use of the wood-engraver, who finds its hard, even and close-grained wood specially suited to his work. The high polish it can be made to take and its freedom from warping make it a favorite for carving small objects, and it was probably brought with the cedar from Lebanon and employed in Solomon's temple.

Salicineæ to Cupuliferæ and Coniferæ.—The willow family (Salicineæ) is represented in Palestine, as with us, by species of poplar and willow, which find their favorite localities beside the water-courses. Our poplars are found also in Palestine, along with two or three other species. The branches of the willow were employed by the Israelites in the construction of the booths at the feast of tabernacles. Lev. 23 : 40. In the description of behemoth this tree is specified as one which gave him shade: "The shady trees cover him with their shadow; the willows of the brook compass him about." Job 40 : 22. The prosperity of Israel, when the Lord shall pour out his blessing, is likened to the rapid growth of "willows by the water-courses." Isa. 44 : 4. The only other reference to this tree—for the "brook of the willows" (Isa. 15 : 7) is obviously the name of a place—is in that Psalm sung by the Israelites after the captivity, in which with unsurpassed power and pathos the picture of their misery is drawn: "By the rivers of Babylon, there we sat down, yea, we wept, when we remembered Zion. We hanged our harps upon the willows in the midst thereof." Ps. 137 : 1, 2. It has, from its long association with the narrative of Israel's misery, become the symbol of sorrow, and is extensively planted in our cemeteries. Another Hebrew word, tsaftsafah, is translated "willow" in our Bible. It occurs only in the passage where Ezekiel, in his figurative description of the king and princes of Jerusalem carried captive to Babylon, speaks of a great eagle as having placed the seed of the land "by great waters, and set it as a willow tree." 17 : 5.

The oaks are the most abundant trees in the hilly table-land of Palestine, in some places forming woods, and in others covering the ground for miles with a dense brushwood from eight to twelve feet high. Our common oak does not occur in Palestine, yet it is found high up on Lebanon. Three species of oak are of frequent occurrence throughout the country. Of these the Valonian oak most nearly resembles our common oak. It has a stout trunk, and attains a height of some twenty to thirty feet. The large acorns, which are eaten by the Arabs, are borne in very large cups densely covered with long recurved teeth. These cups are extensively used by tanners because of the large amount of tannic acid they contain. The tree is common in Galilee, forming forests on Tabor and Carmel; it is also abundant across the Jordan in Bashan, and is no doubt the "oak of Bashan" mentioned several times in the Old Testament. The most common oak is an evergreen species like the holy or holm oak of our parks. To this species belongs the famous oak at Hebron. This is an immense spreading tree with a trunk twenty-six feet in girth, which forks about six feet from the ground into three equal stems, and these afterward divide into many smaller limbs. The branches cover an area ninety-three feet in diameter. The third species is the gall-oak, a deciduous-leaved tree from twenty to thirty feet high. Its leaves are white on the under surface. It is not so common as the other two, but is seen occasionally in Samaria, Galilee and the Lebanon range. The young branches are attacked by a hymenopterous insect which produces a large crop of bright chestnut-colored galls extensively used in the manufacture of ink and dyes.

The oak is not mentioned in the New Testament, but it is frequently referred to in the Old Testament under several slightly varied terms, all derived from the same root, meaning "strength." The same idea is contained in the technical name of our oak, and the Jews, like ourselves, used the oak proverbially for strength. Thus we read of the Amorite that his "height was like the height of the cedars, and he was strong as the oak." Amos 2 : 9. When Joshua on the eve of his death received the promise of the people that they would serve the Lord, he took a great stone and set it up as a witness under an oak (allah) in Shechem. Josh. 24 : 26.

Coniferæ.—Our indigenous flora includes three coniferous plants, a pine, a juniper and a yew. The members of the order are found principally in the colder regions of the globe, and the species occurring in Palestine are confined to the mountains of the North. The most remarkable of them is the cedar, repeatedly referred to in the Scriptures under the name erez. This is the name still given to the tree by the Arabs; and though it would not be accurate to restrict it absolutely to the Lebanon cedar, there can be no doubt that this was the plant to which it was in the first instance and in a special manner applied. The cedar is confined in its geographical distribution to Asia Minor, coming south as far as Lebanon. It does not reach Palestine proper, and should not be included among the trees of that country. A closely-allied tree, if not a variety only of the Lebanon cedar, grows on the Atlas Mountains, and the deodar, a third species, is found on the mountains in the North of India. The Lebanon cedar was long supposed to be confined to the small hollow on the north-western slope of Lebanon near Kadisha called "The Cedars," which is over five thousand feet above the level of the sea and more than three thousand feet below the summit of the mountain. Explorers have, however, found in the less accessible mountain fastnesses of Lebanon to the north several other groves, and cedars are known to be common on the Taurus range. The well-known grove of "The Cedars" consists of between four and five hundred trees growing on a platform some six acres in extent, with the summits of Lebanon towering to a great height around on every side. The trunk of the largest tree measures forty-seven feet in circumference, and its total height is about one hundred feet. The noble appearance of the cedar and the interesting associations connected with it have led to its being extensively planted.

The majestic form and large spreading branches of this noble tree made it the glory of Lebanon to the Jew. Isa. 35 : 2. The cedar was the highest tree known to him: "His height was exalted above all the trees of the field. . . . The cedars in the garden of God could not hide him" (Ezek. 31 : 5, 8); and it was considered to be the noblest member of the vegetable kingdom. The cedars were the type of pre-eminent greatness and excellence. "The trees of the Lord" (Ps. 104 : 16) the Psalmist calls them, by a parabolic Hebraism, to indicate their mighty grandeur. An aromatic odor pervades every part of the plant, and is characteristic of the cedar-groves. Everything about this tree has a strong balsamic perfume, and hence the whole forest is so perfumed with fragrance that a walk through it is delightful. This explains such allusions as "His smell shall be as Lebanon." Hos. 14 : 6. The high value set on it in ancient times was shown by its extensive use in the first and second temples and in the palace of Solomon, which from the quantity of this wood employed in its construction was called "the house of the forest of Lebanon" (1 Kings 7 : 2), as well as from the trouble that the Assyrian king took to obtain it from Lebanon for his palace at Nineveh. The labors of the eighty thousand hewers whom Solomon employed in Lebanon to supply the demands of the temple and the palace he was erecting must have made serious havoc among the cedars, from which perhaps they have never recovered. The wood was brought down to the shore and shipped to Joppa, whence it was transported to Jerusalem. Josephus records that Herod also used cedar for the roofing of his temple.

The fir tree was supplied by Hiram from Lebanon, as well as the cedar, for the construction of the temple. The pines of Palestine belong to two species, the Aleppo pine, found in the mountainous tracts throughout the country and common on the Lebanon range above the zone of evergreen oaks; the other, the sea-side pine, forming forests here and there along the coast, or on the sandy plains bordering the coast. Extensive forests of a third pine occur on the mountains of Gilead on the farther side of Jordan. The Aleppo pine is probably the berosh or beroth, generally translated "fir tree" in our version. Solomon employed fir planks in the temple for the flooring, and he made the two entrance doors and the gilded ceiling of this wood. 1 Kings 6 : 15, 34. The Tyrians used it for the decks of their ships (Ezek. 27 : 5), and David's harps were made of the same material. 2 Sam. 6 : 5. The tidhar is associated with the fir and the box on the mountains of Lebanon. Isa. 41 : 19; 60 : 13.

Isaiah specifies the timber of the cedar, cypress and oak as used for making idols. The cypress is extensively planted in the countries of the East as it is with with us, but it has not been noticed as indigenous in the North of Palestine. The trees frequently mistaken for it are species of juniper which are abundant on the Lebanon range about three thousand feet about the level of the sea. The gopher-wood of which Noah constructed the ark is conjectured by some authors to have belonged to some coniferous tree, and the cedar, the pine and the cypress have been severally named. There is absolutely nothing to support these or any of the other opinions that have been advanced as to this wood, and our translators have wisely avoided committing themselves to any equivalent by retaining the Hebrew word.

Among the costly articles of commerce for which the merchants of the earth are said to mourn (Rev. 18 : 12) when the Apocalyptic Babylon is destroyed, is thyne wood, a tree nearly related to Thuja, but having jointed branches with rings of small scale-like leaves at the joints. It is found on the Atlas range, and its wood has been always highly prized. It was known to the ancient Romans under the name of citron-wood, and brought a fabulous price in the market. Pliny records that a table made of this wood was sold for one million four hundred thousand sesterces, equal to about seventy thousand dollars of our money.

Monocotyledonous Plants.—The most remarkable plant found in Palestine belonging to this great division of the vegetable kingdom is the palm-tree, the tamar of the Old and the φοῖνιξ of the New Testament. The palm has been closely associated with the Holy Land from the earliest times. The Greek name for the coast-region was Phœnicia, and this was derived from the Greek designation for the date palm, and was applied, no doubt, because the abundance of the tree was a characteristic of the country. Some of the coins struck at the Phœnician towns of Tyre and Sidon have on them the emblematic figure of the palm. The earliest known Jewish coins, believed to have been struck by Judas Maccabeus, contain a fair representation of the date tree, showing its large pinnated leaves and bunches of fruits. This same figure is reproduced in the coins struck by Eleazar and Simon during the short period of their successful revolt against the Romans, which was put down by Titus when he defeated the rebels and destroyed Jerusalem in A. D. 70. The well-known coin struck by Vespasian to celebrate this event represents captive Judea as a weeping woman seated on the ground under the shade of a palm tree. To the Jew as well as to the foreigner the palm was a fitting emblem of Palestine; and though it is now almost unknown on the hills and in the valleys of the land, there are many indications of its former abundance. Jericho is again and again called the city of palm trees, and Josephus tells us there was in his time a grove beside the town seven miles long. This has gradually disappeared, and now not a tree remains. Near Gibeah of Benjamin was a place called Baaltamar, "the sanctuary of the palm" (Judg. 20 : 33), which was near to, if it was not the same as, the palm tree under which Deborah dwelt when she judged Israel. Judg. 4 : 5. In Nehemiah's days the inhabitants of Jerusalem were able to supply themselves with palm leaves from the Mount of Olives for the celebration of the feast of tabernacles. Neh. 8 : 15. The name of Bethany, "house of dates," indicates the presence there of groves of palms, and from them, no doubt, were obtained the leaves ("branches") of palm trees which the multitude carried when they conducted the Saviour in triumph over Olivet to Jerusalem. John 12 : 13. Not a palm is now to be found on Olivet, though both the olive which gave its name to the mount, and the fig from which Bethphage was named, still grow together there. A few palms are to be found within the walls of Jerusalem, and groups are met with at Nablous, Nazareth and other places, but they are most abundant on the maritime plains. Palm leaves are among the relics brought from the Holy Land in the Middle Ages; hence a pilgrim safely returned from Palestine came to be called a "palmer."

The date has a tall slender stem uniformly thick throughout and unbroken by branches. It grows to a height of eighty feet, but has an average of thirty feet. The stem is somewhat smooth below, but rough above, from the remains of the bases of the former leaves still adhering to it. The erect habit of the tree is referred to by the prophet when, speaking of the dead idols, he says, "They are upright as the palm tree, but speak not." Jer. 10 : 5. The grace and beauty of the stately stem crowned with its feathery foliage suggested the fitness of employing its name for women; thus Absalom had a "fair sister" whose name was Tamar, and a daughter "of a fair countenance" to whom he gave the same name. 2 Sam. 13 : 1; 14 : 27.

The palm tree was well adapted for architectural purposes, and was employed by Solomon in the temple. 1 Kings 6 : 29–35. The pillars and arches of the temple shown to Ezekiel in a vision, as well as its walls, were ornamented with palm trees. Ezek. 40 and 41.

Some have thought that the sweet flag, found in damp places in the North of Palestine, is the "sweet cane" (Jer. 6 : 20) and the "sweet calamus" (Ex. 30 : 23) of our version. But in Jeremiah it is called "sweet cane from a far country," and consequently was not, like the sweet flag, a native product of Palestine.

Several species of Aroideæ are common in Palestine. They are more obvious than the cuckoo-pint of our hedges because of the bright color of their flowering leaves and the intolerable stench given out by them. This property induced Tristram to suggest that some of the species found in the corn-producing plains might be the "cockle" or noisome weed, baoshah, alluded to by Job (31 : 40), seeing this word is derived from a root signifying "to stink like carrion."

The brilliant covering of flowers which in spring surprises and delights every traveler in Palestine is largely due to the numerous and varied forms of liliaceous plants which abound on hill and plain. Tulips and lilies, squills and hyacinths, with fritillarias and asphodels, combine to deck the fields with a wonderous glow of color. To these and the plants belonging to other orders associated with them the Saviour referred when, teaching trust in God, he bade his hearers "consider the lilies of the field." Matt. 6 : 28. A very common Palestine plant is the star of Bethlehem, whose white and green flowers adorn every hill in spring.

The varieties of onion in Palestine are numerous and often beautiful, though not always agreeable to the smell. The wild species adorn the pastures with their white, pink and purple flowers, while those used as vegetables are cultivated everywhere, and one or other of them forms an ingredient in most Oriental dishes. Three kinds are included in the list of good things which the Israelites had enjoyed in Egypt, and which they lusted after in the wilderness: "We remember the fish which we did eat in Egypt freely; the cucumbers, and the melons, and the leeks, and the onions, and the garlic; but now our soul is dried up." Num. 11 : 5, 6. These are known from profane records to have been favorite vegetables in Egypt.

Our common sea-side rush grows in clumps along the shores of the Dead Sea, and other species occur in damp localities in the North of Palestine. No remarkable species of orchids are met with. The plants of this order are terrestrial forms similar to those found in England and the South of Europe.

Several beautiful species of Amaryllidaceæ are natives of the Holy Land. Deserving special notice are the white pancratiums and the yellow Operanthus. The hilly pastures abound with patches of violet ixiolirions, and plains and hills alike are adorned with the bright flowers of the polyanthus narcissus.

Many forms of Iridaceæ are found in the plains of Palestine, including species of Iris, Gladiolus and Crocus. The coloring material saffron is collected in the Holy Land from Crocus sativus and other species. It consists of the yellow style and stigma of the flower dried in the sun and pounded to make powdered saffron, or pressed into small tablets to form cake saffron. It is chiefly used for coloring confectionery and giving a tint to liqueurs. A recent traveler says "he found saffron a very useful condiment in traveling cookery, a very small pinch of it giving out not only a rich yellow color, but an agreeable flavor to a dish of rice or to an insipid stew." In the well-stocked garden to which the bride is compared saffron is mentioned as having a place. Cant. 4 : 14. (For additional articles see Bible Dictionary.)

The Cyperaceæ are not numerous in Palestine, and with one exception none of them are remarkable. A Cyperus with an edible tuber is found in the Jordan and other streams. It may be the achu, translated "flag" in the passage, "Can the rush grow up without mire? can the flag grow without water?" (Job 8 : 11), and twice rendered "meadow" in Genesis: "Behold, there came out of the river seven well-favored kine and fat-fleshed, and they fed in a meadow." Gen. 41 : 2, 18. These passages imply that the achu was a water-plant suitable for pasture, and in no plants of Palestine are these qualities more strikingly present than in the edible cyperus. The most remarkable plant of Palestine belonging to this order is the famous papyrus, which, though no longer found in its ancient habitat, the Lower Nile, still grows in abundance in Lake Merom and the swamps of the Upper Jordan. It has been seen on the shores of the Sea of Galilee, and luxurious specimens were observed by Tristram growing to a height of sixteen feet, with stems three inches in diameter, in a marsh at the fountain of Ain et Tin, a little to the north of the Sea of Galilee. Lake Huleh, the ancient "waters of Merom," appears to be the present headquarters of the papyrus north of tropical Africa. The plant has fleshy underground root-stocks, which creep to a great length below the mud and throw up their tall three-cornered stems, which usually rise to a height of ten or twelve feet. The root-stocks contain a large amount of starch, and were used as an article of food by the ancient Egyptians. The long slender, bare columns are furnished with a few short leaves near the base, and bear also at the top a few leaves, from the centre of which the great tuft of fruit-bearing leaves spring, giving the whole plant the appearance of a huge long-shanked broom. Internally the stems are composed of a loose cellular tissue, from which was manufactured the ancient paper. The green rind or skin of the stem was removed, and the interior divided longitudinally into long thin slices. A number of these slices were placed on a flat board alongside of each other; a second series was laid over the first at right angles, and they were then beaten carefully with a flat wooden mallet, until by the help of the mucilage in the tissues and some starch, paste or glue which was added they were connected together. This pulpy layer was then exposed to the sun, and as soon as it was dried it was ready for use.

The gome, translated in our version "reed" and "bulrush," is no doubt the papyrus. This word occurs four times in the Bible. The mother of Moses "took for him an ark of bulrushes, and daubed it with slime and with pitch, and put the child therein; and she laid it in the flags by the river's brink." Ex. 2 : 3. Ethiopia is said to send "ambassadors by the sea, even in vessels of bulrushes upon the waters." Isa. 18 : 2. One element in the prophetic illustration of the joyous changes brought about in the Saviour's kingdom is that "in the habitation of dragons shall be grass with reeds and rushes." Isa. 35 : 7. And, lastly, Bildad, to enforce his position that destruction must overtake the man that forgets God, asks, "Can the rush grow up without mire? can the flag grow without water? Whilst it is yet in its greenness, and not cut down, it withereth before any other herb." Job 8 : 11, 12. The allusions in the context all accord with what is known of the paper-reed. The Egyptians made various articles besides paper from the papyrus. We have the testimony of several ancient writers that boats or canoes were made from it; Bruce found such boats in use among the Abyssinians when he visited them.

There are many species of grasses in Palestine, but unless in exceptional spots they never form a permanent pasture like what we have. The herbivorous animals obtain all the year round more of their fruit from the young shoots of shrubby plants than from the Gramineæ; consequently, in its Bible meaning, "grass of the field" includes a larger variety of plants than the same phrase as we popularly employ it, though with us it covers many fodder-plants that are not in the strict sense grasses. Among the grasses of the Holy Land are some of our well-known forms. Our common species, the annual meadow-grass, a useful plant in pastures, but a troublesome pest in gravel walks and roads, occurs in similar situations in Palestine. Species of Poa, Festuca, Agrostus, Panicum, Bromus, Phalaris and other grasses are met with associated with forms found only in warmer regions. Some are remarkable for their great size, like the Arundo Donax and a species of Saccharum. The arundo is abundant all along the banks of the Jordan, and forms immense brakes on the shores of the lakes through which the river runs, as well as at different places around the Dead Sea. It grows to a height of twelve feet, and supports a magnificent and graceful plume of flowers easily moved by a slight breath of wind. This plant is the reed of Palestine, and is without doubt the agmon and the kaneh of the Old and the κάλαμος of the New Testament.

Wheat, barley, millet and spelt were cultivated by the Jews, and they are still grown in Palestine, with the addition of maize and rice. The great extent to which the whole land was cultivated in former days is seen in the artificial terraces which are everywhere met with. From the insecurity of property in the East, regular farming has been for ages carried on only in the vicinity of towns. The whole of Olivet is cultivated in terraced fields of wheat and barley; scattered trees of olives occur throughout the fields, and here and there a solitary fig tree.

Cryptogamic Plants.—Excepting in regard to a few species of ferns growing in the cracks of the rocks, almost nothing is known of the cryptogamous plants of Palestine. Future travelers must remedy this defect in our knowledge. However, to the Bible student this is of less importance, as no references are made to any of these plants in the Scriptures. MINERALS OF THE BIBLE, PRECIOUS STONES, MINING AND METALLURGY.

By the Rev. G. Deane, F.G.S.

THE minerals named in the Bible may be classed in three groups: (1) Gems or precious stones; (2) Those connected with metals, mining and metallurgy; and (3) Mineral substances not referable to either of the preceding classes.

Precious Stones.—From time immemorial precious stones have excited curiosity and commanded admiration. Brilliant and richly-colored gems have a strange fascination. They blaze on the brow of beauty and deck the crown of royalty. Imagination has vested them with strange, fantastic and mystical powers. Religion has claimed them for her service.

Most of the precious stones named in the Bible are included in three distinct lists—the description of the high priest's breastplate (Ex. 28 : 17 ; 39 : 10) ; the account of the ornaments of the king of Tyre in Ezek. 28 : 13; and the apocalyptic vision of the foundations of the New Jerusalem. Rev. 21 : 18–21. Besides these passages, there are others in which particular stones are referred to—e. g., Rev. 4 : 3 ; Job 28 : 19 ; Gen. 2 : 12 ; and others.

To identify the Hebrew and Greek names used in these passages with the names of modern mineralogy is in many cases no easy task. Most probably in those early times when the ritual and priestly dresses, as described in the book of Exodus, were determined, Egypt and Arabia were the only countries through which the Israelites could obtain a knowledge of gems. Subsequently the commerce of Phœnicia and Ezion-geber (1 Kings 9 : 26 ; 22 : 48) on the one hand, and the Babylonian captivity on the other, opened to them a knowledge of the treasures of the East. And later still the conquests of the Greeks and Romans must have had some effect upon the nomenclature of the precious stones.

A second means of determination is found in the etymology of Hebrew and Arabic roots. The ancient names of many of these precious stones are derived from some physical character they possess—e. g., the Hebrew name of the sardius, or sardine stone, is ôdem, from a root signifying "to be red," a derivation which manifestly excludes all stones which are not red. There is, moreover, every reason to believe that the modern Arabic names have not been substantially altered for at least two thousand years, and this affords us a further clue to exact determination, on account of the resemblances between Hebrew and Arabic.

A third and still more important aid to identification is found in a comparison of the original texts of the Septuagint, the Vulgate and Josephus. The Septuagint is the Greek version of the Old Testament made in the third century B. C. at Alexandria. The Vulgate is a Latin text of the Bible made under the direction of Jerome at the close of the fourth century A. D., not exclusively by translation from the Septuagint, but from the original Hebrew. The names of the stones given by these three versions are in full agreement, the order in three cases, however, being changed. This agreement is remarkable. Josephus undoubtedly saw the breastplate in the temple services repeatedly. In Jerome's time it was still to be inspected in the temple of Concord, at Rome. And if we had any guarantee that Josephus and Jerome were acquainted with minerals, the agreement of these three lists would go far to settle many disputed points. Even without this guarantee we have here a valuable aid in determination.

The account given in Exodus of the breastplate shows that the names of the children of Jacob were engraved upon the stones thereof, and also upon the two stones worn upon the high priest's shoulders. But how was this engraving accomplished? Pliny explains that in his day fragments of diamond were used for the purpose, just as in our day the same material is used for cutting glass. It is, however, extremely doubtful whether the diamond was known either to the Egyptians or to the Assyrians, and it is much more probable that the adamant of the Old Testament is the corundum, which is simply the compact form of what is popularly known as emery-powder. This is the hardest of stones next to the diamond, has been used in India from time immemorial for gem-cutting, and can be shown to have been in extensive use for this purpose in early historical times.

The stones of the breastplate were arranged in four rows of three in each row. But in the lists given in the different versions there are some slight differences in the order. The most curious variation is that the yâsh'pheh or jasper is the twelfth stone of the Hebrew list, but the sixth of the Septuagint and Vulgate. Rosenmüller conjectures that the Greek translator of the Septuagint in his Hebrew manuscript must have found this transposition of yâsh'pheh from the twelfth to the sixth place, and of yahalôm from the sixth to the twelfth place. But even if this supposition be correct, there are other difficulties attending the exact identification of the three stones, named in the Hebrew, yahalôm, shôham and yâsh'pheh, which are rendered in our English Bible "diamond," "onyx" and "jasper." There can be little doubt that the Hebrew names represent the beryl, the onyx and the jasper. There is a clear etymological connection between yâsh'pheh and jasper. Yahalôm and shôham, then, represent the onyx and the beryl. But which is which? Braun, Michaelis, Eichhorn and others maintain, on etymological grounds, that the shôham is the onyx; others maintain from other considerations that shôham is the beryl. The word is used in Gen. 2 : 12 to describe a product of the land of Chavilah, in Job 28 : 16 as a most precious stone classed with sapphire and gold, and also in 1 Chron. 29 : 2 as collected by David for the temple. Yahalôm, derived from a root connected with hardness or toughness, would apply to either stone, and as it is used only in Exodus is of very little aid in determination.

The variation in the order of the stones prompts the inquiry whether the breast-plate which Josephus repeatedly saw, and which Jerome might have seen, in the temple of Concord, was identical with that of ancient times. If the whole of the original stones were preserved, the order also must have been kept, in consequence of the names engraved upon them. But it is not by any means unlikely that in the great vicissitudes of the Hebrew nation some of the original stones may have been lost and have been replaced by others. There is, so far as we are aware, no record of any such loss, nor of any appearance on the breastplate indicative of such replacement.

There is not a tittle of evidence to show that these Oriental stones were known to the Egyptians, nor even to the Assyrians. The classical nations subsequently to the Christian era, as shown by the writings of Dionysius Periegetes, were acquainted with them. And it is probable that the Phœnician merchants, even in the times of the Assyrian and later Egyptian kingdoms, may have imported these precious stones from the far East. Ezekiel speaks of the Arabian merchants dealing in all manner of precious stones. But in the time of Solomon a great change came over not only the commerce of the Hebrews, but also over the paraphernalia of the temple-worship. It may be thought that the religious feeling and intense reverence of the Hebrews would prevent all change in regard to so precious and sacred a relic as the high priest's breastplate; and this argument must be allowed as far as it goes. It may be said that there is no evidence of such changes, and that such a thing was far too important to have been done without some record. The reply to this is obvious: There are distinct records of extensive commerce in precious stones in the times of David and Solomon. Thus in David's charge to Solomon we find these words: "Now I have prepared with all my might for the house of my God the gold for things to be made of gold, . . . onyx stones and stones to be set, glistering stones, and of divers colors, and all manner of precious stones and marble stones in abundance." 1 Chron. 29 : 2; see also 2 Chron. 5 : 1. When all things, then, were made new, it is quite within the bounds of possibility that the breastplate shared in the improvement.

We begin with the stone named in the Hebrew sappîr. The modern sapphire is the crystalline corundum, an Oriental stone. And it has been thought by many that the biblical references to sapphire demand transparency and brilliancy. The Hebrew root sâphar means "to engrave" or "to write," and accordingly sappîr might mean either the "thing which engraves" or "the thing which is engraved." If the former, the stone in all probability would be some variety of the hard corundum. But as the Hebrew derivatives from the root are the terms for a "book," a "writing," an "engraving," and so forth, the latter meaning above named is the most probable. The Talmud states that the tables of the law were made of sappîr. The biblical references to sapphire make it represent "the pavement of sappîr" under the feet of the God of Israel "like the body of heaven in purity" (Ex. 24 : 10), and also the throne of God above the firmament of heaven. Ezek. 1 : 26. All these references and allusions suit most completely the stone which is well known to have been the sapphire of the Greeks and Romans, viz., the lovely blue lapis lazuli, or stone from which the pigment called ultramarine is made. Pliny's description of it is "refulgent with spots of gold, of an azure color sometimes, but very often purple. The best kind comes from Media; it is never transparent, and is not well suited for engraving upon when intersected with hard crystalline particles." There are two points in the description which require a word of explanation. The "spots of gold" and "crystalline particles" are iron pyrites, which occur abundantly in some specimens of lapis. A deep-blue stone, then, with brilliant crystalline particles well represents the star-spangled firmament, "like the body of heaven in its purity," and is also more suitable for a royal pavement than the brilliant glassy sapphire. There seems no reasonable doubt that the sapphire of the breastplate was the much-valued lapis lazuli of the ancients.

The emerald was the third stone of the breastplate, not the fourth, as in our version. The Hebrew root means to "flash lightning"—a meaning which materially aids in determining the stone. The term emerald in Pliny's days was applied to a great number of stones; Pliny names twelve. Of these the Oriental stones are excluded, as we have already shown. There remain to be considered the so-called copper emerald or chrysocolla, the beautiful green malachite and the true emerald of modern mineralogy. Theophrastus speaks of the emerald of Cyprus as a gem "very rare and of a small size.

"It has some peculiar properties, for it renders water of the same color with itself. It soothes the eyes, and people wear seals of this stone in order that they may look at them." We have known persons nowadays who have found the view of their seals and emerald rings very soothing to their eyes. This emerald of Cyprus is the silicious ore of copper called chrysocolla, and though very beautiful is scarcely likely to have been the emerald of the breastplate. Nor has the well-known green carbonate of copper called malachite, which is now so extensively used for ornaments, a much better claim, although there is abundant evidence to show that this in ancient times was called emerald and that it was well known to the Egyptians. The significance of these copper ores in relation to the scriptural emerald arises chiefly from the passage in Rev. 4 : 3, which likens the emerald to a rainbow, as there are some varieties which have curiously-blended tints of blue and green suggestive of the rainbow. The etymology of the Hebrew word, however, as given above, renders it most probable that the stone of the breastplate was the true emerald of modern mineralogy. There is a striking peculiarity in the true emerald when of any considerable size. In one particular position of the light its green color is lost, and it flashes the light back like a brilliant mirror. This is in striking conformity with the meaning of the Hebrew word. All the stones called emerald known to the ancients were green stones. This is the only green stone which has this peculiarity. The conclusion is obvious. Some have felt a difficulty in this conclusion because most of the modern true emeralds come from South America. But the mines of Egypt and Ethiopia were the chief source of supply of emeralds to the Romans, and Mount Zabarah in Upper Egypt still affords them. There is no doubt that these mines were largely worked by the ancient Egyptians, and therefore no reason for doubting that the stone of the breastplate was the true emerald.

Closely allied to the emerald is the beryl or aquamarine, which was the last or twelfth stone of the breastplate. Beryl is the name now given to the kinds of emeralds which are either not transparent or are destitute of the bright rich green color. This color is due to a slight admixture of chromium. When this metal is absent or is replaced by other metallic oxides, the rich green color disappears. When the stone is crystalline and transparent, with a faint bluish-green or sea-green color, it is called aquamarine. And this appears to have been the beryl of the breastplate.

Topaz and Chrysolite next demand notice. In some curious way these terms have become interchanged. The topaz of the ancients is the chrysolite of the moderns, and vice versâ. Besides the references in the books of Exodus, Ezekiel and Revelation, Job speaks of the topaz of Cush. 28 : 19. The ancient topaz, or our chrysolite, is a yellowish-green or greenish-yellow transparent stone, not unlike some kinds of glass in appearance. It was found in Egypt, and specially in an island in the Red Sea, from which it derived its name.

Chrysolite appears in the later versions as the equivalent of the Hebrew tarshîsh, the tenth stone, or the first of the fourth row. The finest kind of chrysolite named by Pliny corresponds to the Oriental topaz. The modern Brazilian topaz was unknown to all the nations of antiquity. Pliny mentions other kinds of chrysolite, one of which, distinguished from others by its lesser weight, came from Spain. Tarshîsh, the Hebrew name of the breastplate stone, is the Hebrew name of Tartessus, in Spain, from which the Phœnician merchants brought many articles of commerce. What, then, can be clearer than that this Spanish chrysolite is the stone which the commerce of the Phœnicians brought in early times to Syria and Egypt? From the account given of it, it is manifestly the same as yellow crystalline quartz—the Scotch cairngorm.

Five other of the stones were different species of the ubiquitous mineral quartz—viz., sardius, agate, amethyst, onyx and jasper; and the two sardonyxes which formed the shoulder-buttons are of the same class.

The sard of the ancients is our brilliant red carnelian. It was highly valued, and was extensively used for signets and carved gems. The finest appear to have come from Babylon, but Egypt and Arabia also supplied numbers.

The precious onyx is the banded carnelian often cut across the layers so as to exhibit stripes or spots of black, white, red or other color. Some have maintained that the onyx was a banded stone of two shades, black, brown, red, yellow or some other color, with white, reserving the term sardonyx for those containing three layers, one of which was red, as the Arabian stone, which was black or blue covered by opaque white and then a layer of vermilion. Others maintain that the distinction was based upon the mode of arrangement of the layers; if the colored ground was covered by white veins irregularly disposed, so that when cut these veins formed sometimes stripes, sometimes spots or eyes, then the stone was onyx; but if the bands were in regular parallel strata one over the other, then it was sardonyx.

The agate, or achates, well illustrates the great difficulty of determining accurately some of these stones. Its Hebrew name, shĕbô, is derived by Gesenius from a root meaning "to take prisoner," but Fürst connects it with an Arabic root meaning "to glitter." It may also be derived from another Arabic root meaning "to be dull and obscure." And thus etymology alone utterly fails to solve the problem. The Hebrew word occurs only in the two descriptions of the breastplate in Exodus, and we therefore have no further aid of other usage to guide us. The achates of the Romans included most of the stones now known as jasper and a number of other inferior colored quartz gems. And the agate of the breastplate was most probably some variety of uncrystallized quartz.

The amethyst is undoubtedly the common amethyst of modern science—crystalline quartz colored by oxides of manganese and iron. The color is violet, sometimes passing into blue. It is to be distinguished from what is called the Oriental amethyst or purple sapphire, which is an exceedingly rare stone of the corundum species.

Jasper is the modern chalcedony. Many of the known Egyptian and Phœnician gems are engraved upon a dark-green variety. And this was most likely the stone of the breastplate. The iaspis of Greek and Roman times included many of the stones now called chalcedony, and some of the sub-crystalline kinds of quartz. There is nothing either in the Hebrew root or in the Old Testament references to determine which of these is intended. In the absence of other indication, the Egyptian usage may be considered decisive.

The fourth stone, first of the second row, was, as all admit, the carbuncle, or garnet. It received the name it bore in classical writings on account of its resemblance to a burning coal. By day the lustre is more feeble; nevertheless, it presents a very fiery appearance. The blazing color of many garnets must be familiar to all who have seen them. The finest in modern times come from South America and Ceylon, but the stone is very widely diffused in nature.

The only remaining stone is the lĕshĕm, or ligure, the first of the third row. Concerning this conjectures have been numerous. The fossil known as "belemnite," amber, opal and the modern ligurite have all been supported on different grounds, but it is much more probable that the stone known as jacinth or hyacinth—a variety of zircon—is the ligure of olden times. This is electric when rubbed, and is known to have been in esteem in Egypt and Arabia. It is not much worn, on account of its often porous character and the flaws and blebs it frequently contains. Still, despite these defects, it is a magnificent stone of a rich orange color.

It will be readily gathered from what has been said that in the subsequent times of David and Solomon, and still more in the time of Ezekiel, the Oriental stones may have come into prominence, and by their transcendent excellence have been prized beyond those previously known. Be this as it may, it is certain that in the early times of the Christian era these were well known to the Greeks and Romans. And accordingly we must give a few lines to the description in the book of Revelation of the precious stones in the apocalyptic vision of St. John. This description is evidently couched in a spirit of high poetic imagery, the idea being to illustrate by the most splendid of known gems the brilliancy of the future city.

Nothing needs to be added to what has already been said concerning sapphire, sardonyx, sardius, topaz—i. e., modern chrysolite—beryl, emerald and amethyst. The two latter may, indeed, be conceived to be the most rare and valuable Oriental stones so named, though in point of richness of color but little is gained thereby. The other stones demand a word or two of explanation.

The chrysolite of St. John is most probably the true Oriental topaz, a brilliant golden-yellow crystalline stone. The jacinth of Greek and Roman days, as its description by Solinus shows, is undoubtedly the true Oriental sapphire, a stone of brilliant transparency and lustre and of splendid blue. The description of Pliny agrees with this, but that of Solinus is perfectly conclusive. He says: "Amongst those things of which we have treated is found also the hyacinthus, of a shining sky-blue color—a stone of price if it be found without blemish, for it is extremely subject to defects. For generally it is either diluted with violet or clouded with dark shades, or else melts away into a watery hue with too much whiteness. The best color of the stone is an equable one, neither dulled by too deep a dye nor too clear with excessive transparency, but which draws a sweetly-colored tint from the double mixture of brightness and violet. This is the gem that feels the influence of the air and sympathizes with the heavens and does not shine equally if the sky be cloudy or bright. For engraving upon, indeed, it is by no means adapted, inasmuch as it defies all grinding; it is not, however, entirely invincible, since it is engraved upon and cut into shape by means of the diamond."

Chalcedony must have received its name from Chalcedon, the place whence it came. The only stone of which there is any evidence bearing this name in the time of St. John is the copper emerald, which Theophrastus describes as found in the copper-mines near Chalcedon. It was a small transparent brilliant green stone, rivaling in color the true emerald. The well-known ornamental stone now called malachite and the silicious ore of copper called chrysocolla are closely allied to it. How the name chalcedony can have been transferred from a stone of this character to the milk-white carnelian and other varieties that now bear the name is one of the many puzzles in mineralogical nomenclature.

Some little difficulty attends the identification of the jasper of St. John. In Rev. 4 : 3 the word is used in conjunction with sardine stone and emerald as descriptive of the divine glory, and the walls and first foundation of the New Jerusalem are described as built of it. In Rev. 21 : 11 the light of the city is described as like a crystallizing jasper. This phrase has been considered by some as referring to the diamond. The diamond, no doubt, was known in those days, for Pliny describes at least four forms. But it went by another name; and if St. John had meant diamond, he would have used the right term. Indeed, the use of the word crystal in connection with jasper is a strong confirmation that jasper itself was not necessarily crystalline, and that when applied to illustrate the light of the glory of heaven the further idea of crystalline purity was requisite. The absence from the scriptural accounts both of the diamond and of the ruby, the most precious of modern stones, is noteworthy. Both words, however, occur in the Bible.

Metals.—In a singular and striking passage of the Pentateuch all the metals of the Bible, with one exception, are named together. The thirty-first chapter of Numbers gives an account of the war of vengeance against the Midianites, in which the Israelites destroyed great numbers of their enemies and captured large quantities of spoil. Concerning the spoil we read: "This is the ordinance of the law which the Lord commanded Moses: Only the gold, and the silver, the brass, the iron, the tin, and the lead, every thing that may abide the fire, ye shall make it go through the fire, and it shall be clean: nevertheless it shall be purified with the water of separation: and all that abideth not the fire ye shall make go through the water. And ye shall wash your clothes on the seventh day, and afterward ye shall come into the camp." vs. 21–24. With the single exception of antimony, this passage gives the common names of all the varieties of metals referred to in the Bible. It has been thought by some that "the water of separation" here named is really quicksilver or mercury, which is used for the purification of the precious metals. But this hypothesis is more ingenious than sound. There is no evidence that the Oriental nations knew anything of quicksilver. The Romans of Pliny's time imported it from Spain, and also obtained it artificially from the native sulphide, which likewise came from Spain, but there is not a trace of it in connection with the early Egyptians, Assyrians, Arabians or Persians. Moreover, the hypothesis that "the water of separation" here means quicksilver is entirely out of harmony with the context. In consequence of yielding to the evil counsels of Balaam, the Israelites had been smitten by a loathsome disease through contact with the neighboring Moabites and Midianites. The plague was stayed, but the command went forth from Jehovah to Moses, "Vex the Midianites and smite them." Num. 25 : 17. The Midianites were vexed and smitten, and the spoils of their camp were taken; and then, lest the pestilence should break out once more, "the Lord commanded Moses" to take stringent and effective sanitary measures to destroy the possibility of infection. Whatever can be purified by fire, let it be purified by fire; whatever will not stand the fire, let it pass through "the water of separation." The nineteenth chapter gives a full account of the preparation of this "water of separation," and the reference in our passage undoubtedly is to sanitary precautions, and not to metallic purity. The provisions of the law of Moses made sanitary science a religious duty; and this is only one instance out of many in which the utmost care was taken against the dangers of malignant disease. To explain this "water of separation" as the quicksilver which is used to separate gold and silver from mechanical impurities is absurd.

This passage is noticeable chiefly as bringing together all the metals in use at the time. The Midianites were in all probability those enterprising Arabs who either conducted the commerce between Phœnicia and the lands of the East, or on the other hand preyed as robbers on the mercantile caravans; and in either case they might be expected to possess all the common and well-known metals. The omission of antimony as a metal from the list is easy to understand, because it was not used by the ancients as a metal, but as a paint, and as a means of personal adornment. The Hebrew name is pûch, a word which denoted some sort of dye or paint used in decorating the eyes and eyelids. Jezebel, immediately before meeting her death at the command of Jehu, is represented (2 Kings 9 : 30) as putting "her eyes in painting" (pûch). So also Jeremiah (4 : 30) and Ezekiel (23 : 40) use the word as a feminine adornment. There is nothing in the mere text of the Hebrew to indicate from what material this paint was made, but the Septuagint, Syriac and other versions agree in tracing it to antimony or stibium. There is distinct evidence both from Egypt and from Assyria that the practice of painting the eyelids, etc., was common in ancient times.

This use of antimony or pûch will serve to explain two other passages in which the word occurs. Among the treasures prepared by David for the temple, and transmitted by him to his son Solomon, are "stones of pûch," translated in our English version "glistering stones." 1 Chron. 29 : 2. And in Isaiah's grand prophecy of the Church of the Gentiles we find, "I will lay thy stones with pûch" (Isa. 54 : 11), in our version, "with fair colors." The reference in both these passages appears to be to some kind of ornamental stone which when set in its appropriate cement or matrix would present an appearance resembling the brilliant eye surrounded by the lustrous eyelash.

Gold is referred to in the Old Testament under six different names, and four of these occur in Job 28 : 15–17. To go fully into the etymology of these terms would be unprofitable for the general reader, but their diversity is interesting as showing the universal attention which gold must have received from the very earliest times. Its yellow color, its brilliant lustre, undimmed by moisture or rust, its weight, its many useful properties, have caused it to be valued from the most remote antiquity. Unlike most other metals, it occurs in nature only in metallic form; and whilst this fact forced it early into notice, its valuable qualities made it highly prized. Its earliest and most common name, zâhâb, is derived from its yellow color; pâz is native gold as found naturally in the metallic state; bĕtsĕr is the term applied to fragments of ore or the dust of gold; chârûtz, a name found generally in association with silver, is regarded by Rosenmüller and some Hebraists as indicating lustre or brilliancy, and by others (perhaps with more probability) as implying "dug out;" and the other two names, sâgûr (treasured) and kĕthĕm (concealed), have reference to the careful and jealous guard with which precious substances are preserved.

Gold is named in Gen. 2 : 11 as found in the land of Havilah. In Palestine itself there is no indication either of streams or valley deposits in which alluvial gold might be found nor of mines from which it might be obtained in its original rocky matrix. The Israelites must have obtained it by commerce. The countries named in the Bible in connection with gold are Ophir (1 Kings 9 : 27, 28; 1 Chron. 10 : 11; 22 : 48; 29 : 4; Job 22 : 24; 28 : 16; Ps. 45 : 9; Isa. 13 : 12); Sheba (1 Kings 10 : 2, 10; Ps. 72 : 15; Isa. 60 : 6; Ezek. 27 : 22); Uphaz (Jer. 10 : 9; Dan. 10 : 5); Parvaim (2 Chron. 3 : 6); and Raamah. Ezek. 27 : 22. Into the almost numberless conjectures as to these localities we do not feel it necessary to enter, but it may be stated in brief that Uphaz is believed to be another form of the name Ophir, Raamah was most probably a town on the Persian Gulf, and the locality of Parvaim is indeterminate. There can be little doubt that Sheba was a district of Arabia, although some prefer to locate it in Ethiopia or Abyssinia. Ophir has given rise to much discussion, some placing it in Arabia, others in India, and others again on the east coast of Africa. In this controversy much stress has been laid upon the alleged absence of gold or of any signs of gold-mines in Arabia. If, however, this fact were conclusive in excluding Ophir from Arabia, by parity of reasoning it would exclude Sheba likewise; but there is overwhelmingly strong evidence that Sheba was in Arabia. There is, moreover, evidence in writers of antiquity that in ancient times Arabia did yield gold; and whether its own soil supplied it or not, there is distinct and conclusive proof that its inhabitants possessed it in abundance. The commerce of the Hebrews, then, brought from the shores of the Red Sea and the Persian Gulf quantities of gold.

In the times of David and Solomon gold existed in enormous quantities among the Hebrews. The figures given in the Old Testament appear almost fabulous. From 1 Chron. 22 : 14 we learn that David had collected together for the purpose of the temple building a hundred thousand talents of gold and a thousand thousand talents of silver, and from 1 Chron. 29 : 3 we learn that, over and above this enormous amount, he contributed from his possessions three thousand talents of gold and seven thousand talents of silver, whilst the people in addition offered "for the service of the house of God five thousand talents and ten thousand drams of gold, and of silver ten thousand talents." 1 Chron. 29 : 7. From these data the total value of the gold and silver has been calculated at nearly one thousand millions sterling—a sum larger than the combined annual expenditure of all the governments of Europe. David had conquered all the tribes and kingdoms that were immediately around Canaan—Syrians, Moabites, Ammonites, Philistines and Amalekites. The spoils of these conquered nations must have been large. Even in the time of Moses the spoils taken from the Midianites enabled the officers and captains of the people to bring to the tabernacle as a thank-offering to Jehovah sixteen thousand seven hundred and fifty shekels of gold. Num. 31 : 52. Gideon also obtained large spoils in gold from the Midianites. Judg. 8 : 26. And there can be little doubt that vast booty fell to the armies of David in the various campaigns. From Hadadezer, king of Zobah, golden shields were captured (2 Sam. 8 : 7), and the royal crown of the Ammonites of Rabbah is described as weighing a talent of gold (2 Sam. 12 : 30), "spoil of the city in great abundance" being also mentioned. After the conquest of Hadadezer, Toi, king of Hamath, sent as presents to David vessels of silver, gold and brass. 2 Sam. 8 : 10. And thus, partly by conquest and partly by tributary gifts, David amassed his treasures. The reign of Solomon is full of evidence of wealth in gold; Hiram, king of Tyre, sent him one hundred and twenty talents (1 Kings 9 : 14), and the queen of Sheba presented a like amount. 1 Kings 10 : 10; 2 Chron. 9 : 9. All these facts conclusively show the abundance of gold at that time—so much that Solomon is stated to have made silver and gold at Jerusalem as stones (2 Chron. 1 : 15), and all his drinking-vessels and vessels of his house were of gold, for "silver was nothing accounted of in the days of Solomon." 1 Kings 10 : 21. The golden magnificence of the times of building the temple dwarfs the previous narrative of the tabernacle work and renders insignificant the splendor of the second temple, that of Zerubbabel. The glory was departed. And yet said Jehovah, "The silver is mine, and the gold is mine. The glory of this latter house shall be greater than of the former; in this place will I give peace." Haggai 2 : 8, 9. The splendors of Herod's temple are attested by contemporary writers, but even its magnificence did not fulfill this prophecy until the Lord of all glory made known in the temple courts his gospel of "peace on earth, good-will to men."

Gold appears to have been used chiefly for personal ornaments and for furniture and decorations. Chains, bracelets, earrings, rings, nose-rings and necklaces are all mentioned. Ex. 35 : 22; Num. 31 : 50; Gen. 24 : 22; 41 : 42, etc. It was extensively used for purposes of architectural decoration and for household ornaments and vessels. 1 Kings 6 : 22; 10 : 21; Esth. 1 : 7; Dan. 5 : 2, 3, etc. It rendered brilliant the throne of Solomon and his marriage palanquin (1 Kings 10 : 18; Cant. 3 : 10), and the beds or couches of the Persian king. Esth. 1 : 6. For images of idolatrous worship also was it used—the golden calf of Aaron and the Israelites, the two calves of Jeroboam and the gigantic image of Nebuchadnezzar. Ex. 32 : 4; 1 Kings 12 : 28; Dan. 3 : 1.

Although so highly valued for these several purposes, gold did not form the common medium of exchange and commerce. The first biblical reference to it for this purpose is in the purchase by David of the threshing-floor of Ornan the Jebusite. 1 Chron. 21 : 25. Wilkinson states that the money of the Egyptians was in rings of gold and silver, which were carefully weighed in matters of purchase. The practice of the Israelites was doubtless similar, as we find constant references to the weighing of money.

Silver is not mentioned earlier than Gen. 13 : 2, where it is said that "Abram was very rich in cattle, in silver and in gold." Like gold, it became exceedingly abundant in the times of David and Solomon. The sources whence it came were Arabia and Tarshish. 2 Chron. 9 : 14, 21; 1 Kings 10 : 22; Jer. 10 : 9; Ezek. 27 : 12. Strabo states that silver-mines occurred in Spain, and that Tartessus was the name of a river near them, and also of the town built at its mouth. The Romans obtained large quantities of silver from Spain, and within the last fifty years the silver produce of that country has revived again. The uses to which silver was put were similar to those of gold. It formed the material of ornaments, dishes, basins, candlesticks and other domestic vessels and implements, architectural decorations and images for idolatrous worship. Demetrius, the craftsman of Ephesus, was a maker of silver shrines for Diana (Acts 19 : 24), when, fearing the failure of his trade through the success of the gospel-preaching, he roused up the superstition of his fellow-citizens to oppose and injure the apostle Paul.

Silver appears to have been the usual medium of exchange. Even so late as Jeremiah (ch. 32 : 9, 10) there was no coined money and the silver was weighed. After the return from Babylon we find Ezra (ch. 8 : 24–28) weighing out the precious metals. See also Neh. 7 : 70. In these passages, however, the words adarkón, darkĕmôn, rendered in our version "dram," are regarded as equivalent to the daric, a Persian gold coin, with which the Jews had become acquainted during their captivity. In later years Antiochus, king of Syria, gave permission to Simon Maccabeus to "coin money for his country with his own stamp" (1 Macc. 15 : 6), and coins of the Maccabean period are still extant. Pliny states that the Romans had only copper money until the third century before Christ. The Egyptians, as we have seen, used gold and silver rings by weight as money, and in the investigation at Nineveh and Babylon no coins have been found, but on the other hand distinct evidence of money by weight. The Hebrew word for silver, kĕsĕph, is the word commonly used for money, indicating clearly that, as in many modern Oriental nations, silver was the criterion of value and the medium of exchange.

Copper, Brass, Bronze, Tin.—It will be convenient to consider these together. Copper and tin, as is well known, are distinct metals; brass is an alloy of copper and zinc, and bronze an alloy of copper and tin.

The nations of antiquity appear to have been ignorant of zinc as a distinct metal. Until the time of Paracelsus (sixteenth century, A. D.) it was not known in a metallic form. There is indeed a passage of Strabo which indicates differently, and to this we shall refer below. The chief ores of zinc are calamine, or the carbonate, and blende, or the sulphide, from which it is obtained by a somewhat complicated metallurgic process. Whether the alloy of zinc and copper, which we call brass, was known in ancient times is also doubtful. Bronze vessels and implements in abundance have been found amidst the ruins and débris of ancient cities, and in the tombs and places of burial of ancient times; but brass is wanting, and the presumption, therefore, is that brass was unknown. It is, of course, quite possible, as Beckmann maintains, that brass was accidentally discovered by the fusing of calamine in connection with copper ores. One of the modern methods of its manufacture is to fuse copper under a mixture of calamine and charcoal. The account given by Pliny of what he calls cadmia renders it highly probable that one variety of the substance so called was certainly calamine. And it is not by any means impossible that the ancient smelter may have accidentally fabricated a sort of brass from the presence of zinc and ore in his materials. If this did happen, the resulting alloy would differ from bronze in having a yellower color and a higher lustre, and would doubtless be more highly prized, partly for these qualities and partly for its rarity. This contingency or possibility deserves notice in connection with the biblical metals on account of the statements in Ezra 8 : 27, Ezek. 1 : 4, 7, 27; 8 : 2; and Rev. 1 : 15; 2 : 18. Ezra speaks of two vessels of "fine copper precious as gold," or, as Rosenmüller renders, "of copper shining like gold, and as precious as gold." "Bright brass" also is mentioned in 1 Kings 7 : 45, and "polished brass" in Dan. 10 : 6. These terms manifestly imply some difference from the metal usually styled nĕchôsheth, and it has been suggested that they refer to the metal called by the Romans orichalcum or aurichalcum. Of this Pliny states there were two kinds, natural and artificial. The former was extinct in Pliny's time; Servius describes it as having the lustre of gold and the hardness of copper. Rosenmüller quotes from Aristotle that a metal of this description was found in India, and that among the treasures of Darius were vessels made thereof, distinguishable from gold only by the smell which is peculiar to brass. And he proceeds to identify this metal with one referred to by Chardin as found in Sumatra and the Macassar Islands, having a pale rose-red color between copper and gold, of a fine grain and susceptible of a beautiful polish. The pale rose-red color and metallic lustre here lead a mineralogist to think of the so-called copper nickel—a mixture of nickel and arsenic—but the other characters are not fully in accord with this idea.

Turning now from these somewhat speculative and indeterminate questions, there can be no doubt that copper and tin were known to the Israelites, and that in the great majority of the passages where the word nĕchôsheth occurs (translated in our version "brass") the metal referred to is bronze. Like the corresponding words in Greek and Latin, the Hebrew term appears to have been applied indifferently to native or pure copper, and also to its alloys. It is evident from Deut. 8 : 9 and Job 28 : 2 that copper was a native product of Palestine. The island of Cyprus also yielded it in abundance. For purposes of the arts and manufactures it was in almost all cases alloyed with tin. This alloy, bronze, possesses properties of special value for such purposes. It is much harder and much more fusible than copper alone; and besides this, according to the method of cooling employed, it can be made hard and elastic or softer and malleable.

A question of much interest arises as to whence came the tin used for this purpose in ancient times. The only modern localities are Cornwall and Brittany; Bohemia, Saxony and Silesia; Spain, Portugal and the South of France; Russia and Sweden; North and South America; Australia; and some districts bordering on the now notorious Straits of Malacca. Taking into account on the one hand the abundance or scarcity in which it occurs in these several districts, and on the other the probabilities of ancient mercantile enterprise, there can be little doubt that the tin of antiquity must have come from either Spain or Cornwall or the Straits of Malacca. And one instinctively turns to the commerce of Phœnicia and to the ever-recurring Tarshish (Ezek. 27 : 12) as the medium of tin supply in ancient times. Some have maintained that the supply of tin to Egypt came from the East; but the great probability is not that the East supplied Egypt, but that Egypt supplied the East, and that the chief source of this metal in antiquity was through Phœnician commerce, from Spain and from a district beyond Spain. The testimony of Strabo and Diodorus Siculus shows that this last-named district was Britain, and therefore it is highly probable that the tin contained in the bronzes now in the British Museum left these shores centuries ago.

A metal serviceable for so many purposes as bronze found abundant use in armor and weapons, for vessels of the temple and for various domestic purposes, for chains and fetters, for pillars and for ornaments. The "bow of steel" in Job 20 : 24; Ps. 18 : 34 should be rendered "bow of copper" (or bronze), and doubtless refers to some suitable alloy of copper combining flexibility with strength. The cutting implements of Egypt were for the most part of bronze. The use of emery-powder would render such implements effective even in sculpturing hard rocks, just as in our own day, by the use of fine sand, very hard rocks may be sawn by means of a comparatively soft saw, or as, by the aid of diamond-dust or emery, extremely hard minerals may be cut and polished by the lapidary's wheel. The principle in all these cases is the same: the minute fragments of the very hard material become embedded in the metal edge of the weapon and give it a cutting power which would otherwise be unattainable. In addition to these uses, we learn from Ex. 38 : 8 (see also Job 37 : 18) that the bronze laver of the tabernacle and its base were made out of the mirrors of the women of the Israelites.

Bronze also was most probably the material of the brazen serpent of Moses (Num. 21 : 9), which was preserved till the days of Hezekiah, and was then destroyed because it had become the object of idolatrous worship. 2 Kings 18 : 4. In Nebuchadnezzar's vision, related in Dan. 2 : 32, the warlike character of the Macedonian empire is represented by the portion of the image made of bronze, whilst the next part, made of iron, typified the Roman empire. It is a singular commentary on this vision that the Macedonian age was an age of bronze weapons, but that with the Roman power came a more general use of iron for warlike purposes. The Hebrew word nĕchôsheth is also used in some passages of the Old Testament (Lev. 26 : 19; Deut. 28 : 23; Job 6 : 12; Jer. 6 : 28; 15 : 20; Isa. 48 : 4; Ezek. 22 : 18, etc.) in a metaphorical sense as indicating either strength or obstinacy or insensibility or baseness or fixedness. Perhaps Alexander, the coppersmith of Ephesus (2 Tim. 4 : 14), had gained either from the reflex influence of his handicraft, or from a study of these metaphorical passages, those qualities which he manifested in his opposition to St. Paul.

Iron and Steel.—The descendants of Cain are represented in the book of Genesis (chap. 4) as the great inventors and discoverers of remote antiquity. Lamech was the father of the first musician, and the first metal artificer; Jubal discovered the charms of music, and Tubal-cain invented the first processes of metallurgy. It has been suggested that the hard and dangerous life led by the exiled Cainites forced them as a means of self-defence to metal weapons, and as a means of subsistence to metal tools.

Iron was used for tools of various kinds (Deut. 19 : 5; 27 : 5; 1 Kings 6 : 7; 2 Kings 6 : 5, 6; Isa. 10 : 34; 2 Sam. 12 : 31; 1 Chron. 20 : 3); for weapons and implements both for war and for hunting (Job 41 : 7; 20 : 24; 1 Sam. 17 : 7; 2 Sam. 23 : 7); for war-chariots (Josh. 17 : 16, 18; Judg. 1 : 19; 4 : 3, 13); for nails and fastenings of the temple (1 Chron. 22 : 3; Josephus, Ant. 15 : 11, § 3); for bars and fetters (Ps. 105 : 18; 107 : 16; Isa. 45 : 2); and for a variety of similar uses. In the New Testament we find an iron gate (Acts 12 : 10), a surgical implement (1 Tim. 4 : 2), and iron breastplates. Rev. 9 : 9. The word also occurs in a variety of metaphorical meanings implying hard bondage (Deut. 4 : 20; 28 : 48; 1 Kings 8 : 51); severity of government (Ps. 2 : 9); fortitude and strength (Job 40 : 18; Jer. 1 : 18; Dan. 2 : 33); destructive power and cruel oppression (Dan. 7 : 7; Amos 1 : 3); and many others.

Steel occurs in our version in four places (2 Sam. 22 : 35; Job 20 : 24; Ps. 18 : 34; Jer. 15 : 12) as the rendering of Hebrew words which in all other passages unquestionably mean "bronze" or "copper." It is very doubtful whether the ancient nations were acquainted either with cast-iron or with steel. These, as is well known, differ from wrought or malleable iron in having a proportion of carbon in combination, which renders them more fusible and harder. Cast-iron has the most carbon, but steel, from its peculiar qualities of hardness and elasticity, according to the tempering, is the most useful in matters of cutlery and so forth. The question as relating to cast-iron is purely speculative, and does not affect any passages of Scripture. But as regards steel there are two passages which must be noticed. Jeremiah 15 : 12 reads, "Shall iron [barzel] break [or crush] iron from the north and copper [or bronze]?" Here manifestly "iron from the north" and bronze or copper are represented as having greater tenacity or hardness than ordinary iron. According to Pliny, iron was hardened by being plunged red hot into water, and he mentions different kinds of iron of varying excellence, according to the quality of the water in which it had been tempered. The excellence of the iron depended, of course, not upon the quality of the water, but upon the quality of the ore and the method of manufacture. But there can be no doubt that some districts produced iron of a very superior quality to that of others. One of these favored districts was near the southern shores of the Black Sea, where a people called the Chalybes dwelt. As this district lay to the north of Palestine, it is most probable that the "northern iron" of Jer. 15:12 is this steel of the Chalybes. This and the neighboring districts retained their celebrity for a lengthened period, and throughout the Middle Ages the steel of Damascus had a wide reputation.

Lead.—This metal, most widely used nowadays, does not appear to have been extensively employed in olden times. It was found in the rocks of the Sinai desert, was known in Egypt and common in Palestine. The first biblical reference to it is in Ex. 15:10, where it is said that the Egyptians "sank like lead" in the sea. It is named amongst the spoils of the Midianites (Num. 31:22) and amongst the merchandise of Tyre. Ezek. 27:12. It was used for weights and plummets. Zech. 5:7; Amos 7:7, 8; Acts 27:28.

There is no evidence in ancient times of the use of lead for the multitude of household and architectural purposes which now render it so useful a metal. There are, however, indications of three uses to which it is still put. It was employed for purifying silver; and to this we shall return in treating of metallurgy. Solder also appears to have been known and used. Pliny makes distinct reference to the use of lead for this purpose. He says: "Pieces of black lead [i. e., our lead] cannot be soldered without the intervention of white lead [i. e., our tin], nor can this be done without employing oil; nor can white lead, on the other hand, be united without the aid of black lead." This passage renders it clear that, in Pliny's time as now, a mixture of lead and tin was employed for soldering. There is evidence also, from the earthenware of Nineveh and Egypt, that oxide of lead was employed for glazing, probably after a similar method to that of modern days.

In Job 19:23, 24, a wish is expressed that words might be "graven with an iron pen and lead in the rock for ever." Some have regarded this as implying the use of an iron style on a leaden tablet. Both Pliny and Pausanias refer to this method of engraving or writing. But it is more in accordance with the passage to suppose that the letters were cut in rock, and the cavities so cut were then filled up with molten lead. The English translator of Rosenmüller's Mineralogy of the Bible paraphrases the passage thus: "May the pen be of iron, and the ink of lead, with which they are written on an everlasting rock."

Mining and Metallurgy.—We have already noticed incidentally several matters connected with these subjects, but there are some things which, in consequence of their intrinsic importance or of special mention in the Bible, demand a few words more of separate treatment.

The first of these is the wonderfully graphic account given in Job 28 of ancient mining operations. The late Sir R. Murchison, referring to this passage, contrasts the facts that gold occurs generally in alluvial gravels, and that where it occurs in veins those veins are for the most part thicker at the surface than at greater depths, with the fact that silver, and especially silver-bearing lead ore, occur for the most part in veins which increase and expand as they go deeper. On this contrast he bases the observation that the yield of gold is not likely to increase more than that of silver, and therefore there is no fear that gold may be greatly depreciated in value relatively to silver. And he concludes, "as a geologist, that Providence seems to have adjusted the relative value of these two precious metals for the use of man, and that their relations, having remained the same for ages, will long survive all theories."

The passage in the book of Job is a striking description of mining operations in olden times: "Surely there is a source for the silver, and a place for the gold which they fine. Iron is taken out of the earth, and he [i.e., the miner or workman] poureth forth stone as copper. He hath made an end of darkness, and he searcheth to every extremity [i.e., to great depths and with diligent care] for the stone of darkness and of the shadow of death. He breaketh through a shaft away from those who tarry above; there, forgotten of every foot, they hang and swing far from men. The earth, from it cometh forth bread, and beneath it is upturned like fire: its stones are the place of the sapphire, which also hath dust of gold. A way that no bird of prey knoweth, and the eye of the hawk hath not seen it; which the proud beasts of prey have not trodden, nor the lion passed along. He layeth his hand upon the stone, he turneth up mountains from the root. He cutteth channels in the rocks, and his eye seeth all rare things. He bindeth fast the rivers that they leak not, and that which is hidden he bringeth to light." Job 28:1–11.

There are, as we have already seen, traces of ancient mining in Egypt, in the desert of Sinai, in Palestine and in the adjoining lands, and this poetic description must be held as applying to some of these operations. The writer sketches the vast labor and dangerous enterprise which men will undertake in order to win from the earth its treasures, and then passes on to the question: "Where shall wisdom be found, and where is the place of understanding?" These shall baffle the skill of the miner, and are more difficult of attainment than the precious treasures of the earth. For "the fear of the Lord that is wisdom; and to depart from evil is understanding." vs. 12:28.

It may be well here briefly to summarize what is known concerning the mines of biblical antiquity. Clearly, gold, silver and tin were brought to the lands of the Bible mainly by commerce, though there are traces or records of gold-working in Egypt, and of both gold and silver in Arabia and Edom. Copper and iron were both native products of Palestine, and were worked also in the island of Meroë, at the mouth of the Nile and in the peninsula of Sinai. The island of Cyprus is also mentioned as a source of copper, and there is every probability that both iron and copper were worked in other districts likewise, though there is no distinct and explicit proof. The allusion of Jeremiah to the "northern iron" of the Chalybes has been explained. There were lead-mines in Egypt, near the coast of the Red Sea, and also near Sinai, and it is not improbable that these lead-mines may have yielded small quantities of silver also.

Diodorus Siculus gives a minute description of the method of mining and refining gold. Shafts were sunk into what Diodorus calls veins of marble of excessive whiteness (evidently quartz-rock), from which day-and-night relays of convicts extracted the auriferous quartz. This was then broken up with picks and chisels, and further reduced by iron pestles in stone mortars to small fragments. Then it was ground to powder, spread upon a broad inclined table, and washed with water and fine sponges until the gold became pure from earthy matter. Finally, it was put, with a little lead, tin, salt and bran, into earthen crucibles closed with clay, and subjected for five days and nights to the fire of a furnace. From this description it may be seen that gold-mining in these ancient times did not radically differ from that of one hundred years ago.

Concerning the arts of metallurgy in ancient times we are left in much ignorance. These arts must have existed in considerable excellence amongst the Egyptians and Assyrians; and the accounts given in the Bible of the buildings of David and Solomon show that the Israelites, and especially the Phœnicians, were accomplished metal-workers. Situated between the great ancient empires of the East and West, Palestine was alternately the prey of each, and the carrying away of metal-workers into captivity shows the esteem in which they were then held. See 1 Sam. 13:19; 2 Kings 24:14, 15; Jer. 24:1; 29:2. The book of Ecclesiasticus (chap. 38:27, 28), in the Apocrypha, gives an account of a smith's workshop which those who are used to factories and foundries will fully appreciate: "So every carpenter and workmaster, that laboreth night and day; and they that cut and grave seals, and are diligent to make great variety, and give themselves to counterfeit imagery, and watch to finish a work: the smith also sitting by the anvil, and considering the iron work, the vapor of the fire wasteth his flesh, and he fighteth with the heat of the furnace; the noise of the hammer and the anvil is ever in his ears, and his eyes look still upon the pattern of the thing that he maketh; he setteth his mind to finish his work, and watcheth to polish it perfectly."

In the Bible are references to casting (Ex. 25:12; 26:37; 2 Chron. 4:17; Isa. 40:19); soldering and welding (Isa. 41:7); hammering into sheets (Num. 16:38; Isa. 44:12; Jer. 10:4, 9); gilding and overlaying with metal. Ex. 25:11–24; 26:37; 1 Kings 6:20; 2 Chron. 3:5; Isa. 40:19; Zech. 13:9. But perhaps the most interesting of all such allusions are those to the melting and separation and refining of metals. Ps. 12:6; Prov. 17:3, etc.; Isa. 1:25; Jer. 6:29; Ezek. 22:18–20. Malachi (3:2, 3) makes use of a striking metaphor derived from the metallurgy of silver. Before the discovery of quicksilver lead was used for the purification of the precious metals. How far the ancients were acquainted with what is now known as "Pattison's method" of obtaining silver from argentiferous lead-ore is uncertain, but Pliny apparently hints at something of the kind in these words: "When submitted to the action of fire, part of the ore precipitates itself in the form of lead, while the silver is left floating on the surface."

Clearly, however, the passage from Malachi above named refers to the process of "cupellation." "He [the Messiah] shall sit as a refiner and purifier of silver; and he shall purify the sons of Levi, and purge them as gold and silver, that they may offer unto the Lord an offering in righteousness."

Miscellaneous Mineral Substances.—In dealing with those minerals which are not connected with either metals or precious stones we have to consider the rocks and soils, and then the mineral substances which are found along the shores of the Dead Sea. We shall include some reference to what is known of the geology of Palestine, and to the physical agencies which have produced the extraordinary valley that extends from the slopes of Lebanon to the northern part of the Red Sea.

Rocks and Soils.—It is much to be regretted that until recently no systematic and organized effort has been made geologically to survey the lands of the Bible. The observations of private travelers, valuable though they are, cannot supply the place of an authoritative survey by specially trained observers. The report of Dr. Anderson, the geologist of the American expedition of 1848, and the published works of Seetzen, Russegger, Ritter, Lartet, Tristram, Grove, Stanley and others have furnished a quantity of most valuable information concerning the physical structure of Palestine, but problems of great interest are still left unsettled and there is a great lack of accurate geological maps and definite information. This want is now to some extent being met. The Ordnance Survey of the Peninsula of Sinai, published in 1869, has led the way to the more important enterprise of the promoters of the Palestine Exploration Fund in undertaking an accurate and comprehensive survey of Palestine, both topographical and geological. The reports of Lieutenant Conder, published in the Quarterly Statements of the society, give promise of the successful termination of this work, and we look forward with high interest to the publication of the full results, as likely to explain many things which at present are obscure and imperfectly known. Meanwhile, we must be content with the knowledge that has already been gained; and propose to give here a brief and general résumé of the chief matters of interest that throw light on the sacred narrative.

Sand is abundant in Egypt, occurs in some parts of the desert of Sinai, though not by any means general in that district, and is found along the shores of the seas and lakes and in some of the mountain torrents of Palestine. The "sand of the sea" is often used in the Bible as a figure expressive of great number or abundance (Gen. 32:12; 41:49, etc.), and in other passages (Job 6:3; Prov. 27:3) as expressive of weight. When Moses killed the Egyptian who was oppressing his Hebrew brother, he hid his body in the sand. Ex. 2:12. In the final blessing of Moses (Deut. 33:18, 19), Issachar is exhorted to rejoice in his tents, "for they shall suck of the abundance of the seas, and of the treasures hid in the sands." The parable of the house built on the sand, with which the sermon on the mount concludes, must be familiar to the reader. On one of the sandy flats of a mountain torrent the house is built in the dry season; and when the rains set in, the roaring stream sweeps all before it.

The sand and sand-drifts of Egypt and the East have been likened to glaciers: "sands and sand-drifts which in purity, in brightness, in firmness, in destructiveness, are the snows and glaciers of the south." The sand-blown hills and dunes which line some portions of the Mediterranean coast are referred to by Jeremiah in the words, "Fear ye not me? saith the Lord: will ye not tremble at my presence, which have placed the sand for the bound of the sea by a perpetual decree, that it cannot pass it; and though the waves thereof toss themselves, yet can they not prevail; though they roar, yet can they not pass over it?" Jer. 5:22. The might of Jehovah makes the feebleness and mobility of the sand the barrier to the strength of the ocean.

Clay is repeatedly referred to in the Bible as the material of bricks, pottery and seals. The word is sometimes used to denote mud, and is then in our version generally translated "mire," or "dirt." Isa. 57:20; Jer. 38:6, etc. But in other passages it clearly refers to alluvial clay or potter's clay, which was used for the purposes above named. It is very doubtful whether the finer kinds of porcelain clay existed either in Egypt, Palestine or Assyria. Most of these finer kinds of clay are the result of a peculiar disintegration of rocks containing felspar. The kaolin, or porcelain clay of Cornwall, results from the decomposition of light gray or almost white granite. The felspar of the granite, which consists of silicate of alumina and potass, is acted upon by water containing carbonic acid in solution, and thus becomes gradually decomposed. The potass compounds, being soluble, are washed out, and the silicate of alumina remains as a fine impalpable white powder. This powder then becomes separated by rain wash and streams from much of the quartz and mica with which in the granite it was associated, and forms the clay so much valued for the finer sort of pottery. So far as we are aware, there is no evidence that potter's clay of this very pure character existed in the lands of the Bible. But other kinds of clay, also suited for purposes of pottery, undoubtedly occurred, and are repeatedly mentioned.

In Jer. 18 : 3 is a reference to the potter's wheel. The earliest distinct reference to pottery (with the exception of Rebekah's pitcher, Gen. 24 : 14, which may possibly have been of earthenware) is found in the narrative of Gideon's little army, who hid their torches in earthen pitchers, which they subsequently broke. Judg. 7 : 16, 19. From Jer. 32 : 14 it appears that in ancient times earthen vessels were employed, as iron safes are with us, to preserve documents from destruction by fire or vermin. The utter desolation of the patriarch Job is forcibly shown by the use he made of a potsherd. Job 2 : 8.

Two distinct kinds of bricks were made use of in olden time. The bricks of Assyria were kiln-baked, and were generally set in bitumen or asphaltum. Those of Egypt on the other hand were sun-dried, sometimes made with straw, sometimes without straw. The Assyrian method of manufacture is mentioned in connection with the building of the tower of Babel (Gen. 11 : 3), and the Egyptian method—both with and without straw—was one of the employments of the Hebrews during their Egyptian bondage. Ex. 1 : 14; 5 : 7. Sun-dried bricks were used at Nineveh, and in later times kiln-burnt bricks were employed in Egypt, as the mention of a brick-kiln there by the prophet Jeremiah (43 : 9) indicates. The Israelites appear to have followed the method of burning in kilns. 2 Sam. 22 : 31.

The third use to which clay was put—viz., for seals (Job 38 : 14)—seems strange to us in modern times. The luxury of sealing-wax was unknown then, and clay took its place. Even the seals of public documents were made of clay impressed by the tablet and then baked. In Assyria small cylinders of hard stone engraved with devices and letters were used to impress the clay seals. The mummy-pits of Egypt, and sometimes doors, were in like manner sealed with clay. The den of lions in which Daniel was placed was sealed in like manner. And it is not improbable that the sealing of our Lord's tomb was effected similarly. Matt. 27 : 66.

Several Hebrew words are used to denote rock, stone or pebble.

The employment of stones for building-purposes is too obvious to need much comment. Altars were commanded to be made of earth or of unhewn stone (Ex. 20 : 25), and in the narrative of the building of Solomon's temple, it is stated that "the house, when it was in building, was built of stone made ready before it was brought thither: so that there was neither hammer nor axe nor any tool of iron heard in the house while it was in building." 1 Kings 6 : 7. Some of the enormous stones which modern explorations on the temple site have brought to light are believed to have been part of the original erection of Solomon. The references of the New Testament to Christ as the "foundation-stone" or "chief corner-stone" in the great spiritual temple of his Church will be familiar to the reader: Eph. 2 : 20–22; 1 Pet. 2 : 4–8; Mark 12 : 10; Matt. 16 : 16–18.

In further illustration of the use of memorial stones, and also as raising further questions of some importance, may be quoted Deut. 27 : 2–8: "And it shall be on the day when ye shall pass over Jordan unto the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee, that thou shalt set thee up great stones, and plaister them with plaister: and thou shalt write upon them all the words of this law, when thou art passed over, that thou mayest go in unto the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee, a land that floweth with milk and honey; as the Lord God of thy fathers hath promised thee. Therefore it shall be when ye be gone over Jordan, that ye shall set up these stones, which I command you this day, in Mount Ebal, and thou shalt plaister them with plaister. And there shalt thou build an altar unto the Lord thy God, an altar of stones: thou shalt not lift up any iron tool upon them. Thou shalt build the altar of the Lord thy God of whole stones: and thou shalt offer burnt-offerings thereon unto the Lord thy God: and thou shalt offer peace-offerings, and shalt eat there, and rejoice before the Lord thy God. And thou shalt write upon the stones all the words of this law very plainly."

Limestone appears to have been gir, which in Isa. 27 : 9 is translated "chalk." Almost the whole of Palestine west of the Jordan is limestone. The reports of Lieutenant Conder to the Palestine Exploration Society render it evident that there are at least three systems of limestone strata. The lowest of these is described as highly crystalline and dolomitic—i. e., containing magnesia as well as lime; in some districts it is much disturbed and contorted. It is found generally in proximity to basaltic or other trap-rock, and is probably metamorphic in origin. Connected with this are other strata somewhat similar, but containing fossils which fix the geological age of the upper beds as that of the English Lower Chalk formation, and of the underlying metamorphic limestone as Neocomian or Upper Jurassic.

One point in connection with limestone rock which is of great interest in biblical history is the formation of natural caverns. All limestone districts are full of caves, fissures and hollows. The geological history of such caverns is very simple. All rocks are penetrated more or less by cracks and fissures; those which have been subjected to much uptilting and contortion will, of course, be more affected with fissures and clefts than others. Into these fissures and clefts rain-water from the surface penetrates; this rain-water, having previously passed through the surface-soil filled with decaying vegetation, becomes charged with carbonic and organic acids. Thus charged, it is capable of dissolving the limestone, and so in the course of years the rock becomes disintegrated and hollowed into caverns. In some caverns another chemical action becomes superadded. Water charged with carbonic acid can dissolve only a definite quantity of limestone. If, by evaporation or heat, the amount of carbonic acid becomes lessened, the limestone is again deposited in the form of carbonate of lime; and thus arise the stalactites and stalagmites which crowd many natural caverns in limestone. Those who are familiar with caves will readily be able to understand the method of formation of the caves of Palestine. Such caves have been the abode of both men and of wild beasts.

Caves at Jerusalem, Bethlehem and Mount Olivet are still kept sacred to the scenes of the Saviour's history, and scattered all over the country are cave-memorials of past Hebrew life. The cave of the five kings at Makkedah; the "caves and dens, and strongholds," and "rocks," and "pits," and "holes," in which the Israelites took shelter from the Midianites in the time of Gideon, from the Philistines in the time of Saul; the cleft of the cliff Etam, into which Samson went down to escape the vengeance of his enemies; the caves of David at Adullam and at Maon, and of Saul at Engedi; the cave in which Obadiah hid the prophets of the Lord; the caves of the robber-hordes above the plain of Gennesaret; the sepulchral caves of the Gadarene demoniacs,—continue from first to last what has truly been called the "cave-life" of the Israelite nation. The stream of their national existence, like the actual streams of the Grecian rivers, from time to time disappears from the light of day and runs underground in these subterraneous recesses, to burst forth again when the appointed moment arrives—a striking type, as it is a remarkable instance, of the preservation of the spiritual life of the chosen people; "burning, but not consumed;" "chastened, but not killed." See Judg. 6 : 2; 1 Sam. 13 ; 6; 14 : 11; Judg. 15 : 8; 1 Sam. 22 : 1; 23 : 25; 24 : 3; 1 Kings 18 : 4, 13; Mark 5 : 3; Josephus, Bell. Jud., 1 : 16, 2–4; 3 : 7. 36; 8, 1.

Alabaster.—This term occurs in the New Testament in the account of the woman who brought the "alabaster box of very precious ointment," and breaking the box—i. e., in all probability removing the seal of the vase—poured it on the head of our Saviour as he sat in the house of Simon the leper. Matt. 26 : 7; Mark 14 : 3: Luke 7 : 37. The term alabaster is confined by modern mineralogists to crystalline snow-white sulphate of lime or crystallized gypsum. But the word is really derived from a place called Alabastron, in Egypt, where vases and vessels for holding perfumes were manufactured in ancient times.

Marble is the rendering in our version of four different Hebrew words (shêsh or shaish, bahat, dar and sochêrêth). These words all occur in Esther 1 : 6 as descriptive of different stones ornamenting the palace of the Persian king. In other passages the first of the above words occurs alone. 1 Chron. 29 : 2; Cant. 5 : 15. Undoubtedly these terms apply to different varieties of ornamental stone. Marble in modern nomenclature is applied to all the ornamental varieties of limestone. Some of these rocks derive their beauty from the infiltration of metallic oxides and the different chemical substances they contain; others are the result of organic agencies, and are filled with the relics of extinct life. It is utterly impossible to identify the above terms with any known species of marble of modern times. Shêsh was most likely the snow-white crystalline carbonate of lime of metamorphic origin, like to the marbles of Paris or Carrara, and used abundantly for purposes of statuary. The Septuagint renders bahat by σμαραγδίτης—i. e., emerald; it may have been green serpentine, or perhaps malachite. Dar, in Arabic, means a pearl; and Michaelis has suggested that in Esther it signifies what mineralogists now call "satin spar," a peculiar fibrous variety of gypsum which when polished has a beautiful pearly lustre. Sochêrêth is generally considered to have been a spotted or variegated marble, of which there are many well-known kinds.

The Dead Sea Minerals.—The very peculiar geological conditions of the Dead Sea have resulted in the deposit of a number of minerals along its shores. Gypsum, rock salt, brimstone and bitumen demand a word or two of notice.

Nitre, or more correctly natron, a natural carbonate of soda, which occurs abundantly in some lakes of Egypt, does not appear to have been found at the Dead Sea. This substance is mentioned in Prov. 25 : 20: "As vinegar upon nitre, so is he that singeth songs to an heavy heart;" and in Jer. 2 : 22: "Though thou wash thee with nitre, and take thee much soap, yet thine iniquity is marked before me." These passages are readily understood when it is remembered that the substance referred to is not what we call nitre or saltpetre, but is a substance closely allied to ordinary washing-soda and to the carbonate of soda, which effervesces vigorously with acids.

Gypsum and Rock-Salt are the natural deposits resulting from the evaporation of sea-water, and both occur abundantly in the neighborhood of the Dead Sea. Gypsum has already been discussed. Salt is of frequent mention in the Bible. Eating salt together is in the East a pledge of amity and friendship. Hence the "covenant of salt" (Lev. 3 : 13; Num. 18 : 19; 2 Chron. 13 : 5) was an indissoluble pact, and "salted with the salt of the palace" (Ezra 4 : 14) meant, not maintenance, but the sign of faithfulness to the king. Salt was used in the sacrifices and offerings of the Israelites (Lev. 2 : 13; Ezek. 43 : 24), probably with the same idea of honor and fidelity. Salt is the condiment that sweetens food and preserves from putrefaction; hence the references of our Lord to his people as the "salt of the earth." Matt. 5 : 13; Mark 9 : 49, 50; Luke 14 : 34. The sterility of the salt districts of the Dead Sea appears to have suggested the figure of a "salt land," and the custom of "sowing with salt" as indicating barrenness and utter desolation and ruin. See Jer. 17 : 6; Judg. 9 : 45; Deut. 29 : 23; Zeph. 2 : 9.

Brimstone, or Sulphur, occurs nearly pure in lumps or balls in the deposits of the Dead Sea. This sulphur is most probably the result of deposit from the hot sulphurous springs which occur in places along the shores. It might possibly be the result of chemical reaction of decomposing carbonaceous matter upon gypsum. Any way, there it is; and its intense inflammability is used in the Scriptures as the symbol or figure of divine wrath and vengeance. Gen. 19 : 24; Deut. 29 : 23; Job 18 : 15; Isa. 34 : 9; Ezek. 38 : 22; Rev. 19 : 20; 20 : 10; 21 : 8.

Bitumen, in Hebrew chêmâr, sometimes translated "slime" (Gen. 14 : 10; 11 : 3), has already been alluded to as the mortar used for cementing the bricks of Babylon. It is found in the neighborhood of that city, and also in connection with the Dead Sea. The bitumen-pits in the vale of Siddim caused the defeat of the kings of Sodom and Gomorrah, as recorded in Gen. 14. The river-cradle of Moses was rendered water-tight by means of bitumen. Ex. 2 : 3. GENESIS

NOTHING is more certain than that this book was written by Moses, but at what time is uncertain. Eusebius and others suppose that it was composed whilst Moses kept the flocks of Jethro, his father-in-law, in the wilderness of Midian. But Theodoret, Moldenhawer, and most modern critics agree in the opinion that Moses wrote Genesis after the departure of the Israelites from Egypt and the promulgation of the law from Mount Sinai. Genesis means generation or production; and in this book the production of all things is ascribed to God. It is to be observed that we have no account in this book of the creation of the world; but we have a history of the preparation of the earth for the reception of man on its surface. We read in Gen. i. 1: "In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth." When this "beginning" was, we know not. It may have been millions of years before Adam was created. "And the earth was without form and void; and darkness was upon the face of the deep" (v. 2). This state of things continued until "the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters. And God said, Let there be light" (vs. 2, 3). It is important to understand this, for some ignorant persons suppose that the world is only a few thousand years old, and they cannot reconcile this idea with the long geological periods of which they hear so much said. It must be a satisfaction to many to know that, if geologists could prove, instead of inferring, that the world is millions of years old, they would find nothing to the contrary in the Bible.

The Book of Genesis comprises the history of about two thousand three hundred and sixty-nine years according to the chronology of Archbishop Usher (that of our common Bibles), or of three thousand six hundred and nineteen years according to the reckoning of Dr. Hales. The book contains accounts of the original innocence and fall of man; the propagation of mankind; the rise of religion; the general defection and corruption of the world; the deluge; the restoration of the world; the division and peopling of the earth; the call of Abraham, and the Divine covenant with him; together with a history of the first patriarchs, to the death of Joseph. It also comprises some highly-important prophecies respecting the Messiah.

THE BOOK OF EXODUS.

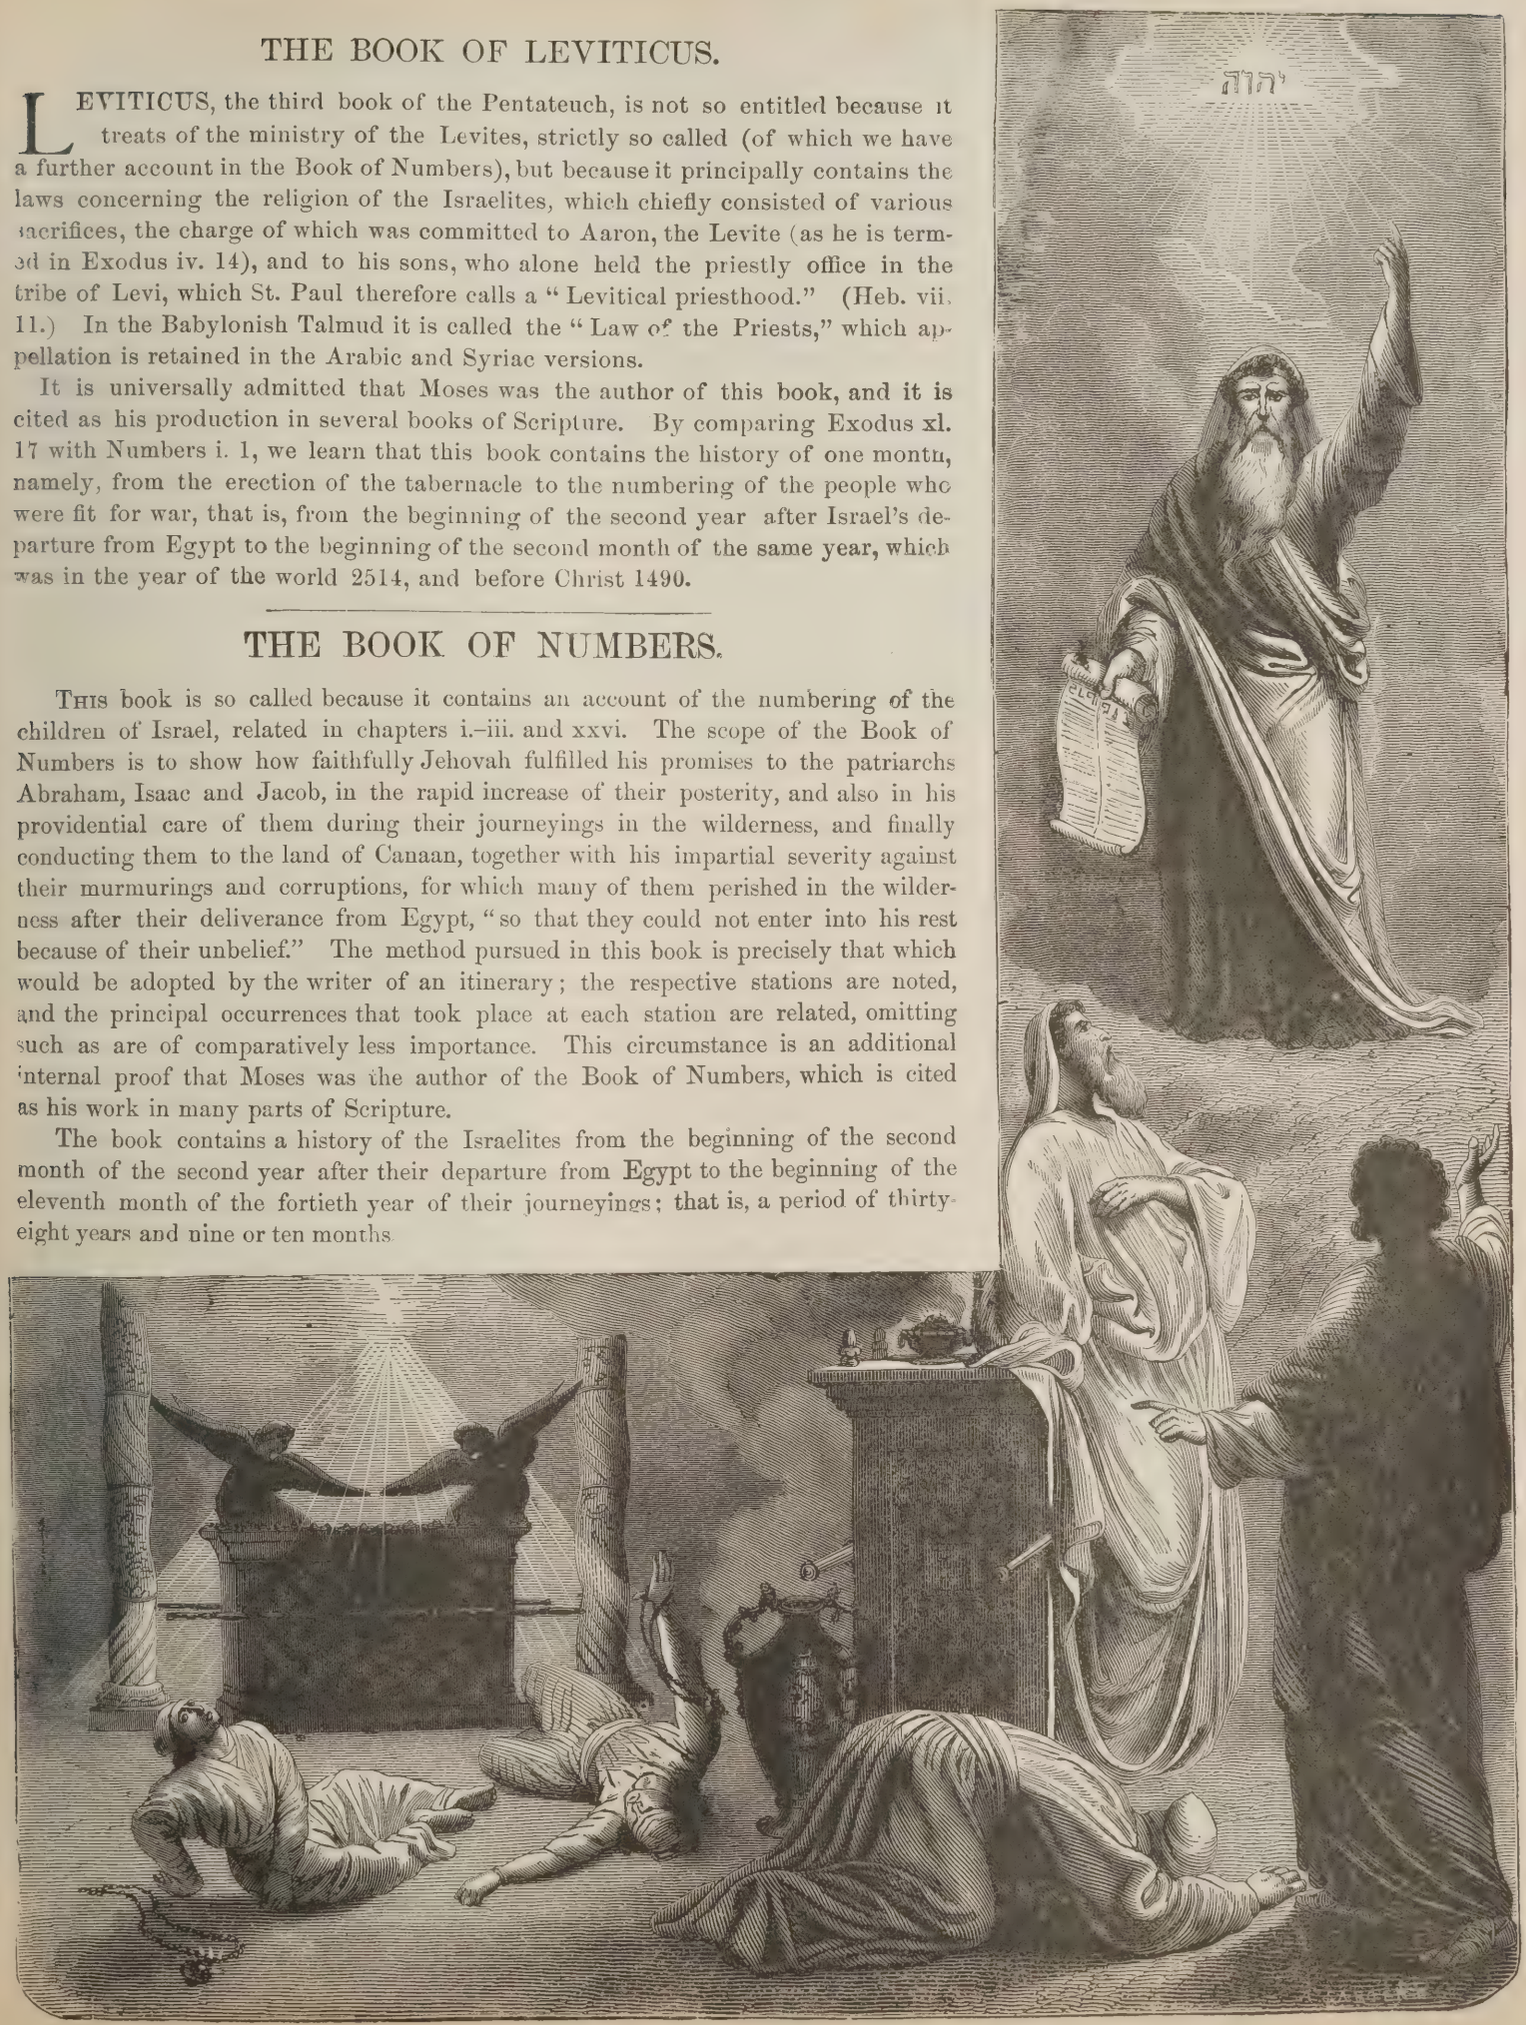
THE title of this book is derived from the Septuagint version, and is significant of the principal transaction which it records, namely, the exodus or departure of the Israelites from Egypt. The book comprises a history of the events which took place during a period of one hundred and forty-five years, from the year of the world 2369 to 2514 inclusive, from the death of Joseph to the erection of the tabernacle. Twenty-five passages are said to be quoted from Exodus by our Saviour and his apostles, in express words, and nineteen allusions to the sense are made in the New Testament. That Moses was the author of this book there can be no doubt, although the period at which it was written cannot with certainty be determined. As, however, it is a history of matters of fact, it was doubtless written after the giving of the law on Mount Sinai and the erecting of the tabernacle; for events cannot be historically related until they have actually taken place, and the author of this book was evidently an eye and ear witness of the events he has narrated.

The Book of Exodus records the cruel persecution of the Israelites in Egypt under Pharaoh-Rameses II.; the birth, exposure and preservation of Moses; his subsequent flight into Midian; his call and mission to Pharaoh-Amenophis II.; the miracles performed by him and his brother Aaron; the ten plagues also miraculously inflicted on the Egyptians; the institution of the passover, and the departure of the children of Israel from Egypt; their passage across the Red Sea, and the destruction of the Egyptian army; the subsequent journeyings of the Israelites in the desert, their idolatry and frequent murmurings against God; the promulgation of the law from Mount Sinai, and the erection of the tabernacle. This is, of course, on the supposition that the sojourn of the Israelites in Egypt was for 215 years, the 430 being computed from the giving of the promise to Abraham.

The scope of the Book of Exodus is to preserve the memorial of the departure of the Israelites from the land of Egypt, and to represent the Church of God afflicted and preserved, together with the providential care of God toward her, and the judgments inflicted on her enemies. It plainly points out the accomplishment of the Divine promises and prophecies delivered to Abraham, that his posterity would be very numerous, and that they would be afflicted in a land not their own, whence they should depart, in the fourth generation, with great substance.

Further, in Israel passing from Egypt through the Red Sea, the Wilderness and Jordan, to the promised land, this book shadows forth the state of the Church in the wilderness of this world until her arrival at the heavenly Canaan—an eternal rest. St. Paul, in 1 Cor. x. 1, etc., as well as in various parts of his Epistle to the Hebrews, has shown that these things prefigured and were applicable to the Christian Church.

THE BOOK OF LEVITICUS.



LEVITICUS, the third book of the Pentateuch, is not so entitled because it treats of the ministry of the Levites, strictly so called (of which we have a further account in the Book of Numbers), but because it principally contains the laws concerning the religion of the Israelites, which chiefly consisted of various sacrifices, the charge of which was committed to Aaron, the Levite (as he is termed in Exodus iv. 14), and to his sons, who alone held the priestly office in the tribe of Levi, which St. Paul therefore calls a "Levitical priesthood." (Heb. vii. 11.) In the Babylonish Talmud it is called the "Law of the Priests," which appellation is retained in the Arabic and Syriac versions.

It is universally admitted that Moses was the author of this book, and it is cited as his production in several books of Scripture. By comparing Exodus xl. 17 with Numbers i. 1, we learn that this book contains the history of one month, namely, from the erection of the tabernacle to the numbering of the people who were fit for war, that is, from the beginning of the second year after Israel's departure from Egypt to the beginning of the second month of the same year, which was in the year of the world 2514, and before Christ 1490.

THE BOOK OF NUMBERS.

THIS book is so called because it contains an account of the numbering of the children of Israel, related in chapters i.–iii. and xxvi. The scope of the Book of Numbers is to show how faithfully Jehovah fulfilled his promises to the patriarchs Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, in the rapid increase of their posterity, and also in his providential care of them during their journeyings in the wilderness, and finally conducting them to the land of Canaan, together with his impartial severity against their murmurings and corruptions, for which many of them perished in the wilderness after their deliverance from Egypt, "so that they could not enter into his rest because of their unbelief." The method pursued in this book is precisely that which would be adopted by the writer of an itinerary; the respective stations are noted, and the principal occurrences that took place at each station are related, omitting such as are of comparatively less importance. This circumstance is an additional internal proof that Moses was the author of the Book of Numbers, which is cited as his work in many parts of Scripture.

The book contains a history of the Israelites from the beginning of the second month of the second year after their departure from Egypt to the beginning of the eleventh month of the fortieth year of their journeyings; that is, a period of thirty-eight years and nine or ten months.

THE BOOK OF DEUTERONOMY.

DEUTERONOMY, which signifies the "Second Law," or "The Law Repeated," is so called because it contains a repetition of the law of God given by Moses to the Israelites. From a comparison of ch. i. 5 with xxiv. 1, it appears to have been written by Moses in the plains of Moab, a short time before his death.

The period of time comprised in this book is five lunar weeks, or, according to some chronologers, about two months, viz.: from the first day of the eleventh month of the fortieth year after the exodus of Israel from Egypt, to the eleventh day of the twelfth month of the same year, A.M. 2553, B.C. 1451. From the account of Moses' death, recorded in the thirty-fourth chapter of this book, and the insertion of some explanatory words in other parts of Deuteronomy, it has been insinuated that Moses could not have been the author; but the following remark will clearly prove this notion to be unfounded. The words of Moses evidently conclude with the thirty-third chapter: the thirty-fourth was added to complete the history; the first eight verses, probably, immediately after his death, by his successor, Joshua; the last four by some later writer, probably Samuel or Ezra, or some prophet that succeeded him.

The scope of the Book of Deuteronomy is to repeat to the Israelites, before Moses left them, the chief laws of God which had been given to them; that those who were not born at the time when they were originally delivered, or were incapable of understanding them, might be instructed in these laws and excited to attend them, and consequently be better prepared for the promised land upon which they were entering. With this view, the sacred historian recapitulates the various mercies which God had bestowed upon them and their forefathers from their departure out of Egypt; the victories which, by divine assistance, they had attained over their enemies; their rebellion, ingratitude, and chastisements. The moral, ceremonial, and judicial laws are repeated, with additions and explanations; and the people are urged to obedience in the most affectionate manner.

The Jews divide this book into ten parasches or chapters: in our Bibles it consists of thirty-four chapters, the contents of which may be arranged as follows: Part I. is simply a repetition of the history related in the preceding books, comprising—1. A relation of the events that took place in the wilderness, from their leaving Mount Horeb until their arrival at Kadesh (ch. i.). 2. Their journey from Kadesh till they came to the land of the Amorites, and the defeat of Sihon their king, and of Og, king of Bashan. 3. An exhortation to obey the divine law and to avoid idolatry, founded on their past experience of the goodness of God (iv.) Part II. is a repetition of the moral, ceremonial, and judicial law. Part III. contains the confirmation of the law; for which purpose the law was to be written on stones, and set up on Mount Ebal. Part IV. contains the personal history of Moses until his death, and his appointment of Joshua to be his successor.

THE BOOK OF JOSHUA.

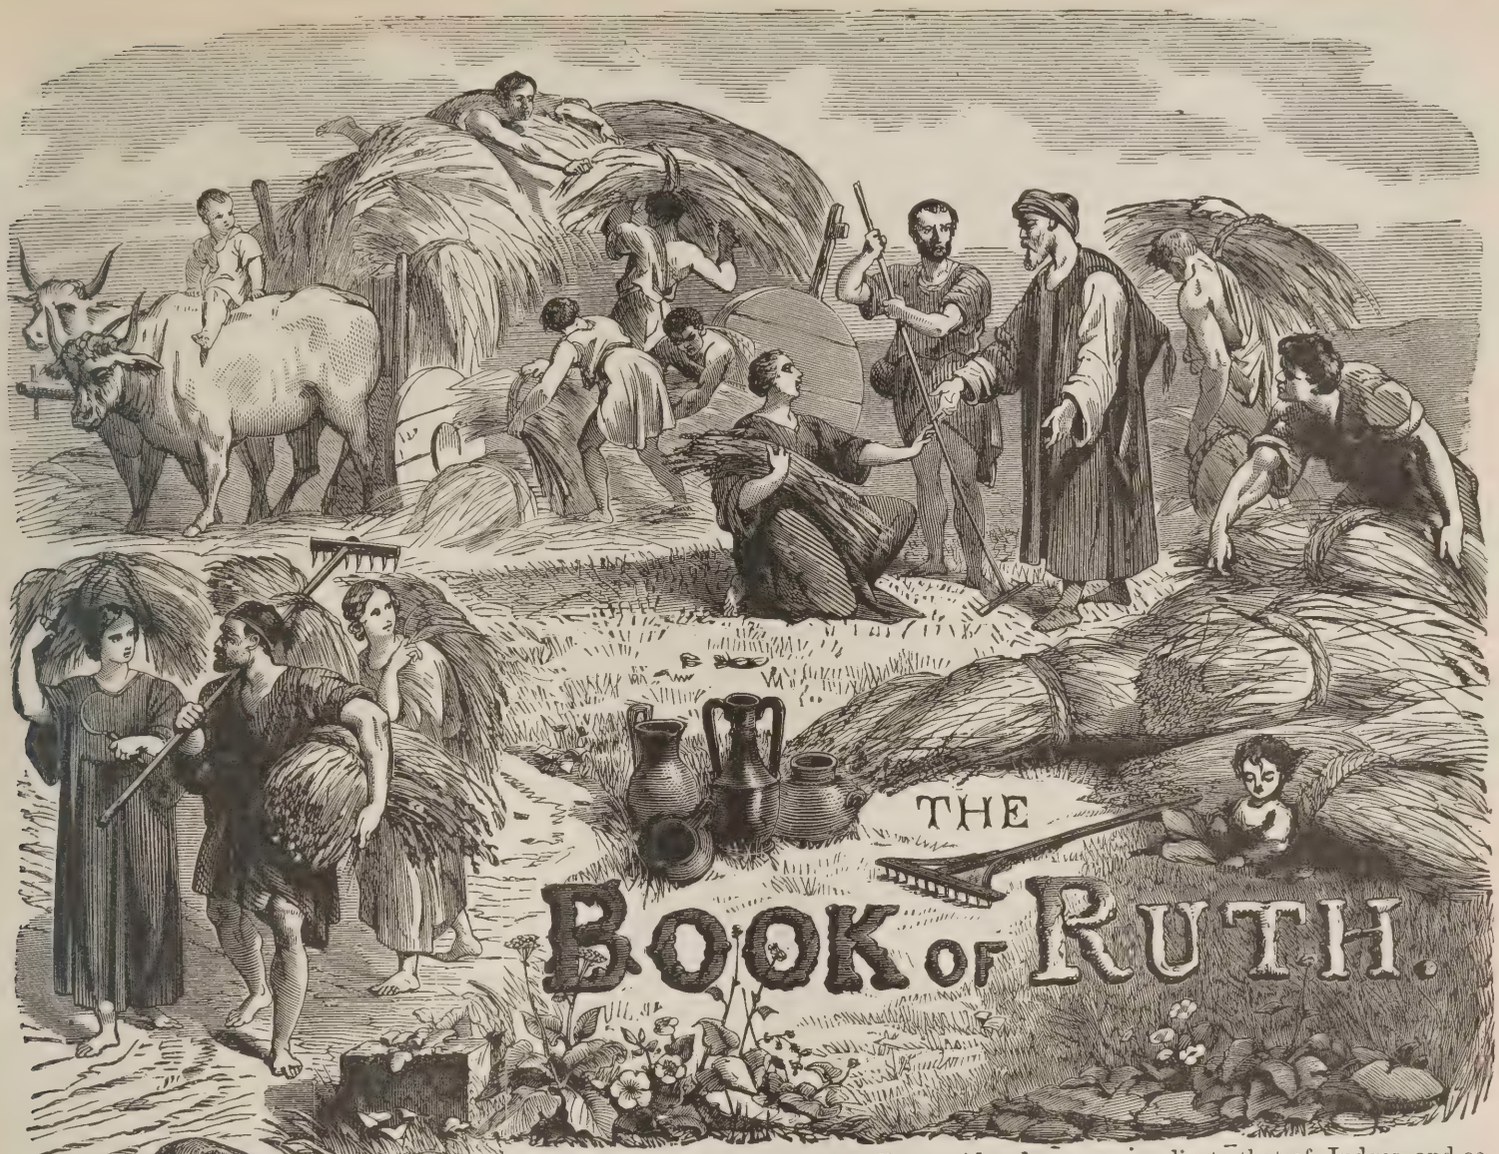
THE Book of Joshua, which in all copies of the Old Testament immediately follows the Pentateuch, is so called because it contains a narration of the achievements of Joshua the son of Nun, who had been the minister of Moses, and succeeded him in the command of the children of Israel.

From the absence of Chaldee words, and others of a later date, some are of opinion not only that the book is of great antiquity, but also that it was composed by Joshua himself. This opinion was held by several of the fathers and talmudical writers, as well as by many modern eminent biblical scholars.

The objections to this idea are founded chiefly on the clause, "unto this day," which occurs several times, (ch. iv. 9; viii. 28.) But this, at least in the case of Rahab, is no valid reason for rejecting the idea of his authorship; for assuming, what is most probable, that this book was composed towards the close of Joshua's long career, or compiled from written documents left by him, Rahab might have been still alive. A more simple and satisfactory way of accounting for the frequent insertion of the clause, "unto this day," is the opinion, that it was a comment introduced by Ezra when revising the sacred canon; and this difficulty being removed, the direct proofs of the book having been produced by a witness of the transactions related in it; the strong and vivid descriptions of the passing scenes, and the use of the words "we" and "us," (ch. v. 1–6,) viewed in connection with the fact, that, after his farewell address to the people, Joshua "wrote these words in the book of the law of God"—all afford strong presumptive proofs that the entire book was the work of that eminent individual. Its inspiration and canonical authority are fully established by the repeated testimonies of other Scripture writers. As a narrative of God's faithfulness in giving the Israelites possession of the promised land, this history is the most valuable, and bears the same character as a sequel to the Pentateuch, that the Acts of the Apostles do to the Gospels.

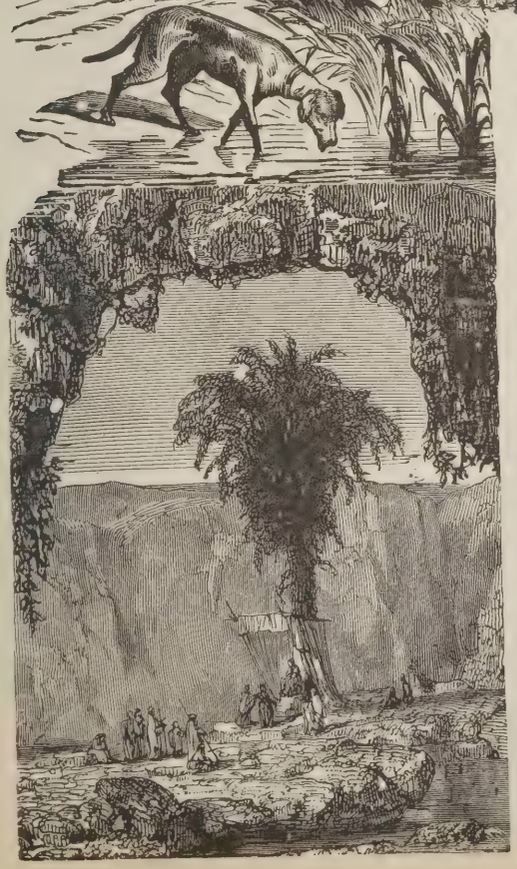
The Book of Joshua comprises the history of about seventeen years, or, according to some chronologers, of twenty-seven or thirty years. "It is one of the most important documents in the old covenant, and it should never be separated from the Pentateuch, of which it is at once both the continuation and the completion." The Pentateuch contains a history of the acts of the great Jewish legislator, and the laws upon which the Jewish church was to be established; the Book of Joshua relates the history of Israel under the command and government of Joshua, the conquest of Canaan, and its subsequent division among the Israelites.

The scope and design of the inspired writer of this book were evidently to demonstrate the faithfulness of God, in the perfect accomplishment of all his promises to the patriarchs Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and also to Moses, that the children of Israel should obtain possession of the land of Canaan



THE BOOK OF JUDGES

Is the title given to this book, from its containing the history of those non-regal rulers who governed the Hebrews from the time of Joshua to that of Eli, and whose functions in time of peace consisted chiefly in the administration of justice, although they occasionally led the people in their wars against their public enemies. The date and authorship of this book are not precisely known It is certain however, that it preceded the Second Book of Samuel, (cf. ch. ix. 35, with 2 Samuel xi. 21,) as well as the conquest of Jerusalem by David, (cf. ch. i. 21, with 2 Samuel v. 6.) Its author was in all probability Samuel, the last of the judges (see ch. xix. 1; xxi. 25,) and the date of the first part of it is fixed in the reign of Saul, while the five chapters at the close might not be written till after David's establishment as king in Israel, (see ch. xviii. 31.) It is a fragmentary history, being a collection of important facts and signal deliverances at different times and in various parts of the land, during the intermediate period of three hundred years between Joshua and the establishment of monarchy. The inspired character of this book is confirmed by allusions to it in many passages of Scripture, (cf. ch. iv. 2; vi. 14; with 1 Samuel xii. 9-12; ch. ix. 53, with 2 Samuel xi. 21; ch. vii. 25, with Psalms lxxxiii. 11; cf. ch. v. 4, 5, with Psalms vii. 5; ch. xiii. 5; xvi. 17, with Matt. ii. 13-23; Acts xiii. 20; Heb. xi. 32.)



Among the many internal proofs of the genuineness and fidelity of the history contained in this book, we would refer particularly to the account of Jepthah, who vows inconsiderately that if he should return conqueror of the Ammonites he would offer up whatever should first come forth out of the door of his house to meet him; in consequence of which, his only daughter is immolated by a cruel father, acting contrary to the Mosaic law, which forbids human victims.

The first part embraces the history of the Elders, who ruled the Israelites after the death of Joshua. The second part contains the history of the Judges from Othniel to Eli; and the third, which narrates several memorable actions performed not long after the death of Joshua, is thrown to the end of the book, that it might not interrupt the thread of the narrative.

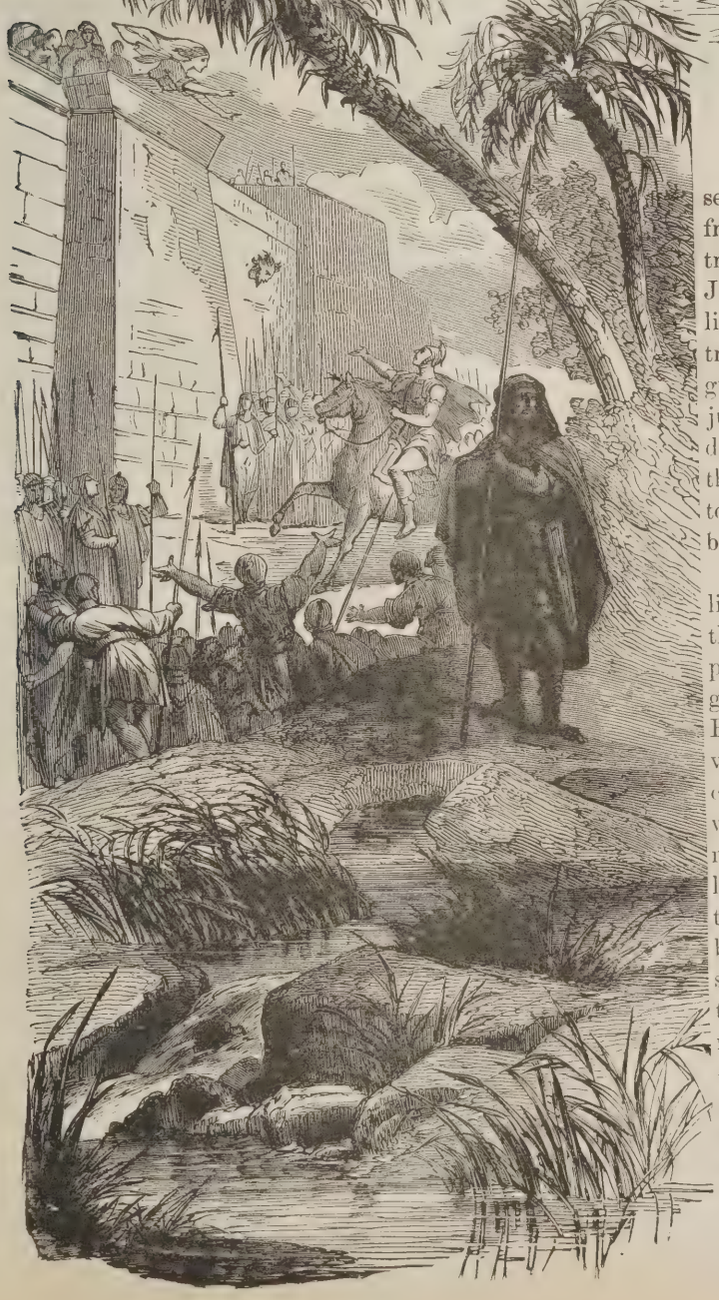
In this, as in other books of the Bible, the reader should bear in mind the principle that the Scriptures do not sanction many acts therein recorded

THE BOOK OF RUTH.

THE Book of Ruth is generally considered as an appendix to that of Judges, and as an introduction to that of Samuel; it is therefore, with great propriety, placed between the books of Judges and Samuel. In the ancient Jewish canon of the Old Testament, Judges and Ruth formed one book, because the transactions which it contained happened in the time of the Judges. The book derives its name from Ruth the Moabitess, whose history it relates, and whom the Chaldee paraphrast supposes to have been the daughter of Eglon, king of Moab. This conjecture, however, is wholly unsupported by Scripture; nor is it at all likely that a king's daughter would abandon her native country to seek bread in another land, and marry a stranger.

Like the Book of Judges, Ruth has been ascribed to Hezekiah and also to Ezra; but the most probable and, indeed, generally received opinion is that of the Jews, who state it to have been written by the prophet Samuel. From the genealogy recorded in ch. iv. 17–22, it is evident that this history could not have been reduced into its present form before the time of Samuel.

The scope of this book is partly to show the genealogy of King David through the line of Ruth, a heathen proselyte to the Jewish religion, and the wife of Boaz, whose adoption into the line of Christ has generally been considered as a pre-intimation of the admission of the Gentiles into the Christian Church. It had been foretold to the Jews that the Messiah should be of the tribe of Judah, and it was afterward further revealed that he should be of the family of David; and therefore it was necessary, for the full understanding of these prophecies, that the history of the family in that tribe should be written before these prophecies were revealed, in order to prevent the least suspicion of fraud or design. And thus this book, these prophecies and their accomplishment serve to illustrate each other. A further design of this book is to evidence the care of Divine Providence over those who sincerely fear God, in raising the pious Ruth from a state of the deepest adversity to one of the highest prosperity.



THE FIRST BOOK OF SAMUEL.

IN the Jewish canon of Scripture the two books of Samuel form but one, termed in Hebrew the Book of Samuel, probably because the first book was written by that prophet, whose history and transactions it relates. The books of Samuel appear to have derived their appellation from 1st Chron. xxix. 29, where the transactions of David's reign are said to be "written in the book of Samuel the Seer." In the Septuagint version they are called the First and Second Books of Kings or of the Kingdoms. In the Vulgate they are designated as the First and Second Books of Kings, and by Jerome they are termed the Books of the Kingdoms, as being two of the four books in which the history of the kings of Judah and Israel is related.

Jahn is of opinion that the books of Samuel and the two books of Kings were written by one and the same person, and published about the forty-fourth year of the Babylonish captivity; and he has endeavored to support his conjecture with much ingenuity, though unsuccessfully, by the uniformity of plan and style which he thinks are discernible in these books. The more prevalent, as well as more probable, opinion is that of the Talmudists, which was adopted by the most learned fathers of the Christian Church (who unquestionably had better means of ascertaining this point than we have), namely, that the first twenty-four chapters of the First Book of Samuel were written by the prophet whose name they bear, and that the remainder of that book, together with the whole of the Second Book, was committed to writing by the prophets Gad and Nathan, agreeably to the practice of the prophets who wrote memoirs of the transactions of their respective times.

The First Book of Samuel contains the history of the Jewish Church and polity, from the birth of Samuel, during the judicature of Eli, to the death of Saul, the first king of Israel—a period of nearly eighty years—namely, from the year of the world 2869 to 2949.

THE SECOND BOOK OF SAMUEL.

The Second Book of Samuel contains the history of David, the second king of Israel, during a period of nearly forty years, namely, from the year of the world 2948 to 2988; and, by recording the translation of the kingdom from the tribe of Benjamim to that of Judah, it relates the partial accomplishment of the prediction delivered in Gen. xlix. 10. The victories of David, his wise administration of civil government, his efforts to promote true religion, his grievous sins and deep repentance, together with the troubles and judgments inflicted upon him and his people by God, are all fully described. This book consists of three principal divisions, relating the troubles and triumphs of David, and his transactions subsequent to his recovery of the throne, whence he was driven for a short time by the rebellion of his son Absalom.

This second book bears an exact relation to the preceding, and is likewise connected with that which succeeds. We see throughout the effects of that enmity against other nations which had been implanted in the minds of the Israelites by the Mosaic law, and which gradually tended to the extirpation of idolatry. "This book," says Bishop Gray, "as well as the first, contains intrinsic proofs of its verity. By describing without disguise the misconduct of those characters who were highly reverenced among the people, the sacred writer demonstrates his impartial sincerity, and, by appealing to monuments that attested the veracity of his relations when he wrote, he furnished every possible evidence of his faithful adherence to truth. The books of Samuel connect the chain of sacred history by detailing the circumstances of an interesting period. They describe the reformation and improvements of the Jewish Church established by David; and as they delineate minutely the life of that monarch they point out his typical relation to Christ." In the falls of David we behold the strength and prevalence of human corruption, and in his repentance and recovery the extent and efficacy of Divine grace. The two books of Samuel are of very considerable importance for illustrating the Book of Psalms, to which they may be considered as a key. No mention of the author's name is made in the book of Kings, nor in any other of the sacred writings, nor in the Apocrypha.

THE FIRST BOOK OF KINGS.

IN the ancient copies of the Hebrew Bible, the Books of Kings constitute one book. Various titles have been given them; in the Septuagint and the Vulgate they are called the Third and Fourth Book of Kings. Their inspired character was acknowledged by the Jewish Church, which ranked them in the sacred canon; and, besides, is attested by our Lord, who frequently quotes from them, (cf. 1 Kings xvii. 9; 2 Kings v. 14, with Luke iv. 24–27; 1 Kings x. 1, with Matt. xii. 42.)

The two books of Kings are closely connected with those of Samuel. The origin and gradual increase of the united kingdom of Israel under Saul and his successor David having been described in the latter, the books of Kings relate its height of glory under Solomon, its division into two kingdoms under his son and successor Rehoboam, the causes of that division, and the consequent decline of the two kingdoms of Israel and Judah until their final subversion, the ten tribes being carried captive into Assyria by Shalmaneser, and Judah and Benjamin to Babylon by Nebuchadnezzar.

Concerning the author or authors of these books, the sentiments of learned men are extremely divided. Some have been of opinion that David, Solomon and Hezekiah wrote the history of their own reigns; others that Nathan, Gad, Isaiah, Jeremiah, and other prophets who flourished in the kingdoms of Israel and Judah, undertook the office of historiographers. We know that several of the prophets wrote the lives of those kings who reigned in their times, for the names and writings of these prophets are mentioned in several places in the books of Kings and Chronicles.

The First Book of Kings embraces a period of one hundred and twenty-six years, from the anointing of Solomon and his admission as a partner to the throne with David, A. M. 2989, to the death of Jehoshaphat, A. M. 3115. It relates the latter part of David's life, his death, and the accession of Solomon, whose reign comprehended the most prosperous and glorious period of the Israelitish history. It prefigured the peaceful reign of the Messiah; Solomon's erection and consecration of the temple at Jerusalem (the beauty and perfection of which was a type of the beauty and perfection of the Church of God); his awful defection from the true religion; the sudden decay of the Jewish nation after his death, when it was divided into two kingdoms, under Rehoboam, who reigned over the kingdom of Judah, comprising the tribes of Judah and Benjamin, and under Jeroboam, who was sovereign of the other ten tribes that revolted from the house of David, and which in the sacred writings are designated as the kingdom of Israel.

THE SECOND BOOK OF KINGS.

THE Second Book of Kings contains the contemporary history of the two kingdoms of Israel and Judah, from the death of Jehoshaphat, A. M. 3115, to the destruction of the city and temple of Jerusalem by Nebuchadnezzar, A. M. 3416, a period of three hundred years.

The last three verses of the preceding book have been improperly separated from this. The history of the two kingdoms is interwoven in this book, and presents a long succession of wicked sovereigns in the kingdom of Israel from Ahaziah to Hoshea, in whose reign Samaria was captured by Shalmaneser, king of Assyria, and the ten tribes were taken captive into that country.

In the kingdom of Judah we find some few pious princes among many who were corrupt. Sixteen sovereigns filled the Jewish throne from Jehoram to Zedekiah, in whose reign the kingdom of Judah was totally subverted, and the people carried captive into Babylon. During this period numerous prophets flourished —Jonah, Joel, Amos, Hosea, Isaiah, Micah, Nahum, Jeremiah, Habakkuk, Daniel, Ezekiel, etc.

We have here the acts of Elijah and Elisha portrayed. Chap. ii. v. 11, Elijah is carried up to heaven in a fiery chariot. Like Enoch, he was translated, that he should not see death; Elisha pathetically laments the loss of the great prophet, but attends him with an encomium. He was possessed of Elijah's mantle, the badge of his office, which we may suppose, he put on, and wore for his master's sake.

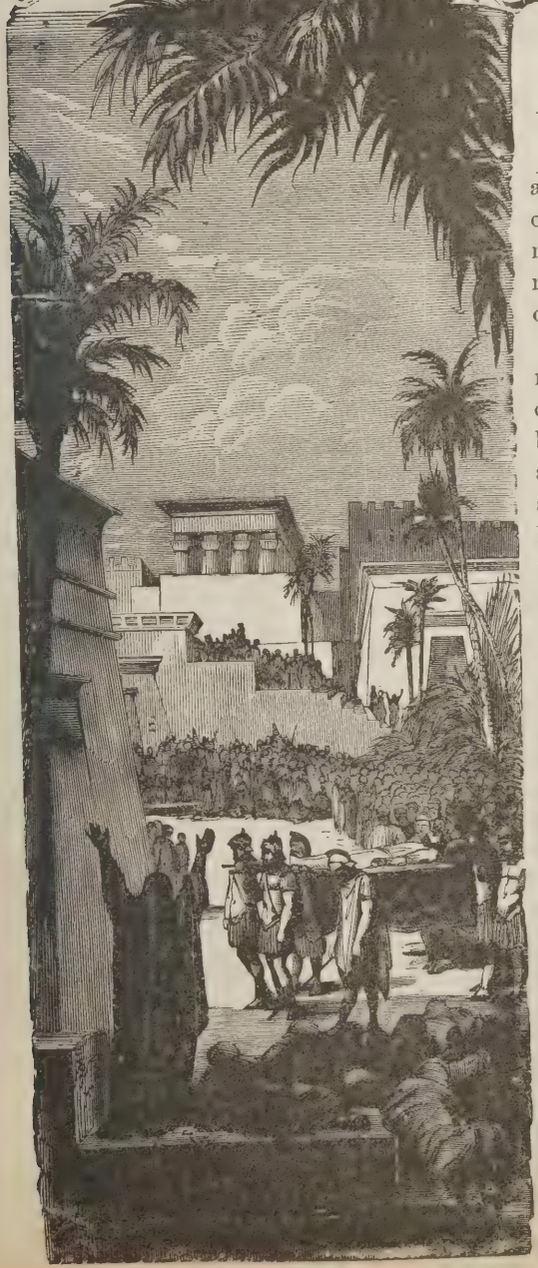
The Second Book of Kings comprises twenty-five chapters, which may be divided into two parts, containing—1. The history of the two monarchies until the end of the kingdom of Israel; and, 2. The history of Judah alone until its subversion. The two books of Kings, particularly the second, abound with impressive and lively narrations; and the strict impartiality with which the author of each book has related events and circumstances dishonorable to his nation affords the most convincing evidence of his fidelity and integrity. They delineate the long-suffering of God toward his people, and his severe chastisements for their iniquitous abuse of his mercy and goodness; at the same time, they mark most clearly the veracity of the Almighty, both in his promises and in his threatenings, and show the utter vanity of trusting in an arm of flesh, and the weakness and instability of human kingdoms from which justice and piety are banished.

Considering the conciseness of the narrative and the simplicity of the style, the amount of information which this book conveys of the characters, conduct, and manners of kings and people during so long a period is truly wonderful.

THE BOOKS OF CHRONICLES.

THE ancient Jews comprised the two Books of Chronicles in one book; but in the Hebrew books now printed for their use they have adopted the same division which is found in our Bibles, apparently (Calmet thinks) for the purpose of conforming to our mode of reference in concordances, the use of which they borrowed from the Romish Church.

The Jews entitle these books "The Words of Days," or "Annals," probably from the circumstance of their being compiled out of diaries or annals in which were recorded the various events related in these books. The appellation of Chronicles was given to these books by Jerome, because they contained an abstract, in order of time, of the whole of the sacred history to the time when they were written.



These books were evidently compiled from others, which were written at different times, some before and others after the Babylonish captivity. It is certain that the Books of Chronicles are not the original records or memorials of the transactions of the sovereigns of Israel and Judah, which are so often referred to in the Books of Kings. Those ancient registers were much more copious than the Books of Chronicles, which contain ample extracts from original documents, to which they very frequently refer.

Concerning the author of the Books of Chronicles we have no distinct information. Some have conjectured that he was the same who wrote the Books of Kings; but the great difference, Calmet remarks, in the dates, narratives, genealogies, and proper names, strongly militates against this hypothesis. The Hebrews commonly assign the Chronicles to Ezra, who, they say, composed them after the return from the captivity. There are various marks, however, about these books which prove conclusively that Ezra did not compose them.

The authenticity of the Chronicles is abundantly supported by the general mass of external evidence, by which, also, their divine authority is fully established, as well as by the indirect attestations of the Lord and his apostles.

The principal scope of these books is to exhibit with accuracy the genealogies, the rank, the functions and the order of the priests and Levites, that after their captivity they might more easily assume their proper ranks and re-enter on their ministry. The books are also an abridgment of all the sacred history, but more especially from the origin of the Jewish nation to their return from the first captivity. The First Book traces the rise and propagation of the people of Israel from Adam, and afterwards gives a circumstantial account of the reign and transactions of David. In the Second Book the narrative is continued, and relates the progress and dissolution of the kingdom of Judah to the return of the Jews from the Babylonish captivity.

INDEPENDENTLY of the important moral and religious instruction to be derived from the two Books of Chronicles, as illustrating the Divine dispensation toward a highly-favored but ungrateful people, the Second Book is extremely valuable in a critical point of view, not only as it contains some historical particulars which are not mentioned in any other part of the Old Testament, but also because it affords us many genuine readings which, by the inaccuracies of transcribers, are now lost in the older books of the Bible.

The discrepancies between the Books of Kings and Chronicles, though very numerous, are not of any great moment, and admit of an easy solution, being partly caused by various lections and partly arising from the nature of the books, which, being supplementary to those of Samuel and Kings, omit what is there related more at large and supply what is there wanting. It should further be recollected that after the captivity, the Hebrew language was slightly varied from what it had formerly been; that different places had received new names or undergone sundry vicissitudes; that certain things were now better known to the returned Jews under other appellations than under those by which they had formerly been distinguished; and that, from the materials to which the author had access, he has selected those passages which appeared to him best adapted to his purpose and most suitable to the time in which he wrote.

As the Books of Samuel, Kings and Chronicles relate the same histories, they should be constantly read together, not only for the purpose of obtaining a more comprehensive view of Jewish history, but also in order to illustrate or amend from one book what is obscure in either of the others.

Chapter I. First Book of Chronicles has Adam for its first word, and Abraham for its last. Between the creation of the former, and birth of the latter, were 2,000 years; almost the one half of which time Adam himself lived. Adam was the common father of our flesh, Abraham the common father of the faithful. By the breach which the former made of the covenant of innocency, we were all made miserable; by the covenant of grace made with the latter, we are all, or may be made happy. We all are, by nature the seed of Adam, branches of that wild olive. Let us see to it, that, by faith we become the seed of Abraham (Rom. iv. 11, 12,) that we be planted with the good olive, and partake of its root and fatness.

The Second Book of Chronicles, portrays minutely, King Solomon's preparations for building the second temple at Jerusalem, and the only portion of King Solomon's life rehearsed at length, are those, in connection with the erection and dedication of that magnificent sanctuary, which formed the most glorious epoch of his reign.

THE BOOK OF EZRA.

THE Books of Ezra and Nehemiah were anciently reckoned by the Jews as one volume, and were divided by them into the First and Second Books of Ezra. The same division is recognized by the Greek and Latin Churches, but the third book, assigned to Ezra and received as canonical by the Greek Church, is the same in substance as the book which properly bears his name, but interpolated. The fourth book, which has been attributed to him, is a manifest forgery, in which the marks of falsehood are plainly discernible. It was never unanimously received as canonical either by the Greek or Latin Church, although some of the fathers have cited it, and the Latin Church has borrowed some words out of it. It is now extant in Greek, but was never extant in Hebrew. It is evident that the author of the Book of Ezra was personally present at the transactions recorded in it, the narrative being in the first person. It also bears upon the face of it every character of natural simplicity, and contains more particulars of time, persons and places than could have been introduced by any other individual.

That the last chapters of this book were written by Ezra himself there can be no doubt, as he particularly describes himself in the beginning of the seventh chapter, and likewise frequently introduces himself in the subsequent chapters.

The Jews, indeed, ascribe the whole of this book to Ezra, and their opinion is adopted by most Christian commentators. But as the writer of the first six chapters appears, from ch. v. 4, to have been at Jerusalem in the reign of Darius Hystaspes, and it is evident, from the beginning of the seventh chapter, that Ezra did not go thither until the reign of Artaxerxes Longimanus (a distance of sixty years), some persons have ascribed the first six chapters to a more ancient author. This, however, does not necessarily follow, and we think there can be no doubt that these chapters were written by Ezra as well as the last four.

THE BOOK OF NEHEMIAH.

THE Book of Nehemiah, we have already noticed, is in some versions termed the Second Book of Ezra or Esdras, from an opinion which anciently obtained, and was adopted by Athanasius, Epiphanius, Chrysostom and other eminent fathers of the Church, that Ezra was the author of this book. In the modern Hebrew Bibles it has the name of Nehemiah prefixed to it, which is also re'.ined in our English Bibles. The author of this book was not the Nehemiah who returned to Jerusalem from Babylon with Zerubbabel. That Nehemiah, whose name this book bears, and who was cup-bearer to Artaxerxes Longimanus, was the author of it, there cannot be any reasonable doubt, the whole of it being written in his name, and, what is very unusual when compared with the preceding sacred historians, being written in the first person. The insertion of the greater part of the register in chap. xii. 1–26 (which is supposed to militate against this generally-received opinion) may be accounted for by supposing it either to have been added by some subsequent author, or perhaps by the authority of the great synagogue, for it seems to be unconnected with the narrative of Nehemiah, and, if genuine, must ascribe to him a degree of longevity which appears scarcely creditable. According to some writers, Nehemiah was of the tribe of Levi, while others are of opinion that he was of the royal house of Judah.

This book may be divided into four parts, namely: I. The departure of Nehemiah from Shushan, with a royal commission to build the walls Jerusalem, and his first arrival there (ch. i., ii. 1–11). II. An account of the building of the walls, notwithstanding the obstacles interposed by Sanballat (ch. ii. 12–20; iii–vii. 4). III. The first reformation accomplished by Nehemiah (ch. vii. 5; xii. 47). IV. The second reformation accomplished by Nehemiah on his second return to Jerusalem, and his correction of the abuses which had crept in during his absence (ch. xiii). The administration of this pious and truly patriotic governor lasted about thirty six years, to the year of the world 3574.

THE BOOK OF ESTHER.

THIS book, which derives its name from the person whose history it chiefly relates, is by the Jews termed Megillah Esther, or the volume of Esther. The history it contains comes in between the sixth and seventh chapters of Ezra. Its authenticity was questioned by some of the fathers, in consequence of the name of God being omitted throughout; but it has always been received as canonical by the Jews, who hold this book in the highest estimation, placing it on the same level with the law of Moses. They believe that, whatever destruction may attend the other sacred writings, the Pentateuch and the Book of Esther will always be preserved by a special providence. Concerning the author of this book, the opinions of biblical critics are so greatly divided that it is difficult to determine by whom it was written. Augustine and some of the fathers of the Christian Church ascribe it to Ezra. By other writers it is ascribed to the joint labors of the Great Synagogue, who, from the time of Ezra to Simon the Just, superintended the edition and canon of Scripture. The transactions recorded in this book relate to the time Artaxerxes Longimanus, the same who reigned during the time of Ezra and Nehemiah. They commence about the year of the world 3544, and continue through a period not exceeding eighteen or twenty years. The Book of Esther relates the elevation of a Jewish captive to the throne of Persia, and the providential deliverance of herself and people from the machinations of the cruel Haman and his associates, whose intended mischief recoiled upon themselves, thus affording a practical comment on the declaration of the royal sage: "Though hand join in hand, the wicked shall not go unpunished; but the seed of the righteous shall be delivered." (Prov. xi. 21.)

The scope of Esther is clearly to describe the historical occasion and origin of the Purim festival, and the writer probably wrote in Persia. At the feast of Purim this book is read through in the synagogues.

THE BOOK OF JOB.

THIS book has derived its title from the venerable patriarch Job whose prosperity, afflictions and restoration from the deepest adversity are here recorded, together with his exemplary and unequaled patience under all his calamities.

The Book of Job undoubtedly contains the history of a real character, the point to be considered is the age in which he lived, a question concerning which there is as great a diversity of opinion as upon any other subject connected with this venerable monument of sacred antiquity. Thus, some think that he lived in the days of Moses, from a supposed resemblance between the style of Moses and that of Job; others, in the time of the Judges, from an expression in Job xxvii. 12, because at that time all was vanity, and every man did that which was good in his own eyes. Grotius thinks the events of the history are such as cannot be placed later than the sojourning of the Israelites in the wilderness. Bishop Warburton, in like manner, admits them to bear the marks of high antiquity.

The subject of this book is the history of the patriarch Job, who at the period in question was an emir, or Arab prince, of distinguished wealth, eminence and authority, resident in the county of Uz, or Idumæa. The principal object offered to our contemplation in this production is the example of a good man, eminent for his piety and of approved integrity, suddenly precipitated from the very summit of prosperity into the lowest depths of ruin, who, having been first bereaved of his wealth, his possessions and his children, is afterward afflicted with the most excruciating anguish of a loathsome disease, which entirely covers his body. He sustains all with the mildest submission and the most complete resignation to the will of Providence. Independently of the important instruction and benefit which may be derived from a devout perusal of the Book of Job, this divine poem is of no small value, as transmitting to us a faithful delineation of the patriarchal doctrines of religion.

THE BOOK OF PSALMS.

IN the Hebrew this book is entitled Sapher Tehillim, which signifies the "Book of Hymns or Praises," because the greater part of them treat of the praises of God, whilst the remainder consist either of the complaints of an afflicted soul, or of penitential effusions, or of the prayers of a heart overwhelmed with grief. In the Roman edition of the Septuagint version, printed in 1587, which professes to follow the Vatican manuscript, the book is simply denominated the "Psalms;" and in the Alexandrian manuscript, preserved in the British Museum, it is entitled the "Psalter with Odes or Hymns." The Syriac version, in Bishop Walton's polyglot, styles it the "Book of Psalms of David the King and Prophet," and the Arabic version commences with the "First Book of Psalms of David the Prophet, King of the Sons of Israel."

The right of the book of Psalms to a place in the sacred canon has never been disputed; they are frequently alluded to in the Old Testament, and are often cited by our Lord and his apostles as the work of the Holy Spirit. They are generally termed the Psalms of David, that Hebrew monarch being their chief author. Many of the ancient Fathers were of opinion that he was their sole author, while others equally eminent held contrary views. An attentive examination of the Psalms will at once prove them to be the compositions of various authors, in various ages, some much more ancient than the time of David, some of a much later age, and others evidently composed during the Babylonish captivity. At what time and by whom the Psalms were collected into one volume we have no certain information. That they were collected together at different times and by different persons is very evident from an examination of their contents. "The hearts of the pious in all ages have felt the value of the Psalms as helps to devotion, and many have labored for expressions in which to set forth their praise." All the Fathers of the Church are unanimously eloquent in their commendation of the Psalms. Athanasius styles them an epitome of the whole Scriptures; Basil, a compendium of all theology; Luther, a little Bible and the summary of the Old Testament; Melanchthon, the most elegant writing in the world. How highly the Psalter was valued subsequently to the Reformation we may estimate by the numerous editions executed in the infancy of printing, and by the number of commentators who have undertaken its illustration.

THE BOOK OF PROVERBS.

THE Book of Proverbs has always been ascribed to Solomon, whose name it bears, although, from the frequent repetition of the same sentences, as well as some variations in style which have been discovered, doubts have been entertained whether he really was the author of every maxim it comprises. Dr. Mason Good says: "The latter part of it, from the beginning of the twenty-fifth chapter, evidently forming an appendix, was collected after his death, and added to what appears to have been more immediately arranged by himself." The proverbs in the thirtieth chapter are expressly called "The words of Agur the son of Jakeh," and the thirty-first chapter is entitled "The words of King Lemuel." It seems certain that the collection called the Proverbs of Solomon was arranged in the order we now have it by different hands; but it is not therefore to be concluded that they are not the productions of Solomon, who, we are informed, spoke no less than three thousand proverbs. (1 Kings iv. 32.) As it is nowhere said that Solomon himself made a collection of proverbs and sentences, the general opinion is that several persons made a collection of them, perhaps as they were uttered by him—Hezekiah, among others, as mentioned in the twenty-fifth chapter. Agur, Isaiah and Ezra might have done the same. The Jewish writers affirm that Solomon wrote the Canticles, or song bearing his name, in his youth, the Proverbs in his riper years, and Ecclesiastes in his old age. The scope of this book is "to instruct men in the deepest mysteries of true wisdom and understanding, the height and perfection of which is the true knowledge of the Divine will and the sincere fear of the Lord." To this end the book is filled with the choicest aphorisms, infinitely surpassing all the ethical sayings of the ancient sages, and comprising in themselves distinct doctrines, the duties of piety toward God, of equity and benevolence toward man, and of sobriety and temperance in all things; together with precepts for the right education of children, and for the relative situations of subjects, magistrates and sovereigns.

A proverb is a pithy sentence, concisely expressing some well-established truth, susceptible of various illustrations and applications. The word is of Latin derivation, literally meaning for a word, speech, or discourse, i. e., one expression for many. The Hebrew word for proverb (mashal) means a comparison. Many suppose it was used because the form or matter of the proverb, or both, involved the idea of comparison. Most of the proverbs are in couplets or triplets, or some modification of them, the numbers of which correspond, in structure and length, as if arranged to be compared one with another. They illustrate the varieties of parallelism, a distinguishing feature of Hebrew poetry.

THE BOOK OF ECCLESIASTES.

THE title of this book in our Bibles is derived from the Septuagint version, Ecclesiastes signifying a preacher, or one who harangues a public congregation. In Hebrew it is termed "The Preacher," by whom may be intended either the person assembling the people or he who addresses them when convened. Although this book does not bear the name of Solomon, it is evident from several passages that he was the author of it.

The beautiful descriptions which this book contains of the phenomena in the natural world and their causes, of the circulation of the blood (as the late Bishop Horsely thought), and of the economy of the human frame, all show it to be the work of a philosopher. It is generally supposed to have been written by Solomon in his old age, after he repented of his sinful practices, and when, after having seen and observed much, as well as having enjoyed all that he could wish, he was fully convinced of the vanity of everything except holiness toward God.

The tendency of the book is excellent when rightly understood; and Solomon speaks in it with great clearness of the revealed truths of a future life and of a future judgment.

The design of this book is to contrast the vanity of all mere human pursuits, when made the chief end, as contrasted with the real blessedness of true wisdom, i. e., religion. The immortality of the soul is dwelt on incidentally as subsidiary to the main scope. Moses' law took this truth for granted, but drew its sanctions of rewards and punishments, in accordance with the theocracy, which was under a special providence of God as the temporal King of Israel, from the present life, rather than the future. But after that Israel chose an earthly King, God withdrew, in part, his extraordinary providence, so that under Solomon temporal rewards did not invariably follow virtue, and punishment vice.

We may therefore consider it as an inquiry into that most important and disputed question, What is the sovereign good of man, that which is ultimately good, and which, in all its bearings and relations, is conducive to the best interests of man? This is the object of the preacher's inquiry, and, after discussing various erroneous opinions, he finally determines that it consists in true wisdom.

The scope of the whole argument, therefore, is the praise and recommendation of wisdom as the supreme good to creatures responsible for their actions—that wisdom which is from above, and which is holy, spiritual and undefiled, and which, in the writings of Solomon, is but another word for true religion.

THE SONG OF SOLOMON.

FEW poems have excited more attention, or have found more translators and commentators, than the Song of Songs; but the learned are not yet agreed respecting its arrangement and design. The majority consider it as an inspired book, and certainly on the best evidence, while others affirm it to be merely a humane composition. In addition to other Divine compositions of Solomon, we are informed (1 Kings iv. 32) that his songs were a thousand and five, of which the present book is supposed to be one. In the first verse it is called, by way of eminence and distinction, according to the Hebrew idiom, Shir Hashirim, that is, a "Song of Songs," or "The Most Beautiful Song."

By the unanimous voice of antiquity, the author of this ancient poem is asserted to have been Solomon, and this tradition is corroborated by many internal marks of authenticity.

If the canon of the Hebrew Scriptures was settled by Ezra (which we have seen was most probably the case) there can be no doubt that the Song of Solomon is a sacred book. To use the strong language of Bishop Warburton, "Ezra wrote, and we believe, acted, by the inspiration of the Most High, amid the last blaze, indeed, yet in the full lustre of expiring prophecy. And such a man would not have placed any book that was not sacred in the same volume with the law and the prophets." In addition to this evidence, various other considerations authorize us to infer that the Song of Solomon was from the most early period deemed a sacred book, and ranked with the Hagiographa or holy writings of the Jews, and hence was received among the canonical books of the Old Testament.

Origen and Jerome tell us that the Jews forbade it to be read by any until he was thirty years of age. It certainly needs a degree of spiritual maturity to enter aright into the holy mystery of love which it allegorically sets forth. To such as have attained this maturity, of whatever age they be, the Song of Songs is one of the most edifying of the sacred writings. Rosenmuller justly says, the sudden transitions of the bride from the court to the grove, are inexplicable, on the supposition that it describes merely human love.

THE BOOK OF ISAIAH.

CONCERNING the family and descent of the prophet Isaiah nothing certain has been recorded, except what he himself tells us (i. 1), namely, that he was the son of Amos, and discharged the prophetic office in the days of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz and Hezekiah, who successively flourished between A. M. 3194 and 3305.

The name of Isaiah, as has been remarked by several commentators, is in some measure descriptive of his high character, since it signifies the salvation of Jehovah, and was given with singular propriety to him who foretold the advent of the Messiah. Isaiah was contemporary with the prophets Amos, Hosea, Joel and Micah.

He is uniformly spoken of in the Scriptures as a prophet of the highest dignity. Bishop Lowth calls him the prince of all the prophets, and pronounces the whole of his book to be poetical, with the exception of a few detached passages. Until the latter part of the eighteenth century Isaiah was universally regarded both by Jews and Christians, as the sole author of the book which bears his name.

Isaiah has, with singular propriety, been denominated the "evangelical prophet," on account of the number and variety of his prophecies concerning the advent and character, the ministry and preaching, the sufferings and death and the extensive permanent kingdom of the Messiah.

No one, indeed, can be at a loss in applying them to the mission and character of Jesus Christ and to the events which are cited in his history by the writers of the New Testament. Bishop Lowth says: "This prophet abounds in such transcendent excellences that he may be said to afford the most perfect model of prophetic poetry. He is at once elegant and sublime, forcible and ornamental. He unites energy with copiousness and dignity with variety. In his sentiments there is uncommon elevation and majesty; in his imagery, the utmost propriety, elegance, dignity and diversity; in his language, uncommon beauty and energy."

The expectation of Messiah is so strong in Isaiah, that Jerome, ad Paulinum, calls his book, not a prophecy, but the gospel: "He is not so much a prophet as an evangelist." Messiah was already shadowed forth in Gen. xlix. 10, as the Shiloh or tranquilizer: also Psalms ii., xlv., lxxii., cx. Isaiah brings it out more definitely; and, whereas they dwelt on His kingly office, Isaiah develops most His priestly and prophetic office. Psalms cx., also, have set forth His priesthood; but His kingly, rather than, as Isaiah, His suffering priesthood.

THE BOOK OF JEREMIAH.

THE prophet Jeremiah was of the sacerdotal race, being (as he himself records) one of the priests that dwelt in Anahoth (ch. i. 1), in the land of Benjamin, a city appropriated out of that tribe to the use of the priests, the sons of Aaron (Josh. xxi. 18), and situate, as we learn from Jerome, about three Roman miles north of Jerusalem. Jeremiah appears to have been very young when called to the exercise of the prophetical office, from which he modestly endeavored to excuse himself by pleading his youth and incapacity; but being overruled by the Divine authority, he set himself to discharge the duties of his function with unremitting diligence and fidelity during a course of at least forty-two years, reckoned from the thirteenth year of Josiah's reign. The idolatrous apostasy and other criminal enormities of the people of Judah, and the severe judgments which God was preparing to inflict upon them, though not without a distant prospect of restoration and deliverance, from the principal subjects of the prophecies of Jeremiah.

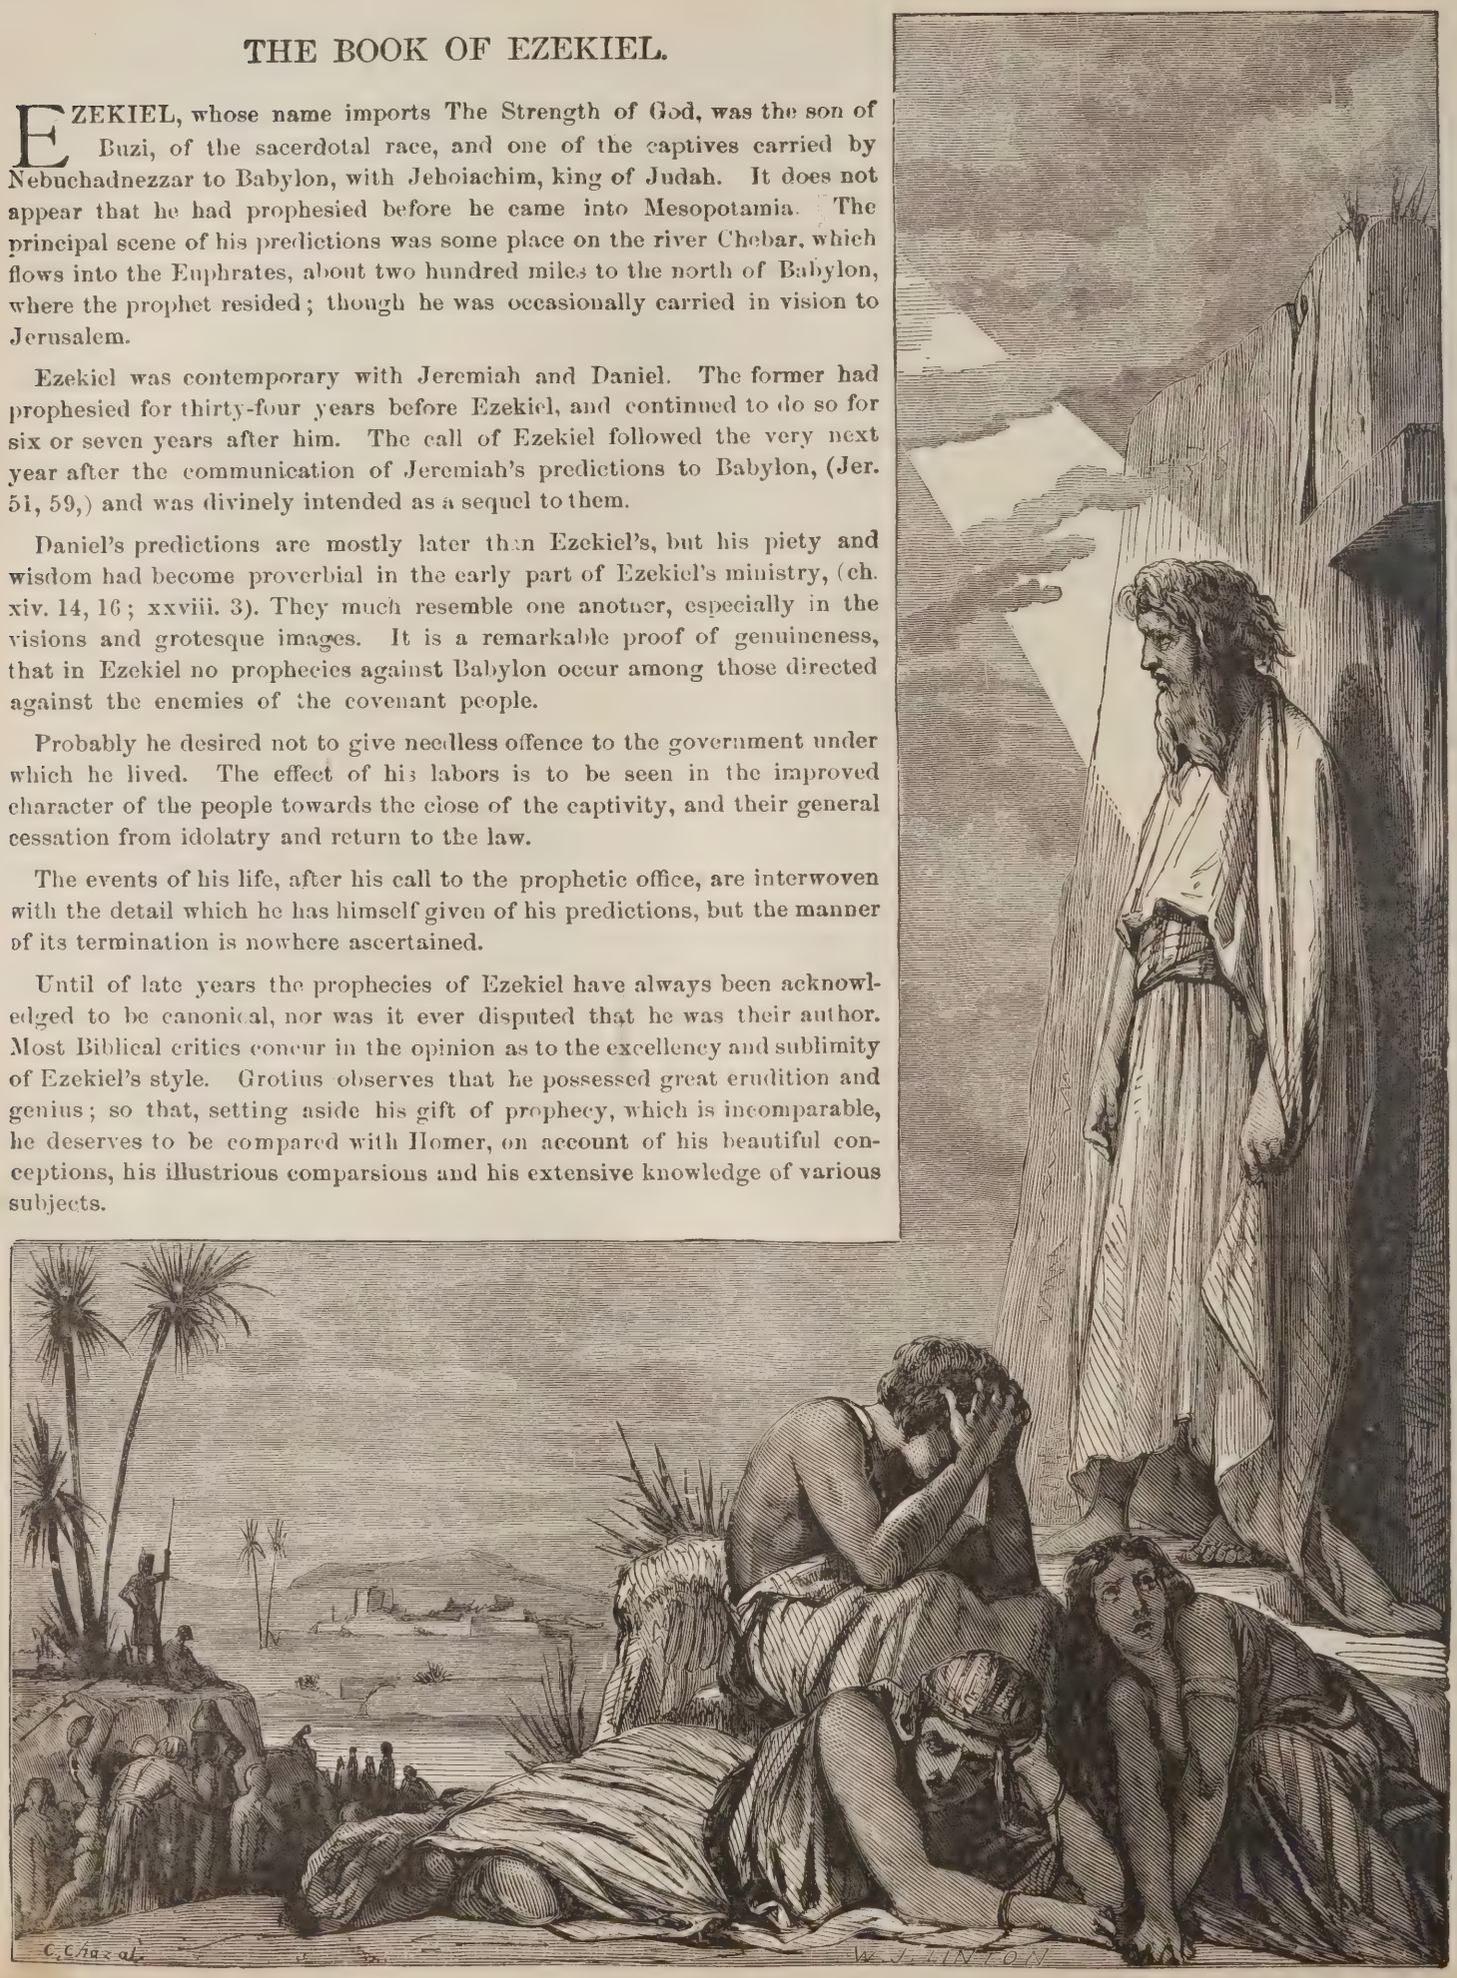
The style of Jeremiah, though not deficient in elegance or sublimity, is considered by Dr. Lowth as being inferior in both respects to that of Isaiah. Although the sentiments of Jeremiah are not always the most elevated, nor his periods uniformly neat and compact, yet his style is beautiful and tender, especially when he has occasion to excite the softer passions of grief and pity.

THE BOOK OF LAMENTATIONS.

THAT Jeremiah was the author of the Elegies or Lamentations which bear his name is evident, not only from a very ancient and almost uninterrupted tradition, but also from the argument and style of the book, which correspond exactly with those of his prophecies. Josephus, Jerome, Junius, Archbishop Usher, Michaelis and other eminent writers are of opinion that the Lamentations of Jeremiah were the same which are mentioned in 2 Chron. xxxv. 25 as being composed by the prophet on the death of the pious King Josiah, and which are there said to have been perpetuated by "an ordinance in Israel." But whatever may have become of those Lamentations, it is evident that these cannot be the same; for their whole tenor plainly shows that they were not composed till after the subversion of the kingdom of Judah. The calamities which Jeremiah had foretold in his prophecies are here deplored as having actually taken place, namely: the impositions of the false prophets who had seduced the people by their lying declarations, the destruction of the holy city and temple, the overthrow of the state and the extermination of the people.

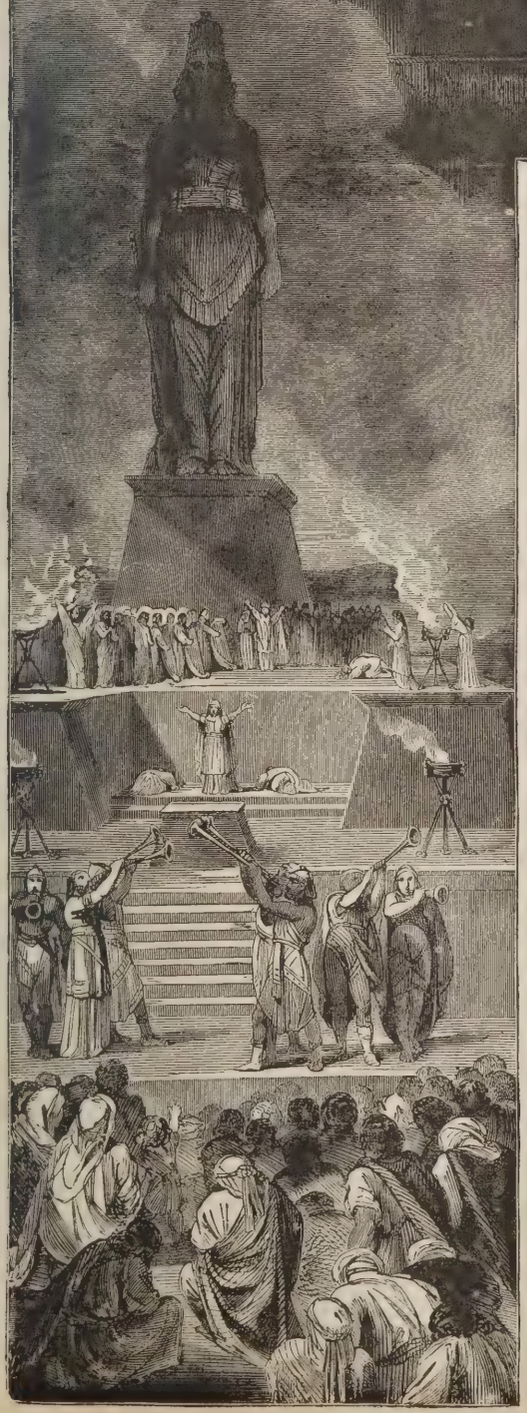
THE BOOK OF EZEKIEL.

EZEKIEL, whose name imports The Strength of God, was the son of Buzi, of the sacerdotal race, and one of the captives carried by Nebuchadnezzar to Babylon, with Jehoiachim, king of Judah. It does not appear that he had prophesied before he came into Mesopotamia. The principal scene of his predictions was some place on the river Chebar, which flows into the Euphrates, about two hundred miles to the north of Babylon, where the prophet resided; though he was occasionally carried in vision to Jerusalem.



Ezekiel was contemporary with Jeremiah and Daniel. The former had prophesied for thirty-four years before Ezekiel, and continued to do so for six or seven years after him. The call of Ezekiel followed the very next year after the communication of Jeremiah's predictions to Babylon, (Jer. 51, 59,) and was divinely intended as a sequel to them.

Daniel's predictions are mostly later than Ezekiel's, but his piety and wisdom had become proverbial in the early part of Ezekiel's ministry, (ch. xiv. 14, 16; xxviii. 3). They much resemble one another, especially in the visions and grotesque images. It is a remarkable proof of genuineness, that in Ezekiel no prophecies against Babylon occur among those directed against the enemies of the covenant people.



Probably he desired not to give needless offence to the government under which he lived. The effect of his labors is to be seen in the improved character of the people towards the close of the captivity, and their general cessation from idolatry and return to the law.

The events of his life, after his call to the prophetic office, are interwoven with the detail which he has himself given of his predictions, but the manner of its termination is nowhere ascertained.

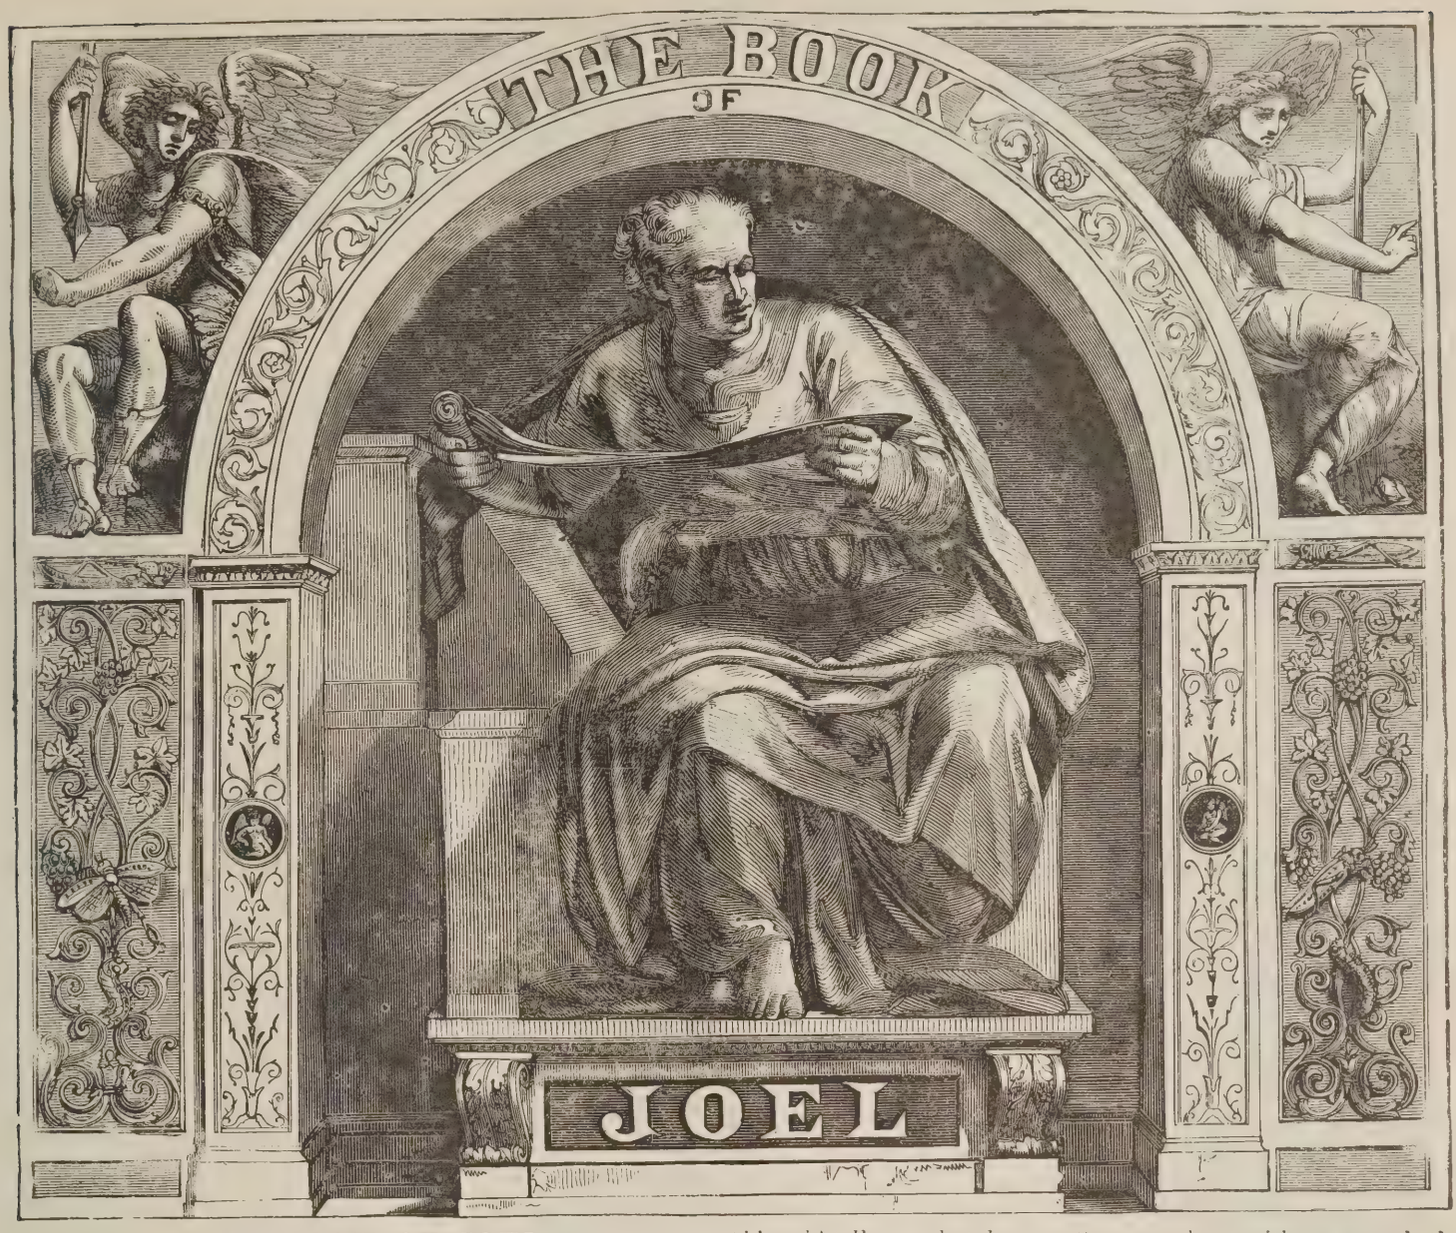
Until of late years the prophecies of Ezekiel have always been acknowledged to be canonical, nor was it ever disputed that he was their author. Most Biblical critics concur in the opinion as to the excellency and sublimity of Ezekiel's style. Grotius observes that he possessed great erudition and genius; so that, setting aside his gift of prophecy, which is incomparable, he deserves to be compared with Homer, on account of his beautiful conceptions, his illustrious comparsions and his extensive knowledge of various subjects.

THE BOOK OF DANIEL.

DANIEL, the fourth of the prophets, if not of royal birth (as the Jews affirm), was of noble descent. He was carried captive to Babylon at an early age, in the fourth year of Jehoiachim, king of Judah, in the year 606 before the Christian era. Having been instructed in the language and literature of the Chaldeans, which at that time was greatly superior to the learning of the ancient Egyptians, he afterwards held a very distinguished office in the Babylonian empire. He was contemporary with Ezekiel, who mentions his extraordinary piety and wisdom. (Ezek. xiv. 14, 20.) Daniel lived in great credit with the Babylonian monarchs, and his uncommon merit procured him the same regard from Darius and Cyrus, the first two sovereigns of Persia. He lived throughout the captivity, but it does not appear that he returned to his own country when Cyrus permitted the Jews to revisit their native land. The pseudo-Epiphanius, who wrote the lives of the prophets, says that he died at Babylon, and this assertion has been adopted by most succeeding writers; but as the last of his visions of which we have any account took place in the third year of Cyrus, about 534 years before the Christian era, when he was about ninety-four years of age, at Susa, on the Tigris, it is not improbable that he died there.

Although the name of Daniel is not prefixed to his book, the many passages in which he speaks in the first person sufficiently prove that he was the author. Josephus accounts Daniel one of the greatest of the prophets, and says that he conversed familiarly with God, and not only predicted future events, as other prophets did, but also determined the time of their accomplishment. The book of Daniel may be divided into two parts. The first is historical, and relates various circumstances that happened to himself and to the Jews, under several kings of Babylon; the second is strictly prophetical, and comprises the visions and prophecies with which he was favored, and which enabled him to foretell numerous important events relative to the monarchies of the world, the time of the advent and death of the Messiah, the restoration of the Jews and the conversion of the Gentiles. Of the genuineness and authenticity of the Book of Daniel we have every possible evidence, both external and internal.

The period of Daniel's prophecies is that from the downfall of the theocracy at the captivity till its final restoration—yet future,—the period of the dominion of the world powers, not set aside by Christ's first coming, (John xviii. 36, for, to have taken the earth-kingdom then, would have been to take it from Satan's hand, Mat. iv. 8–10,) but to be superseded by His universal and everlasting kingdom at His second coming, (Rev. ix. 15.)



THE BOOK OF HOSEA.

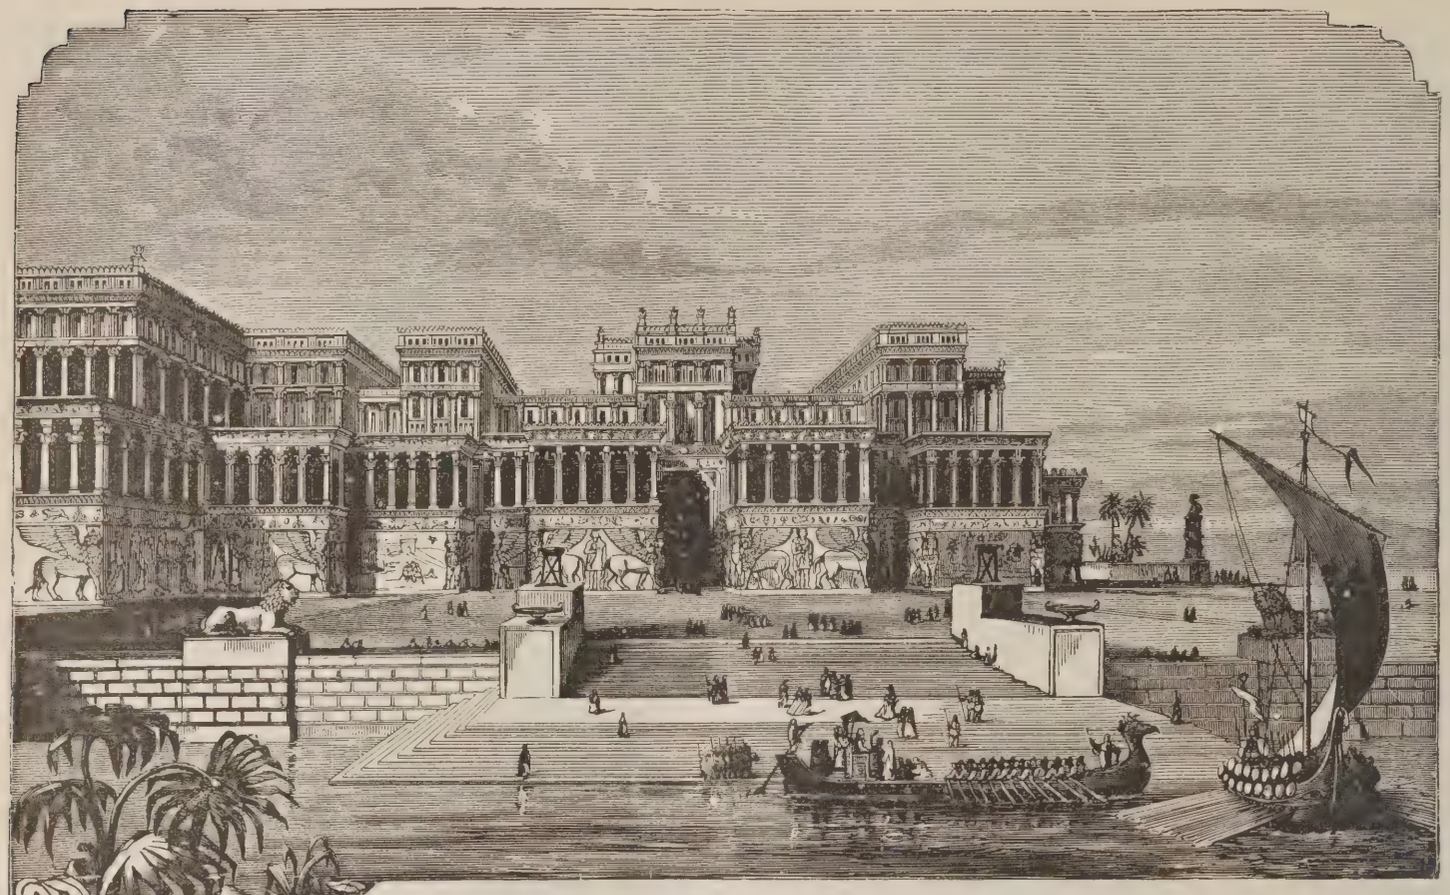
CONCERNING the family of Hosea we have no certain information except what is furnished to us by the first verse of his prophecy, which states that he was the son of Beeri, whom some Jewish commentators confound with Beerah, a prince of the Reubenites who was carried into captivity with the ten tribes by Tiglath-pileser, king of Assyria. He prophesied during the reigns of Uzziah, Jotham and Ahaz, and in the third year of Hezekiah, kings of Judah, and during the reign of Jeroboam II., king of Israel. It is most probable that he was an Israelite, and lived in the kingdom of Samaria or of the ten tribes, as his predictions are chiefly directed against their wickedness and idolatry.

His first prophecy foretells the overthrow of Jehu's house, fulfilled on the death of Jeroboam, Jehu's great-grandson, (2 Kings xv. 12,) in Zachariah, Jeroboam's son, the fourth and last from Jehu, conspired against by Shallum. This first prediction was doubtless in Jeroboam's life, as Zachariah, his son, was only suffered to reign six months; thus the inscription is verified that "the word of the Lord came unto him in the days of Jeroboam." Again, in ch. x. 14, Shalmaneser's expedition against Israel is alluded to as past—i. e., the first inroad against King Hoshea, who began to reign in the twelfth year of Ahaz; so that as Ahaz's whole reign was sixteen years, the prophecy seems to have been given about the beginning of Hezekiah's reign.

Messianic references are not frequent; but the predictions of the future conversion of Israel to the Lord their God, and David their king, and of the fulfillment of the promise to Abraham, that his spiritual seed should be as the sand of the sea, clearly refer to the New Testament dispensation.

Rosenmüller and others are of opinion that the title of this book is a subsequent addition, and that Hosea did not prophesy longer than from forty to sixty years, and that he died, or at least wrote his predictions, previous to the year 725 before the Christian era. His writings were originally, without doubt, in a metrical form, although that arrangement is now, perhaps, irrecoverably lost. The design of this book is—1. Partly to detect, reprove and convince the Jewish nation generally, and the Israelites in particular, of their many and heinous sins, especially of their gross idolatry; 2. Partly to denounce the imminent and utter rejection, final captivity, and destruction of the Israelites by the Assyrians, if the former persisted in their wicked career; and, 3. To invite them to repentance, with promises of mercy; predictions of the future restoration of the Israelites and Jews, and their ultimate conversion to Christianity.

THE BOOK OF JOEL.



THERE is great diversity of opinion among learned men concerning the family, condition and pursuits of this prophet. Although several persons of the name of Joel are mentioned in the Old Testament, we have no information concerning the prophet himself, except what is contained in the title of his predictions (ch. i. 1)—that he was the son of Pethuel. According to some reports collected and preserved by the pseudo-Epiphanius, he was of the tribe of Reuben, and was born at Bethhoron, a town situated on the confines of the territories of Juda and Benjamin. The celebrated Rabbi Kimchi and others place him in the reign of Joram, and are of opinion that he foretold the seven years' famine which prevailed in that king's reign.

THE BOOK OF AMOS.

AMOS is the third of the minor prophets, according to the order adopted in our modern Bibles. He is supposed to have been a native of Tekoah, a small town in the kingdom of Judah, situate about four leagues to the south of Jerusalem. There is, however, no proof of his being a native of this place, except his retiring thither when driven from Bethel by Amaziah, the high priest of Bethel. We have more certain information of his rank and condition in life, for he himself tells us that he was "no prophet, neither a prophet's son;" in other words, that he was not educated in the schools of the prophets, but was called to the prophetic office from being a herdsman and a gatherer (or cultivator) of sycamore fruit. That he prophesied during the reigns of Uzziah, king of Juda, and of Jeroboam II., son of Joash, we are not only informed from the first verse of his predictions, but we also have internal evidence of it from the argument or subject-matter of his book.

THE BOOK OF OBADIAH.

THE time when this prophet flourished is wholly uncertain. Jerome, with the Jews, is of opinion that he was the same person who was governor of Ahab's house and who hid and fed one hundred prophets whom Jezebel would have destroyed. Some other critics think that he was the Obadiah whom Josiah constituted overseer of the works of the temple, mentioned in 2 Chron. xxxiv. 12. Dupin refers him to the time of Ahaz, in whose reign the Edomites, in conjunction with the Israelites, made war against the tribe of Judah, because his prophecy is almost wholly directed against the Edomites or Idumæans. Grotius, Huet, Dr. Lightfoot and other commentators, however, make him to be contemporary with Hosea, Joel and Amos.

THE BOOK OF JONAH.

THIS book is by the Hebrews called Sepher Jonah, or the Book of Jonah, from its author, Jonah the son of Amittai, who was a native of Gath-Hepher, in the tribe of Zebulon, which formed part of the kingdom of Israel and afterwards of Galilee. According to Bishop Lloyd, he is supposed to have prophesied to the ten tribes toward the close of Jehu's reign, or in the beginning of Jehoahaz's reign, though Witsius, Blair, Bishop Newcome and others, with greater probability, place him under Jeroboam II., about forty years later. With the exception of his sublime ode in the second chapter, the Book of Jonah is a simple narrative. It is very probable that at the time Jonah promised the restoring and enlarging of the coasts of Israel in the days of Jeroboam II. (2 Kings xiv. 25), when both the king and people were exceedingly wicked, he also invited them to repentance and reformation. But the Israelites still continuing impenitent and obdurate, God took occasion to send him to Nineveh, the capital of the Assyrian empire, to denounce the impending Divine judgments against its abandoned inhabitants. Jonah, declining the commission, was cast into the sea from the vessel in which he was sailing to Tarshish, and was swallowed by a large fish. The time of Jonah's continuance in the belly of the fish was a type of our Lord's continuance in the grave. (Luke ix. 30.) The fame of the prophet's miraculous preservation was so widely propagated as to reach even Greece.

THE BOOK OF MICAH.

MICAH, the third of the minor prophets according to the arrangement in the Hebrew and all modern copies, as well as in the Septuagint, was a native of Morasthi, a small town in the southern part of the territory of Judah. As we learn from the commencement of his predictions, he prophesied in the reigns of Jotham, Ahaz and Hezekiah, kings of that country, consequently he was contemporary with Isaiah, Joel, Hosea and Amos. The time, place and manner of his death are unknown. The genuineness of his prophecies relating to the complete destruction of Jerusalem and of the temple is supported by the testimony of Jeremiah (ch. xxvi. 18, 19). The prophecy of Micah is perhaps the most important single testimony in the Old Testament, and the most comprehensive, respecting the personal character of the Messiah and his successive manifestation to the world.

THE BOOK OF NAHUM.

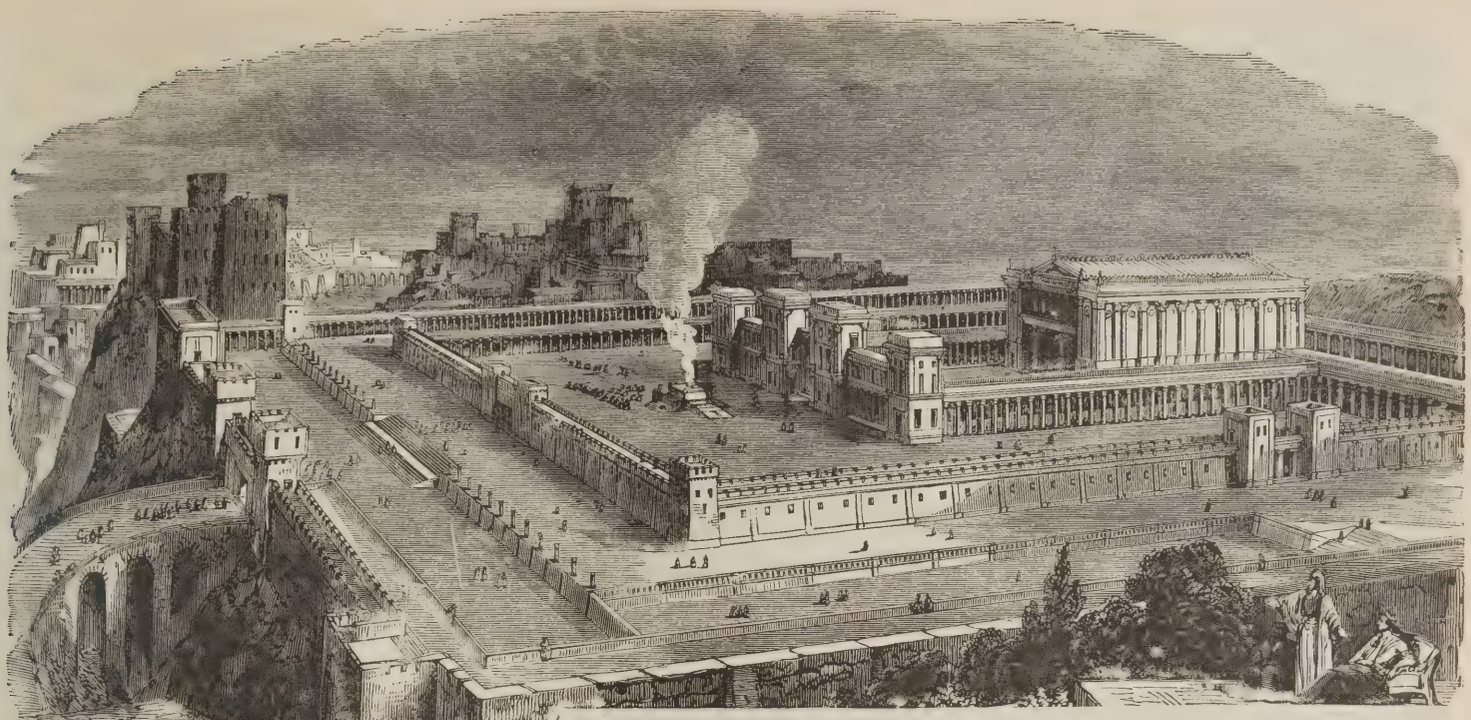
NAHUM, the seventh of the minor prophets, is supposed to have been a native of Elkosh or Elkosha, a village in Galilee. The scope of this prophecy is to denounce the certain and imminent destruction of the Assyrian empire, and particularly the inhabitants of Nineveh, its metropolis, who, after a transient repentance in consequence of Jonah's preaching, had relapsed into their former sins, which were even more aggravated. With this denunciation the prophet introduces consolation for his countrymen, whom he encourages to trust in God. In boldness, ardor and sublimity, Nahum is superior to all the minor prophets. The preparation for the destruction of Nineveh, and the description of its downfall and desolation are expressed in the most vivid colors, and with images that are truly pathetic and sublime.

THE BOOK OF HABAKKUK.

WE have no certain information concerning the tribe or birthplace of Habakkuk. The pseudo-Epiphanius affirms that he was of the tribe of Simeon and was born at Bethcazar. Some commentators have supposed that he prophesied in Judea in the reign of Manasseh, but Archbishop Usher places him, with greater probability, in the reign of Jehoiakim (compare Hab. i. 5, 6), consequently this prophet was contemporary with Jeremiah. Several apocryphal predictions and other writings are ascribed to Habakkuk, but without any foundation. His genuine writings are comprised in the three chapters which have been transmitted to us, and the subject of them is the same with that of Jeremiah, namely, the destruction of Judah and Jerusalem by Chaldeans for the heinous sins of the Jewish people, and the consolation of the faithful amid all their national calamities.

The prophecy of Habakkuk consists of two parts. The first is in the form of a dialogue between God and the prophet, and the second is a sublime ode or hymn, which was probably intended to be used in the public service. In the former he humbly expostulates with God for punishing the Jews by the instrumentality of the Chaldeans. In answer to this complaint, God replies that he will in due time perform his promises to his people of deliverance by the Messiah (implying also the nearer deliverance by Cyrus). The destruction of the Babylonish empire is then foretold, together with the judgment that would be inflicted upon the Chaldeans for their covetousness, cruelty and idolatry. In the latter the prophet implores God to hasten the deliverance of his people, and takes occasion to recount the wonderful works of the Almighty in conducting his people through the wilderness, and giving them possession of the promised land.

THE BOOK OF ZEPHANIAH.



THIS prophet, who was "the son of Cushi, the son of Gedaliah, the son of Amariah, the son of Hizkiah" (ch. i. 1), is supposed to be of the tribe of Simeon; but though he has mentioned his ancestors for no less than four generations, nothing certain can be inferred from thence as to the family to which he belonged. We learn, however, from his prophecy, that he delivered his predictions in the reign of Josiah, consequently he prophesied about the time that Jeremiah entered upon his prophetic office, and in method and subject he greatly resembles him. On this account Zephaniah has been considered as the abbreviator of Jeremiah; but it is evident that he prophesied before Jeremiah, because the latter (Jer. ii. 5, 20, 22) seems to speak of those abuses as partially removed which the former (Zeph. i. 4, 5, 9.) describes as existing to a most flagitious extent. From his account of the disorders prevailing in Judah, it is probable that he discharged the prophetic office before the eighteenth year of Josiah; that is, before that prince had reformed the abuses and corruptions of his dominions.

In consequence of the idolatry and other iniquities prevailing in the kingdom of Judah, whose inhabitants had disregarded the denunciations and admonitions of former prophets, Zephaniah was commissoned to proclaim the enormity of their wickedness, and to denounce the imminent desolation that awaited them; to excite them to repentance, to foretell the destruction of their enemies, and to comfort the pious Jews with promises of future blessings.

The prophecy begins with the nation's sin, and the fearful retribution coming at the hands of the Chaldeans These are not mentioned by name, as in Jeremiah; for the prophecies of the latter, being nearer the fulfilment, become more explicit than those of an earlier date.

The second chapter dooms the persecuting states in the neighborhood, as well as Judea itself. The third chapter denounces Jerusalem; but concludes with the promise of her joyful re-establishment in the theocracy.

The style though not generally sublime, is graphic and vivid in details, (cf. ch. i. 4–12.) The language is pure, and free from Aramaisms. There are occasional coincidences with former prophets, (cf. ch. ii. 14 with Isa. xxxiv. 11; ch. ii. 15 with Isa. lxvii. 8; ch. iii. 10 with Isa xviii 1; ch. ii. 8 with Isa. xvi. 6; also ch. i. 5 with Jer. viii. 2; ch. i. 12 with Jer. lxviii. 11.) Such coincidences in part arise from the phraseology of Hebrew prophetic poetry being the common language of the inspired brotherhood

THE BOOK OF HAGGAI.

HAGGAI, the tenth in order of the minor prophets, but the first of the three who were commissioned to make known the Divine will to the Jews after their return from captivity was born at Babylon, and was one of the Jews who returned with Zerubbabel in consequence of the edict of Cyrus. He was buried at Jerusalem among the priests and was supposed to be of the family of Aaron. After the return of the Jews to Jerusalem from their captivity in the first year of Cyrus, they commenced the rebuilding of the temple, (Ezra ii., iii.,) were interrupted by the neighboring satraps, who prejudiced the Persian monarch against them, until the second year of Darius. Discouraged by these impediments they ceased for fourteen years to prosecute the erection of the second temple. But God, disposing that sovereign to renew the decrees of Cyrus, raised up the prophet Haggai, about 520 before Christ, and in consequence of his exhortations they resumed the work which was completed in a few years. They were further encouraged to proceed in this undertaking by the prophet assuring them from God, that the glory of this latter house should far exceed the glory of the former.

THE BOOK OF ZECHARIAH.

ALTHOUGH the names of Zechariah's father and grandfather are specified (ch. i. 1) it is not known from what tribe or family he was descended, nor where he was born. He was one of the captives who returned to Jerusalem after the decree of Cyrus, and was contemporary with Haggai. The prophecy of Zechariah consist of two parts, the first concerns events then taking place, namely, the restoration of the temple, with predictions relative to the advent of the Messiah; the second predictions of remote events, particularly the coming of Christ, and the war of Romans against the Jews.

THE BOOK OF MALACHI.

THE name of Malachi, the last of the minor prophets signifies, "my angel," or "my messenger" was contemporary with Nehemiah. He predicts "the Son of righteousness shall arise with healing in his wings," before whom shall go a forerunner, John the Baptist, in the spirit of Elijah. The Old Testament closes with predictions of Messiah's coming, and the New Testament opens with the record of their fulfilment. "Prophecy has been the oracle of the Mosaic and Christian dispensations, to uphold the authority of the one, and reveal the promise of the other; and its last admonitions were like those of a faithful departing minister embracing and summing up his duties. Resigning its charge to the personal precursor of Christ, it expired with the Gospel on its tongue."

THE OLD AND THE NEW DISPENSATIONS UNITED IN CHRIST.

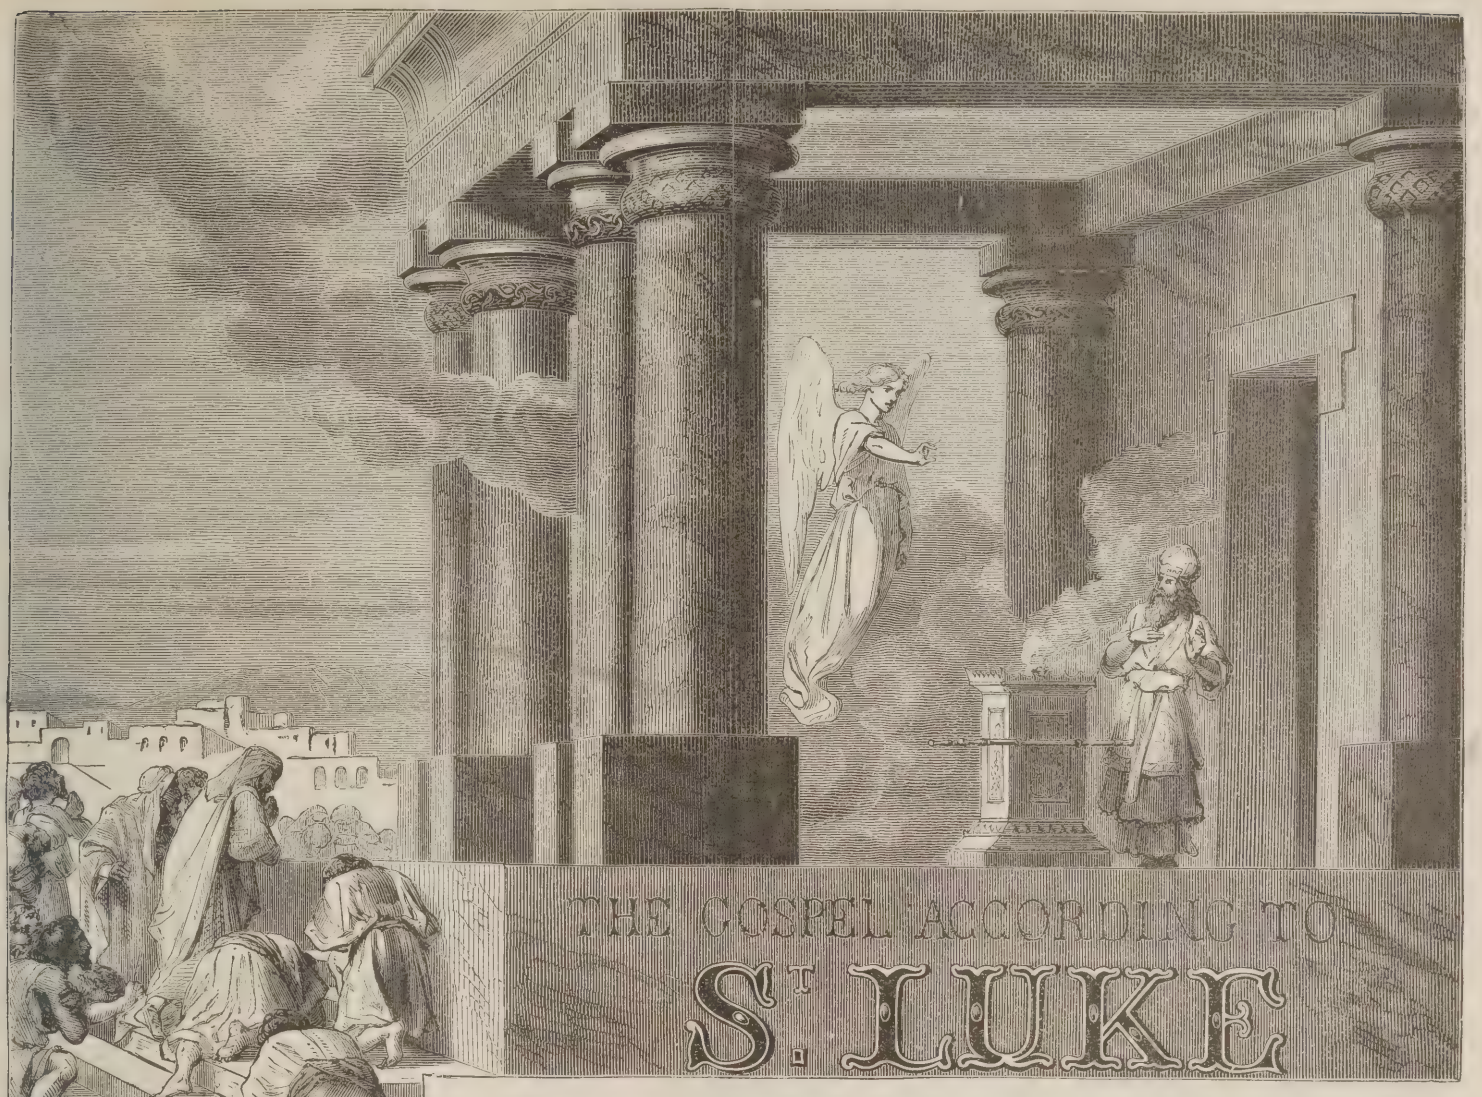
It has often been a matter for contemplation to the thoughtful mind why the salvation offered to man by Jesus Christ was so long in preparation, why so many centuries must have passed before the Saviour could appear. God has not rested in his work of redeeming love. The Old Testament was, indeed, stern and severe, but it was a glorious preparation for the coming of the Redeemer. The infancy of fallen humanity was rude and barbarous; through the blackest darkness the rays of truth had to cleave their way; only a rigorous dicipline of law could mortify the pride of the Jew, and lead him heart-broken and trembling to the promised Redeemer. And when we turn to heathendom a still more mournful sight greets us. Having "changed the glory of the uncorruptible God into an image made like to corruptible man, and to birds, and four-footed beasts, and creeping things," they were given up to uncleanness, bound by it, hand and foot. And yet, for these many centuries, among the heathens as well as among God's chosen people the Jews, there were dim longings, and blind gropings, for a Deliverer; the fingers of the soul had never, even in the deepest degredation, ceased to reach forth, though trembling, towards the Desire of all Nations. And at last after the decay of Judaism, and after the rolling away of Paganism, was heard the voice of one crying in the wilderness—"Prepare ye the way of the Lord!" For four hundred years no prophetic voice had broken the almost agonizing silence. Malachi had been the last to utter words of warning and of comfort, and the world has waited almost hopelessly. But all things were now ready, the fulness of the time was come; and this rough man, with coat of camel's hair, and leathern girdle, and feeding on the rudest desert fare, was the forerunner of Him for whom the world had waited. The Messiah came—came to turn men from their idols to serve the living God; to break down the wall of partition between Jew and Gentile, and to declare the universal brotherhood of man and fatherhood of God. Thus, were the ancient prophecies fulfilled; thus, were the longings of heathendom satisfied. "The testimony of Jesus is the spirit of prophecy," says the Apostle; meaning that all the rays of light, streaming from prophetic sources for the enlightening of the moral darkness of the race, converge to and are centred in Jesus Christ. He is the bond of union between the past and the future, the elder dispensation and the younger. The ancient Temple and all its magnificence of ritual have passed away: thus the sceptre departed from Judah, for Shiloh was come.

This Gospel has been received by the Christian Church from the apostolic age as written by St. Matthew, whose call to be an apostle is recorded by himself, by St. Mark and St. Luke. He was previously a publican, or collector of taxes, at Capernaum, and his name, according to Mark and Luke, was Levi, son of Alphæus. It is uncertain whether the Evangelist bore two names originally, or took that of Matthew when he relinquished his previous occupation; either supposition is in accordance with the customs of his countrymen. Little is known of his after-life; he is said to have preached the gospel in Macedonia, Greece and Ethiopia, and to have died at an advanced age.

He seems to have kept an accurate record of our Lord's public discourses, which he relates far more fully than the other Evangelists; such as, for instance, the Sermon on the Mount, several parables, the discourses on John the Baptist, the denunciations against the Pharisees, and the prophecies concerning the destruction of Jerusalem and the second advent. These discourses form, indeed, the most important portion of the Gospel; to which the narrative is generally subordinate, presenting, more briefly, the substance of fuller accounts in the other Gospels, especially that of St. Mark. This accounts for some striking deviations from the chronological sequence of events observed by the other Evangelists.

This Gospel is also remarkable for its frequent and copious citations from the Old Testament, more especially from the Messianic prophecies. The great object of the Evangelist was undoubtedly to prove to his countrymen, in the first place, that Christianity was the perfect development of Judaism, and that the announcements on which the national hopes of a deliverer rested were fulfilled in Jesus, the true King, Priest and Prophet foretold in their Scriptures. He is at the same time careful to show that this fulfillment included the conversion of the Gentiles and the communication of all religious blessings and privileges to the whole race of man.

St. Jerome seems to say that this Gospel was written by the Evangelist in Hebrew. It is, however, certain that the early Christians had little knowledge of any other copies than the Greek; and it is most probable that it was at least rewritten in Greek by the apostle, or under his guidance, with some additions to the narrative, together with interpretations and explanations, by which it might be adapted to the use of converts from heathenism. The date of publication is not certain: the narrative has expressions which indicate an interval of some years after our Lord's ascension, but there is no doubt that the entire Gospel was published long before the overthrow of the temple and final dispersion of the Jewish nation. All internal indications are in accordance with the statement of Irenæus that St. Matthew published his Gospel while St. Peter and St. Paul were founding the church at Rome.



THE GOSPEL OF ST. MARK.

MARK was not, like Matthew and John, an apostle of Jesus Christ, but he had the advantage of the friendship and knowledge of Peter, who (1 Pet. v. 13) calls him his son, probably from having been the means of his conversion. Mark was sister's son to Barnabas (Col. iv. 10) and the son of Mary, a woman of Jerusalem, at whose house was held at least one notable prayer-meeting (Acts lxii. 12). His Hebrew name was John, and Michaelis supposes that he adopted the surname of Mark when he left Judea to preach the gospel in foreign countries, according to the custom of the Jews to adopt a name more familiar to the Gentiles whom they visited than their Hebrew appellations.

After Peter's deliverance (Acts xii. 11, 12), Mark went from Jerusalem with Paul and Barnabas, and soon after accompanied them to other countries as their minister (Acts xiii. 5); but, declining to attend them through their whole progress, he returned to Jerusalem, and kept up an intercourse with Peter and the other apostles. Afterward, however, when Paul and Barnabas settled at Antioch, on the termination of their journey, we find Mark with them, and disposed to accompany them in their future journeys. At this time he went with Barnabas to Cyprus (Acts xv. 37–39), and subsequently accompanied Timothy to Rome, at the desire of Paul (2 Tim. iv. 11), during his confinement in that city, whence Mark sent his salutations to Philemon (24) and to the church at Colosse (Col. iv. 10). "From Eusebius, Epiphanius and Jerome," continues Horne, "we learn that Mark, after he had written his Gospel, went to Egypt, and having planted a church at Alexandria, Jerome states that he died and was buried there in the eighth year of the reign of Nero. Baronius, Cave, Wetstein and other writers affirm that St. Mark suffered martyrdom; but this is not mentioned by Eusebius or any other ancient writer, and is contradicted by Jerome, whose expressions seem to imply that he died a natural death.

St. Peter having publicly preached the Christian religion, many who were present entreated Mark, as he had for a long time been that apostle's companion, and had a clear understanding of what Peter had delivered, that he would commit the particulars to writing. Accordingly, when Mark had finished his Gospel, he delivered it to the persons who made this request.

Regarding the date of this Gospel nothing certain is known. If the tradition reported by Irenæus can be relied upon, it was written at Rome, "after the departure of Peter and Paul;" and if by that word "departure" we are to infer their death, we may date it somewhere between the years 64 and 68; but, in all likelihood, this is too late.

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO S. LUKE

LUKE first appears historically at Troas with Paul, going with him into Macedonia (Acts xvi. 9, 10), and writing his history after that as an eye-witness.

It is supposed that Luke was descended from Gentile parents, and in his youth had embraced Judaism, from which he was converted to Christianity. The Hebraic-Greek style of writing, and the accurate knowledge of Jewish doctrines, ceremonies and usages, which characterize him in his Gospel and in the Acts of the Apostles, evince the author to have been a Jew; whilst his Greek name and his intimate knowledge of the Greek language are thought to be sufficient proof that he was of Grecian birth and education. His Gospel has been divided into five divisions:

I. Birth of Christ, with the circumstances that preceded, attended and followed it (ch. i.; ii. 1–40).

II. Christ's infancy and youth (ch. ii. 41–52).

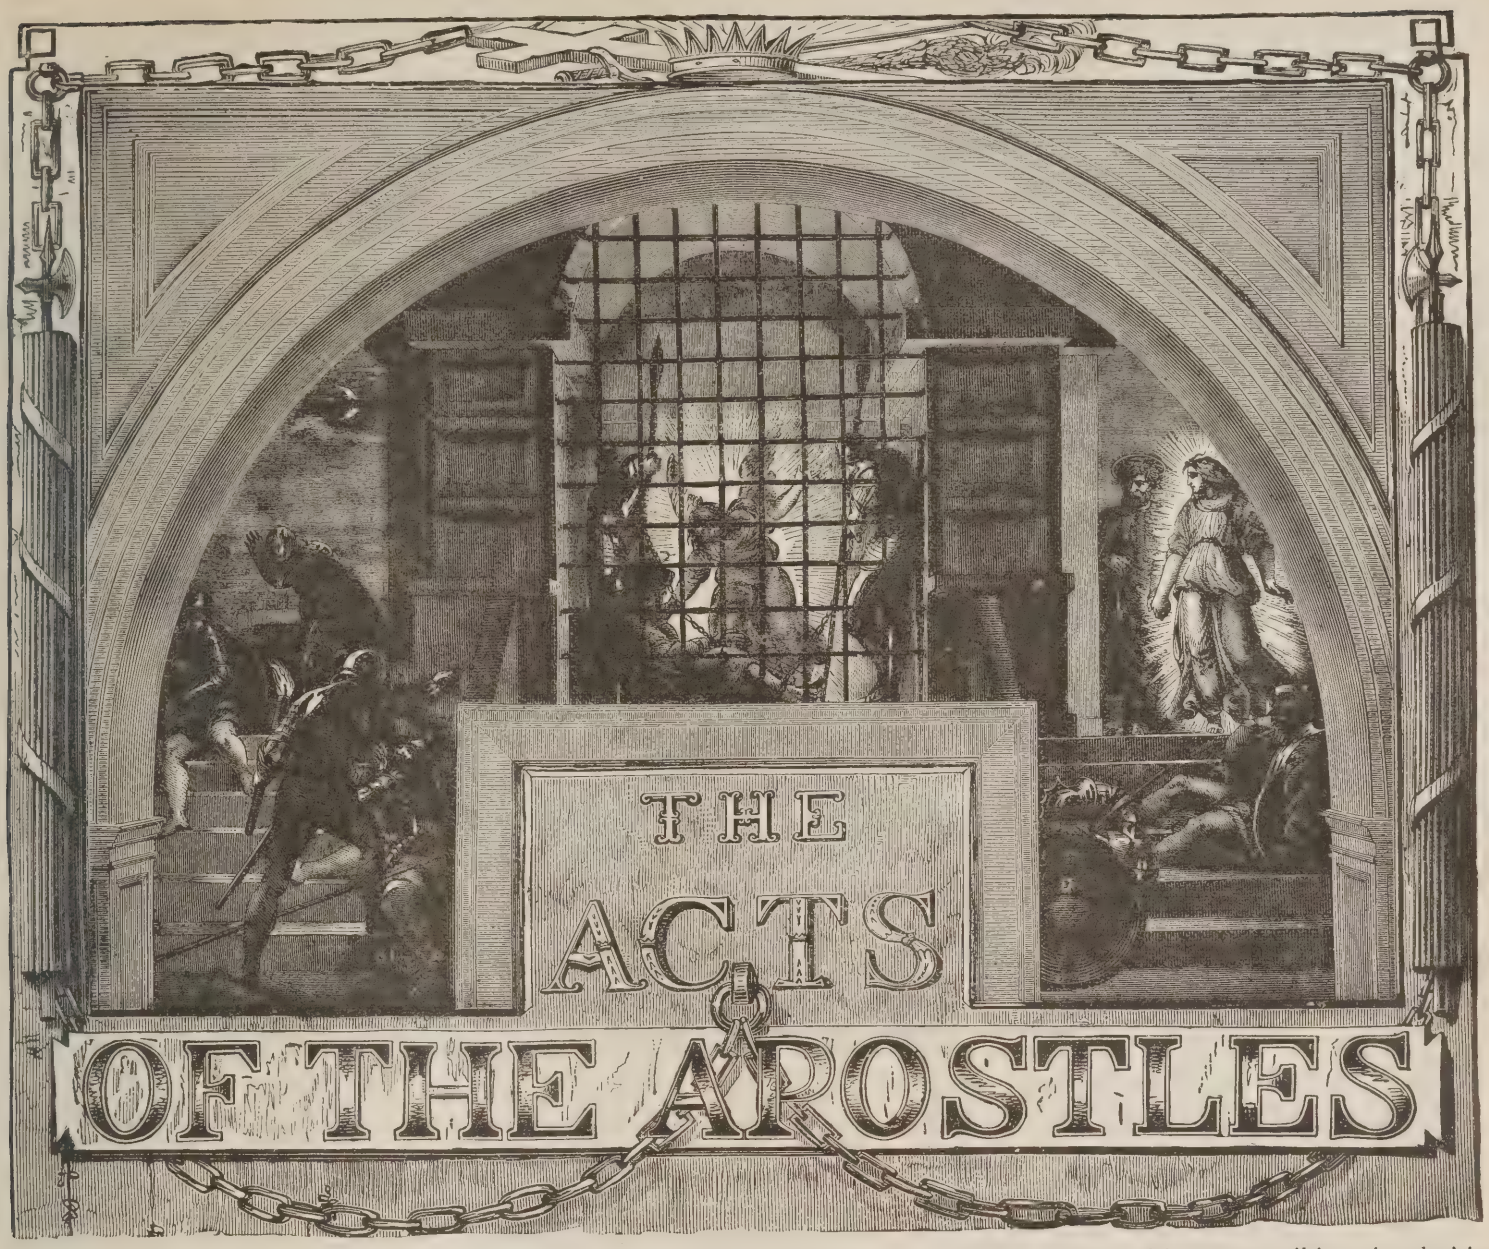
III. Preaching of John, and baptism and genealogy of Christ (ch. iii.).

IV. Discourses, miracles and actions of Christ during his ministry (ch. iv.; ix. 50).

V. Christ's last journey to Jerusalem; his passion, death, resurrection and ascension (ch. ix. 51–62; x.–xxiv.).

Horne says: "If St. Paul had not informed us (Col. iv. 14) that St. Luke was by profession a physician, and consequently a man of letters, his writings would have sufficiently evinced that he had had a liberal education; for, although his Gospel presents as many Hebraisms perhaps as any of the sacred writings, yet his language contains more numerous Græcisms than that of any other writer of the New Testament. The style of this evangelist is pure, copious and flowing, and bears a considerable resemblance to that of his great master, St. Paul. Many of his words and expressions are exactly paral.' to those which are to be found in the best classic authors, and several eminent critics have long since pointed out the singular skill and propriety with which St. Luke has named and described the various diseases which he had occasion to notice. As an instance of his copiousness, Dr. Campbell has remarked that each of the evangelists has a number of ·ords which are used by none of the rest; but in St. Luke's Gospel the number of such words as are used in none of the other Gospels is greater than that of the peculiar words found in all the three Gospels. There is also more composition in his sentences than is found in the other three Gospels, and consequently less simplicity."

The time and place of the publication of his Gospel are alike uncertain. But we can approximate to it. It must at any rate have been issued before the Acts, for there the "Gospel" is expressly referred to as the same author's "former treatise" (Acts i. 1). Now, the book of the Acts was not published for two whole years after Paul's arrival as a prisoner at Rome.



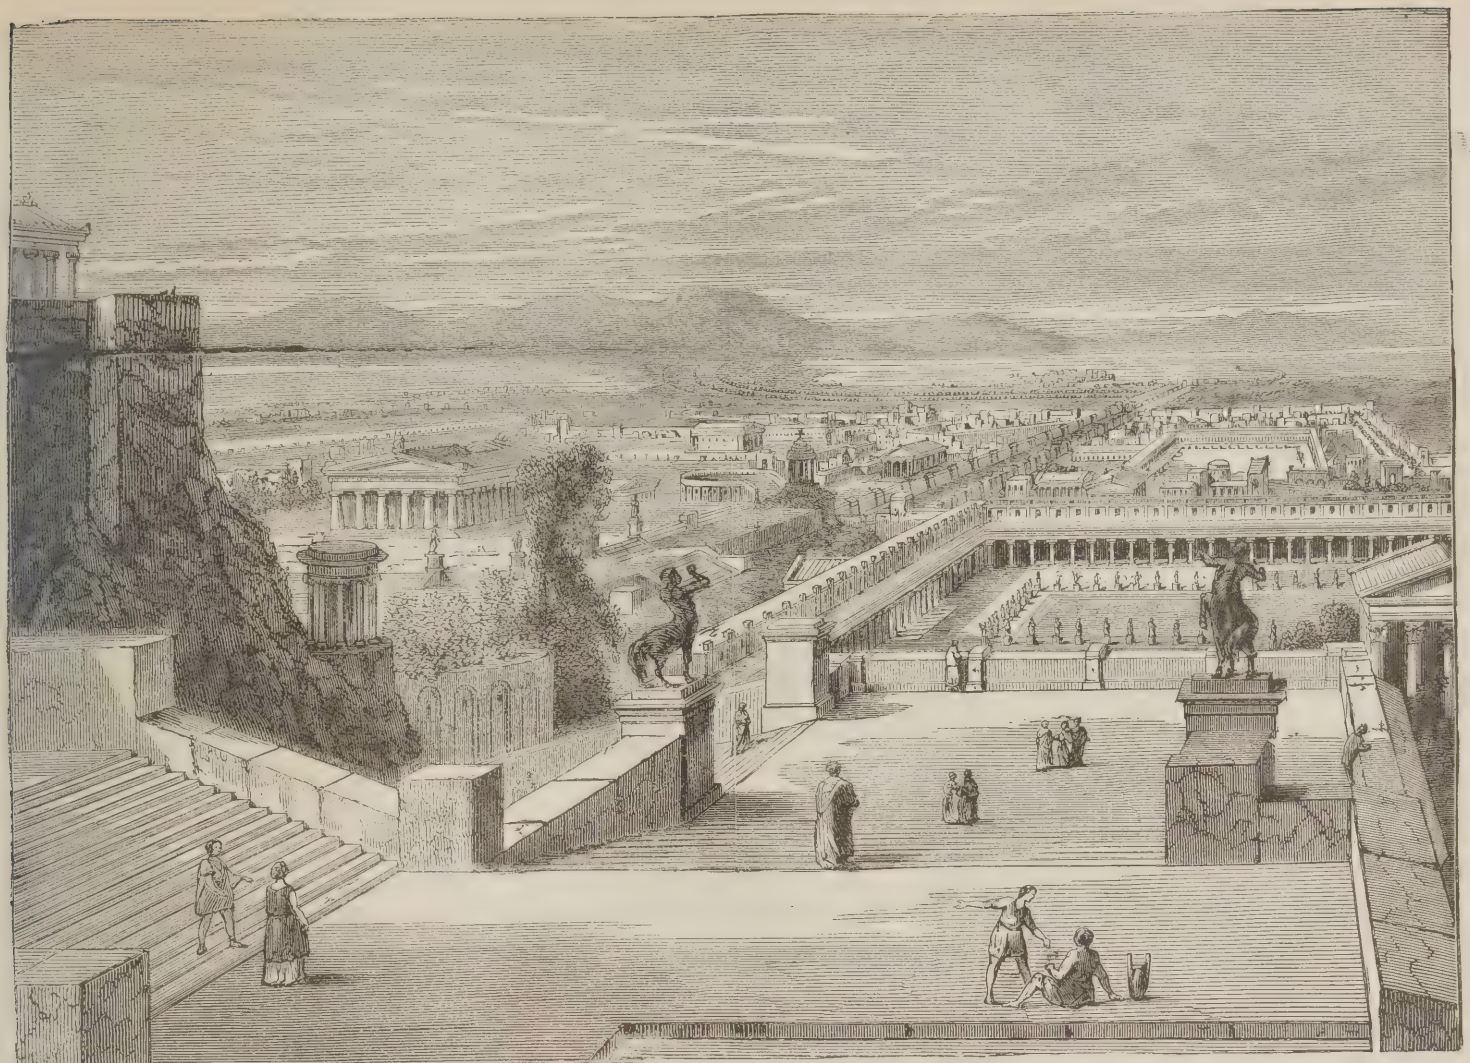
THE GOSPEL OF ST. JOHN.

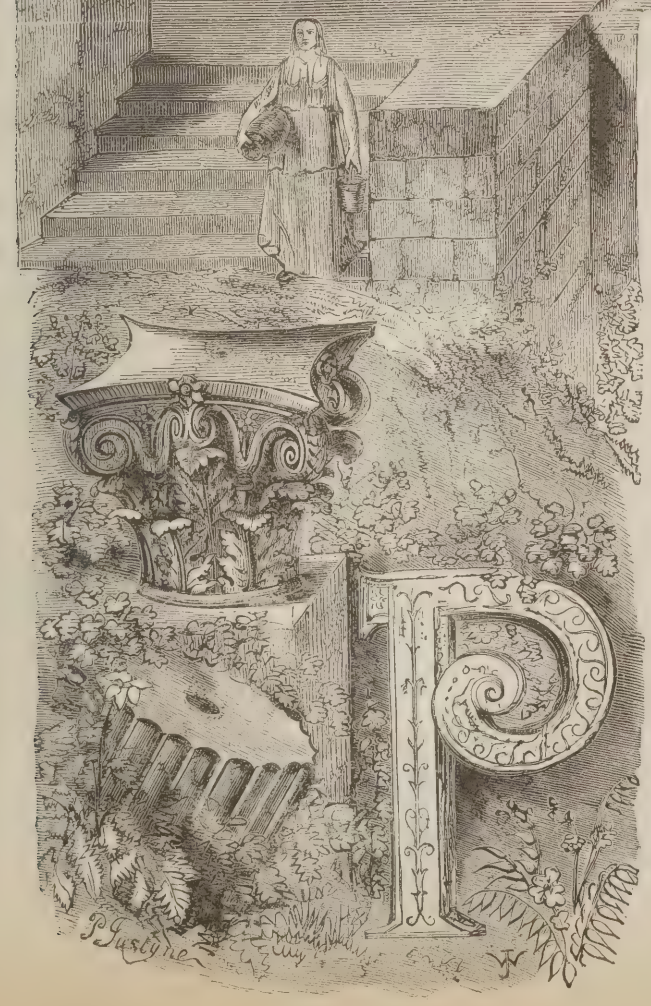
JOHN was the son of Zebedee, a fisherman of the town of Bethsaida, on the Sea of Galilee, and the younger brother of James the elder. His mother's name was Salome. It is supposed from his account of the disciples of John the Baptist becoming followers of Christ, that he was one of the two (ch. i. 35–40), but of this there is no certainty.

According to Lampe, there are three degrees in the call of John, viz.: 1. His call to discipleship (John i. 37–42); after which he continued for a short time to follow his business; 2. His call to be one of the immediate companions of Christ (Matt. iv. 21, 22); and, 3. His call to the apostleship, when the surname of Boanerges was given to him and his brother (Mark iii. 17). He is supposed to have been the youngest of the twelve, but this is mere conjecture. He was certainly admitted to intimate intercourse with the Saviour, and is described as the disciple whom Jesus loved (John xiii. 23; xix. 26). He was an eye-witness, in company with Peter and James only, to the resurrection of Jairus's daughter to life (Luke viii. 51), to Christ's transfiguration (Luke ix. 28), and to his agony in the garden (Mark xiv. 33). He was also present at the crucifixion—though we have no right to say, as some do, that he was the only one of the apostles present at that awful event—and received the mother of Jesus as a precious legacy from her dying son (John xix. 26, 27). He had several interviews with Christ after his resurrection; and our Saviour is supposed to have intimated John's continuance upon earth until after the destruction of Jerusalem (John xxi. 22), but the text appealed to does not warrant this interpretation.

After the ascension of Christ, and the effusion of the Holy Spirit on the day of Pentecost, John became one of the chief apostles of the circumcision, and exercised his ministry in Jerusalem and its vicinity, as narrated in the Acts of the Apostles (ii. 1–11; iii.; iv. 1–22, and viii. 5–26). Ecclesiastical history informs us that after the death of Mary, the mother of Jesus, John proceeded to Asia Minor, where he founded and presided over seven churches in as many cities, but resided chiefly at Ephesus. Thence he was, probably toward the close of Domitian's reign, banished to the Isle of Patmos, where he wrote his Revelation (Rev. i. 9). On his liberation from exile by the accession of Nerva to the imperial throne, John returned to Ephesus, where he wrote his Gospel and Epistles, and died in the hundredth year of his age, about the year of Christ 100, in the third year of the reign of the emperor Trajan, and about thirty years after the destruction of Jerusalem. John's Gospel is supposed to have been written about the year 97, or three years before the evangelist's death.

THE title of this book is very ancient, being found in all the oldest copies, though with some variety of form. Dr. J. Addison Alexander, in his Introduction to the Acts of the Apostles, says: "The title does not mean, nor is the book in fact, a history of the twelve apostles, most of whom are barely named in the first chapter. It is not the biography of Peter and Paul, as apostles by way of eminence; for each of them is prominent in one part only, and the whole life of neither is recorded in detail. It is not a general history of the apostolical period as distinguished from the ministry of Christ himself; for many interesting facts belonging to that subject are omitted, some of which have been preserved in the Epistles. But the book before us is a special history of the planting and extension of the Church, both among Jews and Gentiles, by the gradual establishment of radiating centres or sources of influence at certain salient points throughout a large part of the empire, beginning at Jerusalem and ending at Rome. That this is really the theme and purpose of the history any reader may satisfy himself by running through it with this general idea in his mind. While the Greek of this book is comparatively classical and pure, it has certain peculiarities of language, not the less real because slight and unimportant in themselves, distinguishing its style from every other except that of the third Gospel, which, besides bearing a general resemblance not to be mistaken, coincides with it in some of its most striking singularities of thought and diction. This remarkable coincidence creates, of course, a strong presumption that the two books which exhibit it are works of the same author. This presumption is still further strengthened by the fact that the two together make up an unbroken history, the one beginning where the other ends, to wit, at the Ascension. It is further strengthened by the latter book's purporting on its face to be the sequel or continuation of another, the contents of which as there described (Acts i. 1) exactly correspond to those of the third Gospel. It is still further strengthened by the circumstance that both books are ascribed to Theophilus, and seem to have been primarily meant for his instruction. All these considerations go to confirm, and are themselves confirmed by, the unanimous tradition of the ancient church, that the third Gospel and the Acts of the Apostles are works of the same author. The remarkable dearth of information as to Luke, beyond his name, profession, and the general fact that he was one of Paul's most intimate associates and perhaps for many years his medical attendant, gives the more importance to the uniform tradition of the early church, not only that he wrote these books, but that he wrote them under Paul's direction and control, thereby imparting to them, in addition to the common seal of inspiration, the specific stamp of apostolical authority."





EPISTLE TO THE ROMANS.

THE epistle to the Romans, though fifth in the order of time, is placed first of all the apostolical letters, either from the pre-eminence of Rome, as being the mistress of the world, or because it is the longest and most comprehensive of all St. Paul's epistles. A great variety of opinions have been held as to the precise date when this Epistle was written. The most probable date is that which assigns it to the end of 57 or the beginning of 58, at which time St. Paul was at Corinth, whence he was preparing to go to Jerusalem with the collections which had been made by the Christians of Macedonia and Achaia for their poor brethren in Judea (ch. xv. 25–27). That this Epistle has always been acknowledged to be a genuine and authentic production of St. Paul is attested not only by the ancient Syriac and Latin versions, and by the express declarations and quotations of Irenæus, Theophilus of Antioch, Clement of Alexandria, Tertullian, Origen, and by all subsequent ecclesiastical writers, but it was also cited or alluded to by several of the apostolic fathers, and by the churches of Vienna and Lyons.

In perusing this Epistle, it is desirable to read uninterruptedly at least the first eleven chapters, as every sentence, at least in the argumentative part, bears an intimate relation to and is dependent upon the whole discourse, and cannot be understood unless we comprehend the scope of the whole. And in order to enter fully into its spirit, we must enter into the spirit of a Jew in those times, and endeavor to realize in our minds his utter aversion for the Gentiles, his valuing and exalting himself upon his relation to God and to Abraham, and also upon his law, pompous worship, circumcision, etc., as if the Jews were the only people in the world who had a right to the favor of God. Attention to this circumstance will show the beauties of the apostle's style and argument, and that this Epistle is indeed "a writing which, for sublimity and truth of sentiment, for brevity and strength of expression, and, above all, for the unspeakable importance of the discoveries which it contains, stands unrivalled by any mere human composition."

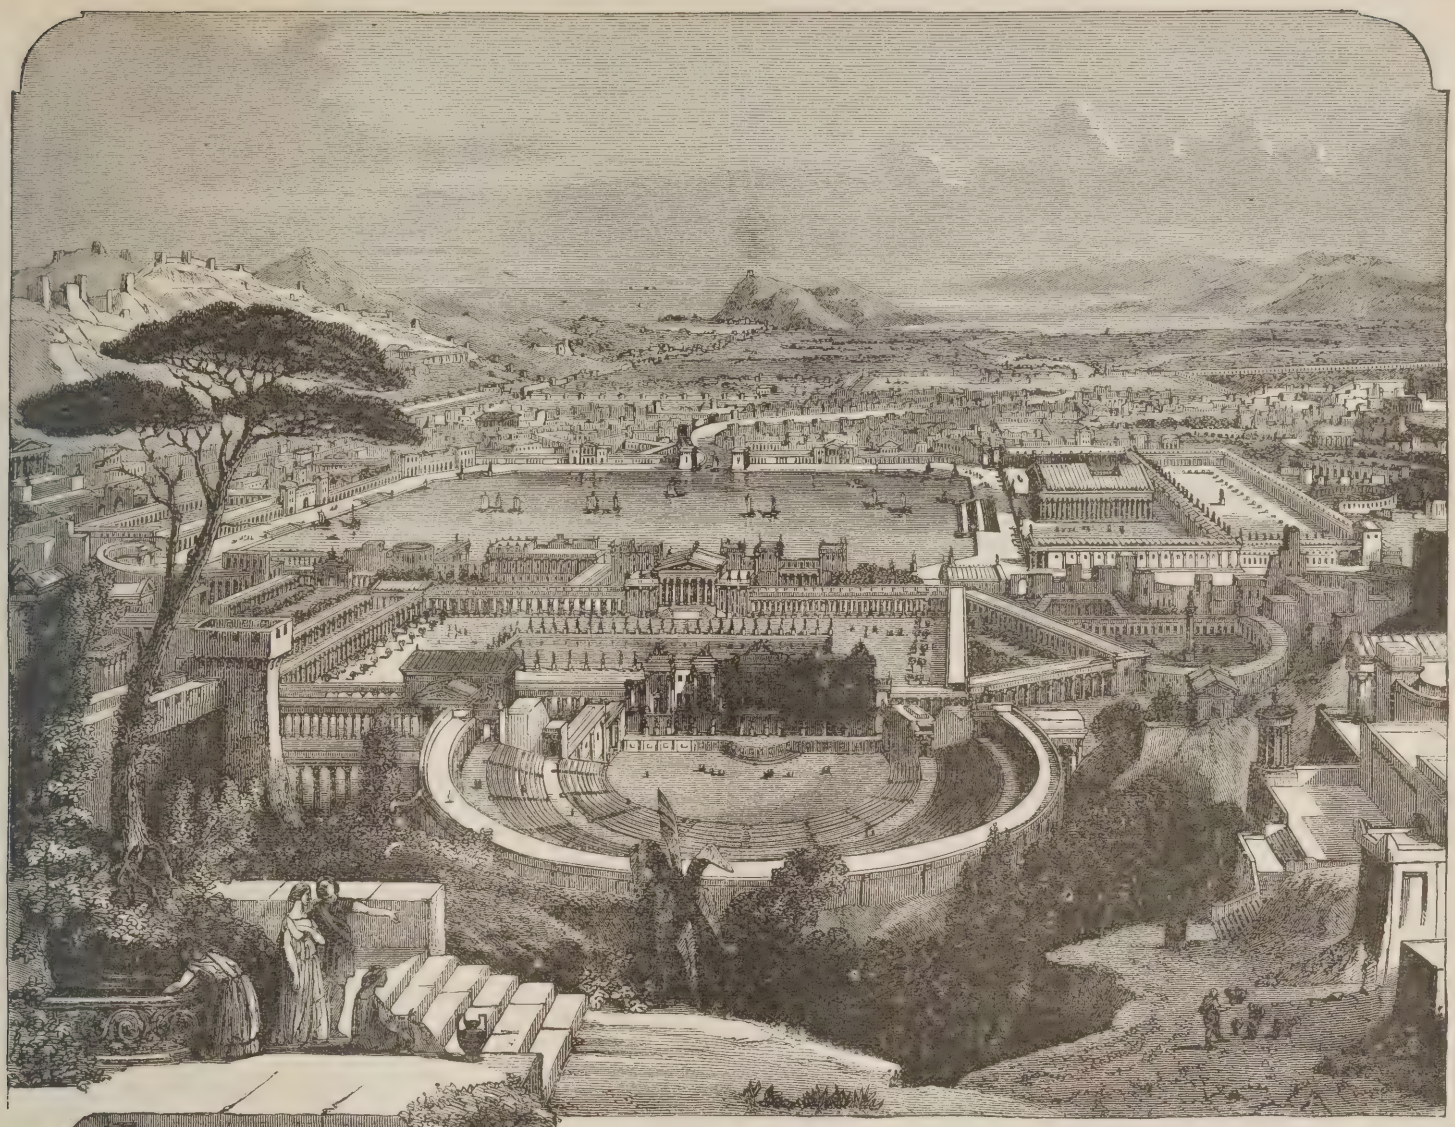
FIRST EPISTLE TO THE CORINTHIANS.

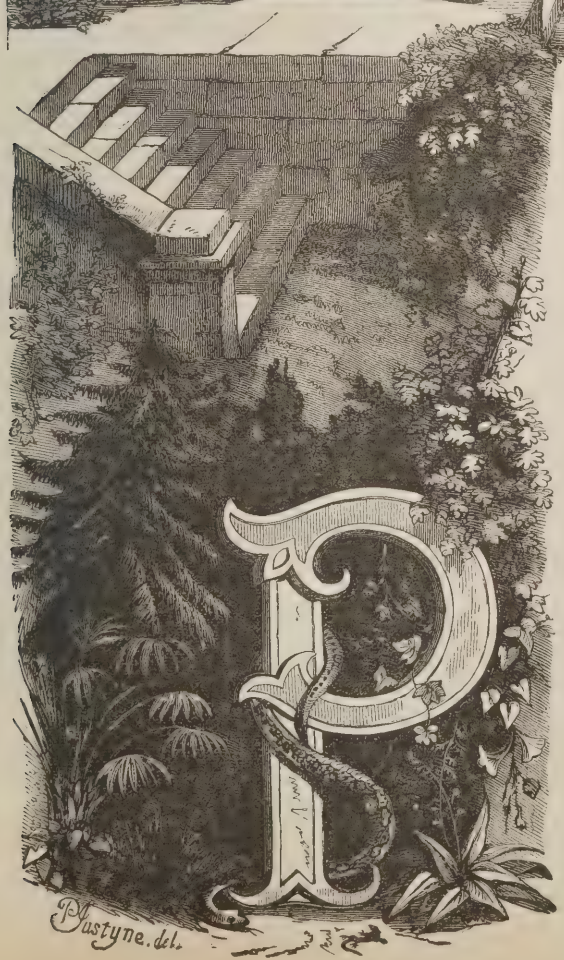
CHRISTIANITY was planted at Corinth by St. Paul himself. He resided there for a year and six months, between the years 51 and 53. The church consisted partly of Jews and partly of Gentiles, but chiefly of the latter. Hence the apostle had to combat sometimes Jewish superstition and sometimes heathen licentiousness. On St. Paul's departure from Corinth, he was succeeded by Apollos, "an eloquent man, and mighty in the Scriptures," who preached the gospel with great success.

We learn that St. Paul maintained a constant intercourse with the churches which he had planted, and was thoroughly acquainted with all their circumstances. They applied to him for advice in difficult cases which their own understanding could not solve, and he was ready on all occasions to correct their mistakes and give them counsel.

SECOND EPISTLE TO THE CORINTHIANS.

THE preceding Epistle, we are aware, was written from Ephesus, about A. D. 57, previous to St. Paul's departure from that city. On quitting Ephesus he went to Troas, which place was situated on the shore of the Ægean Sea, in expectation of meeting Titus, and receiving an account of the success with which he hoped his former Epistle had been attended, and of the state of the Corinthian church. Not meeting Titus at Troas, Paul proceeded to Macedonia, where he obtained the desired interview, and received satisfactory information concerning the promising state of affairs at Corinth. From this country, and probably from Philippi, the apostle wrote his second letter (ch. viii. 1–14, ix. 1–5), which he sent by Titus and his associates, who were commissioned to hasten and finish the contribution among the Christians at Corinth for the use of their poor brethren in Judea.



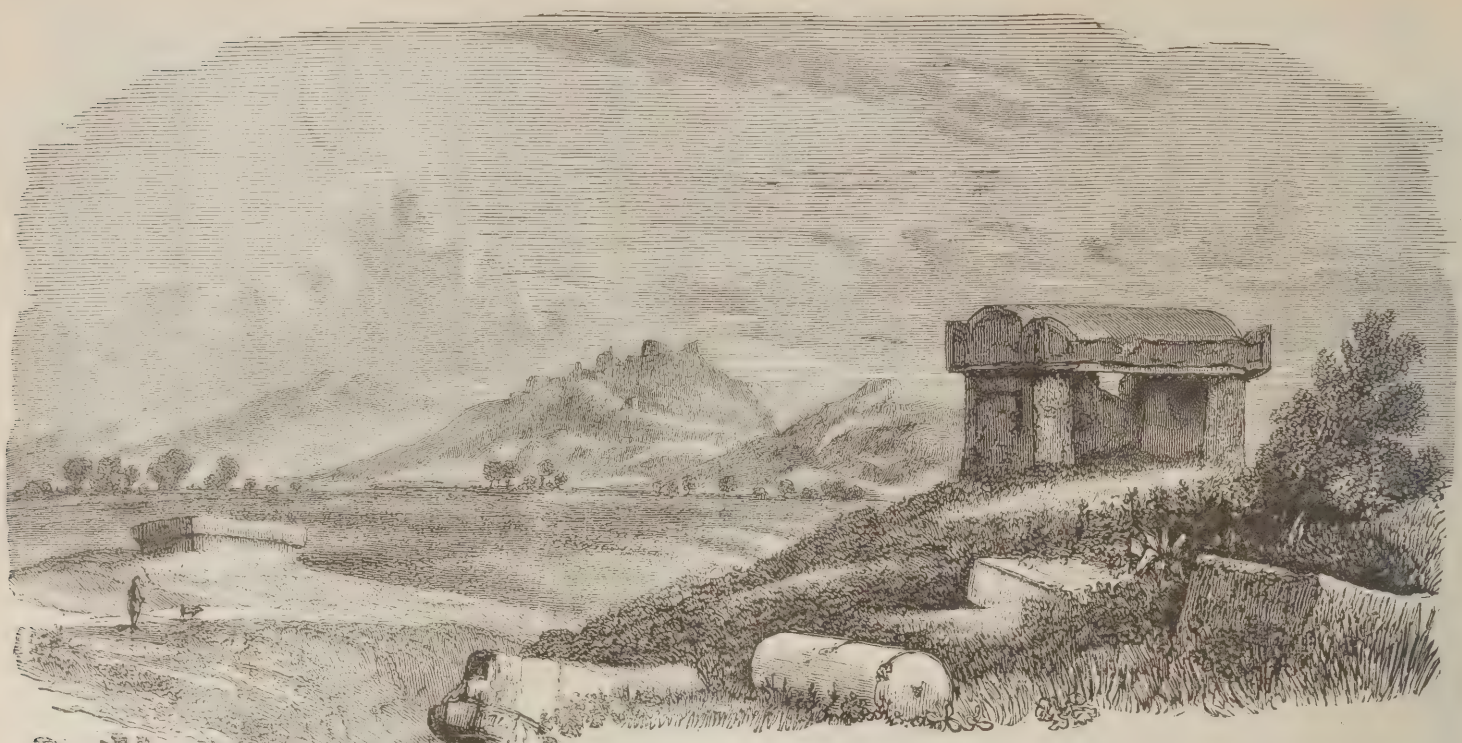


EPISTLE TO THE GALATIANS.

CHRISTIANITY was very early planted in Galatia by St. Paul, and it appears from the Acts of the Apostles that he visited the churches in that country more than once. Two distinct visits are clearly marked, namely: the first about the year 50 (Acts xvi. 6), and the second about the year 54 or 55 (xviii. 23). There is great diversity of opinion among learned men concerning the date of the Epistle to the Galatians. Theodoret, who is followed by Dr. Lightfoot and others, imagines that it was one of those epistles which St. Paul wrote from Rome during his first imprisonment; but this opinion is contradicted by the apostle's silence concerning his bonds, which he has often mentioned in the letters that are known to have been written at that time. The genuineness of this Epistle has never been doubted. It is cited by the apostolic fathers, and is declared to be authentic by many subsequent writers. It is worthy of remark that this Epistle was acknowledged to be genuine by the heretic Marcion, who reckoned it the earliest written of all St. Paul's letters, and accordingly placed it first in this Apostolicon, or collection of apostolical writings.

His purpose, then, in writing this epistle was (i.) to defend his apostolic authority, (ch. i. 11–19; ii. 1–14;) (ii.) to counteract the evil influence of the Judaisers in Galatia, (ch. iii. and iv.) and to shew that their doctrine destroyed the very essence of Christianity, by lowering its spirituality to an outward ceremonial system; (iii.) to give exhortation for the strengthening of Galatian believers in faith towards Christ, and in the fruits of the Spirit, (ch. v. and vi.) He had already, face to face, testified against the Judaising teachers, (ch. i. 9; iv. 16; Acts xviii. 23;) and now that he has heard of the continued and increasing prevalence of the evil, he writes with his own hand (ch. vi. 11—a labour which he usually delegated to an amanuensis) this epistle to oppose it. The sketch he gives in it of his apostolic career confirms and expands the account in Acts; and shews his independence of human authority, however exalted. His protest against Peter in ch. ii. 14–21, disproves the figment, not merely of papal, but even of that apostle's supremacy; and shews that Peter, save when specially inspired, was fallible like other men.

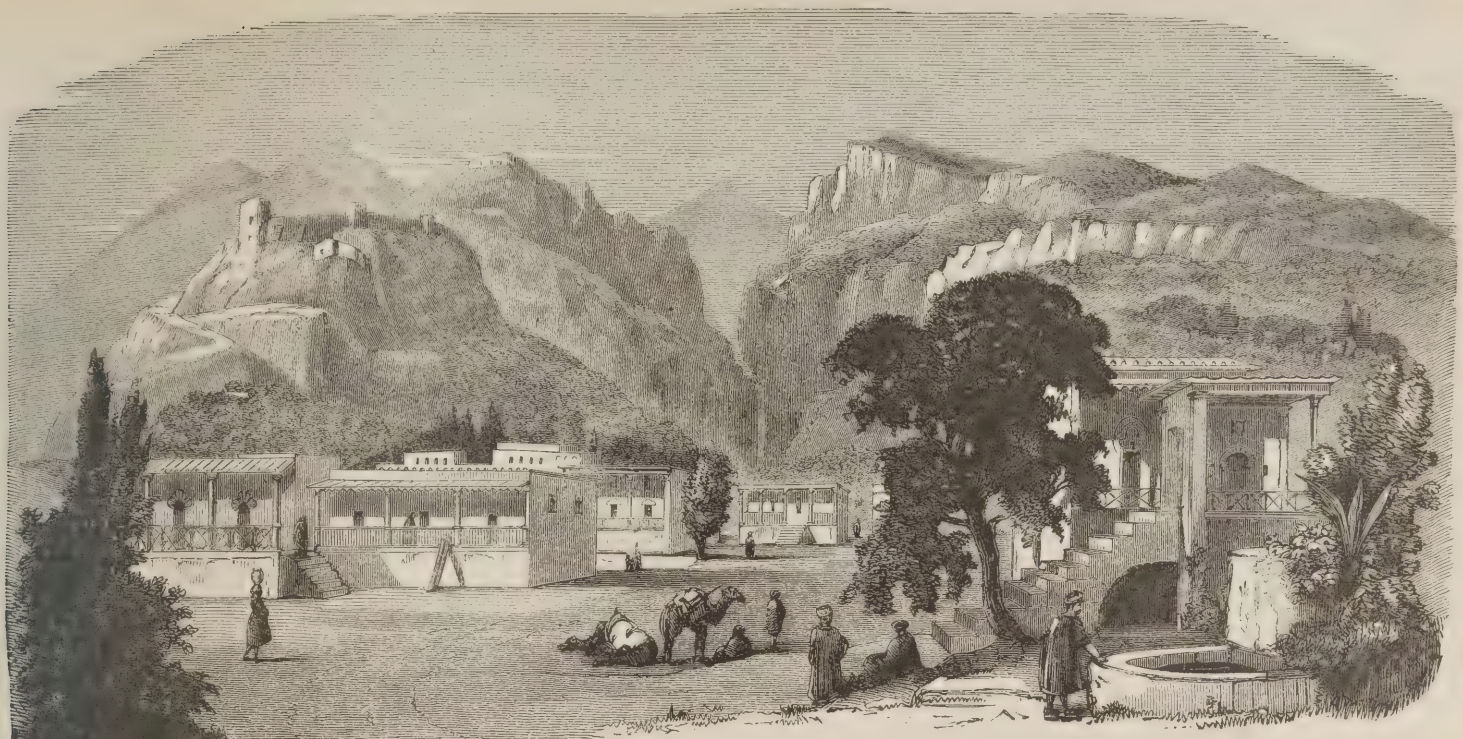
There is much in common between this epistle and that to the Romans on the subject of justification by faith only, and not by the law. But the epistle to the Romans handles the subject in a didactic and logical mode, without any special reference: this epistle, in a controversal manner, and with special reference to the Judaisers in Galatia.



THE EPISTLE TO THE EPHESIANS.

THE apostle Paul is universally admitted to be the author of the Epistle to the Ephesians. It is expressly cited as his production by Ignatius, who has no fewer than six distinct allusions to it, and, as he was contemporary with Paul, his testimony alone is sufficient to determine its genuineness. The subscription to this Epistle states that it was the first in order of those written from Rome, and sent to the Ephesians by Tychicus, who was also the bearer of the Epistle to the Colossians, the similarity of which in style and subject shows that it was written at the same time. St. Paul's first visit to Ephesus is recorded in Acts xviii. 19–21. That this Epistle was written during St. Paul's first imprisonment at Rome is evident from its allusions to his confinement (ch. iii. 1; iv. 1; vi. 20); and as he does not express in it any hopes of a speedy release (which he does in his other epistles sent from that city), we conclude, with Dr. Lardner, Bishop Tomline, and others, that it was written during the early part of St. Paul's imprisonment, probably in the year 61, soon after his arrival in Rome.

The style of this Epistle is exceedingly animated, and corresponds with the state of the apostle's mind at the time of writing. Overjoyed with the account which messengers had brought to him of their faith and holiness (ch. i. 15), and transported with the consideration of the unsearchable wisdom of God displayed in the work of man's redemption, and of his astonishing love toward the Gentiles in making them partakers, through faith, of all the benefits of Christ's death, he soars high in his sentiments on these grand subjects, and gives his thoughts utterance in sublime and copious expressions. "No true Christian," says Dr. Macknight, "can read the doctrinal part of the Epistle to the Ephesians without being impressed and roused by it, as by the sound of a trumpet."



THE EPISTLE TO THE PHILIPPIANS.

CHRISTIANITY was first planted at Philippi, in Macedonia, by St. Paul, A. D. 50, the particulars of which are related in Acts xvi. 9–40; and it appears from Acts xx. 6 that he again visited both places in 57, though no particulars are recorded concerning that visit. Of all the churches planted by St. Paul, that at Philippi seems to have cherished the most tender concern for him: and though it appears to have been but a small community, its members were particularly generous toward him. When the gospel was first preached in Macedonia, no other church contributed anything toward his support except the Philippians, who, while he was preaching at Thessalonica, the metropolis of that country, sent him money twice, that the success of the gospel might not be hindered by its preacher becoming burdensome to the Thessalonians.

It appears, from St. Paul's own words, that this Epistle was written while he was a prisoner at Rome; and from the expectation of soon being released and restored to them, as well as from the intimations contained in this letter that he had then been a considerable time at Rome, it is probable that he wrote the Epistle to the Philippians toward the close of his first imprisonment, at the end of A. D. 62, or perhaps at the commencement of 63. The genuineness of this book has never been questioned. The scope of this Epistle was to confirm the Philippians in the faith, to encourage them to walk in a manner becoming the gospel of Christ, to caution them against the intrusion of Judaizing teachers, and to testify his gratitude for their Christian bounty. It is remarkable that the Epistle to the church of Philippi is the only one of all St. Paul's letters to the churches in which not one censure is expressed or implied against any of its members; on the contrary, sentiments of unqualified commendation and confidence pervade every part of this Epistle.

We have here an account of the life and death of blessed St. Paul; his life was Christ, and his death was gain. Observe 1. It is the undoubted character of every good Christian, that to him to live is Christ. The glory of Christ ought to be the end of our life, the grace of Christ the principle of our life, and the word of Christ the rule of it. The Christian life is derived from Christ, and directed to him. He is the principal Rule and End of it. 2. All those to whom to live is Christ, to them to die will be gain: it is great gain, a present gain, everlasting gain. Death is a great loss to a carnal, worldly man; for he loses all his comforts and all his hopes; but to a good Christian it is gain, for it is the end of all his weakness and misery, and the perfection of his comforts, and accomplishment of his hopes.

THE EPISTLE TO THE COLOSSIANS.

BY whom or at what time Christianity was planted at Colossæ we have no certain information. Dr. Lardner, Bishop Tomline, Bœhmer and others are of opinion that the church at Colossæ was founded by St Paul, and this they arrive at from a variety of considerations. That Paul, however, did not plant the church at Colossæ is evident from his own declaration in ch. ii. 1, where he says that neither the Colossians nor the Laodiceans had then "seen his face in the flesh." But though it is impossible now to ascertain who was the founder of the church at Colossæ, the Epistle itself furnishes us with a guide to its date. In Col. iv. 3 the apostle alludes to his imprisonment, from which circumstance, as well as from its close affinity to the Epistle addressed to the Ephesians, it is evident that it was written nearly at the same time. Accordingly most commentators and critics refer it to the year 62. Its genuineness was never disputed.

The style is peculiar; many Greek phrases occur here found nowhere else, cf. ch. ii. 8, "spoil you;" "making a show of them openly," (ch. ii. 15;) "beguile of your reward," and "intruding," (v. 18;) "rule," (ch. iii. 15;) "comfort," (ch. iv. 11.) The loftiness and artificial elaboration of style correspond to the majestic nature of his theme; the majesty of Christ's person and office, in contrast to the beggarly system of the Judaisers; the discussion of which was forced on him by the controversy. Hence arises his use of unusual phraseology. On the other hand, in the epistle to the Ephesians, subsequently written, in which he was not so hampered by the exigencies of controversy, he dilates on the same glorious truths, so, congenial to him, more at large, freely and uncontroversially, in the fuller outpouring of his spirit, with less of the elaborate and antithetical language of system such as was needed in cautioning the Colossians against the particular errors threatening them. Hence arises the striking similarity of many of the phrases in the two epistles written about the same time, and generally in the same vein of spiritual thought; whilst the peculiar phrases of the epistle to the Colossians are such as are natural, considering the controversial purpose of that epistle. The spirit of the great apostle of the Gentiles breathes in every sentence of this pithy and earnest composition. Ardor undamped by imprisonment, interest unchilled by distance, zeal for the purity and simplicity of the gospel, uncompromising to all who introduce rash speculation or vile and unscriptural vagaries, whether under the shape of higher wisdom or superior sanctity, are undubitable traits of Paul's character, and unmistakable features in the Epistle to the Colossians.

THE FIRST EPISTLE TO THE THESSALONIANS.

CHRISTIANITY was first planted at Thessalonica by St. Paul, A. D. 50, who formed a church composed of both Jews and Gentiles, though the latter were most numerous. (Acts xvii. 2-4.) The unbelieving Jews, however, having stirred up a persecution against him and his company, they were forced to flee to Berea, and thence to Athens, from which city he proceeded to Corinth. The First Epistle to the Thessalonians is generally admitted to have been one of the earliest written, if, indeed, it be not the very first of all St. Paul's letters, and we find that he was anxious that it should be read to all the Christian Churches in Macedonia. The genuineness of this First Epistle has never been disputed. The immediate occasion of Paul's writing this Epistle was the favorable report which Timothy had brought him of the steadfastness of the Thessalonians in the faith of the gospel. He therefore wrote to confirm them in that faith, lest they should be turned aside from it by the persecutions of the unbelieving Jews, and also to excite them to a holy conversation becoming the dignity of their high and holy calling. The Epistle concludes with various practical advices and instructions.

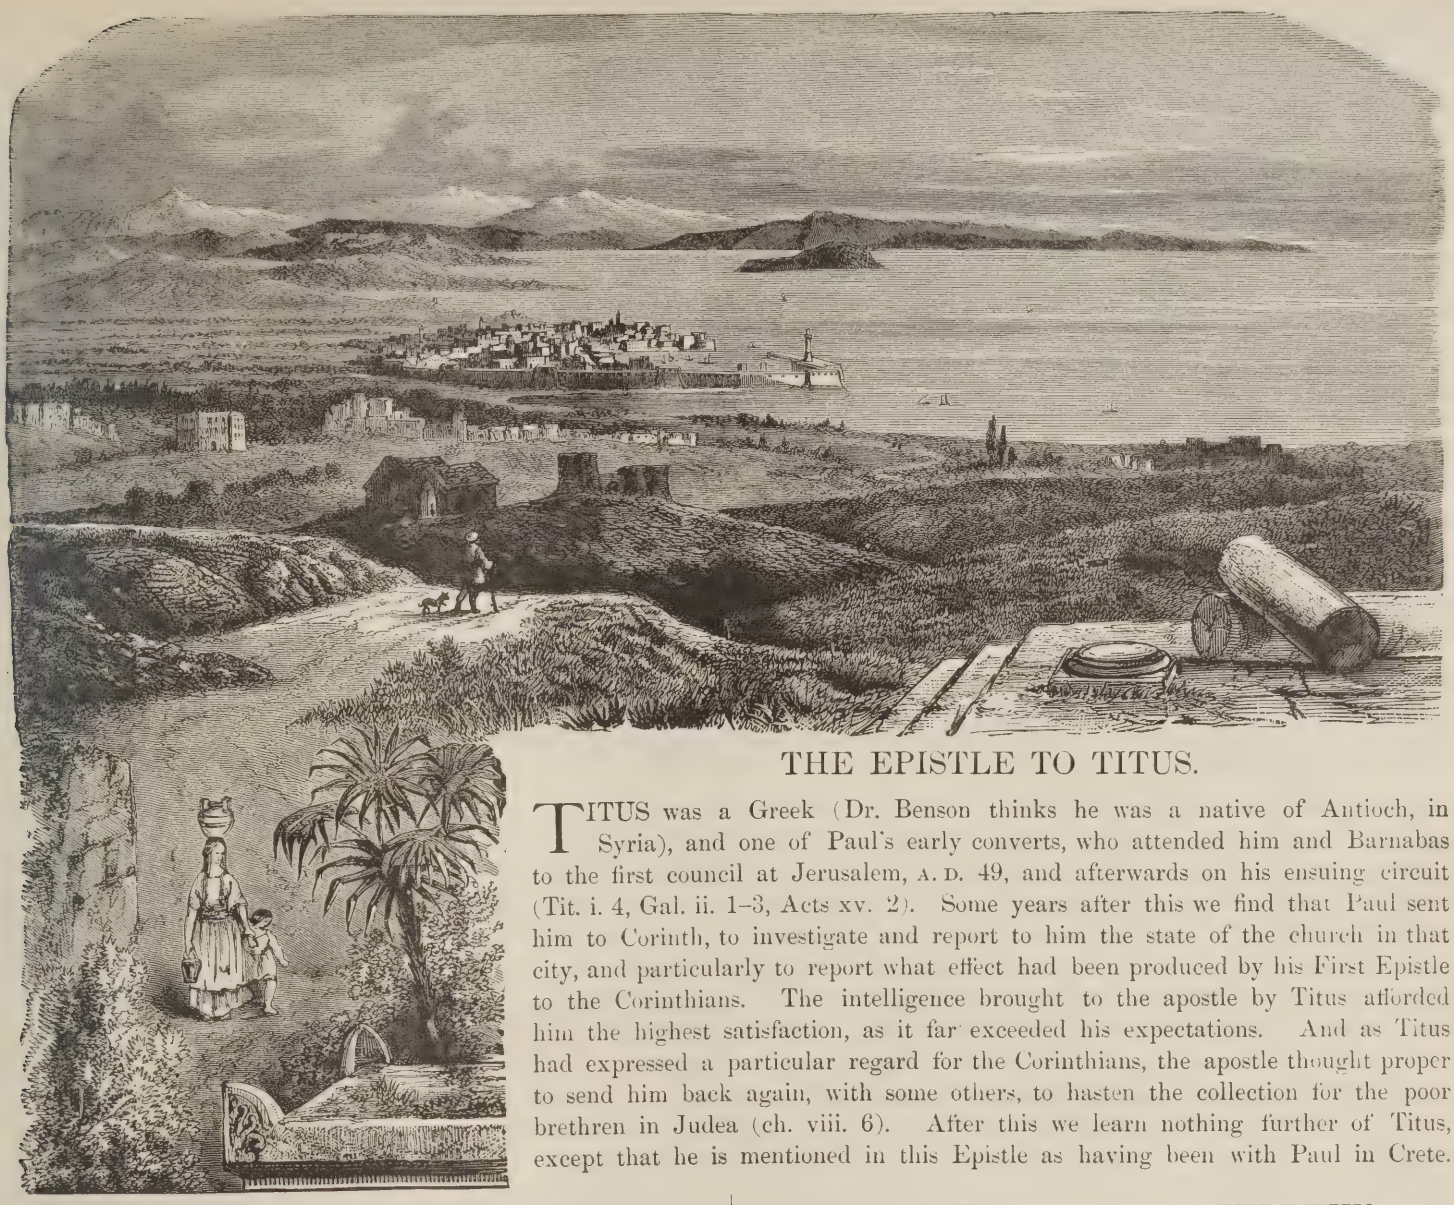
SECOND EPISTLE TO THESSALONIANS.

THE Second Epistle to the Thessalonians was evidently written soon after the first (A. D. 52), and from the same place, for Sylvanus or Silas and Timothy are joined together with the apostle in the inscription of this Epistle, as well as of the former. The Epistle was occasioned by the information communicated to Paul by the person who had conveyed his first letter to the Thessalonians respecting the state of the church. Among other things he was informed, from some expressions in it, that many of them expected that the day of judgment would happen in that age, and that such of them as thought the advent of Christ and the end of the world was at hand were neglecting their secular affairs, as being inconsistent with a due preparation for that important and awful event. As soon, therefore, as the state of the Thessalonians was made known to Paul, he wrote this Second Epistle to correct their misapprehension, to rescue them from an error which (appearing to rest on apostolical authority) must ultimately be injurious to the spread of the gospel, and to recommend various Christian duties.

Although this Epistle is the shortest of all St. Paul's letters to the churches, it is not inferior to any of them in sublimity of sentiment and in that excellent spirit by which all the writings of this apostle are so eminently distinguished. Besides those marks of genuineness and authority which it possesses in common with the rest of the apostolical epistles, it has one peculiar to itself in the exact representation it contains of the papal power, under the characters of the "man of sin" and the "mystery of iniquity."

THE FIRST EPISTLE TO TIMOTHY.

TIMOTHY, to whom this Epistle was addressed, was a native of Lystra, a city of Lycaonia, in Asia Minor. His father was a Greek, but his mother was a Jewess, and a person of excellent character. The pious care taken in his education soon appeared to have the desired success, for we are assured by St. Paul that from his childhood Timothy was well acquainted with the Holy Scriptures. It is generally supposed that he was converted to the Christian faith during the first visit made by Paul and Barnabas to Lystra. From the time of his conversion, Timothy made such proficiency in the knowledge of the gospel, and was so remarkable for the sanctity of his manners, as well as for his zeal in the cause of Christ, that he attracted the esteem of all his brethren in those parts.



The date of this Epistle has been much disputed, and considerable discussion has taken place on the subject. From a careful examination of the evidence, we think it is safe to conclude that it was written about the end of the year 64. But whatever uncertainty may have prevailed concerning the date of this Epistle, it has always been acknowledged to be the undisputed production of St. Paul. Both the First and Second Epistles to Timothy are cited or alluded to by the apostolical fathers, Clement of Rome and Polycarp, and the First Epistle by Ignatius, and by all subsequent ecclesiastical writers. Timothy having been left at Ephesus to regulate the affairs of the church in that city, St. Paul wrote this Epistle chiefly to instruct him in the choice of proper officers in the churches, as well as in the exercise of a regular ministry. Whoever carefully and impartially examines the style of this Epistle will find that the language and genius of the apostle of the Gentiles pervades it throughout, and that the animating, urgent and affecting motives which it presents are such as proceeded from the heart.

THE SECOND EPISTLE TO TIMOTHY.

THAT Paul was a prisoner when he wrote the second Epistle to Timothy is evident from ch. i. 8, 12, 16, and ch. ii. 9, and that his imprisonment was in Rome appears from ch. i. 17, and is universally admitted. But whether he wrote it during his first imprisonment, recorded in Acts xxviii., or during a second imprisonment there (which was the uniform tradition of the primitive church), is a point that has been much disputed. The former opinion is advocated by Drs. Hammond, Lightfoot, Lardner and Hug, and the latter by Drs. Benson, Macknight, Paley and others. From various considerations, we are inclined to believe that the last-mentioned opinion is correct, and that this Epistle was written by Paul at Rome, during an imprisonment different from that recorded in Acts xxviii. Paul was released from his confinement A. D. 63, and, after visiting various churches, returned to Rome early in 65, where, after being confined rather more than a year, it is generally agreed that he suffered martyrdom A. D. 66.

It is generally supposed that Timothy was at Ephesus when Paul wrote his Second Epistle to him. This opinion is advocated by Drs. Lardner, Benson and Macknight, but is opposed by Michaelis, who has shown that Timothy was most probably somewhere in Asia Minor when Paul sent this letter to him, because the apostle, toward the close of the first chapter, mentions several persons who dwelt in that region, and also because (2 Tim. iv. 13) he requests Timothy to bring with him the cloak, books and parchments which he had left behind him at Troas, and because Troas does not lie in the route from Ephesus to Rome, to which city Timothy was desired to "make haste to come to him before winter" (ch. iv 21). Michaelis concludes, therefore, that Paul, not knowing exactly where Timothy was at that time, wrote to him this Epistle, which he entrusted to a safe person (whom Dr. Benson supposes to have been Tychicus) that was traveling into Asia Minor, with an order to deliver it to him wherever he could find him.

As this Epistle was written to St. Paul's most intimate friend under the miseries of a jail and the near prospect of death, and was not designed for the use of others, it may serve to exhibit the temper and character of the apostle, and to convince us that he was no deceiver, but believed the doctrines he preached.

THE EPISTLE TO TITUS.

TITUS was a Greek (Dr. Benson thinks he was a native of Antioch, in Syria), and one of Paul's early converts, who attended him and Barnabas to the first council at Jerusalem, A. D. 49, and afterwards on his ensuing circuit (Tit. i. 4, Gal. ii. 1–3, Acts xv. 2). Some years after this we find that Paul sent him to Corinth, to investigate and report to him the state of the church in that city, and particularly to report what effect had been produced by his First Epistle to the Corinthians. The intelligence brought to the apostle by Titus afforded him the highest satisfaction, as it far exceeded his expectations. And as Titus had expressed a particular regard for the Corinthians, the apostle thought proper to send him back again, with some others, to hasten the collection for the poor brethren in Judea (ch. viii. 6). After this we learn nothing further of Titus, except that he is mentioned in this Epistle as having been with Paul in Crete.

THE EPISTLE TO PHILEMON.

PHILEMON was an inhabitant of Colossæ, as appears from Paul's mentioning Onesimus in his Epistle to the Colossians (ch. iv. 9) as one of them, and also from his saluting Archippus in this Epistle (ver. 2), who appears, from Col. iv. 17, to have been a pastor of that church. Philemon was most probably a converted Gentile, and a person of great worth as a man and of some note as a citizen in his own country. It appears, from verses 1, 10, 13 and 23 of this Epistle, that Paul was under confinement when he wrote it; and as he expresses (v. 22) his expectation of shortly being released, it is probable that it was written during his first imprisonment at Rome, towards the end of A. D. 62 or early in 63, and was sent, together with the Epistle to the Ephesians and Colossians, by Tychicus and Onesimus. Stronger external testimony to the authenticity of any part of the Bible does not exist than that which we have for the Epistle to Philemon. The whole of this Epistle is a most beautiful composition. Such deference and respect for Philemon, such affection and concern for Onesimus, such distant but just insinuation, such an admirable address pervade the whole, that this alone might be sufficient to convince us that Paul was not unacquainted with the world, and was not that weak and visionary enthusiast which the enemies of revelation have sometimes represented him to be.

THE EPISTLE TO THE HEBREWS.

THE nature and authenticity of this Epistle have been more controverted, perhaps, than any other book of the New Testament. Who the Hebrews were to whom this letter was addressed learned men are by no means agreed. The most ancient opinion, however, and the one best corroborated by the contents of the Epistle itself, is, that it was directed to the Hebrews in Palestine, and probably to the church of Cæsarea. As to the language in which this Epistle was written, there have been two principal opinions; one, that it was originally written in Hebrew, and translated into Greek by Luke or Barnabas; and the other, that it was written in Greek. The point is a much litigated one, but Horne "feels compelled to draw the conclusion that the original language must have been Greek." The question is one, however, which by no means affects the genuineness and authenticity of the gospel. The authorship of this Epistle has been ascribed to different persons, but the Christian Church generally believe it to be the genuine production of the great apostle to the Gentiles. As to the time when this Epistle was written, the majority of commentators place it between A. D. 61 and 64. This Epistle is considered by the most eminent Bible critics a finished model of didactic writing. The internal excellence of this Epistle, as connecting the Old Testament and the New, is most convincing and instructive.

THE EPISTLE OF JAMES.

CONSIDERABLE doubt has existed respecting the author of this Epistle. Two apostles of the name of James are mentioned in the New Testament. The first was the son of Zebedee, a fisherman upon the Lake of Galilee, and the brother of the evangelist John; and as he is uniformly mentioned by the evangelists before John (except in Luke ix. 28), he is supposed to have been the elder of the two. As he was put to death by Herod Agrippa A. D. 44 (Acts xii.), it is evident that he was not the author of the Epistle which bears his name. The other James was the son of Alpheus or Cleopas. He is called the brother or near relation of our Lord (Gal. i. 18, 19), and is generally termed the Less, partly to distinguish him from the other James, and probably because he was lower of stature. There is no doubt that this was the apostle who wrote this Epistle. The time when this Epistle was composed is uncertain; some place it early, A. D. 45, others think its date later, perhaps 61 or 62 A. D. Some writers think this Epistle does not harmonize with the Epistles of Paul. On this topic little can be said. The two apostles had each his own aspect of a cardinal truth, and their expressions have reference to the special need of those they respectively addressed. Paul vindicates the power of a living faith, James shows that if it be not a living faith it is worthless. The two are not at variance. On account of his distinguished piety and sanctity he was named James the Just. Notwithstanding the high opinion that was generally entertained of his character, his life was prematurely terminated by martyrdom. According to Hegesippus, an ecclesiastical historian who flourished about the close of the second century, this event took place about A. D. 62. This Epistle is one of the most pathetic and instructive in the New Testament. Its style possesses all that beautiful and elegant simplicity which so eminently characterizes the sacred writers

THE FIRST EPISTLE OF PETER.

SIMON, surnamed Cephas or Peter (which appellation signifies a stone or rock), was the son of Jonas or Jonah, and was born in Bethsaida, on the coast of the Sea of Galilee, following the occupation of fisherman on that lake until called by Jesus to be his apostle. In the evangelical history of this apostle the distinguishing features in his character are signally portrayed, and in no small degree enhance the credibility of the sacred historians, that they have blended without disguise several traits of his precipitance and presumption with the honorable testimony which the narration of facts affords to the sincerity of his attachment to Christ, and the fervor of his zeal in the cause of his blessed Master. After our Saviour's ascension, Peter took an active part in the affairs of the infant church. It was he who proposed the election of a successor to the traitor Judas (Acts. i. 15–26), and on the ensuing day of Pentecost he preached Christ so effectually that three thousand souls were added to the church. After laboring zealously for many years in the cause of Christ, he was finally crucified at Rome, A. D. 63, during the reign of the Emperor Nero. The design of this Epistle was to support the Christians under afflictions and trials, to which they were subjected, and to instruct them how to behave in the midst of the opposition and cruelty with which they were treated, submissive to civil authority, attentive to their duties in their several stations, and leading blameless and exemplary lives This Epistle is sparing in words, but full of sense, majestic, and one of the finest books of the New Testament. The genuineness and canonical authority of this Epistle have never been disputed.

THE SECOND EPISTLE OF PETER.

SOME doubts were entertained by the primitive churches respecting the authenticity of this Epistle, which has been received as the genuine production of Peter ever since the fourth century, except by the Syrian Church, in which it is read as an excellent book, though not of canonical authority. We have, however, most satisfactory evidence of its genuineness and authenticity. Clement of Rome has three allusions to the second and one to the third chapter of this Epistle, and it is twice referred to by Hermas, once by Justin Martyr, and also by Athenagoras. Various reasons have been assigned why this Epistle was not earlier acknowledged as the writing of Peter. Jerome informs us that the difference in style between this and the former Epistle was in his day the principal cause of its authority being disputed, and the same objection has been adopted by other modern writers. No objection, however, can be drawn from this circumstance, as it is well known that different subjects suggest different styles. Both external and internal evidence show that the Second Epistle of Peter is unquestionably the production of that apostle, and claims to be received and studied with the same devout care and attention as the other inspired writings of the New Testament. That Peter was old and near his death when he wrote this Epistle is evident from chap. i. 14; and that it was written soon after the First Epistle appears from the apology he makes (ch. i. 13, 15) for writing this Second Epistle to the Hebrew Christians. The scope of the Epistle is to confirm the doctrines and instructions delivered in the former, to establish the Hebrew Christians in the faith of the gospel, to caution them against false teachers, and to warn them against those profane scoffers who should make a mock of Christ's coming to judgment. He warns them to prepare for that great event by a holy and unblamable conversation.

THE FIRST EPISTLE OF JOHN.

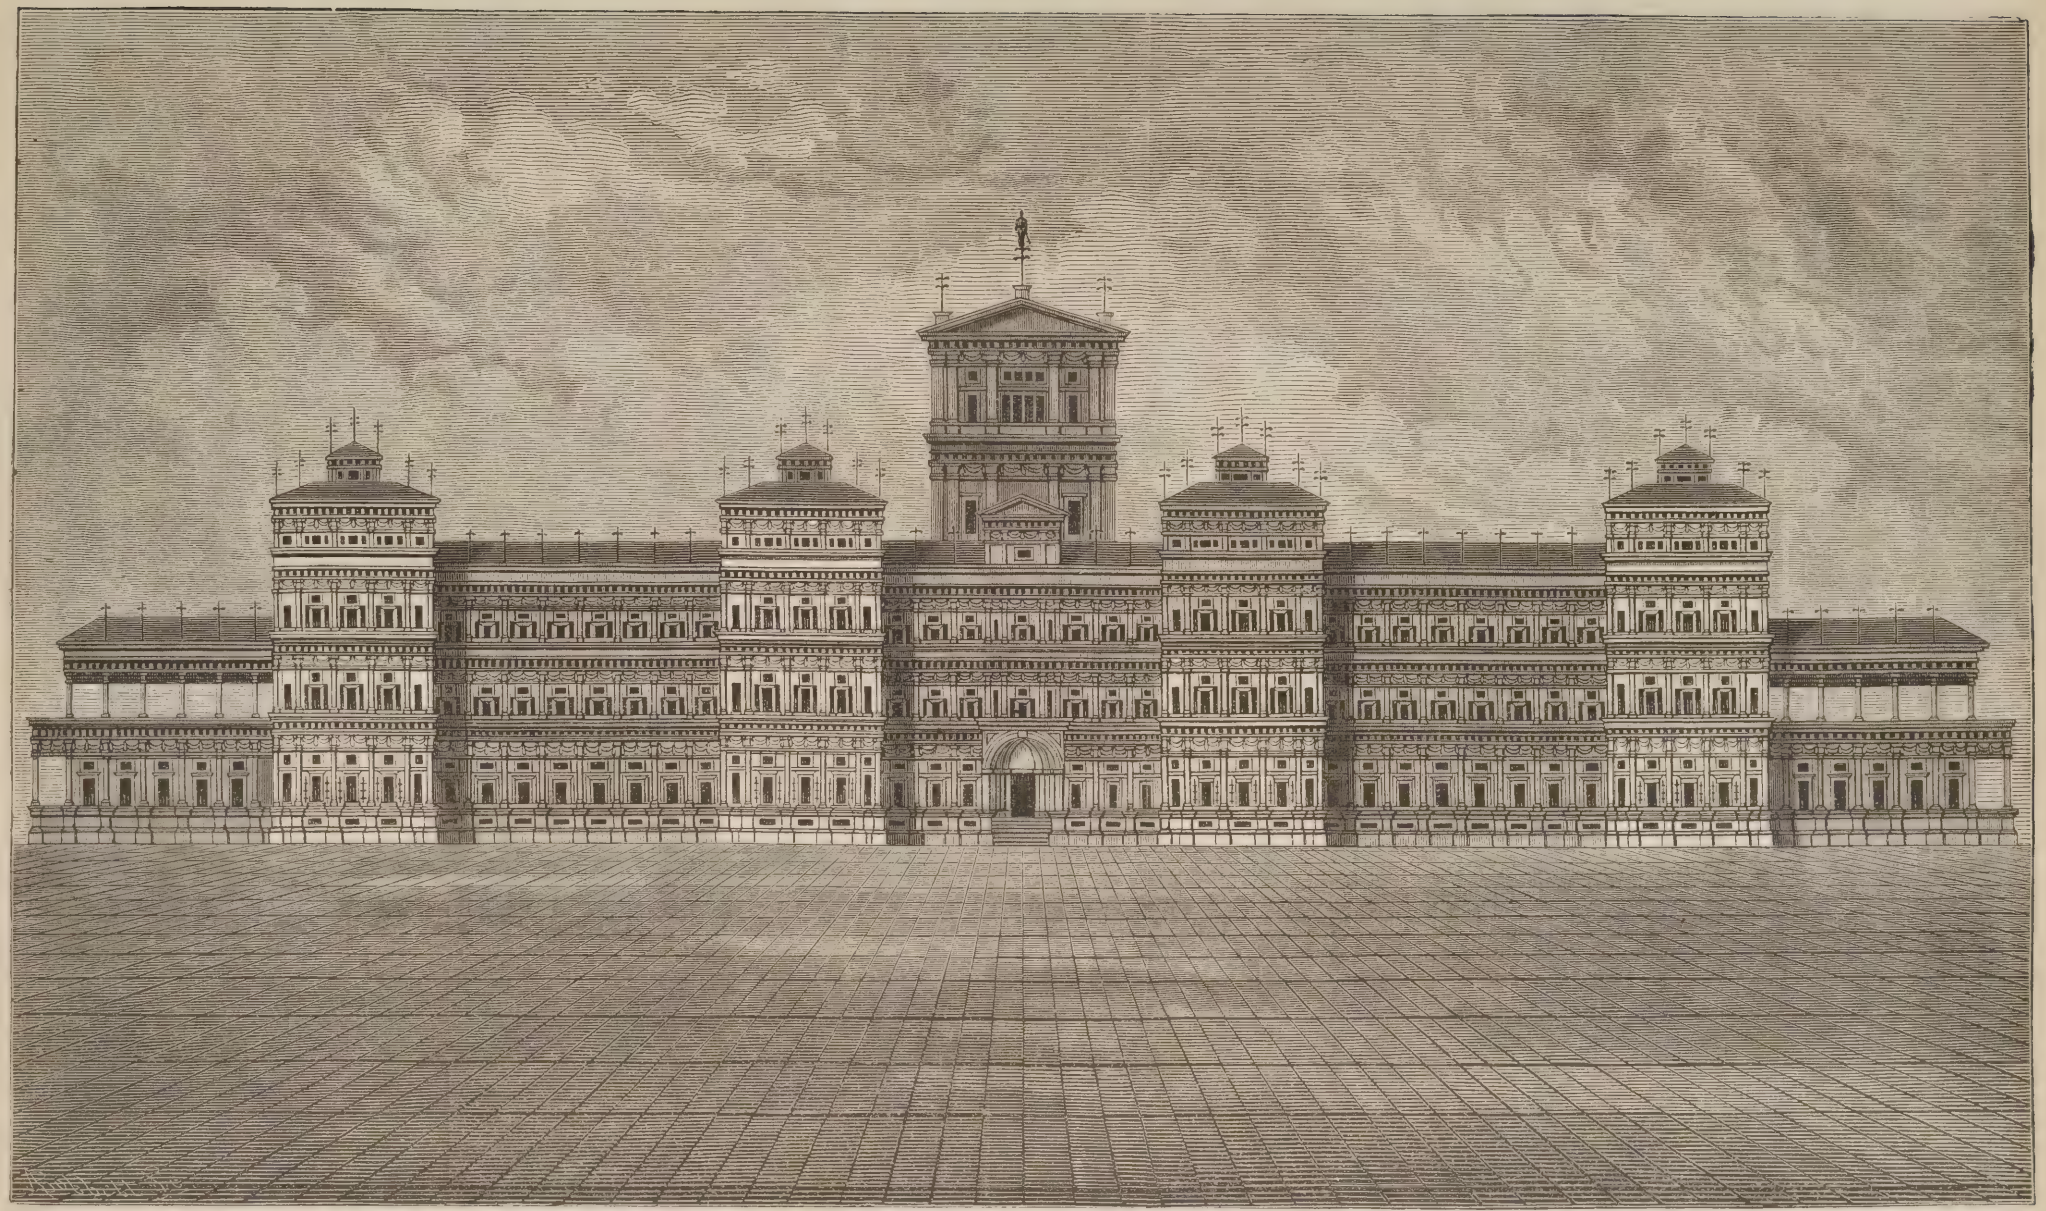
ALTHOUGH no name is prefixed to this book, its authenticity as a genuine production of the apostle John is unquestionable. It was almost universally received as his composition in the Eastern and Western Churches, and is declared to be genuine by many of the most eminent ancient and modern ecclesiastical writers. The Epistle is characterized by artless simplicity and benevolence, blended with singular modesty and candor, together with a wonderful sublimity of sentiment. It is not properly speaking an epistle, but rather a didactic discourse upon the principles of christianity in doctrine and practice, opening sublimely with the fundamental topics of God's perfection, and man's depravity, and Christ's propitiation, perspicuously propounding the deepest mysteries of our holy faith maintaining the sanctity of its precepts with energy of argument, and exhibiting in all its parts the most dignified simplicity of language With regard to the date of this Epistle, there is a considerable diversity of opinion, but the most probable of these various opinions is that which assigns to it an early date, namely, before the destruction of Jerusalem and the subversion of the Jewish polity. From all the evidence before us, we conclude that St. John wrote his First Epistle in A. D. 68, or at the latest in 69; though it is impossible to ascertain from what place he sent it—whether from Patmos, as Grotius supposes, or from some city in Judea, as Dr. Macknight supposes, or from Ephesus, as Irenæus and Eusebius relate from ancient tradition, which has been generally received. The style of the Epistle is pure, clear and flowing, and an affectionate spirit prevades the whole.

SECOND AND THIRD EPISTLES OF JOHN.

IN the fourth century, when Eusebius wrote his ecclesiastical history, these two epistles were classed among the books which were received by the majority of Christians, though some doubts were entertained by others respecting their authenticity. Testimonies are not wanting, however, to prove that they were both known and received as genuine productions of the apostle John. The Second Epistle is cited by Irenæus, and received by Clement of Alexandria. Origen mentions all three epistles, though he says that the second and third were not allowed to be genuine by all persons. Dionysius of Alexandria mentions them as being ascribed to St. John.

The Second Epistle is an epitome of the first, and touches, in few words, on the same points. The "Lady Electa" is commended for her virtuous and religious education of her children, and is exhorted to abide in the doctrine of Christ, to persevere in the truth, and carefully to avoid the delusions of false teachers. But chiefly does the apostle beseech this Christian matron to practice the great and indispensable commandment of Christian love and charity.

The Third Epistle of John is addressed to a converted Gentile, a respectable member of some Christian church, called Caius, but who he was is a matter of uncertainty, as there are three persons of this name mentioned in the New Testament. Michaelis and most modern critics suppose the person to whom this Epistle was addressed to be the Caius of Corinth, as hospitality was a leading feature of his character. His hospitable temper, particularly toward the ministers of the gospel, is strongly marked in the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth verses of this Epistle. The scope of this Epistle is to commend his steadfastness in the faith and his general hospitality, especially to the ministers of Christ; to caution him against the ambitious and turbulent practices of Diotrephes, and to recommend Demetrius to his friendship, referring what he further had to say to a personal interview. Commentators are by no means agreed as to who this Diotrephes was. Bede, Erasmus, Michaelis and others suppose him to have been the author of a new sect, and that, as he delivered false doctrines, he objected to those who propagated the true faith. The character of Demetrius, on the contrary, was in every respect conformable to the precepts of the gospel, and St. John recommends him as an example to Caius, and the other members of the church.



THE EPISTLE OF JUDE.

JUDE or Judas, who was surnamed Thaddeus and Lebbeus, and who was also called the brother of our Lord (Matt. xiii. 25), was the son of Alpheus, brother of James the Less, and one of the twelve apostles. As he continued with the rest of the apostles after our Lord's resurrection and ascension (Acts i. 13), and was also with them on the day of Penticost, it is not unreasonable to suppose that, after having received the extraordinary gifts of the Holy Spirit, he preached the gospel for some time in Judea, and performed miracles in the name of Christ. He is said to have propagated Christianity in Arabia, Syria, Mesopotamia and Persia, and suffered martyrdom in the last named country. The Syrians still claim him as their apostle. When and where this epistle was written, and to whom it was addressed, are uncertain and immaterial. The design of the Epistle is to guard believers against the false teachers who had begun to insinuate themselves into the Christian Church, and to contend with the utmost earnestness and zeal for the true faith.

THE BOOK OF REVELATION.

THIS wonderful book stands alone among the sacred writings of the new dispensation, and occupies a place among them in many respects analogous to that of the Book of Daniel in the Old Testament. It has been very generally ascribed in all ages of the Church to the apostle and evangelist St. John. We learn from the book itself that the visions which it records were seen by the writer while he was in Patmos, a small island in the Ægean Sea, as a prisoner "for the testimony of Jesus Christ" (chap. i. 9); and Irenæus fixes the date of the visions, and therefore (as may be assumed) that of the composition of the book, about the end of the reign of Domitian, in or shortly before A. D. 96. No book has been more commented upon or has given rise to a greater variety of interpretations than the Apocalypse, which has ever been accounted the most difficult portion of the New Testament. Although many parts of the Apocalypse are necessarily obscure to us, because they contain predictions of events still in the future, yet enough is sufficiently clear to convey to us the most important religious instruction. The book is to us precisely what the prophecies of the Old Testament were to the Jews, nor is it in any degree more inexplicable. "No prophecies in the Revelation can be more clouded with obscurity than that a child should be born of a poor virgin—that a mortal should not see corruption—that a person despised and numbered among malefactors should be established forever on the throne of David. Yet still the pious Jew preserved his faith entire amidst all these wonderful and apparently contradictory intimations. He looked into the holy books in which they were contained with reverence, and with an eye of patient expectation 'waited for the consolation of Israel.'"

HISTORY OF HEROD, KING OF THE JEWS.

By Rev G. F. Maclear, D.D.

ANTIPATER appointed his eldest son, Phasael, Governor of Judæa, and conferred the tetrarchy of Galilee on his youngst son, Herod. Of the two sons thus appointed to prominent positions, the younger, Herod, soon began to display uncommon abilities, and the most unbounded ambition. Though only twenty-five years of age, the new governor of Galilee turned his energies at once to the efficient management of his province. Numerous robber-bands, which infested the confines of Syria, were resolutely attacked; their chief, Hezekias, was put to death, and security was restored. Such decision won the praises of multitudes in the towns and cities of Syria.

Two years later, B.C. 44, Cæsar was assassinated at Rome, and Antipater addressed himself to the task of meeting the new situation, unexpected even by his sagacity. Cassius, the chief conspirator in the murder of Cæsar, became pro-consul of Syria, and arriving in Judæa, enforced upon the country the enormous tribute of seven hundred talents of silver. Antipater commissioned Herod to collect the quota from Galilee, while Malichus, a powerful Jew, and an adherent of Hyrcanus, was directed to obtain the rest. Herod, with characteristic energy, employed himself in raising two hundred talents for Galilee, and so gained the favour of Cassius, while the people of Lydda, Gophna, and Emmaus, being backward in their contributions, were sold into slavery; but so incensed was the pro-consul at Malichus for his dilatoriness, that he would have put him to death, had it not been for the intervention of Antipater, who advanced one hundred talents on his account. Herod was now confirmed in the government of Cœle-Syria, and Cassius even promised him the kingdom of Judæa, if the arms of the Republic proved triumphant.

An unexpected power appeared in the country, and Judæa became the victim of the strife for empire between Rome and Parthia. While Antonius was wasting his time in the society of Cleopatra, Queen of Egypt, the Parthians, under Pacorus, having been bribed by Antigonus, advanced through Syria, and made themselves masters of Sidon, Ptolemais, and all the coast except Tyre. Hence a division of the Parthian forces marched against Jerusalem, and their leader, admitted within the walls, proposed to act as umpire between the rival claimants for the throne of Judæa.

Meanwhile the Parthians had obtained possession of Jerusalem. Antigonus was made king, and Hyrcanus and Phasael were delivered into his power. The latter, knowing his death was certain, beat out his brains against the walls of his prison. Thus Jerusalem was left in the hands of a foreign army, who committed the greatest excesses.

Herod in the meantime had not been idle. On arriving at Rome he found Antonius at the summit of power. The triumvir received him with the utmost distinction, and introduced him to Octavius, who at once recalled the services which the Idumean had rendered to the great Julius. A Parthian campaign was at this time being diligently planned by Antonius, and he found in Herod a useful ally. Within seven days, therefore, he procured a decree of the senate, nominating him king of Judæa, and Herod, successful beyond his most sanguine hopes, walked in procession between Octavius and Antonius, preceded by the consuls and other magistrates, to the Capitol, where the usual sacrifices were offered, and the decree investing him with royal power was enrolled.

Herod did not remain long at Rome. Everything depended on the celerity of his movements. The close of the week, therefore, saw him appointed king, and hurrying to Brundusium. Thence he took ship for Ptolemais, and arrived there after an absence of barely three months. Collecting a body of troops, he speedily won over all Galilee, where the recollection of his energy as governor was still fresh. Then he set out to attack Antigonus, who had unsuccessfully laid siege to Masâda, in the hope of obtaining possession of Mariamne. Joppa next fell into his hands; and having raised the siege of Masâda, and liberated his relatives, he proceeded, in conjunction with the Roman general Silo, to lay siege to Jerusalem, B.C. 37, and recommenced the siege, aided by Sosius, at the head of 50,000 troops.

But his progress was still slow. Forty days were spent in taking the first wall, fifteen in taking the second. Then the outer court of the Temple and the lower city were reduced. At last the signal for the assault was given, and an indiscriminate massacre ensued. Multitudes were cut down in the narrow streets, many more while crowded together in their houses. The fury of the legions was roused, and the massacre was only stayed by the repeated solicitations of Herod, who stood with a drawn sword before the entrance of the Holy of Holies, and threatened to cut down any one of the Roman soldiers who attempted to enter.

Herod had now attained the highest object of his ambition. By Roman aid, and under the influence of Roman supremacy, he had become sole ruler of Palestine, and he maintained his power unchallenged until his death. The eventful year, B.C. 31, was drawing on. The rival potentates of Judæa and Egypt had long been watching and fencing with each other, when the battle of Actium ended all their intrigues, and both found themselves obliged to petition for existence from the conqueror. Herod had raised a body of troops to assist Antonius, but the designs of Cleopatra had involved him in a war with Malchus, an Arabian prince. In the first campaign he had been signally defeated, owing to the unwillingness of the Jews to undertake a war against a nation with whom they had no quarrel. But in the spring of B.C. 31, a sudden earthquake convulsed the cities of southern Palestine, and the Arabs, taking advantage of the consternation, slew the Jewish ambassadors who had come to treat for peace. The news of their barbarity roused the whole people, and enabled Herod to win a decisive victory over his foes at Philadelphia, and to gain something like popular favour from his subjects. Thus, successful beyond all his expectations, Herod returned to Jerusalem with greater power secured to him than he had ever enjoyed before.

Herod's return to his capital was the signal for fresh cruelties. The secret orders entrusted to the guardian of Mariamne had been a second time divulged; she persisted in refusing the monarch's affection, and reproached him bitterly with his cruelty towards her family. At length, carried away by rage and jealousy, Herod executed not only Mariamne's guardian, Soemus, but his queen herself. Mariamne submitted to the axe of the executioner with calmness and intrepidity, B.C. 29, and showed herself in death worthy of the noble race of which she came. The horrible reality of the deed, and a sense of his own loss, wrung his spirit to madness. It was long before he recovered fully from the mental derangement which came on.

By the tribute he paid to Rome year by year he acknowledged the tenure on which he held his power. He filled Jerusalem with edifices built in the Greek taste. He inaugurated public exhibitions, and spectacles of all kinds. A theatre rose within, an amphitheatre without, the walls of Jerusalem. Quinquennial games were celebrated on a scale of the utmost magnificence. Shows of gladiators and combats of wild beasts were exhibited within the City of David itself.

He had already built two castles in the southern part of Jerusalem, erected a palace on the impregnable hill of Sion, restored and enlarged the Baris, and called it Antonia, in memory of his former patron. He now converted other places into strong fortresses. South-western Galilee needed a defence against Phœnicia, and his kingdom required a naval harbour and a maritime city. Thirty miles south of Mount Carmel a convenient point offered itself for the latter purpose, at a spot called Strato's Tower. This he converted into a magnificent city, called Cæsarea, with a harbour equal in size to the Piræus at Athens. West of Mount Tabor he built Gabatha; east of the Jordan he fortified the ancient Heshbon; while Samaria, which had been destroyed by John Hyrcanus, rose once more from its ruins, not only considerably increased, but also adorned with a new and magnificent temple, and called Sebaste or Augusta, in honour of the Roman Emperor.

While thus rebuilding the ruined cities of his kingdom, Herod repeatedly endeavoured, by acts of munificence and liberality, to conciliate the good-will of his subjects. Thus, when in B.C. 24, the crops in Palestine failed for the second time, he not only opened his own private stores, but sent to Petronius, the Roman governor of Egypt, a personal friend, and obtained permission to export corn from that country, with which he not only supplied the wants of his own people, but was even able to send seed into Syria. In this way, and by remitting more than once a great part of the heavy taxation, he earned for himself general gratitude, both from his heathen and Jewish subjects.

At length he resolved to take a step which should ingratiate himself with all classes. He determined to rival Solomon, and rebuild the Temple. Since the restoration of the second Temple by Zorobabel, that structure had fallen in many places into ruin, and had suffered much during the recent wars. He announced his intention, about the year B.C. 20, on the occasion of the Feast of the Passover. But his proposition roused the greatest mistrust, and he found himself obliged to proceed with the utmost caution, and to use every means to allay suspicion. Two years were spent in bringing together the materials, and vast preparations were made before a single stone of the old building was touched. At last, in the year B.C. 18, the foundations of the Temple of Zorobabel were removed, and on those laid centuries before by Solomon, the new pile arose, built of hard white stones of enormous size. Eighteen months were spent in building the Porch, the Holy Place, and the Holy of Holies. Eight years more elapsed before the courts and cloisters and other extensive and splendid buildings around the sacred structure were completed.

On the highest level of the rocky platform of Moriah rose the Naos, or Temple proper, erected solely by priestly hands, divided, as in the days of Solomon, into a Holy Place and a Holy of Holies by a veil or curtain of the finest work. "No figures, no sculpture, as in Persian and Egyptian temples, adorned the front. Golden vines and clusters of grapes, the typical plant and fruit of Israel, ran along the wall; and the greater and lesser lights of heaven were wrought into the texture of the veil. The whole façade was covered with plates of gold, which, when the sun shone upon them in the early day, sent back his rays with an added glory, so great that gazers standing on Olivet had to shade their eyes when turning towards the Temple mount."

The pavement was inlaid with marble of many colours. The most beautiful gateways led into this court, of great height, and ornamented with the utmost skill. One of these, on the eastern side, looking towards the Mount of Olives, was known as "Solomon's Porch;" close by it was another, the pride of the Temple area, as one writer says, "more like the gopura of an Indian temple than anything we are acquainted with in architecture." This, in all probability, was the one called the "Beautiful Gate" in the New Testament.

The Sanctuary was completed in the year B.C. 16, the anniversary of Herod's inauguration, and was celebrated with a magnificent feast and the most lavish sacrifices. Immediately afterwards Herod undertook a journey to Rome to fetch home his two sons, Alexander and Aristobulus. He was received with every mark of attention by Augustus, and returned to his capital about the spring of B.C. 15. Agrippa was now on a visit to Asia, to inspect these provinces of the empire for his master. Herod thereupon invited him to visit Judæa. Agrippa consented, and escorted by Herod, passed through his new cities of Sebaste and Cæsarea.

Returning from Asia Minor, B.C. 14, Herod landed at his new port of Cæsarea, and proceeding to Jerusalem, recounted the privileges he had secured for the nation, and remitted a fourth of the year's tribute. It might have been hoped that the close of his reign would make some atonement for the atrocities of earlier years; but a scene of bloodshed was now to be enacted far more awful than any which had darkened his reign, as if to show that the "spirit of the injured Mariamne hovered over Herod's devoted house, and, involving the innocent as well as the guilty in the common ruin, designated the dwelling of her murderous husband as the perpetual scene of misery and bloodshed."

On the return of the young princes, Alexander and Aristobulus, they were received by the populace with the utmost enthusiasm, in spite of their education in a foreign land. Their grace and beauty, their engaging manners, above all their descent from the ancient Asmonean line, made them objects of hope and joy on the part of the nation. But the keenest hatred of Pherôras and Salome was now aroused, and they began to whisper into Herod's ear that the young men were bent on avenging their mother's death. The king had given them in marriage, Alexander to Galphyra, the daughter of Archelaus, king of Cappadocia; Aristobulus to Mariamne, a daughter of Salome. Proud of the popularity his sons had acquired, Herod for some time refused to attach any credence to these vile insinuations. At length he adopted an expedient which led to the most disastrous results. By an earlier wife, named Doris, he had a son Antipater. After his alliance with the Asmonean princess he had put Doris away. Now he recalled her and her son, and made the young man a sort of spy over his two step-brothers. Cunning, ambitious, and unscrupulous, Antipater threw himself heart and soul into all the plots of Pherôras and Salome, and continued to make the two princes objects of more and more suspicion to their father.

The arrival at Jerusalem of Archelaus, king of Cappadocia, and father-in-law of Alexander, caused a temporary lull. This monarch succeeded in reinstating the young prince in his father's favour; but the reconciliation was only on the surface. His brother Pherôras, Salome, and, worst of all, Antipater, again filled Herod's mind with apprehensions and suspicions, and he determined once more to seek the advice of Augustus. Accordingly he set out for Rome in B.C. 8, and preferred his complaints against his sons before the emperor. Augustus advised that he should hold a court of arbitration, and recommended Berytus, in Phœnicia, as the place of meeting. There one hundred and fifty princes therefore assembled together, with Saturninus and Volumnius, the prefects of Syria. Before this tribunal Herod laid his complaints, pleaded his cause, and publicly accused his sons. After hearing the charge Saturninus advised that mercy should be extended towards the young men; Volumnius and the majority urged their condemnation, and eventually they were strangled at Samaria, at the very same place where their father had celebrated his marriage with their mother.

But the execution of those unfortunate princes did but little towards removing the elements of discord in Herod's household. Repeated dissensions had arisen between him and his brother Pherôras, who was at length ordered to retire to his own tetrarchy of Perœa. There he sickened and died, and his widow was accused of having poisoned him. The investigation that ensued revealed a new and still more formidable conspiracy, which Antipater and Pherôras had formed against Herod's life. Antipater was absent at Rome, but he was allowed to return to Cæsarea, and on reaching Jerusalem was instantly seized, and brought to trial before the Roman governor of Syria, Quintilius Varus. The charge was proved, and he was condemned to death, but his execution was respited till the will of the emperor could be ascertained.

Herod was now upwards of seventy years of age, and already felt the approach of his last mortal malady. Removing for change of air to Jericho, he resolved to make the final alterations in his will. Passing over Archelaus and Philip, whom Antipater had accused of treachery, he nominated Antipas, a son by Malthace, a Samaritan, his successor in the kingdom; and left magnificent bequests to Cæsar, to Cæsar's wife Julia, to her sons, and to the members of his own family.

Before Herod left for Jericho, and while he was still residing in the magnificent palace he had built on Zion, his fears and suspicions were still further increased by the visit to his capital of certain magi from the East, bearing the strange intelligence that they had seen in the East the star of a new-born King of the Jews, and had come to worship Him.

The inquiry respecting an hereditary King of the Jews roused the alarm of the Idumean tyrant, and, hastily convening an assembly of the chief priests and scribes, he inquired where, according to their prophetical books, the long-expected Messiah was to be born. Without any hesitation they pointed to the words of the prophet Micah, which declared that Bethlehem, in Judæa, was the favoured spot. Concealing his wicked intentions, the monarch therefore bade the magi repair to Bethlehem, bidding them let him know as soon as they had found the young child, that he, too, might come and do Him reverence.

Thus advised, the magi set out, and at Bethlehem they found "the young Child, and Mary his Mother, and they fell down and worshipped Him." For true it was that while Herod's blood-stained reign was drawing near its close, and when, after a life of tyranny and unsurpation, he was sinking "into the jealous decrepitude of his savage old age," a lowly Virgin had at Bethlehem brought "forth her first-born Son, and wrapped Him in swaddling clothes, and laid Him in a manger." The advent of this true King of kings, "in great humility," had moved all heaven to its centre; and while Herod's palaces were the scenes of jealousies, suspicion, and murders, and his subjects were groaning under the yoke of his iron rule, the heavenly song had floated over the hills of Bethlehem, and shepherds keeping watch over their flocks had heard the words, breaking the stillness of the night, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, goodwill toward men."

After they had offered their homage and their gifts to the heavenly Child, the magi would naturally have returned to Herod; but warned of God in a dream of peril awaiting them if they did so, they returned to their own land another way. Thus foiled, the jealousy of Herod assumed a more malignant aspect, and, unable to identify the royal Infant of the seed of David, he issued an edict that all the children of Bethlehem and its neighbourhood, from two years old and under, should be slain.

"Herod's whole career was red with the blood of murder. He had massacred priests and nobles; he had decimated the Sanhedrin; he had caused the high priest, his brother-in-law, the young and noble Aristobulus, to be drowned in pretended sport before his eyes; he had ordered the strangulation of his favourite wife, the beautiful Asmonean princess Mariamne, though she seems to have been the only human being whom he passionately loved. His sons Alexander, Aristobulus, and Antipater; his uncle Joseph; Antigonus and Alexander, the uncle and father of his wife; his mother-in-law Alexandra; his kinsman Cortobanus; his friends Dositheus and Gadias were but a few of the multitudes who fell victims to his sanguinary, suspicious, and guilty terrors. His reign which was so cruel that, in the energetic language of the Jewish ambassadors to the Emperor Augustus, 'the survivors during his lifetime were even more miserable than the sufferers.'"

Herod's disorder increased with the utmost violence. He lay in the magnificent palace which he had built for himself under the palm-trees of Jericho, racked with pain, and tormented with thirst. Still cherishing hopes of recovery, he now caused himself to be conveyed across the Jordan to Callirrhoë, not far from the Dead Sea, hoping to obtain relief from its warm bituminous springs. But the use of the waters produced no effect. He was conveyed back to Jericho, where he ordered the chiefs of the nation, under pain of death, to assemble. As they arrived they were shut up in the Hippodrome, and Herod charged Salome and Alexas, immediately upon his decease, to put them to death. Scarcely had he given these orders when a dispatch arrived from Rome, announcing the ratification by the emperor of the sentence pronounced upon Antipater. Thereupon the tyrant's desire for life instantly returned, but a paroxysm of racking pain coming on, he called for an apple and a knife, and in an unguarded moment tried to stab himself. His cousin Achiab stayed his hand, and Antipater, hearing the clamour from a neighbouring apartment, and thinking his father was dead, made a determined effort to escape by bribing his guards. No sooner did Herod hear of this, than, though almost insensible, he raised himself on his elbow, and ordered one of the spearmen to dispatch his son on the spot. Thus Antipater paid the penalty of his life of treachery and hypocrisy. Herod now once more amended his will, nominating his eldest son Archelaus as his successor on the throne, and appointing Herod Antipas tetrarch of Galilee and Perœa; Herod Philip, tetrarch of Auranitis, Trachonitis and Batanæa; and Salome mistress of Jamnia, Azotus, and some other towns.

Five days more of excruciating agony remained for the miserable monarch, and then, "choking as it were with blood, devising massacres in its very delirium, the soul of Herod passed forth into the night." Archelaus at once assumed the direction of affairs at Jerusalem, and proceeded to give his father a magnificent funeral. First, clad in armour, advanced a numerous force of troops, with their generals and officers; then followed five hundred of Herod's domestics and freedmen, bearing aromatic spices. Next came the body, covered with purple, with a diadem on the head, and a sceptre in the right hand, and lying on a bier of gold studded with precious stones. After the bier, which was surrounded by Herod's sons and relatives, came his body-guard; then his foreign mercenaries, men from Thrace, Germany, and Gaul, "whose stalwart and ruddy persons were at this time familiar in Jerusalem." In this order the procession advanced slowly from Jericho to Herodium, not far from Tekōa, a distance of about twenty-five miles, where the late monarch had erected a fortress. Here, in the tower-crowned citadel to which he had given his name, and not far from the spot where He was born whom the Idumean king had sought to cut off with the innocents of Bethlehem, Herod was buried.

CHAP. I.

1 The creation of heaven and earth. 14 Of the sun, moon, and stars. 26 Of man in the image of God. 29 Also the appointment of food.

IN the [a]beginning [b]God created the heaven and the earth.

2 And the earth was without form, and void; and darkness was upon the face of the deep: [c]and the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters.

3 ¶ [d]And God said, [e]Let there be light: and there was light.

4 And God saw the light, that it was good: and God divided †the light from the darkness.

5 And God called the light [f]Day, and the darkness he called Night: †and the evening and the morning were the first day.

6 ¶ And God said, [g]Let there be a †firmament in the midst of the waters: and let it divide the waters from the waters.

7 And God made the firmament, [h]and divided the waters which were under the firmament from the waters which were [i]above the firmament: and it was so.

8 And God called the firmament Heaven: and the evening and the morning were the second day.

9 ¶ And God said, [k]Let the waters under the heaven be gathered together unto one place, and let the dry land appear: and it was so.

10 And God called the dry land Earth; and the gathering together of the waters called he Seas: and God saw that it was good.

11 And God said, Let the earth [l]bring forth †grass, the herb yielding seed, and the fruit-tree yielding [m]fruit after his kind, whose seed is in itself, upon the earth: and it was so.

12 And the earth brought forth grass, and herb yielding seed after his kind, and the tree yielding fruit, whose seed was in itself, after his kind: and God saw that it was good.

13 And the evening and the morning were the third day.

14 ¶ And God said, Let there be [n]lights in the firmament of the heaven, to divide †the day from the night; and let them be for signs, and [o]for seasons, and for days, and years.

15 And let them be for lights in the firmament of the heaven to give light upon the earth: and it was so.

16 And God [p]made two great lights; the greater light †to rule the day, and [q]the lesser light to rule the night: he made [r]the stars also.

17 And God set them in the firmament of the heaven to give light upon the earth,

18 And to [s]rule over the day, and over the night, and to divide the light from the darkness: and God saw that it was good.

19 And the evening and the morning were the fourth day.

20 ¶ And God said, Let the waters bring forth abundantly the ‖ moving creature that hath †life, and †fowl that may fly above the earth in the †open firmament of heaven.

21 And [u]God created great whales, and every living creature that moveth, which the waters brought forth abundantly after their kind, and every winged fowl after his kind: and God saw that it was good.

22 And God blessed them, saying, [w]Be fruitful and multiply, and fill the waters in the seas, and let fowl multiply in the earth.

23 And the evening and the morning were the fifth day.

24 ¶ And God said, Let the earth bring forth the living creature after his kind, cattle, and creeping thing, and beast of the earth after his kind: and it was so.

25 And God made the beast of the earth after his kind, and cattle after their kind, and every thing that creepeth upon the earth after his kind: and God saw that it was good.

26 ¶ And God said, [x]Let us make man in our image, after our likeness: and [y]let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth.

27 So God created man in his own image, [z]in the image of God created he him; [a]male and female created he them.

28 And God blessed them, and God said unto them, [b]Be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth, and subdue it: and have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over every living thing that †moveth upon the earth.

29 ¶ And God said, Behold, I have given you every herb †bearing seed, which is upon the face of all the earth, and every tree, in the which is the fruit of a tree yielding seed; [c]to you it shall be for meat.

30 And to [d]every beast of the earth, and to every [e]fowl of the air, and to every thing that creepeth upon the earth, wherein there is †life, I have given every green herb for meat: and it was so.

31 And [f]God saw every thing that he had made: and behold, it was very good. And the evening and the morning were the sixth day.

CHAP. II.

1 The first sabbath. 4 The manner of the creation. 19, 20 The naming of the creatures. 21 The making of woman, and institution of marriage.

THUS the heavens and the earth were finished, and [a] all the host of them.

2 [b] And on the seventh day God ended his work which he had made; and he rested on the seventh day from all his work which he had made.

3 And God [c] blessed the seventh day, and sanctified it: because that in it he had rested from all his work which God †created and made.

4 ¶ [d] These are the generations of the heavens and of the earth when they were created, in the day that the LORD God made the earth and the heavens,

5 And every [e] plant of the field before it was in the earth, and every herb of the field before it grew: for the LORD God had not [f] caused it to rain upon the earth, and there was not a man [g] to till the ground.

6 But ‖there went up a mist from the earth, and watered the whole face of the ground.

7 And the LORD God formed man †of the [h] dust of the ground, and [i] breathed into his [k] nostrils the breath of life; and [l] man became a living soul.

8 ¶And the LORD God planted [m] a garden [n] eastward in [o] Eden; and there [p] he put the man whom he had formed.

9 And out of the ground made the LORD God to grow [q] every tree that is pleasant to the sight, and good for food; [r] the tree of life also in the midst of the garden, [s] and the tree of knowledge of good and evil.

10 ¶And a river went out of Eden to water the garden: and from thence it was parted, and became into four heads.

11 The name of the first is Pison: that is it which compasseth [t] the whole land of Havilah, where there is gold;

12 And the gold of that land is good: [w] there is bdellium and the onyx-stone.

13 And the name of the second river is Gihon: the same is it that compasseth the whole land of †Ethiopia.

14 And the name of the third river is [x] Hiddekel: that is it which goeth ‖toward the east of Assyria. And the fourth river is Euphrates.

15 ¶And the LORD God took ‖the man, and [y] put him into the garden of Eden, to dress it, and to keep it.

16 And the LORD God commanded the man, saying, Of every tree of the garden †thou mayest freely eat:

17 [z] But of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, [a] thou shalt not eat of it: for in the day that thou eatest thereof [b] †thou shalt surely die.

18 ¶And the LORD God said, It is not good that the man should be alone: [c] I will make him an help †meet for him.

19 [e] And out of the ground the LORD God formed every beast of the field, and every fowl of the air, and [j] brought them unto ‖Adam to see what he would call them; and whatsoever Adam called every living creature, that was the name thereof.

20 And Adam †gave names to all cattle, and to the fowl of the air, and to every beast of the field: but for Adam there was not found an help meet for him.

21 ¶And the LORD God caused a [g] deep sleep to fall upon Adam, and he slept; and he took one of his ribs, and closed up the flesh instead thereof:

22 And the rib, which the LORD God had taken from man, †made he a woman, and [h] brought her unto the man.

23 And Adam said, This is now †bone of my bones, and flesh of my flesh: she shall be called †Woman, because she was [k] taken out of †man.

24 [l] Therefore shall a man leave his father and his mother, and shall cleave unto his wife: and they shall be one flesh.

25 [m] And they were both naked, the man and his wife, and were not [n] ashamed.

CHAP. III.

1 The serpent deceiveth Eve. 6 Man's shameful fall. 16 The punishment of mankind. 22 Their casting out of paradise.

NOW [a] the serpent was [b] more subtile than any beast of the field which the LORD God had made: and he said unto the woman, †Yea, hath God said, Ye shall not eat of every tree of the garden?

2 And the woman said unto the serpent, We may eat of the fruit of the trees of the garden:

3 [c] But of the fruit of the tree which is in the midst of the garden, God hath said, Ye shall not eat of it, neither shall ye touch it, lest ye die.

4 [d] And the serpent said unto the woman, Ye shall not surely die:

5 For God doth know, that in the day ye eat thereof, then [e] your eyes shall be opened; and ye shall be as gods, knowing good and evil.

6 ¶And when the woman saw that the tree was good for food, and that it was †pleasant to the eyes, and a tree to be desired to make one wise; she took of the fruit thereof, [f] and did eat; and gave also unto her husband with her, [g] and he did eat.

7 And [h] the eyes of them both were opened, [i] and they knew that they were naked: and they sewed fig-leaves together, and made themselves ‖aprons.

8 And they heard [k] the voice of the LORD God walking in the garden in the †cool of the day: and Adam and his wife [l] hid themselves from the presence of the LORD God amongst the trees of the garden.

9 ¶And the LORD God called unto Adam, and said unto him, Where art thou?

10 And he said, I heard thy voice in the garden: [m] and I was afraid, because I was naked; and I hid myself.

11 And he said, Who told thee that thou wast naked? Hast thou eaten of the tree whereof I commanded thee, that thou shouldest not eat?

12 And the man said, [n] The woman whom thou gavest to be with me, she gave me of the tree, and I did eat.

13 And the LORD God said unto the woman, What is this that thou hast done? And the woman said, [o] The serpent beguiled me, and I did eat.

14 ¶And the LORD God said [p] unto the serpent, Because thou hast done this, thou art cursed above all cattle, and above every beast of the field: upon thy belly shalt thou go, and [q] dust shalt thou eat all the days of thy life:

15 And I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between [r] thy seed and [s] her seed: [t] it shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise his heel.

16 Unto the woman he said, I will greatly multiply thy sorrow and thy conception; [u] in sorrow thou shalt bring forth children: [w] and thy desire shall be ‖ to thy husband, and he shall [x] rule over thee.

17 And unto Adam he said, [y] Because thou hast hearkened unto the voice of thy wife, [z] and hast eaten of the tree [a] of which I commanded thee, saying, Thou shalt not eat of it: [b] cursed is the ground for thy sake; [c] in sorrow shalt thou eat of it all the days of thy life;

20 And Adam called his wife's name † ‖Eve, because she was the mother of all living.

21 Unto Adam also and to his wife did the LORD God make coats of skins, and clothed them.

22 ¶And the LORD God said, [i]Behold, the man is become as one of us, to know good and evil: and now, lest he put forth his hand, [k]and take also of the tree of life, and eat, and live for ever:

23 Therefore the LORD God sent him forth from the garden of Eden, [l]to till the ground from whence he was taken.

24 So he drove out the man: and he placed [m]at the east of the garden of Eden [n]Cherubims, and a flaming sword which turned every way, to keep the way of the tree of life.

CHAP. IV.

1 The birth, trade, and religion of Cain and Abel. 8 The murder of Abel. 11 The curse of Cain.

AND Adam knew Eve his wife; and she conceived, and bare ‖Cain, and said, I have gotten a man from the LORD.

2 And she again bare his brother †Abel: and Abel was †a keeper of sheep, but Cain was [a]a tiller of the ground.

3 And †in process of time it came to pass, that Cain brought [b]of the fruit of the ground an offering unto the LORD.

4 And Abel, he also brought of [c]the firstlings of his †flock, and of the fat thereof. And the LORD had [d]respect unto Abel, and to his offering:

5 But unto Cain, and to his offering, he had not respect: and Cain was very wroth, [e]and his countenance fell.

6 And the LORD said unto Cain, Why art thou wroth? and why is thy countenance fallen?

7 If thou doest well, shalt thou not ‖be accepted? and if thou doest not well, sin lieth at the door: and ‖unto thee shall be his desire, and thou shalt rule over him.

8 And Cain talked with Abel his brother: and it came to pass when they were in the field, that Cain rose up against Abel his brother, and [f]slew him.

9 ¶And the LORD said unto Cain, [g]Where is Abel thy brother? And he said, [h]I know not: Am I my brother's keeper?

10 And he said, What hast thou done? the voice of thy brother's †blood [i]crieth unto me from the ground.

11 And now art thou cursed from the earth, which hath opened her mouth to receive thy brother's blood from thy hand.

12 When thou tillest the ground, it shall not henceforth yield unto thee her strength: A fugitive and a vagabond shalt thou be in the earth.

13 And Cain said unto the LORD, ‖My punishment is greater than I can bear.

14 [k]Behold, thou hast driven me out this day from the face of the earth; and [l]from thy face shall I be hid; and I shall be a fugitive and a vagabond in the earth; and it shall come to pass, [m]that every one that findeth me shall slay me.

15 And the LORD said unto him, Therefore whosoever slayeth Cain, vengeance shall be taken on him [n]seven-fold. And the LORD [o]set a mark upon Cain, lest any finding him should kill him.

w 1 Kings 18. 24. Ps. 116. 17. Joel 2. 32. Zeph. 3. 9. 1 Cor. 1. 2.

16 ¶And Cain [p]went out from the presence of the LORD, and dwelt in the land of Nod, on the east of Eden.

17 And Cain knew his wife, and she conceived, and bare †Enoch: and he builded a city, [q]and called the name of the city after the name of his son, Enoch.

18 And unto Enoch was born Irad: and Irad begat Mehujael: and Mehujael begat Methusael: and Methusael begat †Lamech.

19 ¶And Lamech took unto him two wives: the name of the one was Adah, and the name of the other Zillah.

20 And Adah bare Jabal: he was the father of such as dwell in tents, and of such as have cattle.

21 And his brother's name was Jubal: he was the [r]father of all such as handle the harp and organ.

22 And Zillah, she also bare Tubal-cain, an †instructor of every artificer in brass and iron: and the sister of Tubal-cain was Naamah.

23 And Lamech said unto his wives, Adah and Zillah, Hear my voice, ye wives of Lamech, hearken unto my speech: for ‖I have slain a man to my wounding, and a young man ‖to my hurt.

24 [s]If Cain shall be avenged seven-fold, truly Lamech seventy and seven-fold.

25 ¶And Adam knew his wife again, and she bare a son, and [t]called his name † ‖Seth: For God, said she, hath appointed me another seed instead of Abel, whom Cain slew.

26 And to Seth, [u]to him also there was born a son; and he called his name †Enos: then began men ‖[w]to call upon the name of the LORD.

CHAP. V.

1 The genealogy, age, and death of the patriarchs from Adam unto Noah. 24 The godliness and translation of Enoch.

THIS is the [a]book of the generations of Adam: In the day that God created man, in [b]the likeness of God made he him:

2 [c]Male and female created he them; and blessed them, and called their name Adam, in the day when they were created.

3 And Adam lived an hundred and thirty years, and begat a son in his own likeness, after his image; and [d]called his name Seth:

4 [e]And the days of Adam after he had begotten Seth were eight hundred years: [f]and he begat sons and daughters:

5 And all the days that Adam lived were nine hundred and thirty years: [g]and he died.

6 And Seth lived an hundred and five years, and [h]begat Enos:

7 And Seth lived after he begat Enos eight hundred and seven years, and begat sons and daughters:

8 And all the days of Seth were nine hundred and twelve years; and he died.

9 ¶And Enos lived ninety years, and begat †Cainan:

10 And Enos lived after he begat Cainan eight hundred and fifteen years, and begat sons and daughters:

11 And all the days of Enos were nine hundred and five years; and he died.

12 ¶And Cainan lived seventy years, and begat †Mahalaleel:

13 And Cainan lived after he begat Mahalaleel eight hundred and forty years, and begat sons and daughters:

14 And all the days of Cainan were nine hundred and ten years; and he died.

15 ¶And Mahalaleel lived sixty and five years, and begat †Jared:

19 And Jared lived after he begat Enoch eight hundred years, and begat sons and daughters:

20 And all the days of Jared were nine hundred sixty and two years; and he died.

21 ¶And Enoch lived sixty and five years, and begat †Methuselah:

22 And Enoch [k]walked with God after he begat Methuselah three hundred years, and begat sons and daughters:

23 And all the days of Enoch were three hundred sixty and five years:

24 And [l]Enoch walked with God, and he was not: for God took him.

25 And Methuselah lived an hundred eighty and seven years, and begat †Lamech:

26 And Methuselah lived after he begat Lamech seven hundred eighty and two years, and begat sons and daughters:

27 And all the days of Methuselah were nine hundred sixty and nine years; and he died.

28 ¶And Lamech lived an hundred eighty and two years, and begat a son:

29 And he called his name †‖Noah, saying, This same shall comfort us concerning our work and toil of our hands, because of the ground [m]which the LORD hath cursed.

30 And Lamech lived after he begat Noah five hundred ninety and five years, and begat sons and daughters:

31 And all the days of Lamech were seven hundred seventy and seven years: and he died.

32 ¶And Noah was five hundred years old: and Noah begat [n]Shem, Ham, [o]and Japheth.

CHAP. VI.

1 The wickedness of the world, which provoked God's wrath, and caused the flood. 14 The order and form of the ark.

AND it came to pass, [a]when men began to multiply on the face of the earth, and daughters were born unto them,

2 That the sons of God saw the daughters of men that they were fair; and they [b]took them wives of all which they chose.

3 And the LORD said, [c]My Spirit shall not always strive with man, [d]for that he also is flesh: yet his days shall be an hundred and twenty years.

4 There were giants in the earth in those days; and also after that, when the sons of God came in unto the daughters of men, and they bare children to them: the same became mighty men, which were of old, men of renown.

5 ¶And God saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and that ‖every [e]imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil †continually.

6 And [f]it repented the LORD that he had made man on the earth, and it [g]grieved him at his heart.

7 And the LORD said, I will destroy man whom I have created from the face of the earth; †both man and beast, and the creeping thing, and the fowls of the air; for it repenteth me that I have made them.

8 But Noah [h]found grace in the eyes of the LORD.

9 ¶These are the generations of Noah: [i]Noah was a just man, and ‖perfect in his generations, and Noah [k]walked with God.

10 And Noah begat three sons, [l]Shem, Ham, and Japheth.

11 The earth also was corrupt [m]before God; and the earth was [n]filled with violence.

12 And God [o]looked upon the earth, and behold, it was corrupt: for all flesh had corrupted his way upon the earth.

13 And God said unto Noah, [p]The end of all flesh is come before me; for the earth is filled with violence through them: [q]and behold, I will destroy them ‖with the earth.

14 ¶Make thee an ark of gopher-wood: †rooms shalt thou make in the ark, and shalt pitch it within and without with pitch.

15 And this is the fashion which thou shalt make it of: The length of the ark shall be three hundred cubits, the breadth of it fifty cubits, and the height of it thirty cubits.

16 A window shalt thou make to the ark, and in a cubit shalt thou finish it above; and the door of the ark shalt thou set in the side thereof: with lower, second, and third stories shalt thou make it.

17 [r]And behold, I, even I, do bring a flood of waters upon the earth, to destroy all flesh, wherein is the breath of life, from under heaven: and every thing that is in the earth shall die.

18 But with thee will I establish my covenant: and [s]thou shalt come into the ark, thou, and thy sons, and thy wife, and thy sons' wives with thee.

19 And of every living thing of all flesh, [t]two of every sort shalt thou bring into the ark, to keep them alive with thee: they shall be male and female.

20 Of fowls after their kind, and of cattle after their kind, of every creeping thing of the earth after his kind; two of every sort [u]shall come unto thee, to keep them alive.

21 And take thou unto thee of all food that is eaten, and thou shalt gather it to thee; and it shall be for food for thee, and for them.

22 [w]Thus did Noah; [x]according to all that God commanded him, so did he.

CHAP. VII.

1 Noah, with his family, and the living creatures, enter the ark. 17 The beginning and continuance of the flood.

AND the LORD said unto Noah, [a]Come thou and all thy house into the ark: for [b]thee have I seen righteous before me in this generation.

2 Of every [c]clean beast thou shalt take to thee by †sevens, the male and his female: [d]and of beasts that are not clean by two, the male and his female.

3 Of fowls also of the air by sevens, the male and the female; to keep seed alive upon the face of all the earth.

4 For yet seven days, and I will cause it to rain upon the earth [e]forty days and forty nights: and every living substance that I have made will I †destroy from off the face of the earth.

5 [f]And Noah did according unto all that the LORD commanded him.

6 And Noah was six hundred years old when the flood of waters was upon the earth.

7 ¶[g]And Noah went in, and his sons, and his wife, and his sons' wives with him, into the ark, because of the waters of the flood.

8 Of clean beasts, and of beasts that are not clean, and of fowls, and of every thing that creepeth upon the earth,

9 There went in two and two unto Noah into the ark, the male and the female, as God had commanded Noah.

10 And it came to pass, ‖ after seven days, that the waters of the flood were upon the earth.

11 ¶ In the six hundredth year of Noah's life, in the second month, the seventeenth day of the month, the same day were all [h] the fountains of the great deep broken up, and ‖ [i] the windows of heaven were opened.

12 [k] And the rain was upon the earth forty days and forty nights.

13 In the self-same day [l] entered Noah, and Shem, and Ham, and Japheth, the sons of Noah, and Noah's wife, and the three wives of his sons with them, into the ark:

14 [m] They, and every beast after his kind, and all the cattle after their kind, and every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth after his kind, and every fowl after his kind, every bird of every † sort.

15 And they [n] went in unto Noah into the ark, two and two of all flesh, wherein is the breath of life.

16 And they that went in, went in male and female of all flesh, [o] as God had commanded him: and the LORD shut him in.

17 [p] And the flood was forty days upon the earth: and the waters increased, and bare up the ark, and it was lift up above the earth.

18 And the waters prevailed, and were increased greatly upon the earth: [q] and the ark went upon the face of the waters.

19 And the waters prevailed exceedingly upon the earth: [r] and all the high hills that were under the whole heaven were covered.

20 Fifteen cubits upward did the waters prevail: and the mountains were covered.

21 [s] And all flesh died that moved upon the earth, both of fowl, and of cattle, and of beast, and of every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth, and every man:

22 All in [t] whose nostrils was † the breath of life, of all that was in the dry land, died.

23 And every living substance was destroyed which was upon the face of the ground, both man, and cattle, and the creeping things, and the fowl of the heaven; and they were destroyed from the earth; and [u] Noah only remained alive, and they that were with him in the ark.

24 [w] And the waters prevailed upon the earth an hundred and fifty days.

CHAP. VIII.

1 The waters assuage. 4 The ark resteth on Ararat. 18 Noah goeth forth of the ark. 20 He buildeth an altar, and offereth sacrifice.

AND God [a] remembered Noah, and every living thing, and all the cattle that was with him in the ark: [b] and God made a wind to pass over the earth, and the waters assuaged.

2 [c] The fountains also of the deep, and the windows of heaven were stopped, and [d] the rain from heaven was restrained.

3 And the waters returned from off the earth † continually: and after the end [e] of the hundred and fifty days the waters were abated.

4 ¶ And the ark rested in the seventh month, on the seventeenth day of the month, upon the mountains of Ararat.

5 And the waters † decreased continually, until the tenth month: in the tenth month, on the first day of the month, were the tops of the mountains seen.

6 ¶ And it came to pass at the end of forty days, that Noah opened [f] the window of the ark which he had made:

7 And he sent forth a raven, which went forth † to and fro, until the waters were dried up from off the earth.

8 Also he sent forth a dove from him, to see if the waters were abated from off the face of the ground.

9 But the dove found no rest for the sole of her foot, and she returned unto him into the ark; for the waters were on the face of the whole earth. Then he put forth his hand, and took her, and † pulled her in unto him into the ark.

10 And he stayed yet other seven days; and again he sent forth the dove out of the ark.

11 And the dove came into him in the evening, and lo, in her mouth was an olive-leaf pluckt off. So Noah knew that the waters were abated from off the earth.

12 And he stayed yet other seven days, and sent forth the dove; which returned not again unto him any more.

13 ¶ And it came to pass in the six hundredth and first year, in the first month, the first day of the month, the waters were dried up from off the earth: and Noah removed the covering of the ark, and looked, and behold, the face of the ground was dry.

14 And in the second month, on the seven and twentieth day of the month, was the earth dried.

15 ¶ And God spake unto Noah, saying,

16 Go forth of the ark, [g] thou, and thy wife, and thy sons, and thy sons' wives with thee.

17 Bring forth with thee [h] every living thing that is with thee, of all flesh, both of fowl, and of cattle, and of every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth; that they may breed abundantly in the earth, and [i] be fruitful, and multiply upon the earth.

18 And Noah went forth, and his sons, and his wife, and his sons' wives with him:

19 Every beast, every creeping thing, and every fowl, and whatsoever creepeth upon the earth, after their † kinds, went forth out of the ark.

20 ¶ And Noah builded an altar unto the LORD, and took of [k] every clean beast, and of every clean fowl, and offered burnt-offerings on the altar.

21 And the LORD smelled [l] a † sweet savour; and the LORD said in his heart, I will not again [m] curse the ground any more for man's sake; ‖ for the [n] imagination of man's heart is evil from his youth: [o] neither will I again smite any more every thing living, as I have done.

22 [p] † While the earth remaineth, seed-time and harvest, and cold and heat, and summer and winter, and [q] day and night, shall not cease.

CHAP. IX.

1 God blesseth Noah. 4 Blood and murder are forbidden. 8 God's covenant, 13 signified by the rainbow. 18 Noah replenisheth the world, 21 is drunken, and mocked of his son, 25 curseth Canaan, 29 and dieth.

AND God blessed Noah and his sons, and said unto them, [a] Be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth.

2 [b] And the fear of you, and the dread of you, shall be upon every beast of the earth, and upon every fowl of the air, upon all that moveth upon the earth, and upon all the fishes of the sea; into your hand are they delivered.

3 [c] Every moving thing that liveth shall be meat for you; even as the [d] green herb have I given you [e] all things.

6 [k]Whoso sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed: [l]for in the image of God made he man.

7 And you, [m]be ye fruitful, and multiply; bring forth abundantly in the earth, and multiply therein.

8 ¶And God spake unto Noah, and to his sons with him, saying,

9 And I, [n]behold, I establish [o]my covenant with you, and with your seed after you;

10 [p]And with every living creature that is with you, of the fowl, of the cattle, and of every beast of the earth with you, from all that go out of the ark, to every beast of the earth.

11 And [q]I will establish my covenant with you; neither shall all flesh be cut off any more by the waters of a flood; neither shall there any more be a flood to destroy the earth.

12 And God said, [r]This is the token of the covenant which I make between me and you, and every living creature that is with you, for perpetual generations.

13 I do set [s]my bow in the cloud, and it shall be for a token of a covenant between me and the earth.

14 And it shall come to pass, when I bring a cloud over the earth, that the bow shall be seen in the cloud:

15 And [u]I will remember my covenant, which is between me and you, and every living creature of all flesh; and the waters shall no more become a flood to destroy all flesh.

16 And the bow shall be in the cloud; and I will look upon it, that I may remember [w]the everlasting covenant between God and every living creature of all flesh that is upon the earth.

17 And God said unto Noah, This is the token of the covenant which I have established between me and all flesh that is upon the earth.

18 ¶And the sons of Noah that went forth of the ark, were Shem, and Ham, and Japheth: [x]and Ham is the father of †Canaan.

19 [y]These are the three sons of Noah: [z]and of them was the whole earth overspread.

20 And Noah began to be [a]a husbandman, and he planted a vineyard:

21 And he drank of the wine, [b]and was drunken; and he was uncovered within his tent.

22 And Ham, the father of Canaan, saw the nakedness of his father, and told his two brethren without.

23 [c]And Shem and Japheth took a garment, and laid it upon both their shoulders, and went backward, and covered the nakedness of their father: and their faces were backward, and they saw not their father's nakedness.

24 And Noah awoke from his wine, and knew what his younger son had done unto him.

25 And he said, [d]Cursed be Canaan: [e]a servant of servants shall he be unto his brethren.

26 And he said, [f]Blessed be the LORD God of Shem; and Canaan shall be ‖his servant.

27 God shall ‖enlarge Japheth, [g]and he shall dwell in the tents of Shem; and Canaan shall be his servant.

28 ¶And Noah lived after the flood three hundred and fifty years.

29 And all the days of Noah were nine hundred and fifty years: and he died.

CHAP. X.

1 The generations of Noah. 8 Nimrod the first monarch.

NOW these are the generations of the sons of Noah; Shem, Ham, and Japheth: [a]and unto them were sons born after the flood.

2 [b]The sons of Japheth; Gomer, and Magog, and Madai, and Javan, and Tubal, and Meshech, and Tiras.

3 And the sons of Gomer; Ashkenaz, and Riphath, and Togarmah.

4 And the sons of Javan; Elishah, and Tarshish, Kittim, and ‖Dodanim.

5 By these were [c]the isles of the Gentiles divided in their lands; every one after his tongue, after their families, in their nations.

6 ¶[d]And the sons of Ham; Cush, and Mizraim, and Phut, and Canaan.

7 And the sons of Cush; Seba, and Havilah, and Sabtah, and Raamah, and Sabtecha; and the sons of Raamah; Sheba, and Dedan.

8 And Cush begat Nimrod: he began to be a mighty one in the earth.

9 He was a mighty [e]hunter [f]before the LORD: wherefore it is said, Even as Nimrod the mighty hunter before the LORD.

10 [g]And the beginning of his kingdom was †Babel, and Erech, and Accad, and Calneh, in the land of Shinar.

11 Out of that land ‖went forth Asshur, and builded Nineveh, and ‖the city Rehoboth, and Calah, 12 And Resen between Nineveh and Calah: the same is a great city.

13 And Mizraim begat Ludim, and Anamim, and Lehabim, and Naphtuhim,

14 And Pathrusim, and Casluhim, ([h]out of whom came Philistim,) and Caphtorim.

15 ¶And Canaan begat †Sidon his first-born, and Heth,

16 And the Jebusite, and the Amorite, and the Girgasite,

17 And the Hivite, and the Arkite, and the Sinite,

18 And the Arvadite, and the Zemarite, and the Hamathite: and afterward were the families of the Canaanites spread abroad.

19 [i]And the border of the Canaanites was from Sidon, as thou comest to Gerar, unto †Gaza; as thou goest unto Sodom and Gomorrah, and Admah, and Zeboim, even unto Lasha.

20 These are the sons of Ham, after their families, after their tongues, in their countries, and in their nations.

21 ¶Unto Shem also, the father of all the children of Eber, the brother of Japheth the elder, even to him were children born.

22 The [k]children of Shem; Elam, and Asshur, and †Arphaxad, and Lud, and Aram.

23 And the children of Aram; Uz, and Hul, and Gether, and Mash.

24 And Arphaxad begat †[l]Salah; and Salah begat Eber.

25 [m]And unto Eber were born two sons: the name of one was ‖Peleg, for in his days was the earth divided; and his brother's name was Joktan.

26 And Joktan begat Almodad, and Sheleph, and Hazarmaveth, and Jerah,

27 And Hadoram, and Uzal, and Diklah,

28 And Obal, and Abimael, and Sheba,

29 And Ophir, and Havilah, and Jobab: all these were the sons of Joktan.

30 And their dwelling was from Mesha, as thou goest unto Sephar, a mount of the east.

31 These are the sons of Shem, after their families, after their tongues, in their lands, after their nations.

32 [m]These are the families of the sons of Noah, after their generations, in their nations: [o]and by these were the nations divided in the earth after the flood.

CHAP. XI.

1 One language in the world. 3 The building of Babel. 5 The confusion of tongues.

AND the whole earth was of one †language, and of one †speech.

2 And it came to pass, as they journeyed ‖from the east, that they found a plain in the land of Shinar; and they dwelt there.

3 And †they said one to another, Go to, let us make brick, and †burn them thoroughly. And they had brick for stone, and slime had they for mortar.

4 And they said, Go to, let us build us a city, and a tower, [a]whose top may reach unto heaven; and let us make us a name, lest we be scattered abroad upon the face of the whole earth.

5 [b]And the LORD came down to see the city and the tower, which the children of men builded.

6 And the LORD said, Behold, [c]the people is one, and they have all [d]one language; and this they begin to do: and now nothing will be restrained from them, which they have [e]imagined to do.

7 Go to, [f]let us go down, and there confound their language, that they may [g]not understand one another's speech.

8 So [h]the LORD scattered them abroad from thence [i]upon the face of all the earth: and they left off to build the city.

9 Therefore is the name of it called ‖Babel, [k]because the LORD did there confound the language of all the earth: and from thence did the LORD scatter them abroad upon the face of all the earth.

10 ¶ [l]These are the generations of Shem: Shem was an hundred years old, and begat Arphaxad two years after the flood:

11 And Shem lived after he begat Arphaxad five hundred years, and begat sons and daughters.

12 And Arphaxad lived five and thirty years, [m]and begat Salah:

13 And Arphaxad lived after he begat Salah four hundred and three years, and begat sons and daughters.

14 And Salah lived thirty years, and begat Eber:

15 And Salah lived after he begat Eber four hundred and three years, and begat sons and daughters.

16 [n]And Eber lived four and thirty years, and begat [o]Peleg:

17 And Eber lived after he begat Peleg four hundred and thirty years, and begat sons and daughters.

18 And Peleg lived thirty years, and begat Reu:

19 And Peleg lived after he begat Reu two hundred and nine years, and begat sons and daughters.

20 And Reu lived two and thirty years, and begat [p]Serug:

21 And Reu lived after he begat Serug two hundred and seven years, and begat sons and daughters.

22 And Serug lived thirty years, and begat Nahor:

23 And Serug lived after he begat Nahor two hundred years, and begat sons and daughters.

24 And Nahor lived nine and twenty years, and begat [q]Terah:

25 And Nahor lived after he begat Terah an hundred and nineteen years, and begat sons and daughters.

26 And Terah lived seventy years, and [r]begat Abram, Nahor, and Haran.

27 ¶ Now these are the generations of Terah: Terah begat Abram, Nahor, and Haran: and Haran begat Lot.

28 And Haran died before his father Terah in the land of his nativity, in Ur of the Chaldees.

29 And Abram and Nahor took them wives: the name of Abram's wife was [s]Sarai; and the name of Nahor's wife [t]Milcah, the daughter of Haran, the father of Milcah, and the father of Iscah.

30 But [u]Sarai was barren; she had no child.

31 And Terah [w]took Abram his son, and Lot the son of Haran his son's son, and Sarai his daughter-in-law, his son Abram's wife; and they went forth with them from [x]Ur of the Chaldees, to go into [y]the land of Canaan; and they came unto Haran, and dwelt there.

32 And the days of Terah were two hundred and five years: and Terah died in Haran.

CHAP. XII.

1 God calleth Abram, and blesseth him with the promise of Christ. 6 He journeyeth through Canaan. 10 He is driven by a famine into Egypt.

NOW the [a]LORD had said unto Abram, Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father's house, unto a land that I will shew thee:

2 [b]And I will make of thee a great nation, [c]and I will bless thee, and make thy name great; [d]and thou shalt be a blessing:

3 [e]And I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee: [f]and in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed.

4 So Abram departed, as the LORD had spoken unto him, and Lot went with him: and Abram was seventy and five years old when he departed out of Haran.

5 And Abram took Sarai his wife, and Lot his brother's son, and all their substance that they had gathered, and [g]the souls that they had gotten [h]in Haran; and they went forth to go into the land of Canaan; and into the land of Canaan they came.

6 ¶ And Abram [i]passed through the land unto the place of Sichem, [k]unto the plain of Moreh. [l]And the Canaanite was then in the land.

7 [m]And the LORD appeared unto Abram, and said, [n]Unto thy seed will I give this land: and there builded he an [o]altar unto the LORD, who appeared unto him.

8 And he removed from thence unto a mountain on the east of Beth-el, and pitched his tent, having Beth-el on the west, and Hai on the east: and there he builded an altar unto the LORD, and [p]called upon the name of the LORD.

9 And Abram journeyed, †[q]going on still toward the south.

10 ¶ And there was [r]a famine in the land: and [s]Abram went down into Egypt to sojourn there; for the famine was [t]grievous in the land.

11 And it came to pass, when he was come near to enter into Egypt, that he said unto Sarai his wife, Behold now, I know that thou art [u]a fair woman to look upon:

12 Therefore it shall come to pass, when the Egyptians shall see thee, that they shall say, This is his wife: and they [w]will kill me, but they will save thee alive.

13 [x]Say, I pray thee, thou art my sister: that it may be well with me for thy sake; and my soul shall live because of thee.

14 ¶And it came to pass, that when Abram was come into Egypt, the Egyptians [y] beheld the woman that she was very fair.

15 The princes also of Pharaoh saw her, and commended her before Pharaoh: and the woman was [z] taken into Pharaoh's house.

16 And he [a] entreated Abram well for her sake: and he had sheep, and oxen, and he-asses, and men-servants, and maid-servants, and she-asses, and camels.

17 And the LORD [b] plagued Pharaoh and his house with great plagues because of Sarai, Abram's wife.

18 And Pharaoh called Abram, and said, [c] What is this that thou hast done unto me? why didst thou not tell me that she was thy wife?

19 Why saidst thou, She is my sister? so I might have taken her to me to wife: now therefore behold thy wife, take her, and go thy way.

20 [d] And Pharaoh commanded his men concerning him: and they sent him away, and his wife, and all that he had.

CHAP. XIII.

1 Abram and Lot return out of Egypt. 14 God renewetb the promise to Abram. 18 He removeth to Hebron, and there buildeth an altar.

AND Abram went up out of Egypt, he, and his wife, and all that he had, and Lot with him, [a] into the south.

2 [b] And Abram was very rich in cattle, in silver, and in gold.

3 And he went on his journeys [c] from the south even to Beth-el, unto the place where his tent had been at the beginning, between Beth-el and Hai;

4 Unto the [d] place of the altar, which he had made there at the first: and there Abram [e] called on the name of the LORD.

5 ¶And Lot also, which went with Abram, had flocks, and herds, and tents.

6 And [f] the land was not able to bear them, that they might dwell together: for their substance was great, so that they could not dwell together.

7 And there was [g] a strife between the herdmen of Abram's cattle and the herdmen of Lot's cattle: [h] and the Canaanite and the Perizzite dwelled then in the land.

8 And Abram said unto Lot, [i] Let there be no strife, I pray thee, between me and thee, and between my herdmen and thy herdmen; for we be †brethren.

9 [k] Is not the whole land before thee? Separate thyself, I pray thee, from me: [l] if thou wilt take the left hand, then I will go to the right; or if thou depart to the right hand, then I will go to the left.

10 And Lot lifted up his eyes, and beheld all [m] the plain of Jordan, that it was well watered every where, before the LORD [n] destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah, [o] even as the garden of the LORD, like the land of Egypt, as thou comest unto [p] Zoar.

11 Then Lot chose him all the plain of Jordan; and Lot journeyed east: and they separated themselves the one from the other.

12 Abram dwelled in the land of Canaan, and Lot [q] dwelled in the cities of the plain, and [r] pitched his tent toward Sodom.

13 But the men of Sodom [s] were wicked, and [t] sinners before the LORD exceedingly.

14 ¶And the LORD said unto Abram, after that Lot [u] was separated from him, Lift up now thine eyes, and look from the place where thou art, [w] northward, and southward, and eastward, and westward:

15 For all the land which thou seest, [x] to thee will I give it, and [y] to thy seed for ever.

16 And [z] I will make thy seed as the dust of the earth: so that if a man can number the dust of the earth, then shall thy seed also be numbered.

17 Arise, walk through the land in the length of it and in the breadth of it; for I will give it unto thee.

18 Then Abram removed his tent, and came and [a] dwelt in the †plain of Mamre, [b] which is in Hebron, and built there an altar unto the LORD.

CHAP. XIV.

1 The battle of the kings. 12 Lot is taken prisoner. 18 Melchizedek blesseth Abram. 20 Abram giveth him tithe.

AND it came to pass, in the days of Amraphel king [a] of Shinar, Arioch king of Ellasar, Chedorlaomer king of [b] Elam, and Tidal king of nations;

2 That these made war with Bera king of Sodom, and with Birsha king of Gomorrah, Shinab king of [c] Admah, and Shemeber king of Zeboiim, and the king of Bela, which is [d] Zoar.

3 All these were joined together in the vale of Siddim, [e] which is the salt sea.

4 Twelve years [f] they served Chedorlaomer, and in the thirteenth year they rebelled.

5 And in the fourteenth year came Chedorlaomer, and the kings that were with him, and smote [g] the Rephaims [h] in Ashteroth Karnaim, and [i] the Zuzims in Ham, [k] and the Emims in ‖Shaveh Kiriathaim,

6 [l] And the Horites in their mount Seir, unto ‖El-paran, which is by the wilderness.

7 And they returned, and came to En-mishpat, which is Kadesh, and smote all the country of the Amalekites, and also the Amorites, that dwelt [m] in Hazezon-tamar.

8 And there went out the king of Sodom, and the king of Gomorrah, and the king of Admah, and the king of Zeboiim, and the king of Bela, (the same is Zoar;) and they joined battle with them in the vale of Siddim;

9 With Chedorlaomer the king of Elam, and with Tidal king of nations, and Amraphel king of Shinar, and Arioch king of Ellasar; four kings with five.

10 And the vale of Siddim was full of [n] slime-pits; and the kings of Sodom and Gomorrah fled, and fell there: and they that remained fled [o] to the mountain.

11 And they took [p] all the goods of Sodom and Gomorrah, and all their victuals, and went their way.

12 And they took Lot, Abram's [q] brother's son, [r] who dwelt in Sodom, and his goods, and departed.

13 ¶And there came one that had escaped, and told Abram the Hebrew; for [s] he dwelt in the plain of Mamre the Amorite, brother of Eshcol, and brother of Aner: [t] and these were confederate with Abram.

14 And when Abram heard that [u] his brother was taken captive, he ‖armed his ‖trained servants, [w] born in his own house, three hundred and eighteen, and pursued them [x] unto Dan.

15 And he divided himself against them, he and his servants, by night, and [y] smote them, and pursued them unto Hobah, which is on the left hand of Damascus.

16 And he brought back [z] all the goods, and also brought again his brother Lot, and his goods, and the women also, and the people.

17 ¶And the king of Sodom [a] went out to meet him, [b] (after his return from the slaughter of Chedorlaomer, and of the kings that were with him,) at the valley of Shaveh, which is the [c] king's dale.

[c] 2 Sam. 18. 18.

18 And [d]Melchizedek king of Salem brought forth bread and wine: and he was [e]the priest of [f]the most high God.

19 And he blessed him, and said, Blessed be Abram of the most high God, [g]possessor of heaven and earth:

20 And [h]blessed be the most high God, which hath delivered thine enemies into thy hand. And he gave him tithes [i]of all.

21 And the king of Sodom said unto Abram, Give me the †persons, and take the goods to thyself.

22 And Abram said to the king of Sodom, I [k]have lifted up my hand unto the LORD, the most high God, [l]the possessor of heaven and earth,

23 That [m]I will not take from a thread even to a shoe-latchet, and that I will not take any thing that is thine, lest thou shouldest say, I have made Abram rich:

24 Save only that which the young men have eaten, and the portion of the men [n]which went with me, Aner, Eshcol, and Mamre; let them take their portion.

CHAP. XV.

1 God encourageth Abram, 4 promiseth him a son, and a multiplying of his seed. 6 Abram is justified by faith. 7 Canaan is promised, and confirmed by a vision.

AFTER these things the word of the LORD came unto Abram [a]in a vision, saying, [b]Fear not, Abram: I am thy [c]shield, and thy exceeding [d]great reward.

2 And Abram said, Lord GOD, what wilt thou give me, [e]seeing I go childless, and the steward of my house is this Eliezer of Damascus?

3 And Abram said, Behold, to me thou hast given no seed: and lo, [f]one born in my house is mine heir.

4 And behold, the word of the LORD came unto him, saying, This shall not be thine heir; but he that [g]shall come forth out of thine own bowels shall be thine heir.

5 And he brought him forth abroad, and said, Look now toward heaven, and [h]tell the [i]stars, if thou be able to number them: and he said unto him, [k]So shall thy seed be.

6 And he [l]believed in the LORD; and he [m]counted it to him for righteousness.

7 And he said unto him, I am the LORD that [n]brought thee out of [o]Ur of the Chaldees, [p]to give thee this land to inherit it.

8 And he said, Lord GOD, [q]whereby shall I know that I shall inherit it?

9 And he said unto him, Take me a heifer of three years old, and a she-goat of three years old, and a ram of three years old, and a turtle-dove, and a young pigeon.

10 And he took unto him all these, and [r]divided them in the midst, and laid each piece one against another: but [s]the birds divided he not.

11 And when the fowls came down upon the carcasses, Abram drove them away.

12 And when the sun was going down, [t]a deep sleep fell upon Abram; and lo, a horror of great darkness fell upon him.

13 And he said unto Abram, Know of a surety [u]that thy seed shall be a stranger in a land that is not theirs, and shall serve them; and [w]they shall afflict them four hundred years;

14 And also that nation whom they shall serve, [x]will I judge: and afterward [y]shall they come out with great substance.

15 And [z]thou shalt go [a]to thy fathers in peace; [b]thou shalt be buried in a good old age.

16 But [c]in the fourth generation they shall come hither again: for the iniquity [d]of the Amorites [e]is not yet full.

17 And it came to pass, that when the sun went down, and it was dark, behold a smoking furnace, and †a burning lamp that [f]passed between those pieces.

18 In that same day the LORD [g]made a covenant with Abram, saying, [h]Unto thy seed have I given this land, from the river of Egypt unto the great river, the river Euphrates:

19 The Kenites, and the Kenizzites, and the Kadmonites,

20 And the Hittites, and the Perizzites, and the Rephaims,

21 And the Amorites, and the Canaanites, and the Girgashites, and the Jebusites.

CHAP. XVI.

1 Sarai being barren giveth Hagar to Abram. 15 Ishmael is born.

NOW Sarai, Abram's wife, [a]bare him no children: and she had an handmaid, [b]an Egyptian, whose name was [c]Hagar.

2 [d]And Sarai said unto Abram, Behold now, the LORD [e]hath restrained me from bearing: I pray [f]thee go in unto my maid; it may be that I may †obtain children by her. And Abram [g]hearkened to the voice of Sarai.

3 And Sarai, Abram's wife, took Hagar her maid the Egyptian, after Abram [h]had dwelt ten years in the land of Canaan, and gave her to her husband Abram to be his wife.

4 ¶And he went in unto Hagar, and she conceived: and when she saw that she had conceived, her mistress was [i]despised in her eyes.

5 And Sarai said unto Abram, My wrong be upon thee: I have given my maid into thy bosom; and when she saw that she had conceived, I was despised in her eyes: [k]the LORD judge between me and thee.

6 [l]But Abram said unto Sarai, [m]Behold, thy maid is in thy hand; do to her †as it pleaseth thee. And when Sarai †dealt hardly with her, [n]she fled from her face.

7 ¶And the Angel of the LORD found her by a fountain of water in the wilderness, [o]by the fountain in the way to [p]Shur.

8 And he said, Hagar, Sarai's maid, whence camest thou? and whither wilt thou go? And she said, I flee from the face of my mistress Sarai.

9 And the angel of the LORD said unto her, Return to thy mistress, and [q]submit thyself under her hands.

10 And the angel of the LORD said unto her, [r]I will multiply thy seed exceedingly, that it shall not be numbered for multitude.

11 And the Angel of the LORD said unto her, Behold, thou art with child, and shalt bear a son, [s]and shalt call his name ‖Ishmael; because the LORD hath heard thy affliction.

12 [t]And he will be a wild man; his hand will be against every man, and every man's hand against him; [u]and he shall dwell in the presence of all his brethren.

13 And she called the name of the LORD that spake unto her, Thou God seest me: for she said, Have I also here looked after him [x]that seeth me?

14 Wherefore the well was called [y]‖Beer-lahai-roi; behold, it is [z]between Kadesh and Bered.

15 ¶And [a]Hagar bare Abram a son; and Abram called his son's name, which Hagar bare, [b]Ishmael.

16 And Abram was fourscore and six years old, when Hagar bare Ishmael to Abram.

CHAP. XVII.

1 God reneweth the covenant. 10 Circumcision is instituted. 16 Isaac is promised. 23 Abraham and Ishmael are circumcised.

Before CHRIST 1910.

AND when Abram was ninety years old and nine, the LORD [a]appeared to Abram, and said unto him, [b]I am the Almighty God; [c]walk before me, and be thou ‖ [d]perfect.

2 And I will make my covenant between me and thee, and [e]will multiply thee exceedingly.

3 And Abram [f]fell on his face: and God talked with him, saying,

4 As for me, behold, my covenant is with thee, and thou shalt be [g]a father of †many nations.

5 Neither shall thy name any more be called Abram; but [h]thy name shall be ‖Abraham: [i]for a father of many nations have I made thee.

6 And I will make thee exceedingly fruitful, and I will make [k]nations of thee; and [l]kings shall come out of thee.

7 And I will [m]establish my covenant between me and thee, and thy seed after thee, in their generations, for an everlasting covenant; [n]to be a God unto thee, and to [o]thy seed after thee.

8 And [p]I will give unto thee, and to thy seed after thee, the land †[q]wherein thou art a stranger, all the land of Canaan, for an everlasting possession; and [r]I will be their God.

9 ¶And God said unto Abraham, Thou shalt keep my covenant therefore, thou, and thy seed after thee, in their generations.

10 This is my covenant, which ye shall keep, between me and you, and thy seed after thee; [s]Every man-child among you shall be circumcised.

11 And ye shall circumcise the flesh of your foreskin; and it shall be [t]a token of the covenant betwixt me and you.

12 And †he that is eight days old [u]shall be circumcised among you, every man-child in your generations, he that is born in the house, or bought with money of any stranger, which is not of thy seed.

13 He that is born in thy house, and he that is bought with thy money, must needs be circumcised: and my covenant shall be in your flesh for an everlasting covenant.

14 And the uncircumcised man-child, whose flesh of his foreskin is not circumcised, that soul [w]shall be cut off from his people; he hath broken my covenant.

15 ¶And God said unto Abraham, As for Sarai thy wife, thou shalt not call her name Sarai, but ‖Sarah shall her name be.

16 And I will bless her, [x]and give thee a son also of her: yea, I will bless her, and †she shall be a mother [y]of nations; kings of people shall be of her.

17 Then Abraham fell upon his face, [z]and laughed, and said in his heart, Shall a child be born unto him that is an hundred years old? and shall Sarah, that is ninety years old, bear?

18 And Abraham said unto God, O that Ishmael might live before thee!

19 And God said, [a]Sarah thy wife shall bear thee a son indeed; and thou shalt call his name Isaac: and I will establish my covenant with him for an everlasting covenant, and with his seed after him.

20 And as for Ishmael, I have heard thee: Behold, I have blessed him, and will make him fruitful, and [b]will multiply him exceedingly: [c]twelve princes shall he beget, [d]and I will make him a great nation.

Before CHRIST 1910.

21 But my covenant will I establish with Isaac, [e]which Sarah shall bear unto thee at this set time in the next year.

22 And he left off talking with him, and God went up from Abraham.

23 ¶And Abraham took Ishmael his son, and all that were born in his house, and all that were bought with his money, every male among the men of Abraham's house; and circumcised the flesh of their foreskin, in the self-same day, as God had said unto him.

24 And Abraham was ninety years old and nine, when he was circumcised in the flesh of his foreskin.

25 And Ishmael his son was thirteen years old, when he was circumcised in the flesh of his foreskin.

26 In the self-same day was Abraham circumcised, and Ishmael his son;

27 And [f]all the men of his house, born in the house, and bought with money of the stranger, were circumcised with him.

CHAP. XVIII.

1 Abraham entertaineth three angels. 17 The destruction of Sodom is revealed to Abraham.

1898.

AND the LORD appeared unto him in the [a]plains of Mamre: and he sat in the tent-door in the heat of the day;

2 [b]And he lifted up his eyes and looked, and lo, three men stood by him: [c]and when he saw them, he ran to meet them from the tent door, and bowed himself toward the ground,

3 And said, My Lord, if now I have found favour in thy sight, pass not away, I pray thee, from thy servant:

4 Let [d]a little water, I pray you, be fetched, and wash your feet, and rest yourselves under the tree:

5 And [e]I will fetch a morsel of bread, and †[f]comfort ye your hearts; after that ye shall pass on: [g]for therefore †are ye come to your servant. And they said, So do, as thou hast said.

6 And Abraham hastened into the tent unto Sarah, and said, †Make ready quickly three measures of fine meal, knead it, and make cakes upon the hearth.

7 And Abraham ran unto the herd, and fetched a calf tender and good, and gave it unto a young man; and he hasted to dress it.

8 And [h]he took butter, and milk, and the calf which he had dressed, and set it before them; and he stood by them under the tree, and they did eat.

9 ¶And they said unto him, Where is Sarah thy wife? And he said, Behold, [i]in the tent.

10 And he said, I [k]will certainly return unto thee [l]according to the time of life; and lo, [m]Sarah thy wife shall have a son. And Sarah heard it in the tent-door, which was behind him.

11 Now [n]Abraham and Sarah were old and well stricken in age; and it ceased to be with Sarah [o]after the manner of women.

12 Therefore Sarah [p]laughed within herself, saying, [q]After I am waxed old shall I have pleasure, my [r]lord being old also?

13 And the LORD said unto Abraham, Wherefore did Sarah laugh, saying, Shall I of a surety bear a child, which am old?

14 [s]Is any thing too hard for the LORD? [t]At the time appointed I will return unto thee, according to the time of life, and Sarah shall have a son.

15 Then Sarah denied, saying, I laughed not; for she was afraid. And he said, Nay; but thou didst laugh.

16 ¶And the men rose up from thence, and looked toward Sodom: and Abraham went with them [u] to bring them on the way.

17 And the LORD said, [w] Shall I hide from Abraham that thing which I do;

18 Seeing that Abraham shall surely become a great and mighty nation, and all the nations of the earth shall be [x] blessed in him?

19 For I know him, [y] that he will command his children and his household after him, and they shall keep the way of the LORD, to do justice and judgment; that the LORD may bring upon Abraham that which he hath spoken of him.

20 And the LORD said, Because [z] the cry of Sodom and Gomorrah is great, and because their sin is very grievous, 21 [a] I will go down now, and see whether they have done altogether according to the cry of it, which is come unto me; and if not, [b] I will know.

22 And the men turned their faces from thence, [c] and went toward Sodom: but Abraham [d] stood yet before the LORD.

23 ¶And Abraham [e] drew near, and said, [f] Wilt thou also destroy the righteous with the wicked?

24 [g] Peradventure there be fifty righteous within the city: wilt thou also destroy and not spare the place for the fifty righteous that are therein?

25 That be far from thee to do after this manner, to slay the righteous with the wicked; and [h] that the righteous should be as the wicked, that be far from thee: [i] Shall not the Judge of all the earth do right?

26 And the LORD said, [k] If I find in Sodom fifty righteous within the city, then I will spare all the place for their sakes.

27 And Abraham answered and said, [l] Behold now, I have taken upon me to speak unto the LORD, which am [m] but dust and ashes:

28 Peradventure there shall lack five of the fifty righteous: wilt thou destroy all the city for lack of five? And he said, If I find there forty and five, I will not destroy it.

29 And he spake unto him yet again, and said, Peradventure there shall be forty found there. And he said, I will not do it for forty's sake.

30 And he said unto him, Oh, let not the LORD be angry, and I will speak: Peradventure there shall thirty be found there. And he said, I will not do it if I find thirty there.

31 And he said, Behold now, I have taken upon me to speak unto the LORD: Peradventure there shall be twenty found there. And he said, I will not destroy it for twenty's sake.

32 And he said, [n] Oh, let not the LORD be angry, and I will speak yet but this once: Peradventure ten shall be found there. [o] And he said, I will not destroy it for ten's sake.

33 And the LORD went his way, as soon as he had left communing with Abraham: and Abraham returned unto his place.

2 And he said, Behold now, my lords, [c] turn in, I pray you, into your servant's house, and tarry all night, and [d] wash your feet, and ye shall rise up early, and go on your ways. And they said, [e] Nay; but we will abide in the street all night.

3 And he pressed upon them greatly; and they turned in unto him, and entered into his house; [f] and he made them a feast, and did bake unleavened bread, and they did eat.

4 ¶But before they lay down, the men of the city, even the men of Sodom, compassed the house round, both old and young, all the people from every quarter:

5 [g] And they called unto Lot, and said unto him, Where are the men which came in to thee this night? [h] bring them out unto us, that we [i] may know them.

6 And [k] Lot went out at the door unto them, and shut the door after him,

7 And said, I pray you, brethren, do not so wickedly.

8 [l] Behold now, I have two daughters which have not known man; let me, I pray you, bring them out unto you, and do ye to them as is good in your eyes: only unto these men do nothing; [m] for therefore came they under the shadow of my roof.

9 And they said, Stand back. And they said again, This one fellow [n] came in to sojourn, [o] and he will needs be a judge: now will we deal worse with thee than with them. And they pressed sore upon the man, even Lot, and came near to break the door.

10 But the men put forth their hand, and pulled Lot into the house to them, and shut to the door.

11 And they smote the men [p] that were at the door of the house with blindness, both small and great: so that they wearied themselves to find the door.

12 ¶And the men said unto Lot, Hast thou here any besides? son-in-law, and thy sons, and thy daughters, and whatsoever thou hast in the city, [q] bring them out of this place:

13 For we will destroy this place, because the [r] cry of them is waxen great before the face of the LORD; and [s] the LORD hath sent us to destroy it.

14 And Lot went out, and spake unto his sons-in-law, [t] which married his daughters, and said, [u] Up, get you out of this place; for the LORD will destroy this city: [x] but he seemed as one that mocked unto his sons-in-law.

15 ¶And when the morning arose, then the angels hastened Lot, saying, [y] Arise, take thy wife, and thy two daughters which † are here, lest thou be consumed in the ‖ iniquity of the city.

16 And while he lingered, the men laid hold upon his hand, and upon the hand of his wife, and upon the hand of his two daughters; [a] the LORD being merciful unto him; [b] and they brought him forth, and set him without the city.

17 ¶And it came to pass, when they had brought them forth abroad, that he said, [c] Escape for thy life; [d] look not behind thee, neither stay thou in all the plain: escape to the mountain, lest thou be consumed.

18 And Lot said unto them, Oh, [e] not so, my Lord!

19 Behold now, thy servant hath found grace in thy sight, and thou hast magnified thy mercy, which thou hast showed unto me in saving my life: and I cannot escape to the mountain, lest some evil take me, and I die:

20 Behold now, this city is near to flee unto, and it is a little one: Oh, let me escape thither! (is it not a little one?) and my soul shall live.

21 And he said unto him, See, [f]I have accepted †thee concerning this thing also, that I will not overthrow this city, for the which thou hast spoken.

22 Haste thee, escape thither; for [g]I cannot do any thing till thou be come thither. Therefore [h]the name of the city was called ‖Zoar.

23 ¶The sun was †risen upon the earth when Lot entered into Zoar.

24 Then [i]the LORD rained upon Sodom and upon Gomorrah brimstone and fire from the LORD out of heaven;

25 And he overthrew those cities, and all the plain, and all the inhabitants of the cities, and [k]that which grew upon the ground.

26 ¶But his wife looked back from behind him, and she became [l]a pillar of salt.

27 ¶And Abraham gat up early in the morning to the place where [m]he stood before the LORD:

28 And he looked toward Sodom and Gomorrah, and toward all the land of the plain, and beheld, and, lo, [n]the smoke of the country went up as the smoke of a furnace.

29 ¶And it came to pass, when God destroyed the cities of the plain, that God [o]remembered Abraham, and sent Lot out of the midst of the overthrow, when he overthrew the cities in the which Lot dwelt.

30 ¶And Lot went up out of Zoar, and [p]dwelt in the mountain, and his two daughters with him; for he feared to dwell in Zoar: and he dwelt in a cave, he and his two daughters.

31 And the first-born said unto the younger, Our father is old, and there is not a man in the earth [q]to come in unto us after the manner of all the earth:

32 Come, let us make our father drink wine, and we will lie with him, that we [r]may preserve seed of our father.

33 And they made their father drink wine that night: and the first-born went in, and lay with her father; and he perceived not when she lay down, nor when she arose.

34 And it came to pass on the morrow, that the first-born said unto the younger, Behold, I lay yesternight with my father: let us make him drink wine this night also; and go thou in, and lie with him, that we may preserve seed of our father.

35 And they made their father drink wine that night also: and the younger arose, and lay with him; and he perceived not when she lay down, nor when she arose.

36 Thus were both the daughters of Lot with child by their father.

37 And the first-born bare a son, and called his name Moab: [s]the same is the father of the Moabites unto this day.

38 And the younger, she also bare a son, and called his name Ben-ammi: [t]the same is the father of the children of Ammon unto this day.

CHAP. XX.

1 Abraham sojourneth at Gerar. 2 He denieth his wife, and loseth her.

AND Abraham journeyed from [a]thence toward the south country, and dwelled between [b]Kadesh and Shur, and [c]sojourned in Gerar.

2 And Abraham said of Sarah his wife, [d]She is my sister: and Abimelech king of Gerar sent, and [e]took Sarah.

3 But [f]God came to Abimelech [g]in a dream by night, and said to him, [h]Behold, thou art but a dead man, for the woman which thou hast taken; for she is †a man's wife.

4 But Abimelech had not come near her: and he said, LORD, [i]wilt thou slay also a righteous nation?

5 Said he not unto me, She is my sister? and she, even she herself said, He is my brother: [k]in the ‖integrity of my heart and innocency of my hands have I done this.

6 And God said unto him in a dream, Yea, I know that thou didst this in the integrity of thy heart; for [l]I also withheld thee from sinning [m]against me: therefore suffered I thee not to touch her.

7 Now therefore restore the man his wife; [n]for he is a prophet, and he shall pray for thee, and thou shalt live: and if thou restore her not, [o]know thou that thou shalt surely die, thou, [p]and all that are thine.

8 Therefore Abimelech rose early in the morning, and called all his servants, and told all these things in their ears: and the men were sore afraid.

9 Then Abimelech called Abraham, and said unto him, What hast thou done unto us? and what have I offended thee, [q]that thou hast brought on me and on my kingdom a great sin? thou hast done deeds unto me [r]that ought not to be done.

10 And Abimelech said unto Abraham, What sawest thou, that thou hast done this thing?

11 And Abraham said, Because I thought, Surely [s]the fear of God is not in this place; and [t]they will slay me for my wife's sake.

12 And yet indeed [u]she is my sister; she is the daughter of my father, but not the daughter of my mother; and she became my wife.

13 And it came to pass, when [x]God caused me to wander from my father's house, that I said unto her, This is thy kindness which thou shalt shew unto me; at every place whither we shall come, [y]say of me, He is my brother.

14 And Abimelech [z]took sheep, and oxen, and men-servants, and women-servants, and gave them unto Abraham, and restored him Sarah his wife.

15 And Abimelech said, Behold, [a]my land is before thee: dwell †where it pleaseth thee.

16 And unto Sarah he said, Behold, I have given [b]thy brother a thousand pieces of silver: [c]behold, he is to thee [d]a covering of the eyes, unto all that are with thee, and with all other: thus she was reproved.

17 ¶So Abraham [e]prayed unto God: and God healed Abimelech, and his wife, and his maid-servants; and they bare children.

18 For the LORD [f]had fast closed up all the wombs of the house of Abimelech, because of Sarah Abraham's wife.

CHAP. XXI.

1 Isaac is born. 4 He is circumcised. 9 Hagar and Ishmael are cast forth.

AND the LORD [a]visited Sarah as he had said, and the LORD did unto Sarah [b]as he had spoken.

2 For Sarah [c]conceived, and bare Abraham a son in his old age, [d]at the set time of which God had spoken to him.

3 And Abraham called the name of his son that was born unto him, whom Sarah bare to him, [e]Isaac.

4 And Abraham [f]circumcised his son Isaac, being eight days old, [g]as God had commanded him.

5 And [h]Abraham was an hundred years old, when his son Isaac was born unto him.

6 ¶And Sarah said, [i]God hath made me to laugh, so that all that hear [k]will laugh with me.

7 And she said, Who would have said unto Abraham, that Sarah should have given children suck? for I have born him a son in his old age.

8 And the child grew, and was weaned: and Abraham made a great feast the same day that Isaac was weaned.

9 ¶ And Sarah saw the son of Hagar [m] the Egyptian, [n] which she had born unto Abraham, [o] mocking.

10 Wherefore she said unto Abraham, [p] Cast out this bond-woman and her son: for the son of this bond-woman shall not be heir with my son, even with Isaac.

11 And the thing was very grievous in Abraham's sight [q] because of his son.

12 ¶ And God said unto Abraham, Let it not be grievous in thy sight, because of the lad, and because of thy bond-woman; in all that Sarah hath said unto thee, hearken unto her voice; for [r] in Isaac shall thy seed be called.

13 And also of the son of the bond-woman will I make [s] a nation, because he is thy seed.

14 And Abraham rose up early in the morning, and took bread, and a bottle of water, and gave it unto Hagar, putting it on her shoulder, and the child, and [t] sent her away: and she departed, and wandered in the wilderness of Beer-sheba.

15 And the water was spent in the bottle, and she cast the child under one of the shrubs.

16 And she went, and sat her down over against him, a good way off, as it were a bow-shot: for she said, Let me not see the death of the child. And she sat over against him, and lift up her voice, and wept.

17 And [u] God heard the voice of the lad; and the angel of God called to Hagar out of heaven, and said unto her, What aileth thee, Hagar? Fear not; for God hath heard the voice of the lad where he is.

18 Arise, lift up the lad, and hold him in thine hand; for [w] I will make him a great nation.

19 And [x] God opened her eyes, and she saw a well of water; and she went, and filled the bottle with water, and gave the lad drink.

20 And God [y] was with the lad; and he grew, and dwelt in the wilderness, [z] and became an archer.

21 And he dwelt in the wilderness of Paran: and his mother [a] took him a wife out of the land of Egypt.

22 ¶ And it came to pass at that time, that [b] Abimelech and Phichol the chief captain of his host spake unto Abraham, saying, [c] God is with thee in all that thou doest:

23 Now therefore [d] swear unto me here by God † that thou wilt not deal falsely with me, nor with my son, nor with my son's son: but according to the kindness that I have done unto thee, thou shalt do unto me, and to the land wherein thou hast sojourned.

24 And Abraham said, I will swear.

25 And Abraham reproved Abimelech because of a well of water, which Abimelech's servants [e] had violently taken away.

26 And Abimelech said, I wot not who hath done this thing: neither didst thou tell me, neither yet heard I of it, but to-day.

27 And Abraham took sheep and oxen, and gave them unto Abimelech; and both of them [f] made a covenant.

28 And Abraham set seven ewe-lambs of the flock by themselves.

29 And Abimelech said unto Abraham, [g] What mean these seven ewe-lambs, which thou hast set by themselves?

30 And he said, For these seven ewe-lambs shalt thou take of my hand, that [h] they may be a witness unto me, that I have digged this well.

31 Wherefore he [i] called that place ‖ Beer-sheba; because there they sware both of them.

32 Thus they made a covenant at Beer-sheba: then Abimelech rose up, and Phichol the chief captain of his host, and they returned into the land of the Philistines.

33 ¶ And Abraham planted a ‖ grove in Beer-sheba, and [k] called there on the name of the LORD, [l] the everlasting God.

34 And Abraham sojourned in the Philistines' land many days.

CHAP. XXII.

1 Abraham is tempted to offer Isaac. 3 He giveth proof of his faith and obedience.

AND it came to pass after these things, that [c] God did tempt Abraham, and said unto him, Abraham: and he said, † Behold, here I am.

2 And he said, Take now thy son, [b] thine only son Isaac, whom thou lovest, and get thee [c] into the land of Moriah; and offer him there for a burnt-offering upon one of the mountains which I will tell thee of.

3 ¶ And Abraham rose up early in the morning, and saddled his ass, and took two of his young men with him, and Isaac his son, and clave the wood for the burnt-offering, and rose up, and went unto the place of which God had told him.

4 Then on the third day Abraham lifted up his eyes, and saw the place afar off.

5 And Abraham said unto his young men, Abide ye here with the ass; and I and the lad will go yonder and worship, and come again to you.

6 And Abraham took the wood of the burnt-offering, and [d] laid it upon Isaac his son; and he took the fire in his hand, and a knife; and they went both of them together.

7 And Isaac spake unto Abraham his father, and said, My father: and he said, † Here am I, my son. And he said, Behold the fire and the wood: but where is the ‖ lamb for a burnt-offering?

8 And Abraham said, My son, God will provide himself a lamb for a burnt offering: so they went both of them together.

9 And they came to the place which God had told him of; and Abraham built an altar there, and laid the wood in order, and bound Isaac his son, and [e] laid him on the altar upon the wood.

10 And Abraham stretched forth his hand, and took the knife to slay his son.

11 And the angel of the LORD called unto him out of heaven, and said, Abraham, Abraham: and he said, Here am I.

12 And he said, [f] Lay not thine hand upon the lad, neither do thou any thing unto him: for [g] now I know that thou fearest God, seeing thou hast not withheld thy son, thine only son from me.

13 And Abraham lifted up his eyes, and looked, and behold behind him a ram caught in a thicket by his horns: and Abraham went and took the ram, and offered him up for a burnt-offering in the stead of his son.

14 And Abraham called the name of that place ‖ Jehovah-jireh: as it is said to this day, In the mount of the LORD it shall be seen.

15 ¶ And the angel of the LORD called unto Abraham out of heaven the second time,

19 So Abraham returned unto his young men, and they rose up and went together to [p]Beer-sheba; and Abraham dwelt at Beer-sheba.

20 ¶And it came to pass after these things, that it was told Abraham, saying, Behold, [q]Milcah, she hath also born children unto thy brother Nahor;

21 [r]Huz his first born, and Buz his brother, and Kemuel the father [s]of Aram,

CHAP. XXIII.

1 The age and death of Sarah. 3 The purchase of Machpelah.

AND Sarah was an hundred and seven and twenty years old: these were the years of the life of Sarah.

2 And Sarah died in [a]Kirjath-arba; the same is [b]Hebron in the land of Canaan: and Abraham came to mourn for Sarah, and to weep for her.

3 ¶And Abraham stood up from before his dead, and spake unto the sons of Heth, saying,

4 [c]I am a stranger and a sojourner with you: [d]give me a possession of a burying-place with you, that I may bury my dead out of my sight.

5 And the children of Heth answered Abraham, saying unto him,

6 Hear us, my lord: thou art †[e]a mighty prince among us: in the choice of our sepulchres bury thy dead; none of us shall withhold from thee his sepulchre, but that thou mayest bury thy dead.

7 And Abraham stood up, and bowed himself to the people of the land, even to the children of Heth.

8 And he communed with them, saying, If it be your mind that I should bury my dead out of my sight; hear me, and entreat for me to Ephron the son of Zohar,

9 That he may give me the cave of Machpelah, which he hath, which is in the end of his field; for † as much money as it is worth he shall give it me for a possession of a burying-place amongst you.

10 And Ephron dwelt among the children of Heth. And Ephron the Hittite answered Abraham in the †audience of the children of Heth, even of all that [f]went in at the gate of his city, saying,

11 [g]Nay, my lord, hear me: the field give I thee, and the cave that is therein, I give it thee; in the presence of the sons of my people give I it thee: bury thy dead.

12 And Abraham bowed down himself before the people of the land.

13 And he spake unto Ephron in the audience of the people of the land, saying, But if thou wilt give it, I pray thee, hear me: I will give thee money for the field; take it of me, and I will bury my dead there.

14 And Ephron answered Abraham, saying unto him,

15 My lord, hearken unto me: the land is worth four hundred [h]shekels of silver; what is that betwixt me and thee? bury therefore thy dead.

16 And Abraham hearkened unto Ephron; and Abraham [i]weighed to Ephron the silver which he had named in the audience of the sons of Heth, four hundred shekels of silver, current money with the merchant.

17 ¶And [k]the field of Ephron, which was in Machpelah, which was before Mamre, the field, and the cave which was therein, and all the trees that were in the field, that were in all the borders round about, were made sure

18 Unto Abraham for a possession in the presence of the children of Heth, before all that went in at the gate of his city.

19 And after this, Abraham buried Sarah his wife in the cave of the field of Machpelah before Mamre: the same is Hebron in the land of Canaan.

20 And the field, and the cave that is therein, [l]were made sure unto Abraham for a possession of a burying-place by the sons of Heth.

AND Abraham [a]was old, and †well stricken in age: and the LORD [b]had blessed Abraham in all things.

2 And Abraham said [c]unto his eldest servant of his house, that [d]ruled over all that he had, [e]Put, I pray thee, thy hand under my thigh:

3 And I will make thee [f]swear by the LORD, the God of heaven, and the God of the earth, that [g]thou shalt not take a wife unto my son of the daughters of the Canaanites, among whom I dwell:

4 [h]But thou shalt go [i]unto my country, and to my kindred, and take a wife unto my son Isaac.

5 And the servant said unto him, Peradventure the woman will not be willing to follow me unto this land: must I needs bring thy son again unto the land from whence thou camest?

6 And Abraham said unto him, Beware thou that thou bring not my son thither again.

7 ¶The LORD God of heaven, which [k]took me from my father's house, and from the land of my kindred, and which spake unto me, and that sware unto me, saying, [l]Unto thy seed will I give this land; [m]he shall send his angel before thee, and thou shalt take a wife unto my son from thence.

8 And if the woman will not be willing to follow thee, then [n]thou shalt be clear from this my oath; only bring not my son thither again.

9 And the servant put his hand under the thigh of Abraham his master, and sware to him concerning that matter.

10 ¶And the servant took ten camels, of the camels of his master, and departed; [o]‖for all the goods of his master were in his hand: and he arose, and went to Mesopotamia, unto [p]the city of Nahor.

11 And he made his camels to kneel down without the city by a well of water at the time of the evening, even the time †[q]that women go out to draw water:

Abraham, I pray thee, [r]send me good speed this day, and shew kindness unto my master Abraham.

13 Behold, [s]I stand here by the well of water; and [t]the daughters of the men of the city come out to draw water:

14 And let it come to pass, that the damsel to whom I shall say, Let down thy pitcher, I pray thee, that I may drink; and she shall say, Drink, and I will give thy camels drink also: let the same be she that thou [u]hast appointed for thy servant Isaac; and [w]thereby shall I know that thou hast shewed kindness unto my master.

15 ¶ And it came to pass, before he had done speaking, that, behold, Rebekah came out, who was born to Bethuel, son of [x]Milcah, the wife of Nahor, Abraham's brother, with her pitcher upon her shoulder.

16 And the damsel [y]was † very fair to look upon, a virgin, neither had any man known her: and she went down to the well, and filled her pitcher, and came up.

17 And the servant ran to meet her, and said, Let me, I pray thee, drink a little water of thy pitcher.

18 [z]And she said, Drink, my lord: and she hasted, and let down her pitcher upon her hand, and gave him drink.

19 And when she had done giving him drink, she said, I will draw water for thy camels also, until they have done drinking.

20 And she hasted, and emptied her pitcher into the trough, and ran again unto the well to draw water, and drew for all his camels.

21 And the man wondering at her held his peace, to wit whether [a]the LORD had made his journey prosperous or not.

22 And it came to pass, as the camels had done drinking, that the man took a golden [b]‖ear-ring of half a shekel weight, and two bracelets for her hands of ten shekels weight of gold;

23 And said, Whose daughter art thou? tell me, I pray thee: is there room in thy father's house for us to lodge in?

24 And she said unto him, [c]I am the daughter of Bethuel the son of Milcah, which she bare unto Nahor.

25 She said moreover unto him, We have both straw and provender enough, and room to lodge in.

26 And the man [d]bowed down his head, and worshipped the LORD.

27 And he said, [e]Blessed be the LORD God of my master Abraham, who hath not left destitute my master of [f]his mercy and his truth: I being in the way, the LORD [g]led me to the house of my master's brethren.

28 And the damsel ran, and told them of her mother's house these things.

29 ¶ And Rebekah had a brother, and his name was [h]Laban: and Laban ran out unto the man, unto the well.

30 And it came to pass, when he saw the ear-ring and bracelets upon his sister's hands, and when he heard the words of Rebekah his sister, saying, Thus spake the man unto me; that he came unto the man; [i]and, behold, he stood by the camels at the well.

31 And he said, Come in, [i]thou blessed of the LORD; wherefore standest thou without? for I have prepared the house, and room for the camels.

32 ¶ And the man came into the house: and he ungirded his camels, and [k]gave straw and provender for the camels, and water to wash his feet, and the men's feet that were with him.

33 And there was set meat before him to eat: but he said, [l]I will not eat, until I have told mine errand. And he said, Speak on.

34 And he said, I am Abraham's servant.

35 And the LORD [m]hath blessed my master greatly; and he is become great: and he hath given him flocks, and herds, and silver, and gold, and menservants, and maidservants, and camels, and asses.

36 And Sarah my master's wife [n]bare a son to my master when she was old: and [o]unto him hath he given all that he hath.

37 And my master [p]made me swear, saying, Thou shalt not take a wife to my son of the daughters of the Canaanites, in whose land I dwell:

38 [q]But thou shalt go unto my father's house, and to my kindred, and take a wife unto my son.

39 [r]And I said unto my master, Peradventure the woman will not follow me.

40 [s]And he said unto me, The LORD, [t]before whom I walk, will send his angel with thee, and prosper thy way; and thou shalt take a wife for my son of my kindred, and of my father's house:

41 [u]Then shalt thou be clear from this my oath, when thou comest to my kindred; and if they give not thee one, thou shalt be clear from my oath.

42 And I came this day unto the well, and said, [w]O LORD God of my master Abraham, if now thou do prosper my way which I go:

43 [x]Behold, I stand by the well of water; and it shall come to pass, that when the virgin cometh forth to draw water, and I say to her, Give me, I pray thee, a little water of thy pitcher to drink;

44 And she say to me, Both drink thou, and I will also draw for thy camels: let the same be the woman whom the LORD hath appointed out for my master's son.

45 [y]And before I had done [z]speaking in mine heart, behold, Rebekah came forth with her pitcher on her shoulder; and she went down unto the well, and drew water: and I said unto her, Let me drink, I pray thee.

46 And she made haste, and let down her pitcher from her shoulder, and said, Drink, and I will give thy camels drink also: so I drank, and she made the camels drink also.

47 And I asked her, and said, Whose daughter art thou? And she said, the daughter of Bethuel, Nahor's son, whom Milcah bare unto him: and I [a]put the ear-ring upon her face, and the bracelets upon her hands.

48 [b]And I bowed down my head, and worshipped the LORD, and blessed the LORD God of my master Abraham, which had led me in the right way to take [c]my master's brother's daughter unto his son.

49 And now if ye will [d]deal kindly and truly with my master, tell me: and if not, tell me; that I may turn to the right hand, or to the left.

50 Then Laban and Bethuel answered and said, [e]The thing proceedeth from the LORD: we cannot [f]speak unto thee bad or good.

51 Behold, Rebekah [g]is before thee, take her, and go, and let her be thy master's son's wife, as the LORD hath spoken.

52 And it came to pass, that, when Abraham's servant heard their words, he [h]worshipped the LORD, bowing himself to the earth.

53 And the servant brought forth †[i]jewels of silver, and jewels of gold, and raiment, and gave them to Rebekah: he gave also to her brother and to her mother [k]precious things.

54 And they did eat and drink, he and the men that were with him, and tarried all night; and they rose up in the morning, and he said, [l]Send me away unto my master.

55 And her brother and her mother said, Let the damsel abide with us ‖ a few days, at the least ten; after that she shall go.

56 And he said unto them, Hinder me not, seeing the LORD hath prospered my way; send me away, that I may go to my master.

57 And they said, We will call the damsel, and enquire at her mouth.

58 And they called Rebekah, and said unto her, Wilt thou go with this man? And she said, I will go.

59 And they sent away Rebekah their sister, and [m]her nurse, and Abraham's servant, and his men.

60 And they blessed Rebekah, and said unto her, Thou art our sister, be thou [n]the mother of thousands of millions, and [o]let thy seed possess the gate of those which hate them.

61 ¶And Rebekah arose, and her damsels, and they rode upon the camels, and followed the man: and the servant took Rebekah, and went his way.

62 And Isaac came from the way of the [p]well Lahai-roi; for he dwelt in the south country.

63 And Isaac went out ‖ [q]to meditate in the field at the even-tide: and he lifted up his eyes, and saw, and, behold, the camels were coming.

64 And Rebekah lifted up her eyes, and when she saw Isaac, [r]she lighted off the camel.

65 For she had said unto the servant, What man is this that walketh in the field to meet us? And the servant had said, It is my master: therefore she took a vail and covered herself.

66 And the servant told Isaac all things that he had done.

67 And Isaac brought her into his mother Sarah's tent, and took Rebekah, and she became his wife; and he loved her: and Isaac [s]was comforted after his mother's death.

THEN again Abraham took a wife, and her name was Keturah.

2 And [a]she bare him Zimran, and Jokshan, and Medan, and Midian, and Ishbak, and Shuah.

3 And Jokshan begat Sheba, and Dedan. And the sons of Dedan were Asshurim, and Letushim, and Leummim.

4 And the sons of Midian; Ephah, and Epher, and Hanoch, and Abidah, and Eldaah. All these were the children of Keturah.

5 ¶And [b]Abraham gave all that he had unto Isaac.

6 But unto the sons of the concubines, which Abraham had, Abraham gave gifts, and [c]sent them away from Isaac his son, while he yet lived, eastward, unto [d]the east country.

7 And these are the days of the years of Abraham's life which he lived, an hundred threescore and fifteen years.

8 Then Abraham gave up the ghost, and [e]died in a good old age, an old man, and full of years; and [f]was gathered to his people.

9 And [g]his sons Isaac and Ishmael buried him in the cave of Machpelah, in the field of Ephron the son of Zohar the Hittite, which is before Mamre;

10 [h]The field which Abraham purchased of the sons of Heth: [i]there was Abraham buried, and Sarah his wife.

11 ¶And it came to pass after the death of Abraham, that God blessed his son Isaac; and Isaac dwelt by the [k]well Lahai-roi.

12 ¶Now these are the generations of Ishmael, Abraham's son, [l]whom Hagar the Egyptian, Sarah's handmaid, bare unto Abraham:

13 And [m]these are the names of the sons of Ishmael, by their names, according to their generations: the firstborn of Ishmael, Nebajoth; and Kedar, and Adbeel, and Mibsam,

14 And Mishma, and Dumah, and Massa,

15 ‖ Hadar, and Tema, Jetur, Naphish, and Kedemah:

16 These are the sons of Ishmael, and these are their names, by their towns, and by their castles; [n]twelve princes according to their nations.

17 And these are the years of the life of Ishmael, an hundred and thirty and seven years: and he [o]gave up the ghost and died; and was gathered unto his people.

18 [p]And they dwelt from Havilah unto Shur, that is before Egypt, as thou goest toward Assyria: and he † died [q]in the presence of all his brethren.

19 ¶ And these are the generations of Isaac, Abraham's son: [r]Abraham begat Isaac:

20 And Isaac was forty years old when he took Rebekah to wife, [s]the daughter of Bethuel the Syrian of Padan-aram, [t]the sister to Laban the Syrian.

21 And Isaac entreated the LORD for his wife, because she was barren: [u]and the LORD was entreated of him, and [w]Rebekah his wife conceived.

22 And the children struggled together within her; and she said, If it be so, why am I thus? [x]And she went to inquire of the LORD.

23 And the LORD said unto her, [y]Two nations are in thy womb, and two manner of people shall be separated from thy bowels: and [z]the one people shall be stronger than the other people; and [a]the elder shall serve the younger.

24 ¶And when her days to be delivered were fulfilled, behold, there were twins in her womb.

25 And the first came out red, [b]all over like an hairy garment: and they called his name Esau.

26 And after that came his brother out, and [c]his hand took hold on Esau's heel; and [d]his name was called Jacob: and Isaac was threescore years old when she bare them.

27 And the boys grew: and Esau was [e]a cunning hunter, a man of the field; and Jacob was [f]a plain man, [g]dwelling in tents.

28 And Isaac loved Esau, because † he did [h]eat of his venison: [i]but Rebekah loved Jacob.

29 ¶And Jacob sod pottage: and Esau came from the field, and he was faint:

30 And Esau said to Jacob, Feed me, I pray thee, † with that same red pottage; for I am faint: therefore was his name called ‖ Edom.

31 And Jacob said, Sell me this day thy birthright.

CHAP. XXVI.

1 Isaac because of famine goeth to Gerar. 26 Abimelech's covenant with him at Beer-sheba.

AND there was a famine in the land, beside [a]the first famine that was in the days of Abraham. And Isaac went unto [b]Abimelech king of the Philistines unto Gerar.

2 And the LORD appeared unto him, and said, Go not down into Egypt; dwell in [c]the land which I shall tell thee of:

3 [d]Sojourn in this land, and [e]I will be with thee, and [f]will bless thee; for unto thee, and unto thy seed, [g]I will give all these countries, and I will perform [h]the oath which I sware unto Abraham thy father;

4 And [i]I will make thy seed to multiply as the stars of heaven, and will give unto thy seed all these countries; [k]and in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed;

5 [l]Because that Abraham obeyed my voice, and kept my charge, my commandments, my statutes, and my laws.

6 ¶And Isaac dwelt in Gerar:

7 And the men of the place asked him of his wife; and [m]he said, She is my sister: for [n]he feared to say, She is my wife; lest, said he, the men of the place should kill me for Rebekah; because she [o]was fair to look upon.

8 And it came to pass, when he had been there a long time, that Abimelech king of the Philistines looked out at a window, and saw, and, behold, Isaac was sporting with Rebekah his wife.

9 And Abimelech called Isaac, and said, Behold, of a surety she is thy wife: and how saidst thou, She is my sister? And Isaac said unto him, Because I said, Lest I die for her.

10 And Abimelech said, What is this thou hast done unto us? one of the people might lightly have lien with thy wife, and [p]thou shouldest have brought guiltiness upon us.

11 And Abimelech charged all his people, saying, He that [q]toucheth this man or his wife shall surely be put to death.

12 Then Isaac sowed in that land, and †received in the same year [r]an hundred-fold: and the LORD [s]blessed him:

13 And the man [t]waxed great, and †went forward, and grew until he became very great:

14 For he had possession of flocks, and possession of herds, and great store of ‖servants: and the Philistines [u]envied him.

15 For all the wells [w]which his father's servants had digged in the days of Abraham his father, the Philistines had stopped them, and filled them with earth.

16 And Abimelech said unto Isaac, Go from us: for [x]thou art much mightier than we.

17 ¶And Isaac departed thence, and pitched his tent in the valley of Gerar, and dwelt there.

18 And Isaac digged again the wells of water, which they had digged in the days of Abraham his father; for the Philistines had stopped them after the death of Abraham: [y]and he called their names after the names by which his father had called them.

19 And Isaac's servants digged in the valley, and found there a well of †springing water.

20 And the herdmen of Gerar [z]did strive with Isaac's herdmen, saying, the water is ours: and he called the name of the well ‖Esek; because they strove with him.

21 And they digged another well, and strove for that also: and he called the name of it ‖Sitnah.

22 And he removed from thence, and digged another well; and for that they strove not: and he called the name of it ‖Rehoboth; and he said, For now the LORD hath made room for us, and we shall [a]be fruitful in the land.

23 And he went up from thence to Beer-sheba.

24 And the LORD appeared unto him the same night, and said, [b]I am the God of Abraham thy father: [c]fear not, for [d]I am with thee, and will bless thee, and multiply thy seed for my servant Abraham's sake.

25 And he [e]builded an altar there, and [f]called upon the name of the LORD, and pitched his tent there: and there Isaac's servants digged a well.

26 ¶Then Abimelech went to him from Gerar, and Ahuzzath one of his friends, [g]and Phichol the chief captain of his army.

27 And Isaac said unto them, Wherefore come ye to me, seeing [h]ye hate me, and have [i]sent me away from you?

28 And they said, †We saw certainly that the LORD [k]was with thee: and we said, Let there be now an oath betwixt us, even betwixt us and thee, and let us make a covenant with thee;

29 †That thou wilt do us no hurt, as we have not touched thee, and as we have done unto thee nothing but good, and have sent thee away in peace: [l]thou art now the blessed of the LORD.

30 [m]And he made them a feast, and they did eat and drink.

31 And they rose up betimes in the morning, and [n]sware one to another: and Isaac sent them away, and they departed from him in peace.

32 And it came to pass the same day, that Isaac's servants came, and told him concerning the well which they had digged, and said unto him, We have found water.

33 And he called it ‖Shebah: [o]therefore the name of the city is ‖Beer-sheba unto this day.

34 ¶[p]And Esau was forty years old when he took to wife Judith the daughter of Beeri the Hittite, and Bashemath the daughter of Elon the Hittite:

35 Which [q]were †a grief of mind unto Isaac and to Rebekah.

4 And make me savoury meat, such as I love, and bring it to me, that I may eat; that my soul [d]may bless thee before I die.

5 And Rebekah heard when Isaac spake to Esau his son. And Esau went to the field to hunt for venison, and to bring it.

6 ¶And Rebekah spake unto Jacob her son, saying, Behold, I heard thy father speak unto Esau thy brother, saying,

7 Bring me venison, and make me savoury meat, that I may eat, and bless thee before the LORD before my death.

8 Now therefore, my son, [e]obey my voice according to that which I command thee.

9 Go now to the flock, and fetch me from thence two good kids of the goats; and I will make them [f]savoury meat for thy father, such as he loveth:

10 And thou shalt bring it to thy father, that he may eat, and that he [g]may bless thee before his death.

11 And Jacob said to Rebekah his mother, Behold, [h]Esau my brother is a hairy man, and I am a smooth man:

12 My father peradventure will [i]feel me, and I shall seem to him as a deceiver; and I shall bring [k]a curse upon me, and not a blessing.

13 And his mother said unto him, [l]Upon me be thy curse, my son: only obey my voice, and go fetch me them.

14 And he went, and fetched, and brought them to his mother: and his mother [m]made savoury meat, such as his father loved.

15 And Rebekah took †[n]goodly raiment of her eldest son Esau, which were with her in the house, and put them upon Jacob her younger son:

16 And she put the skins of the kids of the goats upon his hands, and upon the smooth of his neck:

17 And she gave the savoury meat and the bread, which she had prepared, into the hand of her son Jacob.

18 ¶And he came unto his father, and said, My father: and he said, Here am I; who art thou, my son?

19 And Jacob said unto his father, I am Esau thy first-born; I have done according as thou badest me: arise, I pray thee, sit and eat of my venison, [o]that thy soul may bless me.

20 And Isaac said unto his son, How is it that thou hast found it so quickly, my son? And he said, Because the LORD thy God brought it †to me.

21 And Isaac said unto Jacob, Come near, I pray thee, that I [p]may feel thee, my son, whether thou be my very son Esau or not.

22 And Jacob went near unto Isaac his father; and he felt him, and said, The voice is Jacob's voice, but the hands are the hands of Esau.

23 And he discerned him not, because [q]his hands were hairy, as his brother Esau's hands: so he blessed him.

24 And he said, Art thou my very son Esau? And he said, I am.

25 And he said, Bring it near to me, and I will eat of my son's venison, [r]that my soul may bless thee. And he brought it near to him, and he did eat: and he brought him wine, and he drank.

26 And his father Isaac said unto him, Come near now, and kiss me, my son.

27 And he came near, and kissed him: and he smelled the smell of his raiment, and blessed him, and said, See, [s]the smell of my son is as the smell of a field which the LORD hath blessed:

28 Therefore [t]God give thee of [u]the dew of heaven, and [w]the fatness of the earth, and [x]plenty of corn and wine:

29 [y]Let people serve thee, and nations bow down to thee: be lord over thy brethren, and [z]let thy mother's sons bow down to thee: [a]cursed be every one that curseth thee, and blessed be he that blesseth thee.

30 ¶And it came to pass, as soon as Isaac had made an end of blessing Jacob, and Jacob was yet scarce gone out from the presence of Isaac his father, that Esau his brother came in from his hunting.

31 And he also had made savoury meat, and brought it unto his father, and said unto his father, Let my father arise, and [b]eat of his son's venison, that thy soul may bless me.

32 And Isaac his father said unto him, Who art thou? And he said, I am thy son, thy first-born Esau.

33 And Isaac †trembled very exceedingly, and said, Who? where is he that hath †taken venison, and brought it me, and I have eaten of all before thou camest, and have blessed him? yea, [c]and he shall be blessed.

34 And when Esau heard the words of his father, [d]he cried with a great and exceeding bitter cry, and said unto his father, Bless me, even me also, O my father!

35 And he said, Thy brother came with subtilty, and hath taken away thy blessing.

36 And he said, [e]Is not he rightly named ‖Jacob? for he hath supplanted me these two times: [f]he took away my birth-right; and, behold, now he hath taken away my blessing. And he said, Hast thou not reserved a blessing for me?

37 And Isaac answered and said unto Esau, [g]Behold, I have made him thy lord, and all his brethren have I given to him for servants; and [h]with corn and wine have I ‖sustained him: and what shall I do now unto thee, my son?

38 And Esau said unto his father, Hast thou but one blessing, my father? bless me, even me also, O my father! And Esau lifted up his voice, [i]and wept.

39 And Isaac his father answered, and said unto him, Behold, [k]thy dwelling shall be ‖the fatness of the earth, and of the dew of heaven from above;

40 And by thy sword shalt thou live, and [l]shalt serve thy brother; and [m]it shall come to pass when thou shalt have the dominion, that thou shalt break his yoke from off thy neck.

41 ¶And Esau [n]hated Jacob because of the blessing wherewith his father blessed him: and Esau said in his heart, [o]The days of mourning for my father are at hand; [p]then will I slay my brother Jacob.

42 And these words of Esau her elder son were told to Rebekah: and she sent and called Jacob her younger son, and said unto him, Behold, thy brother Esau, as touching thee, doth [q]comfort himself, purposing to kill thee.

43 Now therefore, my son, obey my voice; and arise, flee thou to Laban my brother [r]to Haran;

44 And tarry with him a few days, until thy brother's fury turn away;

45 Until thy brother's anger turn away from thee, and he forget that which thou hast done to him: then I will send, and fetch thee from thence: why should I be deprived also of you both in one day?

46 And Rebekah said to Isaac, [s]I am weary of my life because of the daughters of Heth: [t]if Jacob take a wife of the daughters of Heth, such as these

CHAP. XXVIII.

1 Isaac blesseth Jacob, and sendeth him to Padan-aram. 12 The vision of Jacob's ladder. 18 The stone of Beth-el. 20 Jacob's vow.

Before CHRIST about 1760.

1760.

AND Isaac called Jacob, and [a]blessed him, and charged him, and said unto him, [b]Thou shalt not take a wife of the daughters of Canaan.

2 [c]Arise, go to [d]Padan-aram, to the house of [c]Bethuel thy mother's father; and take thee a wife from thence of the daughters of [f]Laban thy mother's brother.

3 [g]And God Almighty bless thee, and make thee fruitful, and multiply thee, that thou mayest be †a multitude of people;

4 And give thee [h]the blessing of Abraham, to thee, and to thy seed with thee; that thou mayest inherit the land †[i]wherein thou art a stranger, which God gave unto Abraham.

5 And Isaac sent away Jacob: and he went to Padan-aram unto Laban, son of Bethuel the Syrian, the brother of Rebekah, Jacob's and Esau's mother.

6 ¶When Esau saw that Isaac had blessed Jacob, and sent him away to Padan-aram, to take him a wife from thence; and that as he blessed him he gave him a charge, saying, Thou shalt not take a wife of the daughters of Canaan;

7 And that Jacob obeyed his father and his mother, and was gone to Padan-aram;

8 And Esau seeing [k]that the daughters of Canaan †pleased not Isaac his father;

9 Then went Esau unto Ishmael, and took unto the wives which he had [l]Mahalath the daughter of Ishmael Abraham's son, [m]the sister of Nebajoth, to be his wife.

10 ¶And Jacob [n]went out from Beer-sheba, and went toward [o]Haran.

11 And he lighted upon a certain place, and tarried there all night, because the sun was set; and he took of the stones of that place, and put them for his pillows, and lay down in that place to sleep.

12 And he [p]dreamed, and behold a ladder set up on the earth, and the top of it reached to heaven: and behold [q]the angels of God ascending and descending on it.

13 [r]And, behold, the LORD stood above it, and said, [s]I am the LORD God of Abraham thy father, and the God of Isaac: [t]the land whereon thou liest, to thee will I give it, and to thy seed;

14 And [u]thy seed shall be as the dust of the earth, and thou shalt †spread abroad [w]to the west, and to the east, and to the north, and to the south: and in thee and [x]in thy seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed.

15 And, behold, [y]I am with thee, and will [z]keep thee in all places whither thou goest, and will [a]bring thee again into this land; for [b]I will not leave thee, [c]until I have done that which I have spoken to thee of.

16 ¶And Jacob awaked out of his sleep, and he said, Surely the LORD is in [d]this place; and I knew it not.

17 And he was afraid, and said, How dreadful is this place! this is none other but the house of God, and this is the gate of heaven.

18 And Jacob rose up early in the morning, and took the stone that he had put for his pillows, and [e]set it up for a pillar, [f]and poured oil upon the top of it.

19 And he called the name of [g]that place ‖ Beth-el: but the name of that city was called Luz at the first.

20 [h]And Jacob vowed a vow, saying, If [i]God will be with me, and will keep me in this way that I go, and will give me [k]bread to eat, and raiment to put on,

21 So that [l]I come again to my father's house in peace; [m]then shall the LORD be my God:

22 And this stone, which I have set for a pillar, [n]shall be God's house: [o]and of all that thou shalt give me I will surely give the tenth unto thee.

CHAP. XXIX.

1 Jacob cometh to the well of Haran: 18 He covenanteth for Rachel: 23 He is deceived with Leah: 28 He marrieth also Rachel, and serveth for her seven years more.

THEN Jacob †went on his journey, [a]and came into the land of the †people of the east.

2 And he looked, and behold a well in the field, and, lo, there were three flocks of sheep lying by it; for out of that well they watered the flocks: and a great stone was upon the well's mouth.

3 And thither were all the flocks gathered: and they rolled the stone from the well's mouth, and watered the sheep, and put the stone again upon the well's mouth in his place.

4 And Jacob said unto them, My brethren, whence be ye? And they said, Of Haran are we.

5 And he said unto them, Know ye Laban the son of Nahor? And they said, We know him.

6 And he said unto them, †[b]Is he well? And they said, He is well: and, behold, Rachel his daughter cometh with the sheep.

7 And he said, Lo, †it is yet high day, neither is it time that the cattle should be gathered together: water ye the sheep, and go and feed them.

8 And they said, We cannot, until all the flocks be gathered together, and till they roll the stone from the well's mouth; then we water the sheep.

9 ¶And while he yet spake with them, [c]Rachel came with her father's sheep: for she kept them.

10 And it came to pass, when Jacob saw Rachel the daughter of Laban his mother's brother, and the sheep of Laban his mother's brother, that Jacob went near, and [d]rolled the stone from the well's mouth, and watered the flock of Laban his mother's brother.

11 And Jacob [e]kissed Rachel, and lifted up his voice, and wept.

12 And Jacob told Rachel that he was [f]her father's brother, and that he was Rebekah's son; [g]and she ran and told her father.

13 And it came to pass, when Laban heard the †tidings of Jacob his sister's son, that [h]he ran to meet him, and embraced him, and kissed him, and brought him to his house. And he told Laban all these things.

14 And Laban said to him, [i]Surely thou art my bone and my flesh. And he abode with him †the space of a month.

15 ¶And Laban said unto Jacob, Because thou art my brother, shouldest thou therefore serve me for nought? tell me, what shall thy wages be?

16 And Laban had two daughters: the name of the elder was Leah, and the name of the younger was Rachel.

17 Leah was tender-eyed; but Rachel was beautiful and well-favoured.

18 And Jacob loved Rachel; and said, [k]I will serve thee seven years for Rachel thy younger daughter.

19 And Laban said, It is better that I give her to thee, than that I should give her to another man: abide with me.

20 And Jacob [l]served seven years for Rachel; and they seemed unto him but a few days, for the love he had to her.

21 ¶And Jacob said unto Laban, Give me my wife, for my days are fulfilled, that I may [m]go in unto her.

22 And Laban gathered together all the men of the place, and [n]made a feast.

23 And it came to pass in the evening, that he took Leah his daughter, and brought her to him; and he went in unto her.

24 And Laban gave unto his daughter Leah, Zilpah his maid, for an handmaid.

25 And it came to pass, that in the morning, behold, it was Leah: and he said to Laban, What is this thou hast done unto me? did not I serve with thee for Rachel? wherefore then hast thou beguiled me?

26 And Laban said, It must not be so done in our country, †to give the younger before the first-born.

27 [o]Fulfil her week, and we will give thee this also for the service which thou shalt serve with me yet seven other years.

28 And Jacob did so, and fulfilled her week: and he gave him Rachel his daughter to wife also.

29 And Laban gave to Rachel his daughter, Bilhah his handmaid, to be her maid.

30 And he went in also unto Rachel, and he [p]loved also Rachel more than Leah, and served with him [q]yet seven other years.

31 ¶And when the LORD [r]saw that Leah was hated, he [s]opened her womb: but Rachel was barren.

32 And Leah conceived, and bare a son, and she called his name ‖Reuben: for she said, Surely the LORD hath [t]looked upon my affliction; now therefore my husband will love me.

33 And she conceived again, and bare a son; and said, Because the LORD hath heard that I was hated, he hath therefore given me this son also: and she called his name ‖Simeon.

34 And she conceived again, and bare a son; and said, Now this time will my husband be joined unto me, because I have born him three sons: therefore was his name called ‖Levi.

35 And she conceived again, and bare a son: and she said, Now will I praise the LORD: therefore she called his name [u]‖Judah; and †left bearing.

AND when Rachel saw that [a]she bare Jacob no children, Rachel [b]envied her sister; and said unto Jacob, Give me children, [c]or else I die.

2 And Jacob's anger was kindled against Rachel: and he said, [d]Am I in God's stead, who hath withheld from thee the fruit of the womb?

3 And she said, Behold [e]my maid Bilhah, go in unto her; [f]and she shall bear upon my knees, [g]that I may also †have children by her.

4 And she gave him Bilhah her handmaid [h]to wife: and Jacob went in unto her.

5 And Bilhah conceived, and bare Jacob a son.

6 And Rachel said, God hath [i]judged me, and hath also heard my voice, and hath given me a son: therefore called she his name ‖Dan.

7 And Bilhah, Rachel's maid, conceived again, and bare Jacob a second son.

8 And Rachel said, With †great wrestlings have I wrestled with my sister, and I have prevailed: and she called his name ‖[k]Naphtali.

9 When Leah saw that she had left bearing, she took Zilpah, her maid, and [l]gave her Jacob to wife.

10 And Zilpah, Leah's maid, bare Jacob a son.

11 And Leah said, A troop cometh: and she called his name ‖Gad.

12 And Zilpah, Leah's maid, bare Jacob a second son.

13 And Leah said, †Happy am I, for the daughters [m]will call me blessed: and she called his name ‖Asher.

14 ¶And Reuben went in the days of wheat-harvest, and found mandrakes in the field, and brought them unto his mother Leah. Then Rachel said to Leah, [n]Give me, I pray thee, of thy son's mandrakes.

15 And she said unto her, [o]Is it a small matter that thou hast taken my husband? and wouldest thou take away my son's mandrakes also? And Rachel said, Therefore he shall lie with thee to-night for thy son's mandrakes.

16 And Jacob came out of the field in the evening, and Leah went out to meet him, and said, Thou must come in unto me; for surely I have hired thee with my son's mandrakes. And he lay with her that night.

17 And God hearkened unto Leah, and she conceived, and bare Jacob the fifth son.

18 And Leah said, God hath given me my hire, because I have given my maiden to my husband: and she called his name ‖Issachar.

19 And Leah conceived again, and bare Jacob the sixth son.

20 And Leah said, God hath endued me with a good dowry; now will my husband dwell with me, because I have born him six sons: and she called his name ‖[p]Zebulun.

21 And afterwards she bare a daughter, and called her name ‖Dinah.

22 ¶And God [q]remembered Rachel, and God hearkened to her, and [r]opened her womb.

23 And she conceived, and bare a son; and said, God hath taken away [s]my reproach:

24 And she called his name ‖Joseph; and said, [t]The LORD shall add to me another son.

25 ¶And it came to pass, when Rachel had borne Joseph, that Jacob said unto Laban, [u]Send me away, that I may go unto [x]mine own place, and to my country.

26 Give me my wives and my children, [y]for whom I have served thee, and let me go: for thou knowest my service which I have done thee.

27 And Laban said unto him, I pray thee, if I have found favour in thine eyes, tarry: for [z]I have learned by experience that the LORD hath blessed me [a]for thy sake.

28 And he said, [b]Appoint me thy wages, and I will give it.

29 And he said unto him, [c]Thou knowest how I have served thee, and how thy cattle was with me.

30 For it was little which thou hadst before I came, and it is now †increased unto a multitude; and the LORD hath blessed thee †since my coming: and now, when shall I [d]provide for mine own house also?

31 And he said, What shall I give thee? And Jacob said, Thou shalt not give me any thing: if thou wilt do this thing for me, I will again feed and keep thy flock.

32 I will pass through all thy flock to-day, removing from thence all the speckled and spotted cattle, and all the brown cattle among the sheep, and the spotted and speckled among the goats: and [c] of such shall be my hire.

33 So shall my [f] righteousness answer for me †in time to come, when it shall come for my hire before thy face: every one that is not speckled and spotted among the goats, and brown among the sheep, that shall be counted stolen with me.

34 And Laban said, Behold, I would it might be according to thy word.

35 And he removed that day the he-goats that were ring-streaked and spotted, and all the she-goats that were speckled and spotted, and every one that had some white in it, and all the brown among the sheep, and gave them into the hand of his sons.

36 And he set three days' journey betwixt himself and Jacob: and Jacob fed the rest of Laban's flocks.

37 ¶And [g] Jacob took him rods of green poplar, and of the hazel and chesnut-tree; and pilled white streaks in them, and made the white appear which was in the rods.

38 And he set the rods which he had pilled before the flocks in the gutters in the watering-troughs when the flocks came to drink, that they should conceive when they came to drink.

39 And the flocks conceived before the rods, and brought forth cattle ring-streaked, speckled, and spotted.

40 And Jacob did separate the lambs, and set the faces of the flocks toward the ring-streaked, and all the brown in the flock of Laban; and he put his own flocks by themselves, and put them not unto Laban's cattle.

41 And it came to pass, whensoever the stronger cattle did conceive, that Jacob laid the rods before the eyes of the cattle in the gutters, that they might conceive among the rods.

42 But when the cattle were feeble, he put them not in: so the feebler were Laban's, and the stronger Jacob's.

43 And the man [h] increased exceedingly, and [i] had much cattle, and maid-servants, and men-servants, and camels, and asses.

CHAP. XXXI.

1 Jacob departeth secretly. 19 Rachel stealeth her father's images. 36 Jacob's complaint of Laban. 43 The covenant of Laban and Jacob at Galeed.

AND he heard the words of Laban's sons, saying, Jacob hath taken away all that was our father's; and of that which was our father's hath he gotten all this [a] glory.

2 And Jacob beheld [b] the countenance of Laban, and, behold, it was not [c] toward him †as before.

3 And the LORD said unto Jacob, [d] Return unto the land of thy fathers, and to thy kindred; and I will be with thee.

4 And Jacob sent and called Rachel and Leah to the field unto his flock,

5 And said unto them, [e] I see your father's countenance, that it is not toward me as before; but the God of my father [f] hath been with me.

6 And [g] ye know that with all my power I have served your father.

7 And your father hath deceived me, and [h] changed my wages [i] ten times; but God [k] suffered him not to hurt me.

8 If he said thus, [l] The speckled shall be thy wages; then all the cattle bare speckled: and if he said thus, The ring-streaked shall be thy hire; then bare all the cattle ring-streaked.

9 Thus God hath [m] taken away the cattle of your father, and given them to me.

10 And it came to pass at the time that the cattle conceived, that I lifted up mine eyes, and saw in a dream, and, behold, the ‖rams which leaped upon the cattle were ring-streaked, speckled, and grizzled.

11 And [n] the angel of God spake unto me in a dream, saying, Jacob: And I said, Here am I.

12 And he said, Lift up now thine eyes, and see, all the rams which leap upon the cattle are ring-streaked, speckled, and grizzled: for [o] I have seen all that Laban doeth unto thee.

13 I am the God of Beth-el, [p] where thou anointedst the pillar, and where thou vowedst a vow unto me: now [q] arise, get thee out from this land, and return unto the land of thy kindred.

14 And Rachel and Leah answered, and said unto him, [r] Is there yet any portion or inheritance for us in our father's house?

15 Are we not counted of him strangers? for [s] he hath sold us, and hath quite devoured also our money.

16 For all the riches which God hath taken from our father, that is ours, and our children's: now then, whatsoever God hath said unto thee, do.

17 ¶Then Jacob rose up, and set his sons and his wives upon camels;

18 And he carried away all his cattle, and all his goods which he had gotten, the cattle of his getting, which he had gotten in Padan-aram: for to go to Isaac his father in the land of Canaan.

19 And Laban went to shear his sheep: and Rachel had stolen the †[t] images that were her father's.

20 And Jacob stole away †unawares to Laban the Syrian, in that he told him not that he fled.

21 So he fled with all that he had; and he rose up, and passed over the river, and [u] set his face toward the mount Gilead.

22 And it was told Laban on the third day, that Jacob was fled.

23 And he took [x] his brethren with him, and pursued after him seven days' journey: and they overtook him in the mount Gilead.

24 And God [y] came to Laban the Syrian in a dream by night, and said unto him, Take heed that thou [z] speak not to Jacob †either good or bad.

25 ¶Then Laban overtook Jacob. Now Jacob had pitched his tent in the mount: and Laban with his brethren pitched in the mount of Gilead.

26 And Laban said to Jacob, What hast thou done, that thou hast stolen away unawares to me, and [a] carried away my daughters, as captives taken with the sword?

27 Wherefore didst thou flee away secretly, and †steal away from me; and didst not tell me, that I might have sent thee away with mirth, and with songs, with tabret, and with harp?

28 And hast not suffered me [b] to kiss my sons and my daughters? [c] thou hast now done foolishly in so doing.

29 It is in the power of my hand to do you hurt: but the [d] God of your father spake unto me [e] yesternight, saying, Take thou heed that thou speak not to Jacob either good or bad.

30 And now, though thou wouldest needs be gone, because thou sore longedst after thy father's house, yet wherefore hast thou [f]stolen my gods?

31 And Jacob answered and said to Laban, Because I was afraid: for I said, Peradventure thou wouldest take by force thy daughters from me.

32 With whomsoever thou findest thy gods, [g]let him not live: before our brethren discern thou what is thine with me, and take it to thee. For Jacob knew not that Rachel had stolen them.

33 And Laban went into Jacob's tent, and into Leah's tent, and into the two maid-servants' tents; but he found them not. Then went he out of Leah's tent, and entered into Rachel's tent.

34 Now Rachel had taken the images, and put them in the camel's furniture, and sat upon them. And Laban †searched all the tent, but found them not.

35 And she said to her father, Let it not displease my lord that I cannot [h]rise up before thee; for the custom of women is upon me. And he searched, but found not the images.

36 ¶And Jacob was wroth, and chode with Laban: and Jacob answered and said to Laban, What is my trespass? what is my sin, that thou hast so hotly pursued after me?

37 Whereas thou hast searched all my stuff, what hast thou found of all thy household stuff? set it here before my brethren and thy brethren, that they may judge betwixt us both.

38 This twenty years have I been with thee; thy ewes and thy she-goats have not cast their young, and the rams of thy flock have I not eaten.

39 [i]That which was torn of beasts I brought not unto thee; I bare the loss of it; of [k]my hand didst thou require it, whether stolen by day, or stolen by night.

40 Thus I was; in the day the drought consumed me, and the frost by night; and my sleep departed from mine eyes.

41 Thus have I been twenty years in thy house; I [l]served thee fourteen years for thy two daughters, and six years for thy cattle: and [m]thou hast changed my wages ten times.

42 [n]Except the God of my father, the God of Abraham, and [o]the Fear of Isaac, had been with me, surely thou hadst sent me away now empty. [p]God hath seen mine affliction and the labour of my hands, and [q]rebuked thee yesternight.

43 ¶And Laban answered and said unto Jacob, These daughters are my daughters, and these children are my children, and these cattle are my cattle, and all that thou seest is mine; and what can I do this day unto these my daughters, or unto their children which they have born?

44 Now therefore come thou, [r]let us make a covenant, I and thou; [s]and let it be for a witness between me and thee.

45 And Jacob [t]took a stone, and set it up for a pillar.

46 And Jacob said unto his brethren, Gather stones; and they took stones, and made an heap: and they did eat there upon the heap.

47 And Laban called it ‖Jegar-sahadutha: but Jacob called it ‖Galeed.

48 And Laban said, [u]This heap is a witness between me and thee this day. Therefore was the name of it called Galeed;

49 And [x]‖Mizpah; for he said, The LORD watch betweeu me and thee, when we are absent one from another.

50 If thou shalt afflict my daughters, or if thou shalt take other wives besides my daughters, no man is with us; see, God is witness betwixt me and thee.

51 And Laban said to Jacob, Behold this heap, and behold this pillar, which I have cast betwixt me and thee;

52 This heap be witness, and this pillar be witness, that I will not pass over this heap to thee, and that thou shalt not pass over this heap and this pillar unto me, for harm.

53 The God of Abraham, and the God of Nahor, the God of their father, [y]judge betwixt us. And Jacob [z]sware by [a]the Fear of his father Isaac.

54 Then Jacob ‖offered sacrifice upon the mount, and called his brethren to eat bread: and they did eat bread, and tarried all night in the mount.

55 And early in the morning Laban rose up, and kissed his sons and his daughters, and [b]blessed them: and Laban departed, and [c]returned unto his place.

CHAP. XXXII.

3 Jacob's message to Esau. 9 He prayeth for his deliverance. 13 He sendeth a present to Esau. 24 He wrestleth with an angel at Peniel, where he is called Israel. 31 He halteth.

AND Jacob went on his way, and [a]the angels of God met him.

2 And when Jacob saw them, he said, This is God's [b]host: and he called the name of that place ‖Mahanaim.

3 And Jacob sent messengers before him to Esau his brother [c]unto the land of Seir, [d]the †country of Edom.

4 And he commanded them, saying, [e]Thus shall ye speak unto my lord Esau; thy servant Jacob saith thus, I have sojourned with Laban, and stayed there until now:

5 And [f]I have oxen, and asses, flocks, and men-servants, and women-servants: and I have sent to tell my lord, that [g]I may find grace in thy sight.

6 ¶And the messengers returned to Jacob, saying, We came to thy brother Esau, and also [h]he cometh to meet thee, and four hundred men with him.

7 Then Jacob was greatly afraid, and [i]distressed: and he divided the people that was with him, and the flocks, and herds, and the camels, into two bands;

8 And said, If Esau come to the one company, and smite it, then the other company which is left shall escape.

9 ¶[k]And Jacob said, [l]O God of my father Abraham, and God of my father Isaac, the LORD [m]which saidst unto me, Return unto thy country, and to thy kindred, and I will deal well with thee:

10 †I am not worthy of the least of all the [n]mercies, and of all the truth, which thou hast shewed unto thy servant; for with [o]my staff I passed over this Jordan; and now I am become two bands.

11 [p]Deliver me, I pray thee, from the hand of my brother, from the hand of Esau: for I fear him, lest he will come and smite me, and [q]the mother †with the children.

12 And [r]thou saidst, I will surely do thee good, and make thy seed as the sand of the sea, which cannot be numbered for multitude.

13 ¶And he lodged there that same night; and took of that which came to his hand [s]a present for Esau his brother;

14 Two hundred she-goats and twenty he-goats, two hundred ewes and twenty rams,

15 Thirty milch camels with their colts, forty kine and ten bulls, twenty she-asses and ten foals.

16 And he delivered them into the hand of his servants, every drove by themselves; and said unto his servants, Pass over before me, and put a space betwixt drove and drove.

17 And he commanded the foremost, saying, When Esau my brother meeteth thee, and asketh thee, saying, Whose art thou? and whither goest thou? and whose are these before thee?

18 Then thou shalt say, They be thy servant Jacob's; it is a present sent unto my lord Esau: and, behold, also he is behind us.

19 And so commanded he the second, and the third, and all that followed the droves, saying, On this manner shall ye speak unto Esau, when ye find him.

20 And say ye moreover, Behold, thy servant Jacob is behind us. For he said, I will [t]appease him with the present that goeth before me, and afterward I will see his face; peradventure he will accept †of me.

21 So went the present over before him; and himself lodged that night in the company.

22 And he rose up that night, and took his two wives, and his two women-servants, and his eleven sons, [u]and passed over the ford Jabbok.

23 And he took them, and †sent them over the brook, and sent over that he had.

24 ¶And Jacob was left alone; and there [x]wrestled a man with him, until the †breaking of the day.

25 And when he saw that he prevailed not against him, he touched the hollow of his thigh: and [y]the hollow of Jacob's thigh was out of joint, as he wrestled with him.

26 And [z]he said, Let me go, for the day breaketh: and he said, [a]I will not let thee go, except thou bless me.

27 And he said unto him, What is thy name? And he said, Jacob.

28 And he said, [b]Thy name shall be called no more Jacob, but ‖Israel: for as a prince hast thou [c]power with God, and [d]with men, and hast prevailed.

29 And Jacob asked him, and said, Tell me, I pray thee, thy name: and he said, [e]Wherefore is it that thou dost ask after my name? And he blessed him there.

30 And Jacob called the name of the place ‖Peniel: for [f]I have seen God face to face, and my life is preserved.

31 And as he passed over Penuel, the sun rose upon him, and he halted upon his thigh.

32 Therefore the children of Israel eat not of the sinew which shrank, which is upon the hollow of the thigh, unto this day; because he touched the hollow of Jacob's thigh in the sinew that shrank.

CHAP. XXXIII.

1 The kindness of Jacob and Esau at their meeting. 18 At Shalem he buyeth a field, and buildeth an altar called El-Elohe-Israel.

AND Jacob lifted up his eyes, and looked, and, behold, [a]Esau came, and with him four hundred men. And he divided the children unto Leah, and unto Rachel, and unto the two handmaids.

2 And he put the handmaids and their children foremost, and Leah and her children after, and Rachel and Joseph hindermost.

3 And he passed over before them, and [b]bowed himself to the ground seven times, until he came near to his brother.

4 [c]And Esau ran to meet him, and embraced him, [d]and fell on his neck, and kissed him: and they wept.

5 And he lifted up his eyes, and saw the women and the children; and said, Who are those †with thee? And he said, The children [e]which God hath graciously given thy servant.

6 Then the handmaidens came near, they and their children, and they bowed themselves.

7 And Leah also with her children came near, and bowed themselves; and after came Joseph near and Rachel, and they bowed themselves.

8 And he said, †What meanest thou by [f]all this drove which I met? And he said, These are [g]to find grace in the sight of my lord.

9 And Esau said, I have enough, my brother; †keep that thou hast unto thyself.

10 And Jacob said, Nay, I pray thee, if now I have found grace in thy sight, then receive my present at my hand: for therefore I [h]have seen thy face, as though I had seen the face of God, and thou wast pleased with me.

11 Take, I pray thee, [i]my blessing that is brought to thee; because God hath dealt graciously with me, and because I have †enough: [k]and he urged him, and he took it.

12 And he said, Let us take our journey, and let us go, and I will go before thee.

13 And he said unto him, My lord knoweth that the children are tender, and the flocks and herds with young are with me, and if men should overdrive them one day, all the flock will die.

14 Let my lord, I pray thee, pass over before his servant: and I will lead on softly, according †as the cattle that goeth before me and the children be able to endure; until I come unto my lord [l]unto Seir.

15 And Esau said, Let me now †leave with thee some of the folk that are with me: and he said, †What needeth it? [m]Let me find grace in the sight of my lord.

16 ¶So Esau returned that day on his way unto Seir.

17 And Jacob journeyed to [n]Succoth, and built him an house, and made booths for his cattle: therefore the name of the place is called ‖Succoth.

18 ¶And Jacob came to [o]Shalem, a city of ‖[p]Shechem, which is in the land of Canaan, when he came from Padan-aram; and pitched his tent before the city.

19 And [q]he bought a parcel of a field, where he had spread his tent, at the hand of the children of ‖Hamor, Shechem's father, for an hundred ‖pieces of money.

20 And he erected there an altar, and [r]called it ‖El-Elohe-Israel.

Jacob, and he loved the damsel, and spake †kindly unto the damsel.

4 And Shechem [c]spake unto his father Hamor, saying, Get me this damsel to wife.

5 And Jacob heard that he had defiled Dinah his daughter: (now his sons were with his cattle in the field: and Jacob [f]held his peace until they were come.)

6 ¶And Hamor the father of Shechem went out unto Jacob to commune with him.

7 And the sons of Jacob came out of the field when they heard it: and the men were grieved, and they [g]were very wroth, because he [h]had wrought folly in Israel, in lying with Jacob's daughter; [i]which thing ought not to be done.

8 And Hamor communed with them, saying, The soul of my son Shechem longeth for your daughter: I pray you give her him to wife.

9 And make ye marriages with us, and give your daughters unto us, and take our daughters unto you.

10 And ye shall dwell with us: and [k]the land shall be before you; dwell and [l]trade ye therein, and [m]get you possessions therein.

11 And Shechem said unto her father, and unto her brethren, Let me find grace in your eyes, and what ye shall say unto me, I will give.

12 Ask me never so much [n]dowry and gift, and I will give according as ye shall say unto me: but give me the damsel to wife.

13 And the sons of Jacob answered Shechem and Hamor his father [o]deceitfully, and said, because he had defiled Dinah their sister:

14 And they said unto them, We cannot do this thing, to give our sister to one that is uncircumcised; for [p]that were a reproach unto us:

15 But in this will we consent unto you: If ye will be as we be, that every male of you be circumcised;

16 Then will we give our daughters unto you, and we will take your daughters to us, and we will dwell with you, and we will become one people.

17 But if ye will not hearken unto us, to be circumcised; then will we take our daughter, and we will be gone.

18 And their words pleased Hamor, and Shechem, Hamor's son.

19 And the young man deferred not to do the thing, because he had delight in Jacob's daughter: and he was [q]more honourable than all the house of his father.

20 ¶And Hamor and Shechem his son came unto the gate of their city, and communed with the men of their city, saying,

21 These men are peaceable with us; therefore let them dwell in the land, and trade therein: for the land, behold, it is large enough for them: let us take their daughters to us for wives, and let us give them our daughters.

22 Only herein will the men consent unto us for to dwell with us, to be one people, if every male among us be circumcised, as they are circumcised.

23 Shall not their cattle, and their substance, and every beast of theirs be ours? only let us consent unto them, and they will dwell with us.

24 And unto Hamor, and unto Shechem his son, hearkened all that [r]went out of the gate of his city: and every male was circumcised, all that went out of the gate of his city.

25 ¶And it came to pass on the third day, when they were sore, that two of the sons of Jacob, [s]Simeon and Levi, Dinah's brethren, took each man his sword, and came upon the city boldly, and slew all the males.

26 And they slew Hamor and Shechem his son with the †edge of the sword, and took Dinah out of Shechem's house, and went out.

27 The sons of Jacob came upon the slain, and spoiled the city; because they had defiled their sister.

28 They took their sheep, and their oxen, and their asses, and that which was in the city, and that which was in the field.

29 And all their wealth, and all their little ones, and their wives took they captive, and spoiled even all that was in the house.

30 And Jacob said to Simeon and Levi, [t]Ye have [u]troubled me [x]to make me to stink among the inhabitants of the land, among the Canaanites, and the Perizzites: [y]and I being few in number, they shall gather themselves together against me, and slay me; and I shall be destroyed, I and my house.

31 And they said, Should he deal with our sister as with an harlot?

AND God said unto Jacob, Arise, go up to [a]Beth-el, and dwell there: and make there an altar unto God, [b]that appeared unto thee [c]when thou fleddest from the face of Esau thy brother.

2 Then Jacob said unto his [d]household, and to all that were with him, Put away [e]the strange gods that are among you, and [f]be clean and change your garments:

3 And let us arise, and go up to Beth-el; and I will make there an altar unto God, [g]who answered me in the day of my distress, [h]and was with me in the way which I went.

4 And they gave unto Jacob all the strange gods which were in their hand, and all their [i]ear-rings which were in their ears; and Jacob hid them under [k]the oak which was by Shechem.

5 And they journeyed: and [l]the terror of God was upon the cities that were round about them, and they did not pursue after the sons of Jacob.

6 ¶So Jacob came to [m]Luz, which is in the land of Canaan, that is Beth-el, he and all the people that were with him.

7 And he [n]built there an altar, and called the place ‖El-beth-el; because [o]there God appeared unto him, when he fled from the face of his brother.

8 But [p]Deborah, Rebekah's nurse, died, and she was buried beneath Beth-el, under an oak: and the name of it was called ‖Allon-bachuth.

9 ¶And [q]God appeared unto Jacob again when he came out of Padan-aram; and blessed him.

10 And God said unto him, Thy name is Jacob: [r]thy name shall not be called any more Jacob, [s]but Israel shall be thy name; and he called his name Israel.

11 And God said unto him, [t]I am God Almighty: be fruitful and multiply; [u]a nation and a company of nations shall be of thee, and kings shall come out of thy loins.

12 And the land [w]which I gave Abraham and Isaac, to thee I will give it, and to thy seed after thee will I give the land.

13 And God [x]went up from him in the place where he talked with him.

14 And Jacob [y] set up a pillar in the place where he talked with him, even a pillar of stone: and he poured a drink-offering thereon, and he poured oil thereon.

15 And Jacob called the name of the place where God spake with him, [z] Beth-el.

16 ¶And they journeyed from Beth-el; and there was but † a little way to come to Ephrath: and Rachel travailed, and she had hard labour.

17 And it came to pass, when she was in hard labour, that the midwife said unto her, Fear not; [a] thou shalt have this son also.

18 And it came to pass, as her soul was in departing, (for she died,) that she called his name ‖ Benoni: but his father called him ‖ Benjamin.

19 And [b] Rachel died, and was buried in the way to [c] Ephrath, which is Beth-lehem.

20 And Jacob set a pillar upon her grave: that is the pillar of Rachel's grave [d] unto this day.

21 ¶And Israel journeyed, and spread his tent beyond [e] the tower of Edar.

22 And it came to pass, when Israel dwelt in that land, that Reuben went and [f] lay with Bilhah his father's concubine: and Israel heard it. Now the sons of Jacob were twelve:

23 The sons of Leah; [g] Reuben, Jacob's first-born, and Simeon, and Levi, and Judah, and Issachar, and Zebulun:

24 The sons of Rachel; Joseph, and Benjamin:

25 And the sons of Bilhah, Rachel's handmaid; Dan, and Naphtali:

26 And the sons of Zilpah, Leah's hand-maid; Gad, and Asher. These are the sons of Jacob, which were born to him in Padan-aram.

27 ¶And Jacob came unto Isaac his father unto [h] Mamre, unto the [i] city of Arbah, which is Hebron, where Abraham and Isaac sojourned.

28 And the days of Isaac were an hundred and fourscore years.

29 And Isaac gave up the ghost and died, and [k] was gathered unto his people, being old and full of days; and [l] his sons Esau and Jacob buried him.

2 [b] Esau took his wives of the daughters of Canaan; Adah the daughter of Elon the Hittite, and [c] Aholibamah the daughter of Anah the daughter of Zibeon the Hivite;

3 And [d] Bashemath, Ishmael's daughter, sister of Nebajoth.

4 And [e] Adah bare to Esau, Eliphaz; and Bashemath bare Reuel;

5 And Aholibamah bare Jeush, and Jaalam, and Korah: these are the sons of Esau, which were born unto him in the land of Canaan.

6 And Esau took his wives, and his sons, and his daughters, and all the † persons of his house, and his cattle, and all his beasts, and all his substance which he had got in the land of Canaan; and went into the country from the face of his brother Jacob.

7 [f] For their riches were more than that they might dwell together: and [g] the land wherein they were strangers could not bear them, because of their cattle.

8 Thus dwelt Esau in [h] mount Seir: [i] Esau is Edom.

9 ¶And these are the generations of Esau the father of the † Edomites, in mount Seir:

AND Jacob dwelt in the land †[a] wherein his father was a stranger, in the land of Canaan.

2 These are the generations of Jacob: Joseph being seventeen years old, was feeding the flock with his brethren; and the lad was with the sons of Bilhah, and with the sons of Zilpah, his father's wives: and Joseph brought unto his father [b]their evil report.

3 Now Israel loved Joseph more than all his children, because he was [c]the son of his old age: and he made him a coat of many ‖ colours.

4 And when his brethren saw that their father loved him more than all his brethren, they [d]hated him, and could not speak peaceably unto him.

5 ¶And Joseph dreamed a dream, and he told it his brethren: and they hated him yet the more.

6 And he said unto them, Hear, I pray you, this dream which I have dreamed:

7 For, [e]behold, we were binding sheaves in the field, and, lo, my sheaf arose, and also stood upright; and, behold, your sheaves stood round about, and made obeisance to my sheaf.

8 And his brethren said to him, Shalt thou indeed reign over us? or shalt thou indeed have dominion over us? And they hated him yet the more for his dreams, and for his words.

9 ¶And he dreamed yet another dream, and told it his brethren, and said, Behold, I have dreamed a dream more: and, behold, [f]the sun and the moon and the eleven stars made obeisance to me.

10 And he told it to his father, and to his brethren: and his father rebuked him, and said unto him, What is this dream that thou hast dreamed? Shall I and thy mother and [g]thy brethren indeed come to bow down ourselves to thee to the earth?

11 And [h]his brethren envied him; but his father [i]observed the saying.

12 ¶And his brethren went to feed their father's flock in Shechem.

13 And Israel said unto Joseph, Do not thy brethren feed the flock in Shechem? Come, and I will send thee unto them. And he said to him, Here am I.

14 And he said to him, Go, I pray thee, †see whether it be well with thy brethren, and well with the flocks; and bring me word again. So he sent him out of the vale of [k]Hebron, and he came to Shechem.

15 ¶And a certain man found him, and, behold, he was wandering in the field: and the man asked him, saying, What seekest thou?

16 And he said, I seek my brethren: [l]tell me, pray thee, where they feed their flocks.

17 And the man said, They are departed hence: for I heard them say, Let us go to Dothan. And Joseph went after his brethren, and found them in [m]Dothan.

18 And when they saw him afar off, even before he came near unto them, [n]they conspired against him to slay him.

19 And they said one to another, Behold, this †dreamer cometh.

20 [o]Come now therefore, and let us slay him, and cast him into some pit; and we will say, Some evil beast hath devoured him: and we shall see what will become of his dreams.

21 And [p]Reuben heard it, and he delivered him out of their hands; and said, Let us not kill him.

22 And Reuben said unto them, Shed no blood, but cast him into this pit that is in the wilderness, and lay no hand upon him; that he might rid him out of their hands, to deliver him to his father again.

23 ¶And it came to pass, when Joseph was come unto his brethren, that they stript Joseph out of his coat, his coat of many ‖ colours that was on him.

24 And they took him, and cast him into a pit: and the pit was empty, there was no water in it.

25 [q]And they sat down to eat bread: and they lifted up their eyes and looked, and, behold, a company of [r]Ishmaelites came from Gilead, with their camels bearing spicery, and [s]balm, and myrrh, going to carry it down to Egypt.

26 And Judah said unto his brethren, What profit is it if we slay our brother, and [t]conceal his blood?

27 Come, and let us sell him to the Ishmaelites, and [u]let not our hand be upon him; for he is [x]our brother, and [y]our flesh: and his brethren †were content.

28 Then there passed by [z]Midianites, merchantmen; and they drew and lifted up Joseph out of the pit, [a]and sold Joseph to the Ishmaelites for [b]twenty pieces of silver: and they brought Joseph into Egypt.

29 ¶And Reuben returned unto the pit; and, behold, Joseph was not in the pit: and he [c]rent his clothes.

30 And he returned unto his brethren, and said, The child [d]is not: and I, whither shall I go?

31 And they took [e]Joseph's coat, and killed a kid of the goats, and dipped the coat in the blood:

32 And they sent the coat of many colours, and they brought it to their father; and said, This have we found: know now whether it be thy son's coat or no.

33 And he knew it, and said, It is my son's coat; an [f]evil beast hath devoured him: Joseph is without doubt rent in pieces.

34 And Jacob [g]rent his clothes, and put sackcloth upon his loins, and mourned for his son many days.

35 And all his sons and all his daughters [h]rose up to comfort him; but he refused to be comforted; and he said, For [i]I will go down into the grave unto my son mourning. Thus his father wept for him.

CHAP. XXXVIII.

6 Er marrieth Tamar. 13 She deceiveth Judah. 27 She beareth twins, Pharez and Zarah.

AND it came to pass at that time, that Judah went down from his brethren, and [a]turned in to a certain Adullamite, whose name was Hirah.

2 And Judah [b]saw there a daughter of a certain Canaanite, whose name was [c]Shuah; and he took her, and went in unto her.

3 And she conceived, and bare a son; and he called his name [d]Er.

4 And she conceived again, and bare a son; and she called his name [e]Onan.

5 And she yet again conceived, and bare a son; and called his name [f]Shelah: and he was at Chezib, when she bare him.

6 And Judah [g]took a wife for Er his first-born, whose name was Tamar.

7 And [h]Er, Judah's first-born, was wicked in the sight of the LORD; [i]and the LORD slew him.

8 And Judah said unto Onan, Go in unto [k]thy brother's wife, and marry her, and raise up seed to thy brother.

9 And Onan knew that the seed should not be [l]his: and it came to pass, when he went in unto his brother's wife, that he spilled it on the ground, lest that he should give seed to his brother.

10 And the thing which he did †displeased the LORD: wherefore he slew [m]him also.

11 Then said Judah to Tamar his daughter-in-law, [n]Remain a widow at thy father's house, till Shelah my son be grown; for he said, Lest peradventure he die also as his brethren did: and Tamar went and dwelt [o]in her father's house.

12 And †in process of time, the daughter of Shuah, Judah's wife died: and Judah [p]was comforted, and went up unto his sheep-shearers to Timnath, he and his friend Hirah the Adullamite.

13 And it was told Tamar, saying, Behold, thy father-in-law goeth up [q]to Timnath, to shear his sheep.

14 And she put her widow's garments off from her, and covered her with a vail, and wrapped herself, and [s]sat in †an open place, which is by the way to Timnath: for she saw [t]that Shelah was grown, and she was not given unto him to wife.

15 When Judah saw her, he thought her to be an harlot; because she had covered her face.

16 And he turned unto her by the way, and said, Go to, I pray thee, let me come in unto thee; (for he knew not that she was his daughter-in-law:) and she said, What wilt thou give me, that thou mayest come in unto me?

17 And he said, [u]I will send thee †a kid from the flock: and she said, [w]Wilt thou give me a pledge, till thou send it?

18 And he said, What pledge shall I give thee? And she said, [x]Thy signet, and thy bracelets, and thy staff that is in thine hand: and he gave it her, and came in unto her, and she conceived by him.

19 And she arose, and went away, and [y]laid by her vail from her, and put on the garments of her widowhood.

20 And Judah sent the kid by the hand of his friend the Adullamite, to receive his pledge from the woman's hand: but he found her not.

21 Then he asked the men of that place, saying, Where is the harlot that was ‖openly by the way-side? And they said, There was no harlot in this place.

22 And he returned to Judah, and said, I cannot find her; and also the men of the place said, that there was no harlot in this place.

23 And Judah said, Let her take it to her, lest we †be shamed: behold, I sent this kid, and thou hast not found her.

24 ¶And it came to pass, about three months after, that it was told Judah, saying, Tamar thy daughter-in-law hath [z]played the harlot; and also, behold, she is with child by whoredom. And Judah said, bring her forth, [a]and let her be burnt.

25 When she was brought forth, she sent to her father-in-law, saying, By the man whose these are, am I with child: and she said, [b]Discern, I pray thee, whose are these, [c]the signet, and bracelets, and staff.

26 And Judah [d]acknowledged them, and said, [e]She hath been more righteous than I; because that [f]I gave her not to Shelah my son: and he knew her again [g]no more.

27 ¶And it came to pass in the time of her travail, that, behold, twins were in her womb.

28 And it came to pass, when she travailed, that the one put out his hand; and the midwife took and bound upon his hand a scarlet thread, saying, This came out first.

29 And it came to pass, as he drew back his hand, that, behold, his brother came out; and she said, ‖How hast thou broken forth? this breach be upon thee: therefore his name was called ‖[h]Pharez.

30 And afterward came out his brother, that had the scarlet thread upon his hand; and his name was called Zarah.

CHAP. XXXIX.

1 Joseph advanced in Potiphar's house. 7 He resisteth his mistress's temptation. 20 He is cast into prison.

AND Joseph was brought down to Egypt: and [a]Potiphar, an officer of Pharaoh, captain of the guard, an Egyptian, [b]bought him of the hands of the Ishmaelites, which had brought him down thither.

2 And [c]the LORD was with Joseph, and he was a prosperous man: and he was in the house of his master the Egyptian.

3 And his master saw that the LORD was with him, and that the LORD [d]made all that he did to prosper in his hand.

4 And Joseph [e]found grace in his sight, and he served him: and he made him [f]overseer over his house, and all that he had he put into his hand.

5 And it came to pass from the time that he had made him overseer in his house, and over all that he had, that [g]the LORD blessed the Egyptian's house for Joseph's sake; and the blessing of the LORD was upon all that he had in the house, and in the field.

6 And he left all that he had in Joseph's hand; and he knew not aught he had, save the bread which he did eat. And Joseph [h]was a goodly person, and well-favoured.

7 ¶And it came to pass after these things, that his master's wife cast her eyes upon Joseph: and she said, [i]Lie with me.

8 But he refused, and said unto his master's wife, Behold, my master wotteth not what is with me in the house, and he hath committed all that he hath to my hand;

9 There is none greater in this house than I; neither hath he kept back any thing from me, but thee, because thou art his wife: [k]how then can I do this great wickedness, and [l]sin against God?

10 And it came to pass, as she spake to Joseph day by day, that he hearkened not unto her, to lie by her, or to be with her.

11 And it came to pass about this time, that Joseph went into the house to do his business; and there was none of the men of the house there within.

12 And [m]she caught him by his garment, saying, Lie with me: and he left his garment in her hand, and fled, and got him out.

13 And it came to pass, when she saw that he had left his garment in her hand, and was fled forth,

14 That she called unto the men of her house, and spake unto them, saying, See, he hath brought in an Hebrew unto us to mock us: he came in unto me to lie with me, and I cried with a †loud voice:

15 And it came to pass, when he heard that I lifted up my voice and cried, that he left his garment with me, and fled, and got him out.

16 And she laid up his garment by her, until his lord came home.

17 And she [n]spake unto him according to these words, saying, The Hebrew servant, which thou hast brought unto us, came in unto me to mock me:

18 And it came to pass, as I lifted up my voice and cried, that he left his garment with me, and fled out.

19 And it came to pass, when his master heard the words of his wife, which she spake unto him, saying, After this manner did thy servant to me; that his [o]wrath was kindled.

20 And Joseph's master took him, and [p]put him into the [q]prison, a place where the king's prisoners were bound: and he was there in the prison.

21 ¶ But the LORD was with Joseph, and †shewed him mercy, and [r]gave him favour in the sight of the keeper of the prison.

22 And the keeper of the prison [s]committed to Joseph's hand all the prisoners that were in the prison; and whatsoever they did there, he was the doer of it.

23 The keeper of the prison looked not to any thing that was under his hand; because [t]the LORD was with him: and that which he did, the LORD made it to prosper.

CHAP. XL.

1 The butler and baker of Pharaoh in prison. 5 He interpreteth their dreams. 23 The ingratitude of the butler.

AND it came to pass after these things, that the [a]butler of the king of Egypt and his baker had offended their lord the king of Egypt.

2 And Pharaoh was [b]wroth against two of his officers, against the chief of the butlers, and against the chief of the bakers.

3 [c]And he put them in ward in the house of the captain of the guard, into the prison, the place where Joseph was bound.

4 And the captain of the guard charged Joseph with them, and he served them; and they continued a season in ward.

5 ¶ And they dreamed a dream both of them, each man his dream in one night, each man according to the interpretation of his dream; the butler and the baker of the king of Egypt, which were bound in the prison.

6 And Joseph came in unto them in the morning, and looked upon them, and, behold, they were sad.

7 And he asked Pharaoh's officers that were with him in the ward of his lord's house, saying, Wherefore †look ye so sadly to-day?

8 And they said unto him, [d]We have dreamed a dream, and there is no interpreter of it. And Joseph said unto them, [e]Do not interpretations belong to God? tell me them, I pray you.

9 And the chief butler told his dream to Joseph, and said to him, In my dream, behold, a vine was before me;

10 And in the vine were three branches: and it was as though it budded, and her blossoms shot forth; and the clusters thereof brought forth ripe grapes:

11 And Pharaoh's cup was in my hand: and I took the grapes, and pressed them into Pharaoh's cup, and I gave the cup into Pharaoh's hand.

12 And Joseph said unto him, [f]This is the interpretation of it: The three branches [g]are three days:

13 Yet within three days shall Pharaoh [h]‖ lift up thy head, and restore thee unto thy place: and thou shalt deliver Pharaoh's cup into his hand, after the former manner when thou wast his butler.

14 But †[i]think on me when it shall be well with thee, and [k]shew kindness, I pray thee, unto me, and make mention of me unto Pharaoh, and bring me out of this house:

15 For indeed I was stolen away out of the land of the Hebrews: [l]and here also have I done nothing that they should put me into the dungeon.

16 When the chief baker saw that the interpretation was good, he said unto Joseph, I also was in my dream, and, behold, I had three ‖ white baskets on my head:

17 And in the uppermost basket there was of all manner of †bake-meats for Pharaoh: and the birds did eat them out of the basket upon my head.

18 And Joseph answered, and said, [m]This is the interpretation thereof: The three baskets are three days:

19 [n]Yet within three days shall Pharaoh ‖ lift up thy head from off thee, and shall hang thee on a tree; and the birds shall eat thy flesh from off thee.

20 ¶ And it came to pass the third day, which was Pharaoh's [o]birth-day, that he [p]made a feast unto all his servants: and he [q]‖ lifted up the head of the chief butler and of the chief baker among his servants.

21 And he [r]restored the chief butler unto his butlership again; and [s]he gave the cup into Pharaoh's hand:

22 But he [t]hanged the chief baker: as Joseph had interpreted to them.

23 Yet did not the chief butler remember Joseph, but [u]forgat him.

2 And, behold, there came up out of the river seven well-favoured kine and fat-fleshed; and they fed in a meadow.

3 And, behold, seven other kine came up after them out of the river, ill-favoured and lean-fleshed; and stood by the other kine upon the brink of the river.

5 And he slept and dreamed the second time: and, behold, seven ears of corn came up upon one stalk, †rank and good.

6 And, behold, seven thin ears and blasted with the east wind sprung up after them.

7 And the seven thin ears devoured the seven rank and full ears. And Pharaoh awoke, and, behold, it was a dream.

8 And it came to pass in the morning, [a]that his spirit was troubled; and he sent and called for all the [b]magicians of Egypt, and all the [c]wise men thereof: and Pharaoh told them his dream; but there was none that could interpret them unto Pharaoh.

9 ¶ Then spake the chief butler unto Pharaoh, saying, I do remember my faults this day:

10 Pharaoh was [d]wroth with his servants, [e]and put me in ward in the captain of the guard's house, both me and the chief baker:

11 And [f]we dreamed a dream in one night, I and he: we dreamed each man according to the interpretation of his dream.

12 And there was there with us a young man, an Hebrew, [g]servant to the captain of the guard; and we told him, and he [h]interpreted to us our dreams; to each man according to his dream he did interpret.

13 And it came to pass, [i]as he interpreted to us, so it was: me he restored unto mine office, and him he hanged.

14 ¶ [k]Then Pharaoh sent and called Joseph, and they [l]†brought him hastily [m]out of the dungeon: and he shaved himself, and changed his raiment, and came in unto Pharaoh.

15 And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, I have dreamed a dream, and there is none that can interpret it: [n]and I have heard say of thee, that ‖thou canst understand a dream to interpret it.

16 And Joseph answered Pharaoh, saying, [o]It is not in me: [p]God shall give Pharaoh an answer of peace.

17 And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, [q]In my dream, behold, I stood upon the bank of the river:

18 And, behold, there came up out of the river seven kine, fat-fleshed, and well-favoured; and they fed in a meadow:

19 And, behold, seven other kine came up after them, poor, and very ill-favoured, and lean-fleshed, such as I never saw in all the land of Egypt for badness:

20 And the lean and the ill-favoured kine did eat up the first seven fat kine:

21 And when they had †eaten them up, it could not be known that they had eaten them; but they were still ill-favoured, as at the beginning. So I awoke.

22 And I saw in my dream, and, behold, seven ears came up in one stalk, full and good:

23 And, behold, seven ears, ‖withered, thin, and blasted with the east wind, sprung up after them:

24 And the thin ears devoured the seven good ears: and [r]I told this unto the magicians; but there was none that could declare it to me.

25 ¶ And Joseph said unto Pharaoh, The dream of Pharaoh is one: [s]God hath shewed Pharaoh what he is about to do.

26 The seven good kine are seven years; and the seven good ears are seven years: the dream is one.

27 And the seven thin and ill-favoured kine that came up after them are seven years; and the seven empty ears blasted with the east wind shall be [t]seven years of famine.

28 [u]This is the thing which I have spoken unto Pharaoh: what God is about to do he sheweth unto Pharaoh.

29 Behold, there come [x]seven years of great plenty throughout all the land of Egypt:

30 And there shall [y]arise after them seven years of famine; and all the plenty shall be forgotten in the land of Egypt; and the famine [z]shall consume the land;

31 And the plenty shall not be known in the land by reason of that famine following: for it shall be very †grievous.

32 And for that the dream was doubled unto Pharaoh twice; it is because the [a]thing is ‖established by God, and God will shortly bring it to pass.

33 Now therefore let Pharaoh look out a man discreet and wise, and set him over the land of Egypt.

34 Let Pharaoh do this, and let him appoint ‖officers over the land, and [b]take up the fifth part of the land of Egypt in the seven plenteous years.

35 And [c]let them gather all the food of those good years that come, and lay up corn under the hand of Pharaoh, and let them keep food in the cities.

36 And that food shall be for store to the land against the seven years of famine, which shall be in the land of Egypt; that the land †[d]perish not through the famine.

37 ¶ And [e]the thing was good in the eyes of Pharaoh, and in the eyes of all his servants.

38 And Pharaoh said unto his servants, Can we find such a one as this is, a man [f]in whom the spirit of God is?

39 And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, Forasmuch as God hath shewed thee all this, there is none so discreet and wise as thou art:

40 [g]Thou shalt be over my house, and according unto thy word shall all my people †be ruled: only in the throne will I be greater than thou.

41 And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, See, I have [h]set thee over all the land of Egypt.

42 And Pharaoh [i]took off his ring from his hand, and put it upon Joseph's hand, and [k]arrayed him in vestures of ‖fine linen, [l]and put a gold chain about his neck;

43 And he made him to ride in the second chariot which he had: [m]and they cried before him, ‖†Bow the knee: and he made him ruler [n]over all the land of Egypt.

44 And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, I am Pharaoh, and without thee shall no man lift up his hand or foot in all the land of Egypt.

45 And Pharaoh called Joseph's name ‖Zaphnath-paaneah; and he gave him to wife Asenath the daughter of Poti-pherah ‖priest of On. And Joseph went out over all the land of Egypt.

46 ¶ And Joseph was thirty years old when he [o]stood before Pharaoh king of Egypt. And Joseph went out from the presence of Pharaoh, and went throughout all the land of Egypt.

47 And in the seven plenteous years the earth brought forth by handfuls.

48 And he gathered up all the food of the seven years, which were in the land of Egypt, and laid up the food in the cities: the food of the field, which was round about every city, laid he up in the same.

49 And Joseph gathered corn [p]as the sand of the 50 [q]And unto Joseph were born two sons before the years of famine came: which Asenath the daughter of Poti-pherah ‖ priest of On bare unto him.

51 And Joseph called the name of the first-born ‖ Manasseh: For God, said he, hath made me forget all my toil, and all my father's house.

52 And the name of the second called he ‖ Ephraim: For God hath caused me to be [r]fruitful in the land of my affliction.

53 ¶ And the seven years of plenteousness, that was in the land of Egypt, were ended.

54 [s]And the seven years of dearth began to come, [t]according as Joseph had said: and the dearth was in all lands; but in all the land of Egypt there was bread.

55 And when all the land of Egypt was famished, the people cried to Pharaoh for bread: and Pharaoh said unto all the Egyptians, Go unto Joseph; what he saith to you, do.

56 And the famine was over all the face of the earth: and Joseph opened † all the storehouses, and sold unto the Egyptians; and the famine waxed sore in the land of Egypt.

57 [x]And all countries came into Egypt to Joseph for to buy corn; because that the famine was so sore in all lands.

CHAP. XLII.

2 Jacob sendeth his ten sons to buy corn in Egypt. 16 They are imprisoned by Joseph for spies. 24 Simeon is kept for a pledge. 36 Jacob refuseth to send Benjamin.

NOW when [a]Jacob saw that there was corn in Egypt, Jacob said unto his sons, Why do ye look one upon another?

2 And he said, Behold, I have heard that there is corn in Egypt: get you down thither, and buy for us from thence; that we may [b]live, and not die.

3 ¶ And Joseph's ten brethren went down to buy corn in Egypt.

4 But Benjamin, Joseph's brother, Jacob sent not with his brethren: for he said, [c]Lest peradventure mischief befall him.

5 And the sons of Israel came to buy corn among those that came: for the famine was [d]in the land of Canaan.

6 And Joseph was the governor [e]over the land, and he it was that sold to all the people of the land: and Joseph's brethren came, and [f]bowed down themselves before him with their faces to the earth.

7 And Joseph saw his brethren, and he knew them, but made himself strange unto them, and spake † roughly unto them; and he said unto them, Whence come ye? And they said, From the land of Canaan to buy food.

8 And Joseph knew his brethren, but they knew not him.

9 And Joseph [g]remembered the dreams which he dreamed of them, and said unto them, Ye are spies; to see the nakedness of the land ye are come.

10 And they said unto him, Nay, my lord, but to buy food are thy servants come.

11 We are all one man's sons; we are true men; thy servants are no spies.

12 And he said unto them, Nay, but to see the nakedness of the land ye are come.

13 And they said, Thy servants are twelve brethren, the sons of one man in the land of Canaan: and behold, the youngest is this day with our father, and one [h]is not.

14 And Joseph said unto them, That is it that I spake unto you, saying, Ye are spies:

15 Hereby ye shall be proved: [i]By the life of Pharaoh ye shall not go forth hence, except your youngest brother come hither.

16 Send one of you, and let him fetch your brother, and ye shall be † kept in prison, that your words may be proved, whether there be any truth in you: or else, by the life of Pharaoh, surely ye are spies.

17 And he † put them all together into ward three days.

18 And Joseph said unto them the third day, This do, and live; [k]for I fear God:

19 If ye be true men, let one of your brethren be bound in the house of your prison: go ye, carry corn for the famine of your houses:

20 But [l]bring your youngest brother unto me; so shall your words be verified, and ye shall not die. And they did so.

21 ¶ And they said one to another, [m]We are verily guilty concerning our brother, in that we saw the anguish of his soul, when he besought us, and we would not hear; [n]therefore is this distress come upon us.

22 And Reuben answered them, saying, [o]Spake I not unto you, saying, Do not sin against the child; and ye would not hear? therefore, behold, also his blood is [p]required.

23 And they knew not that Joseph understood them; for † he spake unto them by an interpreter.

24 And he turned himself about from them, and wept; and returned to them again, and communed with them, and took from them Simeon, and bound him before their eyes.

25 ¶ Then Joseph commanded to fill their sacks with corn, and to restore every man's money into his sack, and to give them provision for the way: and [q]thus did he unto them.

26 And they laded their asses with the corn, and departed thence.

27 And as [r]one of them opened his sack to give his ass provender in the inn, he espied his money: for, behold, it was in his sack's mouth.

28 And he said unto his brethren, My money is restored; and, lo, it is even in my sack: and their heart † failed them, and they were afraid, saying one to another, What is this that God hath done unto us?

29 ¶ And they came unto Jacob their father unto the land of Canaan, and told him all that befell unto them, saying,

30 The man, who is the lord of the land, [s]spake † roughly to us, and took us for spies of the country.

31 And we said unto him, We are true men; we are no spies:

32 We be twelve brethren, sons of our father: one is not, and the youngest is this day with our father in the land of Canaan.

33 And the man, the lord of the country, said unto us, [t]Hereby shall I know that ye are true men: leave one of your brethren here with me, and take food for the famine of your households, and be gone:

34 And bring your youngest brother unto me: then shall I know that ye are no spies, but that ye are true men: so will I deliver you your brother, and ye shall [u]traffick in the land.

CHAP. XLIII.

1 Jacob is hardly persuaded to send Benjamin. 15 Joseph entertaineth his brethren. 31 He maketh them a feast.

AND the famine was [a] sore in the land.

2 And it came to pass, when they had eaten up the corn which they had brought out of Egypt, their father said unto them, Go again, buy us a little food.

3 And Judah spake unto him, saying, The man † did solemnly protest unto us, saying, Ye shall not see my face, except your [b] brother be with you.

4 If thou wilt send our brother with us, we will go down and buy thee food:

5 But if thou wilt not send him, we will not go down: for the man said unto us, Ye shall not see my face, except your brother be with you.

6 And Israel said, Wherefore dealt ye so ill with me, as to tell the man whether ye had yet a brother?

7 And they said, The man † asked us straitly of our state, and of our kindred, saying, Is your father yet alive? have ye another brother? and we told him according to the † tenor of these words: † could we certainly know that he would say, Bring your brother down?

8 And Judah said unto Israel his father, Send the lad with me, and we will arise and go; that we may live, and not die, both we, and thou, and also our little ones.

9 I will be surety for him; of my hand shalt thou require him: [c] if I bring him not unto thee, and set him before thee, then let me bear the blame for ever:

10 For except we had lingered, surely now we had returned ‖ this second time.

11 And their father Israel said unto them, If it must be so now, do this; take of the best fruits in the land in your vessels, and [d] carry down the man a present, a little [e] balm, and a little honey, spices, and myrrh, nuts, and almonds:

12 And take double money in your hand; and the money [f] that was brought again in the mouth of your sacks, carry it again in your hand; peradventure it was an oversight:

13 Take also your brother, and arise, go again unto the man:

14 And God Almighty give you mercy before the man, that he may send away your other brother, and Benjamin. [g] ‖ If I be bereaved of my children, I am bereaved.

15 ¶ And the men took that present, and they took double money in their hand, and Benjamin; and rose up, and went down to Egypt, and stood before Joseph.

16 And when Joseph saw Benjamin with them, he said to the [h] ruler of his house, Bring these men home, and † slay, and make ready; for these men shall † dine with me at noon.

17 And the man did as Joseph bade; and the man brought the men into Joseph's house.

18 And the men were afraid, because they were brought into Joseph's house; and they said, Because of the money that was returned in our sacks at the first time, are we brought in; that he may † seek occasion against us, and fall upon us, and take us for bondmen, and our asses.

19 And they came near to the steward of Joseph's house, and they communed with him at the door of the house,

20 And said, O sir, [i] † we came indeed down at the first time to buy food:

21 And [k] it came to pass, when we came to the inn, that we opened our sacks, and, behold, every man's money was in the mouth of his sack, our money in full weight: and we have brought it again in our hand.

22 And other money have we brought down in our hands to buy food: we cannot tell who put our money in our sacks.

23 And he said, Peace be to you, fear not: your God, and the God of your father, hath given you treasure in your sacks: † I had your money. And he brought Simeon out unto them.

24 And the man brought the men into Joseph's house, and [l] gave them water, and they washed their feet; and he gave their asses provender.

25 And they made ready the present against Joseph came at noon: for they heard that they should eat bread there.

26 ¶ And when Joseph came home, they brought him the present which was in their hand into the house, and [m] bowed themselves to him to the earth.

27 And he asked them of their † welfare, and said, † Is your father well, the old man [n] of whom ye spake? Is he yet alive?

28 And they answered, Thy servant our father is in good health, he is yet alive. [o] And they bowed down their heads, and made obeisance.

29 And he lifted up his eyes, and saw his brother Benjamin, [p] his mother's son, and said, Is this your younger brother, [q] of whom ye spake unto me? And he said, God be gracious unto thee, my son.

30 And Joseph made haste; for [r] his bowels did yearn upon his brother: and he sought where to weep; and he entered into his chamber, and [s] wept there.

31 And he washed his face, and went out, and refrained himself, and said, Set on [t] bread.

32 And they set on for him by himself, and for them by themselves, and for the Egyptians, which did eat with him, by themselves: because the Egyptians might not eat bread with the Hebrews; for that is [u] an abomination unto the Egyptians.

33 And they sat before him, the first-born according to his birth-right, and the youngest according to his youth: and the men marvelled one at another.

34 And he took and sent messes unto them from before him: but Benjamin's mess was [x] five times so much as any of theirs. And they drank, and † were merry with him.

as they can carry, and put every man's money in his sack's mouth.

2 And put my cup, the silver cup, in the sack's mouth of the youngest, and his corn-money. And he did according to the word that Joseph had spoken.

3 As soon as the morning was light, the men were sent away, they, and their asses.

4 And when they were gone out of the city, and not yet far off, Joseph said unto his steward, Up, follow after the men; and when thou dost overtake them, say unto them, Wherefore have ye rewarded evil for good?

5 Is not this it in which my lord drinketh, and whereby indeed he ‖ divineth? ye have done evil in so doing.

6 ¶ And he overtook them, and he spake unto them these same words.

7 And they said unto him, Wherefore saith my lord these words? God forbid that thy servants should do according to this thing:

8 Behold, [a] the money which we found in our sacks' mouths, we brought again unto thee out of the land of Canaan: how then should we steal out of thy lord's house silver or gold?

9 With whomsoever of thy servants it be found, [b] both let him die, and we also will be my lord's bond-men.

10 And he said, Now also let it be according unto your words: he with whom it is found shall be my servant; and ye shall be blameless.

11 Then they speedily took down every man his sack to the ground, and opened every man his sack.

12 And he searched, and began at the eldest, and left at the youngest: and the cup was found in Benjamin's sack.

13 Then they [c] rent their clothes, and laded every man his ass, and returned to the city.

14 ¶ And Judah and his brethren came to Joseph's house; for he was yet there: and they [d] fell before him on the ground.

15 And Joseph said unto them, What deed is this that ye have done? wot ye not that such a man as I can certainly ‖ divine?

16 And Judah said, What shall we say unto my lord? what shall we speak? or how shall we clear ourselves? God hath found out the iniquity of thy servants: behold [e] we are my lord's servants, both we, and he also with whom the cup is found.

17 And he said, [f] God forbid that I should do so: but the man in whose hand the cup is found, he shall be my servant; and as for you, get you up in peace unto your father.

18 ¶ Then Judah came near unto him, and said, O my lord, let thy servant, I pray thee, speak a word in my lord's ears, and [g] let not thine anger burn against thy servant: for thou art even as Pharaoh.

19 My lord asked his servants, saying, Have ye a father, or a brother?

20 And we said unto my lord, We have a father, an old man, and [h] a child of his old age, a little one: and his brother is dead, and he alone is left of his mother, and his father loveth him.

21 And thou saidst unto thy servants, [i] Bring him down unto me, that I may set mine eyes upon him.

22 And we said unto my lord, The lad cannot leave his father: for if he should leave his father, his father would die.

23 And thou saidst unto thy servants, [k] Except your youngest brother come down with you, ye shall see my face no more.

24 And it came to pass, when we came up unto thy servant my father, we told him the words of my lord.

25 And [l] our father said, Go again, and buy us a little food.

26 And we said, We cannot go down: if our youngest brother be with us, then will we go down; for we may not see the man's face, except our youngest brother be with us.

27 And thy servant my father said unto us, Ye know that [m] my wife bare me two sons:

28 And the one went out from me, and I said, [n] Surely he is torn in pieces; and I saw him not since:

29 And if ye [o] take this also from me, and mischief befall him, ye shall bring down my gray hairs with sorrow to the grave.

30 Now therefore when I come to thy servant my father, and the lad be not with us; (seeing that [p] his life is bound up in the lad's life;)

31 It shall come to pass, when he seeth that the lad is not with us, that he will die: and thy servants shall bring down the gray hairs of thy servant our father with sorrow to the grave.

32 For thy servant became surety for the lad unto my father, saying, [q] If I bring him not unto thee, then I shall bear the blame to my father for ever.

33 Now therefore, I pray thee, [r] let thy servant abide instead of the lad a bondman to my lord; and let the lad go up with his brethren.

34 For how shall I go up to my father, and the lad be not with me? lest peradventure I see the evil that shall † come on my father.

CHAP. XLV.

1 Joseph maketh himself known to his brethren. 9 He sendeth for his father 25 Jacob is revived with the news.

THEN Joseph could not refrain himself before all them that stood by him; and he cried, Cause every man to go out from me: and there stood no man with him, while Joseph made himself known unto his brethren.

2 And he † wept aloud; and the Egyptians and the house of Pharaoh heard.

3 And Joseph said unto his brethren, [a] I am Joseph; doth my father yet live? And his brethren could not answer him; for they were ‖ troubled at his presence.

4 And Joseph said unto his brethren, Come near to me, I pray you: and they came near: and he said, I am Joseph your brother, [b] whom ye sold into Egypt.

5 Now therefore [c] be not grieved, † nor angry with yourselves, that ye sold me hither: [d] for God did send me before you to preserve life.

6 For these two years hath the famine been in the land: and yet there are five years, in the which there shall neither be earing nor harvest.

7 And God sent me before you, † to preserve you a posterity in the earth, and to save your lives by a great deliverance.

8 So now it was not you that sent me hither, but God: and he hath made me [e] a father to Pharaoh and lord of all his house, and a ruler throughout all the land of Egypt.

9 Haste ye, and go up to my father, and say unto him, Thus saith thy son Joseph, God hath made me lord of all Egypt; come down unto me, tarry not:

10 And [f] thou shalt dwell in the land of Goshen, and thou shalt be near unto me, thou, and thy children, and thy children's children, and thy flocks, and thy herds, and all that thou hast:

11 And there will I nourish thee, (for yet there are five years of famine;) lest thou, and thy household, and all that thou hast, come to poverty.

12 And, behold, your eyes see, and the eyes of my brother Benjamin, that it is [g] my mouth that speaketh unto you.

13 And ye shall tell my father of all my glory in Egypt, and of all that ye have seen: and ye shall haste, and [h] bring down my father hither.

14 And he fell upon his brother Benjamin's neck, and wept; and Benjamin wept upon his neck.

15 Moreover, he kissed all his brethren, and wept upon them: and after that his brethren talked with him.

16 ¶ And the fame thereof was heard in Pharaoh's house, saying, Joseph's brethren are come: and it †pleased Pharaoh well, and his servants.

17 And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, Say unto thy brethren, This do ye; lade your beasts, and go, get you unto the land of Canaan;

18 And take your father, and your households, and come unto me: and I will give you the good of the land of Egypt, and ye shall eat [i] the fat of the land.

19 Now thou art commanded, this do ye; take you wagons out of the land of Egypt for your little ones, and for your wives, and bring your father, and come.

20 Also †regard not your stuff: for the good of all the land of Egypt is yours.

21 And the children of Israel did so: and Joseph gave them wagons, according to the †commandment of Pharaoh, and gave them provision for the way.

22 To all of them he gave each man changes of raiment: but to Benjamin he gave three hundred pieces of silver, and [k] five changes of raiment.

23 And to his father he sent after this manner; ten asses †laden with the good things of Egypt, and ten she asses laden with corn and bread and meat for his father by the way.

24 So he sent his brethren away, and they departed: and he said unto them, See that ye fall not out by the way.

25 ¶ And they went up out of Egypt, and came into the land of Canaan unto Jacob their father,

26 And told him, saying, Joseph is yet alive, and he is governor over all the land of Egypt. [l] And †Jacob's heart fainted, for he believed them not.

27 And they told him all the words of Joseph, which he had said unto them: and when he saw the wagons which Joseph had sent to carry him, the spirit of Jacob their father revived:

28 And Israel said, It is enough; Joseph my son is yet alive: I will go and see him before I die.

CHAP. XLVI.

1 Jacob is comforted by God at Beer-sheba. 5 Thence he with his company goeth into Egypt.

AND Israel took his journey with all that he had, and came to [a] Beer-sheba, and offered sacrifices [b] unto the God of his father Isaac.

2 And God spake unto Israel [c] in the visions of the night, and said, Jacob, Jacob! and he said, Here am I.

3 And he said, I am God, [d] the God of thy father: fear not to go down into Egypt; for I will there [e] make of thee a great nation:

4 [f] I will go down with thee into Egypt; and I will also surely [g] bring thee up again: and [h] Joseph shall put his hand upon thine eyes.

5 And [i] Jacob rose up from Beer-sheba: and the sons of Israel carried Jacob their father, and their little ones, and their wives, in the wagons [k] which Pharaoh had sent to carry him.

6 And they took their cattle, and their goods, which they had gotten in the land of Canaan, and came into Egypt, [l] Jacob, and all his seed with him;

7 His sons, and his sons' sons with him, his daughters, and his sons' daughters, and all his seed brought he with him into Egypt.

8 ¶ And [m] these are the names of the children of Israel, which came into Egypt, Jacob and his sons: [n] Reuben, Jacob's first-born.

9 And the sons of Reuben; Hanoch, and Phallu, and Hezron, and Carmi.

10 ¶ And [o] the sons of Simeon; ‖ Jemuel, and Jamin, and Ohad, and ‖ Jachin, and ‖ Zohah, and Shaul the son of a Canaanitish woman.

11 ¶ And the sons of [p] Levi; ‖ Gershon, Kohath, and Merari.

12 ¶ And the sons of [q] Judah; Er, and Onan, and Shelah, and Pharez, and Zarah: but [r] Er and Onan died in the land of Canaan. And [s] the sons of Pharez were Hezron, and Hamul.

13 ¶ [t] And the sons of Issachar; Tola, and ‖ Phuvah, and Job, and Shimron.

14 ¶ And the sons of Zebulun; Sered, and Elon, and Jahleel.

15 These be the sons of Leah, which she bare unto Jacob in Padan-aram, with his daughter Dinah: all the souls of his sons and his daughters were thirty and three.

16 ¶ And the sons of Gad; [u] Ziphion, and Haggi, Shuni, and ‖ Ezbon, Eri, and ‖ Arodi, and Areli.

17 ¶ [x] And the sons of Asher; Jimnah, and Ishuah, and Isui, and Beriah, and Serah their sister. And the sons of Beriah; Heber, and Malchiel.

18 [y] These are the sons of Zilpah, [z] whom Laban gave to Leah his daughter: and these she bare unto Jacob, even sixteen souls.

19 The sons of Rachel, [a] Jacob's wife; Joseph, and Benjamin.

20 ¶ [b] And unto Joseph in the land of Egypt were born Manasseh and Ephraim, which Asenath the daughter of Poti-pherah ‖ priest of On bare unto him.

21 ¶ [c] And the sons of Benjamin were Belah, and Becher, and Ashbel, Gera, and Naaman, [d] Ehi, and Rosh, [e] Muppim, and ‖ Huppim, and Ard.

22 These are the sons of Rachel, which were born to Jacob; all the souls were fourteen.

23 ¶ [f] And the sons of Dan; ‖ Hushim.

24 ¶ [g] And the sons of Naphtali; Jahzeel, and Guni, and Jezer, and Shillem.

25 [h] These are the sons of Bilhah, [i] which Laban gave unto Rachel his daughter, and she bare these unto Jacob: all the souls were seven.

26 [k] All the souls that came with Jacob into Egypt, which came out of his †loins, besides Jacob's sons' wives, all the souls were threescore and six;

27 And the sons of Joseph, which were born him in Egypt, were two souls: [l] all the souls of the house of Jacob, which came into Egypt, were threescore and ten.

28 ¶ And he sent Judah before him unto Joseph, [m] to direct his face unto Goshen; and they came [n] into the land of Goshen.

29 And Joseph made ready his chariot, and went up to meet Israel his father, to Goshen; and presented himself unto him: and he [o]fell on his neck, and wept on his neck a good while.

30 And Israel said unto Joseph, [p]Now let me die, since I have seen thy face, because thou art yet alive.

31 And Joseph said unto his brethren, and unto his father's house, [q]I will go up, and shew Pharaoh, and say unto him, My brethren, and my father's house, which were in the land of Canaan, are come unto me:

32 And the men are shepherds, for †their trade hath been to feed cattle; and they have brought their flocks, and their herds, and all that they have.

33 And it shall come to pass, when Pharaoh shall call you, and shall say, [r]What is your occupation?

34 That ye shall say, Thy servants' [s]trade hath been about cattle 'from our youth even until now, both we, and also our fathers: that ye may dwell in the land of Goshen; for every shepherd is [u]an abomination unto the Egyptians.

CHAP. XLVII.

2 Joseph presenteth five of his brethren, and his father, before Pharaoh. 28 Jacob's age. 29 He sweareth Joseph to bury him with his fathers.

[1] THEN Joseph [a]came and told Pharaoh, and said, My father and my brethren, and their flocks, and their herds, and all that they have, are come out of the land of Canaan; and, behold, they are in [b]the land of Goshen.

2 And he took some of his brethren, even five men, and [c]presented them unto Pharaoh.

3 And Pharaoh said unto his brethren, [d]What is your occupation? And they said unto Pharaoh, [e]Thy servants are shepherds, both we, and also our fathers.

4 They said moreover unto Pharaoh, [f]For to sojourn in the land are we come: for thy servants have no pasture for their flocks, [g]for the famine is sore in the land of Canaan: now therefore, we pray thee, let thy servants [h]dwell in the land of Goshen.

5 And Pharaoh spake unto Joseph, saying, Thy father and thy brethren are come unto thee:

6 [i]The land of Egypt is before thee; in the best of the land make thy father and brethren to dwell; [k]in the land of Goshen let them dwell: and if thou knowest any men of activity among them, then make them rulers over my cattle.

7 And Joseph brought in Jacob his father, and set him before Pharaoh: and Jacob blessed Pharaoh.

8 And Pharaoh said unto Jacob, †How old art thou?

9 And Jacob said unto Pharaoh, 'The days of the years of my pilgrimage are an hundred and thirty years: [m]few and evil have the days of the years of my life been, and [n]have not attained unto the days of the years of the life of my fathers in the days of their pilgrimage.

10 And Jacob [o]blessed Pharaoh, and went out from before Pharaoh.

11 ¶And Joseph placed his father and his brethren, and gave them a possession in the land of Egypt, in the best of the land, in the land of [p]Rameses, [q]as Pharaoh had commanded.

12 And Joseph nourished his father, and his brethren, and all his father's household, with bread ‖†according to their families.

13 ¶And there was no bread in all the land; for the famine was very sore, [r]so that the land of Egypt, and all the land of Canaan, fainted by reason of the famine.

14 [s]And Joseph gathered up all the money that was found in the land of Egypt, and in the land of Canaan, for the corn which they bought: and Joseph brought the money into Pharaoh's house.

15 And when money failed in the land of Egypt, and in the land of Canaan, all the Egyptians came unto Joseph, and said, Give us bread: for [t]why should we die in thy presence? for the money faileth.

16 And Joseph said, Give your cattle; and I will give you for your cattle, if money fail.

17 And they brought their cattle unto Joseph: and Joseph gave them bread in exchange for horses, and for the flocks, and for the cattle of the herds, and for the asses; and he †fed them with bread, for all their cattle, for that year.

18 When that year was ended, they came unto him the second year, and said unto him, We will not hide it from my lord, how that our money is spent; my lord also hath our herds of cattle: there is not aught left in the sight of my lord, but our bodies and our lands:

19 Wherefore shall we die before thine eyes, both we and our land? buy us and our land for bread, and we and our land will be servants unto Pharaoh: and give us seed, that we may live, and not die, that the land be not desolate.

20 And Joseph bought all the land of Egypt for Pharaoh; for the Egyptians sold every man his field, because the famine prevailed over them: so the land became Pharaoh's.

21 And as for the people, he removed them to cities from one end of the borders of Egypt even to the other end thereof.

22 [u]Only the land of the ‖priests bought he not; for the priests had a portion assigned them of Pharaoh, and did eat their portion which Pharaoh gave them: wherefore they sold not their lands.

23 Then Joseph said unto the people, Behold, I have bought you this day and your land for Pharaoh: lo, here is seed for you, and ye shall sow the land.

24 And it shall come to pass in the increase, that ye shall give the fifth part unto Pharaoh, and four parts shall be your own, for seed of the field, and for your food, and for them of your households, and for food for your little ones.

25 And they said, Thou hast saved our lives: [x]let us find grace in the sight of my lord, and we will be Pharaoh's servants.

26 And Joseph made it a law over the land of Egypt unto this day, that Pharaoh should have the fifth part; [y]except the land of the ‖priests only, which became not Pharaoh's.

27 ¶And Israel [z]dwelt in the land of Egypt, in the country of Goshen; and they had possessions therein, and [a]grew, and multiplied exceedingly.

28 And Jacob lived in the land of Egypt seventeen years: so †the whole age of Jacob was an hundred forty and seven years.

29 And the time [b]drew nigh that Israel must die: and he called his son Joseph, and said unto him, If now I have found grace in thy sight, [c]put, I pray thee, thy hand under my thigh, and [d]deal kindly and truly with me; [e]bury me not, I pray thee, in Egypt:

30 But [f]I will lie with my fathers, and thou shalt carry me out of Egypt, and [g]bury me in their burying-place. And he said, I will do as thou hast said.

31 And he said, Swear unto me: and he sware unto him. And [h]Israel bowed himself upon the bed's head.

CHAP. XLVIII.

1 Joseph with his sons visiteth his sick father. 2 Jacob strengtheneth himself to bless them. 3 He repeateth the promise. 21 He prophesieth their return to Canaan.

AND it came to pass after these things, that one told Joseph, Behold, thy father is sick: and he took with him his two sons, Manasseh and Ephraim.

2 And one told Jacob, and said, Behold, thy son Joseph cometh unto thee: and Israel strengthened himself, and sat upon the bed.

3 And Jacob said unto Joseph, God Almighty appeared unto me at [a] Luz in the land of Canaan, and blessed me,

4 And said unto me, Behold, I will make thee fruitful, and multiply thee, and I will make of thee a multitude of people; and will give this land to thy seed after thee, [b] for an everlasting possession.

5 ¶ And now, thy [c] two sons, Ephraim and Manasseh, which were born unto thee in the land of Egypt, before I came unto thee into Egypt, are mine: as Reuben and Simeon, they shall be mine.

6 And thy issue, which thou begettest after them, shall be thine, and shall be called after the name of their brethren in their inheritance.

7 And as for me, when I came from Padan, [d] Rachel died by me in the land of Canaan, in the way, when yet there was but a little way to come unto Ephrath: and I buried her there in the way of Ephrath, the same is Beth-lehem.

8 And Israel beheld Joseph's sons, and said, Who are these?

9 And Joseph said unto his father, [e] They are my sons, whom God hath given me in this place. And he said, Bring them, I pray thee, unto me, and [f] I will bless them.

10 (Now [g] the eyes of Israel were † dim for age, so that he could not see:) and he brought them near unto him; and [h] he kissed them, and embraced them.

11 And Israel said unto Joseph, [i] I had not thought to see thy face: and lo, God hath shewed me also thy seed.

12 And Joseph brought them out from between his knees, and he bowed himself with his face to the earth.

13 And Joseph took them both, Ephraim in his right hand toward Israel's left hand, and Manasseh in his left hand toward Israel's right hand, and brought them near unto him.

14 And Israel stretched out his right hand, and laid it upon Ephraim's head, who was the younger, and his left hand upon Manasseh's head, [k] guiding his hands wittingly; for Manasseh was the first-born.

15 ¶ And [l] he blessed Joseph, and said, God, [m] before whom my fathers Abraham and Isaac did walk, the God which fed me all my life long unto this day,

16 The Angel [n] which redeemed me from all evil, bless the lads; and let [o] my name be named on them, and the name of my fathers Abraham and Isaac: and let them † grow into a multitude in the midst of the earth.

17 And when Joseph saw that his father [p] laid his right hand upon the head of Ephraim, it ‖ displeased him: and he held up his father's hand, to remove it from Ephraim's head unto Manasseh's head.

18 And Joseph said unto his father, Not so, my father: for this is the first-born; put thy right hand upon his head.

19 And his father refused, and said, [q] I know it, my son, I know it: he also shall become a people, and he also shall be great: but truly [r] his younger brother shall be greater than he, and his seed shall become a † multitude of nations.

20 And he blessed them that day, saying, [s] In thee shall Israel bless, saying, God make thee as Ephraim and as Manasseh: and he set Ephraim before Manasseh.

21 And Israel said unto Joseph, Behold, I die; but [t] God shall be with you, and bring you again unto the land of your fathers.

22 Moreover [u] I have given to thee one portion above thy brethren, which I took out of the hand [x] of the Amorite with my sword and with my bow.

CHAP. XLIX.

1 Jacob calleth his sons to bless them. 3 Their blessings in particular. 29 He chargeth them about his burial. 33 He dieth.

AND Jacob called unto his sons, and said, Gather yourselves together, that I may [a] tell you that which shall befall you [b] in the last days.

2 Gather yourselves together, and hear, ye sons of Jacob; and [c] hearken unto Israel your father.

3 ¶ Reuben, thou art [d] my first-born, my might, [e] and the beginning of my strength, the excellency of dignity, and the excellency of power:

4 Unstable as water, † [f] thou shalt not excel; because thou [g] wentest up to thy father's bed; then defiledst thou it: ‖ he went up to my couch.

5 ¶ [h] Simeon and Levi are [i] brethren; ‖ [k] instruments of cruelty are in their habitations.

6 O my soul, [l] come not thou into their secret; [m] unto their assembly, [n] mine honour, be not thou united! for [o] in their anger they slew a man, and in their self-will they ‖ digged down a wall.

7 Cursed be their anger, for it was fierce: and their wrath, for it was cruel: [p] I will divide them in Jacob, and scatter them in Israel.

8 ¶ [q] Judah, thou art he whom thy brethren shall praise; [r] thy hand shall be in the neck of thine enemies; [s] thy father's children shall bow down before thee.

9 Judah is [t] a lion's whelp; from the prey, my son, thou art gone up: [u] he stooped down, he couched as a lion, and as an old lion: who shall rouse him up?

10 [x] The sceptre shall not depart from Judah, nor [y] a lawgiver [z] from between his feet, [a] until Shiloh come: [b] and unto him shall the gathering of the people be.

11 [c] Binding his foal unto the vine, and his ass's colt unto the choice vine; he washed his garments in wine, and his clothes in the blood of grapes:

12 His [d] eyes shall be red with wine, and his teeth white with milk.

13 ¶ [e] Zebulun shall dwell at the haven of the sea; and he shall be for an haven of ships; and his border shall be unto Zidon.

14 ¶ Issachar is a strong ass, couching down between two burdens:

15 And he saw that rest was good, and the land that it was pleasant; and bowed [f] his shoulder to bear, and became a servant unto tribute.

16 ¶ [g] Dan shall judge his people, as one of the tribes of Israel.

17 [h] Dan shall be a serpent by the way, † an adder in the path, that biteth the horse-heels, so that his rider shall fall backward.

18 [i] I have waited for thy salvation, O LORD!

19 ¶ [k] Gad, a troop shall overcome him: but he shall overcome at the last.

20 ¶ Out of Asher his bread shall be fat, and he shall yield royal dainties.

23 The archers have [n]sorely grieved him, and shot at him, and hated him:

24 But his [o]bow abode in strength, and the arms of his hands were made strong by the hands of [p]the mighty God of Jacob: ([q]from thence [r]is the shepherd, [s]the stone of Israel:)

25 [t]Even by the God of thy father, who shall help thee, [u]and by the Almighty, [x]who shall bless thee with blessings of heaven above, blessings of the deep that lieth under, blessings of the breasts and of the womb:

26 The blessings of thy father have prevailed above the blessings of my progenitors, [y]unto the utmost bound of the everlasting hills; [z]they shall be on the head of Joseph, and on the crown of the head of him that was separate from his brethren.

27 ¶ Benjamin shall [a]raven as a wolf; in the morning he shall devour the prey, [b]and at night he shall divide the spoil.

28 ¶ All these are the twelve tribes of Israel: and this is it that their father spake unto them, and blessed them: every one according to his blessing he blessed them.

29 And he charged them, and said unto them, I [c]am to be gathered unto my people: [d]bury me with my fathers [e]in the cave that is in the field of Ephron the Hittite,

30 In the cave that is in the field of Machpelah which is before Mamre, in the land of Canaan, [f]which Abraham bought with the field of Ephron the Hittite for a possession of a burying-place.

31 ([g]There they buried Abraham and Sarah his wife; [h]there they buried Isaac and Rebekah his wife; and there I buried Leah.)

32 The purchase of the field and of the cave that is therein, was from the children of Heth.

33 And when Jacob had made an end of commanding his sons, he gathered up his feet into the bed, and yielded up the ghost, and [i]was gathered unto his people.

CHAP. L.

1 The mourning for Jacob. 4 Joseph getteth leave of Pharaoh to go to bury him. 24 He prophesieth unto his brethren of their return. 25 He taketh an oath of them for his bones. 26 He dieth.

AND Joseph [a]fell upon his father's face, and [b]wept upon him, and kissed him.

2 And Joseph commanded his servants the physicians to [c]embalm his father: and the physicians embalmed Israel.

3 And forty days were fulfilled for him; for so are fulfilled the days of those which are embalmed: and the Egyptians †[d]mourned for him threescore and ten days.

4 And when the days of his mourning were past, Joseph spake unto [e]the house of Pharaoh, saying, If now I have found grace in your eyes, speak, I pray you, in the ears of Pharaoh, saying,

5 [f]My father made me swear, saying, Lo, I die: in my grave [g]which I have digged for me in the land of Canaan, there shalt thou bury me. Now therefore let me go up, I pray thee, and bury my father, and I will come again.

6 And Pharaoh said, Go up, and bury thy father, according as he made thee swear.

7 ¶ And Joseph went up to bury his father: and with him went up all the servants of Pharaoh, the elders of his house, and all the elders of the land of Egypt,

8 And all the house of Joseph, and his brethren, and his father's house: only their little ones, and their flocks, and their herds, they left in the land of Goshen.

9 And there went up with him both chariots and horsemen: and it was a very great company.

10 And they came to the threshing-floor of Atad, which is beyond Jordan, and there they [h]mourned with a great and very sore lamentation: [i]and he made a mourning for his father seven days.

11 And when the inhabitants of the land, the Canaanites, saw the mourning in the floor of Atad, they said, This is a grievous mourning to the Egyptians: wherefore the name of it was called ‖Abelmizraim, which is beyond Jordan.

12 And his sons did unto him according as he commanded them:

13 For [k]his sons carried him into the land of Canaan, and buried him in the cave of the field of Machpelah, which Abraham [l]bought with the field for a possession of a burying-place of Ephron the Hittite, before Mamre.

14 ¶ And Joseph returned into Egypt, he and his brethren, and all that went up with him to bury his father, after he had buried his father.

15 ¶ And when Joseph's brethren saw that their father was dead, [m]they said, Joseph will peradventure hate us, and will certainly requite us all the evil which we did unto him.

16 And they †sent a messenger unto Joseph, saying, Thy father did command before he died, saying,

17 So shall ye say unto Joseph, Forgive, I pray thee now, the trespass of thy brethren, and their sin; [n]for they did unto thee evil: and now, we pray thee, forgive the trespass of the servants of [o]the God of thy father. And Joseph wept when they spake unto him.

18 And his brethren also went and [p]fell down before his face: and they said, Behold, we be thy servants.

19 And Joseph said unto them, [q]Fear not: [r]for am I in the place of God?

20 [s]But as for you, ye thought evil against me; but [t]God meant it unto good, to bring to pass, as it is this day, to save much people alive.

21 Now therefore fear ye not: [u]I will nourish you, and your little ones. And he comforted them, and spake †kindly unto them.

22 ¶ And Joseph dwelt in Egypt, he, and his father's house: and Joseph lived an hundred and ten years.

23 And Joseph saw Ephraim's children [x]of the third generation: [y]the children also of Machir, the son of Manasseh, [z]were †brought up upon Joseph's knees.

24 And Joseph said unto his brethren, I die; and [a]God will surely visit you, and bring you out of this land, unto the land [b]which he sware to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob.

25 And [c]Joseph took an oath of the children of Israel, saying, God will surely visit you, and ye shall carry up my bones from hence.

26 So Joseph died, being an hundred and ten years old: and they [d]embalmed him, and he was put in a coffin in Egypt.

The SECOND Book of Moses, called EXODUS.

CHAP. I.

22 Pharaoh commandeth the male children to be cast into the river.

NOW [a]these are the names of the children of Israel, which came into Egypt; every man and his household came with Jacob.

2 Reuben, Simeon, Levi, and Judah,

3 Issachar, Zebulun, and Benjamin,

4 Dan, and Naphtali, Gad, and Asher.

5 And all the souls that came out of the †loins of Jacob were [b]seventy souls: for Joseph was in Egypt already.

6 And [c]Joseph died, and all his brethren, and all that generation.

7 ¶ [d]And the children of Israel were fruitful, and increased abundantly, and multiplied, and waxed exceeding mighty; and the land was filled with them.

8 Now there [e]arose up a new king over Egypt, which knew not Joseph.

9 And he said unto his people, Behold, [f]the people of the children of Israel are more and mightier than we.

10 [g]Come on, let us [h]deal wisely with them; lest they multiply, and it come to pass, that, when there falleth out any war, they join also unto our enemies, and fight against us, and so get them up out of the land.

11 Therefore they did set over them task-masters, [i]to afflict them with their [k]burdens. And they built for Pharaoh treasure-cities, Pithom, [l]and Raamses.

12 †But the more they afflicted them, the more they multiplied and grew. And they were grieved because of the children of Israel.

13 And the Egyptians made the children of Israel to serve with rigour.

14 And they [m]made their lives bitter with hard bondage, [n]in mortar, and in brick, and in all manner of service in the field: all their service wherein they made them serve was with rigour.

15 ¶And the king of Egypt spake to the Hebrew midwives (of which the name of the one was Shiphrah, and the name of the other Puah;)

16 And he said, When ye do the office of a midwife to the Hebrew women, and see them upon the stools; if it be a son, then ye shall kill him; but if it be a daughter, then she shall live.

17 But the midwives [o]feared God, and did not [p]as the king of Egypt commanded them, but saved the men-children alive.

18 And the king of Egypt called for the midwives, and said unto them, Why have you done this thing, and have saved the men-children alive?

19 And [q]the midwives said unto Pharaoh, Because the Hebrew women are not as the Egyptian women; for they are lively, and are delivered ere the midwives come in unto them.

20 [r]Therefore God dealt well with the midwives: and the people multiplied, and waxed very mighty.

21 And it came to pass, because the midwives feared God, [s]that he made them houses.

22 And Pharaoh charged all his people, saying, [t]Every son that is born ye shall cast into the river, and every daughter ye shall save alive.

CHAP. II.

2 Moses is born, 3 and in an ark cast into the flags. 11 He slayeth an Egyptian. 21 He marrieth Zipporah.

AND there went a [a]man of the house of Levi, and took to wife a daughter of Levi.

2 And the woman conceived and bare a son: and [b]when she saw him that he was a goodly child, she hid him three months.

3 And when she could not longer hide him, she took for him an ark of bulrushes, and daubed it with slime and with pitch, and put the child therein; and she laid it on the flags by the river's brink.

4 [c]And his sister stood afar off, to wit what would be done to him.

5 ¶And the [d]daughter of Pharaoh came down to wash herself at the river; and her maidens walked along by the river's side: and when she saw the ark among the flags, she sent her maid to fetch it.

6 And when she had opened it, she saw the child: and, behold, the babe wept. And she had compassion on him, and said, This is one of the Hebrews' children.

7 Then said his sister to Pharaoh's daughter, Shall I go, and call to thee a nurse of the Hebrew women, that she may nurse the child for thee?

8 And Pharaoh's daughter said to her, Go. And the maid went and called the child's mother.

9 And Pharaoh's daughter said unto her, Take this child away and nurse it for me, and I will give thee thy wages. And the woman took the child and nursed it.

10 And the child grew, and she brought him unto Pharaoh's daughter, and he became [e]her son. And she called his name ‖Moses: and she said, Because I drew him out of the water.

11 ¶And it came to pass in those days, [f]when Moses was grown, that he went out unto his brethren, and looked on their [g]burdens: and he spied an Egyptian smiting an Hebrew, one of his brethren.

12 And he looked this way and that way, and when he saw that there was no man, he [h]slew the Egyptian, and hid him in the sand.

13 And [i]when he went out the second day, behold, two men of the Hebrews strove together: and he said to him that did the wrong, Wherefore smitest thou thy fellow?

14 And he said, [k]Who made thee †a prince and a judge over us? intendest thou to kill me, as thou killedst the Egyptian? And Moses feared, and said, Surely this thing is known.

15 Now when Pharaoh heard this thing, he sought to slay Moses. But [l]Moses fled from the face of Pharaoh, and dwelt in the land of Midian: and he sat down by [m]a well.

16 [n]Now the ‖priest of Midian had seven daughters: [o]and they came and drew water, and filled the troughs to water their father's flock.

17 And the shepherds came and drove them away: but Moses stood up and helped them, and [p]watered their flock.

18 And when they came to [q]Reuel their father, he said, How is it that ye are come so soon to-day?

19 And they said, An Egyptian delivered us out of the hand of the shepherds, and also drew water enough for us, and watered the flock.

20 And he said unto his daughters, And where is he? why is it that ye have left the man? call him, that he may [r]eat bread.

21 And Moses was content to dwell with the man: and he gave Moses, [s]Zipporah his daughter.

22 And she bare him a son, and he called his name

‖ 'Gershom; for he said, I have been "a stranger in a strange land.

23 ¶ And it came to pass, [x] in process of time, that the king of Egypt died: and the children of Israel [y] sighed by reason of the bondage, and they cried; and [z] their cry came up unto God, by reason of the bondage.

24 And God [a] heard their groaning, and God [b] remembered his [c] covenant with Abraham, with Isaac, and with Jacob.

25 And God [d] looked upon the children of Israel, and God †[e] had respect unto them.

CHAP. III.

2 God appeareth to Moses in a burning bush. 9 He sendeth him to deliver Israel. 14 The name of God. 15 His message to Israel.

NOW Moses kept the flock of Jethro his father-in-law, [a] the priest of Midian: and he led the flock to the back side of the desert, and came to [b] the mountain of God, even to Horeb.

2 And [c] the Angel of the LORD appeared unto him in a flame of fire out of the midst of a bush; and he looked, and, behold, the bush burned with fire, and the bush was not consumed.

3 And Moses said, I will now turn aside, and see this [d] great sight, why the bush is not burnt.

4 And when the LORD saw that he turned aside to see, God called [e] unto him out of the midst of the bush, and said, Moses, Moses! And he said, Here am I.

5 And he said, Draw not nigh hither: [f] put off thy shoes from off thy feet; for the place whereon thou standest is holy ground.

6 Moreover he said, [g] I am the God of thy father, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. And Moses hid his face; for [h] he was afraid to look upon God.

7 ¶ And the LORD said, I have surely seen the affliction of my people which are in Egypt, and [i] have heard their cry [k] by reason of their taskmasters; for [l] I know their sorrows:

8 And [m] I am come down to [n] deliver them out of the hand of the Egyptians, and to bring them up out of that land, [o] unto a good land, and a large, unto a land [p] flowing with milk and honey; unto the place of [q] the Canaanites, and the Hittites, and the Amorites, and the Perizzites, and the Hivites, and the Jebusites.

9 Now therefore, behold, [r] the cry of the children of Israel is come unto me: and I have also seen the [s] oppression wherewith the Egyptians oppress them.

10 [t] Come now therefore, and I will send thee unto Pharaoh, that thou mayest bring forth my people, the children of Israel, out of Egypt.

11 ¶ And Moses said unto God, [u] Who am I, that I should go unto Pharaoh, and that I should bring forth the children of Israel out of Egypt?

12 And he said, [x] Certainly I will be with thee; and this shall be a token unto thee, that I have sent thee: When thou hast brought forth the people out of Egypt, ye shall serve God upon this mountain.

13 And Moses said unto God, Behold, when I come unto the children of Israel, and shall say unto them, The God of your fathers hath sent me unto you; and they shall say to me, What is his name? what shall I say unto them?

14 And God said unto Moses, I AM THAT I AM: And he said, Thus shalt thou say unto the children of Israel, [y] I AM hath sent me unto you.

15 And God said moreover unto Moses, Thus shalt thou say unto the children of Israel, The LORD God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, hath sent me unto you: this is [z] my name for ever, and this is my memorial unto all generations.

16 Go, and [a] gather the elders of Israel together, and say unto them, The LORD God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, of Isaac, and of Jacob, appeared unto me, saying, [b] I have surely visited you, and seen that which is done to you in Egypt:

17 And I have said, [c] I will bring you up out of the affliction of Egypt, unto the land of the Canaanites, and the Hittites, and the Amorites, and the Perizzites, and the Hivites, and the Jebusites, unto a land flowing with milk and honey.

18 And [d] they shall hearken to thy voice; and [e] thou shalt come, thou and the elders of Israel, unto the king of Egypt, and ye shall say unto him, The LORD God of the Hebrews hath [f] met with us; and now let us go, we beseech thee, three days' journey into the wilderness, that we may sacrifice to the LORD our God.

19 ¶ And I am sure that the king of Egypt [g] will not let you go, ‖ no, not by a mighty hand.

20 And I will [h] stretch out my hand, and smite Egypt with [i] all my wonders which I will do in the midst thereof: and [k] after that he will let you go.

21 And [l] I will give this people favour in the sight of the Egyptians: and it shall come to pass, that, when ye go, ye shall not go empty:

22 [m] But every woman shall borrow of her neighbour, and of her that sojourneth in her house, jewels of silver, and jewels of gold, and raiment: and ye shall put them upon your sons, and upon your daughters; and [n] ye shall spoil ‖ the Egyptians

1 Moses' rod is turned into a serpent. 14 Aaron is appointed to assist him. 21 God's message to Pharaoh. 24 Zipporah circumciseth her son. 27 Aaron is sent to meet Moses.

AND Moses answered and said, But, behold, they will not believe me, nor hearken unto my voice: for they will say, The LORD hath not appeared unto thee.

2 And the LORD said unto him, What is that in thine hand? And he said, [a] A rod.

3 And he said, Cast it on the ground. And he cast it on the ground, and it became a serpent: and Moses fled from before it.

4 And the LORD said unto Moses, Put forth thine hand, and take it by the tail. And he put forth his hand, and caught it, and it became a rod in his hand:

5 That they may [b] believe that [c] the LORD God of their fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, hath appeared unto thee.

6 ¶ And the LORD said furthermore unto him, Put now thine hand into thy bosom. And he put his hand into his bosom: and when he took it out, behold, his hand was leprous [d] as snow.

7 And he said, Put thine hand into thy bosom again. And he put his hand into his bosom again, and plucked it out of his bosom, and, behold, [e] it was turned again as his other flesh.

8 And it shall come to pass, if they will not believe thee, neither hearken to the voice of the first sign, that they will believe the voice of the latter sign.

9 And it shall come to pass, if they will not believe also these two signs, neither hearken unto thy voice,

10 ¶ And Moses said unto the LORD, O my LORD, I am not † eloquent, neither † heretofore, nor since thou hast spoken unto thy servant: but [g] I am slow of speech, and of a slow tongue.

11 And the LORD said unto him, [h] Who hath made man's mouth? or who maketh the dumb, or deaf, or the seeing, or the blind? have not I the LORD?

12 Now therefore go, and I will be [i] with thy mouth, and teach thee what thou shalt say.

13 And he said, O my Lord, [k] send, I pray thee, by the hand of him whom thou ‖ wilt send.

14 And the anger of the LORD was kindled against Moses, and he said, Is not Aaron the Levite thy brother? I know that he can speak well. And also, behold, [l] he cometh forth to meet thee: and when he seeth thee, he will be glad in his heart.

15 And [m] thou shalt speak unto him, and [n] put words in his mouth: and I will be with thy mouth, and with his mouth, and [o] will teach you what ye shall do.

16 And he shall be thy spokesman unto the people: and he shall be, even he shall be to thee instead of a mouth, and [p] thou shalt be to him instead of God.

17 And thou shalt take [q] this rod in thine hand, wherewith thou shalt do signs.

18 ¶ And Moses went, and returned to † Jethro his father-in-law, and said unto him, Let me go, I pray thee, and return unto my brethren which are in Egypt, and see whether they be yet alive. And Jethro said to Moses, Go in peace.

19 And the LORD said unto Moses in Midian, Go, return into Egypt: for [r] all the men are dead which sought thy life.

20 And Moses took his wife, and his sons, and set them upon an ass, and he returned to the land of Egypt. And Moses took [s] the rod of God in his hand.

21 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, When thou goest to return into Egypt, see that thou do all those [t] wonders before Pharaoh which I have put in thine hand: but [u] I will harden his heart, that he shall not let the people go.

22 And thou shalt say unto Pharaoh, Thus saith the LORD, [x] Israel is my son, [y] even my first-born.

23 And I say unto thee, Let my son go, that he may serve me: and if thou refuse to let him go, behold, [z] I will slay thy son, even thy first-born.

24 ¶ And it came to pass by the way in the inn, that the LORD [a] met him, and sought to kill him.

25 Then Zipporah took [c] a sharp ‖ stone, and cut off the foreskin of her son, and † cast it at his feet, and said, Surely a bloody husband art thou to me.

26 So he let him go: then she said, A bloody husband thou art, because of the circumcision.

27 ¶ And the LORD said to Aaron, Go into the wilderness [d] to meet Moses. And he went, and met him in [e] the mount of God, and kissed him.

28 And Moses [f] told Aaron all the words of the LORD who had sent him, and all the [g] signs which he had commanded him.

29 ¶ And Moses and Aaron [h] went, and gathered together all the elders of the children of Israel.

30 [i] And Aaron spake all the words which the LORD had spoken unto Moses, and did the signs in the sight of the people.

31 And the people [k] believed: and when they heard that the LORD had [l] visited the children of Israel, and that he [m] had looked upon their affliction, then [n] they bowed their heads and worshipped.

CHAP. V.

1 Pharaoh chideth Moses and Aaron for their message. 5 He increaseth the Israelites' task.

AND afterward Moses and Aaron went in, and told Pharaoh, Thus saith the LORD God of Israel, Let my people go, that they may hold [a] a feast unto me in the wilderness.

2 And Pharaoh said, [b] Who is the LORD, that I should obey his voice to let Israel go? I know not the LORD, [c] neither will I let Israel go.

3 And they said, [d] The God of the Hebrews hath met with us: let us go, we pray thee, three days' journey into the desert, and sacrifice unto the LORD our God; lest he fall upon us with pestilence, or with the sword.

4 And the king of Egypt said unto them, Wherefore do ye, Moses and Aaron, let the people from their works? get you unto your [e] burdens.

5 And Pharaoh said, Behold, the people of the land now are [f] many, and ye make them rest from their burdens.

6 And Pharaoh commanded the same day the [g] taskmasters of the people, and their officers, saying,

7 Ye shall no more give the people straw to make brick, as heretofore: let them go and gather straw for themselves.

8 And the tale of the bricks which they did make heretofore, ye shall lay upon them; ye shall not diminish aught thereof: for they be idle; therefore they cry, saying, Let us go and sacrifice to our God.

9 † Let there more work be laid upon the men, that they may labour therein: and let them not regard vain words.

10 ¶ And the taskmasters of the people went out, and their officers, and they spake to the people, saying, Thus saith Pharaoh, I will not give you straw.

11 Go ye, get you straw where you can find it: yet not aught of your work shall be diminished.

12 So the people were scattered abroad throughout all the land of Egypt, to gather stubble instead of straw.

13 And the taskmasters hasted them, saying, Fulfil your works, your † daily tasks, as when there was straw.

14 And the officers of the children of Israel, which Pharaoh's taskmasters had set over them, were beaten, and demanded, Wherefore have ye not fulfilled your task in making brick, both yesterday and to-day, as heretofore?

15 ¶ Then the officers of the children of Israel came and cried unto Pharaoh, saying, Wherefore dealest thou thus with thy servants?

16 There is no straw given unto thy servants, and they say to us, Make brick: and behold, thy servants are beaten; but the fault is in thine own people.

17 But he said, Ye are idle, ye are idle: therefore ye say, Let us go, and do sacrifice to the LORD.

18 Go therefore now, and work: for there shall no straw be given you, yet shall ye deliver the tale of bricks.

19 And the officers of the children of Israel did see that they were in evil case, after it was said, Ye shall not minish aught from your bricks of your daily task.

20 ¶ And they met Moses and Aaron, who stood in the way, as they came forth from Pharaoh:

21 [h] And they said unto them, The LORD look upon you, and judge; because ye have made our savour

† to be abhorred in the eyes of Pharaoh, and in the eyes of his servants, to put a sword in their hand to slay us.

22 And Moses returned unto the LORD, and said, Lord, wherefore hast thou so evil-entreated this people? why is it that thou hast sent me?

23 For since I came to Pharaoh to speak in thy name, he hath done evil to this people: † neither hast thou delivered thy people at all.

CHAP. VI.

1 God reneweth his promise by his name JEHOVAH.

THEN the LORD said unto Moses, Now shalt thou see what I will do to Pharaoh: for [a] with a strong hand shall he let them go, and with a strong hand [b] shall he drive them out of his land.

2 And God spake unto Moses, and said unto him, I am ‖ the LORD:

3 And I appeared unto Abraham, unto Isaac, and unto Jacob by the name of [c] God Almighty, but by my name [d] JEHOVAH was I not known to them.

4 [e] And I have also established my covenant with them, [f] to give them the land of Canaan, the land of their pilgrimage, wherein they were strangers.

5 And [g] I have also heard the groaning of the children of Israel, whom the Egyptians keep in bondage: and I have remembered my covenant.

6 Wherefore say unto the children of Israel, [h] I am the LORD, and [i] I will bring you out from under the burdens of the Egyptians, and I will rid you out of their bondage, and I will [k] redeem you with a stretched-out arm, and with great judgments:

7 And I will [l] take you to me for a people, and [m] I will be to you a God: and ye shall know that I am the LORD your God, which bringeth you out [n] from under the burdens of the Egyptians.

8 And I will bring you in unto the land, concerning the which I did † [o] swear to give it to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob; and I will give it you for an heritage: I am the LORD.

9 ¶ And Moses spake so unto the children of Israel: [p] but they hearkened not unto Moses, for † anguish of spirit, and for cruel bondage.

10 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

11 Go in, speak unto Pharaoh king of Egypt, that he let the children of Israel go out of his land.

12 And Moses spake before the LORD, saying, Behold, the children of Israel have [q] not hearkened unto me; how then shall Pharaoh hear me, [r] who am of uncircumcised lips?

13 And the LORD spake unto Moses, and unto Aaron, and gave them a charge unto the children of Israel, and unto Pharaoh king of Egypt, to bring the children of Israel out of the land of Egypt.

14 ¶ These be the heads of their fathers' houses: [s] The sons of Reuben the first-born of Israel; Hanoch, and Pallu, Hezron, and Carmi: these be the families of Reuben.

15 [t] And the sons of Simeon; Jemuel, and Jamin, and Ohad, and Jachin, and Zohar, and Shaul the son of a Canaanitish woman: these are the families of Simeon.

16 ¶ And these are the names of [u] the sons of Levi, according to their generations; Gershon, and Kohath, and Merari. And the years of the life of Levi were an hundred thirty and seven years.

17 [x] The sons of Gershon; Libni, and Shimi, according to their families.

18 And [y] the sons of Kohath; Amram, and Izhar, and Hebron, and Uzziel: and the years of the life of Kohath were an hundred thirty and three years.

19 And [z] the sons of Merari; Mahali and Mushi: these are the families of Levi, according to their generations.

20 And [a] Amram took him Jochebed his father's sister to wife; and she bare him Aaron and Moses. And the years of the life of Amram were an hundred and thirty and seven years.

21 ¶ And [b] the sons of Izhar; Korah, and Nepheg, and Zichri.

22 And the [c] sons of Uzziel; Mishael, and Elzaphan, and Zithri.

23 And Aaron took him Elisheba daughter of [d] Amminadab, sister of Naashon to wife; and she bare him [e] Nadab and Abihu, Eleazar and Ithamar.

24 And the [f] sons of Korah; Assir, and Elkanah, and Abiasaph: these are the families of the Korhites.

25 And Eleazar, Aaron's son, took him one of the daughters of Putiel to wife; and [g] she bare him Phinehas: these are the heads of the fathers of the Levites, according to their families.

26 These are that Aaron and Moses, [h] to whom the LORD said, Bring out the children of Israel from the land of Egypt according to their [i] armies.

27 These are they which [k] spake to Pharaoh king of Egypt, [l] to bring out the children of Israel from Egypt: these are that Moses and Aaron.

28 ¶ And it came to pass on the day when the LORD spake unto Moses in the land of Egypt,

29 That the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, [m] I am the LORD: [n] speak thou unto Pharaoh king of Egypt all that I say unto thee.

30 And Moses said before the LORD, Behold, [o] I am of uncircumcised lips, and how shall Pharaoh hearken unto me?

CHAP. VII.

1 Moses is encouraged to go to Pharaoh. 7 His age. 8 His rod is turned into a serpent. 13 Pharaoh's heart is hardened. 19 The river is turned into blood.

AND the LORD said unto Moses, See, I have made thee [a] a god to Pharaoh: and Aaron thy brother shall be [b] thy prophet.

2 Thou [c] shalt speak all that I command thee: and Aaron thy brother shall speak unto Pharaoh, that he send the children of Israel out of his land.

3 And [d] I will harden Pharaoh's heart, and [e] multiply my [f] signs and my wonders in the land of Egypt.

4 But Pharaoh shall not hearken unto you, [g] that I may lay my hand upon Egypt, and bring forth mine armies, and my people the children of Israel, out of the land of Egypt, [h] by great judgments.

5 And the Egyptians [i] shall know that I am the LORD, when I [k] stretch forth mine hand upon Egypt, and bring out the children of Israel from among them.

6 And Moses and Aaron [l] did as the LORD commanded them, so did they.

7 And Moses was [m] fourscore years old, and Aaron fourscore and three years old, when they spake unto Pharaoh.

8 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, and unto Aaron, saying,

9 When Pharaoh shall speak unto you, saying, [n] Shew a miracle for you: then thou shalt say unto Aaron, [o] Take thy rod, and cast it before Pharaoh, and it shall become a serpent.

SCRIPTURE NATURAL HISTORY.--BOTANY.

The Chromo-Lithographs of Scriptural Natural History—Botany and Zoology—give a large number of figures of the principal plants and animals mentioned in the Bible; they are strictly correct both in outline and color, having been tested and approved by eminent Zoologists and Botanists; the letter-press describes the several animals and plants; and they serve, not merely to aid the reader in understanding the Bible in its direct notices of natural objects, but also, and eminently, to throw light on much of the gorgeous imagery in its prophetic, psalmodic, parabolic, and didactic passages.

THE TEIL TREE, OR TEREBINTH TREE.

Fig. 1. Teil Tree, or Terebinth Tree (Pistacia Terebinthus).—A tree, called variously, in English versions, "teil tree," "terebinth," "oak," "elm," and "plane" or "plain," is designated, in the Hebrew Bible, El or Elah; gave name to valleys mentioned in Gen. xiv. 6 and 1 Sam. xvii. 2, 19, xxi. 9; was the place of Abraham's tent at Hebron, called in English "the plain of Mamre," Gen. xiii. 18; is distinguished from the oak in Isa. vi. 13 and Hos. iv. 13; figures in the countries round the Mediterranean somewhat as the oak does in Great Britain; and is umbrageous, long-lived, and notable for a fragrant balsamic gum.

THE WILLOW TREE.

Fig. 2. Willow Tree (Salix Babylonica).—The weeping willow, figured here, grows wild on the banks of the Euphrates, and other Oriental streams; commonly attains a height of about thirty feet; and seems to be the willow mentioned in Ps. cxxxvii. 2. Three other species of willows, the osier, the white, and the Egyptian, appear to be indicated in Lev. xxiii. 40, Job xl. 22, Isa. xv. 7, lxiv. 4, and Ezek. xvii. 5.

THE ALOES TREE.

Fig. 3. Aloes Tree, or Lign Aloes (Aquilaria agallochum).—The aloes tree differs exceedingly from the plants yielding the gum aloes of medicine; grows in the islands and peninsulas of the Indian Ocean; attains a great height and girth; secretes, in its decaying wood, a richly fragrant oily resin; and emits, in the combustion of its sound wood, a delightful odor. Its resin held anciently, and still holds, a high rank among fragrant spices. (See Num. xxiv. 6; Ps. xlv. 8; Prov. vii. 17; Cant. iv. 14; John xix. 39.)

THE ALMOND TREE.

Fig. 4. Almond Tree (Amygdalus communis).—This tree abounds in Western Asia and Southern Europe; attains a height of about fifteen feet; bears beautiful, well-shaped whitish blossoms, and pleasant oleaceous, well-known drupes, Exod. xxv. 33, 34, xxxvii. 19, 20, Num. xvii. 8, Gen. xliii. 11; blooms so early as January, and has a Hebrew name formed from a word signifying "to watch," so that a rod of it serves as a symbol of speedy performance, Jer. i. 11, 12; and produces its flowers before the time of foliage, on bare, withered-looking branches, like a crown on its head, so as to be a fine emblem of old age, Eccles. xii. 5.

HYSSOP.

Fig. 5. Hyssop (Capparis spinosa).—The hyssop of Scripture is certainly not the herb now called hyssop, nor does it seem to be any one of more than twenty other plants which botanists have compared with it; but it very probably is the species of caper figured here. This grows on the fissured rocks of the Sinaitic peninsula; is a climbing or creeping shrub, with hard woody stem, bright green leaves, and pendent fringes or tassels, and was believed by ancient writers, from the time of Hippocrates, to possess detergent properties. (See Exod. xii. 22; Lev. xiv. 4–7, 49–52; Num. xix. 6; 1 Kings iv. 33; Ps. li. 7; John xix. 29; Heb. ix. 19.)

THE WALNUT TREE.

Fig. 6. Walnut Tree (Juglans regia).—The "nuts" of Cant. vi. 11 are believed to be walnuts or walnut trees; but the "nuts" of Gen. xliii. 11 appear to be pistacia-nuts.

THE MYRTLE TREE.

Fig. 7. Myrtle Tree (Myrtus communis).—This beautiful evergreen shrub grows wild in all the countries around the Mediterranean; attains there the height of a small tree; and has been famous in all ages for its form, its foliage, and its fragrance. (See Neh. viii. 15; Isa. xli. 19, lv. 13; Zech. i. 8, 10, 11).

THE OLIVE TREE.

Fig. 8. Olive Tree (Olea Europœa).—This tree, though called European, is a native of Asia; abounded so in Canaan as to occasion that land to be called a land of olives, of olive-yards, and of oil olive; flourished eminently on the hill adjacent to Jerusalem, named from it the Mount of Olives; is naturally a low creeping bush with crooked branches, but rises under good cultivation into a massive tree, yet rarely attains a height of more than thirty feet; grows very slowly, very hardily, and to a very great age; and is mentioned in Scripture about thirty-seven times in association either with most affecting incidents or with peculiarly rich doctrines. Our figure of it shows it as a very old tree.

THE PALM TREE.

Fig. 9. Date Palm (Phœnix dactylifera).—The date palm inhabits the countries south and east of the Mediterranean; grows adjacent to water, even where there are mere springs in the midst of deserts; has a cylindrical endogenous stem, rising to the height of more than sixty feet; carries fronds six or eight feet long, in fan-like expansion, on the top of its stem; and bears its fruit or dates pendulously from points below the fronds. The fronds are sometimes called branches, and were used as emblems of victory or triumph. Either palm trees or their branches are mentioned twenty-two times in Scripture.

SYCAMORE TREE.

Fig. 10. Sycamore Tree (Ficus sycomorus).—This is a species of fig tree; differs widely from the kind of maple tree called sycamore; abounds in Palestine and Egypt; and is much esteemed there for both its timber and its fruit. (See 1 Kings x. 27; 1 Chron. xxvii. 28; 2 Chron. i. 15, ix. 27; Ps. lxxviii. 47; Amos vii. 14; Luke xix. 4.)

POMEGRANATE TREE.

Fig. 11. Pomegranate Tree (Punica granatum).—This tree is nearly allied to the myrtle; grows wild in Asia and Northern Africa; was anciently common in Palestine, but now exists there in only a degenerate condition; bears a beautiful and delicious fruit, larger than a golden pippin; is mentioned, either as to itself or as to its fruit, either literally or metaphorically, and always with high didactic import, in about twenty-one passages of Scripture; and gave its Hebrew name, Rimmon, to several Scripture towns or villages.

THE FIG TREE.

Fig. 12. Fig Tree (Ficus carica).—This tree is a native of Asia, Africa, and Southern Europe; was one of the characteristic products of Palestine in the Hebrew times; rises to a height of from fifteen to twenty-five feet; has leaves about the size of a man's hand; bears a well-known fruit, more edible dried than fresh; and is mentioned in the Bible, directly or indirectly, about forty-eight times.

THE GRAPE VINE.

Fig. 13. Grape Vine (Vitis vinifera).—The "true vine," or that which bears wine-producing grapes, differs from numerous other vines; has been diffused over a great extent of the world's surface; was one of the characteristic economical plants of Palestine in the Hebrew times; is designated by one Hebrew word for itself, and by eleven other Hebrew words for different conditions of its grapes and their juices; has twisted, irregular stems, with very long flexible branches, supporting themselves by tendrils; produces grapes or wines in endless varieties of quality; and is mentioned, directly or indirectly, in about three hundred passages of Scripture, and associated there, either literally or metaphorically, with multitudes of precious moral truths.

THE CEDAR OF LEBANON.

Fig. 14. Cedar Tree (Cedrus Libani).—This evergreen conifer once covered a large extent of Lebanon, and still lingers near the head of one of the Lebanon valleys; was famous for its massiveness, its great strength, its great age, and its fragrant timber; and is mentioned in the Bible about fifty-five times.

SHITTAH TREE.

Fig. 15. Shittah Tree (Acacia Seyal).—This tree inhabits the countries from Upper Egypt eastward to India; is akin to the beautiful acacias which adorn the greenhouses and warm walls of British gardens; grows to a height of from fifteen to twenty feet; and has comparatively light and very durable timber, called in Scripture shittim-wood. The tree is mentioned in Isa. xli. 19; and its wood is mentioned twenty-six times in the Pentateuch.

and they did so [p] as the LORD had commanded: and Aaron cast down his rod before Pharaoh, and before his servants, and it [q] became a serpent.

11 Then Pharaoh also [r] called the wise men, and [s] the sorcerers: now the magicians of Egypt, they also [t] did in like manner with their enchantments.

12 For they cast down every man his rod, and they became serpents: but Aaron's rod swallowed up their rods.

13 And he hardened Pharaoh's heart that he hearkened not unto them; [u] as the LORD had said.

14 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, [x] Pharaoh's heart is hardened, he refuseth to let the people go.

15 Get thee unto Pharaoh in the morning; lo, he goeth out unto the water, and thou shalt stand by the river's brink against he come: and [y] the rod which was turned to a serpent shalt thou take in thine hand.

16 And thou shalt say unto him, [z] The LORD God of the Hebrews hath sent me unto thee, saying, Let my people go, [a] that they may serve me in the wilderness: and behold, hitherto thou wouldest not hear.

17 Thus saith the LORD, In this [b] thou shalt know that I am the LORD: behold, I will smite with the rod that is in my hand upon the waters which are in the river, and [c] they shall be turned [d] to blood.

18 And the fish that is in the river shall die, and the river shall stink: and the Egyptians shall [e] loathe to drink of the water of the river.

19 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, Say unto Aaron, Take thy rod, and [f] stretch out thine hand upon the waters of Egypt, upon their streams, upon their rivers, and upon their ponds, and upon all their †pools of water, that they may become blood: and that there may be blood throughout all the land of Egypt, both in vessels of wood, and in vessels of stone.

20 And Moses and Aaron did so, as the LORD commanded; and he [g] lifted up the rod and smote the waters that were in the river, in the sight of Pharaoh, and in the sight of his servants; and all the [h] waters that were in the river were turned into blood.

21 And the fish that was in the river died; and the river stank, and the Egyptians [i] could not drink of the water of the river; and there was blood throughout all the land of Egypt.

22 [k] And the magicians of Egypt did so with their enchantments: and Pharaoh's heart was hardened, neither did he hearken unto them; [l] as the LORD had said.

23 And Pharaoh turned and went into his house, neither did he set his heart to this also.

24 And all the Egyptians digged round about the river for water to drink; for they could not drink of the water of the river.

25 And seven days were fulfilled after that the LORD had smitten the river.

CHAP. VIII.

1 Frogs are sent. 25 Pharaoh inclineth to let the people go, 32 but yet is hardened.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, Go unto Pharaoh, and say unto him, Thus saith the LORD, Let my people go [a] that they may serve me.

2 And if thou [b] refuse to let them go, behold, I will smite all thy borders with [c] frogs:

3 And the river shall bring forth frogs abundantly, which shall go up and come into thine house, and into [d] thy bed-chamber, and upon thy bed, and into the house of thy servants, and upon thy people, and into thine ovens, and into thy ‖ kneading-troughs:

4 And the frogs shall come up both on thee, and upon thy people, and upon all thy servants.

5 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, Say unto Aaron, [e] Stretch forth thine hand with thy rod over the streams, over the rivers, and over the ponds, and cause frogs to come up upon the land of Egypt.

6 And Aaron stretched out his hand over the waters of Egypt; and [f] the frogs came up, and covered the land of Egypt.

7 [g] And the magicians did so with their enchantments, and brought up frogs upon the land of Egypt.

8 ¶ Then Pharaoh called for Moses and Aaron, and said, [h] Entreat the LORD that he may take away the frogs from me, and from my people: and I will let the people go, that they may do sacrifice unto the LORD.

9 And Moses said unto Pharaoh, ‖ Glory over me: ‖ when shall I entreat for thee and for thy servants, and for thy people, † to destroy the frogs from thee, and thy houses, that they may remain in the river only?

10 And he said, ‖ To-morrow. And he said, Be it according to thy word: that thou mayest know that [i] there is none like unto the LORD our God.

11 And the frogs shall depart from thee, and from thy houses, and from thy servants, and from thy people; they shall remain in the river only.

12 ¶ And Moses and Aaron went out from Pharaoh: and Moses [k] cried unto the LORD, because of the frogs which he had brought against Pharaoh.

13 And the LORD did according to the word of Moses: and the frogs died out of the houses, out of the villages, and out of the fields.

14 And they gathered them together upon heaps: and the land stank.

15 But when Pharaoh saw that there was [l] respite, [m] he hardened his heart, and hearkened not unto them; as the LORD had said.

16 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Say unto Aaron, Stretch out thy rod, and smite the dust of the land, that it may become lice throughout all the land of Egypt.

17 And they did so; for Aaron stretched out his hand with his rod, and smote the dust of the earth, and [n] it became lice in man and in beast: all the dust of the land became lice throughout all the land of Egypt.

18 And [o] the magicians did so with their enchantments to bring forth lice, but they [p] could not: so there were lice upon man, and upon beast.

19 Then the magicians said unto Pharaoh, This is [q] the finger of God: and Pharaoh's [r] heart was hardened, and he hearkened not unto them; as the LORD had said.

20 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, [s] Rise up early in the morning, and stand before Pharaoh; (lo, he cometh forth to the water;) and say unto him, Thus saith the LORD, [t] Let my people go, that they may serve me:

21 Else, if thou wilt not let my people go, behold, I will send ‖ swarms of flies upon thee, and upon thy servants, and upon thy people, and into thy houses: and the houses of the Egyptians shall be full of swarms of flies, and also the ground whereon they are.

22 And [u] I will sever in that day the land of Goshen, in which my people dwell, that no swarms of flies shall be there; to the end thou mayest know that I am the LORD in the midst of the earth.

23 And I will put †a division between my people and thy people: ‖to-morrow shall this sign be.

24 And the LORD did so: and [x]there came a grievous swarm of flies into the house of Pharaoh, and into his servants' houses, and into all the land of Egypt: the land was ‖corrupted by reason of the swarm of flies.

25 ¶ And Pharaoh called for Moses, and for Aaron, and said, Go ye, sacrifice to your God in the land.

26 And Moses said, It is not meet so to do; for we shall sacrifice [y]the abomination of the Egyptians to the LORD our God: Lo, shall we sacrifice the abomination of the Egyptians before their eyes, and will they not stone us?

27 We will go [z]three days' journey into the wilderness, and sacrifice to the LORD our God, as [a]he shall command us.

28 And Pharaoh said, I will let you go, that ye may sacrifice to the LORD your God in the wilderness; only ye shall not go very far away: [b]entreat for me.

29 And Moses said, Behold, I go out from thee, and I will entreat the LORD that the swarms of flies may depart from Pharaoh, from his servants, and from his people, to-morrow: but let not Pharaoh [c]deal deceitfully any more, in not letting the people go to sacrifice to the LORD.

30 And Moses went out from Pharaoh, and [d]entreated the LORD:

31 And the LORD did according to the word of Moses; and he removed the swarms of flies from Pharaoh, from his servants, and from his people; there remained not one.

32 And Pharaoh [e]hardened his heart at this time also, neither would he let the people go.

CHAP. IX.

1 The murrain of beasts. 27 Pharaoh sueth to Moses, 35 but yet is hardened.

THEN the LORD said unto Moses, [a]Go in unto Pharaoh, and tell him, Thus saith the LORD God of the Hebrews, Let my people go, that they may serve me.

2 For if thou [b]refuse to let them go, and wilt hold them still,

3 Behold, the [c]hand of the LORD is upon thy cattle which is in the field, upon the horses, upon the asses, upon the camels, upon the oxen, and upon the sheep: there shall be a very grievous murrain.

4 And [d]the LORD shall sever between the cattle of Israel, and the cattle of Egypt: and there shall nothing die of all that is the children's of Israel.

5 And the LORD appointed a set time, saying, To-morrow the LORD shall do this thing in the land.

6 And the LORD did that thing on the morrow, and [e]all the cattle of Egypt died: but of the cattle of the children of Israel died not one.

7 And Pharaoh sent, and behold, there was not one of the cattle of the Israelites dead. And [f]the heart of Pharaoh was hardened, and he did not let the people go.

8 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses and unto Aaron, Take to you handfuls of ashes of the furnace, and let Moses sprinkle it toward the heaven in the sight of Pharaoh.

9 And it shall become small dust in all the land of Egypt, and shall be [g]a boil breaking forth with blains upon man, and upon beast, throughout all the land of Egypt.

10 And they took ashes of the furnace, and stood before Pharaoh; and Moses sprinkled it up toward heaven: and it became [h]a boil breaking forth with blains upon man, and upon beast.

11 And the [i]magicians could not stand before Moses, because of the boils: for the boil was upon the magicians, and upon all the Egyptians.

12 And the LORD hardened the heart of Pharaoh, and he hearkened not unto them; [k]as the LORD had spoken unto Moses.

13 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, [l]Rise up early in the morning, and stand before Pharaoh, and say unto him, Thus saith the LORD God of the Hebrews, Let my people go, that they may serve me.

14 For I will at this time send all my plagues upon thine heart, and upon thy servants, and upon thy people: [m]that thou mayest know that there is none like me in all the earth.

15 For now I will [n]stretch out my hand, that I may smite thee and thy people with pestilence; and thou shalt be cut off from the earth.

16 And in very deed for [o]this cause have I †raised thee up, for to shew in thee my power; and that my name may be declared throughout all the earth.

17 As yet exaltest thou thyself against my people, that thou wilt not let them go?

18 Behold, to-morrow about this time I will cause it to rain a very grievous hail, such as hath not been in Egypt since the foundation thereof even until now.

19 Send therefore now, and gather thy cattle, and all that thou hast in the field: for upon every man and beast which shall be found in the field, and shall not be brought home, the hail shall come down upon them, and they shall die.

20 He that feared the word of the LORD among the servants of Pharaoh made his servants and his cattle flee into the houses:

21 And he that †regarded not the word of the LORD left his servants and his cattle in the field.

22 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Stretch forth thine hand toward heaven, that there may be [p]hail in all the land of Egypt, upon man, and upon beast, and upon every herb of the field, throughout the land of Egypt.

23 And Moses stretched forth his rod toward heaven, and [q]the LORD sent thunder and hail, and the fire ran along upon the ground: and the LORD rained hail upon the land of Egypt.

24 So there was hail, and fire mingled with the hail, very grievous, such as there was none like it in all the land of Egypt since it became a nation.

25 And the hail smote throughout all the land of Egypt all that was in the field, both man and beast, and the hail [r]smote every herb of the field and brake every tree of the field.

26 [s]Only in the land of Goshen, where the children of Israel were, was there no hail.

27 ¶ And Pharaoh sent and called for Moses and Aaron, and said unto them, [t]I have sinned this time: [u]the LORD is righteous, and I and my people are wicked.

28 [x]Entreat the LORD (for it is enough) that there be no more † mighty thunderings and hail; and I will let you go, and ye shall stay no longer.

29 And Moses said unto him, As soon as I am gone out of the city, I will [y]spread abroad my hands unto the LORD; and the thunder shall cease, neither shall there be any more hail; that thou mayest know how that the [z]earth is the LORD's.

30 But as for thee and thy servants, [a]I know that ye will not yet fear the LORD God.

CHAP. X.

7 Pharaoh, moved by his servants, inclineth to let the Israelites go. 12 The plague of the locusts. 16 Pharaoh sueth to Moses.

AND the LORD said unto Moses, Go in unto Pharaoh: [a] for I have hardened his heart, and the heart of his servants; [b] that I might shew these my signs before him:

2 And that [c] thou mayest tell in the ears of thy son, and of thy son's son, what things I have wrought in Egypt, and my signs which I have done among them; that ye may know how that I am the LORD.

3 And Moses and Aaron came in unto Pharaoh, and said unto him, Thus saith the LORD God of the Hebrews, How long wilt thou refuse to [d] humble thyself before me? Let my people go, that they may serve me.

4 Else, if thou refuse to let my people go, behold, to-morrow will I bring the [e] locusts into thy coast:

5 And they shall cover the † face of the earth, that one cannot be able to see the earth: and [f] they shall eat the residue of that which is escaped, which remaineth unto you from the hail, and shall eat every tree which groweth for you out of the field:

6 And they [g] shall fill thy houses, and the houses of all thy servants, and the houses of all the Egyptians; which neither thy fathers, nor thy fathers' fathers have seen, since the day that they were upon the earth unto this day. And he turned himself, and went out from Pharaoh.

7 And Pharaoh's servants said unto him, How long shall this man be [h] a snare unto us? Let the men go, that they may serve the LORD their God: Knowest thou not yet that Egypt is destroyed?

8 And Moses and Aaron were brought again unto Pharaoh: and he said unto them, Go, serve the LORD your God: but † who are they that shall go?

9 And Moses said, We will go with our young and with our old, with our sons and with our daughters, with our flocks and with our herds will we go: for [i] we must hold a feast unto the LORD.

10 And he said unto them, Let the LORD be so with you, as I will let you go, and your little ones: look to it; for evil is before you.

11 Not so: go now ye that are men, and serve the LORD; for that ye did desire. And they were driven out from Pharaoh's presence.

12 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, [k] Stretch out thine hand over the land of Egypt for the locusts, that they may come up upon the land of Egypt, and [l] eat every herb of the land, even all that the hail hath left.

13 And Moses stretched forth his rod over the land of Egypt, and the LORD brought an east wind upon the land all that day, and all that night: and when it was morning, the east wind brought the locusts.

14 And [m] the locusts went up over all the land of Egypt, and rested in all the coasts of Egypt: very grievous were they; [n] before them there were no such locusts as they, neither after them shall be such.

15 For they [o] covered the face of the whole earth, so that the land was darkened; and they [p] did eat every herb of the land, and all the fruit of the trees which the hail had left: and there remained not any green thing in the trees, or in the herbs of the field, through all the land of Egypt.

16 ¶ Then Pharaoh † called for Moses and Aaron in haste; and he said, [q] I have sinned against the LORD your God, and against you.

17 Now therefore forgive, I pray thee, my sin only this once, and [r] entreat the LORD your God that he may take away from me this death only.

18 And he [s] went out from Pharaoh, and entreated the LORD.

19 And the LORD turned a mighty strong west wind which took away the locusts, and † cast them [t] into the Red sea: there remained not one locust in all the coasts of Egypt.

20 But the LORD [u] hardened Pharaoh's heart, so that he would not let the children of Israel go.

21 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, [x] Stretch out thine hand toward heaven, that there may be darkness over the land of Egypt, † even darkness which may be felt.

22 And Moses stretched forth his hand toward heaven: and there was a [y] thick darkness in all the land of Egypt three days:

23 They saw not one another, neither rose any from his place for three days: [z] but all the children of Israel had light in their dwellings.

24 ¶ And Pharaoh called unto Moses, and [a] said, Go ye, serve the LORD: only let your flocks and your herds be stayed: let your [b] little ones also go with you.

25 And Moses said, Thou must give † us also sacrifices, and burnt-offerings, that we may sacrifice unto the LORD our God.

26 Our cattle also shall go with us; there shall not an hoof be left behind; for thereof must we take to serve the LORD our God; and we know not with what we must serve the LORD, until we come thither.

27 ¶ But the LORD [c] hardened Pharaoh's heart, and he would not let them go.

28 And Pharaoh said unto him, Get thee from me, take heed to thyself, see my face no more: for in that day thou seest my face, thou shalt die.

29 And Moses said, Thou hast spoken well, [d] I will see thy face again no more.

CHAP. XI

1 God's message to the Israelites to borrow jewels of their neighbours. 4 Moses threateneth Pharaoh with the death of the first-born.

AND the LORD said unto Moses, Yet will I bring one plague more upon Pharaoh, and upon Egypt; afterwards he will let you go hence: [c] when he shall let you go, he shall surely thrust you out hence altogether.

2 Speak now in the ears of the people, and let every man borrow of his neighbour, and every woman of her neighbour, [b] jewels of silver, and jewels of gold.

3 [c] And the LORD gave the people favour in the sight of the Egyptians. Moreover, the man [d] Moses was very great in the land of Egypt, in the sight of Pharaoh's servants, and in the sight of the people.

4 And Moses said, Thus saith the LORD, [e] About midnight will I go out into the midst of Egypt:

5 And [f]all the first-born in the land of Egypt shall die, from the first-born of Pharaoh that sitteth upon his throne, even unto the first-born of the maid-servant that is behind the mill; and all the first-born of beasts.

6 [g]And there shall be a great cry throughout all the land of Egypt, such as there was none like it, nor shall be like it any more.

7 [h]But against any of the children of Israel [i]shall not a dog move his tongue, against man or beast: that ye may know how that the LORD doth put a difference between the Egyptians and Israel.

8 And [k]all these thy servants shall come down unto me, and bow down themselves unto me, saying, Get thee out, and all the people †that follow thee; and after that I will go out. And he went out from Pharaoh in †a great anger.

9 And the LORD said unto Moses, [l]Pharaoh shall not hearken unto you; that [m]my wonders may be multiplied in the land of Egypt.

10 And Moses and Aaron did all these wonders before Pharaoh; [n]and the LORD hardened Pharaoh's heart, so that he would not let the children of Israel go out of his land.

CHAP. XII.

1 The beginning of the year is changed. 3 The passover is instituted. 29 The first-born are slain. 31 The Israelites are driven out of the land. 43 The ordinance of the passover.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses and Aaron in the land of Egypt, saying,

2 [a]This month shall be unto you the beginning of months: it shall be the first month of the year to you.

3 ¶ Speak ye unto all the congregation of Israel, saying, In the tenth day of this month they shall take to them every man a ‖lamb according to the house of their fathers, a lamb for an house:

4 And if the household be too little for the lamb, let him and his neighbour next unto his house take it according to the number of the souls: every man according to his eating shall make your count for the lamb.

5 Your lamb shall be [b]without blemish, a male †of the first year: ye shall take it out from the sheep or from the goats:

6 And ye shall keep it up until the [c]fourteenth day of the same month: and the whole assembly of the congregation of Israel shall kill it †in the evening.

7 And they shall take of the blood, and strike it on the two side-posts, and on the upper door-post of the houses, wherein they shall eat it.

8 And they shall eat the flesh in that night, roast with fire, and [d]unleavened bread; and with bitter herbs they shall eat it.

9 Eat not of it raw, nor sodden at all with water, but [e]roast with fire; his head with his legs, and with the purtenance thereof.

10 [f]And ye shall let nothing of it remain until the morning: and that which remaineth of it until the morning ye shall burn with fire.

11 ¶ And thus shall ye eat it; with your loins girded, your shoes on your feet, and your staff in your hand: and ye shall eat it in haste; [g]it is the LORD'S passover.

12 For I [h]will pass through the land of Egypt this night, and will smite all the first-born in the land of Egypt, both man and beast: and [i]against all the ‖gods of Egypt I will execute judgment: [k]I am the LORD.

13 And the blood shall be to you for a token upon the houses where ye are: and when I see the blood, I will pass over you, and the plague shall not be upon you †to destroy you, when I smite the land of Egypt.

14 And this day shall be unto you [l]for a memorial; and ye shall keep it a [m]feast to the LORD throughout your generations: ye shall keep it a feast [n]by an ordinance for ever.

15 [o]Seven days shall ye eat unleavened bread; even the first day ye shall put away leaven out of your houses: for whosoever eateth leavened bread, from the first day until the seventh day, [p]that soul shall be cut off from Israel.

16 And in the first day there shall be [q]an holy convocation, and in the seventh day there shall be an holy convocation to you: no manner of work shall be done in them, save that which every †man must eat, that only may be done of you.

17 And ye shall observe the feast of unleavened bread; for [r]in this self-same day have I brought your armies out of the land of Egypt; therefore shall ye observe this day in your generations by an ordinance for ever.

18 ¶ [s]In the first month, on the fourteenth day of the month at even, ye shall eat unleavened bread, until the one and twentieth day of the month at even.

19 [t]Seven days shall there be no leaven found in your houses: for whosoever eateth that which is leavened, [u]even that soul shall be cut off from the congregation of Israel, whether he be a stranger, or born in the land.

20 Ye shall eat nothing leavened: in all your habitations shall ye eat unleavened bread.

21 ¶ Then Moses called for all the elders of Israel, and said unto them, [x]Draw out, and take you a ‖lamb, according to your families, and kill the passover.

22 [y]And ye shall take a bunch of hyssop, and dip it in the blood that is in the basin, and [z]strike the lintel and the two side-posts with the blood that is in the basin: and none of you shall go out at the door of his house until the morning.

23 [a]For the LORD will pass through to smite the Egyptians; and when he seeth the blood upon the lintel, and on the two side-posts, the LORD will pass over the door, and [b]will not suffer [c]the destroyer to come in unto your houses to smite you.

24 And ye shall observe this thing for an ordinance to thee and to thy sons for ever.

25 And it shall come to pass, when ye be come to the land which the LORD will give you, [d]according as he hath promised, that ye shall keep this service.

26 [e]And it shall come to pass, when your children shall say unto you, What mean ye by this service?

27 That ye shall say, [f]It is the sacrifice of the LORD'S passover, who passed over the houses of the children of Israel in Egypt, when he smote the Egyptians, and delivered our houses. And the people [g]bowed the head and worshipped.

28 And the children of Israel went away, and [h]did as the LORD had commanded Moses and Aaron, so did they.

29 ¶ [i]And it came to pass, that at midnight [k]the LORD smote all the first-born in the land of Egypt, [l]from the first-born of Pharaoh that sat on his throne, unto the first-born of the captive that was in the †dungeon; and all the first-born of cattle.

30 And Pharaoh rose up in the night, he, and all his servants, and all the Egyptians; and there was a [m]great cry in Egypt: for there was not a house where there was not one dead.

32 [p] Also take your flocks and your herds, as ye have said, and be gone: and [q] bless me also.

33 [r] And the Egyptians were urgent upon the people, that they might send them out of the land in haste; for they said, [s] We be all dead men.

34 And the people took their dough before it was leavened, their ‖ kneading troughs being bound up in their clothes upon their shoulders.

35 And the children of Israel did according to the word of Moses: and they borrowed of the Egyptians [t] jewels of silver, and jewels of gold, and raiment.

36 [u] And the LORD gave the people favour in the sight of the Egyptians, so that they lent unto them such things as they required: and [x] they spoiled the Egyptians.

37 ¶ And [y] the children of Israel journeyed from [x] Rameses to Succoth, about [a] six hundred thousand on foot that were men, beside children.

38 And † a mixed multitude went up also with them; and flocks, and herds, even very much cattle.

39 And they baked unleavened cakes of the dough which they brought forth out of Egypt, for it was not leavened: because [b] they were thrust out of Egypt, and could not tarry, neither had they prepared for themselves any victual.

40 ¶ Now the sojourning of the children of Israel who dwelt in Egypt, was [c] four hundred and thirty years.

41 And it came to pass, at the end of the four hundred and thirty years, even the self-same day it came to pass, that all [d] the hosts of the LORD went out from the land of Egypt.

42 It is † [e] a night to be much observed unto the LORD, for bringing them out from the land of Egypt: this is that night of the LORD to be observed of all the children of Israel in their generations.

43 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses and Aaron, This is [f] the ordinance of the passover: there shall no stranger eat thereof:

44 But every man's servant that is bought for money, when thou hast [g] circumcised him, then shall he eat thereof.

45 [h] A foreigner, and an hired servant shall not eat thereof.

46 In one house shall it be eaten; thou shalt not carry forth aught of the flesh abroad out of the house: [i] neither shall ye break a bone thereof.

47 [k] All the congregation of Israel shall † keep it.

48 And [l] when a stranger shall sojourn with thee, and will keep the passover to the LORD, let all his males be circumcised, and then let him come near and keep it; and he shall be as one that is born in the land: for no uncircumcised person shall eat thereof.

49 [m] One law shall be to him that is home-born, and unto the stranger that sojourneth among you.

50 Thus did all the children of Israel; as the LORD commanded Moses and Aaron, so did they.

51 [n] And it came to pass the self-same day, that the LORD did bring the children of Israel out of the land of Egypt [o] by their armies.

CHAP. XIII.

The first-born are sanctified to God. 11 The firstlings of beasts are set apart. 17 The Israelites go out of Egypt. 21 God guideth them by a pillar of a cloud, and a pillar of fire.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 [a] Sanctify unto me all the first-born, whatsoever openeth the womb among the children of Israel, both of man and of beast: it is mine.

3 ¶ And Moses said unto the people, Remember this day, in which ye came out from Egypt, out of the house of † bondage; for [c] by strength of hand the LORD brought you out from this place: [d] there shall no leavened bread be eaten.

4 [e] This day came ye out, in the month Abib.

5 ¶ And it shall be when the LORD shall [f] bring thee into the land of the Canaanites, and the Hittites, and the Amorites, and the Hivites, and the Jebusites, which he [g] sware unto thy fathers to give thee, a land flowing with milk and honey; [h] that thou shalt keep this service in this month.

6 [i] Seven days thou shalt eat unleavened bread, and in the seventh day shall be a feast to the LORD.

7 Unleavened bread shall be eaten seven days: and there shall [k] no leavened bread be seen with thee, neither shall there be leaven seen with thee in all thy quarters.

8 ¶ And thou shalt [l] shew thy son in that day, saying, This is done because of that which the LORD did unto me when I came forth out of Egypt.

9 And it shall be for [m] a sign unto thee upon thine hand, and for a memorial between thine eyes; that the LORD's law may be in thy mouth: for with a strong hand hath the LORD brought thee out of Egypt.

10 [n] Thou shalt therefore keep this ordinance in his season from year to year.

11 ¶ And it shall be when the LORD shall bring thee into the land of the Canaanites, as he sware unto thee and to thy fathers, and shall give it thee;

12 [o] That thou shalt † set apart unto the LORD all that openeth the matrix; and every firstling that cometh of a beast which thou hast, the males shall be the LORD's.

13 And [p] every firstling of an ass thou shalt redeem with a ‖ lamb; and if thou wilt not redeem it, then thou shalt break his neck: and all the first-born of man among thy children [q] shalt thou redeem.

14 ¶ [r] And it shall be when thy son asketh thee † in time to come, saying, What is this? that thou shalt say unto him, [s] By strength of hand the LORD brought us out from Egypt, from the house of bondage:

15 And it came to pass, when Pharaoh would hardly let us go, that [t] the LORD slew all the first-born in the land of Egypt, both the first-born of man, and the first-born of beast: therefore I sacrifice to the LORD all that openeth the matrix, being males; but all the first-born of my children I redeem.

16 And it shall be for [u] a token upon thine hand, and for frontlets between thine eyes: for by strength of hand the LORD brought us forth out of Egypt.

17 ¶ And it came to pass, when Pharaoh had let the people go, that God led them not through the way of the land of the Philistines, although that was near; for God said, Lest peradventure the people [x] repent when they see war, and [y] they return to Egypt:

18 But God [z] led the people about, through the way of the wilderness of the Red sea: and the children of Israel went up ‖ harnessed out of the land of Egypt.

19 And Moses took the bones of Joseph with him: for he had straitly sworn the children of Israel, saying, [a] God will surely visit you; and ye shall carry up my bones away hence with you.

20 ¶ And [b] they took their journey from Succoth, and encamped in Etham, in the edge of the wilderness.

22 He took not away the pillar of the cloud by day, nor the pillar of fire by night, from before the people.

CHAP. XIV.

1 God instructeth the Israelites in their journey. 5 Pharaoh pursueth after them. 21 The Israelites pass through the Red sea, 23 which droweth the Egyptians.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, [a] that they turn and encamp before [b] Pi-hahiroth, between [c] Migdol and the sea, over against Baal-zephon: before it shall ye encamp by the sea.

3 For Pharaoh will say of the children of Israel, [d] They are entangled in the land, the wilderness hath shut them in.

4 And [e] I will harden Pharaoh's heart, that he shall follow after them; and I [f] will be honoured upon Pharaoh, and upon all his host; [g] that the Egyptians may know that I am the LORD. And they did so.

5 ¶And it was told the king of Egypt that the people fled: and [h] the heart of Pharaoh and of his servants was turned against the people, and they said, Why have we done this, that we have let Israel go from serving us?

6 And he made ready his chariot, and took his people with him:

7 And he took [i] six hundred chosen chariots, and all the chariots of Egypt, and captains over every one of them.

8 And the LORD [k] hardened the heart of Pharaoh king of Egypt, and he pursued after the children of Israel: and [l] the children of Israel went out with an high hand.

9 But the [m] Egyptians pursued after them (all the horses and chariots of Pharaoh, and his horsemen, and his army) and overtook them encamping by the sea, beside Pi-hahiroth, before Baal-zephon.

10 ¶And when Pharaoh drew nigh, the children of Israel lifted up their eyes, and behold, the Egyptians marched after them; and they were sore afraid: and the children of Israel [n] cried out unto the LORD.

11 [o] And they said unto Moses, Because there were no graves in Egypt, hast thou taken us away to die in the wilderness? Wherefore hast thou dealt thus with us, to carry us forth out of Egypt?

12 [p] Is not this the word that we did tell thee in Egypt, saying, Let us alone, that we may serve the Egyptians? For it had been better for us to serve the Egyptians, than that we should die in the wilderness.

13 ¶And Moses said unto the people, [q] Fear ye not, stand still, and see the salvation of the LORD, which he will shew to you to-day: ‖ for the Egyptians whom ye have seen to-day, ye shall see them again no more for ever.

14 [r] The LORD shall fight for you, and ye shall [s] hold your peace.

15 ¶And the LORD said unto Moses, Wherefore criest thou unto me? Speak unto the children of Israel, that they go forward:

16 But [t] lift thou up thy rod, and stretch out thine hand over the sea, and divide it: and the children of Israel shall go on dry ground through the midst of the sea.

17 And I, behold, I will [u] harden the hearts of the Egyptians, and they shall follow them: and I will [x] get me honour upon Pharaoh, and upon all his host, upon his chariots, and upon his horsemen.

18 And the Egyptians [y] shall know that I am the LORD, when I have gotten me honour upon Pharaoh, upon his chariots, and upon his horsemen.

19 ¶And the angel of God [z] which went before the camp of Israel, removed, and went behind them; and the pillar of the cloud went from before their face, and stood behind them:

20 And it came between the camp of the Egyptians and the camp of Israel; and [a] it was a cloud and darkness to them, but it gave light by night to these: so that the one came not near the other all the night.

21 And Moses [b] stretched out his hand over the sea; and the LORD caused the sea to go back by a strong east wind all that night, and [c] made the sea dry land, and the waters were [d] divided.

22 And [e] the children of Israel went into the midst of the sea upon the dry ground: and the waters were [f] a wall unto them on their right hand, and on their left.

23 ¶And the Egyptians pursued, and went in after them, to the midst of the sea, even all Pharaoh's horses, his chariots, and his horsemen.

24 And it came to pass, that in the morning-watch [g] the LORD looked unto the host of the Egyptians through the pillar of fire and of the cloud, and troubled the host of the Egyptians,

25 And took off their chariot-wheels, ‖ that they drave them heavily: so that the Egyptians said, Let us flee from the face of Israel; for the LORD [h] fighteth for them against the Egyptians.

26 ¶And the LORD said unto Moses, [i] Stretch out thine hand over the sea, that the waters may come again upon the Egyptians, upon their chariots, and upon their horsemen.

27 And Moses stretched forth his hand over the sea, and the sea [k] returned to his strength when the morning appeared; and the Egyptians fled against it; and the LORD [l] †overthrew the Egyptians in the midst of the sea.

28 And [m] the waters returned, and [n] covered the chariots, and the horsemen, and all the host of Pharaoh that came into the sea after them: there remained not so much as one of them.

29 [o] But the children of Israel walked upon dry land in the midst of the sea; and the waters were a wall unto them on their right hand, and on their left.

30 Thus the LORD [p] saved Israel that day out of the hand of the Egyptians: and Israel [q] saw the Egyptians dead upon the sea-shore.

31 And Israel saw that great †work which the LORD did upon the Egyptians: and the people feared the LORD, and [r] believed the LORD, and his servant Moses.

CHAP. XV.

1 Moses' song. 23 The waters at Marah are bitter.

THEN sang [a] Moses and the children of Israel this song unto the LORD, and spake, saying, I will [b] sing unto the LORD, for he hath triumphed gloriously; the horse and his rider hath he thrown into the sea.

2 The LORD is my strength and [c] song, and he is become my salvation: he is my God, and I will prepare him [d] an habitation; my [e] father's God, and I [f] will exalt him.

3 The LORD is a man of [g] war: the LORD is his [h] name.

4 [i] Pharaoh's chariots and his host hath he cast into the sea: [k]his chosen captains also are drowned in the Red sea.

5 [l]The depths have covered them: [m]they sank into the bottom as a stone.

6 [n]Thy right hand, O LORD, is become glorious in power: thy right hand, O LORD, hath dashed in pieces the enemy.

7 And in the greatness of thine [o]excellency thou hast overthrown them that rose up against thee: thou sentest forth thy wrath, which [p]consumed them [q]as stubble.

8 And [r]with the blast of thy nostrils the waters were gathered together, [s]the floods stood upright as an heap, and the depths were congealed in the heart of the sea.

9 [t]The enemy said, I will pursue, I will overtake, I will [u]divide the spoil: my lust shall be satisfied upon them; I will draw my sword, mine hand shall ‖ destroy them.

10 Thou didst [x]blow with thy wind, [y]the sea covered them: they sank as lead in the mighty waters.

11 [z]Who is like unto thee, O LORD, among the ‖ gods? who is like thee, [a]glorious in holiness, fearful in praises, [b]doing wonders?

12 Thou stretchedst out [c]thy right hand, the earth swallowed them.

13 Thou in thy mercy hast [d]led forth the people which thou hast redeemed: thou hast guided them in thy strength unto [e]thy holy habitation.

14 [f]The people shall hear, and be afraid: [g]sorrow shall take hold on the inhabitants of Palestina.

15 [h]Then [i]the dukes of Edom shall be amazed; [k]the mighty men of Moab, trembling shall take hold upon them; [l]all the inhabitants of Canaan shall melt away.

16 [m]Fear and dread shall fall upon them; by the greatness of thine arm they shall be as still [n]as a stone; till thy people pass over, O LORD, till the people pass over, [o]which thou hast purchased.

17 Thou shalt bring them in, and [p]plant them in the mountain of thine inheritance, in the place, O LORD, which thou hast made for thee to dwell in; in the [q]sanctuary, O LORD, which thy hands have established.

18 [r]The LORD shall reign for ever and ever.

19 For the [s]horse of Pharaoh went in with his chariots and with his horsemen into the sea, and [t]the LORD brought again the waters of the sea upon them: but the children of Israel went on dry land in the midst of the sea.

20 ¶And Miriam [u]the prophetess, [x]the sister of Aaron, [y]took a timbrel in her hand; and all the women went out after her, [z]with timbrels, and with dances.

21 And Miriam [a]answered them, [b]Sing ye to the LORD, for he hath triumphed gloriously: the horse and his rider hath he thrown into the sea.

22 So Moses brought Israel from the Red sea, and they went out into the wilderness of [c]Shur; and they went three days in the wilderness, and found no water.

23 ¶And when they came to [d]Marah, they could not drink of the waters of Marah; for they were bitter: therefore the name of it was called ‖ Marah.

24 And the people [e]murmured against Moses, saying, What shall we drink?

25 And he [f]cried unto the LORD; and the LORD shewed him a tree, [h]which when he had cast into the waters, the waters were made sweet: there he [i]made for them a statute and an ordinance, and there [k]he proved them,

26 And said, [l]If thou wilt diligently hearken to the voice of the LORD thy God, and wilt do that which is right in his sight, and wilt give ear to his commandments, and keep all his statutes, I will put none of these [m]diseases upon thee, which I have brought upon the Egyptians: for I am the LORD [n]that healeth thee.

27 ¶ [o]And they came to Elim, where were twelve wells of water, and threescore and ten palm-trees: and they encamped there by the waters.

CHAP. XVI.

2 The Israelites murmur for want of bread. 4 God promiseth them bread from heaven. 11 Quails are sent, 14 and manna.

AND they [a]took their journey from Elim, and all the congregation of the children of Israel came unto the wilderness of [b]Sin, which is between Elim and Sinai, on the fifteenth day of the second month after their departing out of the land of Egypt.

2 And the whole congregation of the children of Israel [c]murmured against Moses and Aaron in the wilderness:

3 And the children of Israel said unto them, [d]Would to God we had died by the hand of the LORD in the land of Egypt, [e]when we sat by the flesh-pots, and when we did eat bread to the full: for ye have brought us forth into this wilderness, to kill this whole assembly with hunger.

4 ¶Then said the LORD unto Moses, Behold, I will rain [f]bread from heaven for you; and the people shall go out and gather † a certain rate every day, that I may [g]prove them, whether they will walk in my law, or no.

5 And it shall come to pass, that on the sixth day they shall prepare that which they bring in; and [h]it shall be twice as much as they gather daily.

6 And Moses and Aaron said unto all the children of Israel, [i]At even, then ye shall know that the LORD hath brought you out from the land of Egypt:

7 And in the morning, then ye shall see [k]the glory of the LORD: for that he heareth your murmurings against the LORD: and [l]what are we, that ye murmur against us?

8 And Moses said, This shall be when the LORD shall give you in the evening flesh to eat, and in the morning bread to the full; for that the LORD heareth your murmurings which ye murmur against him: and what are we? your murmurings are not against us, but [m]against the LORD.

9 ¶And Moses spake unto Aaron, Say unto all the congregation of the children of Israel, [n]Come near before the LORD: for he hath heard your murmurings.

10 And it came to pass, as Aaron spake unto the whole congregation of the children of Israel, that they looked toward the wilderness, and behold, the glory of the LORD [o]appeared in the cloud.

11 ¶And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

12 [p]I have heard the murmurings of the children of Israel; speak unto them, saying, [q]At even ye shall eat flesh, and [r]in the morning ye shall be filled with bread: and ye shall know that I am the LORD your God.

13 And it came to pass, that at even [s]the quails came up, and covered the camp: and in the morning [t]the dew lay round about the host.

14 And when the dew that lay was gone up, behold, upon the face of the wilderness there lay [u]a small round thing, as small as the hoar frost on the ground:

15 And when the children of Israel saw it, they said one to another, ‖ It is manna: for they wist not what it was. And Moses said unto them, [x] This is the bread which the LORD hath given you to eat.

16 ¶ This is the thing which the LORD hath commanded, Gather of it every man according to his eating: [y] an omer † for every man according to the number of your † persons, take ye every man for them which are in his tents.

17 And the children of Israel did so, and gathered, some more, some less.

18 And when they did mete it with an omer, [z] he that gathered much had nothing over, and he that gathered little had no lack: they gathered every man according to his eating.

19 And Moses said, Let no man leave of it till the morning.

20 Notwithstanding, they hearkened not unto Moses; but some of them left of it until the morning, and it bred worms, and stank: and Moses was wroth with them.

21 And they gathered it every morning, every man according to his eating: and when the sun waxed hot it melted.

22 ¶ And it came to pass, that on the sixth day they gathered twice as much bread, two omers for one man: and all the rulers of the congregation came and told Moses.

23 And he said unto them, This is that which the LORD hath said, To-morrow is [a] the rest of the holy sabbath unto the LORD: bake that which ye will bake to-day, and seethe that ye will seethe; and that which remaineth over, lay up for you to be kept until the morning.

24 And they laid it up till the morning, as Moses bade: and it did not [b] stink, neither was there any worm therein.

25 And Moses said, Eat that to-day; for to-day is a sabbath unto the LORD; to-day ye shall not find it in the field.

26 [c] Six days ye shall gather it; but on the seventh day, which is the sabbath, in it there shall be none.

27 ¶ And it came to pass, that there went out some of the people on the seventh day for to gather, and they found none.

28 And the LORD said unto Moses, How long [d] refuse ye to keep my commandments and my laws?

29 See, for that the LORD hath given you the sabbath, therefore he giveth you on the sixth day the bread of two days: abide ye every man in his place, let no man go out of his place on the seventh day.

30 So the people rested on the seventh day.

31 And the house of Israel called the name thereof Manna: and [e] it was like coriander-seed, white; and the taste of it was like wafers made with honey.

32 ¶ And Moses said, This is the thing which the LORD commandeth, Fill an omer of it to be kept for your generations; that they may see the bread wherewith I have fed you in the wilderness, when I brought you forth from the land of Egypt.

33 And Moses said unto Aaron, [f] Take a pot, and put an omer full of manna therein, and lay it up before the LORD, to be kept for your generations.

34 As the LORD commanded Moses, so Aaron laid it up [g] before the Testimony, to be kept.

35 And the children of Israel did eat manna [h] forty years, [i] until they came to a land inhabited: they did eat manna, until they came unto the borders of the land of Canaan.

36 Now an omer is the tenth part of an ephah.

CHAP. XVII.

1 The people murmur for water at Rephidim. 8 Amalek is overcome. 15 Moses buildeth the altar JEHOVAH-nissi.

AND [a] all the congregation of the children of Israel journeyed from the wilderness of Sin, after their journeys, according to the commandment of the LORD, and pitched in Rephidim: and there was no water for the people to drink.

2 [b] Wherefore the people did chide with Moses, and said, Give us water that we may drink. And Moses said unto them, Why chide ye with me? wherefore do ye [c] tempt the LORD?

3 And the people thirsted there for water; and the people [d] murmured against Moses, and said, Wherefore is this that thou hast brought us up out of Egypt to kill us and our children and our cattle with thirst?

4 And Moses [e] cried unto the LORD, saying, What shall I do unto this people? they be almost ready to [f] stone me.

5 And the LORD said unto Moses, [g] Go on before the people, and take with thee of the elders of Israel; and thy rod, wherewith [h] thou smotest the river, take in thine hand, and go.

6 [i] Behold, I will stand before thee there upon the rock in Horeb; and thou shalt smite the rock, and there shall come water out of it, that the people may drink. And Moses did so in the sight of the elders of Israel.

7 And he called the name of the place [k] ‖ Massah, and ‖ Meribah, because of the chiding of the children of Israel, and because they tempted the LORD, saying, Is the LORD among us, or not?

8 ¶ [l] Then came Amalek, and fought with Israel in Rephidim.

9 And Moses said unto [m] Joshua, Choose us out men, and go out, fight with Amalek: to-morrow I will stand on the top of the hill with [n] the rod of God in mine hand.

10 So Joshua did as Moses had said to him, and fought with Amalek: and Moses, Aaron, and Hur, went up to the top of the hill.

11 And it came to pass, when Moses [o] held up his hand, that Israel prevailed: and when he let down his hand, Amalek prevailed.

12 But Moses' hands were heavy; and they took a stone, and put it under him, and he sat thereon: and Aaron and Hur stayed up his hands, the one on the one side, and the other on the other side; and his hands were steady until the going down of the sun.

13 And Joshua discomfited Amalek and his people with the edge of the sword.

14 And the LORD said unto Moses, [p] Write this for a memorial in a book, and rehearse it in the ears of Joshua: for [q] I will utterly put out the remembrance of Amalek from under heaven.

15 And Moses built an altar, and called the name of it ‖ JEHOVAH-nissi:

16 For he said, ‖ Because † the LORD hath sworn that the LORD will have war with Amalek from generation to generation.

1 Jethro bringeth to Moses his wife and two sons. 7 Moses entertaineth him.

WHEN [a] Jethro the priest of Midian, Moses' father-in-law, heard of all that [b] God had done

b Ps. 44. 1. & 77. 14, 15. & 78. 4. & 105. 5, 43. & 106. 2, 8.

for Moses, and for Israel his people, and that the LORD had brought Israel out of Egypt:

2 Then Jethro, Moses' father-in-law, took Zipporah, Moses' wife, [c]after he had sent her back,

3 And her [d]two sons; of which the [e]name of the one was ‖Gershom; (for he said, I have been an alien in a strange land:)

4 And the name of the other was ‖Eliezer; (for the God of my father, said he, was mine help, and delivered me from the sword of Pharaoh:)

5 And Jethro, Moses' father-in-law, came with his sons and his wife unto Moses into the wilderness, where he encamped at [f]the mount of God:

6 And he said unto Moses, I thy father-in-law Jethro am come unto thee, and thy wife, and her two sons with her.

7 ¶And Moses [g]went out to meet his father-in-law, and did obeisance, and [h]kissed him: and they asked each other of their †welfare; and they came into the tent.

8 And Moses told his father-in-law all that the LORD had done unto Pharaoh, and to the Egyptians for Israel's sake, and all the travail that had †come upon them by the way, and how the LORD [i]delivered them.

9 And Jethro rejoiced for all the goodness which the LORD had done to Israel, whom he had delivered out of the hand of the Egyptians.

10 And Jethro said, [k]Blessed be the LORD, who hath delivered you out of the hand of the Egyptians, and out of the hand of Pharaoh, who hath delivered the people from under the hand of the Egyptians.

11 Now I know that the LORD is [l]greater than all gods: [m]for in the thing wherein they dealt [n]proudly, he was above them.

12 And Jethro, Moses' father-in-law, took a burnt-offering and sacrifices for God: and Aaron came, and all the elders of Israel to eat bread with Moses' father-in-law, [o]before God.

13 ¶And it came to pass on the morrow, that Moses sat to judge the people: and the people stood by Moses from the morning unto the evening.

14 And when Moses' father-in-law saw all that he did to the people, he said, What is this thing that thou doest to the people? Why sittest thou thyself alone, and all the people stand by thee from morning unto even?

15 And Moses said unto his father-in-law, Because [p]the people come unto me to inquire of God:

16 When they have [q]a matter, they come unto me, and I judge between †one and another, and I do [r]make them know the statutes of God, and his laws.

17 And Moses' father-in-law said unto him, The thing that thou doest is not good.

18 †Thou wilt surely wear away, both thou, and this people that is with thee: for this thing is too heavy for thee; [s]thou art not able to perform it thyself alone.

19 Hearken now unto my voice, I will give thee counsel, and [t]God shall be with thee: Be thou [u]for the people to God-ward, that thou mayest [x]bring the causes unto God:

20 And thou shalt [y]teach them ordinances and laws, and shalt shew them [z]the way wherein they must walk, and [a]the work that they must do.

21 Moreover, thou shalt provide out of all the people, [b]able men, such as [c]fear God, [d]men of truth, [e]hating covetousness; and place such over them to be rulers of thousands, and rulers of hundreds, rulers of fifties, and rulers of tens:

22 And let them judge the people [f]at all seasons: [g]and it shall be, that every great matter they shall bring unto thee, but every small matter they shall judge: so shall it be easier for thyself, and [h]they shall bear the burden with thee.

23 If thou shalt do this thing, and God command thee so, then thou shalt be [i]able to endure, and all this people shall also go to [k]their place in peace.

24 So Moses hearkened to the voice of his father-in-law, and did all that he had said.

25 And [l]Moses chose able men out of all Israel, and made them heads over the people, rulers of thousands, rulers of hundreds, rulers of fifties, and rulers of tens.

26 And they [m]judged the people at all seasons: the [n]hard causes they brought unto Moses, but every small matter they judged themselves.

27 ¶And Moses let his father-in-law depart: and [o]he went his way into his own land.

CHAP. XIX.

1 The people come to Sinai. 3 God's message by Moses unto the people out of the mount. 12 The mountain must not be touched. 16 The presence of God upon the mount.

IN the third month, when the children of Israel were gone forth out of the land of Egypt, the same day [a]came they into the wilderness of Sinai.

2 For they were departed from [b]Rephidim, and were come to the desert of Sinai, and had pitched in the wilderness; and there Israel camped before [c]the mount.

3 And [d]Moses went up unto God, and the LORD [e]called unto him out of the mountain, saying, Thus shalt thou say to the house of Jacob, and tell the children of Israel;

4 [f]Ye have seen what I did unto the Egyptians, and how [g]I bare you on eagles' wings, and brought you unto myself.

5 Now [h]therefore, if ye will obey my voice indeed, and keep my covenant, then [i]ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto me above all people: for [k]all the earth is mine:

6 And ye shall be unto me a [l]kingdom of priests, and an [m]holy nation. These are the words which thou shalt speak unto the children of Israel.

7 ¶And Moses came and called for the elders of the people, and laid before their faces all these words which the LORD commanded him.

8 And [n]all the people answered together, and said, All that the LORD hath spoken we will do. And Moses returned the words of the people unto the LORD.

9 And the LORD said unto Moses, Lo, I come unto thee [o]in a thick cloud, [p]that the people may hear when I speak with thee, and [q]believe thee for ever. And Moses told the words of the people unto the LORD.

10 ¶And the LORD said unto Moses, Go unto the people, and [r]sanctify them to-day and to-morrow, and let them [s]wash their clothes,

11 And be ready against the third day: for the third day the LORD [t]will come down in the sight of all the people upon mount Sinai.

12 And thou shalt set bounds unto the people round about, saying, Take heed to yourselves, that ye go not up into the mount, or touch the border of it: [u]whosoever toucheth the mount shall be surely put to death:

13 There shall not a hand touch it, but he shall surely be stoned or shot through: whether it be beast or man, it shall not live: when the ‖[x]trumpet soundeth long, they shall come up to the mount.

14 ¶ And Moses went down from the mount unto the people, and [y] sanctified the people; and they washed their clothes.

15 And he said unto the people, [z] Be ready against the third day: [a] come not at your wives.

16 ¶ And it came to pass on the third day in the morning, that there were [b] thunders and lightnings, and a [c] thick cloud upon the mount, and the [d] voice of the trumpet exceeding loud; so that all the people that was in the camp [e] trembled.

17 And [f] Moses brought forth the people out of the camp to meet with God; and they stood at the nether part of the mount.

18 And [g] mount Sinai was altogether on a smoke, because the LORD descended upon it [h] in fire: [i] and the smoke thereof ascended as the smoke of a furnace, and [k] the whole mount quaked greatly.

19 And [l] when the voice of the trumpet sounded long, and waxed louder and louder, [m] Moses spake, and [n] God answered him by a voice.

20 And the LORD came down upon mount Sinai, on the top of the mount: and the LORD called Moses up to the top of the mount; and Moses went up.

21 And the LORD said unto Moses, Go down, † charge the people, lest they break through unto the LORD [o] to gaze, and many of them perish.

22 And let the priests also, which come near to the LORD, [p] sanctify themselves, lest the LORD [q] break forth upon them.

23 And Moses said unto the LORD, The people cannot come up to mount Sinai: for thou chargedst us, saying, [r] Set bounds about the mount, and sanctify it.

24 And the LORD said unto him, Away, get thee down, and thou shalt come up, thou and Aaron with thee: but let not the priests and the people break through, to come up unto the LORD, lest he break forth upon them.

25 So Moses went down unto the people, and spake unto them.

17 [x] Thou shalt not covet thy neighbour's house, [y] thou shalt not covet thy neighbour's wife, nor his man-servant, nor his maid-servant, nor his ox, nor his ass, nor any thing that is thy neighbour's.

18 ¶ And [z] all the people [a] saw the thunderings, and the lightnings, and the noise of the trumpet, and the mountain [b] smoking: and when the people saw it, they removed, and stood afar off.

19 And they said unto Moses, [c] Speak thou with us, and we will hear: but [d] let not God speak with us, lest we die.

20 And Moses said unto the people, [e] Fear not: [f] for God is come to prove you, and [g] that his fear may be before your faces, that ye sin not.

21 And the people stood afar off, and Moses drew near unto [h] the thick darkness where God was.

22 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Thus thou shalt say unto the children of Israel; Ye have seen that I have talked with you [i] from heaven.

23 Ye shall not make [k] with me gods of silver, neither shall ye make unto you gods of gold.

24 ¶ An altar of earth thou shalt make unto me, and shalt sacrifice thereon thy burnt offerings, and thy peace offerings, [l] thy sheep, and thine oxen: in all [m] places where I record my name I will come unto thee, and I will [n] bless thee.

25 And [o] if thou wilt make me an altar of stone, thou shalt not † build it of hewn stone, for if thou lift up thy tool upon it, thou hast polluted it.

26 Neither shalt thou go up by steps unto mine altar, that thy nakedness be not discovered thereon.

CHAP. XXI.

Sundry laws for men-servants, &c.

NOW these are the judgments which thou shalt [a] set before them.

2 [b] If thou buy an Hebrew servant, six years he shall serve: and in the seventh he shall go out free for nothing.

3 If he came in † by himself, he shall go out by himself: if he were married, then his wife shall go out with him.

4 If his master have given him a wife, and she have borne him sons or daughters, the wife and her children shall be her master's, and he shall go out by himself.

5 [c] And if the servant † shall plainly say, I love my master, my wife, and my children; I will not go out free:

6 Then his master shall bring him unto the [d] judges, he shall also bring him to the door, or unto the door-post; and his master shall [e] bore his ear through with an awl; and he shall serve him for ever.

7 ¶ And if a man [f] sell his daughter to be a maid-servant, she shall not go out [g] as the men-servants do.

8 If she † please not her master, who hath betrothed her to himself, then shall he let her be redeemed: to sell her unto a strange nation he shall have no power, seeing he hath dealt deceitfully with her.

9 And if he have betrothed her unto his son, he shall deal with her after the manner of daughters.

10 If he take him another wife; her food, her raiment, [h]and her duty of marriage shall he not diminish.

11 And if he do not these three unto her, then shall she go out free without money.

12 ¶ [i]He that smiteth a man, so that he die, shall be surely put to death.

13 And [k]if a man lie not in wait, but God [l]deliver him into his hand; then [m]I will appoint thee a place whither he shall flee.

14 But if a man come [n]presumptuously upon his neighbour, to slay him with guile; [o]thou shalt take him from mine altar, that he may die.

15 ¶And he that smiteth his father, or his mother, shall be surely put to death.

16 ¶And [p]he that stealeth a man, and [q]selleth him, or if he be [r]found in his hand, he shall surely be put to death.

17 ¶And [s]he that ‖curseth his father or his mother, shall surely be put to death.

18 ¶And if men strive together, and one smite ‖another with a stone, or with his fist, and he die not, but keepeth his bed:

19 If he rise again, and walk abroad [t]upon his staff, then shall he that smote him be quit: only he shall pay for †the loss of his time, and shall cause him to be thoroughly healed.

20 ¶And if a man smite his servant, or his maid, with a rod, and he die under his hand; he shall be surely †punished.

21 Notwithstanding, if he continue a day or two, he shall not be punished: for [u]he is his money.

22 ¶If men strive, and hurt a woman with child, so that her fruit depart from her, and yet no mischief follow: he shall be surely punished, according as the woman's husband will lay upon him; and he shall [x]pay as the judges determine.

23 And if any mischief follow, then thou shalt give life for life,

24 [y]Eye for eye, tooth for tooth, hand for hand, foot for foot,

25 Burning for burning, wound for wound, stripe for stripe.

26 ¶And if a man smite the eye of his servant, or the eye of his maid, that it perish; he shall let him go free for his eye's sake.

27 And if he smite out his man-servant's tooth, or his maid-servant's tooth; he shall let him go free for his tooth's sake.

28 ¶If an ox gore a man or a woman, that they die: then [z]the ox shall be surely stoned, and his flesh shall not be eaten; but the owner of the ox shall be quit.

29 But if the ox were wont to push with his horn in time past, and it hath been testified to his owner, and he hath not kept him in, but that he hath killed a man or a woman; the ox shall be stoned, and his owner also shall be put to death.

30 If there be laid on him a sum of money, then he shall give for [a]the ransom of his life whatsoever is laid upon him.

31 Whether he have gored a son, or have gored a daughter, according to this judgment shall it be done unto him.

33 ¶And if a man shall open a pit, or if a man shall dig a pit, and not cover it, and an ox or an ass fall therein;

34 The owner of the pit shall make it good, and give money unto the owner of them; and the dead beast shall be his.

35 ¶And if one man's ox hurt another's that he die, then they shall sell the live ox, and divide the money of it, and the dead ox also they shall divide.

36 Or if it be known that the ox hath used to push in time past, and his owner hath not kept him in; he shall surely pay ox for ox, and the dead shall be his own.

CHAP. XXII.

1 Of theft and other offences. 29 Of the first fruits.

IF a man shall steal an ox, or a ‖sheep, and kill it, or sell it; he shall restore five oxen for an ox, and [a]four sheep for a sheep.

2 ¶If a thief be found [b]breaking up, and be smitten that he die, there shall [c]no blood be shed for him.

3 If the sun be risen upon him there shall be blood shed for him: for he should make full restitution; if he have nothing, then he shall be [d]sold for his theft.

4 If the theft be certainly [e]found in his hand alive, whether it be ox, or ass, or sheep; he shall [f]restore double.

5 ¶If a man shall cause a field or vineyard to be eaten, and shall put in his beast, and shall feed in another man's field: of the best of his own field, and of the best of his own vineyard shall he make restitution.

6 ¶If fire break out, and catch in thorns, so that the stacks of corn, or the standing corn, or the field be consumed therewith; he that kindled the fire shall surely make restitution.

7 ¶If a man shall deliver unto his neighbour money or stuff to keep, and it be stolen out of the man's house; [g]if the thief be found, let him pay double.

8 If the thief be not found, then the master of the house shall be brought unto the [h]judges, to see whether he have put his hand unto his neighbour's goods.

9 For all manner of trespass, whether it be for ox, for ass, for sheep, for raiment, or for any manner of lost thing which another challengeth to be his: the [i]cause of both parties shall come before the judges; and whom the judges shall condemn, he shall pay double unto his neighbour.

10 If a man deliver unto his neighbour an ass, or an ox, or a sheep, or any beast to keep; and it die, or be hurt, or driven away, no man seeing it:

11 Then shall an [k]oath of the LORD be between them both, that he hath not put his hand unto his neighbour's goods; and the owner of it shall accept thereof, and he shall not make it good.

12 And [l]if it be stolen from him, he shall make restitution unto the owner thereof.

13 If it be torn in pieces; then let him bring it for witness, and he shall not make good that which was torn.

14 ¶And if a man borrow aught of his neighbour, and it be hurt, or die, the owner thereof being not with it, he shall surely make it good.

15 But if the owner thereof be with it, he shall not make it good: if it be an hired thing, it came for his hire.

16 ¶And [m]if a man entice a maid that is not betrothed, and lie with her, he shall surely endow her to be his wife.

17 If her father utterly refuse to give her unto him, he shall †pay money according to the [n]dowry of virgins.

18 ¶ [o]Thou shalt not suffer a witch to live.

19 ¶ [p]Whosoever lieth with a beast shall surely be put to death.

20 ¶ [q]He that sacrificeth unto any god, save unto the LORD only, he shall be utterly destroyed.

21 ¶ [r]Thou shalt neither vex a stranger, nor oppress him: for ye were strangers in the land of Egypt.

22 ¶ [s]Ye shall not afflict any widow, or fatherless child.

23 If thou afflict them in any wise, and they [t]cry at all unto me, I will surely [u]hear their cry;

24 And my [x]wrath shall wax hot, and I will kill you with the sword; and [y]your wives shall be widows, and your children fatherless.

25 ¶ [z]If thou lend money to any of my people that is poor by thee, thou shalt not be to him as an usurer, neither shalt thou lay upon him usury.

26 [a]If thou at all take thy neighbour's raiment to pledge, thou shalt deliver it unto him by that the sun goeth down:

27 For that is his covering only, it is his raiment for his skin: wherein shall he sleep? and it shall come to pass, when he [b]crieth unto me, that I will hear; for I am [c]gracious.

28 ¶ [d]Thou shalt not revile the ‖gods, nor curse the ruler of thy people.

29 ¶ Thou shalt not delay to offer †[e]the first of thy ripe fruits, and of thy †liquors: [f]the first-born of thy sons shalt thou give unto me.

30 [g]Likewise shalt thou do with thine oxen, and with thy sheep: [h]seven days it shall be with his dam; on the eighth day thou shalt give it me.

31 ¶ And ye shall be [i]holy men unto me: [k]neither shall ye eat any flesh that is torn of beasts in the field; ye shall cast it to the dogs.

CHAP. XXIII.

1 Of slander and false witness. 3, 6 Of justice. 4 Of charitableness. 10 Of the year of rest. 12 Of the Sabbath. 13 Of idolatry. 14 Of the three feasts. 18 Of the blood and the fat of the sacrifice. 20 An Angel is promised.

THOU [a]shalt not ‖raise a false report: put not thine hand with the wicked to be an [b]unrighteous witness.

2 ¶ [c]Thou shalt not follow a multitude to do evil; [d]neither shalt thou †speak in a cause to decline after many to wrest judgment:

3 ¶ Neither shalt thou countenance a poor man in his cause.

4 ¶ [e]If thou meet thine enemy's ox or his ass going astray, thou shalt surely bring it back to him again.

5 [f]If thou see the ass of him that hateth thee lying under his burden, ‖and wouldest forbear to help him, thou shalt surely help with him.

6 [g]Thou shalt not wrest the judgment of thy poor in his cause.

7 [h]Keep thee far from a false matter; [i]and the innocent and righteous slay thou not: for [k]I will not justify the wicked.

8 ¶ And [l]thou shalt take no gift; for the gift blindeth †the wise, and perverteth the words of the righteous.

9 ¶ Also [m]thou shalt not oppress a stranger: for ye know the †heart of a stranger, seeing ye were strangers in the land of Egypt.

10 And [n]six years thou shalt sow thy land, and shalt gather in the fruits thereof:

11 But the seventh year thou shalt let it rest and lie still; that the poor of thy people may eat: and what they leave the beasts of the field shall eat. In like manner thou shalt deal with thy vineyard, and with thy ‖oliveyard.

12 [o]Six days thou shalt do thy work, and on the seventh day thou shalt rest: that thine ox and thine ass may rest, and the son of thy handmaid, and the stranger, may be refreshed.

13 And in all things that I have said unto you, [p]be circumspect: and [q]make no mention of the name of other gods, neither let it be heard out of thy mouth.

14 ¶ [r]Three times thou shalt keep a feast unto me in the year.

15 [s]Thou shalt keep the feast of unleavened bread: (thou shalt eat unleavened bread seven days, as I commanded thee, in the time appointed of the month Abib; for in it thou camest out from Egypt: [t]and none shall appear before me empty:)

16 [u]And the feast of harvest, the first-fruits of thy labours, which thou hast sown in the field: and [x]the feast of ingathering, which is in the end of the year, when thou hast gathered in thy labours out of the field.

17 [y]Three times in the year all thy males shall appear before the LORD God.

18 [z]Thou shalt not offer the blood of my sacrifice with leavened bread: neither shall the fat of my ‖sacrifice remain until the morning.

19 [a]The first of the first-fruits of thy land thou shalt bring into the house of the LORD thy God. [b]Thou shalt not seethe a kid in his mother's milk.

20 ¶ [c]Behold, I send an Angel before thee, to keep thee in the way, and to bring thee into the place which I have prepared.

21 Beware of him, and obey his voice, [d]provoke him not; for he will [e]not pardon your transgressions: for [f]my name is in him.

22 But if thou shalt indeed obey his voice, and do all that I speak; then [g]I will be an enemy unto thine enemies, and ‖an adversary unto thine adversaries.

23 [h]For mine Angel shall go before thee, and [i]bring thee in unto the Amorites, and the Hittites, and the Perizzites, and the Canaanites, and the Hivites, and the Jebusites; and I will cut them off.

24 Thou shalt not [k]bow down to their gods, nor serve them, [l]nor do after their works: [m]but thou shalt utterly overthrow them, and quite break down their images.

25 And ye shall [n]serve the LORD your God, and [o]he shall bless thy bread, and thy water; and [p]I will take sickness away from the midst of thee.

26 ¶ [q]There shall nothing cast their young, nor be barren in thy land: the number of thy days I will [r]fulfil.

27 I will send [s]my fear before thee, and will destroy all the people to whom thou shalt come, and I will make all thine enemies turn their †backs unto thee.

28 And [t]I will send hornets before thee, which shall drive out the Hivite, the Canaanite, and the Hittite from before thee.

29 [w]I will not drive them out from before thee in one year; lest the land become desolate, and the beast of the field multiply against thee.

30 By little and little I will drive them out from before thee, until thou be increased, and inherit the land.

31 And [x]I will set thy bounds from the Red sea

even unto the sea of the Philistines, and from the desert unto the river: for I will [y] deliver the inhabitants of the land into your hand; and thou shalt drive them out before thee.

32 [z] Thou shalt make no covenant with them, nor with their gods.

33 They shall not dwell in thy land, lest they make thee sin against me: for if thou serve their gods, [a] it will surely be a snare unto thee.

CHAP. XXIV.

1 Moses is called up into the mountain. 4 Moses buildeth an altar, and twelve pillars. 6 He sprinkleth the blood of the covenant. 9 The glory of God appeareth. 15 Moses continueth forty days and forty nights in the mount.

AND he said unto Moses, Come up unto the LORD, thou, and Aaron, [a] Nadab, and Abihu, [b] and seventy of the elders of Israel; and worship ye afar off.

2 And Moses [c] alone shall come near the LORD: but they shall not come nigh; neither shall the people go up with him.

3 ¶ And Moses came and told the people all the words of the LORD, and all the judgments: and all the people answered with one voice, and said, [d] All the words which the LORD hath said will we do.

4 And Moses [e] wrote all the words of the LORD, and rose up early in the morning, and builded an altar under the hill, and twelve [f] pillars according to the twelve tribes of Israel.

5 And he sent young men of the children of Israel, which offered burnt-offerings, and sacrificed peace-offerings of oxen unto the LORD.

6 And Moses [g] took half of the blood, and put it in basins; and half of the blood he sprinkled on the altar.

7 And he [h] took the book of the covenant, and read in the audience of the people: and they said, [i] All that the LORD hath said will we do, and be obedient.

8 And Moses took the blood, and sprinkled it on the people, and said, Behold [k] the blood of the covenant, which the LORD hath made with you concerning all these words.

9 ¶ Then [l] went up Moses, and Aaron, Nadab, and Abihu, and seventy of the elders of Israel:

10 And they [m] saw the God of Israel: and there was under his feet as it were a paved work of a [n] sapphire-stone, and as it were the [o] body of heaven in his clearness.

11 And upon the nobles of the children of Israel he [p] laid not his hand: also [q] they saw God, and did [r] eat and drink.

12 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, [s] Come up to me into the mount, and be there: and I will give thee [t] tables of stone, and a law, and commandments which I have written; that thou mayest teach them.

13 And Moses rose up, and [u] his minister Joshua: and Moses [w] went up into the mount of God.

14 And he said unto the elders, Tarry ye here for us, until we come again unto you: and behold, Aaron and Hur are with you: if any man have any matters to do, let him come unto them.

15 And Moses went up into the mount, and [x] a cloud covered the mount.

16 And [y] the glory of the LORD abode upon mount Sinai, and the cloud covered it six days: and the seventh day he called unto Moses out of the midst of the cloud.

17 And the sight of the glory of the LORD was like [z] devouring fire on the top of the mount in the eyes of the children of Israel.

18 And Moses went into the midst of the cloud, and gat him up into the mount: and [a] Moses was in the mount forty days and forty nights.

CHAP XXV.

1 What the Israelites must offer for the making of the tabernacle. 10 The form of the ark. 17 The mercy-seat with the cherubims. 23 The table with the furniture thereof.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, that they † bring me an ‖ offering: [a] of every man that giveth it willingly with his heart ye shall take my offering.

3 And this is the offering which ye shall take of them; gold, and silver, and brass,

4 And blue, and purple, and scarlet, and ‖ fine linen, and goats' hair,

5 And rams' skins dyed red, and badgers' skins, and shittim-wood,

6 [b] Oil for the light, [c] spices for anointing oil, and for [d] sweet incense,

7 Onyx-stones, and stones to be set in the [e] ephod, and in the [f] breast-plate.

8 And let them make me a [g] sanctuary; that [h] I may dwell among them.

9 [i] According to all that I shew thee, after the pattern of the tabernacle, and the pattern of all the instruments thereof, even so shall ye make it.

10 ¶ [k] And they shall make an ark of shittim-wood: two cubits and a half shall be the length thereof, and a cubit and a half the breadth thereof, and a cubit and a half the height thereof.

11 And thou shalt overlay it with pure gold, within and without shalt thou overlay it; and shalt make upon it a crown of gold round about.

12 And thou shalt cast four rings of gold for it, and put them in the four corners thereof; and two rings shall be in the one side of it, and two rings in the other side of it.

13 And thou shalt make staves of shittim-wood, and overlay them with gold.

14 And thou shalt put the staves into the rings by the sides of the ark, that the ark may be borne with them.

15 [l] The staves shall be in the rings of the ark: they shall not be taken from it.

16 And thou shalt put into the ark [m] the testimony which I shall give thee.

17 And [n] thou shalt make a mercy-seat of pure gold: two cubits and a half shall be the length thereof, and a cubit and a half the breadth thereof.

18 And thou shalt make two cherubims of gold, of beaten work shalt thou make them, in the two ends of the mercy-seat.

19 And make one cherub on the one end, and the other cherub on the other end: even ‖ of the mercy-seat shall ye make the cherubims on the two ends thereof.

20 And [o] the cherubims shall stretch forth their wings on high, covering the mercy-seat with their wings, and their faces shall look one to another; toward the mercy-seat shall the faces of the cherubims be.

21 [p] And thou shalt put the mercy-seat above upon the ark; and [q] in the ark thou shalt put the testimony that I shall give thee.

22 And [r] there I will meet with thee, and I will commune with thee from above the mercy-seat, from [s] between the two cherubims which are upon the ark of the testimony, of all things which I will give thee in commandment unto the children of Israel.

24 And thou shalt overlay it with pure gold, and make thereto a crown of gold round about.

25 And thou shalt make unto it a border of an hand-breadth round about, and thou shalt make a golden crown to the border thereof round about.

26 And thou shalt make for it four rings of gold, and put the rings in the four corners that are on the four feet thereof.

27 Over against the border shall the rings be for places of the staves to bear the table.

28 And thou shalt make the staves of shittim-wood, and overlay them with gold, that the table may be borne with them.

33 Three bowls made like unto almonds, with a knop and a flower in one branch; and three bowls made like almonds in the other branch, with a knop and a flower: so in the six branches that come out of the candlestick.

34 And in the candlestick shall be four bowls made like unto almonds, with their knops and their flowers.

35 And there shall be a knop under two branches of the same, and a knop under two branches of the same, and a knop under two branches of the same, according to the six branches that proceed out of the candlestick.

36 Their knops and their branches shall be of the same: all of it shall be one beaten work of pure gold.

37 And thou shalt make the seven lamps thereof: and [y]they shall ‖ light the lamps thereof, that they may [z]give light over against † it.

38 And the tongs thereof, and the snuff-dishes thereof, shall be of pure gold.

39 Of a talent of pure gold shall he make it, with all these vessels.

40 And [a]look that thou make them after their pattern, † which was shewed thee in the mount.

CHAP. XXVI.

Directions for the Tabernacle.

MOREOVER, [a]thou shalt make the tabernacle with ten curtains of fine twined linen, and blue, and purple, and scarlet: with cherubims † of cunning work shalt thou make them.

2 The length of one curtain shall be eight and twenty cubits, and the breadth of one curtain four cubits: and every one of the curtains shall have one measure.

3 The five curtains shall be coupled together one to another; and other five curtains shall be coupled one to another.

4 And thou shalt make loops of blue upon the edge of the one curtain from the selvedge in the coupling; and likewise shalt thou make in the uttermost edge of another curtain, in the coupling of the second.

5 Fifty loops shalt thou make in the one curtain, and fifty loops shalt thou make in the edge of the curtain that is in the coupling of the second; that the loops may take hold one of another.

6 And thou shalt make fifty taches of gold, and couple the curtains together with the taches: and it shall be one tabernacle.

7 ¶ And [b]thou shalt make curtains of goat's hair to be a covering upon the tabernacle: eleven curtains shalt thou make.

8 The length of one curtain shall be thirty cubits, and the breadth of one curtain four cubits: and the eleven curtains shall be all of one measure.

9 And thou shalt couple five curtains by themselves, and six curtains by themselves, and shalt double the sixth curtain in the fore-front of the tabernacle.

10 And thou shalt make fifty loops on the edge of the one curtain that is outmost in the coupling, and fifty loops in the edge of the curtain which coupleth the second.

11 And thou shalt make fifty taches of brass, and put the taches into the loops, and couple the ‖ tent together, that it may be one.

12 And the remnant that remaineth of the curtains of the tent, the half curtain that remaineth, shall hang over the back-side of the tabernacle.

13 And a cubit on the one side, and a cubit on the other side † of that which remaineth in the length of the curtains of the tent, it shall hang over the sides of the tabernacle on this side and on that side, to cover it.

14 And [c]thou shalt make a covering for the tent of rams' skins dyed red, and a covering above of badgers' skins.

15 ¶ And thou shalt make boards for the tabernacle of shittim-wood standing up.

16 Ten cubits shall be the length of a board, and a cubit and a half shall be the breadth of one board.

17 Two † tenons shall there be in one board, set in order one against another: thus shalt thou make for all the boards of the tabernacle.

18 And thou shalt make the boards for the tabernacle, twenty boards on the south side southward.

19 And thou shalt make forty sockets of silver under the twenty boards: two sockets under one board for his two tenons, and two sockets under another board for his two tenons.

20 And for the second side of the tabernacle on the north side there shall be twenty boards.

21 And their forty sockets of silver; two sockets under one board, and two sockets under another board.

22 And for the sides of the tabernacle westward thou shalt make six boards.

23 And two boards shalt thou make for the corners of the tabernacle in the two sides.

24 And they shall be † coupled together beneath, and they shall be coupled together above the head of it unto one ring: thus shall it be for them both; they shall be for the two corners.

25 And they shall be eight boards, and their sockets of silver, sixteen sockets; two sockets under one board, and two sockets under another board.

26 ¶ And thou shalt make bars of shittim-wood; five for the boards of the one side of the tabernacle,

29 And thou shalt overlay the boards with gold, and make their rings of gold for places for the bars: and thou shalt overlay the bars with gold.

30 And thou shalt rear up the tabernacle [a]according to the fashion thereof which was shewed thee in the mount.

31 ¶ And [e]thou shalt make a vail of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen of cunning work: with cherubims shall it be made.

32 And thou shalt hang it upon four pillars of shittim-wood overlaid with gold: their hooks shall be of gold upon the four sockets of silver.

33 ¶ And thou shalt hang up the vail under the taches, that thou mayest bring in thither within the vail [f]the ark of the testimony: and the vail shall divide unto you between [g]the holy place and the most holy.

34 And [h]thou shalt put the mercy-seat upon the ark of the testimony in the most holy place.

35 And [i]thou shalt set the table without the vail, and [k]the candlestick over against the table on the side of the tabernacle toward the south: and thou shalt put the table on the north side.

36 And [l]thou shalt make an hanging for the door of the tent, of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen, wrought with needle-work.

37 And thou shalt make for the hanging [m]five pillars of shittim-wood, and overlay them with gold, and their hooks shall be of gold: and thou shalt cast five sockets of brass for them.

CHAP. XXVII.

The altar of burnt-offering, with the vessels thereof, &c.

AND thou shalt make [a]an altar of shittim-wood, five cubits long, and five cubits broad; the altar shall be four-square: and the height thereof shall be three cubits.

2 And thou shalt make the horns of it upon the four corners thereof: his horns shall be of the same: and [b]thou shalt overlay it with brass.

3 And thou shalt make his pans to receive his ashes, and his shovels, and his basins, and his flesh-hooks, and his fire-pans: all the vessels thereof thou shalt make of brass.

4 And thou shalt make for it a grate of net-work of brass; and upon the net shalt thou make four brazen rings in the four corners thereof.

5 And thou shalt put it under the compass of the altar beneath, that the net may be even to the midst of the altar.

6 And thou shalt make staves for the altar, staves of shittim-wood, and overlay them with brass.

7 And the staves shall be put into the rings, and the staves shall be upon the two sides of the altar, to bear it.

8 Hollow with boards shalt thou make it: [c]† as it was shewed thee in the mount, so shall they make it.

9 ¶ And [d]thou shalt make the court of the tabernacle: for the south side southward there shall be hangings for the court of fine twined linen of an hundred cubits long for one side:

10 And the twenty pillars thereof and their twenty sockets shall be of brass: the hooks of the pillars and their fillets shall be of silver.

11 And likewise for the north side in length there shall be hangings of an hundred cubits long, and his twenty pillars and their twenty sockets of brass: the hooks of the pillars and their fillets of silver.

12 ¶ And for the breadth of the court on the west side shall be hangings of fifty cubits: their pillars ten, and their sockets ten.

13 And the breadth of the court on the east side eastward shall be fifty cubits.

14 The hangings of one side of the gate shall be fifteen cubits: their pillars three, and their sockets three.

15 And on the other side shall be hangings, fifteen cubits: their pillars three, and their sockets three.

16 ¶ And for the gate of the court shall be an hanging of twenty cubits, of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen, wrought with needle-work: and their pillars shall be four, and their sockets four.

17 All the pillars round about the court shall be filleted with silver: their hooks shall be of silver, and their sockets of brass.

18 ¶ The length of the court shall be an hundred cubits, and the breadth † fifty every where, and the height five cubits of fine twined linen, and their sockets of brass.

19 All the vessels of the tabernacle in all the service thereof, and all the pins thereof, and all the pins of the court, shall be of brass.

20 ¶ And [e]thou shalt command the children of Israel, that they bring thee pure oil-olive beaten for the light, to cause the lamp † to burn always.

21 In the tabernacle of the congregation [f]without the vail, which is before the testimony, [g]Aaron and his sons shall order it from evening to morning before the LORD: [h]It shall be a statute for ever unto their generations on the behalf of the children of Israel.

CHAP. XXVIII.

1 Aaron and his sons are set apart for the priest's office. 2 Holy garments are appointed. 30 The Urim and Thummim. 31 The robe of the ephod. 40 The garments for Aaron's sons.

AND take thou unto thee [a]Aaron thy brother, and his sons with him, from among the children of Israel, that he may minister unto me in the priest's office, even Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, Eleazar and Ithamar, Aaron's sons.

2 And [b]thou shalt make holy garments for Aaron thy brother, for glory and for beauty.

3 And [c]thou shalt speak unto all that are wise-hearted, [d]whom I have filled with the spirit of wisdom, that they may make Aaron's garments to consecrate him, that he may minister unto me in the priest's office.

4 And these are the garments which they shall make; [e]a breast-plate, and [f]an ephod, and [g]a robe, and [h]a broidered coat, a mitre, and a girdle: and they shall make holy garments for Aaron thy brother, and his sons, that he may minister unto me in the priest's office.

5 And they shall take gold, and blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine linen.

6 ¶ [i]And they shall make the ephod of gold, of blue, and of purple, of scarlet, and fine twined linen, with cunning work.

7 It shall have the two shoulder-pieces thereof joined at the two edges thereof; and so it shall be joined together.

8 And the ‖ curious girdle of the ephod, which is upon it, shall be of the same, according to the work thereof; even of gold, of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen.

9 And thou shalt take two onyx-stones, and grave on them the names of the children of Israel:

10 Six of their names on one stone, and the other six names of the rest on the other stone, according to their birth.

11 With the work of an engraver in stone, like the engravings of a signet, shalt thou engrave the two stones with the names of the children of Israel: thou shalt make them to be set in ouches of gold.

12 And thou shalt put the two stones upon the shoulders of the ephod for stones of memorial unto the children of Israel: and [l]Aaron shall bear their names before the LORD upon his two shoulders [m]for a memorial.

13 ¶ And thou shalt make ouches of gold;

14 And two chains of pure gold at the ends; of wreathen work shalt thou make them, and fasten the wreathen chains to the ouches.

15 ¶ And [n]thou shalt make the breast-plate of judgment with cunning work; after the work of the ephod thou shalt make it; of gold, of blue, and of purple, and of scarlet, and of fine twined linen shalt thou make it.

16 Four-square it shall be, being doubled; a span shall be the length thereof, and a span shall be the breadth thereof.

17 [o]And thou shalt †set in it settings of stones, even four rows of stones; the first row shall be a ‖sardius, a topaz, and a carbuncle: this shall be the first row.

18 And the second row shall be an emerald, a sapphire, and a diamond.

19 And the third row a ligure, an agate, and an amethyst.

20 And the fourth row a beryl, and an onyx, and a jasper: they shall be set in gold in their †inclosings.

21 And the stones shall be with the names of the children of Israel, twelve, according to their names, like the engravings of a signet; every one with his name shall they be according to the twelve tribes.

22 ¶ And thou shalt make upon the breast-plate chains at the ends of wreathen work of pure gold.

23 And thou shalt make upon the breast-plate two rings of gold, and shalt put the two rings on the two ends of the breast-plate.

24 And thou shalt put the two wreathen chains of gold in the two rings which are on the ends of the breast-plate.

25 And the other two ends of the two wreathen chains thou shalt fasten in the two ouches, and put them on the shoulder pieces of the ephod before it.

26 ¶ And thou shalt make two rings of gold, and thou shalt put them upon the two ends of the breast-plate in the border thereof, which is in the side of the ephod inward.

27 And two other rings of gold thou shalt make, and shalt put them on the two sides of the ephod underneath, toward the fore-part thereof, over against the other coupling thereof, above the curious girdle of the ephod.

28 And they shall bind the breast-plate by the rings thereof unto the rings of the ephod with a lace of blue, that it may be above the curious girdle of the ephod, and that the breast-plate be not loosed from the ephod.

29 And Aaron shall bear the names of the children of Israel in the breast-plate of judgment upon his heart, when he goeth in unto the holy place, [p]for a memorial before the LORD continually.

30 ¶ And [q]thou shalt put in the breast-plate of judgment the Urim and the Thummim; and they shall be upon Aaron's heart, when he goeth in before the LORD: and Aaron shall bear the judgment of the children of Israel upon his heart before the LORD continually.

31 ¶ And [r]thou shalt make the robe of the ephod all of blue.

32 And there shall be an hole in the top of it, in the midst thereof: it shall have a binding of woven work round about the hole of it, as it were the hole of an habergeon, that it be not rent.

33 ¶ And beneath, upon the ‖hem of it thou shalt make pomegranates of blue, and of purple, and of scarlet, round about the hem thereof; and bells of gold between them round about:

34 A golden bell and a pomegranate, a golden bell and a pomegranate, upon the hem of the robe round about.

35 And it shall be upon Aaron, to minister: and his sound shall be heard when he goeth in unto the holy place before the LORD, and when he cometh out, that he die not.

36 ¶ And [t]thou shalt make a plate of pure gold, and grave upon it, like the engravings of a signet, HOLINESS TO THE LORD.

37 And thou shalt put it on a blue lace, that it may be upon the mitre; upon the fore-front of the mitre it shall be.

38 And it shall be upon Aaron's forehead, that Aaron may [u]bear the iniquity of the holy things, which the children of Israel shall hallow in all their holy gifts; and it shall be always upon his forehead, that they may be [w]accepted before the LORD.

39 ¶ And thou shalt embroider the coat of fine linen, and thou shalt make the mitre of fine linen, and thou shalt make the girdle of needle-work.

40 ¶ [x]And for Aaron's sons thou shalt make coats, and thou shalt make for them girdles, and bonnets shalt thou make for them, for glory and for beauty.

41 And thou shalt put them upon Aaron thy brother, and his sons with him: and shalt [y]anoint them, and †[z]consecrate them, and sanctify them, that they may minister unto me in the priest's office.

42 And thou shalt make them [a]linen breeches to cover †their nakedness: from the loins even unto the thighs they shall †reach:

43 And they shall be upon Aaron, and upon his sons, when they come in unto the tabernacle of the congregation, or when they come near [b]unto the altar to minister in the holy place; that they [c]bear not iniquity and die. [d]It shall be a statute for ever unto him, and his seed after him.

CHAP. XXIX.

1 The sacrifice and ceremonies of consecrating the priests. 38 The continual burnt-offering. 45 God's promise to dwell among the children of Israel.

AND this is the thing that thou shalt do unto them to hallow them, to minister unto me in the priest's office: [a]Take one young bullock, and two rams without blemish,

2 And [b]unleavened bread, and cakes unleavened tempered with oil, and wafers unleavened anointed with oil: of wheaten flour shalt thou make them.

3 And thou shalt put them into one basket, and bring them in the basket, with the bullock and the two rams.

4 And Aaron and his sons thou shalt bring unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, [c]and shalt wash them with water.

5 [d]And thou shalt take the garments, and put upon Aaron the coat, and the robe of the ephod, and the ephod, and the breast-plate, and gird him with [e]the curious girdle of the ephod:

6 [f]And thou shalt put the mitre upon his head, and put the holy crown upon the mitre.

7 Then shalt thou take the anointing [g]oil, and pour it upon his head, and anoint him.

8 And [h]thou shalt bring his sons, and put coats upon them.

9 And thou shalt gird them with girdles (Aaron and his sons) and †put the bonnets on them; and [i]the priest's office shall be theirs for a perpetual statute: and thou shalt †[k]consecrate Aaron and his sons.

10 And thou shalt cause a bullock to be brought before the tabernacle of the congregation; and [l]Aaron and his sons shall put their hands upon the head of the bullock.

11 And thou shalt kill the bullock before the LORD, by the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

12 And thou [m]shalt take of the blood of the bullock, and put it upon [n]the horns of the altar with thy finger, and pour all the blood beside the bottom of the altar.

13 And [o]thou shalt take all the fat that covereth the inwards, and ‖the caul that is above the liver, and the two kidneys, and the fat that is upon them, and burn them upon the altar.

14 But [p]the flesh of the bullock, and his skin, and his dung shalt thou burn with fire without the camp: it is a sin-offering.

15 ¶[q]Thou shalt also take one ram; and Aaron and his sons shall [r]put their hands upon the head of the ram.

16 And thou shalt slay the ram, and thou shalt take his blood, and sprinkle it round about upon the altar.

17 And thou shalt cut the ram in pieces, and wash the inwards of him, and his legs, and put them unto his pieces, and ‖unto his head.

18 And thou shalt burn the whole ram upon the altar: it is a burnt-offering unto the LORD: it is a [s]sweet savour, an offering made by fire unto the LORD.

19 ¶[t]And thou shalt take the other ram; and Aaron and his sons shall put their hands upon the head of the ram.

20 Then shalt thou kill the ram, and take of his blood, and put it upon the tip of the right ear of Aaron, and upon the tip of the right ear of his sons, and upon the thumb of their right hand, and upon the great toe of their right foot, and sprinkle the blood upon the altar round about.

21 And thou shalt take of the blood that is upon the altar, and of [u]the anointing oil, and sprinkle it upon Aaron, and upon his garments, and upon his sons, and upon the garments of his sons with him: and [w]he shall be hallowed, and his garments, and his sons, and his sons' garments with him.

22 Also thou shalt take of the ram the fat and the rump, and the fat that covereth the inwards, and the caul above the liver, and the two kidneys, and the fat that is upon them, and the right shoulder: for it is a ram of consecration:

23 [x]And one loaf of bread, and one cake of oiled bread, and one wafer out of the basket of the unleavened bread, that is before the LORD.

24 And thou shalt put all in the hands of Aaron, and in the hands of his sons; and shalt †[y]wave them for a wave-offering before the LORD.

25 [z]And thou shalt receive them of their hands, and burn them upon the altar for a burnt-offering, for a sweet savour before the LORD: it is an offering made by fire unto the LORD.

26 And thou shalt take [a]the breast of the ram of Aaron's consecration, and wave it for a wave-offering before the LORD: and [b]it shall be thy part.

27 And thou shalt sanctify [c]the breast of the wave-offering, and the shoulder of the heave-offering, which is waved and which is heaved up, of the ram of the consecration, even of that which is for Aaron, and of that which is for his sons:

28 And it shall be Aaron's and his sons' [d]by a statute for ever, from the children of Israel: for it is an heave-offering: and [e]it shall be an heave-offering from the children of Israel of the sacrifice of their peace-offerings, even their heave-offering unto the LORD.

29 ¶And the holy garments of Aaron [f]shall be his sons' after him, [g]to be anointed therein, and to be consecrated in them.

30 And †[h]that son that is priest in his stead shall put them on [i]seven days, when he cometh into the tabernacle of the congregation to minister in the holy place.

31 ¶And thou shalt take the ram of the consecration, and [k]seethe his flesh in the holy place.

32 And Aaron and his sons shall eat the flesh of the ram, and the [l]bread that is in the basket, by the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

33 And [m]they shall eat those things wherewith the atonement was made, to consecrate and to sanctify them: [n]but a stranger shall not eat thereof, because they are holy.

34 And if aught of the flesh of the consecrations, or of the bread, remain unto the morning, then [o]thou shalt burn the remainder with fire: it shall not be eaten, because it is holy.

35 And thus shalt thou do unto Aaron, and to his sons, according to all things which I have commanded thee: [p]seven days shalt thou consecrate them.

36 And thou shalt [q]offer every day a bullock for a sin-offering for atonement; and thou shalt cleanse the altar, when thou hast made an atonement for it, [r]and thou shalt anoint it, to sanctify it.

37 Seven days thou shalt make an atonement for the altar, and sanctify it; [s]and it shall be an altar most holy: [t]whatsoever toucheth the altar shall be holy.

38 ¶Now this is that which thou shalt offer upon the altar; [u]two lambs of the first year [w]day by day continually.

39 The one lamb thou shalt offer [x]in the morning; and the other lamb thou shalt offer at even:

40 And with the one lamb a tenth-deal of flour mingled with the fourth part of an hin of beaten oil: and the fourth part of an hin of wine for a drink-offering.

41 And the other lamb thou shalt [y]offer at even, and shalt do thereto according to the meat-offering of the morning, and according to the drink-offering thereof, for a sweet savour, an offering made by fire unto the LORD.

42 This shall be [z]a continual burnt-offering throughout your generations at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation before the LORD: [a]where I will meet you to speak there unto thee.

43 And there I will meet with the children of Israel; and ‖the tabernacle [b]shall be sanctified by my glory.

44 And I will sanctify the tabernacle of the congregation, and the altar: I will [c]sanctify also both Aaron and his sons, to minister to me in the priest's office.

45 ¶ And [d]I will dwell among the children of Israel, and will be their God.

46 And they shall know that [e]I am the LORD their God, that brought them forth out of the land of Egypt, that I may dwell among them: I am the LORD their God.

CHAP. XXX.

1 The altar of incense. 11 The ransom of souls. 17 The brazen laver. 22 The holy anointing oil. 34 The composition of the perfume.

AND thou shalt make [a]an altar [b]to burn incense upon: of shittim-wood shalt thou make it.

2 A cubit shall be the length thereof, and a cubit the breadth thereof; four-square shall it be; and two cubits shall be the height thereof: the horns thereof shall be of the same.

3 And thou shalt overlay it with pure gold, the †top thereof, and the †sides thereof round about, and the horns thereof; and thou shalt make unto it a crown of gold round about.

4 And two golden rings shalt thou make to it under the crown of it, by the two †corners thereof, upon the two sides of it shalt thou make it; and they shall be for places for the staves to bear it withal.

5 And thou shalt make the staves of shittim-wood, and overlay them with gold.

6 And thou shalt put it before the vail that is by the ark of the testimony, before the [c]mercy-seat that is over the testimony, where I will meet with thee.

7 And Aaron shall burn thereon †[d]sweet incense every morning: when [e]he dresseth the lamps, he shall burn incense upon it.

8 And when Aaron ‖†lighteth the lamps †at even, he shall burn incense upon it; a perpetual incense before the LORD, throughout your generations.

9 Ye shall offer no [f]strange incense thereon, nor burnt-sacrifice, nor meat-offering; neither shall ye pour drink-offering thereon.

10 And [g]Aaron shall make an atonement upon the horns of it once in a year, with the blood of the sin-offering of atonements: once in the year shall he make atonement upon it throughout your generations: it is most holy unto the LORD.

11 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

12 [h]When thou takest the sum of the children of Israel after †their number, then shall they give every man [i]a ransom for his soul unto the LORD, when thou numberest them: that there be no [k]plague among them when thou numberest them.

13 [l]This they shall give, every one that passeth among them that are numbered, half a shekel, after the shekel of the sanctuary: ([m]a shekel is twenty gerahs:) [n]an half shekel shall be the offering of the LORD.

14 Every one that passeth among them that are numbered, from twenty years old and above, shall give an offering unto the LORD.

15 The [o]rich shall not †give more, and the poor shall not †give less than half a shekel, when they give an offering unto the LORD to make an [p]atonement for your souls.

16 And thou shalt take the atonement-money of the children of Israel, and [q]shalt appoint it for the service of the tabernacle of the congregation; that it may be [r]a memorial unto the children of Israel before the LORD, to make an atonement for your souls.

17 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

18 [s]Thou shalt also make a laver of brass, and his foot also of brass, to wash withal: and thou shalt [t]put it between the tabernacle of the congregation and the altar, and thou shalt put water therein.

19 For Aaron and his sons [u]shall wash their hands and their feet thereat:

20 When they go into the tabernacle of the congregation, they shall wash with water, that they die not: or when they come near to the altar to minister, to burn offering made by fire unto the LORD:

21 So they shall wash their hands and their feet, that they die not: and [w]it shall be a statute for ever to them, even to him and to his seed throughout their generations.

22 ¶ Moreover, the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

23 Take thou also unto thee [x]principal spices, of pure [y]myrrh five hundred shekels, and of sweet cinnamon half so much, even two hundred and fifty shekels, and of sweet [z]calamus two hundred and fifty shekels,

24 And of [a]cassia five hundred shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary, and of oil-olive an [b]hin:

25 And thou shalt make it an oil of holy ointment, an ointment compound after the art of the ‖apothecary: it shall be [c]an holy anointing oil.

26 [d]And thou shalt anoint the tabernacle of the congregation therewith, and the ark of the testimony,

27 And the table and all his vessels, and the candlestick and his vessels, and the altar of incense,

28 And the altar of burnt-offering with all his vessels, and the laver and his foot.

29 And thou shalt sanctify them, that they may be most holy: [e]whatsoever toucheth them shall be holy.

30 [f]And thou shalt anoint Aaron and his sons, and consecrate them, that they may minister unto me in the priest's office.

31 And thou shalt speak unto the children of Israel, saying, This shall be an holy anointing oil unto me throughout your generations.

32 Upon man's flesh shall it not be poured, neither shall ye make any other like it, after the composition of it: [g]it is holy, and it shall be holy unto you.

33 [h]Whosoever compoundeth any like it, or whosoever putteth any of it upon a stranger, [i]shall even be cut off from his people.

34 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, [k]Take unto thee sweet spices, stacte, and onycha, and galbanum; these sweet spices with pure frankincense: of each shall there be a like weight:

35 And thou shalt make it a perfume, a confection [l]after the art of the apothecary, †tempered together, pure and holy:

36 And thou shalt beat some of it very small, and put of it before the testimony in the tabernacle of the congregation, [m]where I will meet with thee: [n]it shall be unto you most holy.

37 And as for the perfume which thou shalt make, [o]ye shall not make to yourselves according to the composition thereof: it shall be unto thee holy for the LORD.

38 [p]Whosoever shall make like unto that, to smell thereto, shall even be cut off from his people.

3 And I have [c]filled him with the spirit of God, in wisdom, and in understanding, and in knowledge, and in all manner of workmanship,

4 To devise cunning works, to work in gold, and in silver, and in brass,

5 And in cutting of stones to set them, and in carving of timber, to work in all manner of workmanship.

6 And I, behold, I have given with him [d]Aholiab the son of Ahisamach, of the tribe of Dan; and in the hearts of all that are [e]wise-hearted I have put wisdom; that they may make all that I have commanded thee:

7 [f]The tabernacle of the congregation, and [g]the ark of the testimony, and [h]the mercy-seat that is thereupon, and all the †furniture of the tabernacle,

8 And [i]the table and his furniture, and [k]the pure candlestick with all his furniture, and the altar of incense,

11 [o]And the anointing oil, and [p]sweet incense for the holy place: according to all that I have commanded thee shall they do.

12 ¶And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

13 Speak thou also unto the children of Israel, saying, [q]Verily my sabbaths ye shall keep: for it is a sign between me and you throughout your generations; that ye may know that I am the LORD that doth sanctify you.

14 [r]Ye shall keep the sabbath therefore: for it is holy unto you. Every one that defileth it shall surely be put to death: for [s]whosoever doeth any work therein, that soul shall be cut off from among his people.

15 [t]Six days may work be done, but in the [u]seventh is the sabbath of rest, †holy to the LORD: whosoever doeth any work in the sabbath-day, he shall surely be put to death.

16 Wherefore the children of Israel shall keep the sabbath, to observe the sabbath throughout their generations, for a perpetual covenant.

17 It is [x]a sign between me and the children of Israel for ever: for [y]in six days the LORD made heaven and earth, and on the seventh day he rested and was refreshed.

18 ¶And he gave unto Moses, when he had made an end of communing with him upon mount Sinai, [z]two tables of testimony, tables of stone, written with the finger of God.

CHAP. XXXII.

1 The people, in the absence of Moses, cause Aaron to make a calf. 15 Moses cometh down with the tables. 19 He breaketh them. 20 He destroyeth the calf. 30 He prayeth for the people.

AND when the people saw that Moses [a]delayed to come down out of the mount, the people gathered themselves together unto Aaron, and said unto him, [b]Up, make us gods which shall [c]go before us: for as for this Moses, the man that brought us up out of the land of Egypt, we wot not what is become of him.

2 And Aaron said unto them, Break off the [d]golden ear-rings which are in the ears of your wives, of your sons, and of your daughters, and bring them unto me.

3 And all the people brake off the golden ear-rings which were in their ears, and brought them unto Aaron

4 [e]And he received them at their hand, and fashioned it with a graving tool, after he had made it a molten calf: and they said, These be thy gods, O Israel, which brought thee up out of the land of Egypt.

5 And when Aaron saw it, he built an altar before it; and Aaron made [f]proclamation, and said, To-morrow is a feast to the LORD.

6 And they rose up early on the morrow, and offered burnt-offerings, and brought peace-offerings: and the [g]people sat down to eat and to drink, and rose up to play.

7 ¶And the LORD said unto Moses, [h]Go, get thee down: for thy people, which thou broughtest out of the land of Egypt, [i]have corrupted themselves:

8 They have turned aside quickly out of the way which [k]I commanded them: they have made them a molten calf, and have worshipped it, and have sacrificed thereunto, and said, [l]These be thy gods, O Israel, which have brought thee up out of the land of Egypt.

9 And the LORD said unto Moses, [m]I have seen this people, and behold, it is a stiff-necked people:

10 Now therefore [n]let me alone, that [o]my wrath may wax hot against them, and that I may consume them: and [p]I will make of thee a great nation.

11 [q]And Moses besought †the LORD, his God, and said, LORD, why doth thy wrath wax hot against thy people, which thou hast brought forth out of the land of Egypt, with great power, and with a mighty hand?

12 [r]Wherefore should the Egyptians speak and say, For mischief did he bring them out, to slay them in the mountains, and to consume them from the face of the earth? Turn from thy fierce wrath, and [s]repent of this evil against thy people.

13 Remember Abraham, Isaac, and Israel, thy servants, to whom thou [t]swarest by thine own self, and saidst unto them, [u]I will multiply your seed as the stars of heaven, and all this land that I have spoken of will I give unto your seed, and they shall inherit it for ever.

14 And the LORD [w]repented of the evil which he thought to do unto his people.

15 ¶And [x]Moses turned, and went down from the mount, and the two tables of the testimony were in his hand: the tables were written on both their sides; on the one side and on the other were they written.

16 And the [y]tables were the work of God, and the writing was the writing of God, graven upon the tables.

17 And when Joshua heard the noise of the people as they shouted, he said unto Moses, There is a noise of war in the camp.

18 And he said, It is not the voice of them that shout for mastery, neither is it the voice of them that cry for †being overcome: but the noise of them that sing do I hear.

19 ¶And it came to pass as soon as he came nigh unto the camp, that [z]he saw the calf, and the dancing: and Moses' anger waxed hot, and he cast the tables out of his hands, and brake them beneath the mount.

20 [a]And he took the calf which they had made, and burnt it in the fire, and ground it to powder, and strewed it upon the water, and made the children of Israel drink of it.

21 And Moses said unto Aaron, [b]What did this people unto thee, that thou hast brought so great a sin upon them?

22 And Aaron said, Let not the anger of my lord wax hot: [c]thou knowest the people, that they are set on mischief.

23 For they said unto me, [a]Make us gods which shall go before us: for as for this Moses, the man that brought us up out of the land of Egypt, we wot not what is become of him.

24 And I said unto them, Whosoever hath any gold, let them break it off. So they gave it me: then I cast it into the fire, and there [c]came out this calf.

25 ¶And when Moses saw that the people were [f]naked, (for Aaron [g]had made them naked unto their shame among †their enemies,)

26 Then Moses stood in the gate of the camp, and said, Who is on the LORD'S side? let him come unto me. And all the sons of Levi gathered themselves together unto him.

27 And he said unto them, Thus saith the LORD God of Israel, Put every man his sword by his side and go in and out from gate to gate throughout the camp, and [h]slay every man his brother, and every man his companion, and every man his neighbour.

28 And the children of Levi did according to the word of Moses: and there fell of the people that day about three thousand men.

29 [i]‖For Moses had said, †Consecrate yourselves to-day to the LORD, even every man upon his son, and upon his brother; that he may bestow upon you a blessing this day.

30 ¶And it came to pass on the morrow, that Moses said unto the people, [k]Ye have sinned a great sin: and now I will go up unto the LORD; [l]peradventure I shall [m]make an atonement for your sin.

31 And Moses [n]returned unto the LORD, and said, Oh, this people have sinned a great sin, and have [o]made them gods of gold.

32 Yet now, if thou wilt forgive their sin: and if not, [p]blot me, I pray thee, [q]out of thy book which thou hast written.

33 And the LORD said unto Moses, [r]Whosoever hath sinned against me, him will I blot out of my book.

34 Therefore now go, lead the people unto the place of which I have spoken unto thee: [s]Behold, mine Angel shall go before thee: nevertheless, [t]in the day when I visit, I will visit their sin upon them.

35 And the LORD plagued the people, because [u]they made the calf which Aaron made.

AND the LORD said unto Moses, Depart and go up hence, thou [a]and the people which thou hast brought up out of the land of Egypt, unto the land which I sware unto Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob, saying, [b]Unto thy seed will I give it:

2 [c]And I will send an angel before thee; [b]and I will drive out the Canaanite, the Amorite, and the Hittite, and the Perizzite, the Hivite, and the Jebusite:

3 [e]Unto a land flowing with milk and honey: [f]for I will not go up in the midst of thee; for thou art a [g]stiff-necked people: lest [h]I consume thee in the way.

4 ¶And when the people heard these evil tidings, [i]they mourned: [k]and no man did put on him his ornaments.

5 For the LORD had said unto Moses, Say unto the children of Israel, [l]Ye are a stiff-necked people: I will come up [m]into the midst of thee in a moment, and consume thee: therefore now put off thy ornaments from thee, that I may [n]know what to do unto thee.

6 And the children of Israel stripped themselves of their ornaments by the mount Horeb.

7 And Moses took the tabernacle, and pitched it without the camp afar off from the camp, [o]and called it the Tabernacle of the Congregation. And it came to pass, that every one which [p]sought the LORD, went out unto the tabernacle of the congregation, which was without the camp.

8 And it came to pass when Moses went out unto the tabernacle, that all the people rose up, and stood every man [q]at his tent-door, and looked after Moses, until he was gone into the tabernacle.

9 And it came to pass, as Moses entered into the tabernacle, the cloudy pillar descended, and stood at the door of the tabernacle, and the LORD [r]talked with Moses.

10 And all the people saw the cloudy pillar stand at the tabernacle-door: and all the people rose up and [s]worshipped, every man in his tent-door.

11 And [t]the LORD spake unto Moses face to face, as a man speaketh unto his friend. And he turned again into the camp; but [u]his servant Joshua the son of Nun, a young man, departed not out of the tabernacle.

12 ¶And Moses said unto the LORD, See, [x]thou sayest unto me, Bring up this people: and thou hast not let me know whom thou wilt send with me. Yet thou hast said, [y]I know thee by name, and thou hast also found grace in my sight.

13 Now therefore, I pray thee, [z]if I have found grace in thy sight, [a]shew me now thy way, that I may know thee, that I may find grace in thy sight: and consider that this nation is [b]thy people.

14 And he said, [c]My presence shall go with thee, and I will give thee [d]rest.

15 And he said unto him, [e]If thy presence go not with me, carry us not up hence.

16 For wherein shall it be known here that I and thy people have found grace in thy sight? [f]Is it not in that thou goest with us? So [g]shall we be separated, I and thy people, from all the people that are upon the face of the earth.

17 And the LORD said unto Moses, [h]I will do this thing also that thou hast spoken: for [i]thou hast found grace in my sight, and I know thee by name.

18 And he said, I beseech thee, shew me [k]thy glory.

19 And he said, [l]I will make all my goodness pass before thee, and I will proclaim the name of the LORD before thee; [m]and will be [n]gracious to whom I will be gracious, and will shew mercy on whom I will shew mercy.

20 And he said, Thou canst not see my face: for [o]there shall no man see me, and live.

21 And the LORD said, Behold, there is a place by me, and thou shalt stand upon a rock:

22 And it shall come to pass, while my glory passeth by, that I will put thee [p]in a cleft of the rock, and will [q]cover thee with my hand while I pass by:

23 And I will take away mine hand, and thou shalt see my back parts: but my face shall [r]not be seen.

CHAP. XXXIV.

1 The tables are renewed. 5 The name of the LORD proclaimed. 10 God maketh a covenant with them. 28 Moses cometh down with the tables: his face shineth, and he covereth it with a vail.

AND the LORD said unto Moses, [a]Hew thee two tables of stone like unto the first: [b]and I will write upon these tables the words that were in the first tables which thou brakest.

2 And be ready in the morning, and come up in the morning unto mount Sinai, and present thyself there to me [c]in the top of the mount.

3 And no man shall [d]come up with thee, neither let any man be seen throughout all the mount: neither let the flocks nor herds feed before that mount.

4 ¶ And he hewed two tables of stone, like unto the first; and Moses rose up early in the morning, and went up unto Mount Sinai, as the LORD had commanded him, and took in his hand the two tables of stone.

5 And the LORD descended in the cloud, and stood with him there, and [e]proclaimed the name of the LORD.

6 And the LORD passed by before him, and proclaimed, The LORD, The LORD [f]God, merciful and gracious, long-suffering, and abundant in [g]goodness and [h]truth,

7 [i]Keeping mercy for thousands, [k]forgiving iniquity and transgression and sin, and [l]that will by no means clear the guilty; visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children, and upon the children's children, unto the third and to the fourth generation.

8 And Moses made haste, and [m]bowed his head toward the earth, and worshipped.

9 And he said, If now I have found grace in thy sight, O Lord, [n]let my Lord, I pray thee, go among us (for [o]it is a stiff-necked people), and pardon our iniquity and our sin, and take us for [p]thine inheritance.

10 ¶ And he said, Behold, [q]I make a covenant: before all thy people I will [r]do marvels, such as have not been done in all the earth, nor in any nation: and all the people among which thou art shall see the work of the LORD: for it is [s]a terrible thing that I will do with thee.

11 [t]Observe thou that which I command thee this day: Behold, [u]I drive out before thee the Amorite, and the Canaanite, and the Hittite, and the Perizzite, and the Hivite, and the Jebusite.

12 [x]Take heed to thyself, lest thou make a covenant with the inhabitants of the land whither thou goest, lest it be for [y]a snare in the midst of thee:

13 But ye shall [z]destroy their altars, break their †images, and [a]cut down their groves:

14 For thou shalt worship [b]no other god: for the LORD, whose [c]name is Jealous, is a [d]jealous God:

15 [e]Lest thou make a covenant with the inhabitants of the land, and they [f]go a whoring after their gods, and do sacrifice unto their gods, and one [g]call thee, and thou [h]eat of his sacrifice;

16 And thou take of [i]their daughters unto thy sons, and their daughters [k]go a whoring after their gods, and make thy sons go a whoring after their gods.

17 [l]Thou shalt make thee no molten gods.

18 ¶ The feast of [m]unleavened bread shalt thou keep. Seven days shalt thou eat unleavened bread, as I commanded thee, in the time of the month Abib: for in the [n]month Abib thou camest out from Egypt.

19 [o]All that openeth the matrix is mine: and every firstling among thy cattle, whether ox or sheep, that is male.

20 But [p]the firstling of an ass thou shalt redeem with a ‖lamb: and if thou redeem him not, then [q]shalt thou break his neck. All the first-born of thy sons thou shalt redeem. And none shall appear before me [r]empty.

21 ¶ [s]Six days thou shalt work, but on the seventh day thou shalt rest: in earing-time and in harvest thou shalt rest.

22 ¶ [t]And thou shalt observe the feast of weeks, of the first-fruits of wheat-harvest, and the feast of ingathering at the †year's end.

23 ¶ [u]Thrice in the year shall all your men-children appear before the Lord GOD, the God of Israel.

24 For I will [x]cast out the nations before thee, and [y]enlarge thy borders: [z]neither shall any man desire thy land, when thou shalt go up to appear before the LORD thy God thrice in the year.

25 [a]Thou shalt not offer the blood of my sacrifice with leaven, [b]neither shall the sacrifice of the feast of the passover be left until the morning.

26 [c]The first of the first-fruits of thy land thou shalt bring unto the house of the LORD thy God. [d]Thou shalt not seethe a kid in his mother's milk.

27 And the LORD said unto Moses, Write thou [e]these words: for after the tenor of these words I have made a covenant with thee, and with Israel.

28 [f]And he was there with the LORD forty days and forty nights; he did neither eat bread nor drink water. And [g]he wrote upon the tables the words of the covenant, the ten †commandments.

29 ¶ And it came to pass when Moses came down from mount Sinai (with the [h]two tables of testimony in Moses' hand, when he came down from the mount) that Moses wist not that [i]the skin of his face shone, while he talked with him.

30 And when Aaron and all the children of Israel saw Moses, behold, the skin of his face shone; and they were afraid to come nigh him.

31 And Moses called unto them; and Aaron and all the rulers of the congregation returned unto him: and Moses talked with them.

32 And afterward all the children of Israel came nigh: [k]and he gave them in commandment all that the LORD had spoken with him in mount Sinai.

33 And till Moses had done speaking with them, he put [l]a vail on his face.

34 But [m]when Moses went in before the LORD to speak with him, he took the vail off, until he came out. And he came out and spake unto the children of Israel that which he was commanded.

35 And the children of Israel saw the face of Moses, that the skin of Moses' face shone: and Moses put the vail upon his face again, until he went in to speak with Him.

CHAP. XXXV.

1 The sabbath. 4 The free gifts for the tabernacle. 30 Bezaleel and Aholiab are called to the work.

AND Moses gathered all the congregation of the children of Israel together, and said unto them, [a]These are the words which the LORD hath commanded, that ye should do them.

2 [b]Six days shall work be done, but on the seventh day there shall be to you †an holy day, a sabbath of rest to the LORD: whosoever doeth work therein shall be put to death.

3 [c]Ye shall kindle no fire throughout your habitations upon the sabbath-day.

4 ¶ And Moses spake unto all the congregation of the children of Israel, saying, [d]This is the thing which the LORD commanded, saying,

5 Take ye from among you an offering unto the LORD: [e]whosoever is of a willing heart, let him bring it, an offering of the LORD; gold, and silver, and brass,

6 And blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine linen, and goats' hair,

7 And rams' skins dyed red, and badgers' skins, and shittim-wood,
8 And oil for the light, and spices for anointing oil, and for the sweet incense,
9 And onyx-stones, and stones to be set for the ephod, and for the breast-plate.
10 And [g] every wise-hearted among you shall come, and make all that the LORD hath commanded;
11 [h] The tabernacle, his tent, and his covering, his taches, and his boards, his bars, his pillars, and his sockets;
12 [i] The ark, and the staves thereof, with the mercy-seat, and the vail of the covering;
13 The [k] table, and his staves, and all his vessels, [l] and the shew-bread;
14 [m] The candlestick also for the light, and his furniture, and his lamps, with the oil for the light;
15 [n] And the incense-altar, and his staves, [o] and the anointing oil, and [p] the sweet incense, and the hanging for the door at the entering in of the tabernacle;
16 [q] The altar of burnt-offering, with his brazen grate, his staves, and all his vessels, the laver and his foot;
17 [r] The hangings of the court, his pillars, and their sockets, and the hanging for the door of the court;
18 The pins of the tabernacle, and the pins of the court, and their cords;
19 [s] The clothes of service, to do service in the holy place, the holy garments for Aaron the priest, and the garments of his sons, to minister in the priest's office.
20 ¶ And all the congregation of the children of Israel departed from the presence of Moses.
21 And they came, every one [t] whose heart stirred him up, and every one whom his spirit made willing, and they brought the LORD's offering to the work of the tabernacle of the congregation, and for all his service, and for the holy garments.
22 And they came, both men and women, as many as were willing-hearted, and brought bracelets, and ear-rings, and rings, and tablets, all jewels of gold: and every man that offered, offered an offering of gold unto the LORD.
23 And [u] every man with whom was found blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine linen, and goats' hair, and red skins of rams, and badgers' skins, brought them.
24 Every one that did offer an offering of silver and brass brought the LORD's offering: and every man with whom was found shittim-wood for any work of the service, brought it.
25 And all the women that were [w] wise-hearted did spin with their hands, and brought that which they had spun, both of blue, and of purple, and of scarlet, and of fine linen.
26 And all the women whose heart stirred them up in wisdom spun goats' hair.
27 And [x] the rulers brought onyx-stones, and stones to be set, for the ephod, and for the breast-plate;
28 And [y] spice, and oil for the light, and for the anointing oil, and for the sweet incense.
29 The children of Israel brought a [z] willing offering unto the LORD, every man and woman, whose heart made them willing to bring, for all manner of work which the LORD had commanded to be made by the hand of Moses.
30 ¶ And Moses said unto the children of Israel, See, [a] the LORD hath called by name Bezaleel, the son of Uri, the son of Hur, of the tribe of Judah;
31 And he hath filled him with the spirit of God, in wisdom, in understanding, and in knowledge, and in all manner of workmanship;
32 And to devise curious works, to work in gold, and in silver, and in brass,
33 And in the cutting of stones, to set them, and in carving of wood, to make any manner of cunning work.
34 And he hath put in his heart that he may teach, both he, and [b] Aholiab, the son of Ahisamach, of the tribe of Dan.
35 Them hath he [c] filled with wisdom of heart, to work all manner of work, of the engraver, and of the cunning workman, and of the embroiderer, in blue, and in purple, in scarlet, and in fine linen, and of the weaver, even of them that do any work, and of those that devise cunning work.

CHAP. XXXVI.

The offerings are delivered to the workmen.

THEN wrought Bezaleel and Aholiab, and every [a] wise-hearted man, in whom the LORD put wisdom and understanding to know how to work all manner of work for the service of the [b] sanctuary, according to all that the LORD had commanded.
2 And Moses called Bezaleel and Aholiab, and every wise-hearted man, in whose heart the LORD had put wisdom, even every one [c] whose heart stirred him up to come unto the work to do it:
3 And they received of Moses all the offering which the children of Israel [d] had brought for the work of the service of the sanctuary, to make it withal. And they brought yet unto him free-offerings every morning.
4 And all the wise men, that wrought all the work of the sanctuary, came every man from his work which they made;
5 ¶ And they spake unto Moses, saying, [e] The people bring much more than enough for the service of the work which the Lord commanded to make.
6 And Moses gave commandment, and they caused it to be proclaimed throughout the camp, saying, Let neither man nor woman make any more work for the offering of the sanctuary. So the people were restrained from bringing.
7 For the stuff they had was sufficient for all the work to make it, and too much.
8 ¶ [f] And every wise-hearted man among them that wrought the work of the tabernacle made ten curtains of fine twined linen, and blue, and purple, and scarlet: with cherubims of cunning work made he them.
9 The length of one curtain was twenty and eight cubits, and the breadth of one curtain four cubits: the curtains were all of one size.
10 And he coupled the five curtains one unto another: and the other five curtains he coupled one unto another.
11 And he made loops of blue on the edge of one curtain from the selvedge in the coupling: likewise he made in the uttermost side of another curtain, in the coupling of the second.
12 [g] Fifty loops made he in one curtain, and fifty loops made he in the edge of the curtain which was in the coupling of the second: the loops held one curtain to another.
13 And he made fifty taches of gold, and coupled the curtains one unto another with the taches. So it became one tabernacle.
14 ¶ [h] And he made curtains of goats' hair for the tent over the tabernacle: eleven curtains he made them.

15 The length of one curtain was thirty cubits, and four cubits was the breadth of one curtain: the eleven curtains were of one size.

16 And he coupled five curtains by themselves, and six curtains by themselves.

17 And he made fifty loops upon the uttermost edge of the curtain in the coupling, and fifty loops made he upon the edge of the curtain which coupleth the second.

18 And he made fifty taches of brass to couple the tent together, that it might be one.

19 [i]And he made a covering for the tent of rams' skins dyed red, and a covering of badgers' skins above that.

20 ¶[k]And he made boards for the tabernacle of shittim-wood, standing up.

21 The length of a board was ten cubits, and the breadth of a board one cubit and a half.

22 One board had two tenons, equally distant one from another: thus did he make for all the boards of the tabernacle.

23 And he made boards for the tabernacle; twenty boards for the south side southward:

24 And forty sockets of silver he made under the twenty boards; two sockets under one board for his two tenons, and two sockets under another board for his two tenons.

25 And for the other side of the tabernacle which is toward the north corner, he made twenty boards,

26 And their forty sockets of silver; two sockets under one board, and two sockets under another board.

27 And for the sides of the tabernacle westward he made six boards.

28 And two boards made he for the corners of the tabernacle in the two sides.

29 And they were †coupled beneath, and coupled together at the head thereof, to one ring: thus he did to both of them in both the corners.

30 And there were eight boards; and their sockets were sixteen sockets of silver, †under every board two sockets.

31 ¶And he made [l]bars of shittim-wood; five for the boards of the one side of the tabernacle,

32 And five bars for the boards of the other side of the tabernacle, and five bars for the boards of the tabernacle for the sides westward.

33 And he made the middle bar to shoot through the boards from the one end to the other.

34 And he overlaid the boards with gold, and made their rings of gold to be places for the bars, and overlaid the bars with gold.

35 ¶And he made [m]a vail of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen: with cherubims made he it of cunning work.

36 And he made thereunto four pillars of shittim-wood, and overlaid them with gold: their hooks were of gold; and he cast for them four sockets of silver.

37 ¶And he made a [n]hanging for the tabernacle-door of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen, †of needle-work;

38 And the five pillars of it, with their hooks: and he overlaid their chapiters and their fillets with gold: but their five sockets were of brass.

2 And he overlaid it with pure gold within and without, and made a crown of gold to it round about.

3 And he cast for it four rings of gold, to be set by the four corners of it: even two rings upon the one side of it, and two rings upon the other side of it.

4 And he made staves of shittim-wood, and overlaid them with gold.

5 And he put the staves into the rings by the sides of the ark, to bear the ark.

6 ¶And he made the [b]mercy-seat of pure gold: two cubits and a half was the length thereof, and one cubit and a half the breadth thereof.

b ch. 25. 17.

7 And he made two cherubims of gold, beaten out of one piece made he them, on the two ends of the mercy-seat;

8 One cherub ‖on the end on this side, and another cherub ‖on the other end on that side: out of the mercy-seat made he the cherubims on the two ends thereof.

10 ¶And he made [c]the table of shittim-wood: two cubits was the length thereof, and a cubit the breadth thereof, and a cubit and a half the height thereof:

c ch. 25. 23.

11 And he overlaid it with pure gold, and made thereunto a crown of gold round about.

12 Also he made thereunto a border of an hand-breadth round about; and made a crown of gold for the border thereof round about.

13 And he cast for it four rings of gold, and put the rings upon the four corners that were in the four feet thereof.

14 Over against the border were the rings, the places for the staves to bear the table.

15 And he made the staves of shittim-wood, and overlaid them with gold, to bear the table.

26 And he overlaid it with pure gold, both the top of it, and the sides thereof round about, and the horns of it: also he made unto it a crown of gold round about.

27 And he made two rings of gold for it under the crown thereof, by the two corners of it, upon the two sides thereof, to be places for the staves to bear it withal.

28 And he made the staves of shittim-wood and overlaid them with gold.

29 ¶ And he made [g] the holy anointing oil, and the pure incense of sweet spices, according to the work of the apothecary.

CHAP. XXXVIII.

1 The altar of burnt-offering. 8 The laver of brass.

AND [a] he made the altar of burnt-offering of shittim-wood: five cubits was the length thereof, and five cubits the breadth thereof; it was four-square; and three cubits the height thereof.

2 And he made the horns thereof on the four corners of it; the horns thereof were of the same: and he overlaid it with brass.

3 And he made all the vessels of the altar, the pots, and the shovels, and the basins, and the flesh-hooks, and the fire-pans: all the vessels thereof made he of brass.

4 And he made for the altar a brazen grate of net-work under the compass thereof beneath unto the midst of it.

5 And he cast four rings for the four ends of the grate of brass, to be places for the staves.

6 And he made the staves of shittim-wood, and overlaid them with brass.

7 And he put the staves into the rings on the sides of the altar, to bear it withal; he made the altar hollow with boards.

8 ¶ And he made [b] the laver of brass, and the foot of it of brass, of the ‖ looking-glasses of the women † assembling, which assembled at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

9 ¶ And he made [c] the court: on the south side southward the hangings of the court were of fine twined linen, an hundred cubits:

10 Their pillars were twenty, and their brazen sockets twenty; the hooks of the pillars, and their fillets, were of silver.

11 And for the north side, the hangings were an hundred cubits, their pillars were twenty, and their sockets of brass twenty; the hooks of the pillars, and their fillets, of silver.

12 And for the west side were hangings of fifty cubits, their pillars ten, and their sockets ten; the hooks of the pillars, and their fillets, of silver.

13 And for the east side eastward fifty cubits.

14 The hangings of the one side of the gate were fifteen cubits; their pillars three, and their sockets three.

15 And for the other side of the court-gate, on this hand and that hand, were hangings of fifteen cubits; their pillars three, and their sockets three.

16 All the hangings of the court round about were of fine twined linen.

17 And the sockets for the pillars were of brass; the hooks of the pillars, and their fillets, of silver; and the overlaying of their chapiters of silver; and all the pillars of the court were filleted with silver.

18 And the hanging for the gate of the court was needle-work, of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen: and twenty cubits was the length, and the height in the breadth was five cubits, answerable to the hangings of the court.

19 And their pillars were four, and their sockets of brass four; their hooks of silver, and the overlaying of their chapiters and their fillets of silver.

20 And all the [d] pins of the tabernacle, and of the court round about, were of brass.

21 ¶ This is the sum of the tabernacle, even of [e] the tabernacle of testimony, as it was counted, according to the commandment of Moses, for the service of the Levites, [f] by the hand of Ithamar, son to Aaron the priest.

22 And [g] Bezaleel the son of Uri, the son of Hur, of the tribe of Judah, made all that the LORD commanded Moses.

23 And with him was Aholiab, son of Ahisamach, of the tribe of Dan, an engraver, and a cunning workman, and an embroiderer in blue, and in purple, and in scarlet, and fine linen.

24 All the gold that was occupied for the work in all the work of the holy place, even the gold of the offering, was twenty and nine talents, and seven hundred and thirty shekels, after [h] the shekel of the sanctuary.

25 And the silver of them that were numbered of the congregation was an hundred talents, and a thousand seven hundred and threescore and fifteen shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary:

26 [i] A bekah for † every man, that is, half a shekel, after the shekel of the sanctuary, for every one that went to be numbered, from twenty years old and upward, for [k] six hundred thousand, and three thousand and five hundred and fifty men.

27 And of the hundred talents of silver were cast [l] the sockets of the sanctuary, and the sockets of the vail; an hundred sockets of the hundred talents, a talent for a socket.

28 And of the thousand seven hundred seventy and five shekels he made hooks for the pillars, and overlaid their chapiters, and filleted them.

29 And the brass of the offering was seventy talents, and two thousand and four hundred shekels.

30 And therewith he made the sockets to the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, and the brazen altar, and the brazen grate for it, and all the vessels of the altar,

31 And the sockets of the court round about, and the sockets of the court-gate, and all the pins of the tabernacle, and all the pins of the court round about.

11 And the second row, an emerald, a sapphire, and a diamond.

12 And the third row, a ligure, an agate, and an amethyst.

13 And the fourth row, a beryl, an onyx, and a jasper: they were inclosed in ouches of gold in their inclosings.

14 And the stones were according to the names of the children of Israel, twelve, according to their names, like the engravings of a signet, every one with his name, according to the twelve tribes.

15 And they made upon the breast-plate chains at the ends, of wreathen work of pure gold.

16 And they made two ouches of gold, and two gold rings, and put the two rings in the two ends of the breast-plate.

17 And they put the two wreathen chains of gold in the two rings on the ends of the breast-plate.

18 And the two ends of the two wreathen chains they fastened in the two ouches, and put them on the shoulder-pieces of the ephod, before it.

19 And they made two rings of gold, and put them on the two ends of the breast-plate, upon the border of it, which was on the side of the ephod inward.

20 And they made two other golden rings, and put them on the two sides of the ephod underneath, toward the forepart of it, over against the other coupling thereof, above the curious girdle of the ephod:

21 And they did bind the breast-plate by his rings unto the rings of the ephod with a lace of blue, that it might be above the curious girdle of the ephod, and that the breast-plate might not be loosed from the ephod; as the LORD commanded Moses.

22 ¶ [i]And he made the robe of the ephod of woven work, all of blue.

23 And there was a hole in the midst of the robe, as the hole of an habergeon, with a band round about the hole, that it should not rend.

24 And they made upon the hems of the robe pomegranates of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and twined linen.

25 And they made [k]bells of pure gold, and put the bells between the pomegranates upon the hem of the robe, round about between the pomegranates;

26 A bell and a pomegranate, a bell and a pomegranate, round about the hem of the robe to minister in; as the LORD commanded Moses.

27 ¶ [l]And they made coats of fine linen, of woven work, for Aaron and for his sons,

28 [m]And a mitre of fine linen, and goodly bonnets of fine linen, and [n]linen breeches of fine twined linen,

29 [o]And a girdle of fine twined linen, and blue, and purple, and scarlet, of needle-work; as the LORD commanded Moses.

30 ¶ [p]And they made the plate of the holy crown of pure gold, and wrote upon it a writing, like to the engravings of a signet, HOLINESS TO THE LORD.

31 And they tied unto it a lace of blue, to fasten it on high upon the mitre; as the LORD commanded Moses.

32 ¶ Thus was all the work of the tabernacle of the tent of the congregation finished: and the children of Israel did [q]according to all that the LORD commanded Moses, so did they.

33 ¶ And they brought the tabernacle unto Moses, the tent, and all his furniture, his taches, his boards, his bars, and his pillars, and his sockets;

34 And the covering of rams' skins dyed red, and the covering of badgers' skins, and the vail of the covering;

35 The ark of the testimony, and the staves thereof, and the mercy-seat;

36 The table, and all the vessels thereof, and the shew-bread;

37 The pure candlestick, with the lamps thereof, even with the lamps to be set in order, and all the vessels thereof, and the oil for light;

38 And the golden altar, and the anointing oil, and †the sweet incense, and the hanging for the tabernacle door;

39 The brazen altar, and his grate of brass, his staves, and all his vessels, the laver and his foot;

40 The hangings of the court, his pillars, and his sockets, and the hanging for the court-gate, his cords, and his pins, and all the vessels of the service of the tabernacle, for the tent of the congregation;

41 The clothes of service to do service in the holy place, and the holy garments for Aaron the priest, and his sons' garments, to minister in the priest's office.

42 According to all that the LORD commanded Moses, so the children of Israel [r]made all the work.

43 And Moses did look upon all the work, and behold, they had done it as the LORD had commanded, even so had they done it: and Moses [s]blessed them.

CHAP. XL.

1 The tabernacle is commanded to be reared. 13 Aaron and his sons to be sanctified. 34 A cloud covereth the tabernacle.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 On the first day of the [a]first month shalt thou set up [b]the tabernacle of the tent of the congregation.

3 And [c]thou shalt put therein the ark of the testimony, and cover the ark with the vail.

4 And [d]thou shalt bring in the table, and [e]set in order †the things that are to be set in order upon it; [f]and thou shalt bring in the candlestick, and light the lamps thereof.

5 [g]And thou shalt set the altar of gold for the incense before the ark of the testimony, and put the hanging of the door to the tabernacle.

6 And thou shalt set the altar of the burnt-offering before the door of the tabernacle of the tent of the congregation.

7 And [h]thou shalt set the laver between the tent of the congregation and the altar, and shalt put water therein.

9 And thou shalt take the anointing oil, and anoint the tabernacle, and all that is therein, and shalt hallow it, and all the vessels thereof: and it shall be holy.

10 And thou shalt anoint the altar of the burnt-offering, and all his vessels, and sanctify the altar: and [k] it shall be an altar †most holy.

11 And thou shalt anoint the laver and his foot, and sanctify it.

12 [l] And thou shalt bring Aaron and his sons unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, and wash them with water.

13 And thou shalt put upon Aaron the holy garments, [m] and anoint him, and sanctify him; that he may minister unto me in the priest's office.

14 And thou shalt bring his sons, and clothe them with coats:

15 And thou shalt anoint them, as thou didst anoint their father, that they may minister unto me in the priest's office: for their anointing shall surely be [n] an everlasting priesthood throughout their generations.

16 Thus did Moses; according to all that the LORD commanded him, so did he.

17 ¶And it came to pass in the first month, in the second year, on the first day of the month, that the [o] tabernacle was reared up.

18 And Moses reared up the tabernacle, and fastened his sockets, and set up the boards thereof, and put in the bars thereof, and reared up his pillars.

19 And he spread abroad the tent over the tabernacle, and put the covering of the tent above upon it; as the LORD commanded Moses.

20 ¶And he took and put [p] the testimony into the ark, and set the staves on the ark, and put the mercy-seat above upon the ark:

21 And he brought the ark into the tabernacle, and [q] set up the vail of the covering, and covered the ark of the testimony; as the LORD commanded Moses.

22 ¶ [r] And he put the table in the tent of the congregation, upon the side of the tabernacle northward, without the vail.

23 [s] And he set the bread in order upon it before the LORD; as the LORD had commanded Moses.

24 ¶ [t] And he put the candlestick in the tent of the congregation, over against the table, on the side of the tabernacle southward.

25 And [u] he lighted the lamps before the LORD, as the LORD commanded Moses.

26 ¶ [x] And he put the golden altar in the tent of the congregation, before the vail:

27 [y] And he burnt sweet incense thereon; as the LORD commanded Moses.

28 ¶ [z] And he set up the hanging at the door of the tabernacle.

29 [a] And he put the altar of burnt-offering by the door of the tabernacle of the tent of the congregation, and [b] offered upon it the burnt-offering, and the meat-offering; as the LORD commanded Moses.

30 ¶ [c] And he set the laver between the tent of the congregation and the altar, and put water there, to wash withal.

31 And Moses, and Aaron, and his sons, washed their hands and their feet thereat:

32 When they went into the tent of the congregation, and when they came near unto the altar, they washed; [d] as the LORD commanded Moses.

33 [e] And he reared up the court round about the tabernacle and the altar, and set up the hanging of the court-gate: so Moses finished the work.

34 ¶ [f] Then a cloud covered the tent of the congregation, and the glory of the LORD filled the tabernacle.

35 And Moses [g] was not able to enter into the tent of the congregation, because the cloud abode thereon, and the glory of the LORD filled the tabernacle.

36 [h] And when the cloud was taken up from over the tabernacle, the children of Israel †went onward in all their journeys:

37 But [i] if the cloud were not taken up, then they journeyed not till the day that it was taken up.

38 For [k] the cloud of the LORD was upon the tabernacle by day, and fire was on it by night, in the sight of all the house of Israel, throughout all their journeys.

CHAP. I.

1 The burnt-offerings. 3 Of the herd, 10 of the flocks, 14 of the fowls.

AND the LORD [a] called unto Moses, and spake unto him [b] out of the tabernacle of the congregation, saying,

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, [c] If any man of you bring an offering unto the LORD, ye shall bring your offering of the cattle, even of the herd, and of the flock.

3 If his offering be a burnt-sacrifice of the herd, let him offer a male [d] without blemish: he shall offer it of his own voluntary will at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation before the LORD.

4 [e] And he shall put his hand upon the head of the burnt-offering; and it shall be [f] accepted for him [g] to make atonement for him.

5 And he shall kill the [h] bullock before the LORD: [i] and the priests, Aaron's sons, shall bring the blood, [k] and sprinkle the blood round about upon the altar that is by the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

6 And he shall flay the burnt-offering, and cut it into his pieces.

7 And the sons of Aaron the priest shall put fire upon the altar, and [l] lay the wood in order upon the fire.

8 And the priests, Aaron's sons, shall lay the parts, the head, and the fat, in order upon the wood that is on the fire which is upon the altar.

9 But his inwards and his legs shall he wash in water: and the priest shall burn all on the altar, to be a burnt-sacrifice, an offering made by fire, of a [m] sweet savour unto the LORD.

10 ¶ And if his offering be of the flocks, namely, of the sheep, or of the goats, for a burnt-sacrifice; he shall bring it a male [n] without blemish.

11 [o] And he shall kill it on the side of the altar northward before the LORD: and the priests, Aaron's sons, shall sprinkle his blood round about upon the altar:

12 And he shall cut it into his pieces, with his head and his fat: and the priest shall lay them in order on the wood that is on the fire which is upon the altar:

15 And the priest shall bring it unto the altar, and ‖ wring off his head, and burn it on the altar: and the blood thereof shall be wrung out at the side of the altar:

16 And he shall pluck away his crop with ‖ his feathers, and cast it [q] beside the altar on the east part, by the place of the ashes:

17 And he shall cleave it with the wings thereof, but [r] shall not divide it asunder: and the priest shall burn it upon the altar, upon the wood that is upon the fire: [s] it is a burnt-sacrifice, an offering made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD.

CHAP. II.

The meat-offering of flour with oil and incense.

AND when any will offer [a] a meat-offering unto the LORD, his offering shall be of fine flour; and he shall pour oil upon it, and put frankincense thereon:

2 And he shall bring it to Aaron's sons, the priests: and he shall take thereout his handful of the flour thereof, and of the oil thereof, with all the frankincense thereof, and the priest shall burn [b] the memorial of it upon the altar, to be an offering made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD:

3 And [c] the remnant of the meat-offering shall be Aaron's and his sons': [d] it is a thing most holy of the offerings of the LORD made by fire.

4 And if thou bring an oblation of a meat-offering baken in the oven, it shall be unleavened cakes of fine flour mingled with oil, or unleavened wafers [e] anointed with oil.

5 ¶ And if thy oblation be a meat-offering baken ‖ in a pan, it shall be of fine flour unleavened, mingled with oil.

6 Thou shalt part it in pieces, and pour oil thereon: it is a meat-offering.

7 ¶ And if thy oblation be a meat-offering baken in the frying-pan, it shall be made of fine flour with oil.

8 And thou shalt bring the meat-offering that is made of these things unto the LORD: and when it is presented unto the priest, he shall bring it unto the altar.

9 And the priest shall take from the meat-offering a memorial [f] thereof, and shall burn it upon the altar: it is an [g] offering made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD.

10 And [h] that which is left of the meat-offering shall be Aaron's and his sons': it is a thing most holy, of the offerings of the LORD made by fire.

11 No meat-offering which ye shall bring unto the LORD shall be made with [i] leaven: for ye shall burn no leaven, nor any honey, in any offering of the LORD made by fire.

12 ¶ [k] As for the oblation of the first-fruits, ye shall offer them unto the LORD: but they shall not † be burnt on the altar for a sweet savour.

13 And every oblation of thy meat-offering [l] shalt thou season with salt; neither shalt thou suffer [m] the salt of the covenant of thy God to be lacking from thy meat-offering: [n] with all thine offerings thou shalt offer salt.

14 And if thou offer a meat-offering of thy first-fruits unto the LORD, [o] thou shalt offer for the meat-offering of thy first-fruits, green ears of corn dried by the fire, even corn beaten out of [p] full ears.

15 And [q] thou shalt put oil upon it, and lay frankincense thereon: it is a meat-offering.

16 And the priest shall burn [r] the memorial of it, part of the beaten corn thereof, and part of the oil thereof, with all the frankincense thereof: it is an offering made by fire unto the LORD.

CHAP. III.

1 The peace-offering of the herd, 6 of the flock.

AND if his oblation be a [a] sacrifice of peace-offering, if he offer it of the herd, whether it be a male or female; he shall offer it [b] without blemish before the LORD.

2 And [c] he shall lay his hand upon the head of his offering, and kill it at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation: and Aaron's sons the priests shall sprinkle the blood upon the altar round about.

3 And he shall offer of the sacrifice of the peace-offering, an offering made by fire unto the LORD; [d] the ‖ fat that covereth the inwards, and all the fat that is upon the inwards,

4 And the two kidneys, and the fat that is on them, which is by the flanks, and the ‖ caul above the liver, with the kidneys, it shall he take away.

5 And Aaron's sons [e] shall burn it on the altar, upon the burnt-sacrifice, which is upon the wood that is on the fire: it is an offering made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD.

6 ¶ And if his offering for a sacrifice of peace-offering unto the LORD be of the flock, male or female; [f] he shall offer it without blemish.

7 If he offer a lamb for his offering, then shall he offer it before the LORD.

8 And he shall lay his hand upon the head of his offering, and kill it before the tabernacle of the congregation: and Aaron's sons shall sprinkle the blood thereof round about upon the altar.

9 And he shall offer of the sacrifice of the peace-offering an offering made by fire unto the LORD: the fat thereof, and the whole rump, (it shall he take off hard by the backbone;) and the fat that covereth the inwards, and all the fat that is upon the inwards,

10 And the two kidneys, and the fat that is upon them, which is by the flanks, and the caul above the liver, with the kidneys, it shall he take away.

11 And the priest shall burn it upon the altar: it is [g] the food of the offering made by fire unto the LORD.

12 ¶ And if his offering be a goat, then [h] he shall offer it before the LORD.

13 And he shall lay his hand upon the head of it, and kill it before the tabernacle of the congregation: and the sons of Aaron shall sprinkle the blood thereof upon the altar round about.

14 And he shall offer thereof his offering, even an offering made by fire unto the LORD; the fat that covereth the inwards, and all the fat that is upon the inwards,

15 And the two kidneys, and the fat that is upon them, which is by the flanks, and the caul above the liver, with the kidneys, it shall he take away.

16 And the priest shall burn them upon the altar: it is the food of the offering made by fire for a sweet savour: [i] all the fat is the LORD's.

17 It shall be a [k] perpetual statute for your generations throughout all your dwellings, that ye eat neither [l] fat nor [m] blood.

CHAP. IV.

1 The sin-offering of ignorance, 3 for the priest, 27 for any of the people.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,
2 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, [a] If a soul shall sin through ignorance against any of the commandments of the LORD concerning things which ought not to be done, and shall do against any of them:

3 [b] If the priest that is anointed do sin according to the sin of the people; then let him bring for his sin which he hath sinned, [c] a young bullock without blemish unto the LORD for a sin-offering.

4 And he shall bring the bullock [d] unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation before the LORD; and shall lay his hand upon the bullock's head, and kill the bullock before the LORD.

5 And the priest that is anointed [e] shall take of the bullock's blood, and bring it to the tabernacle of the congregation:

6 And the priest shall dip his finger in the blood, and sprinkle of the blood seven times before the LORD, before the vail of the sanctuary.

7 And the priest shall [f] put some of the blood upon the horns of the altar of sweet incense before the LORD, which is in the tabernacle of the congregation; and shall pour [g] all the blood of the bullock at the bottom of the altar of the burnt-offering, which is at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

8 And he shall take off from it all the fat of the bullock for the sin-offering; the fat that covereth the inwards, and all the fat that is upon the inwards,

9 And the two kidneys, and the fat that is upon them, which is by the flanks, and the caul above the liver, with the kidneys, it shall he take away,

10 [h] As it was taken off from the bullock of the sacrifice of peace-offerings: and the priest shall burn them upon the altar of the burnt-offering.

11 [i] And the skin of the bullock, and all his flesh, with his head, and with his legs, and his inwards, and his dung;

12 Even the whole bullock shall he carry forth † without the camp unto a clean place, [k] where the ashes are poured out, and [l] burn him on the wood with fire: † where the ashes are poured out shall he be burnt.

13 ¶ And [m] if the whole congregation of Israel sin through ignorance, [n] and the thing be hid from the eyes of the assembly, and they have done somewhat against any of the commandments of the LORD concerning things which should not be done, and are guilty;

14 When the sin which they have sinned against it is known, then the congregation shall offer a young bullock for the sin, and bring him before the tabernacle of the congregation.

15 And the elders of the congregation [o] shall lay their hands upon the head of the bullock before the LORD: and the bullock shall be killed before the LORD.

16 [p] And the priest that is anointed shall bring of the bullock's blood to the tabernacle of the congregation:

17 And the priest shall dip his finger in some of the blood, and sprinkle it seven times before the LORD, even before the vail.

18 And he shall put some of the blood upon the horns of the altar, which is before the LORD, that is in the tabernacle of the congregation, and shall pour out all the blood at the bottom of the altar of the burnt-offering, which is at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

19 And he shall take all his fat from him, and burn it upon the altar.

20 And he shall do with the bullock as he did [q] with the bullock for a sin-offering, so shall he do with this: [r] and the priest shall make an atonement for them, and it shall be forgiven them.

21 And he shall carry forth the bullock without the camp, and burn him as he burned the first bullock: it is a sin-offering for the congregation.

22 ¶ When a ruler hath sinned, and [s] done somewhat through ignorance against any of the commandments of the LORD his God concerning things which should not be done, and is guilty;

23 Or [t] if his sin, wherein he hath sinned, come to his knowledge; he shall bring his offering, a kid of the goats, a male without blemish:

24 And [u] he shall lay his hand upon the head of the goat, and kill it in the place where they kill the burnt-offering before the LORD: it is a sin-offering.

25 [x] And the priest shall take of the blood of the sin-offering with his finger, and put it upon the horns of the altar of burnt-offering, and shall pour out his blood at the bottom of the altar of burnt-offering.

26 And he shall burn all his fat upon the altar, as [y] the fat of the sacrifice of peace-offerings: [z] and the priest shall make an atonement for him as concerning his sin, and it shall be forgiven him.

27 ¶ And [a] if † any one of the † common people sin through ignorance, while he doeth somewhat against any of the commandments of the LORD concerning things which ought not to be done, and be guilty;

28 Or [b] if his sin which he hath sinned come to his knowledge: then he shall bring his offering, a kid of the goats, a female without blemish, for his sin which he hath sinned.

29 [c] And he shall lay his hand upon the head of the sin-offering, and slay the sin-offering in the place of the burnt-offering.

30 And the priest shall take of the blood thereof with his finger, and put it upon the horns of the altar of burnt-offering, and shall pour out all the blood thereof at the bottom of the altar.

31 And [d] he shall take away all the fat thereof, [e] as the fat is taken away from off the sacrifice of peace-offerings; and the priest shall burn it upon the altar for a [f] sweet savour unto the LORD; [g] and the priest shall make an atonement for him, and it shall be forgiven him.

32 And if he bring a lamb for a sin-offering, [h] he shall bring it a female without blemish.

33 And he shall lay his hand upon the head of the sin-offering, and slay it for a sin-offering in the place where they kill the burnt-offering.

34 And the priest shall take of the blood of the sin-offering with his finger, and put it upon the horns of the altar of burnt-offering, and shall pour out all the blood thereof at the bottom of the altar:

35 And he shall take away all the fat thereof, as the fat of the lamb is taken away from the sacrifice of the peace-offerings; and the priest shall burn them upon the altar, [i] according to the offerings made by fire unto the LORD: [k] and the priest shall make an atonement for his sin that he hath committed, and it shall be forgiven him.

CHAP. V.

1 The trespass-offering in sacrilege, 17 and in sins of ignorance.

AND if a soul sin, [a]and hear the voice of swearing, and is a witness, whether he hath seen or known of it; if he do not utter it, then he shall [b]bear his iniquity.

2 Or [c]if a soul touch any unclean thing, whether it be a carcass of an unclean beast, or a carcass of unclean cattle, or the carcass of unclean creeping things, and if it be hidden from him; he also shall be unclean, and [d]guilty.

3 Or if he touch [e]the uncleanness of man, whatsoever uncleanness it be that a man shall be defiled withal, and it be hid from him; when he knoweth of it, then he shall be guilty.

4 Or if a soul swear, pronouncing with his lips [f]to do evil, or [g]to do good, whatsoever it be that a man shall pronounce with an oath, and it be hid from him; when he knoweth of it, then he shall be guilty in one of these.

5 And it shall be, when he shall be guilty in one of these things, that he shall [h]confess that he hath sinned in that thing:

6 And he shall bring his trespass-offering unto the LORD for his sin which he hath sinned, a female from the flock, a lamb or a kid of the goats, for a sin-offering; and the priest shall make an atonement for him concerning his sin.

7 And [i]if †he be not able to bring a lamb, then he shall bring for his trespass which he hath committed, two [k]turtle-doves, or two young pigeons, unto the LORD; one for a sin-offering, and the other for a burnt-offering.

8 And he shall bring them unto the priest, who shall offer that which is for the sin-offering first, and [l]wring off his head from his neck, but shall not divide it asunder:

9 And he shall sprinkle of the blood of the sin-offering upon the side of the altar; and [m]the rest of the blood shall be wrung out at the bottom of the altar: it is a sin-offering.

10 And he shall offer the second for a burnt-offering, according to the ‖ [n]manner: [o]and the priest shall make an atonement for him for his sin which he hath sinned, and it shall be forgiven him.

11 ¶ But if he be not able to bring two turtle-doves, or two young pigeons; then he that sinned shall bring for his offering the tenth part of an ephah of fine flour for a sin-offering; [p]he shall put no oil upon it, neither shall he put any frankincense thereon: for it is a sin-offering.

12 Then shall he bring it to the priest, and the priest shall take his handful of it, [q]even a memorial thereof, and burn it on the altar, [r]according to the offerings made by fire unto the LORD: it is a sin-offering.

13 [s]And the priest shall make an atonement for him as touching his sin that he hath sinned in one of these, and it shall be forgiven him: and [t]the remnant shall be the priest's, as a meat-offering.

14 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

15 [u]If a soul commit a trespass, and sin through ignorance, in the holy things of the LORD; then [x]he shall bring for his trespass unto the LORD a ram without blemish out of the flocks, with thy estimation by shekels of silver, after [y]the shekel of the sanctuary, for a trespass-offering:

16 And he shall make amends for the harm that he hath done in the holy thing, and [z]shall add the fifth part thereto, and give it unto the priest: [a]and the priest shall make an atonement for him with the ram of the trespass-offering, and it shall be forgiven him.

17 ¶ And if a [b]soul sin, and commit any of these things which are forbidden to be done by the commandments of the LORD; [c]though he wist it not, yet is he [d]guilty, and shall bear his iniquity.

18 [e]And he shall bring a ram without blemish out of the flock, with thy estimation, for a trespass-offering unto the priest; [f]and the priest shall make an atonement for him concerning his ignorance wherein he erred and wist it not, and it shall be forgiven him.

19 It is a trespass-offering: [g]he hath certainly trespassed against the LORD.

CHAP. VI.

1 The trespass-offering for sins done wittingly. 19 The offering at the consecration of a priest. 24 The law of the sin-offering.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 If a soul sin, and [a]commit a trespass against the LORD, and [b]lie unto his neighbour in that [c]which was delivered him to keep, or in ‖ †fellowship, or in a thing taken away by violence, or hath [d]deceived his neighbour;

3 Or [e]have found that which was lost, and lieth concerning it, and [f]sweareth falsely; in any of all these that a man doeth, sinning therein:

4 Then it shall be, because he hath sinned and is guilty, that he shall restore that which he took violently away, or the thing which he hath deceitfully gotten, or that which was delivered him to keep, or the lost thing which he found,

5 Or all that about which he hath sworn falsely; he shall even [g]restore it in the principal, and shall add the fifth part more thereto, and give it unto him to whom it appertaineth, ‖ † in the day of his trespass-offering.

6 And he shall bring his trespass-offering unto the LORD, [h]a ram without blemish out of the flock, with thy estimation, for a trespass-offering, unto the priest:

7 [i]And the priest shall make an atonement for him before the LORD: and it shall be forgiven him for any thing of all that he hath done in trespassing therein.

8 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

9 Command Aaron and his sons, saying, This is the law of the burnt-offering: it is the burnt-offering, ‖ because of the burning upon the altar all night unto the morning, and the fire of the altar shall be burning in it.

10 [k]And the priest shall put on his linen garment, and his linen breeches shall he put upon his flesh, and take up the ashes which the fire hath consumed with the burnt-offering on the altar, and he shall put them [l]beside the altar.

11 And [m]he shall put off his garments, and put on other garments, and carry forth the ashes without the camp [n]unto a clean place.

12 And the fire upon the altar shall be burning in it; it shall not be put out: and the priest shall burn wood on it every morning, and lay the burnt-offering in order upon it; and he shall burn thereon [o]the fat of the peace-offerings.

13 The fire shall ever be burning upon the altar; it shall never go out.

The sons of Aaron shall offer it before the LORD, before the altar.

15 And he shall take of it his handful, of the flour of the meat-offering, and of the oil thereof, and all the frankincense which is upon the meat-offering, and shall burn it upon the altar for a sweet savour, even the [q]memorial of it, unto the LORD.

16 And [r]the remainder thereof shall Aaron and his sons eat: [s]with unleavened bread shall it be eaten in the holy place; in the court of the tabernacle of the congregation they shall eat it.

17 [t]It shall not be baken with leaven. [u]I have given it unto them for their portion of my offerings made by fire. [x]It is most holy, as is the sin-offering, and as the trespass-offering.

18 [y]All the males among the children of Aaron shall eat of it. [z]It shall be a statute for ever in your generations concerning the offerings of the LORD made by fire: [a]every one that toucheth them shall be holy.

19 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

20 [b]This is the offering of Aaron and of his sons, which they shall offer unto the LORD in the day when he is anointed; the tenth part of an [c]ephah of fine flour for a meat-offering perpetual, half of it in the morning, and half thereof at night.

21 In a pan it shall be made with oil; and when it is baken, thou shalt bring it in: and the baken pieces of the meat-offering shalt thou offer for a sweet savour unto the LORD.

22 And the priest of his sons [d]that is anointed in his stead shall offer it: It is a statute for ever unto the LORD; [e]it shall be wholly burnt.

23 For every meat-offering for the priest shall be wholly burnt: it shall not be eaten.

24 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

25 Speak unto Aaron and to his sons, saying, [f]This is the law of the sin-offering: [g]In the place where the burnt-offering is killed shall the sin-offering be killed before the LORD: [h]it is most holy.

26 [i]The priest that offereth it for sin shall eat it: [k]in the holy place shall it be eaten, in the court of the tabernacle of the congregation.

27 [l]Whatsoever shall touch the flesh thereof shall be holy: and when there is sprinkled of the blood thereof upon any garment, thou shalt wash that whereon it was sprinkled in the holy place.

28 But the earthen vessel wherein it is sodden [m]shall be broken: and if it be sodden in a brazen pot, it shall be both scoured, and rinsed in water.

29 [n]All the males among the priests shall eat thereof: [o]it is most holy.

30 [p]And no sin-offering, whereof any of the blood is brought into the tabernacle of the congregation to reconcile withal in the holy place, shall be eaten: it shall be burnt in the fire.

CHAP. VII.

1 The law of the trespass-offering, 11 and of the peace-offerings. 22 The fat, 26 and the blood, are forbidden. 28 The priest's portion in the peace-offerings.

LIKEWISE [a]this is the law of the trespass-offering: [b]it is most holy.

2 [c]In the place where they kill the burnt-offering shall they kill the trespass-offering: and the blood thereof shall he sprinkle round about upon the altar.

3 And he shall offer of it [d]all the fat thereof; the rump, and the fat that covereth the inwards,

4 And the two kidneys, and the fat that is on them, which is by the flanks, and the caul that is above the liver, with the kidneys, it shall he take away:

5 And the priest shall burn them upon the altar for an offering made by fire unto the LORD: it is a trespass-offering.

6 [e]Every male among the priests shall eat thereof: it shall be eaten in the holy place: [f]it is most holy

7 As the sin-offering is, so is [g]the trespass-offering: there is one law for them: the priest that maketh atonement therewith shall have it.

8 And the priest that offereth any man's burnt-offering, even the priest shall have to himself the skin of the burnt-offering which he hath offered.

9 And [h]all the meat-offering that is baken in the oven, and all that is dressed in the frying-pan, and ‖ in the pan, shall be the priest's that offereth it.

10 And every meat-offering mingled with oil, and dry, shall all the sons of Aaron have, one as much as another.

11 And [i]this is the law of the sacrifice of peace-offerings, which he shall offer unto the LORD.

12 If he offer it for a thanksgiving, then he shall offer with the sacrifice of thanksgiving unleavened cakes mingled with oil, and unleavened wafers [k]anointed with oil, and cakes mingled with oil, of fine flour, fried.

13 Besides the cakes, he shall offer for his offering, [l]leavened bread, with the sacrifice of thanksgiving of his peace-offerings.

14 And of it he shall offer one out of the whole oblation for an heave-offering unto the LORD, [m]and it shall be the priest's that sprinkleth the blood of the peace-offerings.

15 [n]And the flesh of the sacrifice of his peace-offerings for thanksgiving shall be eaten the same day that it is offered; he shall not leave any of it until the morning.

16 But [o]if the sacrifice of his offering be a vow, or a voluntary offering, it shall be eaten the same day that he offereth his sacrifice: and on the morrow also the remainder of it shall be eaten:

17 But the remainder of the flesh of the sacrifice on the third day shall be burnt with fire.

18 And if any of the flesh of the sacrifice of his peace-offerings be eaten at all on the third day, it shall not be accepted, neither shall it be [p]imputed unto him that offereth it: it shall be an [q]abomination, and the soul that eateth of it shall bear his iniquity.

19 And the flesh that toucheth any unclean thing shall not be eaten; it shall be burnt with fire: and as for the flesh, all that be clean shall eat thereof.

20 But the soul that eateth of the flesh of the sacrifice of peace-offerings that pertain unto the LORD, [r]having his uncleanness upon him, even that soul [s]shall be cut off from his people.

21 Moreover, the soul that shall touch any unclean thing, as [t]the uncleanness of man, or any [u]unclean beast, or any [w]abominable unclean thing, and eat of the flesh of the sacrifice of peace-offerings which pertain unto the LORD, even that soul [x]shall be cut off from his people.

22 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

23 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, [y]Ye shall eat no manner of fat, of ox, or of sheep, or of goat.

24 And the fat of the † beast that dieth of itself, and the fat of that which is torn with beasts, may be used in any other use: but ye shall in no wise eat of it.

7 [f]And he put upon him the [g]coat, and girded him with the girdle, and clothed him with the robe, and put the ephod upon him, and he girded him with the curious girdle of the ephod, and bound it unto him therewith.

8 And he put the breast-plate upon him: also he [h]put in the breast-plate the Urim and the Thummim.

9 [i]And he put the mitre upon his head; also upon the mitre, even upon his forefront, did he put the golden plate, the holy crown; as the LORD [k]commanded Moses.

10 [l]And Moses took the anointing oil, and anointed the tabernacle and all that was therein, and sanctified them.

11 And he sprinkled thereof upon the altar seven times, and anointed the altar and all his vessels, both the laver and his foot, to sanctify them.

12 And he [m]poured of the anointing oil upon Aaron's head, and anointed him, to sanctify him.

13 [n]And Moses brought Aaron's sons, and put coats upon them, and girded them with girdles, and † put bonnets upon them; as the LORD commanded Moses.

14 [o]And he brought the bullock for the sin-offering: and Aaron and his sons [p]laid their hands upon the head of the bullock for the sin-offering.

15 And he slew it; [q]and Moses took the blood, and put it upon the horns of the altar round about with his finger, and purified the altar, and poured the blood at the bottom of the altar, and sanctified it, to make reconciliation upon it.

16 [r]And he took all the fat that was upon the inwards, and the caul above the liver, and the two kidneys, and their fat, and Moses burned it upon the altar.

17 But the bullock, and his hide, his flesh, and his dung, he burnt with fire without the camp; as the LORD [s]commanded Moses.

18 ¶ [t]And he brought the ram for the burnt-offering: and Aaron and his sons laid their hands upon the head of the ram.

19 And he killed it; and Moses sprinkled the blood upon the altar round about.

20 And he cut the ram into pieces; and Moses burnt the head, and the pieces, and the fat.

21 And he washed the inwards and the legs in water; and Moses burnt the whole ram upon the altar: it was a burnt-sacrifice for a sweet savour, and an offering made by fire unto the LORD; [u]as the LORD commanded Moses.

22 ¶ And [w]he brought the other ram, the ram of consecration: and Aaron and his sons laid their hands upon the head of the ram.

23 And he slew it; and Moses took of the blood of it, and put it upon the tip of Aaron's right ear, and upon the thumb of his right hand, and upon the great toe of his right foot.

24 And he brought Aaron's sons, and Moses put of the blood upon the tip of their right ear, and upon the thumbs of their right hands, and upon the great toes of their right feet: and Moses sprinkled the blood upon the altar round about.

25 [x]And he took the fat, and the rump, and all the fat that was upon the inwards, and the caul above the liver, and the two kidneys, and their fat, and the right shoulder:

26 [y]And out of the basket of unleavened bread, that was before the LORD, he took one unleavened cake, and a cake of oiled bread, and one wafer, and put them on the fat, and upon the right shoulder:

27 And he put all [z]upon Aaron's hands, and upon his son's hands, and waved them for a wave-offering before the LORD.

28 [a]And Moses took them from off their hands, and burnt them on the altar upon the burnt-offering:

they were consecrations for a sweet savour: it is an offering made by fire unto the LORD.

29 And Moses took the breast, and waved it for a wave-offering before the LORD: for of the ram of consecration it was Moses' [b]part; as the LORD commanded Moses.

30 And [c]Moses took of the anointing oil, and of the blood which was upon the altar, and sprinkled it upon Aaron, and upon his garments, and upon his sons, and upon his sons' garments with him; and sanctified Aaron, and his garments, and his sons, and his sons' garments with him.

32 [e]And that which remaineth of the flesh and of the bread shall ye burn with fire.

33 And ye shall not go out of the door of the tabernacle of the congregation in seven days, until the days of your consecration be at an end: for [f]seven days shall he consecrate you.

34 [g]As he hath done this day, so the LORD hath commanded to do, to make an atonement for you.

35 Therefore shall ye abide at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation day and night seven days, and [h]keep the charge of the LORD, that ye die not: for so I am commanded.

36 So Aaron and his sons did all things which the LORD commanded by the hand of Moses.

CHAP. IX.

1 The first offerings of Aaron for himself and the people. 23 Moses and Aaron bless the people. 24 Fire cometh from the Lord upon the altar.

AND [a]it came to pass on the eighth day, that Moses called Aaron and his sons, and the elders of Israel;

2 And he said unto Aaron, [b]Take thee a young calf for a sin-offering, [c]and a ram for a burnt-offering, without blemish, and offer them before the LORD.

3 And unto the children of Israel thou shalt speak, saying, [d]Take ye a kid of the goats for a sin-offering; and a calf and a lamb, both of the first year, without blemish, for a burnt-offering;

4 Also a bullock and a ram for peace-offerings, to sacrifice before the LORD; and [e]a meat-offering mingled with oil: for [f]to-day the LORD will appear unto you.

5 ¶ And they brought that which Moses commanded before the tabernacle of the congregation: and all the congregation drew near and stood before the LORD.

6 And Moses said, This is the thing which the LORD commanded that ye should do: and [g]the glory of the LORD shall appear unto you.

7 And Moses said unto Aaron, Go unto the altar, and [h]offer thy sin-offering, and thy burnt-offering, and make an atonement for thyself, and for the people: and [i]offer the offering of the people, and make an atonement for them; as the LORD commanded.

8 ¶ Aaron therefore went unto the altar, and slew the calf of the sin-offering, which was for himself.

9 [k]And the sons of Aaron brought the blood unto him: and he dipped his finger in the blood, and [l]put it upon the horns of the altar, and poured out the blood at the bottom of the altar:

10 [m]But the fat, and the kidneys, and the caul above the liver of the sin-offering, he burnt upon the altar; [n]as the LORD commanded Moses.

11 [o]And the flesh and the hide he burnt with fire without the camp.

12 And he slew the burnt-offering; and Aaron's sons presented unto him the blood, [p]which he sprinkled round about upon the altar.

13 [q]And they presented the burnt-offering unto him, with the pieces thereof, and the head: and he burnt them upon the altar.

14 [r]And he did wash the inwards and the legs, and burnt them upon the burnt-offering on the altar.

15 ¶ [s]And he brought the people's offering, and took the goat, which was the sin-offering for the people, and slew it, and offered it for sin, as the first.

16 And he brought the burnt-offering, and offered it [t]according to the ‖manner.

17 And he brought [u]the meat-offering, and † took an handful thereof, and burnt it upon the altar, [v]besides the burnt-sacrifice of the morning.

18 He slew also the bullock and the ram for [y]a sacrifice of peace-offerings, which was for the people: and Aaron's sons presented unto him the blood, which he sprinkled upon the altar round about,

19 And the fat of the bullock, and of the ram, the rump, and that which covereth the inwards, and the kidneys, and the caul above the liver:

20 And they put the fat upon the breasts, [z]and he burnt the fat upon the altar:

21 And the breasts and the right shoulder Aaron waved [a]for a wave-offering before the LORD; as Moses commanded.

22 And Aaron lifted up his hand toward the people, and [b]blessed them; and came down from offering of the sin-offering, and the burnt-offering, and peace-offerings.

23 And Moses and Aaron went into the tabernacle of the congregation, and came out, and blessed the people: [c]and the glory of the LORD appeared unto all the people.

24 And [d]there came a fire out from before the LORD, and consumed upon the altar the burnt-offering and the fat: which when all the people saw, [e]they shouted, and fell on their faces.

CHAP. X.

1 Nadab and Abihu, for offering of strange fire, are burnt by fire. 8 The priests are forbidden wine when they are to go into the tabernacle.

AND [a]Nadab and Abihu, the sons of Aaron, [b]took either of them his censer, and put fire therein, and put incense thereon, and offered [c]strange fire before the LORD, which he commanded them not.

2 And there [d]went out fire from the LORD, and devoured them, and they died before the LORD.

3 Then Moses said unto Aaron, This is it that the LORD spake, saying, I will be sanctified in them [e]that come nigh me, and before all the people I will be [f]glorified. [g]And Aaron held his peace.

4 And Moses called Mishael and Elzaphan, the sons of [h]Uzziel the uncle of Aaron, and said unto them, Come near, [i]carry your brethren from before the sanctuary out of the camp.

5 So they went near, and carried them in their coats out of the camp; as Moses had said.

6 And Moses said unto Aaron, and unto Eleazar and unto Ithamar, his sons, [k]Uncover not your heads, neither rend your clothes; lest ye die, and lest [l]wrath come upon all the people: but let your brethren, the whole house of Israel, bewail the burning which the LORD hath kindled.

7 [m]And ye shall not go out from the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, lest ye die: [n]for the anointing oil of the LORD is upon you. And they did according to the word of Moses.

8 ¶And the LORD spake unto Aaron, saying,

9 [o]Do not drink wine nor strong drink, thou, nor thy sons with thee, when ye go into the tabernacle of the congregation, lest ye die: it shall be a statute for ever throughout your generations:

10 And that ye may [p]put difference between holy and unholy, and between unclean and clean;

11 [q]And that ye may teach the children of Israel all the statutes which the LORD hath spoken unto them by the hand of Moses.

12 ¶And Moses spake unto Aaron, and unto Eleazar and unto Ithamar, his sons that were left, Take [r]the meat-offering that remaineth of the offerings of the LORD made by fire, and eat it without leaven beside the altar: for [s]it is most holy:

13 And ye shall eat it in the holy place, because it is thy due, and thy sons' due, of the sacrifices of the LORD made by fire: for [t]so I am commanded.

14 And [u]the wave-breast and heave-shoulder shall ye eat in a clean place; thou, and thy sons, and thy daughters with thee: for they be thy due, and thy sons' due, which are given out of the sacrifices of peace-offerings of the children of Israel.

15 [x]The heave-shoulder and the wave-breast shall they bring, with the offerings made by fire of the fat, to wave it for a wave-offering before the LORD; and it shall be thine, and thy sons' with thee, by a statute for ever; as the LORD hath commanded.

16 ¶And Moses diligently sought [y]the goat of the sin-offering, and behold, it was burnt: and he was angry with Eleazar and Ithamar, the sons of Aaron which were left alive, saying,

17 [z]Wherefore have ye not eaten the sin-offering in the holy place, seeing it is most holy, and God hath given it you to bear the iniquity of the congregation, to make atonement for them before the LORD?

18 Behold, [a]the blood of it was not brought in within the holy place: ye should indeed have eaten it in the holy place, [b]as I commanded.

19 And Aaron said unto Moses, Behold, [c]this day have they offered their sin-offering, and their burnt-offering before the LORD; and such things have befallen me: and if I had eaten the sin-offering today, [d]should it have been accepted in the sight of the LORD?

20 And when Moses heard that, he was content.

2 What beasts may, 4 and what may not be eaten. 9 What fishes. 13 What fowls. 20 The creeping things which are unclean.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses and to Aaron, saying unto them,

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, [a]These are the beasts which ye shall eat among all the beasts that are on the earth.

3 Whatsoever parteth the hoof, and is cloven-footed, and cheweth the cud among the beasts, that shall ye eat.

4 Nevertheless, these shall ye not eat, of them that chew the cud, or of them that divide the hoof: as the camel, because he cheweth the cud, but divideth not the hoof; he is unclean unto you.

8 Of their flesh shall ye not eat, and their carcass shall ye not touch; [d]they are unclean to you.

9 ¶[e]These shall ye eat, of all that are in the waters: whatsoever hath fins and scales in the waters, in the seas, and in the rivers, them shall ye eat.

10 And all that have not fins nor scales in the seas, and in the rivers, of all that move in the waters, and of any living thing which is in the waters, they shall be an [f]abomination unto you:

11 They shall be even an abomination unto you: ye shall not eat of their flesh, but ye shall have their carcasses in abomination.

12 Whatsoever hath no fins nor scales in the waters, that shall be an abomination unto you.

13 ¶[g]And these are they which ye shall have in abomination among the fowls; they shall not be eaten, they are an abomination: the eagle, and the ossifrage, and the ospray,

14 And the vulture, and the kite after his kind;

15 Every raven after his kind;

16 And the owl, and the night-hawk, and the cuckoo, and the hawk after his kind,

18 And the swan, and the pelican, and the gier-eagle,

19 And the stork, the heron after her kind, and the lapwing, and the bat.

20 All fowls that creep, going upon all four, shall be an abomination unto you.

21 Yet these may ye eat, of every flying creeping thing that goeth upon all four, which have legs above their feet, to leap withal upon the earth;

22 Even these of them ye may eat; [h]the locust after his kind, and the bald locust after his kind, and the beetle after his kind, and the grasshopper after his kind.

23 But all other flying creeping things, which have four feet, shall be an abomination unto you.

26 The carcasses of every beast which divideth the hoof and is not cloven-footed, nor cheweth the cud, are unclean unto you: every one that toucheth them shall be unclean.

27 And whatsoever goeth upon his paws, among all manner of beasts that go on all four, those are unclean unto you: whoso toucheth their carcass shall be unclean until the even.

28 And he that beareth the carcass of them shall wash his clothes, and be unclean until the even: they are unclean unto you.

29 ¶These also shall be unclean unto you among the creeping things that creep upon the earth; the weasel, and [k]the mouse, and the tortoise after his kind,

30 And the ferret, and the chameleon, and the lizard, and the snail, and the mole.

31 These are unclean to you among all that creep: whosoever doth touch them, when they be dead, shall be unclean until the even.

32 And upon whatsoever any of them, when they are dead, doth fall, it shall be unclean; whether it be any vessel of wood, or raiment, or skin, or sack, whatsoever vessel it be, wherein any work is done, [l] it must be put into water, and it shall be unclean until the even; so it shall be cleansed.

33 And every earthen vessel, whereinto any of them falleth, whatsoever is in it shall be unclean; and [m] ye shall break it.

34 Of all meat which may be eaten, that on which such water cometh shall be unclean: and all drink that may be drunk in every such vessel, shall be unclean.

35 And every thing whereupon any part of their carcass falleth, shall be unclean; whether it be oven, or ranges for pots, they shall be broken down: for they are unclean, and shall be unclean unto you.

39 And if any beast, of which ye may eat, die; he that toucheth the carcass thereof shall be unclean until the even.

40 And [n] he that eateth of the carcass of it shall wash his clothes, and be unclean until the even; he also that beareth the carcass of it shall wash his clothes, and be unclean until the even.

44 For I am the LORD your God: ye shall therefore sanctify yourselves, and [p] ye shall be holy; for I am holy: neither shall ye defile yourselves with any manner of creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth.

45 [q] For I am the LORD that bringeth you up out of the land of Egypt, to be your God: [r] ye shall therefore be holy, for I am holy.

46 This is the law of the beasts, and of the fowl, and of every living creature that moveth in the waters, and of every creature that creepeth upon the earth:

47 [s] To make a difference between the unclean and the clean, and between the beast that may be eaten and the beast that may not be eaten.

CHAP. XII.

The purification of a woman after child-birth.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, If a [a] woman have conceived seed, and borne a man-child, then [b] she shall be unclean seven days; [c] according to the days of the separation for her infirmity shall she be unclean.

3 And in the [d] eighth day the flesh of his foreskin shall be circumcised.

4 And she shall then continue in the blood of her purifying three and thirty days: she shall touch no hallowed thing, nor come into the sanctuary, until the days of her purifying be fulfilled.

5 But if she bear a maid-child, then she shall be unclean two weeks, as in her separation: and she shall continue in the blood of her purifying three-score and six days.

6 And [e] when the days of her purifying are fulfilled, for a son, or for a daughter, she shall bring a lamb † of the first year for a burnt-offering, and a young pigeon, or a turtle-dove, for a sin-offering, unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, unto the priest:

7 Who shall offer it before the LORD, and make an atonement for her; and she shall be cleansed from the issue of her blood. This is the law for her that hath borne a male or a female.

8 [f] And if †she be not able to bring a lamb, then she shall bring two turtles, or two young pigeons; the one for the burnt-offering, and the other for a sin-offering: [g] and the priest shall make an atonement for her, and she shall be clean.

CHAP. XIII.

The laws and tokens whereby the priest is to be guided in discerning the leprosy.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses and Aaron, saying,

2 When a man shall have in the skin of his flesh a ‖ rising, [a] a scab, or bright spot, and it be in the skin of his flesh like the plague of leprosy; [b] then he shall be brought unto Aaron the priest, or unto one of his sons the priests:

3 And the priest shall look on the plague in the skin of the flesh: and when the hair in the plague is turned white, and the plague in sight be deeper than the skin of his flesh, it is a plague of leprosy: and the priest shall look on him, and pronounce him unclean.

4 If the bright spot be white in the skin of his flesh, and in sight be not deeper than the skin, and the hair thereof be not turned white; then the priest shall shut up him that hath the plague seven days:

5 And the priest shall look on him the seventh day: and, behold, if the plague in his sight be at a stay, and the plague spread not in the skin; then the priest shall shut him up seven days more:

6 And the priest shall look on him again the seventh day: and, behold, if the plague be somewhat dark, and the plague spread not in the skin, the priest shall pronounce him clean: it is but a scab: and he [c] shall wash his clothes, and be clean.

7 But if the scab spread much abroad in the skin, after that he hath been seen of the priest for his cleansing, he shall be seen of the priest again:

8 And if the priest see, that, behold, the scab spreadeth in the skin, then the priest shall pronounce him unclean: it is a leprosy.

9 ¶ When the plague of leprosy is in a man, then he shall be brought unto the priest;

10 [d] And the priest shall see him: and behold, if the rising be white in the skin, and it have turned the hair white, and there be † quick raw flesh in the rising;

11 It is an old leprosy in the skin of his flesh, and the priest shall pronounce him unclean, and shall not shut him up: for he is unclean.

12 And if a leprosy break out abroad in the skin, and the leprosy cover all the skin of him that hath the plague from his head even to his foot, wheresoever the priest looketh;

13 Then the priest shall consider: and behold, if the leprosy have covered all his flesh, he shall pronounce him clean that hath the plague: it is all turned white: he is clean.

14 But when raw flesh appeareth in him, he shall be unclean.

15 And the priest shall see the raw flesh, and pronounce him to be unclean: for the raw flesh is unclean: it is a leprosy.

16 Or if the raw flesh turn again, and be changed into white, he shall come unto the priest;

17 And the priest shall see him: and behold, if the plague be turned into white; then the priest shall pronounce him clean that hath the plague: he is clean.

18 ¶ The flesh also, in which, even in the skin thereof, was a [c] boil, and is healed,

19 And in the place of the boil there be a white rising, or a bright spot, white, and somewhat reddish, and it be shewed to the priest;

20 And if, when the priest seeth it, behold, it be in sight lower than the skin, and the hair thereof be turned white; the priest shall pronounce him unclean: it is a plague of leprosy broken out of the boil.

21 But if the priest look on it, and behold, there be no white hairs therein, and if it be not lower than the skin, but be somewhat dark; then the priest shall shut him up seven days:

22 And if it spread much abroad in the skin, then the priest shall pronounce him unclean: it is a plague.

23 But if the bright spot stay in his place, and spread not, it is a burning boil; and the priest shall pronounce him clean.

24 ¶ Or if there be any flesh, in the skin whereof there is † a hot burning, and the quick flesh that burneth have a white bright spot, somewhat reddish, or white;

25 Then the priest shall look upon it: and behold, if the hair in the bright spot be turned white, and it be in sight deeper than the skin; it is a leprosy broken out of the burning: wherefore the priest shall pronounce him unclean: it is the plague of leprosy.

26 But if the priest look on it, and behold, there be no white hair in the bright spot, and it be no lower than the other skin, but be somewhat dark; then the priest shall shut him up seven days:

27 And the priest shall look upon him the seventh day: and if it be spread much abroad in the skin, then the priest shall pronounce him unclean: it is the plague of leprosy.

28 And if the bright spot stay in his place, and spread not in the skin, but it be somewhat dark; it is a rising of the burning, and the priest shall pronounce him clean: for it is an inflammation of the burning.

29 ¶ If a man or woman have a plague upon the head or the beard;

30 Then the priest shall see the plague: and behold, if it be in sight deeper than the skin, and there be in it a yellow thin hair; then the priest shall pronounce him unclean: it is a dry scall, even a leprosy upon the head or beard.

31 And if the priest look on the plague of the scall, and behold, it be not in sight deeper than the skin, and that there is no black hair in it; then the priest shall shut up him that hath the plague of the scall seven days:

32 And in the seventh day the priest shall look on the plague: and behold, if the scall spread not, and there be in it no yellow hair, and the scall be not in sight deeper than the skin;

33 He shall be shaven, but the scall shall he not shave; and the priest shall shut up him that hath the scall seven days more:

34 And in the seventh day the priest shall look on the scall: and behold, if the scall be not spread in the skin, nor be in sight deeper than the skin; then the priest shall pronounce him clean: and he shall wash his clothes, and be clean.

35 But if the scall spread much in the skin after his cleansing;

36 Then the priest shall look on him: and behold, if the scall be spread in the skin, the priest shall not seek for yellow hair; he is unclean.

37 But if the scall be in his sight at a stay, and that there is black hair grown up therein; the scall is healed, he is clean: and the priest shall pronounce him clean.

38 ¶ If a man also or a woman have in the skin of their flesh bright spots, even white bright spots;

39 Then the priest shall look: and behold, if the bright spots in the skin of their flesh be darkish white; it is a freckled spot that groweth in the skin; he is clean.

40 And the man whose † hair is fallen off his head, he is bald; yet is he clean.

41 And he that hath his hair fallen off from the part of his head toward his face, he is forehead-bald; yet is he clean.

42 And if there be in the bald head, or bald forehead, a white reddish sore; it is a leprosy sprung up in his bald head, or his bald forehead.

43 Then the priest shall look upon it: and behold, if the rising of the sore be white reddish in his bald head, or in his bald forehead, as the leprosy appeareth in the skin of the flesh;

44 He is a leprous man, he is unclean: the priest shall pronounce him utterly unclean; his plague is in his head.

45 And the leper in whom the plague is, his clothes shall be rent, and his head bare, and he shall [f] put a covering upon his upper lip, and shall cry, [g] Unclean, unclean.

46 All the days wherein the plague shall be in him he shall be defiled; he is unclean: he shall dwell alone, [h] without the camp shall his habitation be.

47 ¶ The garment also that the plague of leprosy is in, whether it be a woollen garment, or a linen garment;

48 Whether it be in the warp, or woof, of linen, or of woollen: whether in a skin, or in any † thing made of skin:

49 And if the plague be greenish or reddish in the garment, or in the skin, either in the warp, or in the woof, or in any † thing of skin; it is a plague of leprosy, and shall be shewed unto the priest:

50 And the priest shall look upon the plague, and shut up it that hath the plague seven days:

51 And he shall look on the plague on the seventh day: if the plague be spread in the garment, either in the warp, or in the woof, or in a skin, or in any work that is made of skin; the plague is [i] a fretting leprosy; it is unclean.

52 He shall therefore burn that garment, whether warp or woof, in woollen or in linen, or any thing of skin, wherein the plague is: for it is a fretting leprosy; it shall be burnt in the fire.

CHAP. XIV.

1 The rites and sacrifices in cleansing of the leper. 37 The signs of leprosy in a house.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 This shall be the law of the leper in the day of his cleansing: He [a]shall be brought unto the priest:

3 And the priest shall go forth out of the camp: and the priest shall look, and behold, if the plague of leprosy be healed in the leper;

4 Then shall the priest command to take for him that is to be cleansed two ‖birds alive and clean, and [b]cedar-wood, and [c]scarlet and [d]hyssop.

5 And the priest shall command that one of the birds be killed in an earthen vessel, over running water.

6 As for the living bird, he shall take it, and the cedar-wood, and the scarlet, and the hyssop, and shall dip them, and the living bird, in the blood of the bird that was killed over the running water.

7 And he shall [e]sprinkle upon him that is to be cleansed from the leprosy, [f]seven times, and shall pronounce him clean, and shall let the living bird loose †into the open field.

8 And he that is to be cleansed [g]shall wash his clothes, and shave off all his hair, [h]and wash himself in water, that he may be clean: and after that he shall come into the camp, and [i]shall tarry abroad out of his tent seven days.

9 But it shall be on the seventh day, that he shall shave all his hair off his head, and his beard, and his eye-brows, even all his hair he shall shave off; and he shall wash his clothes, also he shall wash his flesh in water, and he shall be clean.

10 And on the eighth day [k]he shall take two he-lambs without blemish, and one ewe-lamb †of the first year without blemish, and three tenth-deals of fine flour for [l]a meat-offering, mingled with oil, and one log of oil.

11 And the priest that maketh him clean, shall present the man that is to be made clean, and those things, before the LORD, at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

12 And the priest shall take one he-lamb, and [m]offer him for a trespass-offering, and the log of oil, and [n]wave them for a wave-offering before the LORD.

13 And he shall slay the lamb [o]in the place where he shall kill the sin-offering and the burnt-offering, in the holy place: for [p]as the sin-offering is the priest's, so is the trespass-offering: [q]it is most holy

14 And the priest shall take some of the blood of the trespass-offering, and the priest shall put it [r]upon the tip of the right ear of him that is to be cleansed, and upon the thumb of his right hand, and upon the great toe of his right foot.

15 And the priest shall take some of the log of oil, and pour it into the palm of his own left hand:

16 And the priest shall dip his right finger in the oil that is in his left hand, and shall sprinkle of the oil with his finger seven times before the LORD.

17 And of the rest of the oil that is in his hand, shall the priest put upon the tip of the right ear of him that is to be cleansed, and upon the thumb of his right hand, and upon the great toe of his right foot, upon the blood of the trespass-offering.

18 And the remnant of the oil that is in the priest's hand he shall pour upon the head of him that is to be cleansed: [s]and the priest shall make an atonement for him before the LORD.

19 And the priest shall offer [t]the sin-offering, and make an atonement for him that is to be cleansed from his uncleanness; and afterward he shall kill the burnt-offering.

20 And the priest shall offer the burnt-offering, and the meat-offering upon the altar: and the priest shall make an atonement for him, and he shall be clean.

21 And [u]if he be poor, and †cannot get so much; then he shall take one lamb for a trespass-offering †to be waved, and make an atonement for him, and one tenth-deal of fine flour mingled with oil for a meat-offering, and a log of oil;

22 [w]And two turtle-doves, or two young pigeons, such as he is able to get; and the one shall be a sin-offering, and the other a burnt-offering.

23 [x]And he shall bring them on the eighth day for his cleansing unto the priest, unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, before the LORD.

24 [y]And the priest shall take the lamb of the trespass-offering, and the log of oil, and the priest shall wave them for a wave-offering before the LORD.

25 And he shall kill the lamb of the trespass-offering, [z]and the priest shall take some of the blood of the trespass-offering, and put it upon the tip of the right ear of him that is to be cleansed, and upon the thumb of his right hand, and upon the great toe of his right foot.

26 And the priest shall pour of the oil into the palm of his own left hand.

27 And the priest shall sprinkle with his right finger some of the oil that is in his left hand seven times before the LORD:

28 And the priest shall put of the oil that is in his hand, upon the tip of the right ear of him that is to be cleansed, and upon the thumb of his right hand, and upon the great toe of his right foot, upon the place of the blood of the trespass-offering.

29 And the rest of the oil that is in the priest's hand, he shall put upon the head of him that is to be cleansed, to make an atonement for him before the LORD

33 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, saying,
34 [c] When ye be come into the land of Canaan, which I give to you for a possession, and I put the plague of leprosy in a house of the land of your possession;
35 And he that owneth the house shall come and tell the priest, saying, It seemeth to me there is as it were [d] a plague in the house:

47 And he that lieth in the house shall wash his clothes: and he that eateth in the house shall wash his clothes.
48 And if the priest † shall come in, and look upon it, and behold, the plague hath not spread in the house, after the house was plastered: then the priest shall pronounce the house clean, because the plague is healed.

1 The uncleanness of men in their issues. 19 The uncleanness of women in their issues.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses and to Aaron, saying,
2 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, [a] When any man hath a ‖ running issue out of his flesh, because of his issue, he is unclean.
3 And this shall be his uncleanness in his issue: whether his flesh run with his issue, or his flesh be stopped from his issue, it is his uncleanness.
4 Every bed whereon he lieth that hath the issue, is unclean: and every † thing whereon he sitteth, shall be unclean.
5 And whosoever toucheth his bed, shall wash his clothes, [b] and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.
6 And he that sitteth on any thing whereon he sat that hath the issue, shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.
7 And he that toucheth the flesh of him that hath the issue, shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.
8 And if he that hath the issue spit upon him that is clean; then he shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.
9 And what saddle soever he rideth upon that hath the issue, shall be unclean.
10 And whosoever toucheth any thing that was under him, shall be unclean until the even: and he that beareth any of those things, shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.
11 And whomsoever he toucheth that hath the issue (and hath not rinsed his hands in water) he shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.
12 And the [c] vessel of earth that he toucheth which hath the issue, shall be broken: and every vessel of wood shall be rinsed in water.
13 And when he that hath an issue is cleansed of his issue; then [d] he shall number to himself seven days for his cleansing, and wash his clothes, and bathe his flesh in running water, and shall be clean.
14 And on the eighth day he shall take to him [e] two turtle-doves, or two young pigeons, and come before the LORD, unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, and give them unto the priest:
15 And the priest shall offer them, [f] the one for a sin-offering, and the other for a burnt-offering; [g] and the priest shall make an atonement for him before the LORD for his issue.

16 And [h]if any man's seed of copulation go out from him, then he shall wash all his flesh in water, and be unclean until the even.

17 And every garment, and every skin whereon is the seed of copulation, shall be washed with water, and be unclean until the even.

18 The woman also with whom man shall lie with seed of copulation, they shall both bathe themselves in water, and [i]be unclean until the even.

19 ¶And [k]if a woman have an issue, and her issue in her flesh be blood, she shall be †put apart seven days: and whosoever toucheth her shall be unclean until the even.

20 And every thing that she lieth upon in her separation shall be unclean: every thing also that she sitteth upon shall be unclean.

21 And whosoever toucheth her bed shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.

22 And whosoever toucheth any thing that she sat upon shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.

23 And if it be on her bed, or on any thing whereon she sitteth, when he toucheth it he shall be unclean until the even.

24 And [l]if any man lie with her at all, and her flowers be upon him, he shall be unclean seven days: and all the bed whereon he lieth shall be unclean.

25 And if [m]a woman have an issue of her blood many days out of the time of her separation, or if it run beyond the time of her separation; all the days of the issue of her uncleanness shall be as the days of her separation; she shall be unclean.

26 Every bed whereon she lieth all the days of her issue shall be unto her as the bed of her separation: and whatsoever she sitteth upon shall be unclean, as the uncleanness of her separation.

27 And whosoever toucheth those things shall be unclean, and shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.

28 But [n]if she be cleansed of her issue, then she shall number to herself seven days, and after that she shall be clean.

29 And on the eighth day she shall take unto her two turtles, or two young pigeons, and bring them unto the priest, to the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

30 And the priest shall offer the one for a sin-offering, and the other for a burnt-offering; and the priest shall make an atonement for her before the LORD for the issue of her uncleanness.

31 Thus shall ye [o]separate the children of Israel from their uncleanness: that they die not in their uncleanness, when they [p]defile my tabernacle that is among them.

32 [q]This is the law of him that hath an issue, [r]and of him whose seed goeth from him, and is defiled therewith;

33 [s]And of her that is sick of her flowers, and of him that hath an issue, of the man, [t]and of the woman, [u]and of him that lieth with her that is unclean.

CHAP. XVI.

1 How the high priest must enter into the holy place. 20 The scape-goat. 29 The yearly feast of the expiations.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses after [a]the death of the two sons of Aaron, when they offered before the LORD, and died:

2 And the LORD said unto Moses, Speak unto Aaron thy brother, that he [b]come not at all times into the holy place within the vail, before the mercy-seat which is upon the ark; that he die not: for [c]I will appear in the cloud upon the mercy-seat.

3 Thus shall Aaron [d]come into the holy place: [e]with a young bullock for a sin-offering, and a ram for a burnt-offering.

4 He shall put on [f]the holy linen coat, and he shall have the linen breeches upon his flesh, and shall be girded with a linen girdle, and with the linen mitre shall he be attired: these are holy garments; therefore [g]shall he wash his flesh in water, and so put them on.

5 And he shall take of [h]the congregation of the children of Israel two kids of the goats for a sin-offering, and one ram for a burnt-offering.

6 And Aaron shall offer his bullock of the sin-offering, which is for himself, and [i]make an atonement for himself, and for his house.

7 And he shall take the two goats, and present them before the LORD at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

8 And Aaron shall cast lots upon the two goats; one lot for the LORD, and the other lot for the †scape-goat.

9 And Aaron shall bring the goat upon which the LORD's lot †fell, and offer him for a sin-offering.

10 But the goat on which the lot fell to be the scape-goat, shall be presented alive before the LORD, to make [k]an atonement with him, and to let him go for a scape-goat into the wilderness.

11 And Aaron shall bring the bullock of the sin-offering, which is for himself, and shall make an atonement for himself, and for his house, and shall kill the bullock of the sin-offering which is for himself:

12 And he shall take [l]a censer full of burning coals of fire from off the altar before the LORD, and his hands full of [m]sweet incense beaten small, and bring it within the vail:

13 [n]And he shall put the incense upon the fire before the LORD, that the cloud of the incense may cover the [o]mercy-seat that is upon the testimony, that he die not.

14 And [p]he shall take of the blood of the bullock, and [q]sprinkle it with his finger upon the mercy-seat eastward: and before the mercy-seat shall he sprinkle of the blood with his finger seven times.

15 ¶[r]Then shall he kill the goat of the sin-offering that is for the people, and bring his blood [s]within the vail, and do with that blood as he did with the blood of the bullock, and sprinkle it upon the mercy-seat, and before the mercy-seat:

16 And he shall [t]make an atonement for the holy place, because of the uncleanness of the children of Israel, and because of their transgressions in all their sins: and so shall he do for the tabernacle of the congregation that †remaineth among them in the midst of their uncleanness.

17 [u]And there shall be no man in the tabernacle of the congregation when he goeth in to make an atonement in the holy place, until he come out, and have made an atonement for himself, and for his household, and for all the congregation of Israel.

18 And he shall go out unto the altar that is before the LORD, and [x]make an atonement for it; and shall take of the blood of the bullock, and of the blood of the goat, and put it upon the horns of the altar round about.

19 And he shall sprinkle of the blood upon it with his finger seven times, and cleanse it, and [y] hallow it from the uncleanness of the children of Israel.

20 ¶ And when he hath made an end of [z] reconciling the holy place, and the tabernacle of the congregation, and the altar, he shall bring the live goat:

21 And Aaron shall lay both his hands upon the head of the live goat, and confess over him all the iniquities of the children of Israel, and all their transgressions in all their sins, [a] putting them upon the head of the goat, and shall send him away by the hand of † a fit man into the wilderness:

22 And the goat shall [b] bear upon him all their iniquities unto a land † not inhabited: and he shall let go the goat in the wilderness.

23 And Aaron shall come into the tabernacle of the congregation, [c] and shall put off the linen garments which he put on when he went into the holy place, and shall leave them there:

24 And he shall wash his flesh with water in the holy place, and put on his garments, and come forth, [d] and offer his burnt-offering, and the burnt-offering of the people, and make an atonement for himself, and for the people.

25 And [e] the fat of the sin-offering shall he burn upon the altar.

26 And he that let go the goat for the scape-goat shall wash his clothes, [f] and bathe his flesh in water, and afterward come into the camp.

27 [g] And the bullock for the sin-offering, and the goat for the sin-offering, whose blood was brought in to make atonement in the holy place, shall one carry forth without the camp; and they shall burn in the fire their skins, and their flesh, and their dung.

28 And he that burneth them shall wash his clothes, and bathe his flesh in water, and afterward he shall come into the camp.

29 ¶ And this shall be a statute for ever unto you: that [h] in the seventh month, on the tenth day of the month, ye shall afflict your souls, and do no work at all, whether it be one of your own country, or a stranger that sojourneth among you:

30 For on that day shall the priest make an atonement for you, to [i] cleanse you, that ye may be clean from all your sins before the LORD.

31 [k] It shall be a sabbath of rest unto you, and ye shall afflict your souls by a statute for ever.

32 [l] And the priest whom he shall anoint, and whom he shall † [m] consecrate to minister in the priest's office in his father's stead, shall make the atonement, and [n] shall put on the linen clothes, even the holy garments:

33 And [o] he shall make an atonement for the holy sanctuary, and he shall make an atonement for the tabernacle of the congregation, and for the altar: and he shall make an atonement for the priests, and for all the people of the congregation.

34 [p] And this shall be an everlasting statute unto you, to make an atonement for the children of Israel for all their sins [q] once a year. And he did as the LORD commanded Moses.

CHAP. XVII.

1 The blood of all slain beasts must be offered to the Lord. 7 They must not offer to devils. 10 All eating of blood is forbidden.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto Aaron, and unto his sons, and unto all the children of Israel, and say unto them, This is the thing which the LORD hath commanded, saying,

3 What man soever there be of the house of Israel, [a] that killeth an ox, or lamb, or goat in the camp, or that killeth it out of the camp,

4 [b] And bringeth it not unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, to offer an offering unto the LORD before the tabernacle of the LORD: blood shall be [c] imputed unto that man, he hath shed blood; and that man [d] shall be cut off from among his people:

5 To the end that the children of Israel may bring their sacrifices [e] which they offer in the open field, even that they may bring them unto the LORD, unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, unto the priest, and offer them for peace-offerings unto the LORD.

6 And the priest [f] shall sprinkle the blood upon the altar of the LORD at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, and [g] burn the fat for a sweet savour unto the LORD.

7 And they shall no more offer their sacrifices [h] unto devils, after whom they [i] have gone a whoring: This shall be a statute for ever unto them throughout their generations.

8 ¶ And thou shalt say unto them, Whatsoever man there be of the house of Israel, or of the strangers which sojourn among you, [k] that offereth a burnt-offering or sacrifice,

9 And [l] bringeth it not unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, to offer it unto the LORD; even that man shall be cut off from among his people.

10 ¶ [m] And whatsoever man there be of the house of Israel, or of the strangers that sojourn among you, that eateth any manner of blood; [n] I will even set my face against that soul that eateth blood, and will cut him off from among his people.

11 [o] For the life of the flesh is in the blood; and I have given it to you upon the altar, [p] to make an atonement for your souls: for [q] it is the blood that maketh an atonement for the soul.

12 Therefore I said unto the children of Israel, No soul of you shall eat blood, neither shall any stranger that sojourneth among you eat blood.

13 And whatsoever man there be of the children of Israel, or of the strangers that sojourn among you, † which [r] hunteth and catcheth any beast or fowl that may be eaten; he shall even [s] pour out the blood thereof, and [t] cover it with dust.

14 [u] For it is the life of all flesh, the blood of it is for the life thereof: therefore I said unto the children of Israel, Ye shall eat the blood of no manner of flesh; for the life of all flesh is the blood thereof: whosoever eateth it shall be cut off.

15 [x] And every soul that eateth † that which died of itself, or that which was torn with beasts, (whether it be one of your own country, or a stranger,) [y] he shall both wash his clothes, [z] and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even: then shall he be clean.

16 But if he wash them not, nor bathe his flesh; then [a] he shall bear his iniquity.

land of Canaan whither I bring you, shall ye not do: neither shall ye walk in their ordinances.

4 [d]Ye shall do my judgments, and keep mine ordinances, to walk therein: I am the LORD your God.

5 Ye shall therefore keep my statutes and my judgments: [e]which if a man do, he shall live in them: [f]I am the LORD.

6 ¶None of you shall approach to any that is †near of kin to him, to uncover their nakedness: I am the LORD.

7 [g]The nakedness of thy father, or the nakedness of thy mother, shalt thou not uncover: she is thy mother; thou shalt not uncover her nakedness.

8 [h]The nakedness of thy father's wife shalt thou not uncover: it is thy father's nakedness.

9 [i]The nakedness of thy sister, the daughter of thy father, or daughter of thy mother, whether she be born at home, or born abroad, even their nakedness thou shalt not uncover.

10 The nakedness of thy son's daughter, or of thy daughter's daughter, even their nakedness thou shalt not uncover: for theirs is thine own nakedness.

11 The nakedness of thy father's wife's daughter, begotten of thy father, (she is thy sister) thou shalt not uncover her nakedness.

12 [k]Thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy father's sister: she is thy father's near kinswoman.

13 Thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy mother's sister: for she is thy mother's near kinswoman.

14 [l]Thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy father's brother, thou shalt not approach to his wife: she is thine aunt.

15 [m]Thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy daughter-in-law: she is thy son's wife; thou shalt not uncover her nakedness.

16 [n]Thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy brother's wife: it is thy brother's nakedness.

17 [o]Thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of a woman and her daughter, neither shalt thou take her son's daughter, or her daughter's daughter, to uncover her nakedness; for they are her near kinswomen: it is wickedness.

18 Neither shalt thou take ‖a wife to her sister, [p]to vex her, to uncover her nakedness, besides the other in her life-time.

19 [q]Also thou shalt not approach unto a woman to uncover her nakedness, as long as she is put apart for her uncleanness.

20 Moreover, [r]thou shalt not lie carnally with thy neighbour's wife, to defile thyself with her.

21 And thou shalt not let any of thy seed [s]pass through the fire to [t]Molech, neither shalt thou [u]profane the name of thy God: I am the LORD.

22 [x]Thou shalt not lie with mankind, as with womankind: it is abomination.

23 [y]Neither shalt thou lie with any beast to defile thyself therewith: neither shall any woman stand before a beast to lie down thereto: it is [z]confusion.

24 [a]Defile not ye yourselves in any of these things: [b]for in all these the nations are defiled which I cast out before you:

25 And [c]the land is defiled: therefore I do [d]visit the iniquity thereof upon it, and the land itself [e]vomiteth out her inhabitants.

26 [f]Ye shall therefore keep my statutes and my judgments, and shall not commit any of these abominations; neither any of your own nation, nor any stranger that sojourneth among you:

27 (For all these abominations have the men of the land done, which were before you, and the land is defiled;)

28 That [g]the land spue not you out also, when ye defile it, as it spued out the nations that were before you.

29 For whosoever shall commit any of these abominations, even the souls that commit them shall be cut off from among their people.

30 Therefore shall ye keep mine ordinance, [h]that ye commit not any one of these abominable customs, which were committed before you, and that ye [i]defile not yourselves therein: [k]I am the LORD your God.

CHAP. XIX.

A repetition of sundry laws.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto all the congregation of the children of Israel, and say unto them, [a]Ye shall be holy: for I the LORD your God am holy.

3 ¶[b]Ye shall fear every man his mother and his father, and [c]keep my sabbaths: I am the LORD your God.

4 ¶[d]Turn ye not unto idols, [e]nor make to yourselves molten gods: I am the LORD your God.

5 ¶And [f]if ye offer a sacrifice of peace-offerings unto the LORD, ye shall offer it at your own will.

6 It shall be eaten the same day ye offer it, and on the morrow: and if aught remain until the third day, it shall be burnt in the fire.

7 And if it be eaten at all on the third day, it is abominable; it shall not be accepted.

8 Therefore every one that eateth it shall bear his iniquity, because he hath profaned the hallowed thing of the LORD; and that soul shall be cut off from among his people.

9 ¶And [g]when ye reap the harvest of your land, thou shalt not wholly reap the corners of thy field, neither shalt thou gather the gleanings of thy harvest.

10 And thou shalt not glean thy vineyard, neither shalt thou gather every grape of thy vineyard; thou shalt leave them for the poor and stranger: I am the LORD your God.

11 ¶[h]Ye shall not steal, neither deal falsely, [i]neither lie one to another.

12 ¶And ye shall not [k]swear by my name falsely, [l]neither shalt thou profane the name of thy God: I am the LORD.

13 ¶[m]Thou shalt not defraud thy neighbour, neither rob him: [n]the wages of him that is hired shall not abide with thee all night until the morning.

14 ¶Thou shalt not curse the deaf, [o]nor put a stumbling-block before the blind, but shalt [o]fear thy God: I am the LORD.

15 ¶[q]Ye shall do no unrighteousness in judgment; thou shalt not respect the person of the poor, nor honour the person of the mighty: but in righteousness shalt thou judge thy neighbour.

16 ¶[r]Thou shalt not go up and down as a talebearer among thy people; neither shalt thou [s]stand against the blood of thy neighbour; I am the LORD.

17 ¶[t]Thou shalt not hate thy brother in thine heart: [u]thou shalt in any wise rebuke thy neighbour, ‖and not suffer sin upon him.

18 ¶[x]Thou shalt not avenge, nor bear any grudge against the children of thy people, [y]but thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself: I am the LORD.

19 ¶ Ye shall keep my statutes. Thou shalt not let thy cattle gender with a diverse kind: [z] Thou shalt not sow thy field with mingled seed: [a] neither shall a garment mingled of linen and woollen come upon thee.

20 ¶ And whosoever lieth carnally with a woman that is a bond-maid ‖† betrothed to an husband, and not at all redeemed, nor freedom given her; ‖† she shall be scourged: they shall not be put to death, because she was not free.

21 And [b] he shall bring his trespass-offering unto the LORD, unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, even a ram for a trespass-offering.

22 And the priest shall make an atonement for him with the ram of the trespass-offering before the LORD for his sin which he hath done; and the sin which he hath done shall be forgiven him.

23 ¶ And when ye shall come into the land, and shall have planted all manner of trees for food; then ye shall count the fruit thereof as uncircumcised: three years shall it be as uncircumcised unto you: it shall not be eaten of.

24 But in the fourth year all the fruit thereof shall be † holy [c] to praise the LORD withal.

25 And in the fifth year shall ye eat of the fruit thereof, that it may yield unto you the increase thereof: I am the LORD your God.

26 ¶ [d] Ye shall not eat any thing with the blood: [e] neither shall ye use enchantment, nor observe times.

27 [f] Ye shall not round the corners of your heads, neither shalt thou mar the corners of thy beard.

28 Ye shall not [g] make any cuttings in your flesh for the dead, nor print any marks upon you: I am the LORD.

29 ¶ [h] Do not † prostitute thy daughter to cause her to be a whore: lest the land fall to whoredom, and the land become full of wickedness.

30 ¶ [i] Ye shall keep my sabbaths, and [k] reverence my sanctuary: I am the LORD.

31 ¶ [l] Regard not them that have familiar spirits, neither seek after wizards, to be defiled by them: I am the LORD your God.

32 ¶ [m] Thou shalt rise up before the hoary head, and honour the face of the old man, and [n] fear thy God: I am the LORD.

33 ¶ And [o] if a stranger sojourn with thee in your land, ye shall not ‖ vex him.

34 [p] But the stranger that dwelleth with you shall be unto you as one born among you, and [q] thou shalt love him as thyself; for ye were strangers in the land of Egypt: I am the LORD your God.

35 ¶ [r] Ye shall do no unrighteousness in judgment, in mete-yard, in weight, or in measure.

36 [s] Just balances, just † weights, a just ephah, and a just hin shall ye have: I am the LORD your God, which brought you out of the land of Egypt.

37 [t] Therefore shall ye observe all my statutes, and all my judgments, and do them: I am the LORD.

CHAP. XX.

6 Of going to wizards. 7 Of sanctification. 9 Of him that curseth his parents. 10 Of adultery. 11, 14, 17, 19 Of incest. 13 Of sodomy. 15 Of beastiality.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 [a] Again thou shalt say to the children of Israel, [b] Whosoever he be of the children of Israel, or of the strangers that sojourn in Israel, that giveth any of his seed unto Molech, he shall surely be put to death: the people of the land shall stone him with stones.

3 And [c] I will set my face against that man, and will cut him off from among his people; because he hath given of his seed unto Molech, to [d] defile my sanctuary, and [e] to profane my holy name.

4 And if the people of the land do any ways hide their eyes from the man, when he giveth of his seed unto Molech, and [f] kill him not;

5 Then [g] I will set my face against that man, and [h] against his family, and will cut him off, and all that [i] go a whoring after him, to commit whoredom with Molech, from among their people.

6 ¶ And [k] the soul that turneth after such as have familiar spirits, and after wizards, to go a whoring after them, I will even set my face against that soul, and will cut him off from among his people.

7 ¶ [l] Sanctify yourselves therefore and be ye holy: for I am the LORD your God.

8 [m] And ye shall keep my statutes, and do them: [n] I am the LORD which sanctify you.

9 ¶ [o] For every one that curseth his father or his mother, shall be surely put to death: he hath cursed his father or his mother: [p] his blood shall be upon him.

10 ¶ And [q] the man that committeth adultery with another man's wife, even he that committeth adultery with his neighbour's wife, the adulterer and the adulteress shall surely be put to death.

11 [r] And the man that lieth with his father's wife hath uncovered his father's nakedness: both of them shall surely be put to death: their blood shall be upon them.

12 [s] And if a man lie with his daughter-in-law, both of them shall surely be put to death: [t] they have wrought confusion; their blood shall be upon them.

13 [u] If a man also lie with mankind, as he lieth with a woman, both of them have committed an abomination: they shall surely be put to death; their blood shall be upon them.

14 [x] And if a man take a wife and her mother, it is wickedness: they shall be burnt with fire, both he and they: that there be no wickedness among you.

15 [y] And if a man lie with a beast, he shall surely be put to death: and ye shall slay the beast.

16 And if a woman approach unto any beast, and lie down thereto, thou shalt kill the woman and the beast; they shall surely be put to death; their blood shall be upon them.

17 [z] And if a man shall take his sister, his father's daughter, or his mother's daughter, and see her nakedness, and she see his nakedness: it is a wicked thing; and they shall be cut off in the sight of their people: he hath uncovered his sister's nakedness; he shall bear his iniquity.

18 [a] And if a man shall lie with a woman having her sickness, and shall uncover her nakedness; he hath † discovered her fountain, and she hath uncovered the fountain of her blood: and both of them shall be cut off from among their people.

19 [b] And thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy mother's sister, nor of thy father's sister: [c] for he uncovereth his near kin: they shall bear their iniquity.

20 [d] And if a man shall lie with his uncle's wife, he hath uncovered his uncle's nakedness: they shall bear their sin; they shall die childless.

21 [e] And if a man shall take his brother's wife, it is † an unclean thing: he hath uncovered his brother's nakedness; they shall be childless.

CHAP. XXI.

1 Of the priests' mourning. 7, 13 Of their marriages.

AND the LORD said unto Moses, Speak unto the priests the sons of Aaron, and say unto them, [a] There shall none be defiled for the dead, among his people:

2 But for his kin, that is near unto him, that is, for his mother, and for his father, and for his son, and for his daughter, and for his brother,

3 And for his sister a virgin, that is nigh unto him, which hath had no husband: for her may he be defiled.

4 But ‖ he shall not defile himself, being a chief man among his people, to profane himself.

5 [b] They shall not make baldness upon their head, neither shall they shave off the corner of their beard, nor make any cuttings in their flesh.

6 They shall be holy unto their God, and [c] not profane the name of their God: for the offerings of the LORD made by fire, and [d] the bread of their God they do offer: therefore they shall be holy.

7 [e] They shall not take a wife that is a whore, or profane; neither shall they take a woman [f] put away from her husband: for he is holy unto his God.

8 Thou shalt sanctify him therefore, for he offereth the bread of thy God: he shall be holy unto thee: [g] for I the LORD, which sanctify you, am holy.

9 ¶ [h] And the daughter of any priest, if she profane herself by playing the whore, she profaneth her father: she shall be burnt with fire.

10 [i] And he that is the high priest among his brethren, upon whose head the anointing oil was poured, and [k] that is consecrated to put on the garments, [l] shall not uncover his head, nor rend his clothes;

11 Neither shall he [m] go in to any dead body, nor defile himself for his father, or for his mother;

12 [n] Neither shall he go out of the sanctuary, nor profane the sanctuary of his God; for [o] the crown of the anointing oil of his God is upon him: I am the LORD.

13 And [p] he shall take a wife in her virginity.

14 A widow, or a divorced woman, or profane, or an harlot, these shall he not take: but he shall take a virgin of his own people to wife.

15 Neither shall he profane his seed among his people: for [q] I the LORD do sanctify him.

16 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

17 Speak unto Aaron, saying, Whosoever he be of thy seed in their generations that hath any blemish, let him not [r] approach to offer the ‖ bread of his God:

18 For whatsoever man he be that hath a blemish, he shall not approach: a blind man, or a lame, or he that hath a flat nose, or any thing [s] superfluous,

19 Or a man that is broken-footed, or broken-handed,

20 Or crooked-backed, or ‖ a dwarf, or that hath a blemish in his eye, or be scurvy, or scabbed, or [t] hath his stones broken;

21 No man that hath a blemish of the seed of Aaron the priest shall come nigh to [u] offer the offerings of the LORD made by fire; he hath a blemish, he shall not come nigh to offer the bread of his God.

22 He shall eat the bread of his God, both of the [x] most holy, and of the [y] holy.

23 Only he shall not go in unto the vail, nor come nigh unto the altar, because he hath a blemish; that [z] he profane not my sanctuaries: for I the LORD do sanctify them.

24 And Moses told it unto Aaron, and to his sons, and unto all the children of Israel.

CHAP. XXII.

The priests in their uncleanness must abstain from the holy things.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto Aaron and to his sons, that they [a] separate themselves from the holy things of the children of Israel, and that they [b] profane not my holy name in those things which they [c] hallow unto me: I am the LORD.

3 Say unto them, Whosoever he be of all your seed among your generations, that goeth unto the holy things, which the children of Israel hallow unto the LORD, [d] having his uncleanness upon him, that soul shall be cut off from my presence: I am the LORD.

4 What man soever of the seed of Aaron is a leper, or hath [e] a † running issue; he shall not eat of the holy things, [f] until he be clean. And [g] whoso toucheth any thing that is unclean by the dead, or [h] a man whose seed goeth from him;

5 Or [i] whosoever toucheth any creeping thing, whereby he may be made unclean, or [k] a man of whom he may take uncleanness, whatsoever uncleanness he hath:

6 The soul which hath touched any such shall be unclean until the even, and shall not eat of the holy things, unless he [l] wash his flesh with water.

7 And when the sun is down, he shall be clean, and shall afterward eat of the holy things, because [m] it is his food.

8 [n] That which dieth of itself, or is torn with beasts, he shall not eat to defile himself therewith: I am the LORD.

9 They shall therefore keep mine ordinance, [o] lest they bear sin for it, and die therefore, if they profane it: I the LORD do sanctify them.

10 [p] There shall no stranger eat of the holy thing: a sojourner of the priest, or an hired servant, shall not eat of the holy thing.

11 But if the priest buy any soul † with his money, he shall eat of it, and he that is born in his house; [q] they shall eat of his meat.

12 If the priest's daughter also be married unto † a stranger, she may not eat of an offering of the holy things.

16 Or ‖ suffer them [x]to bear the iniquity of trespass, when they eat their holy things: for I the LORD do sanctify them.

17 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

25 Neither [g]from a stranger's hand shall ye offer [h]the bread of your God of any of these; because their [i]corruption is in them, and blemishes be in them: they shall not be accepted for you.

26 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

27 [k]When a bullock, or a sheep, or a goat is brought forth, then it shall be seven days under the dam; and from the eighth day and thenceforth it shall be accepted for an offering made by fire unto the LORD.

28 And whether it be cow, or ‖ ewe, ye shall not kill it [l]and her young both in one day.

29 And when ye will [m]offer a sacrifice of thanksgiving unto the LORD, offer it at your own will.

30 On the same day it shall be eaten up, ye shall leave [n]none of it until the morrow: I am the LORD.

31 [o]Therefore shall ye keep my commandments, and do them: I am the LORD.

32 [p]Neither shall ye profane my holy name; but [q]I will be hallowed among the children of Israel: I am the LORD which [r]hallow you,

33 [s]That brought you out of the land of Egypt, to be your God: I am the LORD.

CHAP. XXIII.

1 The feasts of the Lord. 3 The sabbath. 26 The day of atonement. 33 The feast of tabernacles.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, Concerning [a]the feasts of the LORD, which ye shall [b]proclaim to be holy convocations, even these are my feasts.

3 [c]Six days shall work be done; but the seventh day is the sabbath of rest, an holy convocation: ye shall do no work therein: it is the sabbath of the LORD in all your dwellings.

4 ¶ [d]These are the feasts of the LORD, even holy convocations, which ye shall proclaim in their seasons.

5 [e]In the fourteenth day of the first month at even is the LORD's passover.

6 And on the fifteenth day of the same month is the feast of unleavened bread unto the LORD: seven days ye must eat unleavened bread.

7 [f]In the first day ye shall have an holy convocation: ye shall do no servile work therein.

8 But ye shall offer an offering made by fire unto the LORD seven days: in the seventh day is an holy convocation, ye shall do no servile work therein.

9 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

10 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, [g]When ye be come into the land which I give unto you, and shall reap the harvest thereof, then ye shall bring a ‖ † sheaf of [h]the first-fruits of your harvest unto the priest:

11 And he shall wave the sheaf before the LORD, to be accepted for you: on the morrow after the sabbath the priest shall wave it.

12 And ye shall offer that day when ye wave the sheaf, an he-lamb without blemish of the first year for a burnt-offering unto the LORD.

13 [k]And the meat-offering thereof shall be two tenth-deals of fine flour mingled with oil, an offering made by fire unto the LORD for a sweet savour: and the drink-offering thereof shall be of wine, the fourth part of an hin.

14 And ye shall eat neither bread, nor parched corn, nor green ears, until the self-same day that ye have brought an offering unto your God: it shall be a statute for ever throughout your generations in all your dwellings.

15 ¶ And [l]ye shall count unto you from the morrow after the sabbath, from the day that ye brought the sheaf of the wave-offering; seven sabbaths shall be complete:

16 Even unto the morrow after the seventh sabbath shall ye number [m]fifty days; and ye shall offer [n]a new meat-offering unto the LORD.

17 Ye shall bring out of your habitations two wave-loaves of two tenth-deals: they shall be of fine flour, they shall be baken with leaven, they are [o]the first-fruits unto the LORD.

18 And ye shall offer with the bread seven lambs without blemish of the first year, and one young bullock, and two rams: they shall be for a burnt-offering unto the LORD, with their meat-offering, and their drink-offerings, even an offering made by fire of sweet savour unto the LORD.

19 Then ye shall sacrifice [p]one kid of the goats for a sin-offering, and two lambs of the first year for a sacrifice of [q]peace-offerings.

20 And the priest shall wave them with the bread of the first-fruits for a wave-offering before the LORD, with the two lambs: [r]they shall be holy to the LORD for the priest.

21 And ye shall proclaim on the self-same day, that it may be an holy convocation unto you: ye shall do no servile work therein: it shall be a statute for ever in all your dwellings throughout your generations.

22 ¶ And [s]when ye reap the harvest of your land, thou shalt not make clean riddance of the corners of thy field when thou reapest, [t]neither shalt thou gather any gleaning of thy harvest: thou shalt leave them unto the poor, and to the stranger: I am the LORD your God.

23 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

24 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, In the [u]seventh month, in the first day of the month, shall ye have a sabbath, [x]a memorial of blowing of trumpets, an holy convocation.

25 Ye shall do no servile work therein: but ye shall offer an offering made by fire unto the LORD.

26 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

27 [y]Also on the tenth day of this seventh month there shall be a day of atonement; it shall be an holy convocation unto you, and ye shall afflict your souls, and offer an offering made by fire unto the LORD.

28 And ye shall do no work in that same day; for it is a day of atonement, to make an atonement for you before the LORD your God.

29 For whatsoever soul it be that shall not be afflicted in that same day, [z]he shall be cut off from among his people.

30 And whatsoever soul it be that doeth any work in that same day, [a]the same soul will I destroy from among his people.

31 Ye shall do no manner of work: it shall be a statute for ever throughout your generations in all your dwellings.

32 It shall be unto you a sabbath of rest, and ye shall afflict your souls: in the ninth day of the month at even, from even unto even, shall ye †celebrate your sabbath.

33 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

34 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, [b]The fifteenth day of this seventh month shall be the feast of tabernacles for seven days unto the LORD.

35 On the first day shall be an holy convocation: ye shall do no servile work therein.

36 Seven days ye shall offer an offering made by fire unto the LORD; [c]on the eighth day shall be an holy convocation unto you, and ye shall offer an offering made by fire unto the LORD: it is a †[d]solemn assembly; and ye shall do no servile work therein.

37 [e]These are the feasts of the LORD, which ye shall proclaim to be holy convocations, to offer an offering made by fire unto the LORD, a burnt-offering, and a meat-offering, a sacrifice, and drink-offerings, every thing upon his day:

38 [f]Besides the sabbaths of the LORD, and besides your gifts, and besides all your vows, and besides all your free-will-offerings, which ye give unto the LORD.

39 Also in the fifteenth day of the seventh month, when ye have [g]gathered in the fruit of the land, ye shall keep a feast unto the LORD seven days: on the first day shall be a sabbath, and on the eighth day shall be a sabbath.

40 And [h]ye shall take you on the first day the †boughs of goodly trees, branches of palm-trees, and the boughs of thick trees, and willows of the brook; [i]and ye shall rejoice before the LORD your God seven days.

41 [k]And ye shall keep it a feast unto the LORD seven days in the year: it shall be a statute for ever in your generations; ye shall celebrate it in the seventh month.

42 [l]Ye shall dwell in booths seven days; all that are Israelites born shall dwell in booths:

43 [m]That your generations may know that I made the children of Israel to dwell in booths, when I brought them out of the land of Egypt: I am the LORD your God.

44 And Moses [n]declared unto the children of Israel the feasts of the LORD.

CHAP. XXIV.

13 The law of blasphemy. 17 Of murder.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 [a]Command the children of Israel, that they bring unto thee pure oil-olive beaten for the light, †to cause the lamps to burn continually.

3 Without the vail of the testimony, in the tabernacle of the congregation, shall Aaron order it from the evening unto the morning before the LORD continually: it shall be a statute for ever in your generations.

4 He shall order the lamps upon [b]the pure candlestick before the LORD continually.

5 ¶ And thou shalt take fine flour, and bake twelve [c]cakes thereof: two tenth-deals shall be in one cake.

6 And thou shalt set them in two rows, six on a row, [d]upon the pure table before the LORD.

7 And thou shalt put pure frankincense upon each row, that it may be on the bread for a memorial, even an offering made by fire unto the LORD.

8 [e]Every sabbath he shall set it in order before the LORD continually, being taken from the children of Israel by an everlasting covenant.

9 And [f]it shall be Aaron's and his sons'; [g]and they shall eat it in the holy place: for it is most holy unto him of the offerings of the LORD made by fire by a perpetual statute.

10 ¶ And the son of an Israelitish woman, whose father was an Egyptian, went out among the children of Israel; and this son of the Israelitish woman and a man of Israel strove together in the camp;

11 And the Israelitish woman's son [h]blasphemed the name of the LORD, and [i]cursed; and they [k]brought him unto Moses: (and his mother's name was Shelomith, the daughter of Dibri, of the tribe of Dan:)

12 And they [l]put him in ward, †[m]that the mind of the LORD might be shewed them.

13 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

14 Bring forth him that hath cursed without the camp; and let all that heard him [n]lay their hands upon his head, and let all the congregation stone him.

15 And thou shalt speak unto the children of Israel, saying, Whosoever curseth his God [o]shall bear his sin.

16 And he that [p]blasphemeth the name of the LORD, he shall surely be put to death, and all the congregation shall certainly stone him: as well the stranger, as he that is born in the land, when he blasphemeth the name of the LORD, shall be put to death.

17 ¶ [q]And he that †killeth any man shall surely be put to death.

18 [r]And he that killeth a beast shall make it good; †beast for beast.

19 And if a man cause a blemish in his neighbour; as [s]he hath done, so shall it be done unto him:

20 Breach for breach, eye for eye, tooth for tooth: as he hath caused a blemish in a man, so shall it be done to him again.

21 [t]And he that killeth a beast, he shall restore it: [u]and he that killeth a man, he shall be put to death.

22 Ye shall have [x]one manner of law, as well for the stranger, as for one of your own country: for I am the LORD your God.

Obituary.

Elva Rachel Shell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Silas Shell, was born Nov. 27, 1888, and departed this life at her home in Tocsin, Nov. 27, 1894, aged 5 years, 11 months and 29 days. Little Elva while on earth was purely happy because she knew no evil, nor had she made means by sin to be acquainted with misery. She arrived not at the mischief of being wise, nor endured evils to come by forseeing them. Her earthly home was happy; her loving parents had bestowed upon her all that parents could bestow. But God has called her home. Elva, in her loving smiles and pureness, by the hand of the All Wise Creator got eternity without a burden, and exchanged but one heaven for another where all is joy, peace and happiness, and sickness and death shall not come.

Funeral services were held at the U. B. church conducted by Rev. Smith, and the senseless clay was lain to rest in Murray cemetery.

Lovely Elva, how brief thy stay,
Short and hasty was thy day;
Ending soon thy journey here,
Pain and grief no more to bear.

Hard it is from thee to part,
For it rends the aching heart;
But an heir of glory's gone,
Let the will of God be done.

This little lamb I take, said He,
And lay her in my breast;
Protection she shall find in me,
In me be ever blest.

His words the happy parents hear,
And shout with joy divine,
O, Savior, all we have and are
Shall be forever thine.

C. B.

We, the pupils of Tocsin school, District No. 10, and schoolmates of dear Elva do sadly deplore the demise of our loving playmate, Elva Shell. Therefore be it

Resolved, that we sympathetically extend to the bereaved parents, sisters and relatives our most heartfelt sympathy in this their hour of bereavement.

The report referred to is an exhaustive review of public land and Indian affairs. The president adds: I am convinced that the proper solution of the Indian problem and the success of every step taken in that direction depend to a very large extent upon the intelligence and honesty of the reservation agents and the interest they have in their work. An agent fitted for his place can do much toward preparing the Indians under his charge for citizenship and allotment of their lands, and his advice as to any matter concerning their welfare will not mislead. An unfit agent will make no effort to advance the Indians on his reservation toward civilization or preparation for allotment of lands in severalty, and his opinion as to their condition is this

CHAP. XXV.

85 Compassion of the poor. 39 The usage of bondmen. 47 The redemption of servants.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses in mount Sinai, saying,

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, When ye come into the land which I give you, then shall the land †keep [a] a sabbath unto the LORD.

3 Six years thou shalt sow thy field, and six years thou shalt prune thy vineyard, and gather in the fruit thereof;

4 But in the seventh year shall be a sabbath of rest unto the land, a sabbath for the LORD: thou shalt neither sow thy field, nor prune thy vineyard.

5 [b] That which groweth of its own accord of thy harvest, thou shalt not reap, neither gather the grapes †of thy vine undressed: for it is a year of rest unto the land.

6 And the sabbath of the land shall be meat for you; for thee, and for thy servant, and for thy maid, and for thy hired servant, and for thy stranger that sojourneth with thee,

7 And for thy cattle, and for the beast that are in thy land, shall all the increase thereof be meat.

8 And thou shalt number seven sabbaths of years unto thee, seven times seven years; and the space of the seven sabbaths of years shall be unto thee forty and nine years.

9 Then shalt thou cause the trumpet †of the jubilee to sound, on the tenth day of the seventh month, [c] in the day of atonement shall ye make the trumpet sound throughout all your land.

10 And ye shall hallow the fiftieth year, and [d] proclaim liberty throughout all the land unto all the inhabitants thereof: it shall be a jubilee unto you; [e] and ye shall return every man unto his possession, and ye shall return every man unto his family.

11 A jubilee shall that fiftieth year be unto you: [f] ye shall not sow, neither reap that which groweth of itself in it, nor gather the grapes in it of thy vine undressed.

12 For it is the jubilee; it shall be holy unto you: [g] ye shall eat the increase thereof out of the field.

13 [h] In the year of this jubilee ye shall return every man unto his possession.

14 And if thou sell aught unto thy neighbour, or buyest aught of thy neighbour's hand, [i] ye shall not oppress one another:

15 [k] According to the number of years after the jubilee, thou shalt buy of thy neighbour, and according unto the number of years of the fruits he shall sell unto thee:

16 According to the multitude of years thou shalt increase the price thereof, and according to the fewness of years thou shalt diminish the price of it: for according to the number of the years of the fruits doth he sell unto thee.

17 [l] Ye shall not therefore oppress one another; [m] but thou shalt fear thy God: for I am the LORD your God.

18 ¶ [n] Wherefore ye shall do my statutes, and keep my judgments, and do them; [o] and ye shall dwell in the land in safety.

19 And the land shall yield her fruit, and [p] ye shall eat your fill, and dwell therein in safety.

20 And if ye shall say, [q] What shall we eat the seventh year? behold, [r] we shall not sow nor gather in our increase:

21 Then I will [s] command my blessing upon you in the sixth year, and it shall bring forth fruit for three years.

22 [t] And ye shall sow the eighth year, and eat yet of [u] old fruit until the ninth year; until her fruits come in ye shall eat of the old store.

23 ¶ The land shall not be sold ‖†for ever; for [x] the land is mine, for ye are [y] strangers and sojourners with me.

24 And in all the land of your possession ye shall grant a redemption for the land.

25 ¶ [z] If thy brother be waxen poor, and hath sold away some of his possession, and if [a] any of his kin come to redeem it, then shall he redeem that which his brother sold.

26 And if the man have none to redeem it, and †himself be able to redeem it;

27 Then [b] let him count the years of the sale thereof, and restore the overplus unto the man to whom he sold it; that he may return unto his possession.

28 But if he be not able to restore it to him, then that which is sold shall remain in the hand of him that hath bought it until the year of jubilee: [c] and in the jubilee it shall go out, and he shall return unto his possession.

29 And if a man sell a dwelling-house in a walled city, then he may redeem it within a whole year after it is sold: within a full year may he redeem it.

30 And if it be not redeemed within the space of a full year, then the house that is in the walled city shall be established for ever to him that bought it, throughout his generations; it shall not go out in the jubilee.

31 But the houses of the villages which have no walls round about them, shall be counted as the fields of the country: †they may be redeemed, and they shall go out in the jubilee.

32 Notwithstanding [d] the cities of the Levites, and the houses of the cities of their possession, may the Levites redeem at any time.

33 And if ‖a man purchase of the Levites, then the house that was sold, and the city of his possession [e] shall go out in the year of jubilee; for the houses of the cities of the Levites are their possession among the children of Israel.

34 But [f] the field of the suburbs of their cities may not be sold, for it is their perpetual possession.

35 ¶ And if thy brother be waxen poor, and †fallen in decay with thee; then thou shalt †[g] relieve him: yea, though he be a stranger, or a sojourner; that he may live with thee.

50 And he shall reckon with him that bought him, from the year that he was sold to him, unto the year of jubilee: and the price of his sale shall be according unto the number of years, [a]according to the time of an hired servant shall it be with him.

51 If there be yet many years behind, according unto them he shall give again the price of his redemption out of the money that he was bought for.

52 And if there remain but few years unto the year of jubilee, then he shall count with him, and according unto his years shall he give him again the price of his redemption.

53 And as a yearly hired servant shall he be with him: and the other shall not rule with rigour over him in thy sight.

54 And if he be not redeemed ‖in these years, then [b]he shall go out in the year of jubilee, both he, and his children with him.

6 And [i]I will give peace in the land, and [k]ye shall lie down, and none shall make you afraid: and I will †rid [l]evil beasts out of the land, neither shall [m]the sword go through your land.

7 And ye shall chase your enemies, and they shall fall before you by the sword.

8 And [n]five of you shall chase an hundred, and an hundred of you shall put ten thousand to flight: and your enemies shall fall before you by the sword.

9 For I will [o]have respect unto you, and [p]make you fruitful, and multiply you, and establish my covenant with you.

10 And ye shall eat [q]old store, and bring forth the old because of the new.

11 [r]And I will set my tabernacle among you: and my soul shall not [s]abhor you.

14 ¶[y]But if ye will not hearken unto me, and will not do all these commandments;

15 And if ye shall [z]despise my statutes, or if your soul abhor my judgments, so that ye will not do all my commandments, but that ye break my covenant:

16 I also will do this unto you, I will even appoint †over you [a]terror, [b]consumption, and the burning ague, that shall [c]consume the eyes, and cause sorrow of heart: and [d]ye shall sow your seed in vain; for your enemies shall eat it.

17 And [e]I will set my face against you, and [f]ye shall be slain before your enemies: [g]they that hate you shall reign over you, and [h]ye shall flee when none pursueth you.

18 And if ye will not yet for all this hearken unto me, then I will punish you [i]seven times more for your sins.

19 And I will [k]break the pride of your power; and I [l]will make your heaven as iron, and your earth as brass:

20 And your [m]strength shall be spent in vain: for [n]your land shall not yield her increase, neither shall the trees of the land yield their fruits.

21 ¶And if ye walk ‖contrary unto me, and will not hearken unto me, I will bring seven times more plagues upon you according to your sins.

29 [a]And ye shall eat the flesh of your sons, and the flesh of your daughters shall ye eat.

30 And [b]I will destroy your high places and cut down your images, and [c]cast your carcasses upon the carcasses of your idols, and my soul shall [d]abhor you.

31 [e]And I will make your cities waste, and [f]bring your sanctuaries unto desolation, and I will not smell the savour of your sweet odours.

32 [g]And I will bring the land into desolation: and your enemies which dwell therein shall be [h]astonished at it.

33 And [i]I will scatter you among the heathen, and will draw out a sword after you: and your land shall be desolate and your cities waste.

34 [k]Then shall the land enjoy her sabbaths, as long as it lieth desolate, and ye be in your enemies' land; even then shall the land rest, and enjoy her sabbaths.

35 As long as it lieth desolate it shall rest; because it did not rest in your [l]sabbaths, when ye dwelt upon it.

36 And upon them that are left alive of you, [m]I will send a faintness into their hearts in the lands of their enemies; and [n]the sound of a †shaken leaf shall chase them; and they shall flee, as fleeing from a sword; and they shall fall, when none pursueth.

39 And they that are left of you [q]shall pine away in their iniquity in your enemies' lands; and also in the iniquities of their fathers shall they pine away with them.

40 [r]If they shall confess their iniquity, and the iniquity of their fathers, with their trespass which they trespassed against me, and that also they have walked contrary unto me;

41 And that I also have walked contrary unto them, and have brought them into the land of their enemies; if then their [s]uncircumcised hearts be [t]humbled, and they then accept of the punishment of their iniquity:

42 Then will I [u]remember my covenant with Jacob, and also my covenant with Isaac, and also my covenant with Abraham will I remember; and I will [x]remember the land.

43 [y]The land also shall be left of them, and shall enjoy her sabbaths, while she lieth desolate without them: and they shall accept of the punishment of their iniquity; because, even because they [z]despised my judgments, and because their soul abhorred my statutes.

44 And yet for all that, when they be in the land of their enemies, [a]I will not cast them away, neither will I abhor them, to destroy them utterly, and to break my covenant with them: for I am the LORD their God.

45 But I will [b]for their sakes remember the covenant of their ancestors, [c]whom I brought forth out of the land of Egypt [d]in the sight of the heathen, that I might be their God: I am the LORD.

46 [e]These are the statutes, and judgments, and laws, which the LORD made between him and the children of Israel [f]in mount Sinai by the hand of Moses.

CHAP. XXVII.

1 He that maketh a singular vow must be the Lord's.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, [a]When a man shall make a singular vow, the persons shall be for the LORD, by thy estimation.

3 And thy estimation shall be, of the male from twenty years old even unto sixty years old; even thy estimation shall be fifty shekels of silver, [b]after the shekel of the sanctuary.

4 And if it be a female, then thy estimation shall be thirty shekels.

5 And if it be from five years old even unto twenty years old, then thy estimation shall be of the male twenty shekels, and for the female ten shekels.

6 And if it be from a month old even unto five years old, then thy estimation shall be of the male five shekels of silver, and for the female thy estimation shall be three shekels of silver.

7 And if it be from sixty years old and above; if it be a male, then thy estimation shall be fifteen shekels, and for the female ten shekels.

8 But if he be poorer than thy estimation, then he shall present himself before the priest, and the priest shall value him: according to his ability that vowed shall the priest value him.

9 And if it be a beast whereof men bring an offering unto the LORD, all that any man giveth of such unto the LORD shall be holy.

10 He shall not alter it, nor change it, a good for a bad, or a bad for a good: and if he shall at all change beast for beast, then it and the exchange thereof shall be holy.

11 And if it be any unclean beast, of which they do not offer a sacrifice unto the LORD, then he shall present the beast before the priest:

12 And the priest shall value it, whether it be good or bad: †as thou valuest it who art the priest, so shall it be.

13 [c]But if he will at all redeem it, then he shall add a fifth part thereof unto thy estimation.

14 ¶And when a man shall sanctify his house to be holy unto the LORD, then the priest shall estimate it, whether it be good or bad: as the priest shall estimate it, so shall it stand.

15 [d]And if he that sanctified it will redeem his house, then he shall add the fifth part of the money of thy estimation unto it, and it shall be his.

16 And if a man shall sanctify unto the LORD some part of a field of his possession, then thy estimation shall be according to the seed thereof: ‖an homer of barley seed shall be valued at fifty shekels of silver.

17 If he sanctify his field from the year of jubilee, according to thy estimation it shall stand.

18 But if he sanctify his field after the jubilee, then the priest shall [e]reckon unto him the money according to the years that remain, even unto the year of the jubilee, and it shall be abated from thy estimation.

19 [f]And if he that sanctified the field will in any wise redeem it, then he shall add the fifth part of the money of thy estimation unto it, and it shall be assured to him.

20 And if he will not redeem the field, or if he have sold the field to another man, it shall not be redeemed any more.

21 But the field, [g]when it goeth out in the jubilee, shall be holy unto the LORD, as a field [h]devoted: [i]the possession thereof shall be the priest's.

22 And if a man sanctify unto the LORD a field which he hath bought, which is not of the fields of [k]his possession;

23 [l]Then the priest shall reckon unto him the worth

The FOURTH Book of Moses, called NUMBERS.

CHAP. I.

1 God commandeth Moses to number the people.

AND the Lord spake unto Moses [a] in the wilderness of Sinai, [b] in the tabernacle of the congregation, on the first day of the second month, in the second year after they were come out of the land of Egypt, saying,

2 [c] Take ye the sum of all the congregation of the children of Israel, after their families, by the house of their fathers, with the number of their names, every male by their polls:

3 From twenty years old and upward, all that are able to go forth to war in Israel; thou and Aaron shall number them by their armies.

4 And with you there shall be a man of every tribe; every one head of the house of his fathers.

5 ¶ And these are the names of the men that shall stand with you: of the tribe of Reuben; Elizur the son of Shedeur.

6 Of Simeon; Shelumiel the son of Zurishaddai.

7 Of Judah; Nahshon the son of Amminadab.

8 Of Issachar; Nethaneel the son of Zuar.

9 Of Zebulun; Eliab the son of Helon.

10 Of the children of Joseph: of Ephraim; Elishama the son of Ammihud: of Manasseh; Gamaliel the son of Pedahzur.

11 Of Benjamin; Abidan the son of Gideoni.

12 Of Dan; Ahiezer the son of Ammishaddai.

13 Of Asher; Pagiel the son of Ocran.

14 Of Gad; Eliasaph the son of [d] Deuel.

15 Of Naphtali; Ahira the son of Enan.

16 [e] These were the renowned of the congregation, princes of the tribes of their fathers, [f] heads of thousands in Israel.

17 ¶ And Moses and Aaron took these men which are expressed by their names:

18 And they assembled all the congregation together on the first day of the second month, and they declared their pedigrees after their families, by the house of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, by their polls.

19 As the LORD commanded Moses, so he numbered them in the wilderness of Sinai.

20 And the children of Reuben, Israel's eldest son, by their generations, after their families, by the house of their fathers, according to the number of the names, by their polls, every male from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war;

21 Those that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Reuben, were forty and six thousand and five hundred.

22 ¶ Of the children of Simeon, by their generations, after their families, by the house of their fathers, those that were numbered of them, according to the number of the names, by their polls, every male from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war;

23 Those that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Simeon, were fifty and nine thousand and three hundred.

24 ¶ Of the children of Gad, by their generations, after their families, by the house of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war;

25 Those that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Gad, were forty and five thousand six hundred and fifty.

26 ¶ Of the children of Judah, by their generations, after their families, by the house of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war;

27 Those that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Judah, were threescore and fourteen thousand and six hundred.

28 ¶ Of the children of Issachar, by their generations, after their families, by the house of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war;

29 Those that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Issachar, were fifty and four thousand and four hundred.

30 ¶ Of the children of Zebulun, by their generations, after their families, by the house of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war;

31 Those that were numbered of them, even of the 32 ¶ Of the children of Joseph, namely, of the children of Ephraim, by their generations, after their families, by the house of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war;

33 Those that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Ephraim, were forty thousand and five hundred.

34 ¶ Of the children of Manasseh, by their generations, after their families, by the house of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war;

35 Those that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Manasseh, were thirty and two thousand and two hundred.

36 ¶ Of the children of Benjamin, by their generations, after their families, by the house of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war;

37 Those that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Benjamin, were thirty and five thousand and four hundred.

38 ¶ Of the children of Dan, by their generations, after their families, by the house of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war;

39 Those that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Dan, were threescore and two thousand and seven hundred.

40 ¶ Of the children of Asher, by their generations, after their families, by the house of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war;

41 Those that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Asher, were forty and one thousand and five hundred.

42 ¶ Of the children of Naphtali, throughout their generations, after their families, by the house of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war;

43 Those that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Naphtali, were fifty and three thousand and four hundred.

44 [g] These are those that were numbered, which Moses and Aaron numbered, and the princes of Israel, being twelve men: each one was for the house of his fathers.

45 So were all those that were numbered of the children of Israel, by the house of their fathers, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war in Israel;

46 Even all they that were numbered, were [h] six hundred thousand and three thousand and five hundred and fifty.

47 ¶ But [i] the Levites, after the tribe of their fathers, were not numbered among them.

48 For the LORD had spoken unto Moses, saying,

49 [k] Only thou shalt not number the tribe of Levi, neither take the sum of them among the children of Israel:

50 [l] But thou shalt appoint the Levites over the tabernacle of testimony, and over all the vessels thereof, and over all things that belong to it: they shall bear the tabernacle, and all the vessels thereof, and they shall minister unto it, [m] and shall encamp round about the tabernacle.

51 [n] And when the tabernacle setteth forward, the Levites shall take it down; and when the tabernacle is to be pitched, the Levites shall set it up: [o] and the stranger that cometh nigh shall be put to death.

52 And the children of Israel shall pitch their tents, [p] every man by his own camp, and every man by his own standard, throughout their hosts.

53 [q] But the Levites shall pitch round about the tabernacle of testimony; that there be no [r] wrath upon the congregation of the children of Israel: [s] and the Levites shall keep the charge of the tabernacle of testimony.

54 And the children of Israel did according to all that the LORD commanded Moses, so did they.

CHAP. II.

The order of the tribes in their tents.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, saying,

2 [a] Every man of the children of Israel shall pitch by his own standard, with the ensign of their father's house: † [b] far off about the tabernacle of the congregation shall they pitch.

3 And on the east side toward the rising of the sun shall they of the standard of the camp of Judah pitch throughout their armies: and [c] Nahshon the son of Amminadab shall be captain of the children of Judah.

4 And his host, and those that were numbered of them, were threescore and fourteen thousand and six hundred.

5 And those that do pitch next unto him, shall be the tribe of Issachar: and Nethaneel the son of Zuar shall be captain of the children of Issachar.

6 And his host, and those that were numbered thereof, were fifty and four thousand and four hundred.

7 Then the tribe of Zebulun: and Eliab the son of Helon shall be captain of the children of Zebulun.

8 And his host, and those that were numbered thereof, were fifty and seven thousand and four hundred.

9 All that were numbered in the camp of Judah were an hundred thousand and fourscore thousand and six thousand and four hundred throughout their armies: [d] these shall first set forth.

10 ¶ On the south side shall be the standard of the camp of Reuben according to their armies: and the captain of the children of Reuben shall be Elizur the son of Shedeur.

11 And his host, and those that were numbered thereof, were forty and six thousand and five hundred.

12 And those which pitch by him shall be the tribe of Simeon: and the captain of the children of Simeon shall be Shelumiel the son of Zurishaddai.

13 And his host, and those that were numbered of them, were fifty and nine thousand and three hundred.

14 Then the tribe of Gad: and the captain of the sons of Gad shall be Eliasaph the son of ‖ Reuel.

15 And his host, and those that were numbered of them, were forty and five thousand and six hundred and fifty.

16 All that were numbered in the camp of Reuben were an hundred thousand and fifty and one thousand and four hundred and fifty, throughout their armies, [e] and they shall set forth in the second rank.

34 And the children of Israel did according to all that the LORD commanded Moses: [l] so they pitched by their standards, and so they set forward, every one after their families, according to the house of their fathers.

CHAP. III.

5 The Levites are given to the priests for the service of the tabernacle.

THESE also are the generations of Aaron and Moses, in the day that the LORD spake with Moses in mount Sinai. 1491.

2 And these are the names of the sons of Aaron; Nadab the [a] first-born, and Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar.

3 These are the names of the sons of Aaron, [b] the priests which were anointed, † whom he consecrated to minister in the priest's office.

4 And Nadab and Abihu died before the LORD, when they offered strange fire before the LORD, in the wilderness of Sinai, and they had no children: and Eleazar and Ithamar ministered in the priest's office in the sight of Aaron their father.

5 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

6 [d] Bring the tribe of Levi near, and present them before Aaron the priest, that they may minister unto him.

7 And they shall keep his charge, and the charge of the whole congregation before the tabernacle of the congregation, to do [e] the service of the tabernacle.

8 And they shall keep all the instruments of the tabernacle of the congregation, and the charge of the children of Israel, to do the service of the tabernacle.

9 And [f] thou shalt give the Levites unto Aaron and to his sons: they are wholly given unto him out of the children of Israel.

10 And thou shalt appoint Aaron and his sons, [g] and they shall wait on their priest's office: [h] and the stranger that cometh nigh shall be put to death.

11 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

12 And I, behold, [i] I have taken the Levites from among the children of Israel, instead of all the first-born that openeth the matrix among the children of Israel: therefore the Levites shall be mine;

13 Because [k] all the first-born are mine; [l] for on the day that I smote all the first-born in the land of Egypt, I hallowed unto me all the first-born in Israel, both man and beast: mine they shall be: I am the LORD.

14 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses in the wilderness of Sinai, saying,

15 Number [m] the children of Levi after the house of their fathers, by their families: [n] every male from a month old and upward shalt thou number them.

16 And Moses numbered them according to the † word of the LORD, as he was commanded.

17 [o] And these were the sons of Levi, by their names; Gershon, and Kohath, and Merari.

18 And these are the names of the sons of Gershon by their families; [p] Libni, and Shimei.

19 And the sons of Kohath by their families; [p] Amram, and Izehar, Hebron, and Uzziel.

20 [q] And the sons of Merari by their families; Mahli, and Mushi: these are the families of the Levites, according to the house of their fathers.

21 Of Gershon was the family of the Libnites, and the family of the Shimites: these are the families of the Gershonites.

22 Those that were numbered of them, according to the number of all the males, from a month old and upward, even those that were numbered of them, were seven thousand and five hundred.

23 [r] The families of the Gershonites shall pitch behind the tabernacle westward.

24 And the chief of the house of the father of the Gershonites shall be Eliasaph the son of Lael.

25 And [s] the charge of the sons of Gershon in the tabernacle of the congregation shall be [t] the tabernacle, and [u] the tent, [x] the covering thereof, and [y] the hanging for the door of the tabernacle of the congregation,

26 And [z] the hangings of the court, and [a] the curtain for the door of the court, which is by the tabernacle, and by the altar round about, and [b] the cords of it, for all the service thereof.

38 ¶ [n] But those that encamp before the tabernacle toward the east, even before the tabernacle of the congregation eastward, shall be Moses, and Aaron and his sons, [o] keeping the charge of the sanctuary, [p] for the charge of the children of Israel; and [q] the stranger that cometh nigh shall be put to death.

39 [r] All that were numbered of the Levites, which Moses and Aaron numbered at the commandment of the LORD, throughout their families, all the males from a month old and upward, were twenty and two thousand.

40 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, [s] Number all the first-born of the males of the children of Israel, from a month old and upward, and take the number of their names.

41 [t] And thou shalt take the Levites for me (I am the LORD) instead of all the first-born among the children of Israel; and the cattle of the Levites, instead of all the firstlings among the cattle of the children of Israel.

42 And Moses numbered, as the LORD commanded him, all the first-born among the children of Israel.

43 And all the first-born males by the number of names, from a month old and upward, of those that were numbered of them, were twenty and two thousand two hundred and threescore and thirteen.

44 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

45 [u] Take the Levites instead of all the first-born among the children of Israel, and the cattle of the Levites instead of their cattle; and the Levites shall be mine: I am the LORD.

46 And for those that are to be [x] redeemed of the two hundred and threescore and thirteen, of the first-born of the children of Israel, [y] which are more than the Levites:

47 Thou shalt even take [z] five shekels apiece by the poll, after the shekel of the sanctuary shalt thou take them: [a] the shekel is twenty gerahs.

48 And thou shalt give the money, wherewith the odd number of them is to be redeemed, unto Aaron and to his sons.

49 And Moses took the redemption-money of them that were over and above them that were redeemed by the Levites:

50 Of the first-born of the children of Israel took he the money; [b] a thousand three hundred and threescore and five shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary:

51 And Moses [c] gave the money of them that were redeemed unto Aaron, and to his sons, according to the word of the LORD, as the LORD commanded Moses.

CHAP. IV.

1 The age and time of the Levites' service. 17 The office of the priests.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, saying,

2 Take the sum of the sons of Kohath from among the sons of Levi, after their families, by the house of their fathers;

3 [a] From thirty years old and upward, even until fifty years old, all that enter into the host, to do the work in the tabernacle of the congregation.

4 [b] This shall be the service of the sons of Kohath in the tabernacle of the congregation, about [c] the most holy things.

5 ¶ And when the camp setteth forward, Aaron shall come, and his sons, and they shall take down [d] the covering vail, and cover [e] the ark of testimony with it:

6 And shall put thereon the covering of badgers' skins, and shall spread over it a cloth wholly of blue, and shall put in [f] the staves thereof.

7 And upon the [g] table of shew-bread they shall spread a cloth of blue, and put thereon the dishes, and the spoons, and the bowls, and covers to ‖ cover withal: and the continual bread shall be thereon:

8 And they shall spread upon them a cloth of scarlet, and cover the same with a covering of badgers' skins, and shall put in the staves thereof.

out without the camp: as the LORD spake unto Moses, so did the children of Israel.

5 ¶And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

6 Speak unto the children of Israel, [c] When a man or woman shall commit any sin that men commit, to do a trespass against the LORD, and that person be guilty;

7 [f] Then they shall confess their sin which they have done: and he shall recompense his trespass [g] with the principal thereof, and add unto it the fifth part thereof, and give it unto him against whom he hath trespassed.

8 But if the man have no kinsman to recompense the trespass unto, let the trespass be recompensed unto the LORD, even to the priest; besides [h] the ram of the atonement, whereby an atonement shall be made for him.

9 And every ‖ [i] offering of all the holy things of the children of Israel, which they bring unto the priest, shall be his.

10 And every man's hallowed things shall be his: whatsoever any man giveth the priest, it shall be [k] his.

11 ¶And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

12 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, If any man's wife go aside, and commit a trespass against him,

13 And a man [l] lie with her carnally, and it be hid from the eyes of her husband, and be kept close, and she be defiled, and there be no witness against her, neither she be taken with the manner;

14 And the spirit of jealousy come upon him, and he be jealous of his wife, and she be defiled: or if the spirit of jealousy come upon him, and he be jealous of his wife, and she be not defiled:

15 Then shall the man bring his wife unto the priest, and he shall bring her offering for her, the tenth part of an ephah of barley-meal; he shall pour no oil upon it, nor put frankincense thereon; for it is an offering of jealousy, an offering of memorial, [m] bringing iniquity to remembrance.

16 And the priest shall bring her near, and set her before the LORD:

17 And the priest shall take holy water in an earthen vessel; and of the dust that is in the floor of the tabernacle the priest shall take, and put it into the water:

18 And the priest shall set the woman before the LORD, and uncover the woman's head, and put the offering of memorial in her hands, which is the jealousy-offering: and the priest shall have in his hand the bitter water that causeth the curse:

19 And the priest shall charge her by an oath, and say unto the woman, If no man have lain with thee, and if thou hast not gone aside to uncleanness ‖† with another instead of thy husband, be thou free from this bitter water that causeth the curse:

20 But if thou hast gone aside to another instead of thy husband, and if thou be defiled, and some man have lain with thee besides thy husband:

21 Then the priest shall [n] charge the woman with an oath of cursing, and the priest shall say unto the woman, [o] the LORD make thee a curse and an oath among thy people, when the LORD doth make thy thigh to † rot, and thy belly to swell;

22 And this water that causeth the curse [p] shall go into thy bowels, to make thy belly to swell, and thy thigh to rot. [q] And the woman shall say, Amen, amen.

1 The law of the Nazarites. 22 The form of blessing the people.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, When either man or woman shall ‖ [a] separate themselves to vow a vow of a Nazarite, to separate themselves unto the LORD:

3 [b] He shall separate himself from wine and strong drink, and shall drink no vinegar of wine, or vinegar of strong drink, neither shall he drink any liquor of grapes, nor eat moist grapes, or dried.

4 All the days of his ‖ separation shall he eat nothing that is made of the † vine-tree, from the kernels even to the husk.

5 All the days of the vow of his separation there shall no [c] razor come upon his head: until the days be fulfilled, in the which he separateth himself unto the LORD, he shall be holy, and shall let the locks of the hair of his head grow.

6 All the days that he separateth himself unto the LORD, [d] he shall come at no dead body.

7 [e] He shall not make himself unclean for his father, or for his mother, for his brother, or for his sister, when they die: because the † consecration of his God is upon his head.

8 All the days of his separation he is holy unto the LORD.

9 And if any man die very suddenly by him, and he hath defiled the head of his consecration; then he shall [f] shave his head in the day of his cleansing, on the seventh day shall he shave it.

10 And [g] on the eighth day he shall bring two turtles, or two young pigeons, to the priest, to the door of the tabernacle of the congregation:

11 And the priest shall offer the one for a sin-offering, and the other for a burnt-offering, and make an atonement for him, for that he sinned by the dead, and shall hallow his head that same day.

12 And he shall consecrate unto the LORD the days of his separation, and shall bring a lamb of the first year [h] for a trespass-offering: but the days that were before shall [†] be lost, because his separation was defiled.

13 ¶ And this is the law of the Nazarite: [i] When the days of his separation are fulfilled, he shall be brought unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation:

14 And he shall offer his offering unto the LORD, one he-lamb of the first year without blemish for a burnt-offering, and one ewe-lamb of the first year without blemish [k] for a sin-offering, and one ram without blemish [l] for peace-offerings,

15 And a basket of unleavened bread, [m] cakes of fine flour mingled with oil, and wafers of unleavened bread [n] anointed with oil, and their meat-offering and their [o] drink-offerings.

16 And the priest shall bring them before the LORD, and shall offer his sin-offering, and his burnt-offering:

17 And he shall offer the ram for a sacrifice of peace-offerings unto the LORD, with the basket of unleavened bread: the priest shall offer also his meat-offering, and his drink-offering.

18 [p] And the Nazarite shall shave the head of his separation at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, and shall take the hair of the head of his separation, and put it in the fire which is under the sacrifice of the peace-offerings.

19 And the priest shall take the [q] sodden shoulder of the ram, and one unleavened cake out of the basket, and one unleavened wafer, and [r] shall put them upon the hands of the Nazarite, after the hair of his separation is shaven:

20 And the priest shall wave them for a wave-offering before the LORD: [s] this is holy for the priest, with the wave-breast, and heave-shoulder: and after that, the Nazarite may drink wine.

21 This is the law of the Nazarite who hath vowed, and of his offering unto the LORD for his separation, besides that that his hand shall get: according to the vow which he vowed, so he must do after the law of his separation.

22 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

23 Speak unto Aaron and unto his sons, saying, On this wise [t] ye shall bless the children of Israel, saying unto them,

24 The LORD bless thee, and [u] keep thee:

25 The LORD [w] make his face shine upon thee, and [x] be gracious unto thee:

26 [y] The LORD lift up his countenance upon thee, and [z] give thee peace.

27 [a] And they shall put my name upon the children of Israel, and [b] I will bless them.

CHAP. VII.

1 The offering of the princes at the dedication of the tabernacle.

AND it came to pass on the day that Moses had fully [a] set up the tabernacle, and had anointed it, and sanctified it, and all the instruments thereof, both the altar and all the vessels thereof, and had anointed them, and sanctified them;

2 That [b] the princes of Israel, heads of the house of their fathers, who were the princes of the tribes, [†] and were over them that were numbered, offered:

3 And they brought their offering before the LORD, six covered wagons, and twelve oxen; a wagon for two of the princes, and for each one an ox: and they brought them before the tabernacle.

4 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

5 Take it of them, that they may be to do the service of the tabernacle of the congregation; and thou shalt give them unto the Levites, to every man according to his service.

6 And Moses took the wagons and the oxen, and gave them unto the Levites:

7 Two wagons and four oxen [c] he gave unto the sons of Gershon, according to their service:

8 [d] And four wagons and eight oxen he gave unto the sons of Merari, according unto their service, [e] under the hand of Ithamar the son of Aaron the priest.

9 But unto the sons of Kohath he gave none: because [f] the service of the sanctuary belonging unto them [g] was that they should bear upon their shoulders.

10 ¶ And the princes offered for [h] dedicating of the altar in the day that it was anointed, even the princes offered their offering before the altar.

11 And the LORD said unto Moses, They shall offer their offering, each prince on his day, for the dedicating of the altar.

12 ¶ And he that offered his offering the first day was [i] Nahshon the son of Amminadab, of the tribe of Judah:

13 And his offering was one silver charger, the weight whereof was an hundred and thirty shekels, one silver bowl of seventy shekels, after [k] the shekel of the sanctuary; both of them were full of fine flour mingled with oil for a [l] meat-offering:

17 And for [p] a sacrifice of peace-offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year: this was the offering of Nahshon the son of Amminadab.

18 ¶ On the second day Nethaneel the son of Zuar, prince of Issachar, did offer:

19 He offered for his offering one silver charger, the weight whereof was an hundred and thirty shekels, one silver bowl of seventy shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary; both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil for a meat-offering:

36 ¶ On the fifth day Shelumiel the son of Zurishaddai, prince of the children of Simeon, did offer:

37 His offering was one silver charger, the weight whereof was an hundred and thirty shekels, one silver bowl of seventy shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary; both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil for a meat-offering:

38 One golden spoon of ten shekels, full of incense:

39 One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year, for a burnt-offering:

40 One kid of the goats for a sin-offering:

41 And for a sacrifice of peace-offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year: this was the offering of Shelumiel the son of Zurishaddai.

42 ¶ On the sixth day Eliasaph the son of Deuel, prince of the children of Gad, offered:

43 His offering was one silver charger, of the weight of an hundred and thirty shekels, a silver bowl of seventy shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary; both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil for a meat-offering:

44 One golden spoon of ten shekels, full of incense:

45 One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year, for a burnt-offering:

46 One kid of the goats for a sin-offering:

47 And for a sacrifice of peace-offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year: this was the offering of Eliasaph the son of Deuel.

48 ¶ On the seventh day Elishama the son of Ammihud, prince of the children of Ephraim, offered:

49 His offering was one silver charger, the weight whereof was an hundred and thirty shekels, one silver bowl of seventy shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary; both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil for a meat-offering:

50 One golden spoon of ten shekels, full of incense:

51 One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year, for a burnt-offering:

52 One kid of the goats for a sin-offering:

53 And for a sacrifice of peace-offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year: this was the offering of Elishama the son of Ammihud.

54 ¶ On the eighth day offered Gamaliel the son of Pedahzur, prince of the children of Manasseh:

55 His offering was one silver charger, of the weight of an hundred and thirty shekels, one silver bowl of seventy shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary; both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil for a meat-offering:

56 One golden spoon of ten shekels, full of incense:

Before CHRIST 1490.

Before CHRIST 1490.

57 One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year, for a burnt-offering:

58 One kid of the goats for a sin-offering:

59 And for a sacrifice of peace-offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year: this was the offering of Gamaliel the son of Pedahzur.

60 ¶ On the ninth day Abidan the son of Gideoni, prince of the children of Benjamin, offered:

61 His offering was one silver charger, the weight whereof was an hundred and thirty shekels, one silver bowl of seventy shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary; both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil for a meat-offering:

62 One golden spoon of ten shekels, full of incense:

63 One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year, for a burnt-offering:

64 One kid of the goats for a sin-offering:

65 And for a sacrifice of peace-offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year: this was the offering of Abidan the son of Gideoni.

66 ¶ On the tenth day Ahiezer the son of Ammishaddai, prince of the children of Dan, offered:

67 His offering was one silver charger, the weight whereof was an hundred and thirty shekels, one silver bowl of seventy shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary; both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil for a meat-offering:

68 One golden spoon of ten shekels, full of incense:

69 One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year, for a burnt-offering:

70 One kid of the goats for a sin-offering:

71 And for a sacrifice of peace-offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year: this was the offering of Ahiezer the son of Ammishaddai.

72 ¶ On the eleventh day Pagiel the son of Ocran, prince of the children of Asher, offered:

73 His offering was one silver charger, the weight whereof was an hundred and thirty shekels, one silver bowl of seventy shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary; both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil for a meat-offering:

74 One golden spoon of ten shekels, full of incense:

75 One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year, for a burnt-offering:

76 One kid of the goats for a sin-offering:

77 And for a sacrifice of peace-offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year: this was the offering of Pagiel the son of Ocran.

78 ¶ On the twelfth day Ahira the son of Enan, prince of the children of Naphtali, offered:

79 His offering was one silver charger, the weight whereof was an hundred and thirty shekels, one silver bowl of seventy shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary; both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil for a meat-offering:

80 One golden spoon of ten shekels, full of incense:

81 One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year, for a burnt-offering:

82 One kid of the goats for a sin-offering:

83 And for a sacrifice of peace-offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year: this was the offering of Ahira the son of Enan.

84 This was the dedication of the altar (in the day when it was anointed) by the princes of Israel: twelve chargers of silver, twelve silver bowls, twelve spoons of gold:

85 Each charger of silver weighing an hundred and thirty shekels, each bowl seventy: all the silver vessels weighed two thousand and four hundred shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary:

86 The golden spoons were twelve, full of incense, weighing ten shekels apiece, after the shekel of the sanctuary: all the gold of the spoons was an hundred and twenty shekels.

87 All the oxen for the burnt-offering were twelve bullocks, the rams twelve, the lambs of the first year twelve, with their meat-offering: and the kids of the goats for sin-offering, twelve.

88 And all the oxen for the sacrifice of the peace-offerings were twenty and four bullocks, the rams sixty, the he-goats sixty, the lambs of the first year sixty. This was the dedication of the altar, after that it was [q]anointed.

89 And when Moses was gone into the tabernacle of the congregation [r]to speak with ‖him, then he heard [s]the voice of one speaking unto him from off the mercy-seat that was upon the ark of testimony, from between the two cherubims: and he spake unto him.

CHAP. VIII.

1 How the lamps are to be lighted. 5 The consecration of the Levites. 23 The age and time of their service.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto Aaron, and say unto him, When thou [a]lightest the lamps, the seven lamps shall give light over against the candlestick.

3 And Aaron did so; he lighted the lamps thereof over against the candlestick, as the LORD commanded Moses.

4 [b]And this work of the candlestick was of beaten gold, unto the shaft thereof, unto the flowers thereof, was [c]beaten work: [d]according unto the pattern which the LORD had shewed Moses, so he made the candlestick.

5 ¶And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

6 Take the Levites from among the children of Israel, and cleanse them.

7 And thus shalt thou do unto them, to cleanse them: Sprinkle [e]water of purifying upon them, and †[f]let them shave all their flesh, and let them wash their clothes, and so make themselves clean.

8 Then let them take a young bullock with [g]his meat-offering, even fine flour mingled with oil, and another young bullock shalt thou take for a sin-offering.

9 [h]And thou shalt bring the Levites before the tabernacle of the congregation: [i]and thou shalt gather the whole assembly of the children of Israel together:

10 And thou shalt bring the Levites before the LORD: and the children of Israel [k]shall put their hands upon the Levites:

11 And Aaron shall †offer the Levites before the LORD for an †offering of the children of Israel, that †they may execute the service of the LORD.

12 [l]And the Levites shall lay their hands upon the heads of the bullocks: and thou shalt offer the one for a sin-offering, and the other for a burnt-offering, unto the LORD, to make an atonement for the Levites.

13 And thou shalt set the Levites before Aaron, and before his sons, and offer them for an offering unto the LORD.

14 Thus shalt thou separate the Levites from among the children of Israel: and the Levites shall be [m]mine.

15 And after that shall the Levites go in to do the service of the tabernacle of the congregation: and thou shalt cleanse them, and [n]offer them for an offering.

16 For they are wholly given unto me from among the children of Israel; [o]instead of such as open every womb, even instead of the first-born of all the children of Israel, have I taken them unto me.

17 [p]For all the first-born of the children of Israel are mine, both man and beast: on the day that I smote every first-born in the land of Egypt I sanctified them for myself.

18 And I have taken the Levites for all the first-born of the children of Israel.

19 And [q]I have given the Levites as †a gift to Aaron and to his sons from among the children of Israel, to do the service of the children of Israel in the tabernacle of the congregation, and to make an atonement for the children of Israel: [r]that there be no plague among the children of Israel, when the children of Israel come nigh unto the sanctuary.

20 And Moses, and Aaron, and all the congregation of the children of Israel, did to the Levites according unto all that the LORD commanded Moses concerning the Levites, so did the children of Israel unto them.

21 [s]And the Levites were purified, and they washed their clothes; [t]and Aaron offered them as an offering before the LORD; and Aaron made an atonement for them to cleanse them.

22 [u]And after that went the Levites in to do their service in the tabernacle of the congregation before Aaron, and before his sons: [x]as the LORD had commanded Moses concerning the Levites, so did they unto them.

23 ¶And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

24 This is it that belongeth unto the Levites: [y]From twenty and five years old and upward they shall go in †to wait upon the service of the tabernacle of the congregation:

25 And from the age of fifty years they shall †cease waiting upon the service thereof, and shall serve no more:

26 But shall minister with their brethren in the tabernacle of the congregation, [z]to keep the charge, and shall do no service. Thus shalt thou do unto the Levites touching their charge.

CHAP. IX.

15 The cloud guideth the removings and encampings of the Israelites.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses in the wilderness of Sinai, in the first month of the second year after they were come out of the land of Egypt, saying,

2 Let the children of Israel also keep [a]the passover at his appointed season.

3 In the fourteenth day of this month, †at even, ye shall keep it in his appointed season: according to all the rites of it, and according to all the ceremonies thereof, shall ye keep it.

4 And Moses spake unto the children of Israel, that they should keep the passover.

5 And [b]they kept the passover on the fourteenth day of the first month at even in the wilderness of Sinai: according to all that the LORD commanded Moses, so did the children of Israel.

6 ¶And there were certain men, who were [c]defiled by the dead body of a man, that they could not keep the passover on that day: [d]and they came before Moses and before Aaron on that day:

7 And those men said unto him, We are defiled by the dead body of a man: wherefore are we kept back, that we may not offer an offering of the LORD in his appointed season among the children of Israel?

8 And Moses said unto them, Stand still, and [c]I will hear what the LORD will command concerning you.

9 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

10 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, If any man of you or of your posterity shall be unclean by reason of a dead body, or be in a journey afar off, yet he shall keep the passover unto the LORD.

11 [f]The fourteenth day of the second month at even they shall keep it, and [g]eat it with unleavened bread and bitter herbs.

12 [h]They shall leave none of it unto the morning, [i]nor break any bone of it: [k]according to all the ordinances of the passover they shall keep it.

13 But the man that is clean, and is not in a journey, and forbeareth to keep the passover, even the same soul [l]shall be cut off from among his people: because he [m]brought not the offering of the LORD in his appointed season, that man shall [n]bear his sin.

14 And if a stranger shall sojourn among you, and will keep the passover unto the LORD; according to the ordinance of the passover, and according to the manner thereof, so shall he do: [o]ye shall have one ordinance both for the stranger, and for him that was born in the land.

15 ¶ And [p]on the day that the tabernacle was reared up, the cloud covered the tabernacle, namely, the tent of the testimony: and [q]at even there was upon the tabernacle as it were the appearance of fire, until the morning.

16 So it was always: the cloud covered it by day, and the appearance of fire by night.

17 And when the cloud [r]was taken up from the tabernacle, then after that the children of Israel journeyed: and in the place where the cloud abode, there the children of Israel pitched their tents.

18 At the commandment of the LORD the children of Israel journeyed, and at the commandment of the LORD they pitched: [s]as long as the cloud abode upon the tabernacle they rested in their tents.

19 And when the cloud †tarried long upon the tabernacle many days, then the children of Israel [t]kept the charge of the LORD, and journeyed not.

20 And so it was, when the cloud was a few days upon the tabernacle; according to the commandment of the LORD they abode in their tents, and according to the commandment of the LORD they journeyed.

21 And so it was, when the cloud †abode from even unto the morning, and that the cloud was taken up in the morning, then they journeyed: whether it was by day or by night that the cloud was taken up, they journeyed.

22 Or whether it were two days, or a month, or a year, that the cloud tarried upon the tabernacle, remaining thereon, the children of Israel [u]abode in their tents, and journeyed not: but when it was taken up, they journeyed.

23 At the commandment of the LORD they rested in their tents, and at the commandment of the LORD they journeyed: they [x]kept the charge of the LORD, at the commandment of the LORD by the hand of Moses.

CHAP. X.

11 The Israelites remove from Sinai to Paran.....14 The order of their march.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Make thee two trumpets of silver; of an whole piece shalt thou make them: that thou mayest use them for the [a]calling of the assembly, and for the journeying of the camps.

3 And when [b]they shall blow with them, all the assembly shall assemble themselves to thee at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

4 And if they blow but with one trumpet, then the princes, which are [c]heads of the thousands of Israel, shall gather themselves unto thee.

5 When ye blow an alarm, then [d]the camps that lie on the east parts shall go forward.

6 When ye blow an alarm the second time, then the camps that lie [e]on the south side shall take their journey: they shall blow an alarm for their journeys.

7 But when the congregation is to be gathered together, [f]ye shall blow, but ye shall not [g]sound an alarm.

8 [h]And the sons of Aaron, the priests, shall blow with the trumpets; and they shall be to you for an ordinance for ever throughout your generations.

9 And [i]if ye go to war in your land against the enemy that [k]oppresseth you, then ye shall blow an alarm with the trumpets; and ye shall be [l]remembered before the LORD your God, and ye shall be saved from your enemies.

10 Also [m]in the day of your gladness, and in your solemn days, and in the beginnings of your months, ye shall blow with the trumpets over your burnt-offerings, and over the sacrifices of your peace-offerings; that they may be to you [n]for a memorial before your God: I am the LORD your God.

11 ¶ And it came to pass on the twentieth day of the second month, in the second year, that the cloud [o]was taken up from off the tabernacle of the testimony.

12 And the children of Israel took [p]their journeys out of the [q]wilderness of Sinai; and the cloud rested in the [r]wilderness of Paran.

13 And they first took their journey [s]according to the commandment of the LORD by the hand of Moses.

14 ¶ [t]In the first place went the standard of the camp of the children of Judah according to their armies: and over his host was [u]Nahshon the son of Amminadab

15 And over the host of the tribe of the children of Issachar was Nethaneel the son of Zuar.

16 And over the host of the tribe of the children of Zebulun was Eliab the son of Helon.

17 And [x]the tabernacle was taken down; and the sons of Gershon and the sons of Merari set forward, [y]bearing the tabernacle.

18 ¶ And [z]the standard of the camp of Reuben set forward according to their armies: and over his host was Elizur the son of Shedeur.

19 And over the host of the tribe of the children of Simeon was Shelumiel the son of Zurishaddai.

20 And over the host of the tribe of the children of Gad was Eliasaph the son of Deuel.

21 And the Kohathites set forward, bearing the [a]sanctuary: and ‖ the other did set up the tabernacle against they came.

22 ¶ And [b]the standard of the camp of the children of Ephraim set forward according to their armies: and over his host was Elishama the son of Ammihud.

23 And over the host of the tribe of the children of Manasseh was Gamaliel the son of Pedahzur.

24 And over the host of the tribe of the children of Benjamin was Abidan the son of Gideoni.

29 ¶And Moses said unto Hobab, the son of [e]Raguel the Midianite, Moses' father-in-law, We are journeying unto the place of which the LORD said, [f]I will give it you: come thou with us, and [g]we will do thee good: for [h]the LORD hath spoken good concerning Israel.

30 And he said unto him, I will not go; but I will depart to mine own land, and to my kindred.

31 And he said, Leave us not, I pray thee: forasmuch as thou knowest how we are to encamp in the wilderness, and thou mayest be to us [i]instead of eyes.

32 And it shall be, if thou go with us, yea, it shall be, that [k]what goodness the LORD shall do unto us, the same will we do unto thee.

33 ¶And they departed from [l]the mount of the LORD three days' journey: and the ark of the covenant of the LORD [m]went before them in the three days' journey, to search out a resting-place for them.

34 And [n]the cloud of the LORD was upon them by day, when they went out of the camp.

35 And it came to pass, when the ark set forward, that Moses said, [o]Rise up, LORD, and let thine enemies be scattered; and let them that hate thee flee before thee.

36 And when it rested, he said, Return, O LORD, unto the †many thousands of Israel.

CHAP. XI.

1 The people lust for flesh, and loathe manna...31 Quails are given in wrath at Kibroth-hattaavah.

AND [a]when the people ‖complained, †it displeased the LORD: and the LORD heard it: [b]and his anger was kindled; and the [c]fire of the LORD burnt among them, and consumed them that were in the uttermost parts of the camp.

2 And the people cried unto Moses; and when Moses [d]prayed unto the LORD, the fire †was quenched.

3 And he called the name of the place ‖Taberah: because the fire of the LORD burnt among them.

4 ¶And the [e]mixed multitude that was among them †fell a lusting: and the children of Israel also †wept again, and said, [f]Who shall give us flesh to eat?

5 [g]We remember the fish which we did eat in Egypt freely; the cucumbers, and the melons, and the leeks, and the onions, and the garlic.

6 But now [h]our soul is dried away; there is nothing at all, besides this manna, before our eyes.

7 And [i]the manna was as coriander-seed, and the †colour thereof as the colour of [k]bdellium.

8 And the people went about, and gathered it, and ground it in mills, or beat it in a mortar, and baked it in pans, and made cakes of it: and [l]the taste of it was as the taste of fresh oil.

9 And [m]when the dew fell upon the camp in the night, the manna fell upon it.

10 ¶Then Moses heard the people weep throughout their families, every man in the door of his tent: and [n]the anger of the LORD was kindled greatly; Moses also was displeased.

hast thou afflicted thy servant? and wherefore have I not found favour in thy sight, that thou layest the burden of all this people upon me?

12 Have I conceived all this people? have I begotten them, that thou shouldest say unto me, [p]Carry them in thy bosom, as a [q]nursing-father beareth the sucking child, unto the land which thou [r]swarest unto their fathers?

13 [s]Whence should I have flesh to give unto all this people? for they weep unto me, saying, Give us flesh, that we may eat.

14 [t]I am not able to bear all this people alone, because it is too heavy for me.

15 And if thou deal thus with me, [u]kill me, I pray thee, out of hand, if I have found favour in thy sight; and let me not [x]see my wretchedness.

16 ¶And the LORD said unto Moses, Gather unto me [y]seventy men of the elders of Israel, whom thou knowest to be the elders of the people, and [z]officers over them; and bring them unto the tabernacle of the congregation, that they may stand there with thee.

17 And I will [a]come down and talk with thee there; and [b]I will take of the spirit which is upon thee, and will put it upon them: and they shall bear the burden of the people with thee, that thou bear it not thyself alone.

18 And say thou unto the people, [c]Sanctify yourselves against to-morrow, and ye shall eat flesh: for ye have wept [d]in the ears of the LORD, saying, Who shall give us flesh to eat? [e]for it was well with us in Egypt: therefore the LORD will give you flesh, and ye shall eat.

19 Ye shall not eat one day, nor two days, nor five days, neither ten days, nor twenty days;

20 [f]But even a †whole month, until it come out at your nostrils, and it be loathsome unto you: because that ye have despised the LORD which is among you, and have wept before him, saying, [g]Why came we forth out of Egypt?

21 And Moses said, [h]The people among whom I am, are six hundred thousand footmen; and thou hast said, I will give them flesh, that they may eat a whole month.

22 [i]Shall the flocks and the herds be slain for them, to suffice them? or shall all the fish of the sea be gathered together for them, to suffice them?

23 And the LORD said unto Moses, [k]Is the LORD'S hand waxed short? thou shalt see now whether [l]my word shall come to pass unto thee, or not.

24 ¶And Moses went out, and told the people the words of the LORD, and [m]gathered the seventy men of the elders of the people, and set them round about the tabernacle.

25 And the LORD [n]came down in a cloud, and spake unto him, and took of the spirit that was upon him, and gave it unto the seventy elders: and it came to pass, that [o]when the spirit rested upon them, [p]they prophesied, and did not cease.

26 But there remained two of the men in the camp, the name of the one was Eldad, and the name of the other Medad: and the spirit rested upon them; and they were of them that were written, but [q]went not out unto the tabernacle: and they prophesied in the camp.

27 And there ran a young man, and told Moses, and said, Eldad and Medad do prophesy in the camp.

28 And Joshua the son of Nun, the servant of Moses, one of his young men, answered and said, My lord Moses, [r]forbid them.

29 And Moses said unto him, Enviest thou for my sake? [s]would God that all the LORD's people were prophets, and that the LORD would put his Spirit upon them!

30 And Moses gat him into the camp, he and the elders of Israel.

31 ¶ And there went forth a [t]wind from the LORD, and brought quails from the sea, and let them fall by the camp, †as it were a day's journey on this side, and as it were a day's journey on the other side, round about the camp, and as it were two cubits high upon the face of the earth.

32 And the people stood up all that day, and all that night, and all the next day, and they gathered the quails: he that gathered least gathered ten [u]homers: and they spread them all abroad for themselves round about the camp.

33 And while the [x]flesh was yet between their teeth, ere it was chewed, the wrath of the LORD was kindled against the people, and the LORD smote the people with a very great plague.

34 And he called the name of that place ‖ Kibroth-hattaavah: because there they buried the people that lusted.

35 [y]And the people journeyed from Kibroth-hattaavah unto Hazeroth: and †abode at Hazeroth.

CHAP. XII.

God rebuketh the sedition of Miriam and Aaron.

AND Miriam and Aaron spake against Moses because of the ‖ Ethiopian woman whom he had married: for [a]he had †married an Ethiopian woman.

2 And they said, Hath the LORD indeed spoken only by Moses? [b]hath he not spoken also by us? And the LORD [c]heard it.

3 (Now the man Moses was very meek, above all the men which were upon the face of the earth.)

4 [c]And the LORD spake suddenly unto Moses, and unto Aaron, and unto Miriam, Come out ye three unto the tabernacle of the congregation. And they three came out.

5 [f]And the LORD came down in the pillar of the cloud, and stood in the door of the tabernacle, and called Aaron and Miriam: and they both came forth.

6 And he said, Hear now my words: If there be a prophet among you, I the LORD will make myself known unto him [g]in a vision, and will speak unto him [h]in a dream.

7 [i]My servant Moses is not so, [k]who is faithful in all [l]mine house.

8 With him will I speak [m]mouth to mouth, even [n]apparently, and not in dark speeches; and [o]the similitude of the LORD shall he behold: wherefore then [p]were ye not afraid to speak against my servant Moses?

9 And the anger of the LORD was kindled against them; and he departed.

10 And the cloud departed from off the tabernacle; and [q]behold, Miriam became [r]leprous, white as snow: and Aaron looked upon Miriam, and behold, she was leprous.

11 And Aaron said unto Moses, Alas, my lord, I beseech thee, [s]lay not the sin upon us, wherein we have done foolishly, and wherein we have sinned.

12 Let her not be [t]as one dead, of whom the flesh is half consumed when he cometh out of his mother's womb.

13 And Moses cried unto the LORD, saying, Heal her now, O God, I beseech thee.

14 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, [u]If her father had but spit in her face, should she not be ashamed seven days? let her be [x]shut out from the camp seven days, and after that let her be received in again.

15 [y]And Miriam was shut out from the camp seven days: and the people journeyed not till Miriam was brought in again.

16 And afterward the people removed from [z]Hazeroth, and pitched in the wilderness of Paran.

CHAP. XIII.

1 The names of the men who were sent to search the land. 26 Their relation.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 [a]Send thou men, that they may search the land of Canaan, which I give unto the children of Israel: of every tribe of their fathers shall ye send a man, every one a ruler among them.

3 And Moses by the commandment of the LORD sent them [b]from the wilderness of Paran: all those men were heads of the children of Israel.

4 And these were their names: Of the tribe of Reuben, Shammua the son of Zaccur.

5 Of the tribe of Simeon, Shaphat the son of Hori.

6 Of the tribe of Judah, [d]Caleb the son of Jephunneh.

7 Of the tribe of Issachar, Igal the son of Joseph.

8 Of the tribe of Ephraim, [e]Oshea the son of Nun.

9 Of the tribe of Benjamin, Palti the son of Raphu.

10 Of the tribe of Zebulun, Gaddiel the son of Sodi.

11 Of the tribe of Joseph, namely, of the tribe of Manasseh, Gaddi the son of Susi.

12 Of the tribe of Dan, Ammiel the son of Gemalli.

13 Of the tribe of Asher, Sethur the son of Michael.

14 Of the tribe of Naphtali, Nahbi the son of Vophsi.

15 Of the tribe of Gad, Geuel the son of Machi.

16 These are the names of the men which Moses sent to spy out the land. And Moses called [f]Oshea the son of Nun, Jehoshua.

17 ¶ And Moses sent them to spy out the land of Canaan, and said unto them, Get you up this way [g]southward, and go up into [h]the mountain:

18 And see the land, what it is; and the people that dwelleth therein, whether they be strong or weak, few or many;

19 And what the land is that they dwell in, whether it be good or bad; and what cities they be that they dwell in, whether in tents, or in strong holds;

20 And what the land is, whether it be [i]fat or lean, whether there be wood therein, or not. And [k]be ye of good courage, and bring of the fruit of the land. Now the time was the time of the first ripe grapes.

21 ¶ So they went up, and searched the land [l]from the wilderness of Zin unto [m]Rehob, as men come to Hamath.

22 And they ascended by the south, and came unto Hebron; where [n]Ahiman, Sheshai, and Talmai, [o]the children of Anak, were. (Now [p]Hebron was built seven years before [q]Zoan in Egypt.)

23 [r]And they came unto the ‖ brook of Eshcol, and cut down from thence a branch with one cluster of grapes, and they bare it between two upon a staff; and they brought of the pomegranates, and of the figs.

24 The place was called the ‖ brook ‖ Eshcol, because of the cluster of grapes which the children of Israel cut down from thence.

25 And they returned from searching of the land after forty days.

26 ¶And they went and came to Moses, and to Aaron, and to all the congregation of the children of Israel, [a]unto the wilderness of Paran, to [b]Kadesh; and brought back word unto them, and unto all the congregation, and shewed them the fruit of the land.

27 And they told him, and said, We came unto the land whither thou sentest us, and surely it floweth with [u]milk and honey; [x]and this is the fruit of it.

28 Nevertheless, [y]the people be strong that dwell in the land, and the cities are walled, and very great: and moreover, we saw [z]the children of Anak there.

29 [a]The Amalekites dwell in the land of the south: and the Hittites, and the Jebusites, and the Amorites, dwell in the mountains; and the Canaanites dwell by the sea, and by the coast of Jordan.

30 And [b]Caleb stilled the people before Moses, and said, Let us go up at once, and possess it; for we are well able to overcome it.

31 [c]But the men that went up with him said, We be not able to go up against the people; for they are stronger than we.

32 And they [d]brought up an evil report of the land which they had searched unto the children of Israel, saying, The land, through which we have gone to search it, is a land that eateth up the inhabitants thereof; and [e]all the people that we saw in it are †men of a great stature.

33 And there we saw the giants, [f]the sons of Anak, which come of the giants: and we were in our own sight as [g]grasshoppers, and so we were [h]in their sight.

CHAP. XIV.

The people murmur at the news.

AND all the congregation lifted up their voice, and cried; and [a]the people wept that night.

2 [b]And all the children of Israel murmured against Moses and against Aaron: and the whole congregation said unto them, Would God that we had died in the land of Egypt! or [c]would God we had died in this wilderness!

3 And wherefore hath the LORD brought us unto this land, to fall by the sword, that our wives and our children should be a prey? were it not better for us to return into Egypt?

4 And they said one to another, [d]Let us make a captain, and [e]let us return into Egypt.

5 Then [f]Moses and Aaron fell on their faces before all the assembly of the congregation of the children of Israel.

6 ¶[g]And Joshua the son of Nun, and Caleb the son of Jephunneh, which were of them that searched the land, rent their clothes:

7 And they spake unto all the company of the children of Israel, saying, [h]The land, which we passed through to search it, is an exceeding good land.

8 If the LORD [i]delight in us, then he will bring us into this land, and give it us; [k]a land which floweth with milk and honey.

9 Only [l]rebel not ye against the LORD, [m]neither fear ye the people of the land; for [n]they are bread for us: their †defence is departed from them, [o]and the LORD is with us: fear them not.

10 [p]But all the congregation bade stone them with stones. And [q]the glory of the LORD appeared in the tabernacle of the congregation before all the children of Israel.

11 ¶And the LORD said unto Moses, How long will this people [r]provoke me? and how long will it be ere they [s]believe me, for all the signs which I have shewed among them?

12 I will smite them with the pestilence, and disinherit them, and [t]will make of thee a greater nation and mightier than they.

13 ¶And [u]Moses said unto the LORD, Then the Egyptians shall hear it, (for thou broughtest up this people in thy might from among them;)

14 And they will tell it to the inhabitants of this land: [x]for they have heard that thou LORD art among this people, that thou LORD art seen face to face, and that [y]thy cloud standeth over them, and that thou goest before them, by day-time in a pillar of a cloud, and in a pillar of fire by night.

15 ¶Now if thou shalt kill all this people as one man, then the nations which have heard the fame of thee will speak, saying,

16 Because the LORD was not [z]able to bring this people into the land which he sware unto them, therefore he hath slain them in the wilderness.

17 And now, I beseech thee, let the power of my Lord be great, according as thou hast spoken, saying,

18 The LORD is [a]long-suffering, and of great mercy, forgiving iniquity and transgression, and by no means clearing the guilty, [b]visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation.

19 [c]Pardon, I beseech thee, the iniquity of this people [d]according unto the greatness of thy mercy, and [e]as thou hast forgiven this people, from Egypt even ‖until now.

20 And the LORD said, I have pardoned [f]according to thy word:

21 But as truly as I live, [g]all the earth shall be filled with the glory of the LORD.

22 [h]Because all those men which have seen my glory, and my miracles, which I did in Egypt and in the wilderness, and have tempted me now [i]these ten times, and have not hearkened to my voice;

23 [k]†Surely they shall not see the land which I sware unto their fathers, neither shall any of them that provoked me see it:

24 But my servant [l]Caleb, because he had another spirit with him, and [m]hath followed me fully, him will I bring into the land whereinto he went; and his seed shall possess it.

25 (Now the Amalekites, and the Canaanites dwelt in the valley.) To-morrow turn you, [n]and get you into the wilderness by the way of the Red sea.

26 ¶And the LORD spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, saying,

27 [o]How long shall I bear with this evil congregation, which murmur against me? [p]I have heard the murmurings of the children of Israel, which they murmur against me.

28 Say unto them, [q]As truly as I live, saith the LORD, [r]as ye have spoken in mine ears, so will I do to you:

29 Your carcasses shall fall in this wilderness; and [s]all that were numbered of you, according to your whole number, from twenty years old and upward, which have murmured against me.

30 Doubtless ye shall not come into the land concerning which I †sware to make you dwell therein, [t]save Caleb the son of Jephunneh, and Joshua the son of Nun.

31 [u]But your little ones, which ye said should be a prey, them will I bring in, and they shall know the land which [x]ye have despised.

32 But as for you, [y] your carcasses, they shall fall in this wilderness.

33 And your children shall ‖[z] wander in the wilderness [a] forty years, and [b] bear your whoredoms, until your carcasses be wasted in the wilderness.

34 [c] After the number of the days in which ye searched the land, even [d] forty days (each day for a year shall) ye bear your iniquities, even forty years; [e] and ye shall know ‖my breach of promise.

35 [f] I the LORD have said, I will surely do it unto all [g] this evil congregation, that are gathered together against me: in this wilderness they shall be consumed, and there they shall die.

36 [h] And the men which Moses sent to search the land, who returned, and made all the congregation to murmur against him, by bringing up a slander upon the land,

37 Even those men that did bring up the evil report upon the land, [i] died by the plague before the LORD.

38 [k] But Joshua the son of Nun, and Caleb the son of Jephunneh, which were of the men that went to search the land, lived still.

39 And Moses told these sayings unto all the children of Israel: [l] and the people mourned greatly.

40 ¶ And they rose up early in the morning, and gat them up into the top of the mountain, saying, Lo, [m] we be here, and will go up unto the place which the LORD hath promised: for we have sinned.

41 And Moses said, Wherefore now do ye transgress [n] the commandment of the LORD? but it shall not prosper.

42 [o] Go not up, for the LORD is not among you; that ye be not smitten before your enemies.

43 For the Amalekites and the Canaanites are there before you, and ye shall fall by the sword: [p] because ye are turned away from the LORD, therefore the LORD will not be with you.

44 [q] But they presumed to go up unto the hill-top: nevertheless the ark of the covenant of the LORD, and Moses, departed not out of the camp.

45 [r] Then the Amalekites came down, and the Canaanites which dwelt in that hill, and smote them, and discomfited them, even unto [s] Hormah.

CHAP. XV.

The law of the meat-offering, and the drink-offering.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 [a] Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, When ye be come into the land of your habitations, which I give unto you,

3 And [b] will make an offering by fire unto the LORD, a burnt-offering, or a sacrifice [c] in †performing a vow, or in a free-will-offering, or [d] in your solemn feasts, to make a [e] sweet savour unto the LORD, of the herd, or of the flock:

4 Then [f] shall he that offereth his offering unto the LORD bring [g] a meat-offering of a tenth-deal of flour mingled [h] with the fourth part of an hin of oil.

5 [i] And the fourth part of an hin of wine for a drink-offering shalt thou prepare with the burnt-offering or sacrifice, for one lamb.

6 [k] Or for a ram, thou shalt prepare for a meat-offering two tenth-deals of flour mingled with the third part of an hin of oil.

7 And for a drink-offering thou shalt offer the third part of an hin of wine, for a sweet savour unto the LORD.

8 And when thou preparest a bullock for a burnt-offering, or for a sacrifice in performing a vow, or [l] peace-offerings unto the LORD:

9 Then shall he bring [m] with a bullock a meat-offering of three tenth-deals of flour mingled with half an hin of oil.

10 And thou shalt bring for a drink-offering half an hin of wine, for an offering made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD:

11 [o] Thus shall it be done for one bullock, or for one ram, or for a lamb, or a kid.

12 According to the number that ye shall prepare, so shall ye do to every one according to their number.

13 All that are born of the country shall do these things after this manner, in offering an offering made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD.

14 And if a stranger sojourn with you, or whosoever be among you in your generations, and will offer an offering made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD; as ye do, so he shall do.

15 [p] One ordinance shall be both for you of the congregation, and also for the stranger that sojourneth with you, an ordinance for ever in your generations: as ye are, so shall the stranger be before the LORD.

16 One law and one manner shall be for you, and for the stranger that sojourneth with you.

17 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

18 [q] Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, When ye come into the land whither I bring you,

19 Then it shall be, that when ye eat of [r] the bread of the land, ye shall offer up an heave-offering unto the LORD.

20 [s] Ye shall offer up a cake of the first of your dough for an heave-offering: as ye do [t] the heave-offering of the threshing-floor, so shall ye heave it.

21 Of the first of your dough ye shall give unto the LORD an heave-offering in your generations.

22 ¶ And [u] if ye have erred, and not observed all these commandments which the LORD hath spoken unto Moses,

23 Even all that the LORD hath commanded you by the hand of Moses, from the day that the LORD commanded Moses, and henceforward among your generations;

24 Then it shall be [x] if aught be committed by ignorance †without the knowledge of the congregation, that all the congregation shall offer one young bullock for a burnt-offering, for a sweet savour unto the LORD, [y] with his meat-offering, and his drink-offering, according to the ‖manner, and [z] one kid of the goats for a sin-offering.

25 [a] And the priest shall make an atonement for all the congregation of the children of Israel, and it shall be forgiven them; for it is ignorance: and they shall bring their offering, a sacrifice made by fire unto the LORD, and their sin-offering before the LORD, for their ignorance:

26 And it shall be forgiven all the congregation of the children of Israel, and the stranger that sojourneth among them; seeing all the people were in ignorance.

27 ¶ And [b] if any soul sin through ignorance, then he shall bring a she-goat of the first year for a sin-offering.

28 [c] And the priest shall make an atonement for the soul that sinneth ignorantly, when he sinneth by ignorance before the LORD, to make an atonement for him; and it shall be forgiven him.

39 And it shall be unto you for a fringe, that ye may look upon it, and remember all the commandments of the LORD, and do them; and that ye [n]seek not after your own heart and your own eyes, after which ye use [o]to go a whoring:

CHAP. XVI.

The rebellion of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram.

NOW [a]Korah, the son of Izhar, the son of Kohath, the son of Levi; and Dathan and Abiram, the sons of Eliab; and On, the son of Peleth, sons of Reuben, took men;

2 And they rose up before Moses, with certain of the children of Israel, two hundred and fifty princes of the assembly, [b]famous in the congregation, men of renown:

3 And [c]they gathered themselves together against Moses and against Aaron, and said unto them, † Ye take too much upon you, seeing [d]all the congregation are holy, every one of them, [e]and the LORD is among them: wherefore then lift ye up yourselves above the congregation of the LORD?

4 And when Moses heard it, [f]he fell upon his face:

5 And he spake unto Korah and unto all his company, saying, Even to-morrow the LORD will shew who are his, and who is [g]holy; and will cause him to come near unto him: even him whom he hath [h]chosen will he cause to [i]come near unto him.

6 This do; Take you censers, Korah, and all his company;

7 And put fire therein, and put incense in them before the LORD to-morrow: and it shall be that the man whom the LORD doth choose, he shall be holy: ye take too much upon you, ye sons of Levi.

8 And Moses said unto Korah, Hear, I pray you, ye sons of Levi:

9 Seemeth it but [k]a small thing unto you, that the God of Israel hath [l]separated you from the congregation of Israel, to bring you near to himself to do the service of the tabernacle of the LORD, and to stand before the congregation to minister unto them?

10 And he hath brought thee near to him, and all thy brethren the sons of Levi with thee: and seek ye the priesthood also?

11 For which cause both thou and all thy company are gathered together against the LORD: [m]and what is Aaron, that ye murmur against him?

12 ¶ And Moses sent to call Dathan and Abiram, the sons of Eliab: which said, We will not come up:

13 [n]Is it a small thing that thou hast brought us up out of a land that floweth with milk and honey, to kill us in the wilderness, except thou [o]make thyself altogether a prince over us?

14 Moreover, thou hast not brought us into [p]a land that floweth with milk and honey, or given us inheritance of fields and vineyards: wilt thou † put out the eyes of these men? we will not come up.

15 And Moses was very wroth, and said unto the LORD, [q]Respect not thou their offering: [r]I have not taken one ass from them, neither have I hurt one of them.

16 And Moses said unto Korah, [s]Be thou and all thy company [t]before the LORD, thou, and they, and Aaron, to-morrow:

17 And take every man his censer, and put incense in them, and bring ye before the LORD every man his censer, two hundred and fifty censers; thou also and Aaron each of you his censer.

18 And they took every man his censer, and put fire in them, and laid incense thereon, and stood in the door of the tabernacle of the congregation with Moses and Aaron.

19 And Korah gathered all the congregation against them unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation: and [u]the glory of the LORD appeared unto all the congregation.

20 And the LORD spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, saying,

21 [x]Separate yourselves from among this congregation, that I may [y]consume them in a moment.

22 And they [z]fell upon their faces, and said, O God, [a]the God of the spirits of all flesh, shall one man sin, and wilt thou be wroth with all the congregation?

23 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

24 Speak unto the congregation, saying, Get you up from about the tabernacle of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram.

25 And Moses rose up, and went unto Dathan and Abiram; and the elders of Israel followed him.

26 And he spake unto the congregation, saying, [b]Depart, I pray you, from the tents of these wicked men, and touch nothing of theirs, lest ye be consumed in all their sins.

27 So they gat up from the tabernacle of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram, on every side: and Dathan and Abiram came out, and stood in the door of their tents, and their wives, and their sons, and their little children.

28 And Moses said, [c]Hereby ye shall know that the LORD hath sent me to do all these works; for I have not done them [d]of mine own mind.

30 But if the LORD † make [f] a new thing, and the earth open her mouth, and swallow them up, with all that appertain unto them, and they [g] go down quick into the pit; then ye shall understand that these men have provoked the LORD.

31 ¶ [h] And it came to pass, as he had made an end of speaking all these words, that the ground clave asunder that was under them:

32 And the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed them up, and their houses, and [i] all the men that appertained unto Korah, and all their goods.

33 They, and all that appertained to them, went down alive into the pit, and the earth closed upon them: and they perished from among the congregation.

34 And all Israel that were round about them, fled at the cry of them: for they said, Lest the earth swallow us up also.

35 And there [k] came out a fire from the LORD, and consumed [l] the two hundred and fifty men that offered incense.

36 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

37 Speak unto Eleazar the son of Aaron the priest, that he take up the censers out of the burning, and scatter thou the fire yonder; for [m] they are hallowed.

38 The censers of these [n] sinners against their own souls, let them make them broad plates for a covering of the altar: for they offered them before the LORD, therefore they are hallowed: [o] and they shall be a sign unto the children of Israel.

39 And Eleazar the priest took the brazen censers, wherewith they that were burnt had offered; and they were made broad plates for a covering of the altar:

40 To be a memorial unto the children of Israel, [p] that no stranger, which is not of the seed of Aaron, come near to offer incense before the LORD; that he be not as Korah, and as his company: as the LORD said to him by the hand of Moses.

41 ¶ But on the morrow [q] all the congregation of the children of Israel murmured against Moses and against Aaron, saying, Ye have killed the people of the LORD.

42 And it came to pass when the congregation was gathered against Moses and against Aaron, that they looked toward the tabernacle of the congregation: and behold, [r] the cloud covered it, and [s] the glory of the LORD appeared.

43 And Moses and Aaron came before the tabernacle of the congregation.

44 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

45 [t] Get you up from among this congregation, that I may consume them as in a moment. And [u] they fell upon their faces.

46 ¶ And Moses said unto Aaron, Take a censer, and put fire therein from off the altar, and put on incense, and go quickly unto the congregation, and make an atonement for them: [x] for there is wrath gone out from the LORD; the plague is begun.

47 And Aaron took as Moses commanded, and ran into the midst of the congregation; and behold, the plague was begun among the people: and he put on incense, and made an atonement for the people.

48 And he stood between the dead and the living; and the plague was stayed.

49 Now they that died in the plague were fourteen thousand and seven hundred, beside them that died about the matter of Korah.

50 And Aaron returned unto Moses unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation: and the plague was stayed.

Aaron's rod among all the rods of the tribes only flourisheth.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, and take of every one of them a rod according to the house of their fathers, of all their princes according to the house of their fathers, twelve rods: write thou every man's name upon his rod.

3 And thou shalt write Aaron's name upon the rod of Levi: for one rod shall be for the head of the house of their fathers

4 And thou shalt lay them up in the tabernacle of the congregation before the testimony, [a] where I will meet with you.

5 And it shall come to pass, that the man's rod [b] whom I shall choose shall blossom: and I will make to cease from me the murmurings of the children of Israel, [c] whereby they murmur against you.

6 ¶ And Moses spake unto the children of Israel, and every one of their princes gave him † a rod apiece, for each prince one, according to their father's houses, even twelve rods: and the rod of Aaron was among their rods.

7 And Moses laid up the rods before the LORD in [d] the tabernacle of witness.

8 And it came to pass, that on the morrow Moses went into the tabernacle of witness; and behold, the rod of Aaron for the house of Levi was budded, and brought forth buds, and bloomed blossoms, and yielded almonds.

9 And Moses brought out all the rods from before the LORD unto all the children of Israel: and they looked, and took every man his rod.

10 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Bring [e] Aaron's rod again before the testimony, to be kept [f] for a token against the † rebels; [g] and thou shalt quite take away their murmurings from me, that they die not.

11 And Moses did so: as the LORD commanded him, so did he.

and the charge of the altar; [l]that there be no wrath any more upon the children of Israel.

6 And I, behold, I have [m]taken your brethren the Levites from among the children of Israel: [n]to you they are given as a gift for the LORD, to do the service of the tabernacle of the congregation.

7 Therefore [o]thou and thy sons with thee shall keep your priest's office for every thing of the altar, and [p]within the vail; and ye shall serve: I have given your priest's office unto you as a service of gift: and the stranger that cometh nigh shall be put to death.

8 ¶And the LORD spake unto Aaron, Behold, [q]I also have given thee the charge of mine heave-offerings of all the hallowed things of the children of Israel; unto thee have I given them [r]by reason of the anointing, and to thy sons, by an ordinance for ever.

9 This shall be thine of the most holy things reserved from the fire: every oblation of theirs, every [s]meat-offering of theirs, and every [t]sin-offering of theirs, and every [u]trespass-offering of theirs, which they shall render unto me, shall be most holy for thee and for thy sons.

10 [x]In the most holy place shalt thou eat it; every male shall eat it: it shall be holy unto thee.

11 And this is thine; [y]the heave-offering of their gift, with all the wave-offerings of the children of Israel: I have given them unto [z]thee, and to thy sons, and to thy daughters with thee, by a statute for ever: [a]every one that is clean in thy house shall eat of it.

12 [b]All the †best of the oil, and all the best of the wine and of the wheat, [c]the first-fruits of them which they shall offer unto the LORD, them have I given thee.

13 And whatsoever is first ripe in the land, [d]which they shall bring unto the LORD, shall be thine; [e]every one that is clean in thine house shall eat of it.

14 [f]Every thing devoted in Israel shall be thine.

15 Every thing that openeth [g]the matrix in all flesh, which they bring unto the LORD, whether it be of men or beasts, shall be thine: nevertheless, [h]the first-born of man shalt thou surely redeem, and the firstling of unclean beasts shalt thou redeem.

16 And those that are to be redeemed from a month old shalt thou redeem, [i]according to thine estimation, for the money of five shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary, [k]which is twenty gerahs.

17 [l]But the firstling of a cow, or the firstling of a sheep, or the firstling of a goat, thou shalt not redeem; they are holy: [m]thou shalt sprinkle their blood upon the altar, and shalt burn their fat for an offering made by fire, for a sweet savour unto the LORD.

18 And the flesh of them shall be thine, as the [n]wave-breast and as the right shoulder are thine.

19 [o]All the heave-offerings of the holy things, which the children of Israel offer unto the LORD, have I given thee, and thy sons and thy daughters with thee, by a statute for ever: [p]it is a covenant of salt for ever before the LORD unto thee and to thy seed with thee.

20 ¶And the LORD spake unto Aaron, Thou shalt have no inheritance in their land, neither shalt thou have any part among them: [q]I am thy part and thine inheritance among the children of Israel.

21 And behold, [r]I have given the children of Levi all the tenth in Israel for an inheritance, for their service which they serve, even [s]the service of the tabernacle of the congregation.

22 [t]Neither must the children of Israel henceforth come nigh the tabernacle of the congregation, [u]lest they bear sin, †and die.

23 [x]But the Levites shall do the service of the tabernacle of the congregation, and they shall bear their iniquity: it shall be a statute for ever throughout your generations, that among the children of Israel they have no inheritance.

24 [y]But the tithes of the children of Israel, which they offer as an heave-offering unto the LORD, I have given to the Levites to inherit: therefore I have said unto them, [z]Among the children of Israel they shall have no inheritance.

25 ¶And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

26 Thus speak unto the Levites, and say unto them, When ye take of the children of Israel the tithes which I have given you from them for your inheritance, then ye shall offer up an heave-offering of it for the LORD, even [a]a tenth part of the tithe.

27 [b]And this your heave-offering shall be reckoned unto you, as though it were the corn of the threshing-floor, and as the fulness of the wine-press.

28 Thus ye also shall offer an heave-offering unto the LORD of all your tithes which ye receive of the children of Israel; and ye shall give thereof the LORD's heave-offering to Aaron the priest.

29 Out of all your gifts ye shall offer every heave-offering of the LORD, of all the †best thereof, even the hallowed part thereof out of it.

30 Therefore thou shalt say unto them, When ye have heaved the best thereof from it, [c]then it shall be counted unto the Levites as the increase of the threshing-floor, and as the increase of the wine-press.

31 And ye shall eat it in every place, ye and your households: for it is [d]your reward for your service in the tabernacle of the congregation.

32 And ye shall [e]bear no sin by reason of it, when ye have heaved from it the best of it: neither shall ye [f]pollute the holy things of the children of Israel, lest ye die.

The water of separation made of the ashes of a red heifer.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, saying,

2 This is the ordinance of the law which the LORD hath commanded, saying, Speak unto the children of Israel, that they bring thee a red heifer without spot, wherein is no blemish, [a]and upon which never came yoke:

3 And ye shall give her unto Eleazar the priest, that he may bring her [b]forth without the camp, and one shall slay her before his face:

4 And Eleazar the priest shall take of her blood with his finger, and [c]sprinkle of her blood directly before the tabernacle of the congregation seven times:

5 And one shall burn the heifer in his sight; [d]her skin, and her flesh, and her blood, with her dung, shall he burn:

6 And the priest shall take [e]cedar-wood, and hyssop, and scarlet, and cast it into the midst of the burning of the heifer.

7 [f]Then the priest shall wash his clothes, and he shall bathe his flesh in water, and afterward he shall come into the camp, and the priest shall be unclean until the even.

8 And he that burneth her shall wash his clothes in water, and bathe his flesh in water, and shall be unclean until the even.

EGYPTIANS URGE MOSES TO DEPART.—Exodus xii. 31–33

9 And a man that is clean shall gather up [g] the ashes of the heifer, and lay them up without the camp in a clean place, and it shall be kept for the congregation of the children of Israel [h] for a water of separation: it is a purification for sin.

10 And he that gathereth the ashes of the heifer shall wash his clothes, and be unclean until the even: and it shall be unto the children of Israel, and unto the stranger that sojourneth among them, for a statute for ever.

11 ¶ [i] He that toucheth the dead body of any † man shall be unclean seven days.

12 [k] He shall purify himself with it on the third day, and on the seventh day he shall be clean: but if he purify not himself the third day, then the seventh day he shall not be clean.

13 Whosoever toucheth the dead body of any man that is dead, and purifieth not himself, [l] defileth the tabernacle of the LORD; and that soul shall be cut off from Israel: because [m] the water of separation was not sprinkled upon him, he shall be unclean; [n] his uncleanness is yet upon him.

14 This is the law, when a man dieth in a tent: all that come into the tent, and all that is in the tent shall be unclean seven days.

15 And every [o] open vessel which hath no covering bound upon it, is unclean.

16 And [p] whosoever toucheth one that is slain with a sword in the open fields, or a dead body, or a bone of a man, or a grave, shall be unclean seven days.

17 And for an unclean person they shall take of the † [q] ashes of the burnt heifer of purification for sin, and † running water shall be put thereto in a vessel:

18 And a clean person shall take [r] hyssop, and dip it in the water, and sprinkle it upon the tent, and upon all the vessels, and upon the persons that were there, and upon him that touched a bone, or one slain, or one dead, or a grave:

19 And the clean person shall sprinkle upon the unclean on the third day, and on the seventh day: [s] and on the seventh day he shall purify himself, and wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and shall be clean at even.

20 But the man that shall be unclean, and shall not purify himself, that soul shall be cut off from among the congregation, because he hath [t] defiled the sanctuary of the LORD: the water of separation hath not been sprinkled upon him; he is unclean.

21 And it shall be a perpetual statute unto them, that he that sprinkleth the water of separation shall wash his clothes; and he that toucheth the water of separation shall be unclean until even.

22 And [u] whatsoever the unclean person toucheth shall be unclean; and [x] the soul that toucheth it shall be unclean until even.

CHAP. XX.

2 The children of Israel murmur for want of water. 7 Moses, smiting the rock, bringeth forth water at Meribah.

THEN [a] came the children of Israel, even the whole congregation, into the desert of Zin in the first month: and the people abode in Kadesh; and [b] Miriam died there, and was buried there.

2 [c] And there was no water for the congregation: [d] and they gathered themselves together against Moses and against Aaron.

3 And the people [e] chode with Moses, and spake, saying, Would God that we had died [f] when our brethren died before the LORD!

4 And [g] why have ye brought up the congregation of the LORD into this wilderness, that we and our cattle should die there?

5 And wherefore have ye made us to come up out of Egypt, to bring us unto this evil place? it is no place of seed, or of figs, or of vines, or of pomegranates; neither is there any water to drink.

6 And Moses and Aaron went from the presence of the assembly unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, and [h] they fell upon their faces: and [i] the glory of the LORD appeared unto them.

7 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

8 [k] Take the rod, and gather thou the assembly together, thou and Aaron thy brother, and speak ye unto the rock before their eyes; and it shall give forth his water, and [l] thou shalt bring forth to them water out of the rock: so thou shalt give the congregation and their beasts drink.

9 And Moses took the rod [m] from before the LORD, as he commanded him.

10 And Moses and Aaron gathered the congregation together before the rock, and he said unto them, [n] Hear now, ye rebels; must we fetch you water out of this rock?

11 And Moses lifted up his hand, and with his rod he smote the rock twice: and [o] the water came out abundantly, and the congregation drank, and their beasts also.

12 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses and Aaron, Because [p] ye believed me not, to [q] sanctify me in the eyes of the children of Israel, therefore ye shall not bring this congregation into the land which I have given them.

13 [r] This is the water of ‖ Meribah; because the children of Israel strove with the LORD, and he was sanctified in them.

14 ¶ [s] And Moses sent messengers from Kadesh unto the king of Edom, [t] Thus saith thy brother Israel, Thou knowest all the travail that hath † befallen us:

15 [u] How our fathers went down into Egypt, [w] and we have dwelt in Egypt a long time; [x] and the Egyptians vexed us, and our fathers:

16 And [y] when we cried unto the LORD, he heard our voice, and [z] sent an angel, and hath brought us forth out of Egypt: and behold, we are in Kadesh, a city in the uttermost of thy border:

17 [a] Let us pass, I pray thee, through thy country: we will not pass through the fields, or through the vineyards, neither will we drink of the water of the wells: we will go by the king's high-way, we will not turn to the right hand nor to the left, until we have passed thy borders.

18 And Edom said unto him, Thou shalt not pass by me, lest I come out against thee with the sword.

19 And the children of Israel said unto him, We will go by the highway: and if I and my cattle drink of thy water, [b] then I will pay for it: I will only, without doing any thing else, go through on my feet.

20 And he said, [c] Thou shalt not go through. And Edom came out against him with much people, and with a strong hand.

21 Thus Edom [d] refused to give Israel passage through his border: wherefore Israel [e] turned away from him.

22 ¶ And the children of Israel, even the whole congregation, journeyed from [f] Kadesh, [g] and came unto Mount Hor.

23 And the LORD spake unto Moses and Aaron in mount Hor, by the coast of the land of Edom, saying,

24 Aaron shall be [h]gathered unto his people: for he shall not enter into the land which I have given unto the children of Israel, because [i]ye rebelled against my †word at the water of Meribah.

25 [k]Take Aaron and Eleazar his son, and bring them up unto mount Hor:

26 And strip Aaron of his garments, and put them upon Eleazar his son: and Aaron shall be gathered unto his people, and shall die there.

27 And Moses did as the LORD commanded: and they went up into mount Hor in the sight of all the congregation.

28 [l]And Moses stripped Aaron of his garments, and put them upon Eleazar his son; and [m]Aaron died there in the top of the mount: and Moses and Eleazar came down from the mount.

29 And when all the congregation saw that Aaron was dead, they mourned for Aaron [n]thirty days, even all the house of Israel.

CHAP. XXI.

7 The people repenting, are healed by a brazen serpent. 21 Sihon is overcome, 33 and Og.

AND when [a]king Arad the Canaanite, which dwelt in the south, heard tell that Israel came [b]by the way of the spies; then he fought against Israel, and took some of them prisoners.

2 [c]And Israel vowed a vow unto the LORD, and said, If thou wilt indeed deliver this people into my hand, then [d]I will utterly destroy their cities.

3 And the LORD hearkened to the voice of Israel, and delivered up the Canaanites; and they utterly destroyed them and their cities: and he called the name of the place ‖ Hormah.

4 ¶ And [e]they journeyed from mount Hor by the way of the Red sea, to [f]compass the land of Edom: and the soul of the people was much ‖ †discouraged because of the way.

5 And the people [g]spake against God, and against Moses, [h]Wherefore have ye brought us up out of Egypt to die in the wilderness? for there is no bread, neither is there any water; and [i]our soul loatheth this light bread.

6 And [k]the LORD sent [l]fiery serpents among the people, and they bit the people; and much people of Israel died.

7 ¶ [m]Therefore the people came to Moses, and said, We have sinned, for [n]we have spoken against the LORD, and against thee; [o]pray unto the LORD, that he take away the serpents from us. And Moses prayed for the people.

8 And the LORD said unto Moses, Make thee a fiery serpent, and set it upon a pole: and it shall come to pass, that every one that is bitten, when he looketh upon it, shall live.

9 And [p]Moses made a serpent of brass, and put it upon a pole, and it came to pass, that if a serpent had bitten any man, when he beheld the serpent of brass, he lived.

10 ¶ And the children of Israel set forward, and [q]pitched in Oboth.

11 And they journeyed from Oboth, and [r]pitched at ‖ Ije-abarim, in the wilderness which is before Moab, toward the sun-rising.

12 ¶ [s]From thence they removed, and pitched in the valley of Zared.

13 From thence they removed, and pitched on the other side of Arnon, which is in the wilderness that cometh out of the coasts of the Amorites: for [t]Arnon is the border of Moab, between Moab and the Amorites.

14 Wherefore it is said in the book of the wars of the LORD, ‖ What he did in the Red sea, and in the brooks of Arnon,

15 And at the stream of the brooks that goeth down to the dwelling of Ar, [u]and †lieth upon the border of Moab.

16 And from thence they went [x]to Beer: that is the well whereof the LORD spake unto Moses, Gather the people together, and I will give them water.

17 ¶ [y]Then Israel sang this song, † Spring up, O well; ‖ sing ye unto it:

18 The princes digged the well, the nobles of the people digged it, by the direction of [z]the law-giver, with their staves. And from the wilderness they went to Mattanah:

19 And from Mattanah to Nahaliel: and from Nahaliel to Bamoth:

20 And from Bamoth in the valley, that is in the †country of Moab, to the top of ‖ Pisgah, which looketh [a]toward ‖ Jeshimon.

21 ¶ And [b]Israel sent messengers unto Sihon king of the Amorites, saying,

22 [c]Let me pass through thy land: we will not turn into the fields, or into the vineyards: we will not drink of the waters of the well: but we will go along by the king's high-way, until we be past thy borders.

23 [d]And Sihon would not suffer Israel to pass through his border: but Sihon gathered all his people together, and went out against Israel into the wilderness: [e]and he came to Jahaz, and fought against Israel:

24 And [f]Israel smote him with the edge of the sword, and possessed his land from Arnon unto Jabbok, even unto the children of Ammon: for the border of the children of Ammon was strong.

25 And Israel took all these cities: and Israel dwelt in all the cities of the Amorites, in Heshbon, and in all the †villages thereof.

26 For Heshbon was the city of Sihon the king of the Amorites, who had fought against the former king of Moab, and taken all his land out of his hand, even unto Arnon.

27 Wherefore they that speak in proverbs say, Come into Heshbon, let the city of Sihon be built and prepared.

28 For there is [g]a fire gone out of Heshbon, a flame from the city of Sihon: it hath consumed [h]Ar of Moab, and the lords of the high places of Arnon.

29 Wo to thee, Moab! thou art undone, O people of [i]Chemosh: he hath given his sons that escaped, and his daughters, into captivity unto Sihon king of the Amorites.

30 We have shot at them; Heshbon is perished even [k]unto Dibon, and we have laid them waste even unto Nophah, which reacheth unto Medeba.

31 ¶ Thus Israel dwelt in the land of the Amorites.

32 And Moses sent to spy out [m]Jazer, and they took the villages thereof, and drove out the Amorites that were there.

33 ¶ [n]And they turned and went up by the way of Bashan: and Og the king of Bashan went out against them, he, and all his people, to the battle [o]at Edrei.

34 And the LORD said unto Moses, [p]Fear him not: for I have delivered him into thy hand, and all his people, and his land; and [q]thou shalt do to him as thou

CHAP. XXII.

Balak's message for Balaam. 22 An angel would have slain him, if his ass had not saved him.

AND [a] the children of Israel set forward, and pitched in the plains of Moab on this side Jordan by Jericho.

2 ¶ And [b] Balak the son of Zippor saw all that Israel had done to the Amorites.

3 And [c] Moab was sore afraid of the people, because they were many: and Moab was distressed because of the children of Israel.

4 And Moab said unto [d] the elders of Midian, Now shall this company lick up all that are round about us, as the ox licketh up the grass of the field. And Balak the son of Zippor was king of the Moabites at that time.

5 [e] He sent messengers therefore unto Balaam the son of Beor to [f] Pethor, which is by the river of the land of the children of his people, to call him, saying, Behold, there is a people come out from Egypt: behold, they cover the †face of the earth, and they abide over against me:

6 Come now therefore, I pray thee, [g] curse me this people; for they are too mighty for me: peradventure I shall prevail, that we may smite them, and that I may drive them out of the land: for I wot that he whom thou blessest is blessed, and he whom thou cursest is cursed.

7 And the elders of Moab and the elders of Midian departed with [h] the rewards of divination in their hand; and they came unto Balaam, and spake unto him the words of Balak.

8 And he said unto them, [i] Lodge here this night, and I will bring you word again, as the LORD shall speak unto me: and the princes of Moab abode with Balaam.

9 [k] And God came unto Balaam, and said, What men are these with thee?

10 And Balaam said unto God, Balak the son of Zippor, king of Moab, hath sent unto me, saying,

11 Behold, there is a people come out of Egypt, which covereth the face of the earth: come now, curse me them; peradventure †I shall be able to overcome them, and drive them out.

12 And God said unto Balaam, Thou shalt not go with them; thou shalt not curse the people: for [l] they are blessed.

13 And Balaam rose up in the morning, and said unto the princes of Balak, Get you into your land: for the LORD refuseth to give me leave to go with you.

14 And the princes of Moab rose up, and they went unto Balak, and said, Balaam refuseth to come with us.

15 ¶ And Balak sent yet again princes, more, and more honourable than they.

16 And they came to Balaam, and said to him, Thus saith Balak the son of Zippor, †Let nothing, I pray thee, hinder thee from coming unto me:

17 For I will promote thee unto very great honour, and I will do whatsoever thou sayest unto me: [m] come therefore, I pray thee, curse me this people.

18 And Balaam answered and said unto the servants of Balak, [n] If Balak would give me his house full of silver and gold, [o] I cannot go beyond the word of the LORD my God, to do less or more.

19 Now therefore, I pray you, [p] tarry ye also here this night, that I may know what the LORD will say unto me more.

20 [q] And God came unto Balaam at night, and said unto him, If the men come to call thee, rise up, and go with them; but [r] yet the word which I shall say unto thee, that shalt thou do.

21 And Balaam rose up in the morning, and saddled his ass, and went with the princes of Moab.

22 ¶ And God's anger was kindled because he went: [s] and the angel of the LORD stood in the way for an adversary against him. Now he was riding upon his ass, and his two servants were with him.

23 And [t] the ass saw the angel of the LORD standing in the way, and his sword drawn in his hand: and the ass turned aside out of the way, and went into the field: and Balaam smote the ass, to turn her into the way.

24 But the angel of the LORD stood in a path of the vineyards, a wall being on this side, and a wall on that side.

25 And when the ass saw the angel of the LORD, she thrust herself unto the wall, and crushed Balaam's foot against the wall: and he smote her again.

26 And the angel of the LORD went further, and stood in a narrow place where was no way to turn either to the right hand or to the left.

27 And when the ass saw the angel of the LORD, she fell down under Balaam: and Balaam's anger was kindled, and he smote the ass with a staff.

28 And the LORD [u] opened the mouth of the ass, and she said unto Balaam, What have I done unto thee, that thou hast smitten me these three times?

29 And Balaam said unto the ass, Because thou hast mocked me: I would there were a sword in mine hand, [x] for now would I kill thee.

30 [y] And the ass said unto Balaam, Am not I thine ass, †upon which thou hast ridden ‖ ever since I was thine unto this day? was I ever wont to do so unto thee? And he said, Nay.

31 Then the LORD [z] opened the eyes of Balaam, and he saw the angel of the LORD standing in the way, and his sword drawn in his hand: and he [a] bowed down his head, and ‖ fell flat on his face.

32 And the angel of the LORD said unto him, Wherefore hast thou smitten thine ass these three times? behold, I went out †to withstand thee, because thy way is [b] perverse before me:

33 And the ass saw me, and turned from me these three times: unless she had turned from me, surely now also I had slain thee, and saved her alive.

34 And Balaam said unto the angel of the LORD, [c] I have sinned; for I knew not that thou stoodest in the way against me: now therefore, if it †displease thee, I will get me back again.

35 And the angel of the LORD said unto Balaam, Go with the men: [d] but only the word that I shall speak unto thee, that thou shalt speak: so Balaam went with the princes of Balak.

36 ¶ And when Balak heard that Balaam was come, [e] he went out to meet him unto a city of Moab, [f] which is in the border of Arnon, which is in the utmost coast.

37 And Balak said unto Balaam, Did I not earnestly send unto thee to call thee? wherefore camest thou not unto me? am I not able indeed [g] to promote thee to honour?

40 And Balak offered oxen and sheep, and sent to Balaam, and to the princes that were with him.

41 And it came to pass on the morrow, that Balak took Balaam, and brought him up into the [i]high places of Baal, that thence he might see the utmost part of the people.

CHAP. XXIII.

1, 13, 28 Balak's sacrifice. 7, 18 Balaam's parable.

AND Balaam said unto Balak, [a]Build me here seven altars, and prepare me here seven oxen and seven rams.

2 And Balak did as Balaam had spoken; and Balak and Balaam [b]offered on every altar a bullock and a ram.

3 And Balaam said unto Balak, [c]Stand by thy burnt-offering, and I will go; peradventure the LORD will come [d]to meet me: and whatsoever he sheweth me I will tell thee. And ‖ he went to an high place.

4 [e]And God met Balaam: and he said unto him, I have prepared seven altars, and I have offered upon every altar a bullock and a ram.

5 And the LORD [f]put a word in Balaam's mouth, and said, Return unto Balak, and thus thou shalt speak.

6 And he returned unto him, and lo, he stood by his burnt-sacrifice, he, and all the princes of Moab.

7 And he [g]took up his parable, and said, Balak the king of Moab hath brought me from Aram, out of the mountains of the east, saying, [h]Come, curse me Jacob, and come, [i]defy Israel.

8 [k]How shall I curse, whom God hath not cursed? or how shall I defy, whom the LORD hath not defied?

9 For from the top of the rocks I see him, and from the hills I behold him: lo, [l]the people shall dwell alone, and [m]shall not be reckoned among the nations.

10 [n]Who can count the dust of Jacob, and the number of the fourth part of Israel? Let †me die [o]the death of the righteous, and let my last end be like his!

11 And Balak said unto Balaam, What hast thou done unto me? [p]I took thee to curse mine enemies, and behold, thou hast blessed them altogether.

12 And he answered and said, [q]Must I not take heed to speak that which the LORD hath put in my mouth?

13 And Balak said unto him, Come, I pray thee, with me unto another place, from whence thou mayest see them: thou shalt see but the utmost part of them, and shalt not see them all: and curse me them from thence.

14 ¶ And he brought him into the field of Zophim, to the top of ‖ Pisgah, [r]and built seven altars, and offered a bullock and a ram on every altar.

15 And he said unto Balak, Stand here by thy burnt-offering, while I meet the LORD yonder.

16 And the LORD met Balaam, and [s]put a word in his mouth, and said, Go again unto Balak, and say thus.

17 And when he came to him, behold, he stood by his burnt-offering, and the princes of Moab with him. And Balak said unto him, What hath the LORD spoken?

18 And he took up his parable, and said, [t]Rise up, Balak, and hear; hearken unto me, thou son of Zippor:

19 [u]God is not a man, that he should lie; neither the son of man, that he should repent: hath he said, and shall he not do it? or hath he spoken, and shall he not make it good?

20 Behold, I have received commandment to bless: and [x]he hath blessed, and I cannot reverse it.

21 [y]He hath not beheld iniquity in Jacob, neither hath he seen perverseness in Israel: [z]the LORD his God is with him, [a]and the shout of a king is among them.

22 [b]God brought them out of Egypt; he hath as it were [c]the strength of an unicorn.

23 Surely there is no enchantment ‖ against Jacob, neither is there any divination against Israel: according to this time it shall be said of Jacob and of Israel, [d]What hath God wrought!

24 Behold, the people shall rise up [e]as a great lion, and lift up himself as a young lion: [f]he shall not lie down until he eat of the prey, and drink the blood of the slain.

25 ¶ And Balak said unto Balaam, Neither curse them at all, nor bless them at all.

26 But Balaam answered and said unto Balak, Told not I thee, saying, [g]All that the LORD speaketh, that I must do?

27 ¶ And Balak said unto Balaam, [h]Come, I pray thee, I will bring thee unto another place; peradventure it will please God that thou mayest curse me them from thence.

28 And Balak brought Balaam unto the top of Peor, that looketh [i]toward Jeshimon.

29 And Balaam said unto Balak, [k]Build me here seven altars, and prepare me here seven bullocks and seven rams.

30 And Balak did as Balaam had said, and offered a bullock and a ram on every altar.

CHAP. XXIV.

1 Balaam prophesieth the happiness of Israel. 15 He prophesieth of the Star of Jacob.

AND when Balaam saw that it pleased the LORD to bless Israel, he went not, as at [a]other times, †to seek for enchantments, but he set his face toward the wilderness.

2 And Balaam lifted up his eyes, and he saw Israel [b]abiding in his tents according to their tribes, and [c]the Spirit of God came upon him.

3 [d]And he took up his parable, and said, Balaam the son of Beor hath said, and the man †whose eyes are open hath said:

4 He hath said, which heard the words of God, which saw the vision of the Almighty, [e]falling into a trance, but having his eyes open:

5 How goodly are thy tents, O Jacob, and thy tabernacles, O Israel!

6 As the valleys are they spread forth, as gardens by the river's side, [f]as the trees of lign-aloes [g]which the LORD hath planted, and as cedar-trees beside the waters.

7 He shall pour the water out of his buckets, and his seed shall be [h]in many waters, and his king shall be higher than [i]Agag, and his [k]kingdom shall be exalted.

8 [l]God brought him forth out of Egypt; he hath as it were the strength of an unicorn: he shall [m]eat up the nations his enemies, and shall [n]break their bones, and [o]pierce them through with his arrows.

10 ¶And Balak's anger was kindled against Balaam, and he [r]smote his hands together: and Balak said unto Balaam, [s]I called thee to curse mine enemies, and behold, thou hast altogether blessed them these three times.

11 Therefore now flee thou to thy place: [t]I thought to promote thee unto great honour; but lo, the LORD hath kept thee back from honour.

12 And Balaam said unto Balak, Spake I not also to thy messengers which thou sentest unto me, saying,

13 [u]If Balak would give me his house full of silver and gold, I cannot go beyond the commandment of the LORD, to do either good or bad of mine own mind; but what the LORD saith, that will I speak?

14 And now, behold, I go unto my people: come therefore, and [x]I will advertise thee what this people shall do to thy people [y]in the latter days.

15 ¶[z]And he took up his parable, and said, Balaam the son of Beor hath said, and the man whose eyes are open hath said:

16 He hath said, which heard the words of God, and knew the knowledge of the Most High, which saw the vision of the Almighty, falling into a trance, but having his eyes open:

17 [a]I shall see him, but not now: I shall behold him, but not nigh: there shall come [b]a Star out of Jacob, and [c]a Sceptre shall rise out of Israel, and shall ‖smite the corners of Moab, and destroy all the children of Sheth.

18 And [d]Edom shall be a possession, Seir also shall be a possession for his enemies; and Israel shall do valiantly.

19 [e]Out of Jacob shall come he that shall have dominion, and shall destroy him that remaineth of the city.

20 ¶And when he looked on Amalek, he took up his parable, and said, Amalek was ‖the first of the nations, but his latter end ‖shall be that he perish for ever.

21 And he looked on the Kenites, and took up his parable, and said, Strong is thy dwelling-place, and thou puttest thy nest in a rock.

22 Nevertheless, †the Kenite shall be wasted, ‖until Asshur shall carry thee away captive.

23 And he took up his parable, and said, Alas, who shall live when God doeth this!

24 And ships shall come from the coast of [f]Chittim, and shall afflict Asshur, and shall afflict [g]Eber, and he also shall perish for ever.

25 And Balaam rose up, and went and [h]returned to his place: and Balak also went his way.

CHAP. XXV.

6 Phinehas killeth Zimri and Cozbi. 10 God therefore giveth him an everlasting priesthood.

AND Israel abode in [a]Shittim, and [b]the people began to commit whoredom with the daughters of Moab.

2 And [c]they called the people unto [d]the sacrifices of their gods: and the people did eat, and bowed down to their gods.

3 And Israel joined himself unto Baal-peor: and the anger of the LORD was kindled against Israel.

4 And the LORD said unto Moses, [g]Take all the heads of the people, and hang them up before the LORD against the sun, [h]that the fierce anger of the LORD may be turned away from Israel.

5 And Moses said unto [i]the judges of Israel, [k]Slay ye every one his men that were joined unto Baal-peor.

6 ¶And, behold, one of the children of Israel came and brought unto his brethren a Midianitish woman in the sight of Moses, and in the sight of all the congregation of the children of Israel, [l]who were weeping before the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

7 And [m]when Phinehas, [n]the son of Eleazar, the son of Aaron the priest, saw it, he rose up from among the congregation, and took a javelin in his hand;

8 And he went after the man of Israel into the tent, and thrust both of them through, the man of Israel, and the woman through her belly: So [o]the plague was stayed from the children of Israel.

9 And [p]those that died in the plague were twenty and four thousand.

10 ¶And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

11 [q]Phinehas, the son of Eleazar, the son of Aaron the priest, hath turned my wrath away from the children of Israel (while he was zealous †for my sake among them) that I consumed not the children of Israel in [r]my jealousy.

12 Wherefore say, [s]Behold, I give unto him my covenant of peace:

13 And he shall have it, and [t]his seed after him, even the covenant of [u]an everlasting priesthood: because he was [x]zealous for his God, and [y]made an atonement for the children of Israel.

14 Now the name of the Israelite that was slain, even that was slain with the Midianitish woman, was Zimri, the son of Salu, a prince of a †chief house among the Simeonites.

15 And the name of the Midianitish woman that was slain was Cozbi, the daughter of [z]Zur; he was head over a people, and of a chief house in Midian.

16 ¶And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

17 [a]Vex the Midianites and smite them:

18 For they vex you with their [b]wiles, wherewith they have beguiled you in the matter of Peor, and in the matter of Cozbi, the daughter of a prince of Midian, their sister, which was slain in the day of the plague for Peor's sake.

CHAP. XXVI.

The sum of all Israel is taken in the plains of Moab.

AND it came to pass after the plague, that the LORD spake unto Moses, and unto Eleazar the son of Aaron the priest, saying,

2 [a]Take the sum of all the congregation of the children of Israel, [b]from twenty years old and upward, throughout their fathers' house, all that are able to go to war in Israel.

3 And Moses and Eleazar the priest spake with them [c]in the plains of Moab by Jordan near Jericho, saying,

4 Take the sum of the people, from twenty years old and upward; as the LORD [d]commanded Moses and the children of Israel, which went forth out of the land of Egypt.

5 ¶[e]Reuben the eldest son of Israel: the children of Reuben; Hanoch, of whom cometh the family of the Hanochites: of Pallu, the family of the Palluites:

7 These are the families of the Reubenites: and they that were numbered of them were forty and three thousand and seven hundred and thirty.

9 And the sons of Eliab; Nemuel, and Dathan, and Abiram. This is that Dathan and Abiram, which were [f] famous in the congregation, who strove against Moses and against Aaron in the company of Korah, when they strove against the LORD:

10 [g] And the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed them up together with Korah, when that company died, what time the fire devoured two hundred and fifty men: [h] and they became a sign.

11 Notwithstanding [i] the children of Korah died not.

12 ¶ The sons of Simeon after their families: of [k] Nemuel, the family of the Nemuelites: of Jamin, the family of the Jaminites: of [l] Jachin, the family of the Jachinites:

13 Of [m] Zerah, the family of the Zarhites: of Shaul, the family of the Shaulites.

14 These are the families of the Simeonites, twenty and two thousand and two hundred.

15 ¶ The children of Gad after their families: of [n] Zephon, the family of the Zephonites: of Haggi, the family of the Haggites: of Shuni, the family of the Shunites:

16 Of ‖ Ozni, the family of the Oznites: of Eri, the family of the Erites:

17 Of [o] Arod, the family of the Arodites: of Areli, the family of the Arelites.

18 These are the families of the children of Gad, according to those that were numbered of them, forty thousand and five hundred.

19 ¶ [p] The sons of Judah were Er and Onan: and Er and Onan died in the land of Canaan.

20 And [q] the sons of Judah after their families were; of Shelah, the family of the Shelanites: of Pharez, the family of the Pharzites: of Zerah, the family of the Zarhites.

21 And the sons of Pharez were; of Hezron, the family of the Hezronites: of Hamul, the family of the Hamulites.

22 These are the families of Judah according to those that were numbered of them, threescore and sixteen thousand and five hundred.

23 ¶ [r] Of the sons of Issachar after their families: of Tola, the family of the Tolaites: of ‖ Pua, the family of the Punites:

24 Of ‖ Jashub, the family of the Jashubites: of Shimron, the family of the Shimronites.

25 These are the families of Issachar according to those that were numbered of them, threescore and four thousand and three hundred.

26 ¶ [s] Of the sons of Zebulun after their families: of Sered, the family of the Sardites: of Elon, the family of the Elonites: of Jahleel, the family of the Jahleelites.

27 These are the families of the Zebulunites according to those that were numbered of them, threescore thousand and five hundred.

28 ¶ [t] The sons of Joseph after their families were Manasseh and Ephraim.

29 Of the sons of Manasseh: of [u] Machir, the family of the Machirites: and Machir begat Gilead: of Gilead come the family of the Gileadites.

30 These are the sons of Gilead: of [x] Jeezer, the family of the Jeezerites: of Helek, the family of the Helekites:

31 And of Asriel, the family of the Asrielites: and of Shechem, the family of the Shechemites:

32 And of Shemida, the family of the Shemidaites: and of Hepher, the family of the Hepherites.

33 ‖ And [y] Zelophehad the son of Hepher had no sons, but daughters: and the names of the daughters of Zelophehad were Mahlah, and Noah, Hoglah, Milcah, and Tirzah.

34 These are the families of Manasseh, and those that were numbered of them, fifty and two thousand and seven hundred.

35 ¶ These are the sons of Ephraim after their families: of Shuthelah, the family of the Shuthalhites: of [z] Becher, the family of the Bachrites: of Tahan, the family of the Tahanites.

36 And these are the sons of Shuthelah: of Eran, the family of the Eranites.

37 These are the families of the sons of Ephraim according to those that were numbered of them, thirty and two thousand and five hundred. These are the sons of Joseph after their families.

39 Of [c] Shupham, the family of the Shuphamites: of Hupham, the family of the Huphamites.

40 And the sons of Bela were [d] Ard and Naaman: of Ard, the family of the Ardites: and of Naaman, the family of the Naamites.

41 These are the sons of Benjamin after their families: and they that were numbered of them were forty and five thousand and six hundred.

42 ¶ [e] These are the sons of Dan after their families: of ‖ Shuham, the family of the Shuhamites. These are the families of Dan after their families.

43 All the families of the Shuhamites according to those that were numbered of them, were threescore and four thousand and four hundred.

44 ¶ [f] Of the children of Asher after their families: of Jimna, the family of the Jimnites: of Jesui, the family of the Jesuites: of Beriah, the family of the Beriites.

45 Of the sons of Beriah: of Heber, the family of the Heberites: of Malchiel, the family of the Malchielites.

46 And the name of the daughter of Asher was Sarah.

47 These are the families of the sons of Asher according to those that were numbered of them; who were fifty and three thousand and four hundred.

48 ¶ [g] Of the sons of Naphtali after their families: of Jahzeel, the family of the Jahzeelites: of Guni, the family of the Gunites:

49 Of Jezer, the family of the Jezerites: of [h] Shillem, the family of the Shillemites.

50 These are the families of Naphtali according to their families: and they that were numbered of them, were forty and five thousand and four hundred.

51 [i] These were the numbered of the children of Israel, six hundred thousand and a thousand seven hundred and thirty.

52 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

53 [k] Unto these the land shall be divided for an inheritance, according to the number of names.

54 [l] To many thou shalt † give the more inheritance, and to few thou shalt † give the less inheritance: to every one shall his inheritance be given, according to those that were numbered of him.

55 Notwithstanding, the land shall be [m] divided by lot: according to the names of the tribes of their fathers they shall inherit.

56 According to the lot shall the possession thereof be divided between many and few.

57 ¶ [n]And these are they that were numbered of the Levites after their families: of Gershon, the family of the Gershonites: of Kohath, the family of the Kohathites: of Merari, the family of the Merarites.

58 These are the families of the Levites: the family of the Libnites, the family of the Hebronites, the family of the Mahlites, the family of the Mushites, the family of the Korathites. And Kohath begat Amram.

59 And the name of Amram's wife was [o]Jochebed, the daughter of Levi, whom her mother bare to Levi in Egypt: and she bare unto Amram, Aaron and Moses, and Miriam their sister.

64 [x]But among these there was not a man of them whom Moses and Aaron the priest numbered, when they numbered the children of Israel in the wilderness of Sinai.

65 For the LORD had said of them, They [y]shall surely die in the wilderness. And there was not left a man of them, [z]save Caleb the son of Jephunneh, and Joshua the son of Nun.

¶ The law of inheritance. 12 Moses being told of his death, sueth for a suecessor.

THEN came the daughters of [a]Zelophehad, the son of Hepher, the son of Gilead, the son of Machir, the son of Manasseh, of the families of Manasseh the son of Joseph: and these are the names of his daughters; Mahlah, Noah, and Hoglah, and Milcah, and Tirzah.

2 And they stood before Moses, and before Eleazar the priest, and before the princes, and all the congregation, by the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, saying,

3 Our father [b]died in the wilderness, and he was not in the company of them that gathered themselves together against the LORD [c]in the company of Korah; but died in his own sin, and had no sons.

4 Why should the name of our father be †done away from among his family, because he hath no son? [d]Give unto us therefore a possession among the brethren of our father.

5 And Moses [e]brought their cause before the LORD.

6 ¶And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

7 The daughters of Zelophehad speak right: [f]thou shalt surely give them a possession of an inheritance among their father's brethren; and thou shalt cause the inheritance of their father to pass unto them.

8 And thou shalt speak unto the children of Israel, saying, If a man die, and have no son, then ye shall cause his inheritance to pass unto his daughter.

9 And if he have no daughter, then ye shall give his inheritance unto his brethren.

10 And if he have no brethren, then ye shall give his inheritance unto his father's brethren.

11 And if his father have no brethren, then ye shall give his inheritance unto his kinsman that is next to him of his family, and he shall possess it: and it shall be unto the children of Israel [g]a statute of judgment, as the LORD commanded Moses.

12 ¶And the LORD said unto Moses, [h]Get thee up into this mount Abarim, and see the land which I have given unto the children of Israel.

13 And when thou hast seen it, thou also [i]shalt be gathered unto thy people, as Aaron thy brother was gathered.

14 For ye [k]rebelled against my commandment in the desert of Zin, in the strife of the congregation, to sanctify me at the water before their eyes: that is the [l]water of Meribah in Kadesh in the wilderness of Zin.

15 ¶And Moses spake unto the LORD, saying,

16 Let the LORD, [m]the God of the spirits of all flesh, set a man over the congregation,

17 [n]Which may go out before them, and which may go in before them, and which may lead them out, and which may bring them in; that the congregation of the LORD be not [o]as sheep which have no shepherd.

18 ¶And the LORD said unto Moses, Take thee Joshua the son of Nun, a man [p]in whom is the spirit, and [q]lay thine hand upon him;

19 And set him before Eleazar the priest, and before all the congregation: and [r]give him a charge in their sight.

20 And [s]thou shalt put some of thine honour upon him, that all the congregation of the children of Israel [t]may be obedient.

21 [u]And he shall stand before Eleazar the priest, who shall ask counsel for him [x]after the judgment of Urim before the LORD: [y]at his word shall they go out, and at his word they shall come in, both he, and all the children of Israel with him, even all the congregation.

22 And Moses did as the LORD commanded him: and he took Joshua, and set him before Eleazar the priest, and before all the congregation:

23 And he laid his hands upon him, [z]and gave him a charge as the LORD commanded by the hand of Moses.

offering thereof, thou shalt offer it, a sacrifice made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD.

9 ¶And on the sabbath-day two lambs of the first year without spot, and two tenth-deals of flour for a meat-offering, mingled with oil, and the drink-offering thereof:

10 This is [h] the burnt-offering of every sabbath, beside the continual burnt-offering, and his drink-offering.

11 ¶And [i] in the beginnings of your months ye shall offer a burnt-offering unto the LORD; two young bullocks, and one ram, seven lambs of the first year without spot;

12 And [k] three tenth-deals of flour for a meat-offering, mingled with oil, for one bullock; and two tenth-deals of flour for a meat-offering, mingled with oil, for one ram;

13 And a several tenth-deal of flour mingled with oil for a meat-offering unto one lamb, for a burnt-offering of a sweet savour, a sacrifice made by fire unto the LORD.

14 And their drink-offerings shall be half an hin of wine unto a bullock, and the third part of an hin unto a ram, and a fourth part of an hin unto a lamb: this is the burnt-offering of every month throughout the months of the year.

15 And [l] one kid of the goats for a sin-offering unto the LORD shall be offered, beside the continual burnt-offering, and his drink-offering.

16 [m] And in the fourteenth day of the first month is the passover of the LORD.

17 [n] And in the fifteenth day of this month is the feast: seven days shall unleavened bread be eaten.

18 In the [o] first day shall be an holy convocation; ye shall do no manner of servile work therein:

19 But ye shall offer a sacrifice made by fire for a burnt-offering unto the LORD; two young bullocks, and one ram, and seven lambs of the first year: [p] they shall be unto you without blemish:

20 And their meat-offering shall be of flour mingled with oil: three tenth-deals shall ye offer for a bullock, and two tenth-deals for a ram;

21 A several tenth-deal shalt thou offer for every lamb, throughout the seven lambs:

22 And [q] one goat for a sin-offering, to make an atonement for you.

23 Ye shall offer these beside the burnt-offering in the morning, which is for a continual burnt-offering.

24 After this manner ye shall offer daily throughout the seven days, the meat of the sacrifice made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD: it shall be offered beside the continual burnt-offering, and his drink-offering.

25 And [r] on the seventh day ye shall have an holy convocation; ye shall do no servile work.

26 ¶Also [s] in the day of the first-fruits, when ye bring a new meat-offering unto the LORD, after your weeks be out, ye shall have an holy convocation; ye shall do no servile work:

27 But ye shall offer the burnt-offering for a sweet savour unto the LORD; [t] two young bullocks, one ram, seven lambs of the first year;

28 And their meat-offering of flour mingled with oil, three tenth-deals unto one bullock, two tenth-deals unto one ram,

29 A several tenth-deal unto one lamb, throughout the seven lambs;

30 And one kid of the goats, to make an atonement for you.

31 Ye shall offer them beside the continual burnt-offering and his meat-offering ([u] they shall be unto you without blemish) and their drink-offerings.

CHAP. XXIX.

The offering at the feasts.

AND in the seventh month, on the first day of the month, ye shall have an holy convocation; ye shall do no servile work: [a] it is a day of blowing the trumpets unto you.

2 And ye shall offer a burnt-offering for a sweet savour unto the LORD; one young bullock, one ram, and seven lambs of the first year without blemish:

3 And their meat-offering shall be of flour mingled with oil, three tenth-deals for a bullock, and two tenth-deals for a ram,

4 And one tenth-deal for one lamb, throughout the seven lambs:

5 And one kid of the goats for a sin-offering, to make an atonement for you:

6 Beside [b] the burnt-offering of the month, and his meat-offering, and [c] the daily burnt-offering, and his meat-offering, and their drink-offerings, [d] according unto their manner, for a sweet savour, a sacrifice made by fire unto the LORD.

7 ¶And [e] ye shall have on the tenth day of this seventh month an holy convocation: and ye shall [f] afflict your souls: ye shall not do any work therein:

8 But ye shall offer a burnt-offering unto the LORD for a sweet savour; one young bullock, one ram, and seven lambs of the first year; [g] they shall be unto you without blemish:

9 And their meat-offering shall be of flour mingled with oil, three tenth-deals to a bullock, and two tenth-deals to one ram,

10 A several tenth-deal for one lamb, throughout the seven lambs:

11 One kid of the goats for a sin-offering; besides [h] the sin-offering of atonement, and the continual burnt-offering, and the meat-offering of it, and their drink-offerings.

12 ¶And [i] on the fifteenth day of the seventh month ye shall have an holy convocation; ye shall do no servile work, and ye shall keep a feast unto the LORD seven days:

13 And [k] ye shall offer a burnt-offering, a sacrifice made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD; thirteen young bullocks, two rams, and fourteen lambs of the first year; they shall be without blemish:

14 And their meat-offering shall be of flour mingled with oil, three tenth-deals unto every bullock of the thirteen bullocks, two tenth-deals to each ram of the two rams,

15 And a several tenth-deal to each lamb of the fourteen lambs:

16 And one kid of the goats for a sin-offering; beside the continual burnt-offering, his meat-offering, and his drink-offering.

17 ¶And on the second day ye shall offer twelve young bullocks, two rams, fourteen lambs of the first year without spot:

18 And their meat-offering and their drink-offerings for the bullocks, for the rams, and for the lambs, shall be according to their number, [l] after the manner:

19 And one kid of the goats for a sin-offering; beside the continual burnt-offering, and the meat-offering thereof, and their drink-offerings.

36 But ye shall offer a burnt-offering, a sacrifice made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD: one bullock, one ram, seven lambs of the first year without blemish:

37 Their meat-offering and their drink-offerings for the bullock, for the ram, and for the lambs, shall be according to their number, after the manner:

38 And one goat for a sin-offering; beside the continual burnt-offering, and his meat-offering, and his drink-offering.

39 These things ye shall ‖ do unto the LORD in your [o] set feasts, beside your [p] vows, and your free-will-offerings, for your burnt-offerings, and for your meat-offerings, and for your drink-offerings, and for your peace-offerings.

40 And Moses told the children of Israel according to all that the LORD commanded Moses.

Vows are not to be broken.

AND Moses spake unto [a] the heads of the tribes concerning the children of Israel, saying, This is the thing which the LORD hath commanded.

2 [b] If a man vow a vow unto the LORD, or [c] swear an oath to bind his soul with a bond; he shall not † break his word, he shall [d] do according to all that proceedeth out of his mouth.

5 But if her father disallow her in the day that he heareth, not any of her vows or of her bonds wherewith she hath bound her soul shall stand; and the LORD shall forgive her, because her father disallowed her.

6 And if she had at all an husband when † she vowed, or uttered aught out of her lips, wherewith she bound her soul:

7 And her husband heard it, and held his peace at her in the day that he heard it: then her vows shall stand, and her bonds wherewith she bound her soul shall stand.

CHAP. XXXI.

The Midianites are spoiled, and Balaam slain.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 [a] Avenge the children of Israel of the Midianites: afterward shalt thou [b] be gathered unto thy people.

a ch. 25. 17.

b ch. 27. 13.

3 And Moses spake unto the people, saying, Arm some of yourselves unto the war, and let them go against the Midianites, and avenge the LORD of Midian.

4 † Of every tribe a thousand, throughout all the tribes of Israel, shall ye send to the war.

† Heb. A thousand of a tribe, a thousand of a tribe.

5 So there were delivered out of the thousands of Israel, a thousand of every tribe, twelve thousand armed for war.

6 And Moses sent them to the war, a thousand of every tribe, them and Phinehas the son of Eleazar the priest, to the war, with the holy instruments, and [c] the trumpets to blow in his hand.

7 And they warred against the Midianites, as the LORD commanded Moses; and [d] they slew all the [e] males.

8 And they slew the kings of Midian, beside the rest of them that were slain; namely, [f] Evi, and Rekem, and Zur, and Hur, and Reba, five kings of Midian: [g] Balaam also the son of Beor they slew with the sword.

9 And the children of Israel took all the women of Midian captives, and their little ones, and took the spoil of all their cattle, and all their flocks, and all their goods.

10 And they burnt all their cities wherein they dwelt, and all their goodly castles, with fire.

11 And [h] they took all the spoil, and all the prey, both of men and of beasts.

12 And they brought the captives, and the prey, and the spoil unto Moses and Eleazar the priest, and unto the congregation of the children of Israel, unto the camp at the plains of Moab, which are by Jordan near Jericho.

13 ¶ And Moses, and Eleazar the priest, and all the princes of the congregation, went forth to meet them without the camp.

14 And Moses was wroth with the officers of the host, with the captains over thousands, and captains over hundreds, which came from the † battle.

15 And Moses said unto them, Have ye saved [i] all the women alive?

16 Behold, [k] these caused the children of Israel, through the [l] counsel of Balaam, to commit trespass against the LORD in the matter of Peor, and [m] there was a plague among the congregation of the LORD.

17 Now therefore [n] kill every male among the little ones, and kill every woman that hath known man by lying with † him.

18 But all the women-children, that have not known a man by lying with him, keep alive for yourselves.

19 And [o] do ye abide without the camp seven days: whosoever hath killed any person, and [p] whosoever hath touched any slain, purify both yourselves and your captives on the third day, and on the seventh day.

20 And purify all your raiment, and all † that is made of skins, and all work of goats' hair, and all things made of wood.

21 ¶ And Eleazar the priest said unto the men of war which went to the battle, This is the ordinance of the law which the LORD commanded Moses;

22 Only the gold, and the silver, the brass, the iron, the tin, and the lead,

23 Every thing that may abide the fire, ye shall make it go through the fire, and it shall be clean: nevertheless it shall be purified [q] with the water of separation: and all that abideth not the fire ye shall make go through the water.

24 [r] And ye shall wash your clothes on the seventh day, and ye shall be clean, and afterward ye shall come into the camp.

25 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

26 Take the sum of the prey † that was taken, both of man and of beast, thou, and Eleazar the priest, and the chief fathers of the congregation:

29 Take it of their half, and give it unto Eleazar the priest, for an heave-offering of the LORD.

30 And of the children of Israel's half, thou shalt take [u] one portion of fifty, of the persons, of the beeves, of the asses, and of the ‖ flocks, of all manner of beasts, and give them unto the Levites, [x] which keep the charge of the tabernacle of the LORD.

31 And Moses and Eleazar the priest did as the LORD commanded Moses.

32 And the booty, being the rest of the prey which the men of war had caught, was six hundred thousand and seventy thousand and five thousand sheep,

33 And three score and twelve thousand beeves,

34 And threescore and one thousand asses,

35 And thirty and two thousand persons in all, of women that had not known man by lying with him.

36 And the half which was the portion of them that went out to war, was in number three hundred thousand and seven and thirty thousand and five hundred sheep:

37 And the LORD's tribute of the sheep was six hundred and threescore and fifteen.

38 And the beeves were thirty and six thousand; of which the LORD's tribute was threescore and twelve.

39 And the asses were thirty thousand and five hundred; of which the LORD's tribute was threescore and one.

40 And the persons were sixteen thousand, of which the LORD's tribute was thirty and two persons.

41 And Moses gave the tribute, which was the LORD's heave-offering, unto Eleazar the priest, [y] as the LORD commanded Moses.

42 And of the children of Israel's half, which Moses divided from the men that warred,

43 (Now the half that pertained unto the congregation was three hundred thousand and thirty thousand and seven thousand and five hundred sheep,

44 And thirty and six thousand beeves,

45 And thirty thousand asses and five hundred,

47 Even [z] of the children of Israel's half, Moses took one portion of fifty, both of man and of beast, and gave them unto the Levites, which kept the charge of the tabernacle of the LORD; as the LORD commanded Moses.

48 ¶ And the officers which were over thousands of the host, the captains of thousands, and captains of hundreds, came near unto Moses:

49 And they said unto Moses, Thy servants have taken the sum of the men of war which are under our † charge, and there lacketh not one man of us.

50 We have therefore brought an oblation for the LORD, what every man hath † gotten, of jewels of gold, chains, and bracelets, rings, ear-rings, and tablets, [a] to make an atonement for our souls before the LORD.

51 And Moses and Eleazar the priest took the gold of them, even all wrought jewels.

52 And all the gold of the † offering that they offered up to the LORD, of the captains of thousands, and of the captains of hundreds, was sixteen thousand seven hundred and fifty shekels.

53 (For [b] the men of war had taken spoil, every man for himself.)

54 And Moses and Eleazar the priest took the gold of the captains of thousands, and of hundreds, and brought it into the tabernacle of the congregation, [c] for a memorial for the children of Israel before the LORD.

CHAP. XXXII.

1 The Reubenites and Gadites sue for their inheritance on that side Jordan.
39 They conquer it.

NOW the children of Reuben and the children of Gad had a very great multitude of cattle: and when they saw the land of [a] Jazer, and the land of Gilead, that behold, the place was a place for cattle;

2 The children of Gad and the children of Reuben came and spake unto Moses, and to Eleazar the priest, and unto the princes of the congregation, saying,

3 Ataroth, and Dibon, and Jazer, and [b] Nimrah, and Heshbon, and Elealeh, and [c] Shebam, and Nebo, and [d] Beon,

4 Even the country [e] which the LORD smote before the congregation of Israel, is a land for cattle, and thy servants have cattle:

5 Wherefore, said they, if we have found grace in thy sight, let this land be given unto thy servants for a possession, and bring us not over Jordan.

6 ¶ And Moses said unto the children of Gad and to the children of Reuben, Shall your brethren go to war, and shall ye sit here?

7 And wherefore † discourage ye the heart of the children of Israel from going over into the land which the LORD hath given them?

8 Thus did your fathers, [f] when I sent them from Kadesh-barnea [g] to see the land.

9 For [h] when they went up unto the valley of Eshcol, and saw the land, they discouraged the heart of the children of Israel, that they should not go into the land which the LORD had given them.

10 [i] And the LORD's anger was kindled the same time, and he sware, saying,

11 Surely none of the men that came up out of Egypt, [k] from twenty years old and upward, shall see the land which I sware unto Abraham, unto Isaac, and unto Jacob; because [l] they have not † wholly followed me:

12 Save Caleb the son of Jephunneh the Kenezite, and Joshua the son of Nun: [m] for they have wholly followed the LORD.

13 And the LORD's anger was kindled against Israel, and he made them [n] wander in the wilderness forty years, until [o] all the generation that had done evil in the sight of the LORD was consumed.

14 And behold, ye are risen up in your fathers' stead, an increase of sinful men, to augment yet the [p] fierce anger of the LORD toward Israel.

15 For if ye [q] turn away from after him, he will yet again leave them in the wilderness; and ye shall destroy all this people.

16 ¶ And they came near unto him, and said, We will build sheep-folds here for our cattle, and cities for our little ones:

17 But [r] we ourselves will go ready armed before the children of Israel, until we have brought them unto their place: and our little ones shall dwell in the fenced cities, because of the inhabitants of the land.

18 [s] We will not return unto our houses, until the children of Israel have inherited every man his inheritance.

19 For we will not inherit with them on yonder side Jordan, or forward; [t] because our inheritance is fallen to us on this side Jordan eastward.

20 ¶ And [u] Moses said unto them, If ye will do this thing, if ye will go armed before the LORD to war,

21 And will go all of you armed over Jordan before the LORD, until he hath driven out his enemies from before him,

22 And [x] the land be subdued before the LORD: then afterward [y] ye shall return, and be guiltless before the LORD, and before Israel; and [z] this land shall be your possession before the LORD.

23 But if ye will not do so, behold, ye have sinned against the LORD: and be sure [a] your sin will find you out.

24 [b] Build you cities for your little ones, and folds for your sheep; and do that which hath proceeded out of your mouth.

25 And the children of Gad and the children of Reuben spake unto Moses, saying, Thy servants will do as my lord commandeth.

26 [c] Our little ones, our wives, our flocks, and all our cattle, shall be there in the cities of Gilead:

27 [d] But thy servants will pass over, every man armed for war, before the LORD to battle, as my lord saith.

28 So [e] concerning them Moses commanded Eleazar the priest, and Joshua the son of Nun, and the chief fathers of the tribes of the children of Israel:

29 And Moses said unto them, If the children of Gad and the children of Reuben will pass with you over Jordan, every man armed to battle, before the LORD, and the land shall be subdued before you; then ye shall give them the land of Gilead for a possession:

30 But if they will not pass over with you armed, they shall have possessions among you in the land of Canaan.

31 And the children of Gad and the children of Reuben answered, saying, As the LORD hath said unto thy servants, so will we do.

32 We will pass over armed before the LORD into the land of Canaan, that the possession of our inheritance on this side Jordan may be ours.

33 And [f] Moses gave unto them, even to the children of Gad, and to the children of Reuben, and unto half the tribe of Manasseh, the son of Joseph, [g] the kingdom of Sihon king of the Amorites, and the kingdom of Og king of Bashan, the land, with the cities thereof in the coasts, even the cities of the country round about.

34 ¶ And the children of Gad built [h] Dibon, and Ataroth, and [i] Aroer,

35 And Atroth, Shophan, and Jazer, and Jogbehah,

36 And [l] Beth-nimrah, and Beth-haran, [m] fenced cities: and folds for sheep.

37 And the children of Reuben [n] built Heshbon, and Elealeh, and Kirjathaim,

38 And [o] Nebo, and [p] Baal-meon, ([q] their names being changed,) and Shibmah: and † gave other names unto the cities which they builded.

39 And the children of [r] Machir the son of Manasseh went to Gilead, and took it, and dispossessed the Amorite which was in it.

40 And Moses [s] gave Gilead unto Machir, the son of Manasseh; and he dwelt therein.

CHAP. XXXIII.

Two and forty journeys of the Israelites.

THESE are the journeys of the children of Israel, which went forth out of the land of Egypt with their armies under the hand of Moses and Aaron.

2 And Moses wrote their goings out according to their journeys by the commandment of the LORD: and these are their journeys according to their goings out.

3 And they [a]departed from Rameses in [b]the first month, on the fifteenth day of the first month; on the morrow after the passover the children of Israel went out [c]with an high hand in the sight of all the Egyptians.

4 For the Egyptians buried all their first-born, [d]which the LORD had smitten among them: [e]upon their gods also the LORD executed judgments.

5 [f]And the children of Israel removed from Rameses, and pitched in Succoth.

6 And they departed from [g]Succoth, and pitched in Etham, which is in the edge of the wilderness.

7 And [h]they removed from Etham, and turned again unto Pi-hahiroth, which is before Baal-zephon: and they pitched before Migdol.

8 And they departed from before Pi-hahiroth, and [i]passed through the midst of the sea into the wilderness, and went three days' journey in the wilderness of Etham, and pitched in Marah.

9 And they removed from Marah, and [k]came unto Elim: and in Elim were twelve fountains of water, and threescore and ten palm trees; and they pitched there.

10 And they removed from Elim, and encamped by the Red sea.

11 And they removed from the Red sea, and encamped in the [l]wilderness of Sin.

12 And they took their journey out of the wilderness of Sin, and encamped in Dophkah.

13 And they departed from Dophkah, and encamped in Alush.

14 And they removed from Alush, and encamped at [m]Rephidim, where was no water for the people to drink.

15 And they departed from Rephidim, and pitched in the [n]wilderness of Sinai.

16 And they removed from the desert of Sinai, and pitched [o]at ‖ Kibroth-hattaavah.

17 And they departed from Kibroth-hattaavah, and [p]encamped at Hazeroth.

18 And they departed from Hazeroth, and pitched in [q]Rithmah.

19 And they departed from Rithmah, and pitched at Rimmon-parez.

20 And they departed from Rimmon-parez, and pitched in Libnah.

21 And they removed from Libnah, and pitched at Rissah.

22 And they journeyed from Rissah, and pitched in Kehelathah.

23 And they went from Kehelathah, and pitched in mount Shapher.

24 And they removed from mount Shapher, and encamped in Haradah.

25 And they removed from Haradah, and pitched in Makheloth.

26 And they removed from Makheloth, and encamped at Tahath.

27 And they departed from Tahath, and pitched at Tarah.

28 And they removed from Tarah, and pitched in Mithcah.

29 And they went from Mithcah, and pitched in Hashmonah.

30 And they departed from Hashmonah, and [r]encamped at Moseroth.

31 And they departed from Moseroth, and pitched in Bene-jaakan.

32 And they removed from [s]Bene-jaakan, and [t]encamped at Hor-hagidgad.

33 And they went from Hor-hagidgad, and pitched in Jotbathah.

34 And they removed from Jotbathah, and encamped at Ebronah.

35 And they departed from Ebronah, [u]and encamped at Ezion-gaber.

36 And they removed from Ezion-gaber, and pitched in the [w]wilderness of Zin, which is Kadesh.

37 And they removed from [x]Kadesh, and pitched in mount Hor, in the edge of the land of Edom.

38 And [y]Aaron the priest went up into mount Hor at the commandment of the LORD, and died there, in the fortieth year after the children of Israel were come out of the land of Egypt, in the first day of the fifth month.

39 And Aaron was an hundred and twenty and three years old when he died in mount Hor.

40 And [z]king Arad the Canaanite, which dwelt in the south in the land of Canaan, heard of the coming of the children of Israel.

41 And they departed from mount [a]Hor, and pitched in Zalmonah.

42 And they departed from Zalmonah, and pitched in Punon.

43 And they departed from Punon, and [b]pitched in Oboth.

44 And [c]they departed from Oboth, and pitched in ‖ Ije-abarim, in the border of Moab.

45 And they departed from Iim, and pitched [c]in Dibon-gad.

46 And they removed from Dibon-gad, and encamped in Almon-[f]diblathaim.

47 And they removed from Almon-diblathaim, [g]and pitched in the mountains of Abarim, before Nebo.

48 And they departed from the mountains of Abarim, and [h]pitched in the plains of Moab by Jordan near Jericho.

49 And they pitched by Jordan, from Beth-jesimoth even unto ‖ [i]Abel-shittim in the plains of Moab.

50 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses in the plains of Moab by Jordan near Jericho, saying,

51 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, [k]When ye are passed over Jordan into the land of Canaan;

52 [l]Then ye shall drive out all the inhabitants of the land from before you, and destroy all their pictures, and destroy all their molten images, and quite pluck down all their high places:

53 And ye shall dispossess the inhabitants of the land, and dwell therein: for I have given you the land to possess it.

54 And [m]ye shall divide the land by lot for an inheritance among your families: and to the more ye shall †give the more inheritance, and to the fewer ye shall †give the less inheritance: every man's inheritance shall be in the place where his lot falleth; according to the tribes of your fathers ye shall inherit.

55 But if ye will not drive out the inhabitants of the land from before you; then it shall come to pass, that those which ye let remain of them shall be [n] pricks in your eyes, and thorns in your sides, and shall vex you in the land wherein ye dwell.

56 Moreover, it shall come to pass, that I shall do unto you, as I thought to do unto them.

CHAP. XXXIV.

The names of the men which shall divide the land.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Command the children of Israel, and say unto them, When ye come into [a] the land of Canaan; (this is the land that shall fall unto you for an inheritance, even the land of Canaan with the coasts thereof:)

3 Then [b] your south quarter shall be from the wilderness of Zin along by the coast of Edom, and your south border shall be the outmost coast of [c] the salt sea eastward:

4 And your border shall turn from the south [d] to the ascent of Akrabbim, and pass on to Zin: and the going forth thereof shall be from the south [e] to Kadesh-barnea, and shall go on to [f] Hazar-addar, and pass on to Azmon:

5 And the border shall fetch a compass from Azmon [g] unto the river of Egypt, and the goings out of it shall be at the sea.

6 And as for the western border, ye shall even have the great sea for a border: this shall be your west border.

7 And this shall be your north border: from the great sea ye shall point out for you [h] mount Hor:

8 From mount Hor ye shall point out your border [i] unto the entrance of Hamath: and the goings forth of the border shall be to [k] Zedad:

9 ¶ And the border shall go on to Ziphron, and the goings out of it shall be at [l] Hazar-enan: this shall be your north border.

10 And ye shall point out your east border from Hazar-enan to Shepham:

11 And the coast shall go down from Shepham [m] to Riblah, on the east side of Ain; and the border shall descend, and shall reach unto the †side of the sea [n] of Chinnereth eastward:

12 And the border shall go down to Jordan, and the goings out of it shall be at [o] the salt sea. This shall be your land with the coasts thereof round about.

13 And Moses commanded the children of Israel, saying, [p] This is the land which ye shall inherit by lot, which the LORD commanded to give unto the nine tribes, and to the half tribe:

14 [q] For the tribe of the children of Reuben, according to the house of their fathers, and the tribe of the children of Gad according to the house of their fathers, have received their inheritance; and half the tribe of Manasseh have received their inheritance:

15 The two tribes and the half-tribe have received their inheritance on this side Jordan near Jericho eastward, toward the sun-rising.

16 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

17 These are the names of the men which shall divide the land unto you: [r] Eleazar the priest, and Joshua the son of Nun.

18 And ye shall take one [s] prince of every tribe, to divide the land by inheritance.

19 And the names of the men are these: Of the tribe of Judah, Caleb the son of Jephunneh.

20 And of the tribe of the children of Simeon, Shemuel the son of Ammihud.

21 Of the tribe of Benjamin, Elidad the son of Chislon.

22 And the prince of the tribe of the children of Dan, Bukki the son of Jogli.

23 The prince of the children of Joseph, for the tribe of the children of Manasseh, Hanniel the son of Ephod.

24 And the prince of the tribe of the children of Ephraim, Kemuel the son of Shiphtan.

25 And the prince of the tribe of the children of Zebulun, Elizaphan the son of Parnach.

26 And the prince of the tribe of the children of Issachar, Paltiel the son of Azzan.

27 And the prince of the tribe of the children of Asher, Ahihud the son of Shelomi.

28 And the prince of the tribe of the children of Naphtali, Pedahel the son of Ammihud.

29 These are they whom the LORD commanded to divide the inheritance unto the children of Israel in the land of Canaan.

CHAP. XXXV.

1 Eight and forty cities for the Levites, with their suburbs, and measure thereof. 6 Six of them are to be cities of refuge. 9 The laws of murder. 31 No satisfaction for murder.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses in the plains of Moab by Jordan near Jericho, saying,

2 [a] Command the children of Israel, that they give unto the Levites of the inheritance of their possession cities to dwell in; and ye shall give also unto the Levites suburbs for the cities round about them.

3 And the cities shall they have to dwell in; and the suburbs of them shall be for their cattle, and for their goods, and for all their beasts.

4 And the suburbs of the cities which ye shall give unto the Levites, shall reach from the wall of the city and outward a thousand cubits round about.

5 And ye shall measure from without the city on the east side two thousand cubits, and on the south side two thousand cubits, and on the west side two thousand cubits, and on the north side two thousand cubits; and the city shall be in the midst: this shall be to them the suburbs of the cities.

6 And among the cities which ye shall give unto the Levites there shall be [b] six cities for refuge, which ye shall appoint for the manslayer, that he may flee thither: and †to them ye shall add forty and two cities.

7 So all the cities which ye shall give to the Levites shall be [c] forty and eight cities: them shall ye give with their suburbs.

8 And the cities which ye shall give shall be [d] of the possession of the children of Israel: [e] from them that have many ye shall give many; but from them that have few ye shall give few: every one shall give of his cities unto the Levites according to his inheritance which †he inheriteth.

9 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

10 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, [f] When ye be come over Jordan into the land of Canaan;

11 Then [g] ye shall appoint you cities to be cities of refuge for you; that the slayer may flee thither, which killeth any person †at unawares.

14 [k] Ye shall give three cities on this side Jordan, and three cities shall ye give in the land of Canaan, which shall be cities of refuge.

15 These six cities shall be a refuge, both for the children of Israel, and [l] for the stranger, and for the sojourner among them: that every one that killeth any person unawares may flee thither.

CHAP. XXXVI.

The daughters of Zelophehad marry their father's brothers' sons.

AND the chief fathers of the families of the [a] children of Gilead, the son of Machir, the son of Manasseh, of the families of the sons of Joseph, came near, and spake before Moses, and before the princes, the chief fathers of the children of Israel:

2 And they said, [b] The LORD commanded my lord to give the land for an inheritance by lot to the children of Israel: and [c] my lord was commanded by the LORD to give the inheritance of Zelophehad our brother unto his daughters.

3 And if they be married to any of the sons of the other tribes of the children of Israel, then shall their inheritance be taken from the inheritance of our fathers, and shall be put to the inheritance of the tribe † whereunto they are received: so shall it be taken from the lot of our inheritance.

4 And when [d] the jubilee of the children of Israel shall be, then shall their inheritance be put unto the inheritance of the tribe whereunto they are received: so shall their inheritance be taken away from the inheritance of the tribe of our fathers.

5 And Moses commanded the children of Israel according to the word of the LORD, saying, The tribe of the sons of Joseph [e] hath said well.

6 This is the thing which the LORD doth command concerning the daughters of Zelophehad, saying, Let them † marry to whom they think best; [f] only to the family of the tribe of their father shall they marry.

7 So shall not the inheritance of the children of Israel remove from tribe to tribe: for every one of the children of Israel shall † [g] keep himself to the inheritance of the tribe of his fathers.

8 And [h] every daughter, that possesseth an inheritance in any tribe of the children of Israel, shall be wife unto one of the family of the tribe of her father, that the children of Israel may enjoy every man the inheritance of his fathers.

9 Neither shall the inheritance remove from one tribe to another tribe; but every one of the tribes of the children of Israel shall keep himself to his own inheritance.

10 Even as the LORD commanded Moses, so did the daughters of Zelophehad;

11 [i] For Mahlah, Tirzah, and Hoglah, and Milcah, and Noah, the daughters of Zelophehad, were married unto their father's brothers' sons:

12 And they were married † into the families of the sons of Manasseh the son of Joseph, and their inheritance remained in the tribe of the family of their father.

13 These are the commandments and the judgments, which the LORD commanded by the hand of Moses unto the children of Israel [k] in the plains of Moab by Jordan near Jericho.

The FIFTH Book of Moses, called DEUTERONOMY.

CHAP. I.

1 Moses' speech rehearsing the story of God's promise, 19 of sending the spies to search the land.

THESE be the words which Moses spake unto all Israel [a]on this side Jordan in the wilderness, in the plain over against ‖the Red sea, between Paran, and Tophel, and Laban, and Hazeroth, and Dizahab.

2 (There are eleven days' journey from Horeb by the way of mount Seir [b]unto Kadesh-barnea.)

3 And it came to pass [c]in the fortieth year, in the eleventh month, on the first day of the month, that Moses spake unto the children of Israel, according unto all that the LORD had given him in commandment unto them;

4 [d]After he had slain Sihon the king of the Amorites, which dwelt in Heshbon, and Og the king of Bashan, which dwelt at Astaroth [e]in Edrei:

5 On this side Jordan, in the land of Moab, began Moses to declare this law, saying,

6 The LORD our God spake unto us [f]in Horeb, saying, Ye have dwelt long [g]enough in this mount:

7 Turn you, and take your journey, and go to the mount of the Amorites, and unto †all the places nigh thereunto, in the plain, in the hills, and in the vale, and in the south, and by the sea-side, to the land of the Canaanites, and unto Lebanon, unto the great river, the river Euphrates.

8 Behold, I have †set the land before you: go in and possess the land which the LORD sware unto your fathers, [h]Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, to give unto them and to their seed after them.

9 ¶ And [i]I spake unto you at that time, saying, I am not able to bear you myself alone:

10 The LORD your God hath multiplied you, and behold, [k]ye are this day as the stars of heaven for multitude.

11 ([l]The LORD God of your fathers make you a thousand times so many more as ye are, and bless you, [m]as he hath promised you!)

12 [n]How can I myself alone bear your cumbrance, and your burden, and your strife?

13 [o]†Take you wise men, and understanding, and known among your tribes, and I will make them rulers over you.

14 And ye answered me, and said, The thing which thou hast spoken is good for us to do.

15 So I took the chief of your tribes, wise men, and known, [p]and †made them heads over you, captains over thousands, and captains over hundreds, and captains over fifties, and captains over tens, and officers among your tribes.

16 And I charged your judges at that time, saying, Hear the causes between your brethren, and [q]judge righteously between every man and his [r]brother, and the stranger that is with him.

17 [s]Ye shall not †respect persons in judgment; but ye shall hear the small as well as the great; ye shall not be afraid of the face of man; for [t]the judgment is God's: and the cause that is too hard for you, [u]bring it unto me, and I will hear it.

18 And I commanded you at that time all the things which ye should do.

19 ¶ And when we departed from Horeb, [x]we went through all that great and terrible wilderness, which ye saw by the way of the mountain of the Amorites, as the LORD our God commanded us; and [y]we came to Kadesh-barnea.

20 And I said unto you, Ye are come unto the mountain of the Amorites, which the LORD our God doth give unto us.

21 Behold, the LORD thy God hath set the land before thee: go up and possess it, as the LORD God of thy fathers hath said unto thee; [z]fear not, neither be discouraged.

22 ¶ And ye came near unto me every one of you, and said, We will send men before us, and they shall search us out the land, and bring us word again by what way we must go up, and into what cities we shall come.

23 And the saying pleased me well: and [a]I took twelve men of you, one of a tribe:

24 And [b]they turned and went up into the mountain, and came unto the valley of Eshcol, and searched it out.

25 And they took of the fruit of the land in their hands, and brought it down unto us, and brought us word again, and said, [c]It is a good land which the LORD our God doth give us.

26 [d]Notwithstanding, ye would not go up, but rebelled against the commandment of the LORD your God:

27 And ye murmured in your tents, and said, Because the LORD [e]hated us, he hath brought us forth out of the land of Egypt, to deliver us into the hand of the Amorites, to destroy us.

28 Whither shall we go up? our brethren have †discouraged our heart, saying, [f]The people is greater and taller than we; the cities are great and walled up to heaven; and moreover, we have seen the sons of the [g]Anakims there.

29 Then I said unto you, Dread not, neither be afraid of them.

30 [h]The LORD your God which goeth before you, he shall fight for you, according to all that he did for you in Egypt before your eyes;

31 And in the wilderness, where thou hast seen how that the LORD thy God [i]bare thee, as a man doth bear his son, in all the way that ye went, until ye came into this place.

32 Yet in this thing [k]ye did not believe the LORD your God,

33 Who went in the way before you, [m]to search you out a place to pitch your tents in, in fire by night, to shew you by what way ye should go, and in a cloud by day.

34 And the LORD heard the voice of your words, and was wroth, [n]and sware, saying,

35 [o]Surely there shall not one of these men of this evil generation see that good land, which I sware to give unto your fathers,

36 [p]Save Caleb the son of Jephunneh; he shall see it, and to him will I give the land that he hath trodden upon, and to his children, because [q]he hath †wholly followed the LORD.

37 [r]Also the LORD was angry with me, for your sakes, saying, Thou also shalt not go in thither.

38 [s]But Joshua the son of Nun, [t]which standeth before thee, he shall go in thither. [u]Encourage him: for he shall cause Israel to inherit it.

no knowledge between good and evil, they shall go in thither, and unto them will I give it, and they shall possess it.

40 [a] But as for you, turn you, and take your journey into the wilderness by the way of the Red sea.

41 Then ye answered and said unto me, [b] We have sinned against the LORD, we will go up and fight, according to all that the LORD our God commanded us. And when ye had girded on every man his weapons of war, ye were ready to go up into the hill.

42 And the LORD said unto me, Say unto them, [c] Go not up, neither fight; for I am not among you; lest ye be smitten before your enemies.

43 So I spake unto you; and ye would not hear, but rebelled against the commandment of the LORD, and †[d] went presumptuously up into the hill.

44 And the Amorites, which dwelt in that mountain, came out against you, and chased you, [e] as bees do, and destroyed you in Seir, even unto Hormah.

45 And ye returned and wept before the LORD; but the LORD would not hearken to your voice, nor give ear unto you.

46 [f] So ye abode in Kadesh many days, according unto the days that ye abode there.

CHAP. II.

The story is continued, that they were not to meddle with the Edomites, Moabites, nor Ammonites, &c.

THEN we turned, and took our journey into the wilderness by the way of the Red sea, [a] as the LORD spake unto me: and we compassed mount Seir many days.

2 And the LORD spake unto me, saying,

3 Ye have compassed this mountain [b] long enough: turn you northward.

4 And command thou the people, saying, [c] Ye are to pass through the coast of your brethren the children of Esau, which dwell in Seir; and they shall be afraid of you: take ye good heed unto yourselves therefore:

5 Meddle not with them; for I will not give you of their land, †no, not so much as a foot-breadth; [d] because I have given mount Seir unto Esau for a possession.

6 Ye shall buy meat of them for money, that ye may eat; and ye shall also buy water of them for money, that ye may drink.

7 For the LORD thy God hath blessed thee in all the works of thy hand: he knoweth thy walking through this great wilderness: [e] these forty years the LORD thy God hath been with thee: thou hast lacked nothing.

8 [f] And when we passed by from our brethren the children of Esau, which dwelt in Seir, through the way of the plain from [g] Elath, and from Ezion-gaber, we turned and passed by the way of the wilderness of Moab.

9 And the LORD said unto me, ‖ Distress not the Moabites, neither contend with them in battle: for I will not give thee of their land for a possession; because I have given [h] Ar unto [i] the children of Lot for a possession.

10 ([k] The Emims dwelt therein in times past, a people great, and many, and tall as [l] the Anakims;

11 Which also were accounted giants, as the Anakims; but the Moabites call them Emims.

12 [m] The Horims also dwelt in Seir before-time, but the children of Esau †succeeded them, when they had destroyed them from before them and dwelt in their ‖ stead; as Israel did unto the land of his possession, which the LORD gave unto them.)

13 Now rise up, said I, and get you over [n] the ‖ brook Zered: and we went over the brook Zered.

14 And the space in which we came [o] from Kadesh-barnea, until we were come over the brook Zered, was thirty and eight years; [p] until all the generation of the men of war were wasted out from among the host, [q] as the LORD sware unto them.

15 For indeed the [r] hand of the LORD was against them, to destroy them from among the host, until they were consumed.

16 ¶ So it came to pass, when all the men of war were consumed and dead from among the people,

17 That the LORD spake unto me, saying,

18 Thou art to pass over through Ar, the coast of Moab, this day:

19 And when thou comest nigh over against the children of Ammon, distress them not, nor meddle with them: for I will not give thee of the land of the children of Ammon any possession; because I have given it unto [s] the children of Lot for a possession.

20 (That also was accounted a land of giants: giants dwelt therein in old time; and the Ammonites call them [t] Zamzummims;

21 [u] A people great, and many, and tall as the Anakims; but the LORD destroyed them before them; and they succeeded them, and dwelt in their stead:

22 As he did to the children of Esau, [x] which dwelt in Seir, when he destroyed [y] the Horims from before them; and they succeeded them, and dwelt in their stead even unto this day:

23 And [z] the Avims which dwelt in Hazerim, even unto [a] Azzah, [b] the Caphtorims, which came forth out of Caphtor, destroyed them, and dwelt in their stead.)

24 ¶ Rise ye up, take your journey, and [c] pass over the river Arnon: behold, I have given into thy hand Sihon the Amorite, king of Heshbon, and his land: †begin to possess it, and contend with him in battle.

25 [d] This day will I begin to put the dread of thee and the fear of thee upon the nations that are under the whole heaven, who shall hear report of thee, and shall tremble, and be in anguish because of thee.

26 ¶ And I sent messengers out of the wilderness of Kedemoth unto Sihon king of Heshbon [e] with words of peace, saying,

27 [f] Let me pass through thy land: I will go along by the highway, I will neither turn unto the right hand nor to the left.

28 Thou shalt sell me meat for money, that I may eat; and give me water for money, that I may drink: [g] only I will pass through on my feet;

29 ([h] As the children of Esau which dwell in Seir, and the Moabites which dwell in Ar, did unto me;) until I shall pass over Jordan into the land which the LORD our God giveth us.

30 [i] But Sihon king of Heshbon would not let us pass by him: for [k] the LORD thy God [l] hardened his spirit, and made his heart obstinate, that he might deliver him into thy hand, as appeareth this day.

31 And the LORD said unto me, Behold, I have begun to [m] give Sihon and his land before thee: begin to possess, that thou mayest inherit his land.

32 [n] Then Sihon came out against us, he and all his people, to fight at Jahaz.

33 And [o] the LORD our God delivered him before us; and [p] we smote him, and his sons, and all his people.

34 And we took all his cities at that time, and [q] utterly destroyed † the men, and the women, and the little ones of every city; we left none to remain:

35 Only the cattle we took for a prey unto ourselves, and the spoil of the cities which we took.

36 [r] From Aroer which is by the brink of the river of Arnon, and from the city that is by the river, even unto Gilead, there was not one city too strong for us: [s] the LORD our God delivered all unto us:

37 Only unto the land of the children of Ammon thou camest not, nor unto any place of the river [t] Jabbok, nor unto the cities in the mountains, nor unto [u] whatsoever the LORD our God forbade us.

CHAP. III.

23 Moses' prayer to enter into the land. 27 He is permitted to see it.

WHEN we turned, and went up the way to Bashan: and [a] Og the king of Bashan came out against us, he and all his people, to battle [b] at Edrei.

2 And the LORD said unto me, Fear him not; for I will deliver him, and all his people, and his land, into thy hand; and thou shalt do unto him as thou didst unto [c] Sihon king of the Amorites, which dwelt at Heshbon.

3 So the LORD our God delivered into our hands Og also the king of Bashan, and all his people: [d] and we smote him until none was left to him remaining.

4 And we took all his cities at that time, there was not a city which we took not from them, threescore cities, [e] all the region of Argob, the kingdom of Og in Bashan.

5 All these cities were fenced with high walls, gates, and bars; beside unwalled towns a great many.

6 And we utterly destroyed them, as we did unto Sihon king [f] of Heshbon, utterly destroying the men, women, and children of every city.

7 But all the cattle, and the spoil of the cities, we took for a prey to ourselves.

8 And we took at that time out of the hand of the two kings of the Amorites the land that was on this side Jordan, from the river of Arnon unto mount Hermon;

9 (Which [g] Hermon the Sidonians call Sirion; and the Amorites call it [h] Shenir;)

10 [i] All the cities of the plain, and all Gilead, and [k] all Bashan, unto Salchah and Edrei, cities of the kingdom of Og in Bashan.

11 [l] For only Og king of Bashan remained of the remnant of [m] giants; behold, his bedstead was a bedstead of iron; is it not in [n] Rabbath of the children of Ammon? nine cubits was the length thereof, and four cubits the breadth of it, after the cubit of a man.

12 And this land, which we possessed at that time, [o] from Aroer, which is by the river Arnon, and half mount Gilead, and [p] the cities thereof, gave I unto the Reubenites and to the Gadites.

13 [q] And the rest of Gilead, and all Bashan, being the kingdom of Og, gave I unto the half-tribe of Manasseh; all the region of Argob, with all Bashan, which was called the land of giants.

14 [r] Jair the son of Manasseh took all the country of Argob, [s] unto the coasts of Geshuri, and Maachathi; and [t] called them after his own name, Bashan-havoth-jair, unto this day.

15 [u] And I gave Gilead unto Machir.

16 And unto the Reubenites [w] and unto the Gadites I gave from Gilead even unto the river Arnon, half the valley, and the border, even unto the river Jabbok, [x] which is the border of the children of Ammon:

17 The plain also, and Jordan, and the coast thereof, from [y] Chinnereth [z] even unto the sea of the plain, [a] even the salt sea, ‖ under Ashdoth-pisgah eastward.

18 ¶ And I commanded you at that time, saying, The LORD your God hath given you this land to possess it; [b] ye shall pass over armed before your brethren the children of Israel, all that are † meet for the war.

19 But your wives, and your little ones, and your cattle, (for I know that ye have much cattle,) shall abide in your cities which I have given you;

20 Until the LORD have given rest unto your brethren, as well as unto you, and until they also possess the land which the LORD your God hath given them beyond Jordan: and then shall ye [c] return every man unto his possession which I have given you.

21 ¶ And [d] I commanded Joshua at that time, saying, Thine eyes have seen all that the LORD your God hath done unto these two kings: so shall the LORD do unto all the kingdoms whither thou passest.

22 Ye shall not fear them: for [e] the LORD your God he shall fight for you.

23 And [f] I besought the LORD at that time, saying,

24 O Lord GOD, thou hast begun to shew thy servant [g] thy greatness, and thy mighty hand: for [h] what God is there in heaven or in earth, that can do according to thy works, and according to thy might?

25 I pray thee, let me go over, and see [i] the good land that is beyond Jordan, that goodly mountain, and Lebanon.

26 But the LORD [k] was wroth with me for your sakes, and would not hear me: and the LORD said unto me, Let it suffice thee; speak no more unto me of this matter.

27 [l] Get thee up into the top of ‖ Pisgah, and lift up thine eyes westward, and northward, and southward, and eastward, and behold it with thine eyes: for thou shalt not go over this Jordan.

28 But [m] charge Joshua, and encourage him, and strengthen him: for he shall go over before this people, and he shall cause them to inherit the land which thou shalt see.

29 So we abode in [n] the valley over against Beth-peor.

CHAP. IV.

Moses appointeth the three cities of refuge on that side Jordan.

NOW therefore hearken, O Israel, unto [a] the statutes and unto the judgments, which I teach you, for to do them, that ye may live, and go in and possess the land which the LORD God of your fathers giveth you.

2 [b] Ye shall not add unto the word which I command you, neither shall ye diminish aught from it, that ye may keep the commandments of the LORD your God which I command you.

3 Your eyes have seen what the LORD did because of [c] Baal-peor: for all the men that followed Baal-peor, the LORD thy God hath destroyed them from among you.

4 But ye that did cleave unto the LORD your God, are alive every one of you this day.

5 Behold, I have taught you statutes, and judgments, even as the LORD my God commanded me, that ye should do so in the land whither ye go to possess it.

6 Keep therefore and do them: for this is [d] your wisdom and your understanding in the sight of the nations, which shall hear all these statutes, and say, Surely this great nation is a wise and understanding people.

7 For [c]what nation is there so great, who hath [d]God so nigh unto them, as the LORD our God is in all things that we call upon him for?

8 And what nation is there so great, that hath statutes and judgments so righteous as all this law, which I set before you this day?

9 Only take heed to thyself, and [g]keep thy soul diligently, [h]lest thou forget the things which thine eyes have seen, and lest they depart from thy heart all the days of thy life: but [i]teach them thy sons, and thy sons' sons:

10 Specially [k]the day that thou stoodest before the LORD thy God in Horeb, when the LORD said unto me, Gather me the people together, and I will make them hear my words, that they may learn to fear me all the days that they shall live upon the earth, and that they may teach their children.

11 And ye came near and stood under the mountain; and the [l]mountain burned with fire unto the †midst of heaven, with darkness, clouds, and thick darkness.

12 [m]And the LORD spake unto you out of the midst of the fire: [n]ye heard the voice of the words, but saw no similitude; [o]† only ye heard a voice.

13 [p]And he declared unto you his covenant, which he commanded you to perform, even [q]ten commandments; and [r]he wrote them upon two tables of stone.

14 ¶ And [s]the LORD commanded me at that time to teach you statutes and judgments, that ye might do them in the land whither ye go over to possess it.

15 [t]Take ye therefore good heed unto yourselves; (for ye saw no manner of [u]similitude on the day that the LORD spake unto you in Horeb out of the midst of the fire;)

16 Lest ye [x]corrupt yourselves, and [y]make you a graven image, the similitude of any figure, [z]the likeness of male or female,

17 The likeness of any beast that is on the earth, the likeness of any winged fowl that flieth in the air,

18 The likeness of any thing that creepeth on the ground, the likeness of any fish that is in the waters beneath the earth:

19 And lest thou [a]lift up thine eyes unto heaven, and when thou seest the sun, and the moon, and the stars, even [b]all the host of heaven, shouldest be driven to [c]worship them, and serve them, which the LORD thy God hath ‖divided unto all nations under the whole heaven.

20 But the LORD hath taken you, and [d]brought you forth out of the iron furnace, even out of Egypt, [e]to be unto him a people of inheritance, as ye are this day.

21 Furthermore, [f]the LORD was angry with me for your sakes, and sware that I should not go over Jordan, and that I should not go in unto that good land which the LORD thy God giveth thee for an inheritance:

22 But [g]I must die in this land, [h]I must not go over Jordan: but ye shall go over, and possess [i]that good land.

23 Take heed unto yourselves, [k]lest ye forget the covenant of the LORD your God, which he made with you, [l]and make you a graven image, or the likeness of any thing which the LORD thy God hath forbidden thee.

24 For [m]the LORD thy God is a consuming fire, even [n]a jealous God.

25 ¶ When thou shalt beget children, and children's children, and ye shall have remained long in the land, and [o]shall corrupt yourselves, and make a graven image, or the likeness of any thing, and [p]shall do evil in the sight of the LORD thy God, to provoke him to anger;

26 [q]I call heaven and earth to witness against you this day, that ye shall soon utterly perish from off the land whereunto ye go over Jordan to possess it: ye shall not prolong your days upon it, but shall utterly be destroyed.

27 And the LORD [r]shall scatter you among the nations, and ye shall be left few in number among the heathen, whither the LORD shall lead you.

28 And [s]there ye shall serve gods, the work of men's hands, wood and stone, [t]which neither see, nor hear, nor eat, nor smell.

29 [u]But if from thence thou shalt seek the LORD thy God, thou shalt find him, if thou seek him with all thy heart, and with all thy soul.

30 When thou art in tribulation, and all these things †are come upon thee, [x]even in the latter days, if thou [y]turn to the LORD thy God, and shalt be obedient unto his voice;

31 (For the LORD thy God is [z]a merciful God;) he will not forsake thee, neither destroy thee, nor forget the covenant of thy fathers, which he sware unto them.

32 For [a]ask now of the days that are past, which were before thee, since the day that God created man upon the earth, and ask [b]from the one side of heaven unto the other, whether there hath been any such thing as this great thing is, or hath been heard like it?

33 [c]Did ever people hear the voice of God speaking out of the midst of the fire, as thou hast heard, and live?

34 Or hath God assayed to go and take him a nation from the midst of another nation, [d]by temptations, [e]by signs, and by wonders, and by war, and [f]by a mighty hand, and [g]by a stretched-out arm, [h]and by great terrors, according to all that the LORD your God did for you in Egypt before your eyes?

35 Unto thee it was shewed, that thou mightest know that the LORD he is God: [i]there is none else beside him.

36 [k]Out of heaven he made thee to hear his voice, that he might instruct thee: and upon earth he shewed thee his great fire; and thou heardest his words out of the midst of the fire.

37 And because [l]he loved thy fathers, therefore he chose their seed after them, and [m]brought thee out in his sight with his mighty power out of Egypt;

38 [n]To drive out nations from before thee, greater and mightier than thou art, to bring thee in, to give thee their land for an inheritance, as it is this day.

39 Know therefore this day, and consider it in thine heart, that [o]the LORD he is God in heaven above, and upon the earth beneath: there is none else.

40 [p]Thou shalt keep therefore his statutes and his commandments which I command thee this day, [q]that it may go well with thee, and with thy children after thee, and that thou mayest prolong thy days upon the earth, which the LORD thy God giveth thee, for ever.

41 ¶ Then Moses [r]severed three cities on this side Jordan, toward the sun-rising;

42 [s]That the slayer might flee thither, which should kill his neighbour unawares, and hated him not in times past; and that fleeing unto one of these cities he might live:

of the Gadites; and Golan in Bashan, of the Manassites.

44 ¶ And this is the law which Moses set before the children of Israel:

45 These are the testimonies, and the statutes, and the judgments, which Moses spake unto the children of Israel, after they came forth out of Egypt,

46 On this side Jordan, [u]in the valley over against Beth-peor, in the land of Sihon king of the Amorites, who dwelt at Heshbon, whom Moses and the children of Israel [x]smote, after they were come forth out of Egypt:

47 And they possessed his land, and the land [y]of Og king of Bashan, two kings of the Amorites, which were on this side Jordan, toward the sun-rising;

48 [z]From Aroer, which is by the bank of the river Arnon, even unto mount Sion, which is [a]Hermon,

49 And all the plain on this side Jordan eastward, even unto the sea of the plain, under the [b]springs of Pisgah.

CHAP. V.

1 The covenant in Horeb. 6 The ten commandments. 22 At the people's request Moses receiveth the law from God.

AND Moses called all Israel, and said unto them, Hear, O Israel, the statutes and judgments which I speak in your ears this day, that ye may learn them, and †keep, and do them.

2 [a]The LORD our God made a covenant with us in Horeb.

3 The LORD [b]made not this covenant with our fathers, but with us, even us, who are all of us here alive this day.

4 [c]The LORD talked with you face to face in the mount, out of the midst of the fire,

5 ([d]I stood between the LORD and you at that time, to shew you the word of the LORD: for [e]ye were afraid by reason of the fire, and went not up into the mount,) saying,

6 ¶ [f]I am the LORD, thy God, which brought thee out of the land of Egypt, from the house of †bondage.

7 [g]Thou shalt have none other gods before me.

8 [h]Thou shalt not make thee any graven image, or any likeness of any thing that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the waters beneath the earth:

9 Thou shalt not bow down thyself unto them, nor serve them: for I the LORD thy God am a jealous God, [i]visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate me,

10 [k]And shewing mercy unto thousands of them that love me, and keep my commandments.

11 [l]Thou shalt not take the name of the LORD thy God in vain: for the LORD will not hold him guiltless that taketh his name in vain.

12 [m]Keep the sabbath-day to sanctify it, as the LORD thy God hath commanded thee.

13 [n]Six days thou shalt labour, and do all thy work;

14 But the seventh day is the [o]sabbath of the LORD thy God: in it thou shalt not do any work, thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, nor thy man-servant, nor thy maid-servant, nor thine ox, nor thine ass, nor any of thy cattle, nor thy stranger that is within thy gates; that thy man-servant and thy maid-servant may rest as well as thou.

15 [p]And remember that thou wast a servant in the land of Egypt, and that the LORD thy God brought thee out thence [q]through a mighty hand and by a stretched-out arm: therefore the LORD thy God commanded thee to keep the sabbath-day.

16 ¶ [r]Honour thy father and thy mother, as the LORD thy God hath commanded thee; [s]that thy days may be prolonged, and that it may go well with thee, in the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee.

17 [t]Thou shalt not kill.

18 [u]Neither shalt thou commit adultery.

19 [x]Neither shalt thou steal.

20 [y]Neither shalt thou bear false witness against thy neighbour.

21 [z]Neither shalt thou desire thy neighbour's wife, neither shalt thou covet thy neighbour's house, his field, or his man-servant, or his maid-servant, his ox, or his ass, or any thing that is thy neighbour's.

22 ¶ These words the LORD spake unto all your assembly in the mount, out of the midst of the fire, of the cloud, and of the thick darkness, with a great voice; and he added no more: and [a]he wrote them in two tables of stone, and delivered them unto me.

23 [b]And it came to pass, when ye heard the voice out of the midst of the darkness, (for the mountain did burn with fire,) that ye came near unto me, even all the heads of your tribes, and your elders;

24 And ye said, Behold, the LORD our God hath shewed us his glory, and his greatness, and [c]we have heard his voice out of the midst of the fire: we have seen this day that God doth talk with man, and he [d]liveth.

25 Now therefore why should we die? for this great fire will consume us: [e]if we †hear the voice of the LORD our God any more, then we shall die.

26 [f]For who is there of all flesh that hath heard the voice of the living God speaking out of the midst of the fire, as we have, and lived?

27 Go thou near, and hear all that the LORD our God shall say: and [g]speak thou unto us all that the LORD our God shall speak unto thee; and we will hear it, and do it.

28 And the LORD heard the voice of your words, when ye spake unto me; and the LORD said unto me, I have heard the voice of the words of this people, which they have spoken unto thee: [h]they have well said all that they have spoken.

29 [i]O that there were such an heart in them, that they would fear me, and [k]keep all my commandments always, [l]that it might be well with them, and with their children for ever!

30 Go say to them, Get you into your tents again.

31 But as for thee, stand thou here by me, [m]and I will speak unto thee all the commandments, and the statutes, and the judgments, which thou shalt teach them, that they may do them in the land which I give them to possess it.

32 Ye shall observe to do therefore as the LORD your God hath commanded you: [n]ye shall not turn aside to the right hand or to the left.

33 Ye shall walk in [o]all the ways which the LORD your God hath commanded you, that ye may live, [p]and that it may be well with you, and that ye may prolong your days in the land which ye shall possess.

CHAP. VI.

2 [b]That thou mightest fear the LORD thy God, to keep all his statutes and his commandments which I command thee, thou, and thy son, and thy son's son, all the days of thy life; [c]and that thy days may be prolonged.

3 ¶ Hear therefore, O Israel, and observe to do it; that it may be well with thee, and that ye may increase mightily, [d]as the LORD God of thy fathers hath promised thee, in [e]the land that floweth with milk and honey.

4 [f]Hear, O Israel: The LORD our God is one LORD:

5 And [g]thou shalt love the LORD thy God [h]with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might.

6 And [i]these words which I command thee this day, shall be in thine heart:

7 And [k]thou shalt †teach them diligently unto thy children, and shalt talk of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the way, and when thou liest down, and when thou risest up.

8 [l]And thou shalt bind them for a sign upon thine hand, and they shall be as frontlets between thine eyes.

9 [m]And thou shalt write them upon the posts of thy house, and on thy gates.

10 And it shall be, when the LORD thy God shall have brought thee into the land which he sware unto thy fathers, to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob, to give thee great and goodly cities, [n]which thou buildedst not,

11 And houses full of all good things, which thou filledst not, and wells digged, which thou diggedst not, vineyards and olive-trees, which thou plantedst not; [o]when thou shalt have eaten and be full;

12 Then beware lest thou forget the LORD, which brought thee forth out of the land of Egypt, from the house of †bondage.

13 Thou shalt [p]fear the LORD thy God, and serve him, and [q]shalt swear by his name.

14 Ye shall not [r]go after other gods, [s]of the gods of the people which are round about you;

15 (For [t]the LORD thy God is a jealous God among you;) [u]lest the anger of the LORD thy God be kindled against thee, and destroy thee from off the face of the earth.

16 ¶ [x]Ye shall not tempt the LORD your God, [y]as ye tempted him in Massah.

17 Ye shall [z]diligently keep the commandments of the LORD your God, and his testimonies, and his statutes, which he hath commanded thee.

18 And thou [a]shalt do that which is right and good in the sight of the LORD: that it may be well with thee, and that thou mayest go in and possess the good land which the LORD sware unto thy fathers, 19 [b]To cast out all thine enemies from before thee, as the LORD hath spoken.

20 And [c]when thy son asketh thee †in time to come, saying, What mean the testimonies, and the statutes, and the judgments, which the LORD our God hath commanded you?

21 Then thou shalt say unto thy son, We were Pharaoh's bond-men in Egypt; and the LORD brought us out of Egypt [d]with a mighty hand:

22 [e]And the LORD shewed signs and wonders, great and †sore, upon Egypt, upon Pharaoh, and upon all his household, before our eyes:

23 And he brought us out from thence, that he might bring us in, to give us the land which he sware unto our fathers.

24 And the LORD commanded us to do all these statutes, [f]to fear the LORD our God, [g]for our good always, that [h]he might preserve us alive, as it is at this day.

25 And [i]it shall be our righteousness, if we observe to do all these commandments before the LORD our God, as he hath commanded us.

CHAP. VII.

1 All communion with the nations is forbidden.

WHEN the [a]LORD thy God shall bring thee into the land whither thou goest to possess it, and hath cast out many nations before thee, [b]the Hittites, and the Girgashites, and the Amorites, and the Canaanites, and the Perizzites, and the Hivites, and the Jebusites, seven nations [c]greater and mightier than thou;

2 And when the LORD thy God shall [d]deliver them before thee, thou shalt smite them, and [e]utterly destroy them, [f]thou shalt make no covenant with them, nor shew mercy unto them:

3 [g]Neither shalt thou make marriages with them; thy daughter thou shalt not give unto his son, nor his daughter shalt thou take unto thy son.

4 For they will turn away thy son from following me, that they may serve other gods: [h]so will the anger of the LORD be kindled against you, and destroy thee suddenly.

5 But thus shall ye deal with them; ye shall [i]destroy their altars, and break down their †images, and cut down their groves, and burn their graven images with fire.

6 [k]For thou art an holy people unto the LORD thy God: [l]the LORD thy God hath chosen thee to be a special people unto himself, above all people that are upon the face of the earth.

7 The LORD did not set his love upon you, nor choose you, because ye were more in number than any people; for ye were [m]the fewest of all people:

8 But [n]because the LORD loved you, and because he would keep [o]the oath which he had sworn unto your fathers, [p]hath the LORD brought you out with a mighty hand, and redeemed you out of the house of bond-men, from the hand of Pharaoh king of Egypt.

9 Know therefore that the LORD thy God, he is God, [q]the faithful God, [r]which keepeth covenant and mercy with them that love him and keep his commandments to a thousand generations;

10 And [s]repayeth them that hate him to their face, to destroy them: [t]he will not be slack to him that hateth him, he will repay him to his face.

11 Thou shalt therefore keep the commandments, and the statutes, and the judgments, which I command thee this day, to do them.

12 ¶ [u]Wherefore it shall come to pass, †if ye hearken to these judgments, and keep, and do them, that the LORD thy God shall keep unto thee [x]the covenant and the mercy which he sware unto thy fathers:

13 And he will [y]love thee, and bless thee, and multiply thee: [z]he will also bless the fruit of thy womb, and the fruit of thy land, thy corn, and thy wine, and thine oil, the increase of thy kine, and the flocks of thy sheep, in the land which he sware unto thy fathers to give thee.

14 [a]Thou shalt be blessed above all people: [a]there shall not be male or female barren among you, or among your cattle.

Egypt which thou knowest upon thee; but will lay them upon all them that hate thee.

16 And [c]thou shalt consume all the people which the LORD thy God shall deliver thee; [d]thine eye shall have no pity upon them: neither shalt thou serve their gods; for that will be [e]a snare unto thee.

17 If thou shalt say in thine heart, These nations are more than I, how can I [f]dispossess them?

18 [g]Thou shalt not be afraid of them: but shalt well [h]remember what the LORD thy God did unto Pharaoh, and unto all Egypt;

19 [i]The great temptations which thine eyes saw, and the signs, and the wonders, and the mighty hand, and the stretched-out arm, whereby the LORD thy God brought thee out: so shall the LORD thy God do unto all the people of whom thou art afraid.

20 [k]Moreover, the LORD thy God will send the hornet among them, until they that are left, and hide themselves from thee, be destroyed.

21 Thou shalt not be affrighted at them: for the LORD thy God is [l]among you, [m]a mighty God and terrible.

22 [n]And the LORD thy God will †put out those nations before thee by little and little: thou mayest not consume them at once, lest the beasts of the field increase upon thee.

23 But the LORD thy God shall deliver them †unto thee, and shall destroy them with a mighty destruction, until they be destroyed.

24 And [o]he shall deliver their kings into thine hand, and thou shalt destroy their name [p]from under heaven: [q]there shall no man be able to stand before thee, until thou have destroyed them.

25 The graven images of their gods [r]shall ye burn with fire: thou [s]shalt not desire the silver or gold that is on them, nor take it unto thee, lest thou be [t]snared therein: for it is [u]an abomination to the LORD thy God.

26 Neither shalt thou bring an abomination into thine house, lest thou be a cursed thing like it: but thou shalt utterly detest it, and thou shalt utterly abhor it: [x]for it is a cursed thing.

CHAP. VIII.

An exhortation to obedience in regard of God's dealing with them.

ALL the commandments which I command thee this day [a]shall ye observe to do, that ye may live, and multiply, and go in and possess the land which the LORD sware unto your fathers.

2 And thou shalt remember all the way which the LORD thy God [b]led thee these forty years in the wilderness, to humble thee, and [c]to prove thee, [d]to know what was in thine heart, whether thou wouldest keep his commandments, or no.

3 And he humbled thee, and [e]suffered thee to hunger, and [f]fed thee with manna, which thou knewest not, neither did thy fathers know; that he might make thee know that man doth [g]not live by bread only, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of the LORD, doth man live.

4 [h]Thy raiment waxed not old upon thee, neither did thy foot swell these forty years.

5 [i]Thou shalt also consider in thine heart, that as a man chasteneth his son, so the LORD thy God chasteneth thee.

6 Therefore thou shalt keep the commandments of the LORD thy God, [k]to walk in his ways, and to fear him.

7 For the LORD thy God bringeth thee into a good land, [l]a land of brooks of water, of fountains, and depths that spring out of valleys and hills;

8 A land of wheat, and barley, and vines, and fig-trees, and pomegranates, a land †of oil-olive, and honey;

9 A land wherein thou shalt eat bread without scarceness, thou shalt not lack any thing in it; a land [m]whose stones are iron, and out of whose hills thou mayest dig brass.

10 [n]When thou hast eaten and art full, then thou shalt bless the LORD thy God for the good land which he hath given thee.

11 Beware that thou forget not the LORD thy God, in not keeping his commandments, and his judgments, and his statutes, which I command thee this day:

12 [o]Lest when thou hast eaten, and art full, and hast built goodly houses, and dwelt therein;

13 And when thine herds and thy flocks multiply, and thy silver and thy gold is multiplied, and all that thou hast is multiplied;

14 [p]Then thy heart be lifted up, and thou [q]forget the LORD thy God, which brought thee forth out of the land of Egypt, from the house of bondage;

15 Who [r]led thee through that great and terrible wilderness, [s]wherein were fiery serpents, and scorpions, and drought, where there was no water: [t]who brought thee forth water out of the rock of flint;

16 Who fed thee in the wilderness with [u]manna, which thy fathers knew not, that he might humble thee, and that he might prove thee, [x]to do thee good at thy latter end:

17 [y]And thou say in thine heart, My power and the might of mine hand hath gotten me this wealth.

18 But thou shalt remember the LORD thy God: [z]for it is he that giveth thee power to get wealth, [a]that he may establish his covenant which he sware unto thy fathers, as it is this day.

19 And it shall be, if thou do at all forget the LORD thy God, and walk after other gods, and serve them, and worship them, [b]I testify against you this day that ye shall surely perish.

20 As the nations which the LORD destroyeth before your face, [c]so shall ye perish; because ye would not be obedient unto the voice of the LORD your God.

CHAP. IX.

Moses dissuadeth them from the opinion of their own righteousness.

HEAR, O Israel: Thou art to [a]pass over Jordan this day, to go in to possess nations [b]greater and mightier than thyself, cities great and [c]fenced up to heaven,

2 A people great and tall, [d]the children of the Anakims, whom thou knowest, and of whom thou hast heard say, Who can stand before the children of Anak?

3 Understand therefore this day, that the LORD thy God is he which [e]goeth over before thee: as a [f]consuming fire [g]he shall destroy them, and he shall bring them down before thy face: [h]so shalt thou drive them out, and destroy them quickly, as the LORD hath said unto thee.

4 [i]Speak not thou in thine heart, after that the LORD thy God hath cast them out from before thee, saying, For my righteousness the LORD hath brought me in to possess this land: but [k]for the wickedness of these nations the LORD doth drive them out from before thee.

of thine heart dost thou go to possess their land: but for the wickedness of these nations, the LORD thy God doth drive them out from before thee, and that he may perform [m] the word which the LORD sware unto thy fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.

6 Understand therefore, that the LORD thy God giveth thee not this good land to possess it for thy righteousness; for thou art [n] a stiff-necked people.

7 ¶ Remember, and forget not, how thou provokedst the LORD thy God to wrath in the wilderness: [o] from the day that thou didst depart out of the land of Egypt, until ye came unto this place, ye have been rebellious against the LORD.

8 Also [p] in Horeb ye provoked the LORD to wrath, so that the LORD was angry with you to have destroyed you.

9 [q] When I was gone up into the mount, to receive the tables of stone, even the tables of the covenant which the LORD made with you, then [r] I abode in the mount forty days and forty nights, I neither did eat bread, nor drink water:

10 [s] And the LORD delivered unto me two tables of stone written with the finger of God; and on them was written according to all the words which the LORD spake with you in the mount, out of the midst of the fire, [t] in the day of the assembly.

11 And it came to pass at the end of forty days and forty nights, that the LORD gave me the two tables of stone, even the tables of the covenant.

12 And the LORD said unto me, [u] Arise, get thee down quickly from hence; for thy people which thou hast brought forth out of Egypt have corrupted themselves; they are [x] quickly turned aside out of the way which I commanded them; they have made them a molten image.

13 Furthermore, [y] the LORD spake unto me, saying, I have seen this people, and behold, [z] it is a stiff-necked people:

14 [a] Let me alone, that I may destroy them, and [b] blot out their name from under heaven: [c] and I will make of thee a nation mightier and greater than they.

15 [d] So I turned and came down from the mount, and [e] the mount burned with fire: and the two tables of the covenant were in my two hands.

16 And [f] I looked, and behold, ye had sinned against the LORD your God, and had made you a molten calf: ye had turned aside quickly out of the way which the LORD had commanded you.

17 And I took the two tables, and cast them out of my two hands, and brake them before your eyes.

18 And I [g] fell down before the LORD, as at the first, forty days and forty nights: I did neither eat bread, nor drink water, because of all your sins which ye sinned, in doing wickedly in the sight of the LORD, to provoke him to anger.

19 ([h] For I was afraid of the anger and hot displeasure wherewith the LORD was wroth against you to destroy you.) [i] But the LORD hearkened unto me at that time also.

20 And the LORD was very angry with Aaron to have destroyed him: and I prayed for Aaron also the same time.

21 And [k] I took your sin, the calf which ye had made, and burnt it with fire, and stamped it, and ground it very small, even until it was as small as dust: and I cast the dust thereof into the brook that descended out of the mount.

22 And at [l] Taberah, and at [m] Massah, and at [n] Kibroth-hattaavah, ye provoked the LORD to wrath.

23 Likewise [o] when the LORD sent you from Kadesh-barnea, saying, Go up and possess the land which I have given you; then ye rebelled against the commandment of the LORD your God, and [p] ye believed him not, nor hearkened to his voice.

24 [q] Ye have been rebellious against the LORD from the day that I knew you.

25 [r] Thus I fell down before the LORD forty days and forty nights, as I fell down at the first; because the LORD had said he would destroy you.

26 [s] I prayed therefore unto the LORD, and said, O Lord GOD, destroy not thy people and thine inheritance, which thou hast redeemed through thy greatness, which thou hast brought forth out of Egypt with a mighty hand.

27 Remember thy servants, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob; look not unto the stubbornness of this people, nor to their wickedness, nor to their sin:

28 Lest [t] the land whence thou broughtest us out, say, [u] Because the LORD was not able to bring them into the land which he promised them, and because he hated them, he hath brought them out to slay them in the wilderness.

29 [x] Yet they are thy people and thine inheritance, which thou broughtest out by thy mighty power and by thy stretched-out arm.

CHAP. X.

1 God's mercy in restoring the two tables, 6, and in continuing the priesthood.

AT that time the LORD said unto me, [a] Hew thee two tables of stone like unto the first, and come up unto me into the mount, and [b] make thee an ark of wood.

2 And I will write on the tables the words that were in the first tables which thou brakest, and [c] thou shalt put them in the ark.

3 And I made an ark of [d] shittim-wood, and [e] hewed two tables of stone like unto the first, and went up into the mount, having the two tables in mine hand.

4 And [f] he wrote on the tables, according to the first writing, the ten † commandments, [g] which the LORD spake unto you in the mount, out of the midst of the fire, [h] in the day of the assembly: and the LORD gave them unto me.

5 And I turned myself and [i] came down from the mount, and [k] put the tables in the ark which I had made; [l] and there they be, as the LORD commanded me.

6 ¶ And the children of Israel took their journey from Beeroth [m] of the children of Jaakan to [n] Mosera: [o] there Aaron died, and there he was buried; and Eleazar his son ministered in the priest's office in his stead.

7 [p] From thence they journeyed unto Gudgodah; and from Gudgodah to Jotbath, a land of rivers of waters.

8 ¶ At that time [q] the LORD separated the tribe of Levi, [r] to bear the ark of the covenant of the LORD, [s] to stand before the LORD to minister unto him, and [t] to bless in his name, unto this day.

9 [u] Wherefore Levi hath no part nor inheritance with his brethren; the LORD is his inheritance, according as the LORD thy God promised him.

10 And [x] I stayed in the mount, according to the ‖ first time, forty days and forty nights; and [y] the LORD hearkened unto me at that time also, and the LORD would not destroy thee.

journey before the people, that they may go in and possess the land which I sware unto their fathers to give unto them.

12 ¶ And now, Israel, [a] what doth the LORD thy God require of thee but [b] to fear the LORD thy God, [c] to walk in all his ways, and [d] to love him, and to serve the LORD thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul,

13 To keep the commandments of the LORD, and his statutes, which I command thee this day [e] for thy good?

14 Behold, [f] the heaven and the heaven of heavens is the LORD'S thy God, [g] the earth also, with all that therein is.

15 [h] Only the LORD had a delight in thy fathers to love them, and he chose their seed after them, even you above all people, as it is this day.

16 Circumcise therefore [i] the foreskin of your heart, and be no more [k] stiff-necked.

17 For the LORD your God is [l] God of gods, and [m] Lord of lords, a great God, [n] a mighty, and a terrible, which [o] regardeth not persons, nor taketh reward:

18 [p] He doth execute the judgment of the fatherless and widow, and loveth the stranger, in giving him food and raiment.

19 [q] Love ye therefore the stranger: for ye were strangers in the land of Egypt.

20 [r] Thou shalt fear the LORD thy God; him shalt thou serve, and to him shalt thou [s] cleave, [t] and swear by his name.

21 [u] He is thy praise, and he is thy God, [x] that hath done for thee these great and terrible things which thine eyes have seen.

22 Thy fathers went down into Egypt [y] with three score and ten persons; and now the LORD thy God hath made thee [z] as the stars of heaven for multitude.

CHAP. XI.

18 A careful study is required in God's words. 26 The blessing and curse is set before them.

THEREFORE thou shalt [a] love the LORD thy God, and [b] keep his charge, and his statutes, and his judgments, and his commandments, always.

2 And know ye this day: for I speak not with your children which have not known, and which have not seen [c] the chastisement of the LORD your God, [d] his greatness, [e] his mighty hand, and his stretched-out arm,

3 [f] And his miracles, and his acts, which he did in the midst of Egypt, unto Pharaoh the king of Egypt, and unto all his land;

4 And what he did unto the army of Egypt, unto their horses, and to their chariots; [g] how he made the water of the Red sea to overflow them as they pursued after you, and how the LORD hath destroyed them unto this day;

5 And what he did unto you in the wilderness, until ye came into this place;

6 And [h] what he did unto Dathan and Abiram, the sons of Eliab, the son of Reuben: how the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed them up, and their households, and their tents, and all the ‖substance that †was in their possession, in the midst of all Israel:

7 But [i] your eyes have seen all the great acts of the LORD which he did.

8 Therefore shall ye keep all the commandments which I command you this day, that ye may [k] be strong, and go in and possess the land, whither ye go to possess it;

9 And [l] that ye may prolong your days in the land [m] which the LORD sware unto your fathers to give unto them, and to their seed, [n] a land that floweth with milk and honey.

10 ¶ For the land, whither thou goest in to possess it, is not as the land of Egypt, from whence ye came out, [o] where thou sowedst thy seed, and wateredst it with thy foot, as a garden of herbs:

11 [p] But the land, whither ye go to possess it, is a land of hills and valleys, and drinketh water of the rain of heaven:

12 A land which the LORD thy God †careth for: [q] the eyes of the LORD thy God are always upon it, from the beginning of the year even unto the end of the year.

13 ¶ And it shall come to pass, if ye shall hearken [r] diligently unto my commandments which I command you this day, [s] to love the LORD your God, and to serve him with all your heart and with all your soul,

14 That [t] I will give you the rain of your land in his due season, [u] the first rain and the latter rain, that thou mayest gather in thy corn, and thy wine, and thine oil.

15 [x] And I will †send grass in thy fields for thy cattle, that thou mayest [y] eat and be full.

16 Take heed to yourselves, [z] that your heart be not deceived, and ye turn aside, and [a] serve other gods, and worship them;

17 And then [b] the LORD'S wrath be kindled against you, and he [c] shut up the heaven, that there be no rain, and that the land yield not her fruit; and lest [d] ye perish quickly from off the good land which the LORD giveth you.

18 ¶ Therefore [e] shall ye lay up these my words in your heart and in your soul, and [f] bind them for a sign upon your hand, that they may be as frontlets between your eyes.

19 [g] And ye shall teach them your children, speaking of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the way, when thou liest down, and when thou risest up.

20 [h] And thou shalt write them upon the door posts of thine house, and upon thy gates:

21 That [i] your days may be multiplied, and the days of your children, in the land which the LORD sware unto your fathers to give them, [k] as the days of heaven upon the earth.

22 ¶ For if [l] ye shall diligently keep all these commandments which I command you, to do them, to love the LORD your God, to walk in all his ways, and [m] to cleave unto him;

23 Then will the LORD [n] drive out all these nations from before you, and ye shall [o] possess greater nations and mightier than yourselves.

24 [p] Every place whereon the soles of your feet shall tread shall be yours: [q] from the wilderness, and Lebanon, from the river, the river Euphrates, even unto the uttermost sea shall your coast be.

25 [r] There shall no man be able to stand before you: for the LORD your God shall [s] lay the fear of you, and the dread of you upon all the land that ye shall tread upon, [t] as he hath said unto you.

26 ¶ [u] Behold, I set before you this day a blessing and a curse:

27 [x] A blessing, if ye obey the commandments of the LORD your God which I command you this day;

28 And a [y] curse, if ye will not obey the commandments of the LORD your God, but turn aside out of the way which I command you this day, to go after other gods which ye have not known.

29 And it shall come to pass when the LORD thy God hath brought thee in unto the land whither thou goest to possess it, that thou shalt put [z] the blessing upon mount Gerizim, and the curse upon mount Ebal.

30 Are they not on the other side Jordan, by the way where the sun goeth down, in the land of the Canaanites, which dwell in the champaign over against Gilgal, [a] beside the plains of Moreh?

31 [b] For ye shall pass over Jordan to go in to possess the land which the LORD your God giveth you, and ye shall possess it, and dwell therein.

32 And ye shall observe [c] to do all the statutes and judgments which I set before you this day.

CHAP. XII.

1 Monuments of idolatry are to be destroyed. 16, 23 Blood is forbidden.

THESE [a] are the statutes and judgments which ye shall observe to do in the land which the LORD God of thy fathers giveth thee to possess it, [b] all the days that ye live upon the earth.

2 [c] Ye shall utterly destroy all the places, wherein the nations which ye shall ‖ possess served their gods, [d] upon the high mountains, and upon the hills, and under every green tree:

3 And [e] ye shall † overthrow their altars, and break their pillars, and burn their groves with fire; and ye shall hew down the graven images of their gods, and destroy the names of them out of that place.

4 [f] Ye shall not do so unto the LORD your God.

5 But unto the place which the LORD your God shall [g] choose out of all your tribes to put his name there, even unto his habitation shall ye seek, and thither thou shalt come:

6 And [h] thither ye shall bring your burnt-offerings, and your sacrifices, and your [i] tithes, and heave-offerings of your hand, and your vows, and your free-will offerings, and the firstlings of your herds, and of your flocks:

7 And [k] there ye shall eat before the LORD your God, and [l] ye shall rejoice in all that ye put your hand unto, ye and your households, wherein the LORD thy God hath blessed thee.

8 Ye shall not do after all the things that we do here this day, [m] every man whatsoever is right in his own eyes.

9 For ye are not as yet come to the rest and to the inheritance which the LORD your God giveth you.

10 But when [n] ye go over Jordan, and dwell in the land which the LORD your God giveth you to inherit, and when he giveth you rest from all your enemies round about, so that ye dwell in safety:

11 Then there shall be [o] a place which the LORD your God shall choose to cause his name to dwell there; thither shall ye bring all that I command you; your burnt-offerings, and your sacrifices, your tithes, and the heave-offering of your hand, and all † your choice vows which ye vow unto the LORD.

12 And [p] ye shall rejoice before the LORD your God, ye, and your sons, and your daughters, and your men-servants, and your maid-servants, and the Levite that is within your gates; forasmuch as [q] he hath no part nor inheritance with you.

13 [r] Take heed to thyself that thou offer not thy burnt-offerings in every place that thou seest:

14 [s] But in the place which the LORD shall choose in one of thy tribes, there thou shalt offer thy burnt-offerings, and there thou shalt do all that I command thee.

15 Notwithstanding, [t] thou mayest kill and eat flesh in all thy gates, whatsoever thy soul lusteth after, according to the blessing of the LORD thy God which he hath given thee: [u] the unclean and the clean may eat thereof, [x] as of the roe-buck, and as of the hart.

16 [y] Only ye shall not eat the blood; ye shall pour it upon the earth as water.

17 ¶ Thou mayest not eat within thy gates the tithe of thy corn, or of thy wine, or of thy oil, or the firstlings of thy herds or of thy flock, nor any of thy vows which thou vowest, nor thy free-will offerings, or heave-offering of thine hand:

18 [z] But thou must eat them before the LORD thy God in the place which the LORD thy God shall choose, thou, and thy son, and thy daughter, and thy man-servant, and thy maid-servant, and the Levite that is within thy gates: and thou shalt rejoice before the LORD thy God in all that thou puttest thine hands unto.

19 [a] Take heed to thyself that thou forsake not the Levite † as long as thou livest upon the earth.

20 ¶ When the LORD thy God shall enlarge thy border, [b] as he hath promised thee, and thou shalt say, I will eat flesh, because thy soul longeth to eat flesh, thou mayest eat flesh, whatsoever thy soul lusteth after.

21 If the place which the LORD thy God hath chosen to put his name there be too far from thee, then thou shalt kill of thy herd and of thy flock, which the LORD hath given thee, as I have commanded thee, and thou shalt eat in thy gates whatsoever thy soul lusteth after.

22 [c] Even as the roe-buck and the hart is eaten, so thou shalt eat them: the unclean and the clean shall eat of them alike.

23 [d] Only † be sure that thou eat not the blood: [e] for the blood is the life; and thou mayest not eat the life with the flesh.

24 Thou shalt not eat it; thou shalt pour it upon the earth as water.

25 Thou shalt not eat it; [f] that it may go well with thee, and with thy children after thee, [g] when thou shalt do that which is right in the sight of the LORD.

26 Only thy [h] holy things which thou hast, and [i] thy vows, thou shalt take, and go unto the place which the LORD shall choose:

27 And [k] thou shalt offer thy burnt-offerings, the flesh and the blood, upon the altar of the LORD thy God: and the blood of thy sacrifices shall be poured out upon the altar of the LORD thy God, and thou shalt eat the flesh.

28 Observe and hear all these words which I command thee, [l] that it may go well with thee, and with thy children after thee for ever, when thou doest that which is good and right in the sight of the LORD thy God.

29 ¶ When [m] the LORD thy God shall cut off the nations from before thee, whither thou goest to possess them, and thou † succeedest them, and dwellest in their land;

30 Take heed to thyself [n] that thou be not snared † by following them, after that they be destroyed from before thee; and that thou inquire not after their gods, saying, How did these nations serve their gods? even so will I do likewise.

31 [o] Thou shalt not do so unto the LORD thy God; for every † abomination to the LORD which he hateth

CHAP. XIII.

1 Enticers to idolatry are to be stoned to death. 16 Idolatrous cities are not to be spared.

IF there arise among you a prophet, or a [a] dreamer of dreams, [b] and giveth thee a sign or a wonder,

2 And [c] the sign or the wonder come to pass, whereof he spake unto thee, saying, Let us go after other gods, which thou hast not known, and let us serve them;

3 Thou shalt not hearken unto the words of that prophet, or that dreamer of dreams: for the LORD your God [d] proveth you, to know whether ye love the LORD your God with all your heart and with all your soul.

4 Ye shall [e] walk after the LORD your God, and fear him, and keep his commandments, and obey his voice, and ye shall serve him, and [f] cleave unto him.

5 And [g] that prophet, or that dreamer of dreams, shall be put to death; because he hath †spoken to turn you away from the LORD your God, which brought you out of the land of Egypt, and redeemed you out of the house of bondage, to thrust thee out of the way which the LORD thy God commanded thee to walk in. [h] So shalt thou put the evil away from the midst of thee.

6 ¶ [i] If thy brother, the son of thy mother, or thy son, or thy daughter, or [k] the wife of thy bosom, or thy friend, [l] which is as thine own soul, entice thee secretly, saying, Let us go and serve other gods, which thou hast not known, thou, nor thy fathers;

7 Namely, of the gods of the people which are round about you, nigh unto thee, or far off from thee, from the one end of the earth even unto the other end of the earth;

8 Thou shalt [m] not consent unto him, nor hearken unto him; neither shall thine eye pity him, neither shalt thou spare, neither shalt thou conceal him:

9 But [n] thou shalt surely kill him; [o] thine hand shall be first upon him to put him to death, and afterwards the hand of all the people.

10 And thou shalt stone him with stones that he die; because he hath sought to thrust thee away from the LORD thy God, which brought thee out of the land of Egypt from the house of †bondage.

11 And [p] all Israel shall hear, and fear, and shall do no more any such wickedness as this is, among you.

12 ¶ [q] If thou shalt hear say in one of thy cities, which the LORD thy God hath given thee to dwell there, saying,

13 Certain men, ‖ the children of Belial, [r] are gone out from among you, and have [s] withdrawn the inhabitants of their city, saying, [t] Let us go and serve other gods, which ye have not known;

14 Then shalt thou inquire, and make search, and ask diligently; and behold, if it be truth, and the thing certain, that such abomination is wrought among you;

15 Thou shalt surely smite the inhabitants of that city with the edge of the sword, [u] destroying it utterly, and all that is therein, and the cattle thereof, with the edge of the sword.

16 And thou shalt gather all the spoil of it into the midst of the street thereof, and shalt [x] burn with fire the city, and all the spoil thereof every whit, for the LORD thy God: and it shall be [y] an heap for ever; it shall not be built again.

17 And [z] there shall cleave nought of the ‖ cursed thing to thine hand: that the LORD may [a] turn from the fierceness of his anger, and shew thee mercy, and have compassion upon thee, and multiply thee, [b] as he hath sworn unto thy fathers;

18 When thou shalt hearken to the voice of the LORD thy God, [c] to keep all his commandments which I command thee this day, to do that which is right in the eyes of the LORD thy God.

CHAP. XIV.

3 What may and what may not be eaten, 4 of beasts, 9 of fishes, 11 of fowls.

YE are [a] the children of the LORD your God: [b] ye shall not cut yourselves, nor make any baldness between your eyes for the dead.

2 [c] For thou art an holy people unto the LORD thy God, and the LORD hath chosen thee to be a peculiar people unto himself, above all the nations that are upon the earth.

3 ¶ [d] Thou shalt not eat any abominable thing.

4 [e] These are the beasts which ye shall eat: The ox, the sheep, and the goat,

5 The hart, and the roe-buck, and the fallow-deer, and the wild-goat, and the ‖ †pygarg, and the wild-ox, and the chamois.

6 And every beast that parteth the hoof, and cleaveth the cleft into two claws, and cheweth the cud among the beasts, that ye shall eat.

7 Nevertheless, these ye shall not eat, of them that chew the cud, or of them that divide the cloven hoof; as the camel, and the hare, and the coney: for they chew the cud, but divide not the hoof; therefore they are unclean unto you.

8 And the swine, because it divideth the hoof, yet cheweth not the cud, it is unclean unto you: ye shall not eat of their flesh, [f] nor touch their dead carcass.

9 ¶ [g] These ye shall eat, of all that are in the waters: all that have fins and scales shall ye eat:

10 And whatsoever hath not fins and scales ye may not eat; it is unclean unto you.

11 ¶ Of all clean birds ye shall eat.

12 [h] But these are they of which ye shall not eat: The eagle, and the ossifrage, and the ospray,

13 And the glede, and the kite, and the vulture after his kind,

14 And every raven after his kind,

15 And the owl, and the night-hawk, and the cuckoo, and the hawk after his kind,

16 The little owl, and the great owl, and the swan,

17 And the pelican, and the gier-eagle, and the cormorant,

18 And the stork, and the heron after her kind, and the lapwing, and the bat.

19 And [i] every creeping thing that flieth is unclean unto you: [k] they shall not be eaten.

20 But of all clean fowls ye may eat.

21 ¶ [l] Ye shall not eat of any thing that dieth of itself: thou shalt give it unto the stranger that is in thy gates, that he may eat it; or thou mayest sell it unto an alien: [m] for thou art an holy people unto the LORD thy God. [n] Thou shalt not seethe a kid in his mother's milk.

22 [o] Thou shalt truly tithe all the increase of thy seed, that the field bringeth forth year by year.

23 [p] And thou shalt eat before the LORD thy God, in the place which he shall choose to place his name there, the tithe of thy corn, of thy wine, and of thine oil, and the [q] firstlings of thy herds and of thy flocks; that thou mayest learn to fear the LORD thy God always

24 And if the way be too long for thee, so that thou art not able to carry it; or [r]if the place be too far from thee, which the LORD thy God shall choose to set his name there, when the LORD thy God hath blessed thee:

25 Then shalt thou turn it into money, and bind up the money in thine hand, and shalt go unto the place which the LORD thy God shall choose:

26 And thou shalt bestow that money for whatsoever thy soul lusteth after, for oxen, or for sheep, or for wine, or for strong drink, or for whatsoever thy soul †desireth: [s]and thou shalt eat there before the LORD thy God, and thou shalt rejoice, thou, and thine household,

27 And [t]the Levite that is within thy gates; thou shalt not forsake him: for [u]he hath no part nor inheritance with thee.

28 ¶ [x]At the end of three years thou shalt bring forth all the tithe of thine increase the same year, and shalt lay it up within thy gates:

29 [y]And the Levite, (because [z]he hath no part nor inheritance with thee,) and the stranger, and the fatherless, and the widow, which are within thy gates, shall come, and shall eat and be satisfied; that [a]the LORD thy God may bless thee in all the work of thine hand which thou doest.

CHAP. XV.

1 The seventh year a year of release for the poor. 19 All firstling males of cattle to be sanctified unto the Lord.

AT the end of [a]every seven years thou shalt make a release.

2 And this is the manner of the release: Every †creditor that lendeth aught unto his neighbour shall release it; he shall not exact it of his neighbour, or of his brother; because it is called the LORD's release.

3 [b]Of a foreigner thou mayest exact it again: but that which is thine with thy brother thine hand shall release:

4 ‖Save when there shall be no poor among you; [c]for the LORD shall greatly bless thee in the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee for an inheritance to possess it:

5 Only [d]if thou carefully hearken unto the voice of the LORD thy God, to observe to do all these commandments which I command thee this day.

6 For the LORD thy God blesseth thee, as he promised thee: and [e]thou shalt lend unto many nations, but thou shalt not borrow; and [f]thou shalt reign over many nations, but they shall not reign over thee.

7 ¶ If there be among you a poor man of one of thy brethren within any of thy gates in thy land which the LORD thy God giveth thee, [g]thou shalt not harden thy heart, nor shut thine hand from thy poor brother:

8 [h]But thou shalt open thine hand wide unto him, and shalt surely lend him sufficient for his need, in that which he wanteth.

9 Beware that there be not a †thought in thy †wicked heart, saying, The seventh year, the year of release, is at hand; and thine [i]eye be evil against thy poor brother, and thou givest him nought; and [k]he cry unto the LORD against thee, and [l]it be sin unto thee.

10 Thou shalt surely give him, and [m]thine heart shall not be grieved when thou givest unto him: because that [n]for this thing the LORD thy God shall bless thee in all thy works, and in all that thou puttest thine hand unto.

11 For [o]the poor shall never cease out of the land: therefore I command thee, saying, Thou shalt open thine hand wide unto thy brother, to thy poor, and to thy needy, in thy land.

12 ¶ And [p]if thy brother, an Hebrew man, or an Hebrew woman, be sold unto thee, and serve thee six years; then in the seventh year thou shalt let him go free from thee.

13 And when thou sendest him out free from thee, thou shalt not let him go away empty:

14 Thou shalt furnish him liberally out of thy flock, and out of thy floor, and out of thy winepress: of that wherewith the LORD thy God hath [q]blessed thee thou shalt give unto him.

15 And [r]thou shalt remember that thou wast a bond-man in the land of Egypt, and the LORD thy God redeemed thee: therefore I command thee this thing to-day.

16 And it shall be, [s]if he say unto thee, I will not go away from thee; because he loveth thee and thine house, because he is well with thee;

17 Then thou shalt take an awl, and thrust it through his ear unto the door, and he shall be thy servant for ever. And also unto thy maid-servant thou shalt do likewise.

18 It shall not seem hard unto thee, when thou sendest him away free from thee: for he hath been worth [t]a double hired servant to thee, in serving thee six years: and the LORD thy God shall bless thee in all that thou doest.

19 ¶ [u]All the firstling males that come of thy herd and of thy flock thou shalt sanctify unto the LORD thy God: thou shalt do no work with the firstling of thy bullock, nor shear the firstling of thy sheep.

20 [x]Thou shalt eat it before the LORD thy God year by year in the place which the LORD shall choose, thou and thy household.

21 [y]And if there be any blemish therein, as if it be lame, or blind, or have any ill blemish, thou shalt not sacrifice it unto the LORD thy God.

22 Thou shalt eat it within thy gates: [z]the unclean and the clean person shall eat it alike, as the roe-buck, and as the hart.

23 [a]Only thou shalt not eat the blood thereof; thou shalt pour it upon the ground as water.

CHAP. XVI.

1 The feast of the passover, 9 of weeks, 13 of tabernacles.

OBSERVE the [a]month of Abib, and keep the passover unto the LORD thy God: for [b]in the month of Abib the LORD thy God brought thee forth out of Egypt [c]by night.

2 Thou shalt therefore sacrifice the passover unto the LORD thy God, of the flock and [d]the herd, in the [e]place which the LORD shall choose to place his name there.

3 [f]Thou shalt eat no leavened bread with it; seven days shalt thou eat unleavened bread therewith, even the bread of affliction; (for thou camest forth out of the land of Egypt in haste:) that thou mayest remember the day when thou camest forth out of the land of Egypt, all the days of thy life.

4 [g]And there shall be no leavened bread seen with thee in all thy coasts seven days; [h]neither shall there any thing of the flesh, which thou sacrificedst the first day at even, remain all night until the morning.

5 Thou mayest not ‖sacrifice the passover within any of thy gates, which the LORD thy God giveth thee:

6 But at the place which the LORD thy God shall choose to place his name in, there thou shalt sacrifice the passover [t]at even, at the going down of the sun, at the season that thou camest forth out of Egypt.

7 And thou shalt [k]roast and eat it [l]in the place which the LORD thy God shall choose: and thou shalt turn in the morning, and go unto thy tents.

8 Six days thou shalt eat unleavened bread: and [m]on the seventh day shall be a †solemn assembly to the LORD thy God: thou shalt do no work therein.

9 ¶ [n]Seven weeks shalt thou number unto thee: begin to number the seven weeks from such time as thou beginnest to put the sickle to the corn.

10 And thou shalt keep the feast of weeks unto the LORD thy God with ‖a tribute of a free-will-offering of thine hand, which thou shalt give unto the LORD thy God, [o]according as the LORD thy God hath blessed thee:

11 And [p]thou shalt rejoice before the LORD thy God, thou, and thy son, and thy daughter, and thy man-servant, and thy maid-servant, and the Levite that is within thy gates, and the stranger, and the fatherless, and the widow, that are among you, in the place which the LORD thy God hath chosen to place his name there.

12 [q]And thou shalt remember that thou wast a bond-man in Egypt: and thou shalt observe and do these statutes.

13 ¶ [r]Thou shalt observe the feast of tabernacles seven days, after that thou hast gathered in thy †corn, and thy wine.

14 And [s]thou shalt rejoice in thy feast, thou, and thy son, and thy daughter, and thy man-servant, and thy maid-servant, and the Levite, the stranger, and the fatherless, and the widow, that are within thy gates:

15 [t]Seven days shalt thou keep a solemn feast unto the LORD thy God in the place which the LORD shall choose: because the LORD thy God shall bless thee in all thine increase, and in all the works of thine hands, therefore thou shalt surely rejoice.

16 ¶ [u]Three times in a year shall all thy males appear before the LORD thy God in the place which he shall choose; in the feast of unleavened bread, and in the feast of weeks, and in the feast of tabernacles: and [x]they shall not appear before the LORD empty:

17 Every man shall give †as he is able, [y]according to the blessing of the LORD thy God which he hath given thee.

18 ¶ [z]Judges and officers shalt thou make thee in all thy gates, which the LORD thy God giveth thee, throughout thy tribes: and they shall judge the people with just judgment.

19 [a]Thou shalt not wrest judgment; [b]thou shalt not respect persons, [c]neither take a gift: for a gift doth blind the eyes of the wise, and pervert the ‖words of the righteous.

20 †That which is altogether just shalt thou follow, that thou mayest [d]live, and inherit the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee.

21 ¶ [e]Thou shalt not plant thee a grove of any trees near unto the altar of the LORD thy God, which thou shalt make thee.

22 [f]Neither shalt thou set thee up any ‖image; which the LORD thy God hateth.

CHAP. XVII.

1 The things sacrificed must be sound. 2 Idolaters must be slain.

THOU [a]shalt not sacrifice unto the LORD thy God any bullock, or ‖sheep, wherein is blemish, or any evil favouredness, for that is an abomination unto the LORD thy God.

2 ¶ [b]If there be found among you, within any of thy gates which the LORD thy God giveth thee, man or woman that hath wrought wickedness in the sight of the LORD thy God, [c]in transgressing his covenant,

3 And hath gone and served other gods, and worshipped them, either [d]the sun, or moon, or any of the host of heaven, [e]which I have not commanded;

4 [f]And it be told thee, and thou hast heard of it, and inquired diligently, and behold, it be true, and the thing certain, that such abomination is wrought in Israel:

5 Then shalt thou bring forth that man or that woman, which have committed that wicked thing, unto thy gates, even that man or that woman, and [g]shalt stone them with stones, till they die.

6 [h]At the mouth of two witnesses, or three witnesses, shall he that is worthy of death be put to death; but at the mouth of one witness he shall not be put to death.

7 [i]The hands of the witnesses shall be first upon him to put him to death, and afterward the hands of all the people. So [k]thou shalt put the evil away from among you.

8 ¶ [l]If there arise a matter too hard for thee in judgment, [m]between blood and blood, between plea and plea, and between stroke and stroke, being matters of controversy within thy gates: then shalt thou arise, [n]and get thee up into the place which the LORD thy God shall choose;

9 And [o]thou shalt come unto the priests the Levites, and [p]unto the judge that shall be in those days, and inquire; [q]and they shall shew thee the sentence of judgment:

10 And thou shalt do according to the sentence, which they of that place which the LORD shall choose shall shew thee; and thou shalt observe to do according to all that they inform thee:

11 According to the sentence of the law which they shall teach thee, and according to the judgment which they shall tell thee, thou shalt do: thou shalt not decline from the sentence which they shall shew thee, to the right hand, nor to the left.

12 And [r]the man that will do presumptuously, †and will not hearken unto the priest [s]that standeth to minister there before the LORD thy God, or unto the judge, even that man shall die: and [t]thou shalt put away the evil from Israel.

13 [u]And all the people shall hear, and fear, and do no more presumptuously.

14 ¶ When thou art come unto the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee, and shalt possess it, and shalt dwell therein, and shalt say, [x]I will set a king over me, like as all the nations that are about me;

15 Thou shalt in any wise set him king over thee [y]whom the LORD thy God shall choose: one [z]from among thy brethren shalt thou set king over thee: thou mayest not set a stranger over thee, which is not thy brother.

16 But he shall not multiply [a]horses to himself, nor cause the people [b]to return to Egypt, to the end that he should multiply horses: forasmuch as [c]the LORD hath said unto you, [d]Ye shall henceforth return no more that way.

17 Neither shall he multiply wives to himself, that [e]his heart turn not away: neither shall he greatly multiply to himself silver and gold.

20 That his heart be not lifted up above his brethren, and that he [i]turn not aside from the commandment to the right hand, or to the left: to the end that he may prolong his days in his kingdom, he, and his children, in the midst of Israel.

CHAP. XVIII.

1 The Lord is the priests' and Levites' inheritance. 3 The priest's due. 15 Christ the prophet is to be heard.

THE priests the Levites, and all the tribe of Levi, [a]shall have no part nor inheritance with Israel: they [b]shall eat the offerings of the LORD made by fire, and his inheritance.

2 Therefore shall they have no inheritance among their brethren: the LORD is their inheritance, as he hath said unto them.

3 ¶ And this shall be the priest's due from the people, from them that offer a sacrifice, whether it be ox or sheep; and [c]they shall give unto the priest the shoulder, and the two cheeks, and the maw.

4 [d]The first-fruit also of thy corn, of thy wine, and of thine oil, and the first of the fleece of thy sheep, shalt thou give him.

5 For [e]the LORD thy God hath chosen him out of all thy tribes, [f]to stand to minister in the name of the LORD, him and his sons for ever.

6 ¶ And if a Levite come from any of thy gates out of all Israel, where he [g]sojourned, and come with all the desire of his mind [h]unto the place which the LORD shall choose;

7 Then he shall minister in the name of the LORD his God, [i]as all his brethren the Levites do, which stand there before the LORD.

8 They shall have like [k]portions to eat, beside †that which cometh of the sale of his patrimony.

9 ¶ When thou art come into the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee, [l]thou shalt not learn to do after the abominations of those nations.

10 There shall not be found among you any one that maketh his son or his daughter [m]to pass through the fire, [n]or that useth divination, or an observer of times, or an enchanter, or a witch,

11 [o]Or a charmer, or a consulter with familiar spirits, or a wizard, or a [p]necromancer.

12 For all that do these things are an abomination unto the LORD: and [q]because of these abominations the LORD thy God doth drive them out from before thee.

13 Thou shalt be ‖ perfect with the LORD thy God.

14 For these nations, which thou shalt ‖ possess, hearkened unto observers of times, and unto diviners: but as for thee, the LORD thy God hath not suffered thee so to do.

15 ¶ [r]The LORD thy God will raise up unto thee a Prophet from the midst of thee, of thy brethren, like unto me; unto him ye shall hearken.

16 According to all that thou desiredst of the LORD thy God in Horeb [s]in the day of the assembly, saying, [t]Let me not hear again the voice of the LORD my God, neither let me see this great fire any more, that I die not.

1 The cities of refuge. 15 Two witnesses at the least. 16 The punishment of a false witness.

WHEN the LORD thy God [a]hath cut off the nations, whose land the LORD thy God giveth thee, and thou †succeedest them, and dwellest in their cities, and in their houses;

2 [b]Thou shalt separate three cities for thee in the midst of thy land which the LORD thy God giveth thee to possess it.

3 Thou shalt prepare thee a way, and divide the coasts of thy land which the LORD thy God giveth thee to inherit, into three parts, that every slayer may flee thither.

4 ¶ And [c]this is the case of the slayer, which shall flee thither, that he may live: Whoso killeth his neighbour ignorantly, whom he hated not †in time past;

5 As when a man goeth into the wood with his neighbour to hew wood, and his hand fetcheth a stroke with the axe to cut down the tree, and the †head slippeth from the †helve, and †lighteth upon his neighbour, that he die; he shall flee unto one of these cities, and live:

6 [d]Lest the avenger of the blood pursue the slayer, while his heart is hot, and overtake him, because the way is long, and †slay him; whereas he was not worthy of death, inasmuch as he hated him not †in time past.

7 Wherefore I command thee, saying, Thou shalt separate three cities for thee.

8 And if the LORD thy God [e]enlarge thy coast, as he hath sworn unto thy fathers, and give thee all the land which he promised to give unto thy fathers;

9 If thou shalt keep all these commandments to do them, which I command thee this day, to love the LORD thy God, and to walk ever in his ways; [f]then shalt thou add three cities more for thee, beside these three:

10 That innocent blood be not shed in thy land, which the LORD thy God giveth thee for an inheritance, and so blood be upon thee.

11 ¶ But [g]if any man hate his neighbour, and lie in wait for him, and rise up against him, and smite him †mortally that he die, and fleeth into one of these cities:

12 Then the elders of his city shall send and fetch him thence, and deliver him into the hand of the avenger of blood, that he may die.

13 [h]Thine eye shall not pity him, [i]but thou shalt put away the guilt of innocent blood from Israel, that it may go well with thee.

14 ¶ [k]Thou shalt not remove thy neighbour's landmark, which they of old time have set in thine inheritance, which thou shalt inherit in the land that the LORD thy God giveth thee to possess it.

15 ¶ [l]One witness shall not rise up against a man for any iniquity, or for any sin, in any sin that he sinneth; at the mouth of two witnesses, or at the mouth of three witnesses, shall the matter be established.

16 ¶ If a false witness [m]rise up against any man to testify against him ‖ that which is wrong;

17 Then both the men between whom the controversy is shall stand before the LORD, [n]before the priests and the judges, which shall be in those days;

18 And the judges shall make diligent inquisition: and behold, if the witness be a false witness, and hath testified falsely against his brother;

19 [o]Then shall ye do unto him, as he had thought to have done unto his brother: so [p]shalt thou put the evil away from among you.

20 [q]And those which remain shall hear, and fear, and shall henceforth commit no more any such evil among you.

21 [r]And thine eye shall not pity; but [s]life shall go for life, eye for eye, tooth for tooth, hand for hand, foot for foot.

CHAP. XX.

The priest's exhortation to encourage the people to battle.

WHEN thou goest out to battle against thine enemies, and seest [a]horses, and chariots, and a people more than thou, be not afraid of them: for the LORD thy God is [b]with thee, which brought thee up out of the land of Egypt.

2 And it shall be when ye are come nigh unto the battle, that the priest shall approach and speak unto the people,

3 And shall say unto them, Hear, O Israel, ye approach this day unto battle against your enemies: let not your hearts †faint, fear not, and do not †tremble, neither be ye terrified because of them;

4 For the LORD your God is he that goeth with you, [c]to fight for you against your enemies, to save you.

5 ¶ And the officers shall speak unto the people, saying, What man is there that hath built a new house, and hath not [d]dedicated it? let him go and return unto his house, lest he die in the battle, and another man dedicate it.

6 And what man is he that hath planted a vineyard, and hath not yet †eaten of it? let him also go and return unto his house, lest he die in the battle, and another man eat of it.

7 [e]And what man is there that hath betrothed a wife, and hath not taken her? let him go and return unto his house, lest he die in the battle, and another man take her.

8 And the officers shall speak further unto the people, and they shall say, [f]What man is there that is fearful and faint-hearted? let him go and return unto his house, lest his brethren's heart †faint as well as his heart.

9 And it shall be, when the officers have made an end of speaking unto the people, that they shall make captains of the armies †to lead the people.

10 ¶ When thou comest nigh unto a city to fight against it, [g]then proclaim peace unto it.

11 And it shall be, if it make thee answer of peace, and open unto thee, then it shall be, that all the people that is found therein, shall be tributaries unto thee, and they shall serve thee.

12 And if it will make no peace with thee, but will make war against thee, then thou shalt besiege it:

13 And when the LORD thy God hath delivered it into thine hands, [h]thou shalt smite every male thereof with the edge of the sword:

14 But the women, and the little ones, and [i]the cattle, and all that is in the city, even all the spoil thereof, shalt thou †take unto thyself: and [k]thou shalt eat the spoil of thine enemies, which the LORD thy God hath given thee.

15 Thus shalt thou do unto all the cities which are very far off from thee, which are not of the cities of these nations.

16 But [l]of the cities of these people which the LORD thy God doth give thee for an inheritance, thou shalt save alive nothing that breatheth:

17 But thou shalt utterly destroy them, namely, the Hittites, and the Amorites, the Canaanites, and the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites, as the LORD thy God hath commanded thee:

18 That [m]they teach you not to do after all their abominations which they have done unto their gods; so should ye [n]sin against the LORD your God.

19 ¶ When thou shalt besiege a city a long time in making war against it to take it, thou shalt not destroy the trees thereof by forcing an axe against them; for thou mayest eat of them: and thou shalt not cut them down (‖ for the tree of the field is man's life) †to employ them in the siege:

20 Only the trees which thou knowest that they be not trees for meat, thou shalt destroy and cut them down; and thou shalt build bulwarks against the city that maketh war with thee, until †it be subdued.

CHAP. XXI.

18 A stubborn son is to be stoned to death. 22 The malefactor must not hang all night on a tree.

IF one be found slain in the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee to possess it, lying in the field, and it be not known who hath slain him:

2 Then thy elders and thy judges shall come forth, and they shall measure unto the cities which are round about him that is slain:

3 And it shall be that the city which is next unto the slain man, even the elders of that city shall take an heifer which hath not been wrought with, and which hath not drawn in the yoke;

4 And the elders of that city shall bring down the heifer unto a rough valley, which is neither eared nor sown, and shall strike off the heifer's neck there in the valley;

5 And the priests the sons of Levi shall come near, (for [a]them the LORD thy God hath chosen to minister unto him, and to bless in the name of the LORD,) and [b]by their †word shall every controversy and every stroke be tried;

6 And all the elders of that city that are next unto the slain man, [c]shall wash their hands over the heifer that is beheaded in the valley:

7 And they shall answer and say, Our hands have not shed this blood, neither have our eyes seen it.

8 Be merciful, O LORD, unto thy people Israel, whom thou hast redeemed, [d]and lay not innocent blood †unto thy people of Israel's charge. And the blood shall be forgiven them.

9 So [e]shalt thou put away the guilt of innocent blood from among you, when thou shalt do that which is right in the sight of the LORD.

10 ¶ When thou goest forth to war against thine enemies, and the LORD thy God hath delivered them into thine hands, and thou hast taken them captive,

11 And seest among the captives a beautiful woman, and hast a desire unto her, that thou wouldest have her to thy wife:

12 Then thou shalt bring her home to thine house, and she shall shave her head, and ‖†pare her nails:

13 And she shall put the raiment of her captivity from off her, and shall remain in thine house, and [j]bewail her father and her mother a full month: and after that, thou shalt go in unto her, and be her husband, and she shall be thy wife.

14 And it shall be, if thou have no delight in her, then thou shalt let her go whither she will; but thou shalt not sell her at all for money; thou shalt not make merchandise of her, because thou hast [g]humbled her.

15 ¶ If a man have two wives, one beloved, [h]and another hated, and they have borne him children, both the beloved and the hated; and if the first-born son be hers that was hated:

16 Then it shall be, [i]when he maketh his sons to inherit that which he hath, that he may not make the son of the beloved first-born, before the son of the hated, which is indeed the first-born:

17 But he shall acknowledge the son of the hated for the first-born, [k]by giving him a double portion of all †that he hath: for he is [i]the beginning of his strength; [m]the right of the first-born is his.

18 ¶ If a man have a stubborn and rebellious son, which will not obey the voice of his father, or the voice of his mother, and that, when they have chastened him, will not hearken unto them:

19 Then shall his father and his mother lay hold on him, and bring him out unto the elders of his city, and unto the gate of his place;

20 And they shall say unto the elders of his city, This our son is stubborn and rebellious, he will not obey our voice: he is a glutton, and a drunkard.

21 And all the men of his city shall stone him with stones, that he die: [n]so shalt thou put evil away from among you, [o]and all Israel shall hear, and fear.

22 ¶ And if a man have committed a sin [p]worthy of death, and he be to be put to death, and thou hang him on a tree:

23 [q]His body shall not remain all night upon the tree, but thou shalt in any wise bury him that day; (for [r]he that is hanged is †accursed of God;) that [s]thy land be not defiled, which the LORD thy God giveth thee for an inheritance.

CHAP. XXII.

2 Of humanity towards brethren. 5 The sex is to be distinguished by apparel. 20, 22 Of adultery. 25 Of rape, 28 and of fornication. 30 Of incest.

[a]THOU shalt not see thy brother's ox or his sheep go astray, and hide thyself from them: thou shalt in any case bring them again unto thy brother.

2 And if thy brother be not nigh unto thee, or if thou know him not, then thou shalt bring it unto thine own house, and it shall be with thee until thy brother seek after it, and thou shalt restore it to him again.

3 In like manner shalt thou do with his ass; and so shalt thou do with his raiment; and with all lost things of thy brother's, which he hath lost, and thou hast found, shalt thou do likewise: thou mayest not hide thyself.

4 ¶ [b]Thou shalt not see thy brother's ass or his ox fall down by the way, and hide thyself from them: thou shalt surely help him to lift them up again.

5 ¶ The woman shall not wear that which pertaineth unto a man, neither shall a man put on a woman's garment: for all that do so are abomination unto the LORD thy God.

6 ¶ If a bird's nest chance to be before thee in the way in any tree, or on the ground, whether they be young ones, or eggs, and the dam sitting upon the young, or upon the eggs, [c]thou shalt not take the dam with the young:

7 But thou shalt in any wise let the dam go, and take the young to thee; [d]that it may be well with thee, and that thou mayest prolong thy days.

8 ¶ When thou buildest a new house, then thou shalt make a battlement for thy roof, that thou bring not blood upon thine house, if any man fall from thence.

9 ¶ [e]Thou shalt not sow thy vineyard with divers seeds: lest the †fruit of thy seed which thou hast sown, and the fruit of thy vineyard, be defiled.

10 ¶ [f]Thou shalt not plough with an ox and an ass together.

11 ¶ [g]Thou shalt not wear a garment of divers sorts, as of woollen and linen together.

12 ¶ Thou shalt make thee [h]fringes upon the four †quarters of thy vesture, wherewith thou coverest thyself.

13 ¶ If any man take a wife, and [i]go in unto her, and hate her,

14 And give occasions of speech against her, and bring up an evil name upon her, and say, I took this woman, and when I came to her, I found her not a maid:

15 Then shall the father of the damsel, and her mother, take and bring forth the tokens of the damsel's virginity unto the elders of the city in the gate:

16 And the damsel's father shall say unto the elders, I gave my daughter unto this man to wife, and he hateth her,

17 And lo, he hath given occasions of speech against her, saying, I found not thy daughter a maid; and yet these are the tokens of my daughter's virginity. And they shall spread the cloth before the elders of the city.

18 And the elders of that city shall take that man and chastise him;

19 And they shall amerce him in an hundred shekels of silver, and give them unto the father of the damsel, because he hath brought up an evil name upon a virgin of Israel: and she shall be his wife; he may not put her away all his days.

20 But if this thing be true, and the tokens of virginity be not found for the damsel:

21 Then they shall bring out the damsel to the door of her father's house, and the men of her city shall stone her with stones that she die; because she hath [k]wrought folly in Israel, to play the whore in her father's house: [l]so shalt thou put evil away from among you.

22 ¶ [m]If a man be found lying with a woman married to an husband, then they shall both of them die, both the man that lay with the woman, and the woman: so shalt thou put away evil from Israel.

23 ¶ If a damsel that is a virgin be [n]betrothed unto an husband, and a man find her in the city, and lie with her;

24 Then ye shall bring them both out unto the gate of that city, and ye shall stone them with stones that

25 ¶ But if a man find a betrothed damsel in the field, and the man ‖ force her, and lie with her; then the man only that lay with her shall die:

26 But unto the damsel thou shalt do nothing; there is in the damsel no sin worthy of death: for as when a man riseth against his neighbour, and slayeth him, even so is this matter:

27 For he found her in the field, and the betrothed damsel cried, and there was none to save her.

28 ¶ [q]If a man find a damsel that is a virgin, which is not betrothed, and lay hold on her, and lie with her, and they be found;

CHAP. XXIII.

1 Uncleanness to be avoided in the host. 19 Of usury. 21 Of vows. 24 Of trespasses.

HE that is wounded in the stones, or hath his privy member cut off, shall not enter into the congregation of the LORD.

2 A bastard shall not enter into the congregation of the LORD; even to his tenth generation shall he not enter into the congregation of the LORD.

3 [a]An Ammonite or Moabite shall not enter into the congregation of the LORD; even to their tenth generation shall they not enter into the congregation of the LORD for ever:

4 [b]Because they met you not with bread and with water in the way, when ye came forth out of Egypt; and [c]because they hired against thee Balaam the son of Beor of Pethor of Mesopotamia, to curse thee.

5 Nevertheless, the LORD thy God would not hearken unto Balaam: but the LORD thy God turned the curse into a blessing unto thee, because the LORD thy God loved thee.

6 [d]Thou shalt not seek their peace, nor their †prosperity all thy days for ever.

7 ¶ Thou shalt not abhor an Edomite, [e]for he is thy brother: thou shalt not abhor an Egyptian, because [f]thou wast a stranger in his land.

8 The children that are begotten of them shall enter into the congregation of the LORD in their third generation.

9 ¶ When the host goeth forth against thine enemies, then keep thee from every wicked thing.

10 ¶ [g]If there be among you any man that is not clean by reason of uncleanness that chanceth him by night, then shall he go abroad out of the camp, he shall not come within the camp:

11 But it shall be, when evening †cometh on, [h]he shall wash himself with water: and when the sun is down, he shall come into the camp again.

12 ¶ Thou shalt have a place also without the camp, whither thou shalt go forth abroad:

13 And thou shalt have a paddle upon thy weapon: and it shall be when thou †wilt ease thyself abroad, thou shalt dig therewith, and shalt turn back, and cover that which cometh from thee:

14 For the LORD thy God [i]walketh in the midst of thy camp, to deliver thee, and to give up thine enemies before thee; therefore shall thy camp be holy: that he see no †unclean thing in thee, and turn away from thee.

15 ¶ [k]Thou shalt not deliver unto his master the servant which is escaped from his master unto thee:

16 He shall dwell with thee, even among you in that place which he shall choose in one of thy gates where it †liketh him best: [l]thou shalt not oppress him.

17 ¶ There shall be no ‖ whore [m]of the daughters of Israel, nor [n]a sodomite of the sons of Israel.

18 Thou shalt not bring the hire of a whore, or the price of a dog into the house of the LORD thy God for any vow: for even both these are abomination unto the LORD thy God.

19 ¶ [o]Thou shalt not lend upon usury to thy brother; usury of money, usury of victuals, usury of any thing that is lent upon usury:

20 [p]Unto a stranger thou mayest lend upon usury; but unto thy brother thou shalt not lend upon usury: [q]that the LORD thy God may bless thee in all that thou settest thine hand to in the land whither thou goest to possess it.

21 ¶ [r]When thou shalt vow a vow unto the LORD thy God, thou shalt not slack to pay it: for the LORD thy God will surely require it of thee; and it would be sin in thee.

22 But if thou shalt forbear to vow, it shall be no sin in thee.

23 [s]That which is gone out of thy lips thou shalt keep and perform; even a free-will-offering, according as thou hast vowed unto the LORD thy God, which thou hast promised with thy mouth.

24 ¶ When thou comest into thy neighbour's vineyard, then thou mayest eat grapes thy fill, at thine own pleasure; but thou shalt not put any in thy vessel.

25 When thou comest into the standing-corn of thy neighbour, [t]then thou mayest pluck the ears with thine hand: but thou shalt not move a sickle unto thy neighbour's standing-corn.

CHAP. XXIV.

1 Of divorce. 6, 10 Of pledges. 7 Of man-stealers. 14 The hire is to be given. 16 Of justice. 19 Of charity.

WHEN a [a]man hath taken a wife, and married her, and it come to pass that she find no favour in his eyes, because he hath found †some uncleanness in her: then let him write her a bill of †divorcement, and give it in her hand, and send her out of his house.

2 And when she is departed out of his house, she may go and be another man's wife.

3 And if the latter husband hate her, and write her a bill of divorcement, and giveth it in her hand, and sendeth her out of his house; or if the latter husband die, which took her to be his wife;

4 [b]Her former husband which sent her away, may not take her again to be his wife, after that she is defiled; for that is abomination before the LORD: and thou shalt not cause the land to sin, which the LORD thy God giveth thee for an inheritance.

5 ¶ [c]When a man hath taken a new wife, he shall not go out to war, †neither shall he be charged with any business: but he shall be free at home one year, and shall [d]cheer up his wife which he hath taken.

6 ¶ No man shall take the nether or the upper millstone to pledge: for he taketh a man's life to pledge.

7 ¶ [e]If a man be found stealing any of his brethren of the children of Israel, and maketh merchandise of him, or selleth him; then that thief shall die; [f]and thou shalt put evil away from among you.

8 ¶ Take heed in [g] the plague of leprosy, that thou observe diligently, and do according to all that the priests the Levites shall teach you: as I commanded them, so ye shall observe to do.

9 [h] Remember what the LORD thy God did [i] unto Miriam by the way, after that ye were come forth out of Egypt.

10 ¶ When thou dost † lend thy brother any thing, thou shalt not go into his house to fetch his pledge:

11 Thou shalt stand abroad, and the man to whom thou dost lend shall bring out the pledge abroad unto thee:

12 And if the man be poor, thou shalt not sleep with his pledge:

13 [k] In any case thou shalt deliver him the pledge again when the sun goeth down, that he may sleep in his own raiment, and [l] bless thee; and [m] it shall be righteousness unto thee before the LORD thy God.

14 ¶ Thou shalt not [n] oppress an hired servant that is poor and needy, whether he be of thy brethren, or of thy strangers that are in thy land within thy gates:

15 At his day [o] thou shalt give him his hire, neither shall the sun go down upon it, for he is poor, and † setteth his heart upon it: [p] lest he cry against thee unto the LORD, and it be sin unto thee.

16 [q] The fathers shall not be put to death for the children, neither shall the children be put to death for the fathers: every man shall be put to death for his own sin.

17 ¶ [r] Thou shalt not pervert the judgment of the stranger, nor of the fatherless, [s] nor take a widow's raiment to pledge:

18 But [t] thou shalt remember that thou wast a bond-man in Egypt, and the LORD thy God redeemed thee thence: therefore I command thee to do this thing.

19 ¶ [u] When thou cuttest down thine harvest in thy field, and hast forgot a sheaf in the field, thou shalt not go again to fetch it: it shall be for the stranger, for the fatherless, and for the widow: that the LORD thy God may [x] bless thee in all the work of thine hands.

20 When thou beatest thine olive-tree, † thou shalt not go over the boughs again: it shall be for the stranger, for the fatherless, and for the widow.

21 When thou gatherest the grapes of thy vineyard, thou shalt not glean it † afterward: it shall be for the stranger, for the fatherless, and for the widow.

22 And [y] thou shalt remember that thou wast a bond-man in the land of Egypt: therefore I command thee to do this thing.

CHAP. XXV.

1 Stripes must not exceed forty. 4 The ox is not to be muzzled. 13 Of unjust weights.

IF there be a [a] controversy between men, and they come unto judgment, that the judges may judge them; then they [b] shall justify the righteous, and condemn the wicked.

2 And it shall be, if the wicked man be [c] worthy to be beaten, that the judge shall cause him to lie down, [d] and to be beaten before his face, according to his fault, by a certain number.

3 [e] Forty stripes he may give him, and not exceed: lest if he should exceed, and beat him above these with many stripes, then thy brother should [f] seem vile unto thee.

4 ¶ [g] Thou shalt not muzzle the ox when he † treadeth out the corn.

5 ¶ [h] If brethren dwell together, and one of them die and have no child, the wife of the dead shall not marry without unto a stranger: her ‖ husband's brother shall go in unto her, and take her to him to wife, and perform the duty of an husband's brother unto her.

6 And it shall be, that the first-born which she beareth, [i] shall succeed in the name of his brother which is dead, that [k] his name be not put out of Israel.

7 And if the man like not to take his ‖ brother's wife, then let his brother's wife go up to the [l] gate unto the elders, and say, My husband's brother refuseth to raise up unto his brother a name in Israel, he will not perform the duty of my husband's brother.

8 Then the elders of his city shall call him, and speak unto him: and if he stand to it, and say, [m] I like not to take her,

9 Then shall his brother's wife come unto him in the presence of the elders, and [n] loose his shoe from off his foot, and spit in his face, and shall answer and say, So shall it be done unto that man that will not [o] build up his brother's house.

10 And his name shall be called in Israel, The house of him that hath his shoe loosed.

11 ¶ When men strive together one with another, and the wife of the one draweth near for to deliver her husband out of the hand of him that smiteth him, and putteth forth her hand, and taketh him by the secrets:

12 Then thou shalt cut off her hand, [p] thine eye shall not pity her.

13 ¶ [q] Thou shalt not have in thy bag † divers weights, a great and a small:

14 Thou shalt not have in thine house † divers measures, a great and a small:

15 But thou shalt have a perfect and just weight, a perfect and just measure shalt thou have; [r] that thy days may be lengthened in the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee.

16 For [s] all that do such things, and all that do unrighteously, are an abomination unto the LORD thy God.

17 ¶ [t] Remember what Amalek did unto thee by the way, when ye were come forth out of Egypt;

18 How he met thee by the way, and smote the hindmost of thee, even all that were feeble behind thee, when thou wast faint and weary: and he [u] feared not God.

19 Therefore it shall be, [x] when the LORD thy God hath given thee rest from all thine enemies round about, in the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee for an inheritance to possess it, that thou shalt [y] blot out the remembrance of Amalek from under heaven; thou shalt not forget it.

CHAP. XXVI.

The covenant between God and the people.

AND it shall be, when thou art come in unto the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee for an inheritance, and possessest it, and dwellest therein;

2 [a] That thou shalt take of the first of all the fruit of the earth, which thou shalt bring of thy land that the LORD thy God giveth thee, and shalt put it in a basket, and shalt [b] go unto the place which the LORD thy God shall choose to place his name there.

3 And thou shalt go unto the priest that shall be in those days, and say unto him, I profess this day unto the LORD thy God, that I am come unto the country which the LORD sware unto our fathers for to give us.

4 And the priest shall take the basket out of thine hand, and set it down before the altar of the LORD thy God.

5 And thou shalt speak and say before the LORD thy God, [c] A Syrian [d] ready to perish was my father; and [c] he went down into Egypt, and sojourned there with a [f] few, and became there a nation, great, mighty, and populous:

6 And [g] the Egyptians evil-entreated us, and afflicted us, and laid upon us hard bondage:

7 And [h] when we cried unto the LORD God of our fathers, the LORD heard our voice, and looked on our affliction, and our labour, and our oppression:

8 And [i] the LORD brought us forth out of Egypt with a mighty hand, and with an out-stretched arm, and [k] with great terribleness, and with signs, and with wonders:

9 And he hath brought us into this place, and hath given us this land, even [l] a land that floweth with milk and honey.

10 And now, behold, I have brought the first-fruits of the land, which thou, O LORD, hast given me: and thou shalt set it before the LORD thy God, and worship before the LORD thy God:

11 And [m] thou shalt rejoice in every good thing which the LORD thy God hath given unto thee, and unto thine house, thou and the Levite, and the stranger that is among you.

12 ¶ When thou hast made an end of tithing all the [n] tithes of thine increase the third year, which is [o] the year of tithing, and hast given it unto the Levite, the stranger, the fatherless, and the widow, that they may eat within thy gates, and be filled:

13 Then thou shalt say before the LORD thy God, I have brought away the hallowed things out of mine house, and also have given them unto the Levite, and unto the stranger, to the fatherless, and to the widow, according to all thy commandments which thou hast commanded me: I have not transgressed thy commandments, [p] neither have I forgotten them:

14 [q] I have not eaten thereof in my mourning, neither have I taken away aught thereof for any unclean use, nor given aught thereof for the dead: but I have hearkened to the voice of the LORD my God, and have done according to all that thou hast commanded me.

15 [r] Look down from thy holy habitation, from heaven, and bless thy people Israel, and the land which thou hast given us, as thou swarest unto our fathers, a land that floweth with milk and honey.

16 ¶ This day the LORD thy God hath commanded thee to do these statutes and judgments: thou shalt therefore keep and do them with all thine heart, and with all thy soul.

17 Thou hast [s] avouched the LORD this day to be thy God, and to walk in his ways, and to keep his statutes, and his commandments, and his judgments, and to hearken unto his voice:

18 And [t] the LORD hath avouched thee this day to be his peculiar people, as he hath promised thee, and that thou shouldest keep all his commandments;

19 And to make thee [u] high above all nations which he hath made, in praise, and in name, and in honour; and that thou mayest be [x] an holy people unto the LORD thy God, as he hath spoken.

CHAP. XXVII.

The curses pronounced on mount Ebal.

AND Moses with the elders of Israel commanded the people, saying, Keep all the commandments which I command you this day.

2 And it shall be on the day [a] when ye shall pass over Jordan unto the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee, that [b] thou shalt set thee up great stones, and plaster them with plaster:

3 And thou shalt write upon them all the words of this law, when thou art passed over, that thou mayest go in unto the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee, a land that floweth with milk and honey; as the LORD God of thy fathers hath promised thee.

4 Therefore it shall be when ye be gone over Jordan, that ye shall set up these stones, which I command you this day, [c] in mount Ebal, and thou shalt plaster them with plaster.

5 And there shall thou build an altar unto the LORD thy God, an altar of stones: [d] thou shalt not lift up any iron tool upon them.

6 Thou shalt build the altar of the LORD thy God of whole stones: and thou shalt offer burnt-offerings thereon unto the LORD thy God:

7 And thou shalt offer peace-offerings, and shalt eat there, and rejoice before the LORD thy God.

8 And thou shalt write upon the stones all the words of this law, very plainly.

9 ¶ And Moses and the priests the Levites spake unto all Israel, saying, Take heed and hearken, O Israel, [e] this day thou art become the people of the LORD thy God.

10 Thou shalt therefore obey the voice of the LORD thy God, and do his commandments and his statutes which I command thee this day.

11 ¶ And Moses charged the people the same day, saying,

12 These shall stand [f] upon mount Gerizim to bless the people, when ye are come over Jordan; Simeon, and Levi, and Judah, and Issachar, and Joseph, and Benjamin:

13 And [g] these shall stand upon mount Ebal † to curse; Reuben, Gad, and Asher, and Zebulun, Dan, and Naphtali.

14 ¶ And [h] the Levites shall speak, and say unto all the men of Israel with a loud voice,

15 [i] Cursed be the man that maketh any graven or molten image, an abomination unto the LORD, the work of the hands of the craftsman, and putteth it in a secret place: [k] and all the people shall answer and say, Amen.

16 [l] Cursed be he that setteth light by his father or his mother: and all the people shall say, Amen.

17 [m] Cursed be he that removeth his neighbour's land-mark: and all the people shall say, Amen.

18 [n] Cursed be he that maketh the blind to wander out of the way: and all the people shall say, Amen.

19 [o] Cursed be he that perverteth the judgment of the stranger, fatherless, and widow: and all the people shall say, Amen.

20 [p] Cursed be he that lieth with his father's wife; because he uncovereth his father's skirt: and all the people shall say, Amen.

21 [q] Cursed be he that lieth with any manner of beast: and all the people shall say, Amen.

22 [r] Cursed be he that lieth with his sister, the daughter of his father, or the daughter of his mother: and all the people shall say, Amen.

23 [s] Cursed be he that lieth with his mother-in-law: and all the people shall say, Amen.

24 [t] Cursed be he that smiteth his neighbour secretly: and all the people shall say, Amen.

25 [u] Cursed be he that taketh reward to slay an innocent person: and all the people shall say, Amen.

CHAP. XXVIII.

The blessings for obedience. 15 The curses for disobedience.

AND it shall come to pass, [a] if thou shalt hearken diligently unto the voice of the LORD thy God, to observe and to do all his commandments which I command thee this day: that the LORD thy God [b] will set thee on high above all nations of the earth:

2 And all these blessings shall come on thee, and [c] overtake thee, if thou shalt hearken unto the voice of the LORD thy God.

3 [d] Blessed shalt thou be in the city, and blessed shalt thou be [e] in the field.

4 Blessed shall be [f] the fruit of thy body, and the fruit of thy ground, and the fruit of thy cattle, the increase of thy kine, and the flocks of thy sheep.

5 Blessed shall be thy basket and thy ‖ store.

6 [g] Blessed shalt thou be when thou comest in, and blessed shalt thou be when thou goest out.

7 The LORD [h] shall cause thine enemies that rise up against thee to be smitten before thy face: they shall come out against thee one way, and flee before thee seven ways.

8 The LORD shall [i] command the blessing upon thee in thy ‖ store-houses, and in all that thou [k] settest thine hand unto: and he shall bless thee in the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee.

9 [l] The LORD shall establish thee an holy people unto himself, as he hath sworn unto thee, if thou shalt keep the commandments of the LORD thy God, and walk in his ways.

10 And all people of the earth shall see that thou art [m] called by the name of the LORD; and they shall be [n] afraid of thee.

11 And [o] the Lord shall make thee plenteous ‖ in goods, in the fruit of thy † body, and in the fruit of thy cattle, and in the fruit of thy ground, in the land which the LORD sware unto thy fathers to give thee.

12 The LORD shall open unto thee his good treasure, the heaven [p] to give the rain unto thy land in his season, and [q] to bless all the work of thine hand: and [r] thou shalt lend unto many nations, and thou shalt not borrow.

13 And the LORD shall make thee [s] the head, and not the tail; and thou shalt be above only, and thou shalt not be beneath; if that thou hearken unto the commandments of the LORD thy God, which I command thee this day, to observe and to do them:

14 [t] And thou shalt not go aside from any of the words which I command thee this day, to the right hand or to the left, to go after other gods to serve them.

15 ¶ But it shall come to pass, [u] if thou wilt not hearken unto the voice of the LORD thy God, to observe to do all his commandments and his statutes which I command thee this day: that all these curses shall come upon thee, and [x] overtake thee:

16 Cursed shalt thou be [y] in the city, and cursed shalt thou be in the field.

17 Cursed shall be thy basket and thy store.

18 Cursed shall be the fruit of thy body, and the fruit of thy land, the increase of thy kine, and the flocks of thy sheep.

19 Cursed shalt thou be when thou comest in, and cursed shalt thou be when thou goest out.

20 The LORD shall send upon thee [z] cursing, [a] vexation, and [b] rebuke, in all that thou settest thine hand unto † for to do, until thou be destroyed, and until thou perish quickly; because of the wickedness of thy doings whereby thou hast forsaken me.

21 The LORD shall make [c] the pestilence cleave unto thee, until he have consumed thee from off the land, whither thou goest to possess it.

22 [d] The LORD shall smite thee with a consumption, and with a fever, and with an inflammation, and with an extreme burning, and with the ‖ sword, and with [e] blasting, and with mildew; and they shall pursue thee until thou perish.

23 And [f] thy heaven that is over thy head shall be brass, and the earth that is under thee shall be iron.

24 The LORD shall make the rain of thy land powder and dust: from heaven shall it come down upon thee, until thou be destroyed.

25 [g] The LORD shall cause thee to be smitten before thine enemies: thou shalt go out one way against them, and flee seven ways before them; and [h] shalt be † removed into all the kingdoms of the earth.

26 And [i] thy carcass shall be meat unto all fowls of the air, and unto the beasts of the earth, and no man shall fray them away.

27 The LORD will smite thee with [k] the botch of Egypt, and with [l] the emerods, and with the scab, and with the itch, whereof thou canst not be healed.

28 The LORD shall smite thee with madness, and blindness, and [m] astonishment of heart:

29 And thou shalt [n] grope at noon-day, as the blind gropeth in darkness, and thou shalt not prosper in thy ways: and thou shalt be only oppressed and spoiled evermore, and no man shall save thee.

30 [o] Thou shalt betroth a wife, and another man shall lie with her: [p] thou shalt build an house, and thou shalt not dwell therein: [q] thou shalt plant a vineyard, and shalt not † gather the grapes thereof.

31 Thine ox shall be slain before thine eyes, and thou shalt not eat thereof: thine ass shall be violently taken away from before thy face, and † shall not be restored to thee: thy sheep shall be given unto thine enemies, and thou shalt have none to rescue them.

32 Thy sons and thy daughters shall be given unto another people, and thine eyes shall look, and [r] fail with longing for them all the day long: and there shall be no might in thine hand.

33 [s] The fruit of thy land, and all thy labours, shall a nation which thou knowest not eat up: and thou shalt be only oppressed and crushed alway:

34 So that thou shalt be mad [t] for the sight of thine eyes which thou shalt see.

35 The Lord shall [u] smite thee in the knees, and in the legs, with a sore botch that cannot be healed, from the sole of thy foot unto the top of thy head.

36 The LORD shall [x] bring thee, and thy king which thou shalt set over thee, unto a nation which neither thou nor thy fathers have known; and [y] there shalt thou serve other gods, wood and stone.

37 And thou shalt become [z] an astonishment, a proverb, [a] and a by-word, among all nations whither the LORD shall lead thee.

38 [b] Thou shalt carry much seed out into the field, and shalt gather but little in: for [c] the locust shall consume it.

39 Thou shalt plant vineyards and dress them, but shalt neither drink of the wine, nor gather the grapes; for the worms shall eat them.

40 Thou shalt have olive-trees throughout all thy coasts, but thou shalt not anoint thyself with the oil: for thine olive shall cast his fruit.

41 Thou shalt beget sons and daughters, but † thou shalt not enjoy them: for [d] they shall go into captivity.

42 All thy trees and fruit of thy land shall the locust ‖consume.

43 The stranger that is within thee shall get up above thee very high; and thou shalt come down very low.

44 [e] He shall lend to thee, and thou shalt not lend to him: [f] he shall be the head, and thou shalt be the tail.

45 Moreover, [g] all these curses shall come upon thee, and shall pursue thee, and overtake thee, till thou be destroyed: because thou hearkenedst not unto the voice of the LORD thy God, to keep his commandments and his statutes which he commanded thee.

46 And they shall be upon thee [h] for a sign and for a wonder, and upon thy seed for ever.

47 [i] Because thou servedst not the LORD thy God with joyfulness and with gladness of heart, [k] for the abundance of all things;

48 Therefore shalt thou serve thine enemies which the LORD shall send against thee, in hunger, and in thirst, and in nakedness, and in want of all things: and he [l] shall put a yoke of iron upon thy neck, until he have destroyed thee.

49 [m] The LORD shall bring a nation against thee from far, from the end of the earth, [n] as swift as the eagle flieth, a nation whose tongue thou shalt not † understand;

50 A nation † of fierce countenance, [o] which shall not regard the person of the old, nor shew favour to the young:

51 And he shall [p] eat the fruit of thy cattle, and the fruit of thy land, until thou be destroyed: which also shall not leave thee either corn, wine, or oil, or the increase of thy kine, or flocks of thy sheep, until he have destroyed thee.

52 And he shall [q] besiege thee in all thy gates, until thy high and fenced walls come down, wherein thou trustedst, throughout all thy land: and he shall besiege thee in all thy gates throughout all thy land which the LORD thy God hath given thee.

53 And [r] thou shalt eat the fruit of thine own † body, the flesh of thy sons and of thy daughters which the LORD thy God hath given thee, in the siege and in the straitness wherewith thine enemies shall distress thee:

54 So that the man that is tender among you, and very delicate, [s] his eye shall be evil toward his brother, and toward [t] the wife of his bosom, and toward the remnant of his children which he shall leave:

55 So that he will not give to any of them of the flesh of his children whom he shall eat: because he hath nothing left him in the siege and in the straitness wherewith thine enemies shall distress thee in all thy gates.

56 The tender and delicate woman among you, which would not adventure to set the sole of her foot upon the ground for delicateness and tenderness, [u] her eye shall be evil toward the husband of her bosom, and toward her son, and toward her daughter,

57 And toward her † young one that cometh out [x] from between her feet, and toward her children which she shall bear: for she shall eat them for want of all things secretly in the siege and straitness wherewith thine enemy shall distress thee in thy gates.

58 If thou wilt not observe to do all the words of this law that are written in this book, that thou mayest fear [y] this glorious and fearful name THE LORD THY GOD;

59 Then the LORD will make thy plagues [z] wonderful, and the plagues of thy seed, even great plagues, and of long continuance, and sore sicknesses, and of long continuance.

60 Moreover he will bring upon thee all [a] the diseases of Egypt, which thou wast afraid of; and they shall cleave unto thee.

61 Also every sickness, and every plague which is not written in the book of this law, them will the LORD † bring upon thee, until thou be destroyed.

62 And ye [b] shall be left few in number, whereas ye were [c] as the stars of heaven for multitude; because thou wouldest not obey the voice of the LORD thy God.

63 And it shall come to pass, that as the LORD [d] rejoiced over you to do you good, and to multiply you; so the LORD [e] will rejoice over you to destroy you and to bring you to nought; and ye shall be plucked from off the land whither thou goest to possess it.

64 And the LORD [f] shall scatter thee among all people from the one end of the earth even unto the other; and [g] there thou shalt serve other gods, which neither thou nor thy fathers have known, even wood and stone.

65 And [h] among these nations shalt thou find no ease, neither shall the sole of thy foot have rest: [i] but the LORD shall give thee there a trembling heart, and failing of eyes, and [k] sorrow of mind.

66 And thy life shall hang in doubt before thee; and thou shalt fear day and night, and shalt have none assurance of thy life:

67 [l] In the morning thou shalt say, Would God it were even! and at even thou shalt say, Would God it were morning! for the fear of thine heart wherewith thou shalt fear, and [m] for the sight of thine eyes which thou shalt see.

68 And the LORD [n] shall bring thee into Egypt again with ships, by the way whereof I spake unto thee, [o] Thou shalt see it no more again: and there ye shall be sold unto your enemies for bond-men and bond-women, and no man shall buy you.

CHAP. XXIX.

1 Moses exhorteth them to obedience, by the memory of the works they have seen. 29 Secret things belong unto God.

THESE are the words of the covenant which the LORD commanded Moses to make with the children of Israel in the land of Moab, besides [a] the covenant which he made with them in Horeb.

2 ¶ And Moses called unto all Israel, and said unto them, [b] Ye have seen all that the LORD did before your eyes in the land of Egypt unto Pharaoh, and unto all his servants, and unto all his land;

3 [c] The great temptations which thine eyes have seen, the signs, and those great miracles:

4 Yet [d] the LORD hath not given you an heart to perceive, and eyes to see, and ears to hear, unto this day.

5 [e] And I have led you forty years in the wilderness: [f] your clothes are not waxen old upon you, and thy shoe is not waxen old upon thy foot.

6 [g] Ye have not eaten bread, neither have ye drunk wine or strong drink: that ye might know that I am the LORD your God.

7 And when ye came unto this place, [h] Sihon the king of Heshbon, and Og the king of Bashan, came out against us unto battle, and we smote them:

8 And we took their land, and [i] gave it for an inheritance unto the Reubenites, and to the Gadites, and to the half-tribe of Manasseh.

9 [k]Keep therefore the words of this covenant, and do them, that ye may [l]prosper in all that ye do.

10 ¶ Ye stand this day all of you before the LORD your God; your captains of your tribes, your elders, and your officers, with all the men of Israel,

11 Your little ones, your wives, and thy stranger that is in thy camp, from [m]the hewer of thy wood, unto the drawer of thy water:

12 That thou shouldest †enter into covenant with the LORD thy God, and [n]into his oath, which the LORD thy God maketh with thee this day:

13 That he may [o]establish thee to-day for a people unto himself, and that he may be unto thee a God, [p]as he hath said unto thee, and [q]as he hath sworn unto thy fathers, to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob.

14 Neither with you only [r]do I make this covenant and this oath;

15 But with him that standeth here with us this day before the LORD our God, [s]and also with him that is not here with us this day:

16 (For ye know how we have dwelt in the land of Egypt; and how we came through the nations which ye passed by;

17 And ye have seen their abominations, and their †idols, wood and stone, silver and gold, which were among them:)

18 Lest there should be among you man, or woman, or family, or tribe, [t]whose heart turneth away this day from the LORD our God, to go and serve the gods of these nations; [u]lest there should be among you a root that beareth ‖ †gall and wormwood;

19 And it come to pass, when he heareth the words of this curse, that he bless himself in his heart, saying, I shall have peace, though I walk [w]in the ‖ imagination of mine heart, [x]to add †drunkenness to thirst:

20 [y]The LORD will not spare him, but then [z]the anger of the LORD and [a]his jealousy shall smoke against that man, and all the curses that are written in this book shall lie upon him, and the LORD [b]shall blot out his name from under heaven.

21 And the LORD [c]shall separate him unto evil out of all the tribes of Israel according to all the curses of the covenant that †are written in this book of the law:

22 So that the generation to come of your children that shall rise up after you, and the stranger that shall come from a far land, shall say, when they see the plagues of that land, and the sicknesses †which the LORD hath laid upon it;

23 And that the whole land thereof is brimstone, [d]and salt, and burning, that it is not sown, nor beareth, nor any grass groweth therein, [e]like the overthrow of Sodom, and Gomorrah, Admah, and Zeboim, which the LORD overthrew in his anger and in his wrath:

24 Even all nations shall say, [f]Wherefore hath the LORD done thus unto this land? what meaneth the heart of this great anger?

25 Then men shall say, Because they have forsaken the covenant of the LORD God of their fathers, which he made with them when he brought them forth out of the land of Egypt:

26 For they went and served other gods, and worshipped them, gods whom they knew not, and ‖ whom he had not †given unto them:

27 And the anger of the LORD was kindled against this land, [g]to bring upon it all the curses that are written in [h]this book:

28 And the LORD [h]rooted them out of their land in anger and in wrath, and in great indignation, and cast them into another land, as it is this day.

29 The secret things belong unto the LORD our God: but those things which are revealed belong unto us, and to our children for ever, that we may do all the words of this law.

CHAP. XXX.

1 Great mercies promised unto the repentant. 15 Life and death are before them.

AND [a]it shall come to pass, when [b]all these things are come upon thee, the blessing and the curse, which I have set before thee, and [c]thou shalt call them to mind among all the nations whither the LORD thy God hath driven thee,

2 And shalt [d]return unto the LORD thy God, and shalt obey his voice according to all that I command thee this day, thou and thy children, with all thine heart, and with all thy soul;

3 [e]That then the LORD thy God will turn thy captivity, and have compassion upon thee, and will return and [f]gather thee from all the nations whither the LORD thy God hath scattered thee.

4 [g]If any of thine be driven out unto the outmost parts of heaven, from thence will the LORD thy God gather thee, and from thence will he fetch thee:

5 And the LORD thy God will bring thee into the land which thy fathers possessed, and thou shalt possess it; and he will do thee good, and multiply thee above thy fathers.

6 And [h]the LORD thy God will circumcise thine heart, and the heart of thy seed, to love the LORD thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, that thou mayest live.

7 And the LORD thy God will put all these curses upon thine enemies, and on them that hate thee, which persecuted thee.

8 And thou shalt return and obey the voice of the LORD, and do all his commandments which I command thee this day.

9 [i]And the LORD thy God will make thee plenteous in every work of thine hand, in the fruit of thy body, and in the fruit of thy cattle, and in the fruit of thy land, for good: for the LORD will again [k]rejoice over thee for good, as he rejoiced over thy fathers:

10 If thou shalt hearken unto the voice of the LORD thy God, to keep his commandments and his statutes which are written in this book of the law, and if thou turn unto the LORD thy God with all thine heart and with all thy soul.

11 ¶ For this commandment which I command thee this day, [l]it is not hidden from thee, neither is it far off.

12 [m]It is not in heaven, that thou shouldest say, Who shall go up for us to heaven, and bring it unto us, that we may hear it, and do it?

13 Neither is it beyond the sea, that thou shouldest say, Who shall go over the sea for us, and bring it unto us, that we may hear it, and do it?

14 But the word is very nigh unto thee, in thy mouth, and in thy heart, that thou mayest do it.

15 ¶ See, [n]I have set before thee this day life and good, and death and evil;

16 In that I command thee this day to love the LORD thy God, to walk in his ways, and to keep his commandments, and his statutes, and his judgments, that thou mayest live and multiply: and the LORD thy God shall bless thee in the land whither thou goest to possess it.

CHAP. XXXI.

1 Moses encourageth the people, and Joshua. 9. He delivereth the law unto the priests. 14 God giveth a charge to Joshua.

AND Moses went and spake these words unto all Israel.

2 And he said unto them, I [a]am an hundred and twenty years old this day; I can no more [b]go out and come in: also the LORD hath said unto me, [c]Thou shalt not go over this Jordan.

3 The LORD thy God, [d]he will go over before thee, and he will destroy these nations from before thee, and thou shalt possess them: and Joshua he shall go over before thee, [e]as the LORD hath said.

4 [f]And the LORD shall do unto them [g]as he did to Sihon, and to Og, kings of the Amorites, and unto the land of them, whom he destroyed.

5 [h]And the LORD shall give them up before your face, that ye may do unto them according unto all the commandments which I have commanded you.

6 [i]Be strong and of a good courage, [k]fear not, nor be afraid of them: for the LORD thy God, [l]he it is that doth go with thee, [m]he will not fail thee, nor forsake thee.

7 ¶And Moses called unto Joshua, and said unto him in the sight of all Israel, [n]Be strong and of a good courage: for thou must go with this people unto the land which the LORD hath sworn unto their fathers to give them; and thou shalt cause them to inherit it.

8 And the LORD, [o]he it is that doth go before thee; [p]he will be with thee, he will not fail thee, neither forsake thee: fear not, neither be dismayed.

9 ¶And Moses wrote this law, [q]and delivered it unto the priests the sons of Levi, [r]which bare the ark of the covenant of the LORD, and unto all the elders of Israel.

10 And Moses commanded them, saying, At the end of every seven years, in the solemnity of the [s]year of release, [t]in the feast of tabernacles,

11 When all Israel is come to [u]appear before the LORD thy God in the place which he shall choose, [x]thou shalt read this law before all Israel in their hearing.

12 [y]Gather the people together, men, and women, and children, and thy stranger that is within thy gates, that they may hear, and that they may learn, and fear the LORD your God, and observe to do all the words of this law:

13 And that their children [z]which have not known any thing, [a]may hear, and learn to fear the LORD your God, as long as ye live in the land whither ye go over Jordan to possess it.

14 ¶And the LORD said unto Moses, [b]Behold, thy days approach that thou must die: call Joshua, and present yourselves in the tabernacle of the congregation, that [c]I may give him a charge. And Moses and Joshua went and presented themselves in the tabernacle of the congregation.

15 And [d]the LORD appeared in the tabernacle in a pillar of a cloud: and the pillar of the cloud stood over the door of the tabernacle.

16 ¶And the LORD said unto Moses, Behold, thou shalt †sleep with thy fathers, and this people will [e]rise up, and [f]go a whoring after the gods of the strangers of the land, whither they go to be among them, and will [g]forsake me, and [h]break my covenant which I have made with them.

17 Then my anger shall be kindled against them in that day, and [i]I will forsake them, and I will [k]hide my face from them, and they shall be devoured, and many evils and troubles shall †befall them; so that they will say in that day, [l]Are not these evils come upon us, because our God is [m]not among us?

18 And [n]I will surely hide my face in that day for all the evils which they shall have wrought, in that they are turned unto other gods.

19 Now therefore write ye this song for you, and teach it the children of Israel: put it in their mouths, that this song may be [o]a witness for me against the children of Israel.

20 For when I shall have brought them into the land which I sware unto their fathers, that floweth with milk and honey; and they shall have eaten and filled themselves, [p]and waxen fat; [q]then will they turn unto other gods, and serve them, and provoke me, and break my covenant.

21 And it shall come to pass, [r]when many evils and troubles are befallen them, that this song shall testify †against them as a witness: for it shall not be forgotten out of the mouths of their seed: for [s]I know their imagination [t]which †they go about even now, before I have brought them into the land which I sware.

22 ¶Moses therefore wrote this song the same day, and taught it the children of Israel.

23 [u]And he gave Joshua the son of Nun a charge, and said, [x]Be strong and of a good courage: for thou shalt bring the children of Israel into the land which I sware unto them: and I will be with thee.

24 ¶And it came to pass, when Moses had made an end of [y]writing the words of this law in a book, until they were finished,

25 That Moses commanded the Levites which bare the ark of the covenant of the LORD, saying,

26 Take this book of the law, [z]and put it in the side of the ark of the covenant of the LORD your God, that it may be there [a]for a witness against thee.

27 [b]For I know thy rebellion, and thy [c]stiff neck: behold, while I am yet alive with you this day, ye have been rebellious against the LORD; and how much more after my death?

28 ¶Gather unto me all the elders of your tribes, and your officers, that I may speak these words in their ears, [d]and call heaven and earth to record against them.

29 For I know that after my death ye will utterly [e]corrupt yourselves, and turn aside from the way which I have commanded you; and [f]evil will befall you [g]in the latter days; because ye will do evil in the sight of the LORD, to provoke him to anger through the work of your hands.

30 And Moses spake in the ears of all the congregation of Israel the words of this song until they were ended.

CHAP. XXXII.

1 Moses' song, which setteth forth God's mercy and vengeance. 48 God sendeth him up to mount Nebo, to see the land.

GIVE [a]ear, O ye heavens, and I will speak; and hear, O earth, the words of my mouth.

2 [b]My doctrine shall drop as the rain, my speech shall distil as the dew, [c]as the small rain upon the tender herb, and as the showers upon the grass:

3 Because I will publish the name of the LORD: [d]ascribe ye greatness unto our God.

4 He is [e]the Rock, [f]his work is perfect: for [g]all his ways are judgment: [h]a God of truth and [i]without iniquity, just and right is he.

5 †[k]They have corrupted themselves, ‖their spot is not the spot of his children: they are a [l]perverse and crooked generation.

6 Do ye thus [m]requite the LORD, O foolish people and unwise? is not he [n]thy father that hath [o]bought thee? hath he not [p]made thee, and established thee?

7 ¶Remember the days of old, consider the years of †many generations: [q]ask thy father, and he will shew thee; thy elders, and they will tell thee.

8 When the Most High [r]divided to the nations their inheritance, when he [s]separated the sons of Adam, he set the bounds of the people according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For [t]the LORD'S portion is his people; Jacob is the †lot of his inheritance.

10 He found him [u]in a desert land, and in the waste howling wilderness; he ‖led him about, he [x]instructed him, he [y]kept him as the apple of his eye.

11 [z]As an eagle stirreth up her nest, fluttereth over her young, spreadeth abroad her wings, taketh them, beareth them on her wings;

12 So the LORD alone did lead him, and there was no strange god with him.

13 [a]He made him ride on the high places of the earth, that he might eat the increase of the fields; and he made him to suck [b]honey out of the rock, and oil out of the flinty rock;

14 Butter of kine, and milk of sheep, with fat of lambs, and rams of the breed of Bashan, and goats, [c]with the fat of kidneys of wheat; and thou didst drink the pure [d]blood of the grape.

15 ¶But [e]Jeshurun waxed fat, and [f]kicked: [g]thou art waxen fat, thou art grown thick, thou art covered with fatness; then he [h]forsook God which [i]made him, and lightly esteemed the [k]Rock of his salvation.

16 [l]They provoked him to jealousy with strange gods, with abominations provoked they him to anger.

17 [m]They sacrificed unto devils, ‖not to God; to gods whom they knew not, to new gods that came newly up, whom your fathers feared not.

18 [n]Of the Rock that begat thee thou art unmindful, and hast [o]forgotten God that formed thee.

19 [p]And when the LORD saw it, he ‖abhorred them, [q]because of the provoking of his sons, and of his daughters.

20 And he said, [r]I will hide my face from them, I will see what their end shall be: for they are a very froward generation, [s]children in whom is no faith.

21 [t]They have moved me to jealousy with that which is not God; they have provoked me to anger [u]with their vanities: and [x]I will move them to jealousy with those which are not a people; I will provoke them to anger with a foolish nation.

22 For [y]a fire is kindled in mine anger, and ‖shall burn unto the lowest hell, and ‖shall consume the earth with her increase, and set on fire the foundations of the mountains.

23 I will [z]heap mischiefs upon them; [a]I will spend mine arrows upon them.

24 They shall be burnt with hunger, and devoured with †burning heat, and with bitter destruction: I will also send [b]the teeth of beasts upon them, with the poison of serpents of the dust.

25 [c]The sword without, and terror †within, shall †destroy both the young man and the virgin, the suckling also with the man of gray hairs.

26 [d]I said, I would scatter them into corners, I would make the remembrance of them to cease from among men;

27 Were it not that I feared the wrath of the enemy, lest their adversaries [e]should behave themselves strangely, and lest they should [f]say, ‖Our hand is high, and the LORD hath not done all this.

28 For they are a nation void of counsel, [g]neither is there any understanding in them.

29 [h]O that they were wise, that they understood this, [i]that they would consider their latter end!

30 How should [k]one chase a thousand, and two put ten thousand to flight, except their Rock [l]had sold them, and the LORD had shut them up?

31 For [m]their rock is not as our Rock, [n]even our enemies themselves being judges:

32 For [o]their vine ‖is of the vine of Sodom, and of the fields of Gomorrah: their grapes are grapes of gall, their clusters are bitter:

33 Their wine is [p]the poison of dragons, and the cruel [q]venom of asps.

34 Is not this [r]laid up in store with me, and sealed up among my treasures?

35 [s]To me belongeth vengeance, and recompense; their foot shall slide in due time, for [t]the day of their calamity is at hand, and the things that shall come upon them make haste.

36 [u]For the LORD shall judge his people, [x]and repent himself for his servants; when he seeth that their †power is gone, and [y]there is none shut up, or left.

37 And ye shall say, [z]Where are their gods, their rock in whom they trusted, 38 Which did eat the fat of their sacrifices, and drank the wine of their drink-offerings? let them rise up and help you, and be †your protection.

39 See now that [a]I, even I, am he, and [b]there is no god with me: [c]I kill, and I make alive; I wound, and I heal: neither is there any that can deliver out of my hand.

40 [d]For I lift up my hand to heaven, and say, I live for ever.

41 [e]If I whet my glittering sword, and mine hand take hold on judgment; [f]I will render vengeance to mine enemies, and will reward them that hate me.

42 I will make mine arrows [g]drunk with blood, and my sword shall devour flesh; and that with the blood of the slain and of the captives from the beginning of [h]revenges upon the enemy.

43 ‖[i]Rejoice, O ye nations, with his people: for he will [k]avenge the blood of his servants, and [l]will render vengeance to his adversaries, and [m]will be merciful unto his land, and to his people.

this song in the ears of the people, he, and ‖ Hoshea the son of Nun.

45 And Moses made an end of speaking all these words to all Israel:

46 And he said unto them, [n]Set your hearts unto all the words which I testify among you this day, which ye shall command your children to observe to do, all the words of this law.

47 For it is not a vain thing for you; [o]because it is your life: and through this thing ye shall prolong your days in the land whither ye go over Jordan to possess it.

48 [p]And the LORD spake unto Moses that selfsame day, saying,

49 Get thee up into this [q]mountain Abarim, unto mount Nebo, which is in the land of Moab, that is over against Jericho; and behold the land of Canaan which I give unto the children of Israel for a possession:

50 And die in the mount whither thou goest up, and be gathered unto thy people; as [r]Aaron thy brother died in mount Hor, and was gathered unto his people:

51 Because [s]ye trespassed against me among the children of Israel at the waters of ‖ Meribah-Kadesh, in the wilderness of Zin; because ye [t]sanctified me not in the midst of the children of Israel.

52 [u]Yet thou shalt see the land before thee; but thou shalt not go thither unto the land which I give the children of Israel.

CHAP. XXXIII.

1 The majesty of God. 6 The blessings of the twelve tribes. 26 The excellency of Israel.

AND this is [a]the blessing wherewith Moses [b]the man of God blessed the children of Israel before his death.

2 And he said, [c]The LORD came from Sinai, and rose up from Seir unto them; he shined forth from mount Paran, and he came with [d]ten thousands of saints: from his right hand went † a fiery law for them.

3 Yea, [e]he loved the people; [f]all his saints are in thy hand: and they [g]sat down at thy feet; every one shall [h]receive of thy words.

4 [i]Moses commanded us a law; [k]even the inheritance of the congregation of Jacob.

5 And he was [l]king in [m]Jeshurun, when the heads of the people and the tribes of Israel were gathered together.

6 ¶ Let Reuben live, and not die; and let not his men be few.

7 ¶ And this is the blessing of Judah: and he said, Hear, LORD, the voice of Judah, and bring him unto his people: [n]let his hands be sufficient for him; and be thou [o]an help to him from his enemies.

8 ¶ And of Levi he said, [p]Let thy Thummim and thy Urim be with thy holy one, [q]whom thou didst prove at Massah, and with whom thou didst strive at the waters of Meribah;

9 Who said unto his father and to his mother, I have not [r]seen him; [s]neither did he acknowledge his brethren, nor knew his own children: for [t]they have observed thy word, and kept thy covenant.

10 ‖ [u]They shall teach Jacob thy judgments, and Israel thy law; ‖ [x]they shall put incense † before thee, [y]and whole burnt sacrifice upon thine altar.

11 Bless, LORD, his substance, and [z]accept the work of his hands: smite through the loins of them that rise against him, and of them that hate him, that they rise not again.

12 ¶ And of Benjamin he said, The beloved of the LORD shall dwell in safety by him; and the LORD shall cover him all the day long, and he shall dwell between his shoulders.

13 ¶ And of Joseph he said, [a]Blessed of the LORD be his land, for the precious things of heaven, for [b]the dew, and for the deep that coucheth beneath,

14 And for the precious fruits brought forth by the sun, and for the precious things † put forth by the † moon,

15 And for the chief things of [c]the ancient mountains, and for the precious things [d]of the lasting hills,

16 And for the precious things of the earth and fulness thereof, and for the good will of [e]him that dwelt in the bush: let the blessing [f]come upon the head of Joseph, and upon the top of the head of him that was separated from his brethren.

17 His glory is like the [g]firstling of his bullock, and his horns are like [h]the horns of † unicorns: with them [i]he shall push the people together to the ends of the earth: and [k]they are the ten thousands of Ephraim, and they are the thousands of Manasseh.

18 ¶ And of Zebulun he said, [l]Rejoice, Zebulun, in thy going out; and, Issachar, in thy tents.

19 They shall [m]call the people unto the mountain; there [n]they shall offer sacrifices of righteousness: for they shall suck of the abundance of the seas, and of treasures hid in the sand.

20 ¶ And of Gad he said, Blessed be he that [o]enlargeth Gad: he dwelleth as a lion, and teareth the arm with the crown of the head.

21 And [p]he provided the first part for himself, because there, in a portion of the lawgiver, was he † seated: and [q]he came with the heads of the people, he executed the justice of the LORD, and his judgments with Israel.

22 ¶ And of Dan he said, Dan is a lion's whelp: [r]he shall leap from Bashan.

23 ¶ And of Naphtali he said, O Naphtali, [s]satisfied with favour, and full with the blessing of the LORD, [t]possess thou the west and the south.

24 ¶ And of Asher he said, [u]Let Asher be blessed with children; let him be acceptable to his brethren, and let him [x]dip his foot in oil.

25 ‖ Thy shoes shall be [y]iron and brass; and as thy days, so shall thy strength be.

26 ¶ There is [z]none like unto the God of [a]Jeshurun, [b]who rideth upon the heaven in thy help, and in his excellency on the sky.

27 The eternal God [c]is thy [c]refuge, and underneath are the everlasting arms: and [d]he shall thrust out the enemy from before thee; and shall say, Destroy them.

28 [e]Israel then shall dwell in safety alone; [f]the fountain of Jacob shall be upon a land of corn and wine; also his [g]heavens shall drop down dew.

29 [h]Happy art thou, O Israel: [i]who is like unto thee, O people saved by the LORD, [k]the shield of thy help, and who is the sword of thy excellency! and thine enemies [l]‖ shall be found liars unto thee; and [m]thou shalt tread upon their high places.

CHAP. XXXIV.

1 Moses from mount Nebo vieweth the land. 5 He dieth there. 6 His burial. 7 His age.

AND Moses went up from the plains of Moab, [a]unto the mountain of Nebo, to the top of ‖ Pisgah, that is over against Jericho: and the LORD [b]shewed him all the land of Gilead, [c]unto Dan,

The Book of JOSHUA.

CHAP. I.

The Lord appointeth Joshua to succeed Moses.

NOW after the death of Moses, the servant of the LORD, it came to pass, that the LORD spake unto Joshua the son of Nun, Moses' [a] minister, saying,

2 [b] Moses my servant is dead; now therefore arise, go over this Jordan, thou and all this people, unto the land which I do give to them, even to the children of Israel.

3 [c] Every place that the sole of your foot shall tread upon, that have I given unto you, as I said unto Moses.

4 [d] From the wilderness and this Lebanon even unto the great river, the river Euphrates, all the land of the Hittites, and unto the great sea toward the going down of the sun, shall be your coast.

5 [e] There shall not any man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life: [f] as I was with Moses, so [g] I will be with thee: [h] I will not fail thee, nor forsake thee.

6 [i] Be strong and of a good courage: for ‖ unto this people shalt thou divide for an inheritance the land which I sware unto their fathers to give them.

7 Only be thou strong and very courageous, that thou mayest observe to do according to all the law [k] which Moses my servant commanded thee: turn not from it to the right hand or to the left, that thou mayest ‖ prosper whithersoever thou goest.

8 [m] This book of the law shall not depart out of thy mouth; but [n] thou shalt meditate therein day and night, that thou mayest observe to do according to all that is written therein: for then thou shalt make thy way prosperous, and then thou shalt ‖ have good success.

9 [o] Have not I commanded thee? Be strong and of a good courage; [p] be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed: for the LORD thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest.

10 ¶ Then Joshua commanded the officers of the people, saying,

11 Pass through the host and command the people, saying, Prepare you victuals; for [q] within three days ye shall pass over this Jordan, to go in to possess the land which the LORD your God giveth you to possess it.

12 ¶ And to the Reubenites, and to the Gadites, and to half the tribe of Manasseh, spake Joshua, saying,

13 Remember [r] the word which Moses the servant of the LORD commanded you, saying, The LORD your God hath given you rest, and hath given you this land.

14 Your wives, your little ones, and your cattle shall remain in the land which Moses gave you on this side Jordan; but ye shall pass before your brethren † armed, all the mighty men of valour, and help them;

15 Until the LORD have given your brethren rest, as he hath given you, and they also have possessed the land which [s] the LORD your God giveth them: [t] then ye shall return unto the land of your possession, and enjoy it, which Moses the LORD's servant gave you on this side Jordan toward the sun-rising.

16 ¶ And they answered Joshua, saying, All that thou commandest us, we will do, and whithersoever thou sendest us, we will go.

17 According as we hearkened unto Moses in all things, so will we hearken unto thee: only the LORD thy God [t] be with thee, as he was with Moses.

18 Whosoever he be that doth rebel against thy commandment, and will not hearken unto thy words in all that thou commandest him, he shall be put to death: only be strong and of a good courage.

CHAP. II.

Rahab concealeth the two spies sent from Shittim.

AND Joshua the son of Nun ‖ sent [a] out of Shittim two men to spy secretly, saying, Go view the land, even Jericho. And they went, and [b] came into an harlot's house, named [c] Rahab, and † lodged there.

2 And [d] it was told the king of Jericho, saying, Behold, there came men in hither to-night of the children of Israel, to search out the country.

3 And the king of Jericho sent unto Rahab, saying, Bring forth the men that are come to thee, which are entered into thine house: for they be come to search out all the country.

4 [e] And the woman took the two men, and hid them, and said thus, There came men unto me, but I wist not whence they were:

5 And it came to pass about the time of shutting of the gate, when it was dark, that the men went out: whither the men went, I wot not: pursue after them quickly; for ye shall overtake them.

6 But [f] she had brought them up to the roof of the house, and hid them with the stalks of flax, which she had laid in order upon the roof.

7 And the men pursued after them the way to Jordan unto the fords: and as soon as they which pursued after them were gone out, they shut the gate.

8 ¶ And before they were laid down, she came up unto them upon the roof;

9 And she said unto the men, I know that the LORD hath given you the land, and that [g] your terror is fallen upon us, and that all the inhabitants of the land † faint because of you.

10 For we have heard how the LORD [h] dried up the water of the Red sea for you, when ye came out of Egypt; and [i] what ye did unto the two kings of the Amorites that were on the other side Jordan, Sihon and Og, whom ye utterly destroyed.

11 And as soon as we had [k] heard these things, [l] our hearts did melt, neither † did there remain any more courage in any man, because of you: for [m] the LORD your God, he is God in heaven above, and in earth beneath.

12 Now therefore, I pray you, [n] swear unto me by the LORD, since I have shewed you kindness, that ye will also shew kindness unto [o] my father's house, and [p] give me a true token:

13 And that ye will save alive my father, and my mother, and my brethren, and my sisters, and all that they have, and deliver our lives from death.

14 And the men answered her, Our life † for yours, if ye utter not this our business. And it shall be, when the LORD hath given us the land, that [q] we will deal kindly and truly with thee.

15 Then she [r] let them down by a cord through the window: for her house was upon the town-wall, and she dwelt upon the wall.

16 And she said unto them, Get you to the mountain, lest the pursuers meet you; and hide yourselves there three days, until the pursuers be returned: and afterward may ye go your way.

17 And the men said unto her, We will be [s] blameless of this thine oath which thou hast made us swear.

18 [t] Behold, when we come into the land, thou shalt bind this line of scarlet thread in the window which thou didst let us down by: [u] and thou shalt † bring thy father, and thy mother, and thy brethren, and all thy father's household, home unto thee.

19 And it shall be, that whosoever shall go out of the doors of thy house into the street, his blood shall be upon his head, and we will be guiltless: and whosoever shall be with thee in the house, [x] his blood shall be on our head, if any hand be upon him.

20 And if thou utter this our business, then we will be quit of thine oath which thou hast made us to swear.

21 And she said, According unto your words, so be it. And she sent them away, and they departed: and she bound the scarlet line in the window.

22 And they went, and came unto the mountain, and abode there three days, until the pursuers were returned: and the pursuers sought them throughout all the way, but found them not.

23 ¶ So the two men returned, and descended from the mountain, and passed over, and came to Joshua the son of Nun, and told him all things that befell them:

24 And they said unto Joshua, Truly [y] the LORD hath delivered into our hands all the land; for even all the inhabitants of the country do † faint because of us.

CHAP. III.

1 Joshua cometh to Jordan. 14 The waters of Jordan are divided.

AND Joshua rose early in the morning; and they removed [a] from Shittim, and came to Jordan, he and all the children of Israel, and lodged there before they passed over.

2 And it came to pass [b] after three days, that the officers went through the host;

3 And they commanded the people, saying, [c] When ye see the ark of the covenant of the LORD your God, [d] and the priests the Levites bearing it, then ye shall remove from your place, and go after it.

4 [e] Yet there shall be a space between you and it, about two thousand cubits by measure: come not near unto it, that ye may know the way by which ye must go: for ye have not passed this way † heretofore.

5 And Joshua said unto the people, [f] Sanctify yourselves: for to-morrow the LORD will do wonders among you.

6 And Joshua spake unto the priests, saying, [g] Take up the ark of the covenant, and pass over before the people. And they took up the ark of the covenant, and went before the people.

7 ¶ And the LORD said unto Joshua, This day will I begin to [h] magnify thee in the sight of all Israel, that they may know that, as I was with Moses, so I will be with thee.

8 And thou shalt command [k] the priests that bear the ark of the covenant, saying, When ye are come to the brink of the water of Jordan, [l] ye shall stand still in Jordan.

9 ¶ And Joshua said unto the children of Israel, Come hither, and hear the words of the LORD your God.

10 And Joshua said, Hereby ye shall know that [m] the living God is among you, and that he will without fail [n] drive out from before you the Canaanites, and the Hittites, and the Hivites, and the Perizzites, and the Girgashites, and the Amorites, and the Jebusites.

11 Behold, the ark of the covenant of [o] the LORD of all the earth passeth over before you into Jordan.

12 Now therefore [p] take you twelve men out of the tribes of Israel, out of every tribe a man.

13 And it shall come to pass, [q] as soon as the soles of the feet of the priests that bear the ark of the LORD, [r] the Lord of all the earth, shall rest in the waters of Jordan, that the waters of Jordan shall be cut off from the waters that come down from above; and they [s] shall stand upon an heap.

14 ¶ And it came to pass, when the people removed from their tents to pass over Jordan, and the priests bearing the [t] ark of the covenant before the people;

15 And as they that bare the ark were come unto Jordan, and [u] the feet of the priests that bare the ark were dipped in the brim of the water, (for [x] Jordan overfloweth all his banks [y] all the time of harvest,)

16 That the waters which came down from above stood and rose up upon an heap very far from the city Adam, that is beside [z] Zaretan; and those that came down [a] toward the sea of the plain, even [b] the salt sea, failed, and were cut off: and the people passed over right against Jericho.

17 And the priests that bare the ark of the covenant of the LORD stood firm on dry ground in the midst of Jordan, [c] and all the Israelites passed over on dry ground, until all the people were passed clean over Jordan.

CHAP. IV.

4 Then Joshua called the twelve men, whom he had prepared of the children of Israel, out of every tribe a man:

5 And Joshua said unto them, Pass over before the ark of the LORD your God into the midst of Jordan, and take you up every man of you a stone upon his shoulder, according unto the number of the tribes of the children of Israel:

6 That this may be a sign among you, that [e]when your children ask their fathers †in time to come, saying, What mean ye by these stones?

7 Then ye shall answer them, That [f]the waters of Jordan were cut off before the ark of the covenant of the LORD; when it passed over Jordan, the waters of Jordan were cut off: and these stones shall be for [g]a memorial unto the children of Israel for ever.

8 And the children of Israel did so as Joshua commanded, and took up twelve stones out of the midst of Jordan, as the LORD spake unto Joshua, according to the number of the tribes of the children of Israel, and carried them over with them unto the place where they lodged, and laid them down there.

9 ¶And Joshua set up twelve stones in the midst of Jordan, in the place where the feet of the priests which bare the ark of the covenant stood: and they are there unto this day.

10 ¶For the priests which bare the ark stood in the midst of Jordan, until every thing was finished that the LORD commanded Joshua to speak unto the people, according to all that Moses commanded Joshua: and the people hasted and passed over.

11 And it came to pass, when all the people were clean passed over, that the ark of the LORD passed over, and the priests in the presence of the people.

12 And [h]the children of Reuben, and the children of Gad, and half the tribe of Manasseh, passed over armed before the children of Israel, as Moses spake unto them:

13 About forty thousand ‖prepared for war, passed over before the LORD unto battle, to the plains of Jericho.

14 ¶On that day the LORD [i]magnified Joshua in the sight of all Israel, and they feared him as they feared Moses, all the days of his life.

15 And the LORD spake unto Joshua, saying,

16 Command the priests that bear [k]the ark of the testimony, that they come up out of Jordan.

17 Joshua therefore commanded the priests, saying, Come ye up out of Jordan.

18 And it came to pass, when the priests that bare the ark of the covenant of the LORD were come up out of the midst of Jordan, and the soles of the priests' feet were †lifted up unto the dry land, that the waters of Jordan returned unto their place, [l]and †flowed over all his banks, as they did before.

19 ¶And the people came up out of Jordan on the tenth day of the first month, and encamped [m]in Gilgal, in the east border of Jericho.

20 And [n]those twelve stones which they took out of Jordan, did Joshua pitch in Gilgal.

21 And he spake unto the children of Israel, saying, [o]When your children shall ask their fathers †in time to come, saying, What mean these stones?

22 Then ye shall let your children know, saying, [p]Israel came over this Jordan on dry land.

23 For the LORD your God dried up the waters of Jordan from before you, until ye were passed over, as the LORD your God did to the Red sea, [q]which he dried up from before us, until we were gone over:

CHAP. V.

2 Joshua reneweth circumcision. 10 The passover is kept at Gilgal. 12 Manna ceaseth.

AND it came to pass, when all the kings of the Amorites which were on the side of Jordan westward, and all the kings of the Canaanites [a]which were by the sea, [b]heard that the LORD had dried up the waters of Jordan from before the children of Israel, until we were passed over, that their heart melted; [c]neither was there spirit in them any more, because of the children of Israel.

2 ¶At that time the LORD said unto Joshua, Make thee ‖[d]sharp knives, and circumcise again the children of Israel the second time.

3 And Joshua made him sharp knives, and circumcised the children of Israel at ‖the hill of the foreskins.

4 And this is the cause why Joshua did circumcise: [e]All the people that came out of Egypt, that were males, even all the men of war died in the wilderness by the way, after they came out of Egypt.

5 Now all the people that came out were circumcised; but all the people that were born in the wilderness by the way as they came forth out of Egypt, them they had not circumcised.

6 For the children of Israel walked [f]forty years in the wilderness, till all the people that were men of war which came out of Egypt were consumed, because they obeyed not the voice of the LORD: unto whom the LORD sware that [g]he would not shew them the land which the LORD sware unto their fathers that he would give us, [h]a land that floweth with milk and honey.

7 And [i]their children, whom he raised up in their stead, them Joshua circumcised: for they were uncircumcised, because they had not circumcised them by the way.

8 And it came to pass, †when they had done circumcising all the people, that they abode in their places in the camp, [k]till they were whole.

9 And the LORD said unto Joshua, This day have I rolled away [l]the reproach of Egypt from off you: Wherefore the name of the place is called ‖[m]Gilgal unto this day.

10 ¶And the children of Israel encamped in Gilgal, and kept the passover [n]on the fourteenth day of the month at even, in the plains of Jericho.

11 And they did eat of the old corn of the land on the morrow after the passover, unleavened cakes and parched corn in the self-same day.

12 ¶And [o]the manna ceased on the morrow after they had eaten of the old corn of the land; neither had the children of Israel manna any more; but they did eat of the fruit of the land of Canaan that year.

13 ¶And it came to pass when Joshua was by Jericho, that he lifted up his eyes and looked, and behold, there stood [p]a man over against him [q]with his sword drawn in his hand: and Joshua went unto him, and said unto him, Art thou for us, or for our adversaries?

14 And he said, Nay; but as ‖ captain of the host of the LORD am I now come. And Joshua [r] fell on his face to the earth, and did worship, and said unto him, What saith my lord unto his servant?

15 And the captain of the LORD's host said unto Joshua, [s] Loose thy shoe from off thy foot, for the place whereon thou standest is holy: and Joshua did so.

CHAP. VI.

1 Jericho is shut up. 2 God instructeth Joshua how to besiege it. 22 Rahab is saved.

NOW Jericho †was straitly shut up, because of the children of Israel: none went out, and none came in.

2 And the LORD said unto Joshua, See, [a] I have given into thine hand Jericho, and the [b] king thereof, and the mighty men of valour.

3 And ye shall compass the city, all ye men of war, and go round about the city once: thus shalt thou do six days.

4 And seven priests shall bear before the ark seven [c] trumpets of ram's horns: and the seventh day ye shall compass the city seven times, and [d] the priests shall blow with the trumpets.

5 And it shall come to pass, that when they make a long blast with the ram's horn, and when ye hear the sound of the trumpet, all the people shall shout with a great shout: and the wall of the city shall fall down †flat, and the people shall ascend up every man straight before him.

6 ¶ And Joshua the son of Nun called the priests, and said unto them, Take up the ark of the covenant, and let seven priests bear seven trumpets of ram's horns before the ark of the LORD.

7 And he said unto the people, Pass on, and compass the city, and let him that is armed pass on before the ark of the LORD.

8 ¶ And it came to pass, when Joshua had spoken unto the people, that the seven priests bearing the seven trumpets of ram's horns passed on before the LORD, and blew with the trumpets: and the ark of the covenant of the LORD followed them.

9 ¶ And the armed men went before the priests that blew with the trumpets, [e] and the †rere-ward came after the ark, the priests going on, and blowing with the trumpets.

10 And Joshua had commanded the people, saying, Ye shall not shout, nor †make any noise with your voice, neither shall any word proceed out of your mouth, until the day I bid you shout, then shall ye shout.

11 So the ark of the LORD compassed the city, going about it once: and they came into the camp, and lodged in the camp.

12 ¶ And Joshua rose early in the morning, [f] and the priests took up the ark of the LORD.

13 And seven priests bearing seven trumpets of ram's horns before the ark of the LORD went on continually, and blew with the trumpets: and the armed men went before them; but the rere-ward came after the ark of the LORD, the priests going on, and blowing with the trumpets.

14 And the second day they compassed the city once, and returned into the camp. So they did six days.

15 And it came to pass on the seventh day, that they rose early about the dawning of the day, and compassed the city after the same manner seven times: only on that day they compassed the city seven times.

16 And it came to pass at the seventh time, when the priests blew with the trumpets, Joshua said unto the people, Shout; for the LORD hath given you the city.

17 ¶ And the city shall be ‖ accursed, even it, and all that are therein, to the LORD: only Rahab the harlot shall live, she and all that are with her in the house, because [g] she hid the messengers that we sent.

18 And ye, [h] in any wise keep yourselves from the accursed thing, lest ye make yourselves accursed, when ye take of the accursed thing, and make the camp of Israel a curse, [i] and trouble it.

19 But all the silver, and gold, and vessels of brass and iron, are †consecrated unto the LORD: they shall come into the treasury of the LORD.

20 So the people shouted when the priests blew with the trumpets: and it came to pass, when the people heard the sound of the trumpet, and the people shouted with a great shout, that [k] the wall fell down †flat, so that the people went up into the city, every man straight before him, and they took the city.

21 And they [l] utterly destroyed all that was in the city, both man and woman, young and old, and ox, and sheep, and ass, with the edge of the sword.

22 But Joshua had said unto the two men that had spied out the country, Go into the harlot's house, and bring out thence the woman, and all that she hath, [m] as ye sware unto her.

23 And the young men that were spies went in, and brought out Rahab, [n] and her father, and her mother, and her brethren, and all that she had; and they brought out all her †kindred, and left them without the camp of Israel.

24 And they burnt the city with fire, and all that was therein: [o] only the silver, and the gold, and the vessels of brass and of iron, they put into the treasury of the house of the LORD.

25 And Joshua saved Rahab the harlot alive, and her father's household, and all that she had; and [p] she dwelleth in Israel even unto this day; because she hid the messengers which Joshua sent to spy out Jericho.

26 ¶ And Joshua adjured them at that time, saying, [q] Cursed be the man before the LORD, that riseth up and buildeth this city Jericho: he shall lay the foundation thereof in his first-born, and in his youngest son shall he set up the gates of it.

27 [r] So the LORD was with Joshua; and [s] his fame was noised throughout all the country.

CHAP. VII.

1 The Israelites are smitten at Ai. 6 Joshua's complaint.

BUT the children of Israel committed a trespass in the accursed thing: for [a] ‖ Achan, the son of Carmi, the son of ‖ Zabdi, the son of Zerah, of the tribe of Judah, took of the accursed thing: and the anger of the LORD was kindled against the children of Israel.

2 And Joshua sent men from Jericho to Ai, which is beside Beth-aven, on the east side of Beth-el, and spake unto them, saying, Go up and view the country. And the men went up and viewed Ai.

3 And they returned to Joshua, and said unto him, Let not all the people go up; but let †about two or three thousand men go up and smite Ai: and make not all the people to labour thither; for they are but few.

5 And the men of Ai smote of them about thirty and six men: for they chased them from before the gate even unto Shebarim, and smote them ‖ in the going down: wherefore [c]the hearts of the people melted, and became as water.

6 ¶ And Joshua [d]rent his clothes, and fell to the earth upon his face before the ark of the LORD until the even-tide, he and the elders of Israel, and [e]put dust upon their heads.

7 And Joshua said, Alas! O Lord GOD, [f]wherefore hast thou at all brought this people over Jordan, to deliver us into the hand of the Amorites, to destroy us? would to God we had been content, and dwelt on the other side Jordan!

8 O Lord, what shall I say, when Israel turneth their † backs before their enemies!

9 For the Canaanites, and all the inhabitants of the land shall hear of it, and shall environ us round, and [g]cut off our name from the earth: and [h]what wilt thou do unto thy great name?

10 ¶ And the LORD said unto Joshua, Get thee up; wherefore † liest thou thus upon thy face?

11 [i]Israel hath sinned, and they have also transgressed my covenant which I commanded them: [k]for they have even taken of the accursed thing, and have also stolen, and [l]dissembled also, and they have put it even among their own stuff.

12 [m]Therefore the children of Israel could not stand before their enemies, but turned their backs before their enemies, because [n]they were accursed: neither will I be with you any more, except ye destroy the accursed from among you.

13 Up, [o]sanctify the people, and say, [p]Sanctify yourselves against to-morrow: for thus saith the LORD God of Israel, There is an accursed thing in the midst of thee, O Israel: thou canst not stand before thine enemies, until ye take away the accursed thing from among you.

14 In the morning therefore ye shall be brought according to your tribes: and it shall be, that the tribe which [q]the LORD taketh shall come according to the families thereof; and the family which the LORD shall take shall come by households; and the household which the LORD shall take shall come man by man.

15 [r]And it shall be, that he that is taken with the accursed thing shall be burnt with fire, he and all that he hath: because he hath [s]transgressed the covenant of the LORD, and because he [t]hath wrought ‖ folly in Israel.

16 ¶ So Joshua rose up early in the morning, and brought Israel by their tribes; and the tribe of Judah was taken:

17 And he brought the family of Judah; and he took the family of the Zarhites: and he brought the family of the Zarhites man by man; and Zabdi was taken:

18 And he brought his household man by man; and Achan the son of Carmi, the son of Zabdi, the son of Zerah, of the tribe of Judah, [u]was taken.

19 And Joshua said unto Achan, My son, [x]give, I pray thee, glory to the LORD God of Israel, [y]and make confession unto him; and [z]tell me now what thou hast done, hide it not from me.

20 And Achan answered Joshua, and said, Indeed I have sinned against the LORD God of Israel, and thus and thus have I done.

CHAP. VIII.

1 God encourageth Joshua. 3 The stratagem whereby Ai was taken. 30 Joshua buildeth an altar. 33 Propoundeth blessings and cursings.

AND the LORD said unto Joshua, [a]Fear not, neither be thou dismayed: take all the people of war with thee, and arise, go up to Ai: see, [b]I have given into thy hand the king of Ai, and his people, and his city, and his land:

2 And thou shalt do to Ai and her king, as thou didst unto [c]Jericho and her king: only [d]the spoil thereof, and the cattle thereof, shall ye take for a prey unto yourselves: lay thee an ambush for the city behind it.

3 ¶ So Joshua arose, and all the people of war, to go up against Ai: and Joshua chose out thirty thousand mighty men of valour, and sent them away by night.

4 And he commanded them, saying, Behold, [e]ye shall lie in wait against the city, even behind the city: go not very far from the city, but be ye all ready:

5 And I, and all the people that are with me, will approach unto the city: and it shall come to pass when they come out against us, as at the first, that [f]we will flee before them,

6 (For they will come out after us) till we have † drawn them from the city; for they will say, They flee before us, as at the first: therefore we will flee before them.

7 Then ye shall rise up from the ambush, and seize upon the city: for the LORD your God will deliver it into your hand.

8 And it shall be when ye have taken the city, that ye shall set the city on fire: according to the commandment of the LORD shall ye do. [g]See, I have commanded you.

9 ¶ Joshua therefore sent them forth; and they went to lie in ambush, and abode between Beth-el and Ai, on the west side of Ai: but Joshua lodged that night among the people.

10 And Joshua rose up early in the morning, and numbered the people, and went up, he and the elders of Israel, before the people to Ai.

11 [h]And all the people, even the people of war that were with him, went up, and drew nigh, and came before the city, and pitched on the north side of Ai: now there was a valley between them and Ai.

12 And he took about five thousand men, and set them to lie in ambush between Beth-el and Ai, on the west side ‖of the city.

13 And when they had set the people, even all the host that was on the north of the city, and †their liers in wait on the west of the city, Joshua went that night into the midst of the valley.

14 ¶And it came to pass when the king of Ai saw it, that they hasted and rose up early, and the men of the city went out against Israel to battle, he and all his people, at a time appointed, before the plain: but he [i]wist not that there were liers in ambush against him behind the city.

15 And Joshua and all Israel [k]made as if they were beaten before them, and fled by the way of the wilderness.

16 And all the people that were in Ai were called together to pursue after them: and they pursued after Joshua, and were drawn away from the city.

17 And there was not a man left in Ai, or Beth-el, that went not out after Israel: and they left the city open, and pursued after Israel.

18 And the LORD said unto Joshua, Stretch out the spear that is in thine hand toward Ai; for I will give it into thine hand. And Joshua stretched out the spear that he had in his hand toward the city.

19 And the ambush arose quickly out of their place, and they ran as soon as he had stretched out his hand: and they entered into the city, and took it, and hasted, and set the city on fire.

20 And when the men of Ai looked behind them, they saw, and behold, the smoke of the city ascended up to heaven, and they had no †power to flee this way or that way: and the people that fled to the wilderness turned back upon the pursuers.

21 And when Joshua and all Israel saw that the ambush had taken the city, and that the smoke of the city ascended, then they turned again, and slew the men of Ai.

22 And the other issued out of the city against them; so they were in the midst of Israel, some on this side, and some on that side: and they smote them, so that they [l]let none of them remain or escape.

23 And the king of Ai they took alive, and brought him to Joshua.

24 And it came to pass when Israel had made an end of slaying all the inhabitants of Ai in the field, in the wilderness wherein they chased them, and when they were all fallen on the edge of the sword, until they were consumed, that all the Israelites returned unto Ai, and smote it with the edge of the sword.

25 And so it was, that all that fell that day, both of men and women, were twelve thousand, even all the men of Ai.

26 For Joshua drew not his hand back wherewith he stretched out the spear, until he had utterly destroyed all the inhabitants of Ai.

27 [m]Only the cattle and the spoil of that city Israel took for a prey unto themselves, according unto the word of the LORD which he [n]commanded Joshua.

28 And Joshua burnt Ai, and made it [o]an heap for ever, even a desolation unto this day.

29 [p]And the king of Ai he hanged on a tree until even-tide: [q]and as soon as the sun was down, Joshua commanded that they should take his carcass down from the tree, and cast it at the entering of the gate of the city, and [r]raise thereon a great heap of stones, that remaineth unto this day.

30 ¶Then Joshua built an altar unto the LORD God of Israel [s]in mount Ebal,

31 As Moses the servant of the LORD commanded the children of Israel, as it is written in the [t]book of the law of Moses, an altar of whole stones, over which no man hath lifted up any iron: and [u]they offered thereon burnt-offerings unto the LORD, and sacrificed peace-offerings.

32 ¶And [x]he wrote there upon the stones a copy of the law of Moses, which he wrote in the presence of the children of Israel.

33 And all Israel, and their elders, and officers, and their judges, stood on this side the ark and on that side before the priests the Levites, [y]which bare the ark of the covenant of the LORD, as well [z]the stranger, as he that was born among them; half of them over against mount Gerizim, and half of them over against mount Ebal; [a]as Moses the servant of the LORD had commanded before, that they should bless the people of Israel.

34 And afterward [b]he read all the words of the law, [c]the blessings and cursings, according to all that is written in the book of the law.

35 There was not a word of all that Moses commanded, which Joshua read not before all the congregation of Israel, [d]with the women, and the little ones, and [e]the strangers that †were conversant among them.

AND it came to pass, when all the kings which were on this side Jordan, in the hills, and in the valleys, and in all the coasts of [a]the great sea over against Lebanon, [b]the Hittite, and the Amorite, the Canaanite, the Perizzite, the Hivite, and the Jebusite heard thereof;

Heshbon, and to Og king of Bashan, which was at Ashtaroth.

11 Wherefore our elders, and all the inhabitants of our country spake to us, saying, Take victuals †with you for the journey, and go to meet them, and say unto them, We are your servants: therefore now make ye a league with us:

12 This our bread we took hot for our provision out of our houses on the day we came forth to go unto you; but now, behold, it is dry, and it is mouldy:

13 And these bottles of wine which we filled, were new, and behold they be rent: and these our garments and our shoes are become old by reason of the very long journey.

14 And ‖the men took of their victuals, [n]and asked not counsel at the mouth of the LORD.

15 And [o]Joshua made peace with them, and made a league with them, to let them live: and the princes of the congregation sware unto them.

16 ¶ And it came to pass at the end of three days after they had made a league with them, that they heard that they were their neighbours, and that they dwelt among them.

17 And the children of Israel journeyed, and came unto their cities on the third day. Now their cities were [p]Gibeon, and Chephira, and Beeroth, and Kirjath-jearim.

18 And the children of Israel smote them not, [q]because the princes of the congregation had sworn unto them by the LORD God of Israel. And all the congregation murmured against the princes.

19 But all the princes said unto all the congregation, We have sworn unto them by the LORD God of Israel: now therefore we may not touch them.

20 This we will do to them; we will even let them live, lest [r]wrath be upon us, because of the oath which we sware unto them.

21 And the princes said unto them, Let them live; but let them be [s]hewers of wood, and drawers of water unto all the congregation; as the princes had [t]promised them.

22 ¶ And Joshua called for them, and he spake unto them, saying, Wherefore have ye beguiled us, saying, [u]We are very far from you; when [x]ye dwell among us?

23 Now therefore ye are [y]cursed, and there shall †none of you be freed from being bond-men, and [z]hewers of wood and drawers of water for the house of my God.

24 And they answered Joshua, and said, Because it was certainly told thy servants, how that the LORD thy God [a]commanded his servant Moses to give you all the land, and to destroy all the inhabitants of the land from before you, therefore [b]we were sore afraid of our lives because of you, and have done this thing.

25 And now, behold, we are [c]in thine hand: as it seemeth good and right unto thee to do unto us, do.

26 And so did he unto them, and delivered them out of the hand of the children of Israel, that they slew them not.

27 And Joshua †made them that day [d]hewers of wood and drawers of water for the congregation and for the altar of the LORD, even unto this day, [e]in the place which he should choose.

CHAP. X.

1 Five kings war against Gibeon. 12 The sun and moon stand still at the word of Joshua.

NOW it came to pass, when Adoni-zedek king of Jerusalem had heard how Joshua had taken Ai, and had utterly destroyed it; [a]as he had done to Jericho and her king, so he had done to [b]Ai and her king; and [c]how the inhabitants of Gibeon had made peace with Israel, and were among them;

2 That they [d]feared greatly, because Gibeon was a great city, as one of the †royal cities, and because it was greater than Ai, and all the men thereof were mighty.

3 Wherefore Adoni-zedek king of Jerusalem sent unto Hoham king of Hebron, and unto Piram king of Jarmuth, and unto Japhia king of Lachish, and unto Debir king of Eglon, saying,

4 Come up unto me, and help me, that we may smite Gibeon: [e]for it hath made peace with Joshua and with the children of Israel.

5 Therefore the five kings of the Amorites, the king of Jerusalem, the king of Hebron, the king of Jarmuth, the king of Lachish, the king of Eglon, [f]gathered themselves together, and went up, they and all their hosts, and encamped before Gibeon, and made war against it.

6 ¶ And the men of Gibeon sent unto Joshua [g]to the camp to Gilgal, saying, Slack not thy hand from thy servants; come up to us quickly, and save us, and help us: for all the kings of the Amorites that dwell in the mountains are gathered together against us.

7 So Joshua ascended from Gilgal, he, and [h]all the people of war with him, and all the mighty men of valour.

8 ¶ And the LORD said unto Joshua, [i]Fear them not: for I have delivered them into thine hand; [k]there shall not a man of them stand before thee.

9 Joshua therefore came unto them suddenly, and went up from Gilgal all night.

10 And the LORD [l]discomfited them before Israel, and slew them with a great slaughter at Gibeon, and chased them along the way that goeth up [m]to Beth-horon, and smote them to [n]Azekah, and unto Makkedah.

11 And it came to pass as they fled from before Israel, and were in the going down to Beth-horon, [o]that the Lord cast down great stones from heaven upon them unto Azekah, and they died: they were more which died with hailstones than they whom the children of Israel slew with the sword.

12 ¶ Then spake Joshua to the LORD in the day when the LORD delivered up the Amorites before the children of Israel, and he said in the sight of Israel, [p]Sun, †stand thou still upon Gibeon, and thou Moon, in the valley of [q]Ajalon.

13 And the sun stood still, and the moon stayed, until the people had avenged themselves upon their enemies. [r]Is not this written in the book of ‖Jasher? So the sun stood still in the midst of heaven, and hasted not to go down about a whole day.

14 And there was [s]no day like that before it or after it, that the LORD hearkened unto the voice of a man: for [t]the LORD fought for Israel.

15 ¶ [u]And Joshua returned, and all Israel with him, unto the camp to Gilgal.

16 But these five kings fled, and hid themselves in a cave at Makkedah.

17 And it was told Joshua, saying, The five kings are found hid in a cave at Makkedah.

18 And Joshua said, Roll great stones upon the mouth of the cave, and set men by it for to keep them:

19 And stay ye not, but pursue after your enemies, and †smite the hindmost of them; suffer them not to enter into their cities: for the LORD your God hath delivered them into your hand.

20 And it came to pass, when Joshua and the children of Israel had made an end of slaying them with a very great slaughter, till they were consumed, that the rest which remained of them entered into fenced cities.

21 And all the people returned to the camp to Joshua at Makkedah in peace: [x]none moved his tongue against any of the children of Israel.

22 Then said Joshua, Open the mouth of the cave, and bring out those five kings unto me out of the cave.

23 And they did so, and brought forth those five kings unto him out of the cave, the king of Jerusalem, the king of Hebron, the king of Jarmuth, the king of Lachish, and the king of Eglon.

24 And it came to pass, when they brought out those kings unto Joshua, that Joshua called for all the men of Israel, and said unto the captains of the men of war which went with him, Come near, [y]put your feet upon the necks of these kings. And they came near, and put their feet upon the necks of them.

25 And Joshua said unto them, [z]Fear not, nor be dismayed, be strong and of good courage: for [a]thus shall the LORD do to all your enemies against whom ye fight.

26 And afterward Joshua smote them, and slew them, and hanged them on five trees: and they [b]were hanging upon the trees until the evening.

27 And it came to pass at the time of the going down of the sun, that Joshua commanded, and they [c]took them down off the trees, and cast them into the cave wherein they had been hid, and laid great stones in the cave's mouth, which remain until this very day.

28 ¶And that day Joshua took Makkedah, and smote it with the edge of the sword, and the king thereof he utterly destroyed, them, and all the souls that were therein; he let none remain: and he did to the king of Makkedah [d]as he did unto the king of Jericho.

29 Then Joshua passed from Makkedah, and all Israel with him, unto Libnah, and fought against Libnah:

30 And the LORD delivered it also, and the king thereof, into the hand of Israel: and he smote it with the edge of the sword, and all the souls that were therein; he let none remain in it; but did unto the king thereof as he did unto the king of Jericho.

31 ¶And Joshua passed from Libnah, and all Israel with him, unto Lachish, and encamped against it, and fought against it:

32 And the LORD delivered Lachish into the hand of Israel, which took it on the second day, and smote it with the edge of the sword, and all the souls that were therein, according to all that he had done to Libnah.

33 ¶Then Horam king of Gezer came up to help Lachish; and Joshua smote him and his people, until he had left him none remaining.

34 ¶And from Lachish Joshua passed unto Eglon, and all Israel with him: and they encamped against it, and fought against it:

35 And they took it on that day, and smote it with the edge of the sword, and all the souls that were therein he utterly destroyed that day, according to all that he had done to Lachish.

36 And Joshua went up from Eglon, and all Israel with him, unto [e]Hebron; and they fought against it:

37 And they took it, and smote it with the edge of the sword, and the king thereof, and all the cities thereof, and all the souls that were therein; he left none remaining, according to all that he had done to Eglon, but destroyed it utterly, and all the souls that were therein.

38 ¶And Joshua returned, and all Israel with him, to [f]Debir; and fought against it:

39 And he took it, and the king thereof, and all the cities thereof, and they smote them with the edge of the sword, and utterly destroyed all the souls that were therein; he left none remaining: as he had done to Hebron, so he did to Debir, and to the king thereof; as he had done also to Libnah, and to her king.

40 ¶So Joshua smote all the country of the hills, and of the south, and of the vale, and of the springs, and all their kings: he left none remaining, but utterly destroyed all that breathed, as the LORD God of Israel [g]commanded.

41 And Joshua smote them from Kadesh-barnea even unto [h]Gaza, [i]and all the country of Goshen, even unto Gibeon.

42 And all these kings and their land did Joshua take at one time; [k]because the LORD God of Israel fought for Israel.

43 And Joshua returned, and all Israel with him, unto the camp to Gilgal.

CHAP. XI.

Divers kings overcome at the waters of Merom.

AND it came to pass, when Jabin king of Hazor had heard those things, that he [a]sent to Jobab king of Madon, and to the king [b]of Shimron, and to the king of Achshaph,

2 And to the kings that were on the north of the mountains, and of the plains south of [c]Cinneroth, and in the valley, and in the borders [d]of Dor on the west,

3 And to the Canaanite on the east and on the west, and to the Amorite, and the Hittite, and the Perizzite, and the Jebusite in the mountains, [e]and to the Hivite under [f]Hermon [g]in the land of Mizpeh.

4 And they went out, they and all their hosts with them, much people, [h]even as the sand that is upon the sea-shore in multitude, with horses and chariots very many.

5 And when all these kings were †met together, they came and pitched together at the waters of Merom, to fight against Israel.

6 ¶And the LORD said unto Joshua, [i]Be not afraid because of them: for to-morrow about this time will I deliver them up all slain before Israel: thou shalt [k]hough their horses, and burn their chariots with fire.

7 So Joshua came, and all the people of war with him, against them by the waters of Merom suddenly, and they fell upon them.

8 And the LORD delivered them into the hand of Israel, who smote them, and chased them unto ‖great Zidon, and unto [l]‖†Misrephoth-maim, and unto the valley of Mizpeh eastward; and they smote them, until they left them none remaining.

9 And Joshua did unto them [m]as the LORD bade him: he houghed their horses, and burnt their chariots with fire.

10 ¶And Joshua at that time turned back, and took Hazor, and smote the king thereof with the sword: for Hazor beforetime was the head of all those kingdoms.

11 And they smote all the souls that were therein with the edge of the sword, utterly destroying them: there was not †any left to breathe: and he burnt Hazor with fire.

12 And all the cities of those kings, and all the kings of them, did Joshua take, and smote them with the edge of the sword, and he utterly destroyed them, [n]as Moses the servant of the LORD commanded.

13 But as for the cities that stood still †in their strength, Israel burned none of them, save Hazor only; that did Joshua burn.

14 And all the spoil of these cities, and the cattle, the children of Israel took for a prey unto themselves: but every man they smote with the edge of the sword, until they had destroyed them, neither left they any to breathe.

15 ¶ [o]As the LORD commanded Moses his servant, so [p]did Moses command Joshua, and [q]so did Joshua: †he left nothing undone of all that the LORD commanded Moses.

16 So Joshua took all that land, [r]the hills, and all the south country, [s]and all the land of Goshen, and the valley, and the plain, and the mountain of Israel, and the valley of the same;

17 [t]Even from ‖the mount Halak, that goeth up to Seir, even unto Baal-gad, in the valley of Lebanon under mount Hermon: and [u]all their kings he took, and smote them, and slew them.

18 ‖Joshua made war a long time with all those kings.

19 There was not a city that made peace with the children of Israel, save [x]the Hivites the inhabitants of Gibeon: all other they took in battle.

20 For [y]it was of the LORD to harden their hearts, that they should come against Israel in battle, that he might destroy them utterly, and that they might have no favour, but that he might destroy them, [z]as the LORD commanded Moses.

21 ¶ And at that time came Joshua and cut off [a]the Anakims from the mountains, from Hebron, from Debir, from Anab, and from all the mountains of Judah, and from all the mountains of Israel: Joshua destroyed them utterly with their cities.

22 There was none of the Anakims left in the land of the children of Israel: only in Gaza, in [b]Gath, [c]and in Ashdod, there remained.

23 So Joshua took the whole land, [d]according to all that the LORD said unto Moses, and Joshua gave it for an inheritance unto Israel [e]according to their divisions by their tribes. [f]And the land rested from war.

CHAP. XIII.

2 The bounds of the land not yet conquered. Balaam slain.

NOW Joshua [a]was old and stricken in years; and the LORD said unto him, Thou art old and stricken in years, and there remaineth yet very much land †to be possessed.

2 [b]This is the land that yet remaineth: [c]all the borders of the Philistines, and all [d]Geshuri,

3 [e]From Sihor, which is before Egypt, even unto the borders of Ekron northward, which is counted to the Canaanite: [f]five lords of the Philistines; the Gazathites, and the Ashdothites, the Eshkalonites, the Gittites, and the Ekronites; also [g]the Avites:

4 From the south all the land of the Canaanites, and ‖Mearah that is beside the Sidonians, [h]unto Aphek to the borders of [i]the Amorites:

5 And the land of [k]the Giblites, and all Lebanon toward the sun-rising, [l]from Baal-gad under mount Hermon unto the entering into Hamath.

6 All the inhabitants of the hill-country from Lebanon unto [m]Misrephoth-maim, and all the Sidonians, them [n]will I drive out from before the children of Israel: only [o]divide thou it by lot unto the Israelites for an inheritance, as I have commanded thee.

7 Now therefore divide this land for an inheritance unto the nine tribes, and the half-tribe of Manasseh,

8 With whom the Reubenites and the Gadites have received their inheritance, [p]which Moses gave them, beyond Jordan eastward, even as Moses the servant of the LORD gave them;

9 From Aroer that is upon the bank of the river Arnon, and the city that is in the midst of the river, [q]and all the plain of Medeba unto Dibon;

10 And [r]all the cities of Sihon king of the Amorites, which reigned in Heshbon, unto the border of the children of Ammon;

11 [s]And Gilead, and the border of the Geshurites and Maachathites, and all mount Hermon, and all Bashan unto Salcah;

12 All the kingdom of Og in Bashan, which reigned in Ashtaroth and in Edrei, who remained of [t]the remnant of the giants. [u]For these did Moses smite, and cast them out.

13 Nevertheless, the children of Israel expelled [x]not the Geshurites, nor the Maachathites: but the Geshurites and the Maachathites dwell among the Israelites until this day.

14 [y]Only unto the tribe of Levi he gave none inheritance; the sacrifices of the LORD God of Israel made by fire are their inheritance, [z]as he said unto them.

15 ¶ And Moses gave unto the tribe of the children of Reuben inheritance according to their families.

16 And their coast was [a]from Aroer that is on the bank of the river Arnon, [b]and the city that is in the midst of the river, [c]and all the plain by Medeba:

17 Heshbon, and all her cities that are in the plain; Dibon, and ‖ Bamoth-baal, and Beth-baal-meon,

18 [d]And Jahaza, and Kedemoth, and Mephaath,

19 [e]And Kirjathaim, and [f]Sibmah, and Zareth-shahar in the mount of the valley,

20 And Beth-peor, and [g]‖ Ashdoth-pisgah, and Beth-jeshimoth,

21 [h]And all the cities of the plain, and all the kingdom of Sihon king of the Amorites which reigned in Heshbon, [i]whom Moses smote [k]with the princes of Midian, Evi, and Rekem, and Zur, and Hur, and Reba, which were dukes of Sihon, dwelling in the country.

22 ¶ [l]Balaam also the son of Beor, the ‖ soothsayer, did the children of Israel slay with the sword, among them that were slain by them.

23 And the border of the children of Reuben was Jordan, and the border thereof. This was the inheritance of the children of Reuben, after their families, the cities and the villages thereof.

24 And Moses gave inheritance unto the tribe of Gad, even unto the children of Gad according to their families.

25 [m]And their coast was Jazer, and all the cities of Gilead, [n]and half the land of the children of Ammon, unto Aroer that is before [o]Rabbah;

26 And from Heshbon unto Ramath-mizpeh, and Betonim; and from Mahanaim unto the border of Debir;

27 And in the valley, [p]Beth-aram, and Beth-nimrah, [q]and Succoth, and Zaphon, the rest of the kingdom of Sihon king of Heshbon, Jordan and his border, even unto the edge [r]of the sea of Cinnereth, on the other side Jordan eastward.

28 This is the inheritance of the children of Gad after their families, the cities, and their villages.

29 ¶ And Moses gave inheritance unto the half-tribe of Manasseh: and this was the possession of the half-tribe of the children of Manasseh by their families.

30 And their coast was from Mahanaim, all Bashan, all the kingdom of Og king of Bashan, and [s]all the towns of Jair, which are in Bashan, threescore cities:

31 And half Gilead, and [t]Ashtaroth, and Edrei, cities of the kingdom of Og in Bashan, were pertaining unto the children of Machir the son of Manasseh, even to the one half of the [u]children of Machir by their families.

32 These are the countries which Moses did distribute for inheritance in the plains of Moab, on the other side Jordan by Jericho eastward.

33 [x]But unto the tribe of Levi, Moses gave not any inheritance: the LORD God of Israel was their inheritance, [y]as he said unto them.

CHAP. XIV.

Caleb by privilege obtaineth Hebron.

AND these are the countries which the children of Israel inherited in the land of Canaan, [a]which Eleazar the priest, and Joshua the son of Nun, and the heads of the fathers of the tribes of the children of Israel distributed for inheritance to them.

2 [b]By lot was their inheritance, as the LORD commanded by the hand of Moses, for the nine tribes, and for the half-tribe.

3 [c]For Moses had given the inheritance of two tribes and an half-tribe on the other side Jordan: but unto the Levites he gave none inheritance among them.

4 For [d]the children of Joseph were two tribes, Manasseh and Ephraim: therefore they gave no part unto the Levites in the land, save cities to dwell in, with their suburbs for their cattle, and for their substance.

5 [e]As the LORD commanded Moses, so the children of Israel did, and they divided the land.

6 ¶ Then the children of Judah came unto Joshua in Gilgal: and Caleb the son of Jephunneh the [f]Kenezite said unto him, Thou knowest [g]the thing that the LORD said unto Moses the man of God concerning me and thee [h]in Kadesh-barnea.

7 Forty years old was I when Moses the servant of the LORD [i]sent me from Kadesh-barnea to espy out the land; and I brought him word again as it was in mine heart.

8 Nevertheless, [k]my brethren that went up with me made the heart of the people melt: but I wholly [l]followed the LORD my God.

9 And Moses sware on that day, saying, [m]Surely the land [n]whereon thy feet have trodden shall be thine inheritance, and thy children's for ever; because thou hast wholly followed the LORD my God.

10 And now, behold, the LORD hath kept me alive, [o]as he said, these forty and five years, even since the LORD spake this word unto Moses, while the children of Israel † wandered in the wilderness: and now, lo, I am this day fourscore and five years old.

11 [p]As yet I am as strong this day, as I was in the day that Moses sent me: as my strength was then, even so is my strength now, for war, both [q]to go out, and to come in.

12 Now therefore give me this mountain, whereof the LORD spake in that day; for thou heardest in that 13 And Joshua [u]blessed him, [x]and gave unto Caleb the son of Jephunneh, Hebron for an inheritance.

14 [y]Hebron therefore became the inheritance of Caleb the son of Jephunneh the Kenezite unto this day; because that he [z]wholly followed the LORD God of Israel.

CHAP. XV.

The borders of the lot of Judah.

THIS then was the lot of the tribe of the children of Judah by their families; [a]even to the border of Edom, the [b]wilderness of Zin southward was the uttermost part of the south coast.

2 And their south border was from the shore of the salt sea, from the †bay that looketh southward:

3 And it went out to the south side [c]to ‖Maaleh-acrabbim, and passed along to Zin, and ascended up on the south side unto Kadesh-barnea, and passed along to Hezron, and went up to Adar, and fetched a compass to Karkaa:

4 From thence it passed [d]toward Azmon, and went out unto the river of Egypt; and the goings out of that coast were at the sea: this shall be your south coast.

5 And the east border was the salt sea, even unto the end of Jordan: and their border in the north quarter was from the bay of the sea, at the uttermost part of Jordan:

6 And the border went up to [e]Beth-hogla, and passed along by the north of Beth-arabah; and the border went up [f]to the stone of Bohan the son of Reuben:

7 And the border went up toward Debir from [g]the valley of Achor, and so northward looking toward Gilgal, that is before the going up to Adummim, which is on the south side of the river: and the border passed toward the waters of En-shemesh, and the goings out thereof were at [h]En-rogel:

8 And the border went up [i]by the valley of the son of Hinnom, unto the south side of the [k]Jebusite; the same is Jerusalem: and the border went up to the top of the mountain that lieth before the valley of Hinnom westward, which is at the end [l]of the valley of the giants northward:

9 And the border was drawn from the top of the hill unto [m]the fountain of the water of Nephtoah, and went out to the cities of mount Ephron; and the border was drawn [n]to Baalah, which is [o]Kirjath-jearim:

10 And the border compassed from Baalah westward unto mount Seir, and passed along unto the side of mount Jearim (which is Chesalon) on the north side, and went down to Beth-shemesh, and passed on to [p]Timnah:

11 And the border went out unto the side of [q]Ekron northward: and the border was drawn to Shicron, and passed along to mount Baalah, and went out unto Jabneel; and the goings out of the border were at the sea.

12 And the west border was [r]to the great sea, and the coast thereof: this is the coast of the children of Judah round about, according to their families.

13 ¶ [s]And unto Caleb the son of Jephunneh he gave a part among the children of Judah, according to the commandment of the LORD to Joshua, even [t]‖the city of Arba the father of Anak, which city is Hebron.

14 And Caleb drove thence [u]the three sons of Anak, [x]Sheshai, and Ahiman, and Talmai, the children of Anak.

15 And [y]he went up thence to the inhabitants of Debir: and the name of Debir before was Kirjath-sepher.

16 ¶ [z]And Caleb said, He that smiteth Kirjath-sepher, and taketh it, to him will I give Achsah my daughter to wife.

17 And [a]Othniel the [b]son of Kenaz, the brother of Caleb, took it: and he gave him Achsah his daughter to wife.

18 [c]And it came to pass, as she came unto him, that she moved him to ask of her father a field: and [d]she lighted off her ass; and Caleb said unto her, What wouldest thou?

19 Who answered, Give me a [e]blessing; for thou hast given me a south land, give me also springs of water: and he gave her the upper springs, and the nether springs.

20 This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Judah according to their families.

21 And the uttermost cities of the tribe of the children of Judah toward the coast of Edom southward were Kabzeel, and Eder, and Jagur,

22 And Kinah, and Dimonah, and Adadah,

23 And Kedesh, and Hazor, and Ithnan,

24 Ziph, and Telem, and Bealoth,

25 And Hazor, Hadattah, and Kerioth, and Hezron, which is Hazor,

26 Amam, and Shema, and Moladah,

27 And Hazar-gaddah, and Heshmon, and Beth-palet,

28 And Hazar-shual, and Beer-sheba, and Biz-jothjah,

29 Baalah, and Iim, and Azem,

30 And Eltolad, and Chesil, and Hormah,

31 And [f]Ziklag, and Madmannah, and Sansannah,

32 And Lebaoth, and Shilhim, and Ain, and Rimmon: all the cities are twenty and nine, with their villages:

33 And in the valley, [g]Eshtaol, and Zoreah, and Ashnah,

34 And Zanoah, and En-gannim, Tappuah, and Enam,

35 Jarmuth, and Adullam, Socoh, and Azekah,

36 And Sharaim, and Adithaim, and Gederah, ‖and Gederothaim; fourteen cities with their villages:

37 Zenan, and Hadashah, and Migdal-gad,

38 And Dilean, and Mizpeh, [h]and Joktheel,

39 Lachish, and Bozkath, and Eglon,

40 And Cabbon, and Lahmam, and Kithlish,

41 And Gederoth, Beth-dagon, and Naamah, and Makkedah; sixteen cities with their villages:

42 Libnah, and Ether, and Ashan,

43 And Jiphtah, and Ashnah, and Nezib,

44 And Keilah, and Achzib, and Mareshah; nine cities with their villages:

45 Ekron, with her towns and her villages:

46 From Ekron even unto the sea, all that lay †near Ashdod, with their villages:

47 Ashdod, with her towns and her villages; Gaza, with her towns and her villages, unto [i]the river of Egypt, and [k]the great sea, and the border thereof:

CHAP. XVI.

1 The general borders of the sons of Joseph, 5 and of Ephraim.

AND the lot of the children of Joseph † fell from Jordan by Jericho, unto the water of Jericho, on the east, to the wilderness that goeth up from Jericho throughout mount Bethel,
2 And goeth out from Bethel to [a]Luz, and passeth along unto the borders of Archi to Ataroth,
3 And goeth down westward to the coast of Japhleti, [b]unto the coast of Beth-horon the nether, and to [c]Gezer: and the goings out thereof are at the sea.
4 [d]So the children of Joseph, Manasseh and Ephraim, took their inheritance.
5 ¶ And the border of the children of Ephraim according to their families was thus: even the border of their inheritance on the east side was [e]Ataroth-addar, [f]unto Beth-horon the upper;
6 And the border went out toward the sea to [g]Michmethah on the north side; and the border went about eastward unto Taanath-shiloh, and passed by it on the east to Janohah;
7 And it went down from Janohah to Ataroth, [h]and to Naarath, and came to Jericho, and went out at Jordan.
8 The border went out from Tappuah westward unto the [i]river Kanah; and the goings out thereof were at the sea. This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Ephraim by their families.
9 And [k]the separate cities for the children of Ephraim were among the inheritance of the children of Manasseh, all the cities with their villages.
10 [l]And they drave not out the Canaanites that dwelt in Gezer: but the Canaanites dwell among the Ephraimites unto this day, and serve under tribute.

CHAP. XVII.

The lot of Manasseh.

THERE was also a lot for the tribe of Manasseh; for he was the [a]first-born of Joseph; to wit, for [b]Machir the first-born of Manasseh, the father of Gilead: because he was a man of war, therefore he had [c]Gilead and Bashan.
2 There was also a lot for [d]the rest of the children of Manasseh by their families; [e]for the children of ‖ Abiezer, and for the children of Helek, [f]and for the children of Asriel, and for the children of Shechem, [g]and for the children of Hepher, and for the children of Shemida: these were the male children of Manasseh the son of Joseph by their families.
3 ¶ But [h]Zelophehad, the son of Hepher, the son of Gilead, the son of Machir, the son of Manasseh, had no sons, but daughters: and these are the names of his daughters, Mahlah, and Noah, Hoglah, Milcah, and Tirzah.
4 And they came near before [i]Eleazar the priest, and before Joshua the son of Nun, and before the princes, saying, [k]The LORD commanded Moses to give us an inheritance among our brethren: therefore according to the commandment of the LORD he gave them an inheritance among the brethren of their father.
5 And there fell ten portions to Manasseh, besides the land of Gilead and Bashan, which were on the other side Jordan;
6 Because the daughters of Manasseh had an inheritance among his sons: and the rest of Manasseh's sons had the land of Gilead.
7 ¶ And the coast of Manasseh was from Asher to [l]Michmethah, that lieth before Shechem; and the border went along on the right hand unto the inhabitants of En-tappuah.
8 Now Manasseh had the land of Tappuah: but [m]Tappuah on the border of Manasseh belonged to the children of Ephraim:
9 And the coast descended [n]unto the ‖ river Kanah, southward of the river. [o]These cities of Ephraim are among the cities of Manasseh: the coast of Manasseh also was on the north side of the river, and the out-goings of it were at the sea:
10 Southward it was Ephraim's, and northward it was Manasseh's, and the sea is his border; and they met together in Asher on the north, and in Issachar on the east.
11 [p]And Manasseh had in Issachar and in Asher, [q]Beth-shean and her towns, and Ibleam and her towns, and the inhabitants of Dor and her towns, and the inhabitants of En-dor and her towns, and the inhabitants of Taanach and her towns, and the inhabitants of Megiddo and her towns, even three countries.
12 Yet [r]the children of Manasseh could not drive out the inhabitants of those cities; but the Canaanites would dwell in that land.
13 Yet it came to pass, when the children of Israel were waxen strong, that they put the Canaanites to [s]tribute; but did not utterly drive them out.
14 [t]And the children of Joseph spake unto Joshua, saying, Why hast thou given me but [u]one lot and one portion to inherit, seeing I am [x]a great people, forasmuch as the LORD hath blessed me hitherto?
15 And Joshua answered them, If thou be a great people, then get thee up to the wood-country, and cut down for thyself there in the land of the Perizzites and of the ‖ giants, if mount Ephraim be too narrow for thee.
16 And the children of Joseph said, The hill is not enough for us: and all the Canaanites that dwell in the land of the valley have [y]chariots of iron, both they

CHAP. XVIII.

The tabernacle is set up at Shiloh.

AND the whole congregation of the children of Israel assembled together [a]at Shiloh, and [b]set up the tabernacle of the congregation there: and the land was subdued before them.

2 And there remained among the children of Israel seven tribes, which had not yet received their inheritance.

3 And Joshua said unto the children of Israel, [c]How long are ye slack to go to possess the land which the LORD God of your fathers hath given you?

4 Give out from among you three men for each tribe: and I will send them, and they shall rise, and go through the land, and describe it according to the inheritance of them, and they shall come again to me.

5 And they shall divide it into seven parts: [d]Judah shall abide in their coast on the south, and [e]the house of Joseph shall abide in their coasts on the north.

6 Ye shall therefore describe the land into seven parts, and bring the description hither to me, [f]that I may cast lots for you here before the LORD our God.

7 [g]But the Levites have no part among you; for the priesthood of the LORD is their inheritance: [h]and Gad, and Reuben, and half the tribe of Manasseh, have received their inheritance beyond Jordan on the east, which Moses the servant of the LORD gave them.

8 ¶ And the men arose, and went away: and Joshua charged them that went to describe the land, saying, Go, and walk through the land, and describe it, and come again to me, that I may here cast lots for you before the LORD in Shiloh.

9 And the men went and passed through the land, and described it by cities into seven parts in a book, and came again to Joshua to the host at Shiloh.

10 ¶ And Joshua cast lots for them in Shiloh before the LORD: and there Joshua divided the land unto the children of Israel according to their divisions.

11 ¶ And the lot of the tribe of the children of Benjamin came up according to their families: and the coast of their lot came forth between the children of Judah and the children of Joseph.

12 [i]And their border on the north side was from Jordan; and the border went up to the side of Jericho on the north side, and went up through the mountains westward; and the goings out thereof were at the wilderness of Beth-aven.

13 And the border went over from thence toward Luz, to the side of Luz ([k]which is Bethel) southward; and the border descended to Ataroth-adar, near the hill that lieth on the south side [l]of the nether Beth-horon.

14 And the border was drawn thence, and compassed the corner of the sea southward, from the hill that lieth before Beth-horon southward; and the goings out thereof were at [m]Kirjath-baal (which is Kirjath-jearim) a city of the children of Judah. This was the west quarter.

15 And the south quarter was from the end of Kirjath-jearim, and the border went out on the west, and went out to [n]the well of waters of Nephtoah:

16 And the border came down to the end of the mountain that lieth before [o]the valley of the son of Hinnom, and which is in the valley of the giants on the north, and descended to the valley of Hinnom, to the side of Jebusi on the south, and descended to [p]En-rogel,

17 And was drawn from the north, and went forth to En-shemesh, and went forth toward Geliloth, which is over against the going up of Adummim, and descended to [q]the stone of Bohan the son of Reuben,

18 And passed along toward the side over against [r]‖ Arabah northward, and went down unto Arabah:

19 And the border passed along to the side of Beth-hoglah northward: and the out-goings of the border were at the north † bay of the salt-sea at the south end of Jordan. This was the south coast.

20 And Jordan was the border of it on the east side. This was the inheritance of the children of Benjamin, by the coasts thereof round about, according to their families.

21 Now the cities of the tribe of the children of Benjamin according to their families, were Jericho, and Beth-hoglah, and the valley of Keziz,

22 And Beth-arabah, and Zemaraim, and Beth-el,

23 And Avim, and Parah, and Ophrah,

24 And Chephar-haammonai, and Ophni, and Gaba; twelve cities with their villages:

25 Gibeon, and Ramah, and Beeroth,

26 And Mizpeh, and Chephirah, and Mozah,

27 And Rekem, and Irpeel, and Taralah,

28 And Zelah, Eleph, and [s]Jebusi, (which is Jerusalem) Gibeath, and Kirjath; fourteen cities with their villages. This is the inheritance of the children of Benjamin according to their families.

CHAP. XIX.

The children of Israel give an inheritance to Joshua.

AND the second lot came forth to Simeon, even for the tribe of the children of Simeon according to their families: [a]and their inheritance was within the inheritance of the children of Judah.

2 And [b]they had in their inheritance, Beer-sheba, and Sheba, and Moladah,

3 And Hazar-shual, and Balah, and Azem,

4 And Eltolad, and Bethul, and Hormah,

5 And Ziklag, and Beth-marcaboth, and Hazar-susah,

6 And Beth-lebaoth, and Sharuhen; thirteen cities and their villages:

7 Ain, Remmon, and Ether, and Ashan; four cities and their villages:

8 And all the villages that were round about these cities to Baalath-beer, Ramath of the south. This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Simeon according to their families.

9 Out of the portion of the children of Judah was the inheritance of the children of Simeon: for the part of the children of Judah was too much for them: [c]therefore the children of Simeon had their inheritance within the inheritance of them.

10 ¶ And the third lot came up for the children of Zebulun according to their families: and the border of their inheritance was unto Sarid:

11 [d]And their border went up toward the sea, and Maralah, and reached to Dabbasheth, and reached to the river that is [e]before Jokneam,

12 And turned from Sarid eastward, toward the sun-rising, unto the border of Chisloth-tabor, and then goeth out to Daberath, and goeth up to Japhia,

13 And from thence passeth on along on the east to Gittah-hepher, to Ittah-kazin, and goeth out to Remmon-‖methoar to Neah;

14 And the border compasseth it on the north side to Hannathon: and the out-goings thereof are in the valley of Jiphthah-el:

15 And Kattath, and Nahallal, and Shimron, and Idalah, and Beth-lehem; twelve cities with their villages.

16 This is the inheritance of the children of Zebulun according to their families, these cities with their villages.

17 ¶ And the fourth lot came out to Issachar, for the children of Issachar according to their families.

18 And their border was toward Jezreel, and Chesulloth, and Shunem,

19 And Hapharaim, and Shihon, and Anaharath,

20 And Rabbith, and Kishion, and Abez,

21 And Remeth, and En-gannim, and En-haddah, and Beth-pazzez;

22 And the coast reacheth to Tabor, and Shahazimah, and Beth-shemesh; and the out-goings of their border were at Jordan: sixteen cities with their villages.

23 This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Issachar according to their families, the cities and their villages.

24 ¶ And the fifth lot came out for the tribe of the children of Asher according to their families.

25 And their border was Helkath, and Hali, and Beten, and Achshaph,

26 And Alammelech, and Amad, and Misheal; and reacheth to Carmel westward, and to Shihor-libnath;

27 And turneth toward the sun-rising to Beth-dagon, and reacheth to Zebulun, and to the valley of Jiphthah-el toward the north side of Beth-emek, and Neiel, and goeth out to Cabul on the left hand,

28 And Hebron, and Rehob, and Hammon, and Kanah, [f]even unto great Zidon;

29 And then the coast turneth to Ramah, and to the strong city †Tyre; and the coast turneth to Hosah: and the out-goings thereof are at the sea from the coast to [g]Achzib:

30 Ummah also, and Aphek, and Rehob: twenty and two cities with their villages.

31 This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Asher according to their families, these cities with their villages.

32 ¶ The sixth lot came out to the children of Naphtali, even for the children of Naphtali according to their families.

33 And their coast was from Heleph, from Allon to Zaanannim, and Adami, Nekeb, and Jabneel, unto Lakum; and the out-goings thereof were at Jordan:

34 And then [h]the coast turneth westward to Aznoth-tabor, and goeth out from thence to Hukkok, and reacheth to Zebulun on the south side, and reacheth to Asher on the west side, and to Judah upon Jordan toward the sun-rising.

35 And the fenced cities are Ziddim, Zer, and Hammath, Rakkath, and Cinnereth,

36 And Adamah, and Ramah, and Hazor,

37 And Kedesh, and Edrei, and En-hazor,

38 And Iron, and Migdal-el, Horem, and Beth-anath, and Beth-shemesh; nineteen cities with their villages.

39 This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Naphtali according to their families, the cities and their villages.

40 ¶ And the seventh lot came out for the tribe of the children of Dan according to their families.

41 And the coast of their inheritance was Zorah, and Eshtaol, and Ir-shemesh,

42 And [i]Shaalabbin, and Ajalon, and Jethlah,

43 And Elon, and Thimnathah, and Ekron,

44 And Eltekeh, and Gibbethon, and Baalath,

45 And Jehud, and Bene-berak, and Gath-rimmon,

46 And Me-jarkon, and Rakkon, with the border ‖ before ‖ Japho.

47 And [k]the coast of the children of Dan went out too little for them: therefore the children of Dan went up to fight against Leshem, and took it, and smote it with the edge of the sword, and possessed it, and dwelt therein, and called Leshem, [l]Dan, after the name of Dan their father.

48 This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Dan according to their families, these cities with their villages.

49 ¶ When they had made an end of dividing the land for inheritance by their coasts, the children of Israel gave an inheritance to Joshua the son of Nun among them:

50 According to the word of the LORD they gave him the city which he asked, even [m]Timnath-[n]serah in mount Ephraim: and he built the city, and dwelt therein.

51 [o]These are the inheritances which Eleazar the priest, and Joshua the son of Nun, and the heads of the fathers of the tribes of the children of Israel, divided for an inheritance by lot [p]in Shiloh before the LORD, at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation. So they made an end of dividing the country.

CHAP. XX.

1 God commandeth, 7 and the children of Israel appoint the six cities of refuge.

THE LORD also spake unto Joshua, saying,

2 Speak to the children of Israel, saying, [a]Appoint out for you cities of refuge, whereof I spake unto you by the hand of Moses:

3 That the slayer that killeth any person unawares and unwittingly, may flee thither; and they shall be your refuge from the avenger of blood.

4 And when he that doth flee unto one of those cities shall stand at the entering of [b]the gate of the city, and shall declare his cause in the ears of the elders of that city, they shall take him into the city unto them, and give him a place, that he may dwell among them.

5 [c]And if the avenger of blood pursue after him, then they shall not deliver the slayer up into his hand; because he smote his neighbour unwittingly, and hated him not beforetime.

6 And he shall dwell in that city, [d]until he stand before the congregation for judgment, and until the death of the high priest that shall be in those days: then shall the slayer return, and come unto his own city, and unto his own house, unto the city from whence he fled.

CHAP. XXI.

Eight and forty cities given unto the Levites.

THEN came near the heads of the fathers of the Levites unto [a]Eleazar the priest, and unto Joshua the son of Nun, and unto the heads of the fathers of the tribes of the children of Israel;

2 And they spake unto them at [b]Shiloh in the land of Canaan, saying, [c]The LORD commanded by the hand of Moses to give us cities to dwell in, with the suburbs thereof for our cattle.

3 And the children of Israel gave unto the Levites out of their inheritance, at the commandment of the LORD, these cities and their suburbs.

4 And the lot came out for the families of the Kohathites: and [d]the children of Aaron the priest, which were of the Levites, [e]had by lot out of the tribe of Judah, and out of the tribe of Simeon, and out of the tribe of Benjamin, thirteen cities.

5 And [f]the rest of the children of Kohath had by lot out of the families of the tribe of Ephraim, and out of the tribe of Dan, and out of the half-tribe of Manasseh, ten cities.

6 And [g]the children of Gershon had by lot out of the families of the tribe of Issachar, and out of the tribe of Asher, and out of the tribe of Naphtali, and out of the half-tribe of Manasseh in Bashan, thirteen cities.

7 [h]The children of Merari by their families had out of the tribe of Reuben, and out of the tribe of Gad, and out of the tribe of Zebulun, twelve cities.

8 [i]And the children of Israel gave by lot unto the Levites these cities with their suburbs, [k]as the LORD commanded by the hand of Moses.

9 ¶ And they gave out of the tribe of the children of Judah, and out of the tribe of the children of Simeon, these cities which are here †mentioned by name,

10 [l]Which the children of Aaron, being of the families of the Kohathites, who were of the children of Levi, had: for theirs was the first lot.

11 [m]And they gave them ‖the city of Arba the father of [n]Anak (which city is Hebron) [o]in the hill-country of Judah, with the suburbs thereof round about it.

12 But [p]the fields of the city, and the villages thereof, gave they to Caleb the son of Jephunneh for his possession.

13 ¶ Thus [q]they gave to the children of Aaron the priest, [r]Hebron with her suburbs, to be a city of refuge for the slayer; [s]and Libnah with her suburbs,

14 And [t]Jattir with her suburbs, [u]and Eshtemoa with her suburbs,

15 And [x]Holon with her suburbs, [y]and Debir with her suburbs,

16 And [z]Ain with her suburbs, [a]and Juttah with her suburbs, and [b]Beth-shemesh with her suburbs; nine cities out of those two tribes.

17 And out of the tribe of Benjamin, [c]Gibeon with her suburbs, [d]Geba with her suburbs, 18 Anathoth with her suburbs, and [e]Almon with her suburbs; four cities.

19 All the cities of the children of Aaron, the priests, were thirteen cities with their suburbs.

20 ¶ [f]And the families of the children of Kohath, the Levites which remained of the children of Kohath, even they had the cities of their lot out of the tribe of Ephraim.

21 For they gave them [g]Shechem with her suburbs in mount Ephraim, to be a city of refuge for the slayer; and Gezer with her suburbs,

22 And Kibzaim with her suburbs, and Beth-horon with her suburbs; four cities.

23 And out of the tribe of Dan, Eltekeh with her suburbs, Gibbethon with her suburbs, 24 Aijalon with her suburbs, Gath-rimmon with her suburbs; four cities.

25 And out of the half-tribe of Manasseh, Tanach with her suburbs, and Gath-rimmon, with her suburbs; two cities.

26 All the cities were ten with their suburbs, for the families of the children of Kohath that remained.

27 ¶ [h]And unto the children of Gershon, of the families of the Levites, out of the other half-tribe of Manasseh they gave [i]Golan in Bashan with her suburbs, to be a city of refuge for the slayer, and Beesh-terah with her suburbs; two cities.

28 And out of the tribe of Issachar, Kishon with her suburbs, Dabareh with her suburbs, 29 Jarmuth with her suburbs, En-gannim with her suburbs; four cities.

30 And out of the tribe of Asher, Mishal with her suburbs, Abdon with her suburbs, 31 Helkath with her suburbs, and Rehob with her suburbs; four cities.

32 And out of the tribe of Naphtali, [k]Kedesh in Galilee with her suburbs, to be a city of refuge for the slayer; and Hammoth-dor with her suburbs, and Kartan with her suburbs; three cities.

33 All the cities of the Gershonites, according to their families, were thirteen cities with their suburbs.

34 ¶ [l]And unto the families of the children of Merari, the rest of the Levites, out of the tribe of Zebulun, Jokneam with her suburbs, and Kartah with her suburbs, 35 Dimnah with her suburbs, Nahalal with her suburbs; four cities.

36 And out of the tribe of Reuben, [m]Bezer with her suburbs, and Jahazah with her suburbs,

37 Kedemoth with her suburbs, and Mephaath with her suburbs; four cities.

38 And out of the tribe of Gad, [n]Ramoth in Gilead with her suburbs, to be a city of refuge for the slayer; and Mahanaim with her suburbs, 39 Heshbon with her suburbs, Jazer with her suburbs; four cities in all.

40 So all the cities for the children of Merari by their families, which were remaining of the families of the Levites, were by their lot twelve cities.

41 [o]All the cities of the Levites within the possession of the children of Israel were forty and eight cities with their suburbs.

42 These cities were every one with their suburbs round about them. Thus were all these cities.

44 [q] And the LORD gave them rest round about, according to all that he sware unto their fathers: and [r] there stood not a man of all their enemies before them; the LORD delivered all their enemies into their hand.

45 [s] There failed not aught of any good thing which the LORD had spoken unto the house of Israel; all came to pass.

CHAP. XXII.

The two tribes and half with a blessing are sent home.

THEN Joshua called the Reubenites, and the Gadites, and the half-tribe of Manasseh,

2 And said unto them, Ye have kept [a] all that Moses the servant of the LORD commanded you, [b] and have obeyed my voice in all that I commanded you:

3 Ye have not left your brethren these many days unto this day, but have kept the charge of the commandment of the LORD your God.

4 And now the LORD your God hath given rest unto your brethren, as he promised them: therefore now return ye, and get you unto your tents, and unto the land of your possession, [c] which Moses the servant of the LORD gave you on the other side Jordan.

5 But [d] take diligent heed to do the commandment and the law, which Moses the servant of the LORD charged you, [e] to love the LORD your God, and to walk in all his ways, and to keep his commandments, and to cleave unto him, and to serve him with all your heart, and with all your soul.

6 So Joshua [f] blessed them, and sent them away; and they went unto their tents.

7 ¶ Now to the one half of the tribe of Manasseh, Moses had given possession in Bashan: [g] but unto the other half thereof gave Joshua among their brethren on this side Jordan westward. And when Joshua sent them away also unto their tents, then he blessed them,

8 And he spake unto them, saying, Return with much riches unto your tents, and with very much cattle, with silver, and with gold, and with brass, and with iron, and with very much raiment: [h] divide the spoil of your enemies with your brethren.

9 ¶ And the children of Reuben, and the children of Gad, and the half-tribe of Manasseh returned, and departed from the children of Israel out of Shiloh, which is in the land of Canaan, to go unto [i] the country of Gilead, to the land of their possession, whereof they were possessed, according to the word of the LORD by the hand of Moses.

10 ¶ And when they came unto the borders of Jordan, that are in the land of Canaan, the children of Reuben, and the children of Gad, and the half-tribe of Manasseh built there an altar by Jordan, a great altar to see to.

11 ¶ And the children of Israel [k] heard say, Behold, the children of Reuben, and the children of Gad, and the half-tribe of Manasseh, have built an altar over against the land of Canaan, in the borders of Jordan, at the passage of the children of Israel.

12 And when the children of Israel heard of it, [l] the whole congregation of the children of Israel gathered themselves together at Shiloh, to go up to war against them.

13 And the children of Israel [m] sent unto the children of Reuben, and to the children of Gad, and to the half-tribe of Manasseh, into the land of Gilead, [n] Phinehas the son of Eleazar the priest,

14 And with him ten princes, of each † chief house a prince throughout all the tribes of Israel; and [o] each one was an head of the house of their fathers among the thousands of Israel.

15 ¶ And they came unto the children of Reuben, and to the children of Gad, and to the half-tribe of Manasseh, unto the land of Gilead, and they spake with them, saying,

16 Thus saith the whole congregation of the LORD, What trespass is this that ye have committed against the God of Israel, to turn away this day from following the LORD, in that ye have builded you an altar, [p] that ye might rebel this day against the LORD?

17 Is the iniquity [q] of Peor too little for us, from which we are not cleansed until this day, although there was a plague in the congregation of the LORD,

18 But that ye must turn away this day from following the LORD? and it will be, seeing ye rebel today against the LORD, that to-morrow [r] he will be wroth with the whole congregation of Israel.

19 Notwithstanding, if the land of your possession be unclean, then pass ye over unto the land of the possession of the LORD, [s] wherein the LORD's tabernacle dwelleth, and take possession among us: but rebel not against the LORD, nor rebel against us, in building you an altar beside the altar of the LORD our God.

20 [t] Did not Achan the son of Zerah commit a trespass in the accursed thing, and wrath fell on all the congregation of Israel? and that man perished not alone in his iniquity.

21 ¶ Then the children of Reuben, and the children of Gad, and the half-tribe of Manasseh answered, and said unto the heads of the thousands of Israel,

22 The LORD [u] God of gods, the LORD God of gods, he [x] knoweth, and Israel he shall know; if it be in rebellion, or if in transgression against the LORD, (save us not this day,)

23 That we have built us an altar to turn from following the LORD, or if to offer thereon burnt-offering, or meat-offering, or if to offer peace-offerings thereon, let the LORD himself [y] require it;

24 And if we have not rather done it for fear of this thing, saying, † In time to come your children might speak unto our children, saying, What have ye to do with the LORD God of Israel?

25 For the LORD hath made Jordan a border between us and you, ye children of Reuben and children of Gad; ye have no part in the LORD. So shall your children make our children cease from fearing the LORD.

26 Therefore we said, Let us now prepare to build us an altar, not for burnt-offering, nor for sacrifice:

27 But that it may be [z] a witness between us, and you, and our generations after us, that we might [a] do the service of the LORD before him with our burnt-offerings, and with our sacrifices, and with our peace offerings; that your children may not say to our children in time to come, Ye have no part in the LORD.

28 Therefore said we, that it shall be, when they should so say to us or to our generations in time to come, that we may say again, Behold the pattern of the altar of the LORD, which our fathers made, not for burnt-offerings, nor for sacrifices; but it is a witness between us and you.

32 ¶ And Phinehas the son of Eleazar the priest, and the princes, returned from the children of Reuben, and from the children of Gad, out of the land of Gilead, unto the land of Canaan, to the children of Israel, and brought them word again.

33 And the thing pleased the children of Israel; and the children of Israel [d] blessed God, and did not intend to go up against them in battle, to destroy the land wherein the children of Reuben and Gad dwelt.

1 Joshua's exhortation before his death, 3 by former benefits, 5 by promises, 11 and by threatenings.

AND it came to pass, a long time after that the LORD [a] had given rest unto Israel from all their enemies round about, that Joshua [b] waxed old and †stricken in age.

2 And Joshua [c] called for all Israel, and for their elders, and for their heads, and for their judges, and for their officers, and said unto them, I am old and stricken in age:

3 And ye have seen all that the LORD your God hath done unto all these nations because of you; for the [d] LORD your God is he that hath fought for you.

4 Behold, [e] I have divided unto you by lot these nations that remain, to be an inheritance for your tribes, from Jordan, with all the nations that I have cut off, even unto the great sea †westward.

5 And the LORD your God, [f] he shall expel them from before you, and drive them from out of your sight; and ye shall possess their land, [g] as the LORD your God hath promised unto you.

6 [h] Be ye therefore very courageous to keep and to do all that is written in the book of the law of Moses, [i] that ye turn not aside therefrom to the right hand or to the left;

7 That ye [k] come not among these nations, these that remain among you; neither [l] make mention of the name of their gods, nor cause to swear by them, neither serve them, nor bow yourselves unto them:

8 ‖ But [m] cleave unto the LORD your God, as ye have done unto this day.

9 ‖ [n] For the LORD hath driven out from before you great nations and strong: but as for you, [o] no man hath been able to stand before you unto this day.

10 [p] One man of you shall chase a thousand: for the LORD your God, he it is that fighteth for you, [q] as he hath promised you.

16 When ye have transgressed the covenant of the LORD your God, which he commanded you, and have gone and served other gods, and bowed yourselves to them; then shall the anger of the LORD be kindled against you, and ye shall perish quickly from off the good land which he hath given unto you.

CHAP. XXIV.

1 Joshua assembleth the tribes at Shechem. 14 He reneweth a covenant between them and God.

AND Joshua gathered all the tribes of Israel to [a] Shechem, and [b] called for the elders of Israel, and for their heads, and for their judges, and for their officers; and they [c] presented themselves before God.

2 And Joshua said unto all the people, Thus saith the LORD God of Israel, [d] Your fathers dwelt on the other side of the flood in old time, even Terah, the father of Abraham, and the father of Nachor: and [e] they served other gods.

3 And [f] I took your father Abraham from the other side of the flood, and led him throughout all the land of Canaan, and multiplied his seed, and [g] gave him Isaac.

4 And I gave unto Isaac [h] Jacob and Esau: and I gave unto [i] Esau mount Seir, to possess it; [k] but Jacob and his children went down into Egypt.

5 [l] I sent Moses also and Aaron, and [m] I plagued Egypt, according to that which I did among them: and afterward I brought you out.

6 And I [n] brought your fathers out of Egypt: and [o] ye came unto the sea; [p] and the Egyptians pursued after your fathers with chariots and horsemen unto the Red sea.

7 And when they [q] cried unto the LORD, [r] he put darkness between you and the Egyptians, [s] and brought the sea upon them, and covered them; and [t] your eyes have seen what I have done in Egypt: and ye dwelt in the wilderness [u] a long season.

8 And I brought you into the land of the Amorites, which dwelt on the other side Jordan; [x] and they fought with you: and I gave them into your hand, that ye might possess their land; and I destroyed them from before you.

9 Then [y] Balak the son of Zippor, king of Moab, arose and warred against Israel, and [z]sent and called Balaam the son of Beor to curse you:

10 [a]But I would not hearken unto Balaam; [b]therefore he blessed you still: so I delivered you out of his hand.

11 And [c]ye went over Jordan, and came unto Jericho: and [d]the men of Jericho fought against you, the Amorites, and the Perizzites, and the Canaanites, and the Hittites, and the Girgashites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites, and I delivered them into your hand.

12 And [e]I sent the hornet before you, which drave them out from before you, even the two kings of the Amorites: but [f]not with thy sword, nor with thy bow.

13 And I have given you a land for which ye did not labour, and [g]cities which ye built not, and ye dwell in them; of the vineyards and olive-yards which ye planted not do ye eat.

14 ¶ [h]Now therefore fear the LORD, and serve him in [i]sincerity and in truth; and [k]put away the gods which your fathers served on the other side of the flood, and [l]in Egypt; and serve ye the LORD.

15 And if it seem evil unto you to serve the LORD, [m]choose you this day whom ye will serve, whether [n]the gods which your fathers served that were on the other side of the flood, or [o]the gods of the Amorites in whose land ye dwell: [p]but as for me and my house, we will serve the LORD.

16 And the people answered, and said, God forbid that we should forsake the LORD, to serve other gods;

17 For the LORD our God, he it is that brought us up, and our fathers, out of the land of Egypt, from the house of bondage, and which did those great signs in our sight, and preserved us in all the way wherein we went, and among all the people through whom we passed:

18 And the LORD drave out from before us all the people, even the Amorites which dwelt in the land: therefore will we also serve the LORD; for he is our God.

19 And Joshua said unto the people, [q]Ye cannot serve the LORD: for he is an [r]holy God: he is [s]a jealous God; [t]he will not forgive your transgressions, nor your sins.

20 [u]If ye forsake the LORD, and serve strange gods, [x]then he will turn and do you hurt, and consume you, after that he hath done you good.

23 Now therefore [z]put away (said he) the strange gods which are among you, and incline your heart unto the LORD God of Israel.

24 And the people said unto Joshua, The LORD our God will we serve, and his voice will we obey.

25 So Joshua [a]made a covenant with the people that day, and set them a statute and an ordinance [b]in Shechem.

26 ¶ And Joshua [c]wrote these words in the book of the law of God, and took [d]a great stone, and [e]set it up there [f]under an oak that was by the sanctuary of the LORD.

CHAP. I.

1 The acts of Judah and Simeon. 8 Jerusalem taken. 21 The acts of Benjamin, Manasseh, &c.

NOW after the death of Joshua it came to pass, that the children of Israel [a]asked the LORD, saying, Who shall go up for us against the Canaanites first to fight against them?

2 And the LORD said, [b]Judah shall go up: behold, I have delivered the land into his hand.

3 And Judah said unto Simeon his brother, Come up with me into my lot, that we may fight against the Canaanites; and [c]I likewise will go with thee into thy lot. So Simeon went with him.

4 And Judah went up, and the LORD delivered the Canaanites and the Perizzites into their hand: and they slew of them in [d]Bezek ten thousand men.

5 And they found Adoni-bezek in Bezek: and they fought against him, and they slew the Canaanites and the Perizzites.

6 But Adoni-bezek fled; and they pursued after him, and caught him, and cut off his thumbs and his great toes.

7 And Adoni-bezek said, Threescore and ten kings, having † their thumbs and their great toes cut off, ‖ gathered their meat under my table; [e]as I have done, so God hath requited me. And they brought him to Jerusalem, and there he died.

8 (Now [f]the children of Judah had fought against Jerusalem, and had taken it, and smitten it with the edge of the sword, and set the city on fire.)

9 ¶ [g]And afterward the children of Judah went down to fight against the Canaanites that dwelt in the mountain, and in the south, and in the ‖ valley.

10 And Judah went against the Canaanites that dwelt in Hebron: (now the name of Hebron before was [h]Kirjath-arba:) and they slew Sheshai, and Ahiman, and Talmai.

11 [i]And from thence he went against the inhabitants of Debir: and the name of Debir before was Kirjath-sepher:

12 [k]And Caleb said, He that smiteth Kirjath-sepher, and taketh it, to him will I give Achsah my daughter to wife.

13 And Othniel the son of Kenaz, [l]Caleb's younger brother, took it: and he gave him Achsah his daughter to wife.

14 [m]And it came to pass, when she came to him, that she moved him to ask of her father a field: and she lighted from off her ass; and Caleb said unto her, What wilt thou?

15 And she said unto him, [n]Give me a blessing: for thou hast given me a south land; give me also springs of water. And Caleb gave her the upper springs, and the nether springs.

16 ¶ [o]And the children of the Kenite, Moses' father-in-law, went up out [p]of the city of palm-trees with the children of Judah into the wilderness of Judah, which lieth in the south of [q]Arad; [r]and they went and dwelt among the people.

17 [s]And Judah went with Simeon his brother, and they slew the Canaanites that inhabited Zephath, and utterly destroyed it. And the name of the city was called [t]Hormah.

18 Also Judah took [u]Gaza with the coast thereof, and Askelon with the coast thereof, and Ekron with the coast thereof.

19 And [x]the LORD was with Judah; and ‖ he drave out the inhabitants of the mountain; but could not drive out the inhabitants of the valley, because they had [y]chariots of iron.

20 [z]And they gave Hebron unto Caleb, as Moses said: and he expelled thence the three sons of Anak.

21 [a]And the children of Benjamin did not drive but the Jebusites that inhabited Jerusalem; but the Jebusites dwell with the children of Benjamin in Jerusalem unto this day.

22 ¶ And the house of Joseph, they also went up against Beth-el: [b]and the LORD was with them.

23 And the house of Joseph [c]sent to descry Beth-el. Now the name of the city before was [d]Luz.

24 And the spies saw a man come forth out of the city, and they said unto him, Shew us, we pray thee, the entrance into the city, and [e]we will shew thee mercy.

25 And when he shewed them the entrance into the city, they smote the city with the edge of the sword: but they let go the man and all his family.

26 And the man went into the land of the Hittites, and built a city, and called the name thereof Luz: which is the name thereof unto this day.

27 ¶ [f]Neither did Manasseh drive out the inhabitants of Beth-shean and her towns, nor Taanach and her towns, nor the inhabitants of Dor and her towns, nor the inhabitants of Ibleam and her towns, nor the inhabitants of Megiddo and her towns; but the Canaanites would dwell in that land.

28 And it came to pass when Israel was strong, that they put the Canaanites to tribute, and did not utterly drive them out.

29 ¶ [g]Neither did Ephraim drive out the Canaanites that dwelt in Gezer; but the Canaanites dwelt in Gezer among them.

30 ¶ Neither did Zebulun drive out the inhabitants of Kitron, nor the [h]inhabitants of Nahalol; but the Canaanites dwelt among them, and became tributaries.

31 ¶ [i]Neither did Asher drive out the inhabitants of Accho, nor the inhabitants of Zidon, nor of Ahlab, nor of Achzib, nor of Helbah, nor of Aphik, nor of Rehob:

32 But the Asherites [k]dwelt among the Canaanites, the inhabitants of the land: for they did not drive them out.

33 ¶ [l]Neither did Naphtali drive out the inhabitants of Beth-shemesh, nor the inhabitants of Beth-anath; but he [m]dwelt among the Canaanites, the inhabitants of the land: nevertheless, the inhabitants of Beth-shemesh and of Beth-anath [n]became tributaries unto them.

34 And the Amorites forced the children of Dan into the mountain: for they would not suffer them to come down to the valley:

35 But the Amorites would dwell in mount Heres [o]in Aijalon, and in Shaalbim: yet the hand of the house of Joseph † prevailed, so that they became tributaries.

36 And the coast of the Amorites was [p]from ‖ the going up to Akrabbim, from the rock, and upward.

CHAP. II.

1 An angel rebuketh the people at Bochim. 20 The Canaanites are left to prove Israel.

AND an ‖ angel of the LORD came up from Gilgal [a]to Bochim, and said, I made you to go up out of Egypt, and have brought you unto the land which I sware unto your fathers; and [b]I said, I will never break my covenant with you.

2 And [c]ye shall make no league with the inhabitants of this land: [d]ye shall throw down their altars: [e]but ye have not obeyed my voice: why have ye done this?

3 Wherefore I also said, I will not drive them out from before you; but they shall be as [f]thorns in your sides, and [g]their gods shall be a [h]snare unto you.

4 And it came to pass, when the angel of the LORD spake these words unto all the children of Israel, that the people lifted up their voice, and wept.

5 And they called the name of that place ‖ Bochim: and they sacrificed there unto the LORD.

6 ¶ And when [i]Joshua had let the people go, the children of Israel went every man unto his inheritance to possess the land.

7 [k]And the people served the LORD all the days of Joshua, and all the days of the elders that † outlived Joshua, who had seen all the great works of the LORD, that he did for Israel.

8 And [l]Joshua the son of Nun, the servant of the LORD, died, being an hundred and ten years old.

9 [m]And they buried him in the border of his inheritance in [n]Timnath-heres, in the mount of Ephraim, on the north side of the hill Gaash.

10 And also all that generation were gathered unto their fathers: and there arose another generation after them, which [o]knew not the LORD, nor yet the works which he had done for Israel.

11 ¶ And the children of Israel did evil in the sight of the LORD, and served Baalim:

12 And they [p]forsook the LORD God of their fathers, which brought them out of the land of Egypt, and followed [q]other gods, of the gods of the people that were round about them, and [r]bowed themselves unto them, and provoked the LORD to anger.

13 And they forsook the LORD, [s]and served Baal and Ashtaroth.

hands of their enemies round about, so that they [v] could not any longer stand before their enemies.

15 Whithersoever they went out, the hand of the LORD was against them for evil, as the LORD had said, and [z] as the LORD had sworn unto them: and they were greatly distressed.

16 ¶ Nevertheless [a] the LORD raised up judges, which †delivered them out of the hand of those that spoiled them.

17 And yet they would not hearken unto their judges, but they [b] went a whoring after other gods, and bowed themselves unto them: they turned quickly out of the way which their fathers walked in, obeying the commandments of the LORD; but they did not so.

18 And when the LORD raised them up judges, then [c] the LORD was with the judge, and delivered them out of the hand of their enemies all the days of the judge: ([d] for it repented the LORD because of their groanings by reason of them that oppressed them and vexed them.)

19 And it came to pass, [e] when the judge was dead, that they returned, and ‖corrupted themselves more than their fathers, in following other gods to serve them, and to bow down unto them; they †ceased not from their own doings, nor from their stubborn way.

20 ¶ [f] And the anger of the LORD was hot against Israel; and he said, Because that this people hath [g] transgressed my covenant which I commanded their fathers, and have not hearkened unto my voice;

21 [h] I also will not henceforth drive out any from before them of the nations which Joshua left when he died:

22 [i] That through them I may [k] prove Israel, whether they will keep the way of the LORD to walk therein, as their fathers did keep it, or not.

23 Therefore the LORD ‖left those nations, without driving them out hastily, neither delivered he them into the hand of Joshua.

CHAP. III.

1 The nations which were left to prove Israel. 6 By communion with them they commit idolatry.

NOW these are [a] the nations which the LORD left, to prove Israel by them, (even as many of Israel as had not known all the wars of Canaan;

2 Only that the generations of the children of Israel might know to teach them war, at the least such as before knew nothing thereof;)

3 Namely, [b] five lords of the Philistines, and all the Canaanites, and the Sidonians, and the Hivites that dwelt in mount Lebanon, from mount Baal-hermon unto the entering in of Hamath.

4 And they were to prove Israel by them, to know whether they would hearken unto the commandments of the LORD, which he commanded their fathers by the hand of Moses.

5 ¶ [d] And the children of Israel dwelt among the Canaanites, Hittites, and Amorites, and Perizzites, and Hivites, and Jebusites:

6 And [e] they took their daughters to be their wives, and gave their daughters to their sons, and served their gods.

7 [f] And the children of Israel did evil in the sight of the LORD, and forgat the LORD their God, [g] and served Baalim, and [h] the groves.

8 ¶ Therefore the anger of the LORD was hot against Israel, and he [i] sold them into the hand of [k] Chushan-rishathaim king of †Mesopotamia: and the children of Israel served Chushan-rishathaim eight years.

9 And when the children of Israel [l] cried unto the LORD, the LORD [m] raised up a †deliverer to the children of Israel, who delivered them, even [n] Othniel the son of Kenaz, Caleb's younger brother.

10 And [o] the Spirit of the LORD †came upon him, and he judged Israel, and went out to war: and the LORD delivered Chushan-rishathaim king of †Mesopotamia into his hand; and his hand prevailed against Chushan-rishathaim.

11 And the land had rest forty years: and Othniel the son of Kenaz died.

12 ¶ [p] And the children of Israel did evil again in the sight of the LORD: and the LORD strengthened [q] Eglon the king of Moab against Israel, because they had done evil in the sight of the LORD.

13 And he gathered unto him the children of Ammon and [r] Amalek, and went and smote Israel, and possessed [s] the city of palm-trees.

14 So the children of Israel [t] served Eglon the king of Moab eighteen years.

15 But when the children of Israel [u] cried unto the LORD, the LORD raised them up a deliverer, Ehud the son of Gera, ‖a Benjamite, a man †left-handed: and by him the children of Israel sent a present unto Eglon the king of Moab.

16 But Ehud made him a dagger which had two edges, of a cubit length: and he did gird it under his raiment upon his right thigh.

17 And he brought the present unto Eglon king of Moab: and Eglon was a very fat man.

18 And when he had made an end to offer the present, he sent away the people that bare the present.

19 But he himself turned again [x] from the ‖quarries that were by Gilgal, and said, I have a secret errand unto thee, O king: who said, Keep silence. And all that stood by him went out from him.

20 And Ehud came unto him; and he was sitting in †a summer-parlour, which he had for himself alone: and Ehud said, I have a message from God unto thee. And he arose out of his seat.

21 And Ehud put forth his left hand, and took the dagger from his right thigh, and thrust it into his belly:

22 And the haft also went in after the blade: and the fat closed upon the blade, so that he could not draw the dagger out of his belly; and ‖the dirt came out.

23 Then Ehud went forth through the porch, and shut the doors of the parlour upon him, and locked them.

24 When he was gone out, his servants came; and when they saw that, behold, the doors of the parlour were locked, they said, Surely he ‖covereth his feet in his summer-chamber.

25 And they tarried till they were ashamed: and behold, he opened not the doors of the parlour, therefore they took a key and opened them: and behold, their lord was fallen down dead on the earth.

26 And Ehud escaped while they tarried; and passed beyond the quarries, and escaped into Seirath.

27 And it came to pass when he was come, that [y] he blew a trumpet in the [z] mountain of Ephraim, and the children of Israel went down with him from the mount, and he before them.

28 And he said unto them, Follow after me: for [a] the LORD hath delivered your enemies the Moabites into your hand. And they went down after him, and took [b] the fords of Jordan toward Moab, and suffered not a man to pass over.

29 And they slew of Moab at that time about ten thousand men, all †lusty, and all men of valour: and there escaped not a man.

30 So Moab was subdued that day under the hand of Israel: and [c]the land had rest fourscore years.

31 ¶And after him was [d]Shamgar the son of Anath, which slew of the Philistines six hundred men [e]with an ox-goad; [f]and he also delivered [g]Israel.

CHAP IV.

4, 6 Deborah and Barak deliver Israel from Jabin and Sisera.

AND [a]the children of Israel again did evil in the sight of the LORD when Ehud was dead.

2 And the LORD [b]sold them into the hand of Jabin king of Canaan that reigned in [c]Hazor, the captain of whose host was [d]Sisera, which dwelt in [e]Harosheth of the Gentiles.

3 And the children of Israel cried unto the LORD; for he had nine hundred [f]chariots of iron; and twenty years [g]he mightily oppressed the children of Israel.

4 ¶And Deborah, a prophetess, the wife of Lapidoth, she judged Israel at that time.

5 [h]And she dwelt under the palm-tree of Deborah, between Ramah and Beth-el in mount Ephraim: and the children of Israel came up to her for judgment.

6 And she sent and called [i]Barak the son of Abinoam out [k]of Kedesh-naphtali, and said unto him, Hath not the LORD God of Israel commanded, saying, Go, and draw toward mount Tabor, and take with thee ten thousand men of the children of Naphtali, and of the children of Zebulun?

7 And [l]I will draw unto thee, to the [m]river Kishon, Sisera the captain of Jabin's army, with his chariots and his multitude; and I will deliver him into thine hand.

8 And Barak said unto her, If thou wilt go with me, then I will go: but if thou wilt not go with me, then I will not go.

9 And she said, I will surely go with thee: notwithstanding the journey that thou takest shall not be for thine honour; for the LORD shall [n]sell Sisera into the hand of a woman. And Deborah arose, and went with Barak to Kedesh.

10 ¶And Barak called [o]Zebulun and Naphtali to Kedesh; and he went up with ten thousand men [p]at his feet: and Deborah went up with him.

11 Now Heber [q]the Kenite, which was of the children of [r]Hobab the father-in-law of Moses, had severed himself from the Kenites, and pitched his tent unto the plain of Zaanaim, [s]which is by Kedesh.

12 And they shewed Sisera that Barak the son of Abinoam was gone up to mount Tabor.

13 And Sisera †gathered together all his chariots, even nine hundred chariots of iron, and all the people that were with him, from Harosheth of the Gentiles unto the river of Kishon.

14 And Deborah said unto Barak, Up; for this is the day in which the LORD hath delivered Sisera into thine hand: [t]is not the LORD gone out before thee? So Barak went down from mount Tabor, and ten thousand men after him.

15 And [u]the LORD discomfited Sisera, and all his chariots, and all his host, with the edge of the sword before Barak; so that Sisera lighted down off his chariot, and fled away on his feet.

16 But Barak pursued after the chariots, and after the host, unto Harosheth of the Gentiles: and all the host of Sisera fell upon the edge of the sword; and there was not †a man left.

17 Howbeit, Sisera fled away on his feet to the tent of Jael the wife of Heber the Kenite: for there was peace between Jabin the king of Hazor and the house of Heber the Kenite.

18 ¶And Jael went out to meet Sisera, and said unto him, Turn in, my lord, turn in to me: fear not. And when he had turned in unto her into the tent, she covered him with a ‖mantle.

19 And he said unto her, Give me, I pray thee, a little water to drink; for I am thirsty. And she opened [x]a bottle of milk, and gave him drink, and covered him.

20 Again he said unto her, Stand in the door of the tent, and it shall be, when any man doth come and inquire of thee, and say, Is there any man here? thou shalt say, No.

21 Then Jael Heber's wife [y]took a nail of the tent, and †took an hammer in her hand, and went softly unto him, and smote the nail into his temples, and fastened it into the ground: for he was fast asleep, and weary. So he died.

22 And behold, as Barak pursued Sisera, Jael came out to meet him, and said unto him, Come, and I will shew thee the man whom thou seekest. And when he came into her tent, behold, Sisera lay dead, and the nail was in his temples.

23 So [z]God subdued on that day Jabin the king of Canaan before the children of Israel.

24 And the hand of the children of Israel †prospered, and prevailed against Jabin the king of Canaan, until they had destroyed Jabin king of Canaan.

The song of Deborah and Barak.

THEN [a]sang Deborah and Barak the son of Abinoam on that day, saying,

2 Praise ye the LORD for the [b]avenging of Israel, [c]when the people willingly offered themselves.

3 [d]Hear, O ye kings; give ear, O ye princes; I, even I, will sing unto the LORD; I will sing praise to the LORD God of Israel.

4 LORD, [e]when thou wentest out of Seir, when thou marchedst out of the field of Edom, [f]the earth trembled, and the heavens dropped, the clouds also dropped water.

5 [g]The mountains †melted from before the LORD, even [h]that Sinai from before the LORD God of Israel.

6 In the days of [i]Shamgar the son of Anath, in the days of [k]Jael, [l]the highways were unoccupied, and the †travellers walked through †by-ways.

7 The inhabitants of the villages ceased, they ceased in Israel, until that I Deborah arose, that I arose [m]a mother in Israel.

8 They [n]chose new gods; then was war in the gates: [o]was there a shield or spear seen among forty thousand in Israel?

9 My heart is toward the governors of Israel that [p]offered themselves willingly among the people: Bless ye the LORD.

10 ‖[q]Speak, ye [r]that ride on white asses, [s]ye that sit in judgment, and walk by the way.

11 They that are delivered from the noise of archers in the places of drawing water, there shall they rehearse the †[t]righteous acts of the LORD, even the righteous acts toward the inhabitants of his villages in Israel: then shall the people of the LORD go down to the gates.

2 And the hand of Midian †prevailed against Israel: and because of the Midianites the children of Israel made them [c]the dens which are in the mountains, and caves, and strong holds.

3 And so it was, when Israel had sown, that the Midianites came up, and [d]the Amalekites, [e]and the children of the east, even they came up against them:

4 And they encamped against them, and [f]destroyed the increase of the earth, till thou come unto Gaza; and left no sustenance for Israel, neither ‖sheep, nor ox, nor ass.

5 For they came up with their cattle and their tents, and they came [g]as grasshoppers for multitude; for both they and their camels were without number: and they entered into the land to destroy it.

6 And Israel was greatly impoverished because of the Midianites; and the children of Israel [h]cried unto the LORD.

7 ¶And it came to pass, when the children of Israel cried unto the LORD because of the Midianites,

8 That the LORD sent †a prophet unto the children of Israel, which said unto them, Thus saith the LORD God of Israel, I brought you up from Egypt, and brought you forth out of the house of bondage;

9 And I delivered you out of the hand of the Egyptians, and out of the land of all that oppressed you, and [i]drave them out from before you, and gave you their land;

10 And I said unto you, I am the LORD your God; [k]fear not the gods of the Amorites, in whose land ye dwell: but ye have not obeyed my voice.

11 ¶And there came an angel of the LORD, and sat under an oak which was in Ophrah, that pertained unto Joash [l]the Abi-ezrite: and his son [m]Gideon threshed wheat by the wine-press, †to hide it from the Midianites.

12 And the [n]angel of the LORD appeared unto him, and said unto him, The LORD is [o]with thee, thou mighty man of valour.

13 And Gideon said unto him, O my Lord, if the LORD be with us, why then is all this befallen us? and [p]where be all his miracles [q]which our fathers told us of, saying, Did not the LORD bring us up from Egypt? but now the LORD hath [r]forsaken us, and delivered us into the hands of the Midianites.

14 And the LORD looked upon him, and said, [s]Go in this thy might, and thou shalt save Israel from the hand of the Midianites: [t]have not I sent thee?

15 And he said unto him, O my Lord, wherewith shall I save Israel? behold, [u]†my family is poor in Manasseh, and I am the least in my father's house.

16 And the LORD said unto him, [x]Surely I will be with thee, and thou shalt smite the Midianites as one man.

17 And he said unto him, If now I have found grace in thy sight, then [y]shew me a sign that thou talkest with me.

18 [z]Depart not hence, I pray thee, until I come unto thee, and bring forth my ‖present, and set it before thee. And he said, I will tarry until thou come again.

19 ¶[a]And Gideon went in, and made ready †a kid, and unleavened cakes of an ephah of flour: the flesh he put in a basket, and he put the broth in a pot, and brought it out unto him under the oak, and presented it.

20 And the angel of God said unto him, Take the flesh and the unleavened cakes, and [b]lay them upon this rock, and [c]pour out the broth. And he did so.

21 ¶Then the angel of the LORD put forth the end of the staff that was in his hand, and touched the flesh and the unleavened cakes; and [d]there rose up fire out of the rock, and consumed the flesh and the unleavened cakes. Then the angel of the LORD departed out of his sight.

22 And when Gideon [e]perceived that he was an angel of the LORD, Gideon said, Alas, O Lord GOD! [f]for because I have seen an angel of the LORD face to face.

23 And the LORD said unto him, [g]Peace be unto thee; fear not: thou shalt not die.

24 Then Gideon built an altar there unto the LORD, and called it ‖ Jehovah-shalom: unto this day it is yet [h]in Ophrah of the Abi-ezrites.

25 ¶ And it came to pass the same night, that the LORD said unto him, Take thy father's young bullock, ‖ even the second bullock of seven years old, and throw down the altar of Baal that thy father hath, and [i]cut down the grove that is by it:

26 And build an altar unto the LORD thy God upon the top of this † rock, ‖ in the ordered place, and take the second bullock, and offer a burnt-sacrifice with the wood of the grove which thou shalt cut down.

27 Then Gideon took ten men of his servants, and did as the LORD had said unto him: and so it was, because he feared his father's household, and the men of the city, that he could not do it by day, that he did it by night.

28 ¶ And when the men of the city arose early in the morning, behold, the altar of Baal was cast down, and the grove was cut down that was by it, and the second bullock was offered upon the altar that was built.

29 And they said one to another, Who hath done this thing? And when they inquired and asked, they said, Gideon the son of Joash hath done this thing.

30 Then the men of the city said unto Joash, Bring out thy son, that he may die: because he hath cast down the altar of Baal, and because he hath cut down the grove that was by it.

31 And Joash said unto all that stood against him, Will ye plead for Baal? will ye save him? he that will plead for him, let him be put to death whilst it is yet morning: if he be a god, let him plead for himself, because one hath cast down his altar.

32 Therefore on that day he called him ‖ [k]Jerubbaal, saying, Let Baal plead against him, because he hath thrown down his altar.

33 ¶ Then all [l]the Midianites, and the Amalekites, and the children of the east were gathered together, and went over, and pitched in [m]the valley of Jezreel.

34 But [n]the Spirit of the LORD † came upon Gideon, and he [o]blew a trumpet; and Abi-ezer † was gathered after him.

35 And he sent messengers throughout all Manasseh; who also was gathered after him: and he sent messengers unto Asher, and unto Zebulun, and unto Naphtali; and they came up to meet them.

36 ¶ And Gideon said unto God, If thou wilt save Israel by my hand, as thou hast said,

37 [p]Behold, I will put a fleece of wool in the floor: and if the dew be on the fleece only, and it be dry upon all the earth besides, then shall I know that thou wilt save Israel by my hand, as thou hast said.

38 And it was so: for he rose up early on the morrow, and thrust the fleece together, and wringed the dew out of the fleece, a bowl-full of water.

39 And Gideon said unto God, [q]Let not thine anger be hot against me, and I will speak but this once: let me prove, I pray thee, but this once with the fleece; let it now be dry only upon the fleece, and upon all the ground let there be dew.

40 And God did so that night: for it was dry upon the fleece only, and there was dew on all the ground.

CHAP. VII.

1, 7 Gideon's army of two and thirty thousand is brought to three hundred.

THEN [a]Jerubbaal (who is Gideon) and all the people that were with him, rose up early and pitched beside the well of Harod: so that the host of the Midianites were on the north side of them by the hill of Moreh, in the valley.

2 And the LORD said unto Gideon, The people that are with thee are too many for me to give the Midianites into their hands, lest Israel [b]vaunt themselves against me, saying, Mine own hand hath saved me.

3 Now therefore go to, proclaim in the ears of the people, saying, [c]Whosoever is fearful and afraid, let him return and depart early from mount Gilead. And there returned of the people twenty and two thousand; and there remained ten thousand.

4 And the LORD said unto Gideon, The people are yet too many; bring them down unto the water, and I will try them for thee there; and it shall be that of whom I say unto thee, This shall go with thee, the same shall go with thee; and of whomsoever I say unto thee, This shall not go with thee, the same shall not go.

5 So he brought down the people unto the water: and the LORD said unto Gideon; Every one that lappeth of the water with his tongue as a dog lappeth, him shalt thou set by himself; likewise every one that boweth down upon his knees to drink.

6 And the number of them that lapped, putting their hand to their mouth, were three hundred men: but all the rest of the people bowed down upon their knees to drink water.

7 And the LORD said unto Gideon, [d]By the three hundred men that lapped will I save you, and deliver the Midianites into thine hand: and let all the other people go every man unto his place.

8 So the people took victuals in their hand, and their trumpets: and he sent all the rest of Israel every man unto his tent, and retained those three hundred men. And the host of Midian was beneath him in the valley.

9 ¶ And it came to pass the same [e]night, that the LORD said unto him, Arise, get thee down unto the host; for I have delivered it into thine hand.

10 But if thou fear to go down, go thou with Phurah thy servant down to the host:

11 And thou shalt [f]hear what they say; and afterward shall thine hands be strengthened to go down unto the host. Then went he down with Phurah his servant unto the outside of the ‖ armed men that were in the host.

12 And the Midianites, and the Amalekites, and [g]all the children of the east, lay along in the valley like grasshoppers for multitude; and their camels were without number, as the sand by the sea-side for multitude.

13 And when Gideon was come, behold, there was a man that told a dream unto his fellow, and said, Behold, I dreamed a dream, and lo, a cake of barley-bread tumbled into the host of Midian, and came unto a tent, and smote it that it fell, and overturned it that the tent lay along.

14 And his fellow answered, and said, This is nothing else save the sword of Gideon the son of Joash, a man of Israel: for into his hand hath God delivered Midian, and all the host.

15 ¶ And it was so, when Gideon heard the telling of the dream, and † the interpretation thereof, that he worshipped, and returned into the host of Israel, and said, Arise; for the LORD hath delivered into your hand the host of Midian.

16 And he divided the three hundred men into three companies, and he put † a trumpet in every man's hand, with empty pitchers, and ‖ lamps within the pitchers.

17 And he said unto them, Look on me, and do likewise: and behold, when I come to the outside of the camp, it shall be that as I do, so shall ye do.

18 When I blow with a trumpet, I and all that are with me, then blow ye the trumpets also on every side of all the camp, and say, The sword of the LORD, and of Gideon.

19 ¶ So Gideon, and the hundred men that were with him, came unto the outside of the camp in the beginning of the middle watch; and they had but newly set the watch: and they blew the trumpets, and brake the pitchers that were in their hands.

20 And the three companies blew the trumpets, and brake the pitchers, and held the lamps in their left hands, and the trumpets in their right hands to blow withal: and they cried, The sword of the LORD, and of Gideon.

21 And they [h] stood every man in his place round about the camp; [i] and all the host ran, and cried, and fled.

22 And the three hundred [k] blew the trumpets, and [l] the LORD set [m] every man's sword against his fellow, even throughout all the host: and the host fled to Beth-shittah ‖ in Zererath, and to the † border of Abel-meholah, unto Tabbath.

23 And the men of Israel gathered themselves together out of Naphtali, and out of Asher, and out of all Manasseh, and pursued after the Midianites.

24 ¶ And Gideon sent messengers throughout all [n] mount Ephraim, saying, Come down against the Midianites, and take before them the waters unto Beth-barah and Jordan. Then all the men of Ephraim gathered themselves together, and [o] took the waters unto [p] Beth-barah and Jordan.

25 And they took [q] two princes of the Midianites, Oreb and Zeeb; and they slew Oreb upon [r] the rock Oreb, and Zeeb they slew at the wine-press of Zeeb, and pursued Midian, and brought the heads of Oreb and Zeeb to Gideon on the [s] other side Jordan.

CHAP. VIII.

1 Gideon pacifieth the Ephraimites. 4 Succoth and Penuel refuse to relieve Gideon's army.

AND [a] the men of Ephraim said unto him, † Why hast thou served us thus, that thou calledst us not when thou wentest to fight with the Midianites? and they did chide with him † sharply.

2 And he said unto them, What have I done now in comparison of you? Is not the gleaning of the grapes of Ephraim better than the vintage of Abi-ezer?

3 [b] God hath delivered into your hands the princes of Midian, Oreb and Zeeb: and what was I able to do in comparison of you? Then their † [c] anger was abated toward him, when he had said that.

4 ¶ And Gideon came to Jordan, and passed over, he, and the three hundred men that were with him, faint, yet pursuing them.

5 And he said unto the men of [d] Succoth, Give, I pray you, loaves of bread unto the people that follow me: for they be faint, and I am pursuing after Zebah and Zalmunna, kings of Midian.

6 ¶ And the princes of Succoth said, [e] Are the hands of Zebah and Zalmunna now in thine hand, that [f] we should give bread unto thine army?

7 And Gideon said, Therefore when the LORD hath delivered Zebah and Zalmunna into mine hand, [g] then I will † tear your flesh with the thorns of the wilderness and with briers.

8 ¶ And he went up thence [h] to Penuel, and spake unto them likewise: and the men of Penuel answered him as the men of Succoth had answered him.

9 And he spake also unto the men of Penuel, saying, When I [i] come again in peace, [k] I will break down this tower.

10 ¶ Now Zebah and Zalmunna were in Karkor, and their hosts with them, about fifteen thousand men, all that were left of [l] all the hosts of the children of the east: for there fell ‖ an hundred and twenty thousand men that drew sword.

11 ¶ And Gideon went up by the way of them that dwelt in tents on the east of [m] Nobah and Jogbehah, and smote the host: for the host was [n] secure.

12 And when Zebah and Zalmunna fled, he pursued after them, and [o] took the two kings of Midian, Zebah and Zalmunna, and † discomfited all the host.

13 ¶ And Gideon the son of Joash returned from battle before the sun was up,

14 And caught a young man of the men of Succoth, and inquired of him: and he † described unto him the princes of Succoth, and the elders thereof, even threescore and seventeen men.

15 And he came unto the men of Succoth, and said, Behold Zebah and Zalmunna, with whom ye did [p] upbraid me, saying, Are the hands of Zebah and Zalmunna now in thine hand, that we should give bread unto thy men that are weary?

16 [q] And he took the elders of the city, and thorns of the wilderness, and briers, and with them he † taught the men of Succoth.

17 [r] And he beat down the tower of [s] Penuel, and slew the men of the city.

18 ¶ Then said he unto Zebah and Zalmunna, What manner of men were they whom ye slew at [t] Tabor? And they answered, As thou art, so were they; each one † resembled the children of a king.

19 And he said, They were my brethren, even the sons of my mother: as the LORD liveth, if ye had saved them alive, I would not slay you.

20 And he said unto Jether his first-born, Up, and slay them. But the youth drew not his sword: for he feared, because he was yet a youth.

21 Then Zebah and Zalmunna said, Rise thou, and fall upon us: for as the man is, so is his strength. And Gideon arose, and [u] slew Zebah and Zalmunna, and took away the ‖ ornaments that were on their camels' necks.

22 ¶ Then the men of Israel said unto Gideon, Rule thou over us, both thou, and thy son, and thy son's son also: for thou hast delivered us from the hand of Midian.

23 And Gideon said unto them, I will not rule over you, neither shall my son rule over you: [x] the LORD shall rule over you.

24 ¶ And Gideon said unto them, I would desire a request of you, that you would give me every man the ear-rings of his prey. (For they had golden ear-rings, [y] because they were Ishmaelites.)

25 And they answered, We will willingly give them. And they spread a garment, and did cast therein every man the ear-rings of his prey.

26 And the weight of the golden ear-rings that he requested, was a thousand and seven hundred shekels of gold; beside ornaments, and ‖ collars, and purple raiment that was on the kings of Midian, and beside the chains that were about their camels' necks.

27 And Gideon [z] made an ephod thereof, and put it in his city, even [a] in Ophrah: and all Israel [b] went thither a whoring after it: which thing became [c] a snare unto Gideon, and to his house.

28 ¶ Thus was Midian subdued before the children of Israel, so that they lifted up their heads no more. [d] And the country was in quietness forty years in the days of Gideon.

29 ¶ And Jerubbaal the son of Joash went and dwelt in his own house.

30 And Gideon had [e] threescore and ten sons † of his body begotten: for he had many wives.

31 [f] And his concubine that was in Shechem, she also bare him a son, whose name he † called Abimelech.

32 ¶ And Gideon the son of Joash died [g] in a good old age, and was buried in the sepulchre of Joash his father, [h] in Ophrah of the Abi-ezrites.

33 And it came to pass [i] as soon as Gideon was dead, that the children of Israel turned again, and [k] went a whoring after Baalim, [l] and made Baal-berith their god.

34 And the children of Israel [m] remembered not the LORD their God, who had delivered them out of the hands of all their enemies on every side:

35 [n] Neither shewed they kindness to the house of Jerubbaal, namely, Gideon, according to all the goodness which he had shewed unto Israel.

CHAP. IX.

Abimelech, by conspiracy with the Shechemites, and murder of his brethren, is made king.

AND Abimelech the son of Jerubbaal went to Shechem unto [a] his mother's brethren, and communed with them, and with all the family of the house of his mother's father. saying,

2 Speak, I pray you, in the ears of all the men of Shechem, † Whether is better for you, either that all the sons of Jerubbaal, which are [b] threescore and ten persons, reign over you, or that one reign over you? remember also that I am [c] your bone and your flesh.

3 And his mother's brethren spake of him in the ears of all the men of Shechem all these words: and their hearts inclined † to follow Abimelech; for they said, He is our [d] brother.

4 And they gave him threescore and ten pieces of silver out of the house of [e] Baal-berith, wherewith Abimelech hired [f] vain and light persons, which followed him.

5 And he went unto his father's house [g] at Ophrah, and [h] slew his brethren the sons of Jerubbaal, being threescore and ten persons, upon one stone: notwithstanding, yet Jotham the youngest son of Jerubbaal was left; for he hid himself.

6 And all the men of Shechem gathered together, and all the house of Millo, and went and made Abimelech king, † by the plain of the pillar that was in Shechem.

7 ¶ And when they told it to Jotham, he went and stood in the top of [i] mount Gerizim, and lifted up his voice, and cried, and said unto them, Hearken unto me, ye men of Shechem, that God may hearken unto you.

8 [k] The trees went forth on a time to anoint a king over them; and they said unto the olive-tree, [l] Reign thou over us.

9 But the olive-tree said unto them, Should I leave my fatness, [m] wherewith by me they honour God and man, and † go to be promoted over the trees?

10 And the trees said to the fig-tree, Come thou, and reign over us.

11 But the fig-tree said unto them, Should I forsake my sweetness, and my good fruit, and go to be promoted over the trees?

12 Then said the trees unto the vine, Come thou, and reign over us.

13 And the vine said unto them, Should I leave my wine, [n] which cheereth God and man, and go to be promoted over the trees?

14 Then said all the trees unto the ‖ bramble, Come thou, and reign over us.

15 And the bramble said unto the trees, If in truth ye anoint me king over you, then come and put your trust in my [o] shadow: and if not, [p] let fire come out of the bramble, and devour the [q] cedars of Lebanon.

16 Now therefore, if ye have done truly and sincerely, in that ye have made Abimelech king, and if ye have dealt well with Jerubbaal and his house, and have done unto him [r] according to the deserving of his hands:

17 (For my father fought for you, and † adventured his life far, and delivered you out of the hand of Midian:

18 [s] And ye are risen up against my father's house this day, and have slain his sons, threescore and ten persons, upon one stone, and have made Abimelech, the son of his maid-servant, king over the men of Shechem, because he is your brother:)

19 If ye then have dealt truly and sincerely with Jerubbaal and with his house this day, then [t] rejoice ye in Abimelech, and let him also rejoice in you:

20 But if not, [u] let fire come out from Abimelech, and devour the men of Shechem, and the house of Millo; and let fire come out from the men of Shechem, and from the house of Millo, and devour Abimelech.

21 And Jotham ran away, and fled, and went to [x] Beer, and dwelt there, for fear of Abimelech his brother.

22 ¶ When Abimelech had reigned three years over Israel,

23 Then [y] God sent an evil spirit between Abimelech and the men of Shechem; and the men of Shechem [z] dealt treacherously with Abimelech:

24 [a] That the cruelty done to the threescore and ten sons of Jerubbaal might come, and their blood be laid upon Abimelech their brother which slew them, and upon the men of Shechem which † aided him in the killing of his brethren.

25 And the men of Shechem set liers in wait for him in the top of the mountains, and they robbed all that came along that way by them: and it was told Abimelech.

26 And Gaal the son of Ebed came with his brethren, and went over to Shechem: and the men of Shechem put their confidence in him.

27 And they went out into the fields, and gathered their vineyards, and trode the grapes, and made ‖ mer-

QUEEN VASHTI REFUSING TO OBEY THE COMMAND OF AHASUERUS.—Esther i. 12.

BOAZ AND RUTH.

ry, and went into [b] the house of their god, and did eat and drink, and cursed Abimelech.

28 And Gaal the son of Ebed said, [c] Who is Abimelech, and who is Shechem, that we should serve him? is not he the son of Jerubbaal? and Zebul his officer? serve the men of [d] Hamor the father of Shechem: for why should we serve him?

29 And [e] would to God this people were under my hand! then would I remove Abimelech. And he said to Abimelech, Increase thine army, and come out.

30 ¶ And when Zebul the ruler of the city heard the words of Gaal the son of Ebed, his anger was ‖ kindled.

31 And he sent messengers unto Abimelech † privily, saying, Behold, Gaal the son of Ebed, and his brethren, be come to Shechem; and behold, they fortify the city against thee.

32 Now therefore up by night, thou, and the people that is with thee, and lie in wait in the field:

33 And it shall be, that in the morning, as soon as the sun is up, thou shalt rise early, and set upon the city: and behold, when he and the people that is with him come out against thee, then mayest thou do to them † as thou shalt find occasion.

34 ¶ And Abimelech rose up, and all the people that were with him, by night, and they laid wait against Shechem in four companies.

35 And Gaal the son of Ebed went out, and stood in the entering of the gate of the city: and Abimelech rose up, and the people that were with him, from lying in wait.

36 And when Gaal saw the people, he said to Zebul, Behold, there come people down from the top of the mountains. And Zebul said unto him, Thou seest the shadow of the mountains as if they were men.

37 And Gaal spake again, and said, See, there come people down by the † middle of the land, and another company come along by the plain of ‖ Meonenim.

38 Then said Zebul unto him, Where is now thy mouth, wherewith thou [f] saidst, Who is Abimelech, that we should serve him? is not this the people that thou hast despised? go out, I pray now, and fight with them.

39 And Gaal went out before the men of Shechem, and fought with Abimelech.

40 And Abimelech chased him, and he fled before him, and many were overthrown and wounded, even unto the entering of the gate.

41 And Abimelech dwelt at Arumah: and Zebul thrust out Gaal and his brethren, that they should not dwell in Shechem.

42 And it came to pass on the morrow, that the people went out into the field; and they told Abimelech.

43 And he took the people, and divided them into three companies, and laid wait in the field, and looked, and behold, the people were come forth out of the city; and he rose up against them, and smote them.

44 And Abimelech, and the company that was with him, rushed forward, and stood in the entering of the gate of the city: and the two other companies ran upon all the people that were in the fields, and slew them.

45 And Abimelech fought against the city all that day; and [g] he took the city, and slew the people that was therein, and [h] beat down the city, and sowed it with salt.

46 ¶ And when all the men of the tower of Shechem heard that, they entered into an hold of the house [i] of the god Berith.

47 And it was told Abimelech, that all the men of the tower of Shechem were gathered together.

48 And Abimelech gat him up to mount [k] Zalmon, he and all the people that were with him; and Abimelech took an axe in his hand, and cut down a bough from the trees, and took it, and laid it on his shoulder, and said unto the people that were with him, What ye have seen † me do, make haste, and do as I have done.

49 And all the people likewise cut down every man his bough, and followed Abimelech, and put them to the hold, and set the hold on fire upon them: so that all the men of the tower of Shechem died also, about a thousand men and women.

50 ¶ Then went Abimelech to Thebez, and encamped against Thebez, and took it.

51 But there was a strong tower within the city, and thither fled all the men and women, and all they of the city, and shut it to them, and gat them up to the top of the tower.

52 And Abimelech came unto the tower, and fought against it, and went hard unto the door of the tower to burn it with fire.

53 And a certain woman [l] cast a piece of a millstone upon Abimelech's head, and all to brake his skull.

54 Then [m] he called hastily unto the young man his armour-bearer, and said unto him, Draw thy sword, and slay me, that men say not of me, A woman slew him. And his young man thrust him through, and he died.

55 And when the men of Israel saw that Abimelech was dead, they departed every man unto his place.

56 ¶ [n] Thus God rendered the wickedness of Abimelech, which he did unto his father, in slaying his seventy brethren:

57 And all the evil of the men of Shechem did God render upon their heads: and upon them came [o] the curse of Jotham the son of Jerubbaal.

CHAP. X.

Tola judgeth Israel in Shamir.

AND after Abimelech there [a] arose to ‖ † defend Israel, Tola the son of Puah, the son of Dodo, a man of Issachar; and he dwelt in Shamir in mount Ephraim.

2 And he judged Israel twenty and three years, and died, and was buried in Shamir.

3 ¶ And after him arose Jair, a Gileadite, and judged Israel twenty and two years.

4 And he had thirty sons that [b] rode on thirty ass colts, and they had thirty cities, [c] which are called ‖ Havoth-jair unto this day, which are in the land of Gilead.

5 And Jair died, and was buried in Camon.

6 ¶ And [d] the children of Israel did evil again in the sight of the LORD, and [e] served Baalim, and Ashtaroth, and [f] the gods of Syria, and the gods of [g] Zidon, and the gods of Moab, and the gods of the children of Ammon, and the gods of the Philistines, and forsook the LORD, and served not him.

7 And the anger of the LORD was hot against Israel, and he [h] sold them into the hands of the Philistines, and into the hands of the children of Ammon.

8 And that year they vexed and † oppressed the children of Israel eighteen years, all the children of Israel that were on the other side Jordan in the land of the Amorites, which is in Gilead.

9 Moreover, the children of Ammon passed over Jordan, to fight also against Judah, and against Benjamin, and against the house of Ephraim: so that Israel was sore distressed.

10 ¶ [i]And the children of Israel cried unto the LORD, saying, We have sinned against thee, both because we have forsaken our God, and also served Baalim.

11 And the LORD said unto the children of Israel, Did not I deliver you [k]from the Egyptians, and [l]from the Amorites, [m]from the children of Ammon, [n]and from the Philistines?

12 [o]The Zidonians also, [p]and the Amalekites, and the Maonites [q]did oppress you; and ye cried to me, and I delivered you out of their hand.

13 [r]Yet ye have forsaken me, and served other gods: wherefore I will deliver you no more.

14 Go and [s]cry unto the gods which ye have chosen; let them deliver you in the time of your tribulation.

15 ¶ And the children of Israel said unto the LORD, We have sinned: [t]do thou unto us whatsoever †seemeth good unto thee; deliver us only, we pray thee, this day.

16 [u]And they put away the †strange gods from among them, and served the LORD: and [x]his soul †was grieved for the misery of Israel.

17 Then the children of Ammon were †gathered together, and encamped in Gilead. And the children of Israel assembled themselves together, and encamped in [y]Mizpeh.

18 And the people and princes of Gilead said one to another, What man is he that will begin to fight against the children of Ammon? he shall [z]be head over all the inhabitants of Gilead.

CHAP. XI.

The covenant between Jephthah and the Gileadites.

NOW [a]Jephthah the Gileadite was [b]a mighty man of valour, and he was the son of †an harlot: and Gilead begat Jephthah.

2 And Gilead's wife bare him sons; and his wife's sons grew up, and they thrust out Jephthah, and said unto him, Thou shalt not inherit in our father's house; for thou art the son of a strange woman.

3 Then Jephthah fled †from his brethren, and dwelt in the land of Tob: and there were gathered [c]vain men to Jephthah, and went out with him.

4 ¶ And it came to pass †in process of time, that the children of Ammon made war against Israel.

5 And it was so, that when the children of Ammon made war against Israel, the elders of Gilead went to fetch Jephthah out of the land of Tob:

6 And they said unto Jephthah, Come, and be our captain, that we may fight with the children of Ammon.

7 And Jephthah said unto the elders of Gilead, [d]Did not ye hate me, and expel me out of my father's house? and why are ye come unto me now when ye are in distress?

8 [e]And the elders of Gilead said unto Jephthah, Therefore we [f]turn again to thee now, that thou mayest go with us, and fight against the children of Ammon, and be [g]our head over all the inhabitants of Gilead.
